Saturday, Aug. 14, Wagner's Faust Overture, Piston's Symphony No. 4, Ravel's Piano Concerto (Nicole Henriot, soloist) Saint-Saens' Symphony No. 3 (with organ), Munch conducting.

Sunday, Aug. 15, Berlioz's Requiem, with chorus and soloists, Munch conducting.

Music by Bach, Handel, Haydn, Roussel, Ibert, Mozart, Stravinsky Rossini and Ravel will be heard on the Friday evening programs.

Chamber Music Added To Berkshire Festival

June 1 - 54

New Lebanon Echo

Six chamber music concerts at Tanglewood are now a part of the enlarged Berkshire Festival of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, Conductor. They will be given on 6 Wednesday evenings in the intimate Theatre-Concert Hall.

The chamber music concerts at Tanglewood were initiated by the late Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge, who for several years generously donated concerts to which Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, contributors to the support of the school, were invited. This custom of chamber music at Tanglewood is continued as a part of the Berkshire Festival concerts, and the proceeds of the ticket sale will be used to benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund. Several of the artists participating will add to this benefit by contributing their services.

The following programs are announced, subject to change and addition:

Wed., July 7—Claudio Arrau, piano; the Bel Arte Trio (Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola; Martin Hoherman, cello) in a Beethoven program:

Wed., July 14—The Albeneri Trio (Erich Itor Kahn, piano; Giorgio Ciompi, violin; Benar Heifetz, cello)

Wed., July 21—The Zimbler Sinfonietta, under the direction of Josef Zimbler.

Wed., July 28—The Griller String Quartet (Sidney Griller and Jack O'Brien, violins; Phillip Burton, viola; Colin Hampton, cello)

Wed., Aug. 4—The Kroll String Quartet (William Kroll and Louis Graeler, violins; Nathan Gordon, viola; Avron Twerdowsky, cello)

Wed., Aug. 11—Zino Francescatti, violin; Arthur Blsam, piano Sonata Recital.

[94]

"... GET BIG CO..."

... Wire, Tape Backgrounds, ... To Get Going Over

Cats Vs. Chicks

MGM Records is pitting the sexes against each other in a battle of jazz. Diskery has set the Clark Terry Septet against the Terry Pollard Septet for a longplay album to be tagged "Cats vs Chicks."

The combos will play the same numbers. Tunes set for the platter battle are "Cat Meets Chick," "Mamblues," "The Man I Love" and "Anything You Can Do.' Album will be produced by Leonard Feather.

Berkshire Fest Readies for Its Biggest Season

Lenox, Mass., June 15.

The Berkshire Festival—variously referred to as the summer music mecca of America, its Salzburg or Bayreuth—is readying for its 17th, and what appears as its biggest season at Tanglewood here. Due to the success of last year's fest, when 118,000 persons were attracted to break all attendance records, with a $311,600 take, event has been extended. Season will run a full six weeks instead of three, for the first time, with full symphony concerts Saturdays-Sundays and chamber concerts Wednesdays-Fridays.

Fest will tee off July 7 in the Theatre-Concert Hall with Claudio Arrau and Bel Arte Trio in a Beethoven program, with another chamber concert Friday night (9) with a small orch playing the Bach Brandenburg concertos. First Music Shed concert, July 10, will have Charles Munch leading the Boston Symphony Orchestra in Berlioz's "Damnation of Faust" with soloists, the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society. Pierre Monteux will concert Sunday's (11) all-Beethoven symph program.

Honoring the 150th anni season of Hector Berlioz, the fest will offer various works of the Frenchman, during the six-week run, such as "Romeo and Juliet," "Requiem," "Fantastic Symphony," "Te Deum" "Harold in Italy." Season soloists will include Eleanor Steber, Nicole Henriot, Zino Francescatti, William Primrose, Vera Franceschi, Ruth Posselt and Leo Smit. Munch will conduct most of the Shed concerts, with Richard Burgin, Jean Morel and Monteux taking one each. Season will end Aug. 15, when the Berlioz "Requiem" will be done with a soloist and chorus in memory of Serge Koussevitky, late conductor of the BSO.

Staff Arrives at Tanglewood

TANGLEWOOD—In preparation for the opening of the 17th Berkshire Festival, the 15th since the Boston Symphony Orchestra participated, at Tanglewood, on Wednesday, July 7, and its attendant 12th season of the Berkshire Music Center, the orchestra's summer school of music, Festival and school staff members are arriving at Tanglewood.

Thomas D. Perry Jr., executive secretary of the Berkshire Music Center, and assistant manager of the orchestra, who was recently named to succeed retiring Manager George E. Judd at the end of the summer, is in a summer cottage at Stockbridge Bowl he has occupied for two seasons now. He will shortly be joined by Mrs. Perry and their two sons when they complete their year's school in Hingham. Assisting Mr. Perry is his secretary, Miss Josephine Testa, of Pittsfield, residing with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Angelo Testa at 71 Stoddard Ave. This is Miss Testa's fourth summer at Tanglewood, the past three having been in the Festival box office.

Berkowitz Due Today

Expected today is Ralph Berkowitz, of the Curtis School of Music, Philadelphia, to resume his duties as dean of the Berkshire Music School. With Mrs. Berkowitz and their daughter, Joan, he will reside again this summer in the Crockett Building, Main St., Lenox. His secretary, Miss Patsy Hayes, who attends the Curtis School in the winter, will again be in the girl students' dormitory at the Lenox School. Miss Edith Bossler, Registrar of the Berkshire Music Center, is again at Chef Karl's in Lenox.

Again in charge of the Festival box office is Allan Smith of Boston, residing at the Sheraton Hotel in Pittsfield. His assistants are Thomas Juko of the Salisbury (Conn.) School, who commutes to his home there, and Miss Priscilla Fitch of 26 Paisley Ter., Pittsfield, spending part time from her position with the Draft Board of Lee.

Roger Hinman and Edward Mills of the Lenox School faculty are in charge of the office of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center. Joseph LaPlante, who runs the music and record store at Tanglewood with his wife Virginia, are living this summer at the club house on Stockbridge Bowl. Peter Jenkins of Albany, a student at Windsor Mountain School, has joined the guide staff and was on duty this past weekend. Harry Porter of Boston, carpenter with the Berkshire Symphony, is also on hand.

Berkshire Eagle June 15-54

MASSACHUSETTS WRAPS IT UP NEATLY

By JOHN FENTON

BOSTON—Vacationists coming to Massachusetts this summer will find scenic proof that the state can provide a neatly packaged sample of most of the attractions to be found on a nation-wide tour. What is more, most of them may be covered in a single day of more or less leisurely travel.

For sun, sea and sand, the tourist will find that Cape Cod in summer has an appeal similar to that of Florida in winter. For undulating meadow lands, with attractive lakes and ponds, the stretch in mid-state known as Pioneer Valley has some of the characteristics of the Central States. For scenes reminiscent of the Mississippi Valley, the Connecticut River offers a reasonable facsimile, although in miniature. Much the same is true for mountains, in a trip through the Berkshires.

Yet Bay Staters are not unmindful that Massachusetts has landmarks particularly its own. Not the least of these are the historic shrines that abound in Boston, or that are to be found in the surrounding communities of Salem, Concord, Lexington and Newburyport.

Past and Future

The university city of Cambridge is a unique blending of the past and the future. There is Harvard, with its elm-lined yard and its tradition as the nation's oldest college. Hard by, also along the banks of the Charles River, is the bustling Massachusetts Institute of Technology, with its contemporary-style buildings housing research projects dealing with the new atomic age.

Operating often in conjunction with the two institutions, and with Boston University, just across the river in Boston, are private research companies that make up what is popularly known as "Trillion Dollar Row," because of the vast funds that are at work there.

In the House of Representatives chamber in the Massachusetts State House hangs a wooden representation of a cod fish, symbolic of the state's first industry, fishing. Summer visitors still have a choice of fishing, either in the deep sea, where cod are found, or in the many brooks and lakes farther inland.

Cape Cod, besides being popular for dunes and bathing beaches, is also the place for deep-sea and surf fishermen. Charter boats are available in every hamlet along the Cape, while small steamers sail daily from Boston for the near-by ground fishing banks.

This summer, as in past years half a dozen fishing derbies will be in progress from early in the season to the fall, with prizes offered for the biggest catches.

Emphasis on Swimming

Even without fishing contests, life on the Cape would have the water for its central theme. Most vacationists arrange their days around trips to the beaches. On the bay and along the southern shore, where the influence of the Gulf Stream is felt, the water is warm. From Chatham north along the white dunes that face directly on the Atlantic, there is much more surf and the water is often icy cold even in the hottest weather.

The Atlantic ocean, too, provides yachting for visitors and natives alike, and few are the seacoast communities that lack at least one yacht club. Every week-end finds regattas listed all along the coast, with evening dances to top off the sailing program.

For a combination of sea and land, there are the islands of Nantucket and Martha's Vineyard, off Cape Cod to the south, where ancient whaling villages offer hospitality to increasing numbers every season.

Inland, there are golfing, tennis, hiking, horseback riding and delightful highways for motor trips. The secret of motoring in Massachusetts is to take almost any blacktop side road and merely wander at will. The trip, in almost any direction, will wind through New England villages, with their town commons, white churches and their rambling old homes.

Inland Sections

Across the state, in the Berkshires, the Boston Symphony Orchestra plays summer concerts at Tanglewood. These will be held this year from July 7 through Aug. 15. Near by are schools and recitals of the dance, drama and other arts.

In central Massachusetts, on either side of the Connecticut River that bisects the state from north to south, is Pioneer Valley, an area of fertile fields, clear lakes and streams, and wooded hills. The valley also is noted for fossil beds of dinosaur tracks dating back to the time when the ocean was believed to have run deep into Vermont. In the north central part of the state is Sturbridge Village, a recreated Colonial community.

The North Shore is a goal for many vacationists. Here the sea churn against rocks that run down to the water's edge. In spite the preponderance of rocky shore, however, there is a stretch just south of Gloucester in the Magnolia section, where pine trees and sand are found.

Art and Fishing

Gloucester as well as neighboring Rockport offers a combination of fishing lore and early colonies. Salem, still famous south of Cape Ann, is the site of the House of Seven Gables, which is open as a museum. There also is a Colonial village in Old Sturbridge.

In Saugus, a sprawling residential community between the North Shore and Boston, work is being completed on a restoration of what has been called the first iron works in America. Some of the buildings already have been completed, and there is an interesting collection of artifacts worth seeing.

Boston itself, of course, is visited annually by hundreds of thousands of visitors touring historic shrines. One may spend several days wandering through them, with sight-seeing bus tours that include not only Boston but also Concord and Lexington. There are handy trips available to Plymouth, the settling place of the Pilgrims.

For those who like more excitement, there are major league baseball games when the Red Sox are in town. There are the dog tracks at Revere and Taunton. Horse racing shifts from New Hampshire to Massachusetts to Rhode Island from thaw to frost, and all three tracks are within easy commuting distance of Boston.

For less costly entertainment there is Revere Beach with its roller coasters and other amusements. There also are beaches for quiet bathing and picnicking on both the North and South Shores.

Seafood Restaurants

All along the seacoast are hundreds of restaurants specializing in seafood dinners at reasonable prices. Throughout the state there are hotels, inns, guest houses, modern motels and tourist courts. Prices start as low as $2 per person in the guest houses, while cottage colonies offer accommodations for a couple as low as $45 to $50 a week.

Reaching Massachusetts is a matter of personal preference. Greyhound bus lines; the New York, New Haven and Hartford and the Boston and Albany Railroad, and American, Eastern, United and Northeast airlines all operate into Boston. For those driving, there are highways from all directions, and plans for bigger and better ones are on the drawing board.

New York Times 6-3-54

[95]

ON THE COVER

MISS ANN TIERNEY of New York is photographed by George Dixon as she rehearses for "The Marriage of Figaro," which the New England Opera Theatre will present on the Boston Public Garden as a feature event in the Boston Arts Festival which starts today. The festival is expected to attract thousands of visitors to Boston from all over New England.

High Fidelity

JULY • THE MAGAZINE FOR MUSIC LISTENERS • 50 CENTS

THE EMERGENCE OF BERLIOZ by JOHN N. BURK

High Fidelity

JULY • THE MAGAZINE FOR MUSIC LISTENERS • 50 CENTS

THE EMERGENCE OF BERLIOZ by JOHN N. BURK

WHAT'S new IN TAPE RECORDING

Here's a professional magnetic sound recording tape that offers a new high in permanence and durability. It can be used and stored under the most extreme conditions of temperature and humidity without any ill effects. For all practical purposes, it is virtually unbreakable. Now available on 1, 1½ and 2 mil Mylar*, in standard sizes from 600 to 2,500 ft. Write for Bulletin No. 201.

The new EP Audiotape provides the extra precision that is so important to dependable magnetic data recording and reproduction. It is especially produced to meet the most exacting requirements for uniformity and freedom from microscopic imperfections. Available in ¼" to 2" widths, 1,225 to 5,000 feet. Write for Bulletin No. 207.

Audiotape, now available on green, blue or brown plastic base—and Audiotape reels in red, yellow, green, blue and clear plastic—provide instant identification that can simplify your cueing, filing, recording and playback problems. Write for Bulletin No. 209.

AUDIO DEVICES, Inc.

Dept. A5, 444 Madison Ave., New York, 22, N. Y.

Export Dept., 13 East 40th St., New York 16, N. Y., Cables "ARLAB"

THEY SPEAK FOR THEMSELVES

AS THE EDITORS SEE IT

IN APRIL, RCA Victor announced that in Autumn 1954 it will begin to market pre-recorded tape. This means music, for private-citizen customers — say, the Toscanini Beethoven Ninth, or the Glenn Miller memorial music (in actuality, the company has not, at the time of this writing, announced its initial tape repertoire). It seemed to us that this ought to galvanize the record industry. We get a lot of mail, and altogether too much of it has been devoted to fulminations from home-music enthusiasts about the scratches, gouges and other mars that deface the vinyl disk-records they buy. These are ills to which tape is immune. Its other advantages are more debatable. At 7½ inches per second, its fidelity may or may not be higher than that of disks rotating at 33⅓ revolutions per minute. Its signal may or may not be easier to equalize in reproduction. But grit cannot afflict it with pops and bangs. Accordingly it occurred to us that a definitive recording on tape might be well worth the higher price it would cost.

We thought RCA Victor's announcement would, so to speak, unplug the dyke; and that there would be a story. We wrote to everyone likely to be concerned, and we received answers, but there seems to be no story. Nearly all the answers fell into the neutral-to-negative category. Of the other established recording companies, few seem to be ready to take to tape, although many are thinking about it. Most appear to feel that after RCA Victor has investigated the field, there will still be time enough to decide whether to get in or stay out. In a sense this is odd; heretofore it has been the smaller companies that have ventured first, the giants that have entered the field later.

In this instance, the reversal of form may derive from massive sales-research. Last year, RCA Victor ordered, bought and put on sale a large number of home-type tape recorders (not very impressive ones, as it happens). Apparently the experience convinced the company that there was an adequate market for pre-recorded tape. But no one else has seen fit to go along, which may have something to do with the widespread rumor that certain portions of the huge RCA operation (classical records, for instance) are allowed to operate at a loss, as prestige-builders. No one else can afford this kind of tactic.

Columbia says it is watching developments with keen interest. So does Decca. Mercury says nothing. M-G-M offers no comment, in just those words; Capitol phrases it differently. London points out that it is fully cognizant of current developments, including binaural recording, but is biding its time. Westminster has held conferences on the subject, and regards the question as one of "when" rather than "if." The Haydn Society has virtually decided to get in, but has not decided when nor with what releases; it has been conducting a survey of its own. (Like RCA Victor and a few other organizations, it has some timelessly definitive recordings to put on tape — the Anthologie Sonore series, in preparation at this writing, and the Schneider complete Haydn quartets.)

Dario Soria, president of Angel Records, thinks there are important improvements yet to be made in home tape recorders — easy loading devices and the like. He is also inclined to think that current disks are better than 7½ ips tape would be. Of the same opinion are Peter Fritsch, of Lyrichord, Peter Bartok, of Bartok Records, and Emory Cook. The latter, likening the tape-problem to a lion, saith: "We shall be meek, and enter the cage after the first rude, alarming and traumatic experiences have grown dim in the memory of living audio." An eloquent gentleman, Mr. Cook, with a head highly unlikely to be bitten off. Saul Taishoff, of Concert Hall, says simply ". . . We haven't given it much thought yet. We have been too busy selling records." Folkways is going onto tape as of now, or any minute. The catch: their main market is educational, and many school sound-systems are centered around tape. I. Kratka, of Classic Editions, raises a serious complaint: Ought there not, first, to be an invention (scrambling?) to prevent uninhibited copying by customers in their homes, once they have been induced to buy tape-recorders? Otherwise, will not this copying put the source-companies out of business and deprive us all of music? This is worth thinking about.

Meanwhile, Mr. Paul Jansen, sales manager for Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing Company, leading tape-makers, points out that tape-copying machinery now is at least as fast and much cheaper than disk-pressing machinery. This has profound meaning to all the minor record-makers who suffered last February from the price-cut war among the big disk companies — who also do most of the job pressing for small companies, and who didn't lower their custom-pressing fees when they lowered the prices of their own LPs. Had the small companies jointly owned a tape-duplicating co-op, they wouldn't have been caught between the devil and the deep blue sea.

Without waiting for the record companies, various entrepreneurs in the pre-recorded tape field have gone right ahead, with varying success. We have received some excellent tapes from A-V Tape Libraries — good, flutterless, wide-range reproduction of music well-played and obviously picked up by engineers who know their microphone-placement. We have other samples awaiting review, some variety tapes from Hack Swain, of Sarasota, Fla., and recordings of last year's Florence (Italy) music festival, acquired by Audiosphere, of Livingston, N. J. They may or may not be able to break out of the tape-hobbyist area. Aided by the RCA push, they probably will. Perhaps it all depends on what RCA has decided to release. If it turns out to be Toscanini, we will hazard a guess that the dam has busted.

J. M. C.

EMERGENCE OF BERLIOZ

Continued from page 28

this, his first prodigious work, at the age of 27, he put audiences into the way of looking for literary meanings in everything they heard, and judging the music by the story it was supposed to tell.* The literal listener would ask himself what Miss Henrietta Smithson, alias "the beloved," had to do with shepherds and distant thunder, why Berlioz had found it necessary to

Continued on page 99

*The practice is still wished on children. The following actually happened: a mother was overheard at a concert conditioning her small daughter for the Second Suite from Daphnis and Chloe with some bowdlerized longus. When the "General Dance" began, the child's voice piped up: "Is he chasing her now, Mother?"

then to bring himself back to life — all this on the spacious excuse that anything can happen in a nightmare? The literal listener, being a reasoning man (unfortunately), decided that since the composer's literary imagination had run riot beyond all acceptable bounds, his music had done the same.

This, of course, was the whole trouble. If they could only have been spared the wild story of the opium-eater's dream, they would have sooner realized that here was a brand new apparition in a dull world, a tremendous and an unerring masterpiece of contrivance and construction compiled of musical logic which had no connection whatsoever with literary logic. The symphony is nothing else than the adventures of a gorgeously romantic melody, which its composer was moved to put through various paces — a rhapsodic first movement, a waltz in seductiveness anticipating Johann Strauss (at the time a five-year-old boy in Vienna), a march movement building to the utmost in sonority, and a finale in which Berlioz' love of the macabre and the grotesque has its first full fling. The charm of the Fantastic is its youthful ardors, its pristine freshness. Berlioz never again wrote anything like it. Neither did anyone else.

Let us not be so fatuous as to claim for Berlioz that he had no limitations. His genius was orchestral first and last, and his use of chorus or individual voices was often like an extension of the instrumental scheme. He was not instinctively operatic and he would have been quite out of his element in the chamber forms. There are occasional lapses of taste, lapses into clichés of harmony or declamation. In his struggle for recognition he sometimes went too far in trying to capture attention by being startling. It was characteristic of his time that he was possessed by literary images. It would be futile to try to understand the mystery of his creative processes. One must simply accept the magnificent musical results.

It used to be said that his place in

Continued on page 100

musical history was merely that of an innovator, as if there were no personal side to his music! The very fact that his style has proved absolutely inimitable, despite his treatise on instrumentation, with specific directions for all to use, points to a rare and individual spirit. While generations of composers have owed much to Berlioz in a general sense, there have never been copiers of Berlioz' style in the sense that Wagner was followed by innumerable little Wagners, or Debussy by little Debussys. The color moods in Berlioz are the more cherishable because they are unique. There is none to place beside them.

2475 Central Avenue Yonkers, N. Y.
Spencer 9-6400

OHIO

IN CINCINNATI AND THE
TRI-STATE AREA

* COMPETENT ENGINEERING
* COMPONENTS AT NET PRICES
* FINE CABINETRY
* SERVICE ON ALL HI-FI COMPONENTS

Customcraftsmen, Inc.
2259 Gilbert Ave. • Capitol 3153 • Cincinnati 2, Ohio
"A Component or a Complete System"

1803 1869

The Emergence of Berlioz

by JOHN N. BURK

DOES A mere calendar occurrence account for the renewed interest in Hector Berlioz made manifest through the past season, including performances, recordings, and a newborn Berlioz Society? Or is there more to it than that? Musical trends and musical taste have been converging inescapably on Berlioz for quite a while. The 150th anniversary of his birth (December 11 last) merely came at a convenient moment. The time was ripe; only the excuse, the fillip, was needed.

The case of Berlioz is a curious one. A hundred years are often not too many for the world to reach a just and enduring valuation of a composer of music, however great; a truth proved by the various and changing attitudes toward this greatest of the musical Frenchmen. No one ever has tried to deny that he was one of the true originals of music, an innovator to whom the Romantics of the century to follow would be deeply indebted. But the fact remains that critical opinion was never more than half-heartedly in his favor during his lifetime, and public applause was sporadic. In the years that followed he was too often condescended to, even by those who drew most heavily upon the possibilities he had opened up for them. He was called an upstart musician, an arriviste; it was said that he lacked any systematic school training. He could play no instrument presentably (except perhaps the guitar). Instead of undergoing preparatory experience as a conductor or a player, he merely used his ears. He went around asking friendly trombonists or oboists whether a proposed passage was negotiable. But the results give us, now, the answer, and he gives us a lesson. He found out things in his own peculiar way. And it is a way, of course, in which the true musical ground-breaker is apt to develop.

Berlioz never has lacked individual champions. There were Liszt and Schumann and Heine, in his own time; and a number of loyal French adherents. But they were hardly heard, and others looked upon him as a brilliant oddity, to be accepted with some doubts as to his complete sanity. In ensuing years, later lone prophets have raised their voices — Camille Saint-Saëns, Romain Rolland, Julien Tiersot, Ernest Newman, Jacques Barzun. Certain conductors have labored mightily in his cause — in recent times, Weingartner, Beecham, Munch.

In burning words, Rolland* has shown how Berlioz has been misunderstood from the start on account of the contradictions both in his nature and in his music. The obvious and sensational Berlioz has been fastened upon, the less ostentatious but deeper qualities not even noticed. Newman has shown how Berlioz, non-German from the ground up, has been dismissed by those for whom all music since Bach is necessarily built on the German classical tradition.

These are certainly points well taken, but it seems to me that there are still other reasons. One is that the listening public has seldom been presented with any full work of Berlioz but almost always (excepting the case of Fantastic Symphony) with excerpts which give as fragmentary an idea of the composer as they are themselves fragmentary. This situation I shall take up presently. Another reason is that Berlioz, a Romantic of the Romantics so far as poetic and imaginative excesses are concerned, was fundamentally at odds with his Romantic colleagues. He simply did things in his own way, without consulting fashion. It was like him to give his greatest effort to an opera based on Virgil's Aeneid and in the declamatory style of Gluck, when both Virgil and Gluck were considered operatically obsolete. There was a still more fundamental divergence: while the Romantics, kill her, to have himself executed and then to bring himself back to life — all this on the spacious excuse that anything can happen in a nightmare? The literal listener, being a reasoning man (unfortunately), decided that since the composer's literary imagination had run riot beyond all acceptable bounds, his music had done the same.

*Musicians of Today (1908).

EMERGENCE OF BERLIOZ

Continued from page 98

This, of course, was the whole trouble. If they could only have been spared the wild story of the opium-eater's dream, they would have sooner realized that here was a brand new apparition in a dull world, a tremendous and an unerring masterpiece of contrivance and construction compiled of musical logic which had no connection whatsoever with literary logic. The symphony is nothing else than the adventures of a gorgeously romantic melody, which its composer was moved to put through various paces — a rhapsodic first movement, a waltz in seductiveness anticipating Johann Strauss (at the time a five-year-old boy in Vienna), a march movement building to the utmost in sonority, and a finale in which Berlioz' love of the macabre and the grotesque has its first full fling. The charm of the Fantastic is its youthful ardors, its pristine freshness. Berlioz never again wrote anything like it. Neither did anyone else.

Let us not be so fatuous as to claim for Berlioz that he had no limitations. His genius was orchestral first and last, and his use of chorus or individual voices was often like an extension of the instrumental scheme. He was not instinctively operatic and he would have been quite out of his element in the chamber forms. There are occasional lapses of taste, lapses into clichés of harmony or declamation. In his struggle for recognition he sometimes went too far in trying to capture attention by being startling. It was characteristic of his time that he was possessed by literary images. It would be futile to try to understand the mystery of his creative processes. One must simply accept the magnificent musical results.

It used to be said that his place in

Continued on page 100

Continued from page 99

musical history was merely that of an innovator, as if there were no personal side to his music! The very fact that his style has proved absolutely inimitable, despite his treatise on instrumentation, with specific directions for all to use, points to a rare and individual spirit. While generations of composers have owed much to Berlioz in a general sense, there have never been copiers of Berlioz' style in the sense that Wagner was followed by innumerable little Wagners, or Debussy by little Debussys. The color moods in Berlioz are the more cherishable because they are unique. There is none to place beside them.

IN CINCINNATI AND THE TRI-STATE AREA
* COMPETENT ENGINEERING
* COMPONENTS AT NET PRICES
* FINE CABINETRY
* SERVICE ON ALL HI-FI COMPONENTS
Custom Craftsmen, Inc.
2259 Gilbert Ave. • Capitol 3133 • Cincinnati 2, Ohio
"A Component or a Complete System"
OHIO
2475 Central Avenue Yonkers, N. Y.
SPencer 9-6400

reaching for tonal incandescence, for the supersensuous, wrote their scores on the heavy side, Berlioz scored sparingly, mixing his colors always with discrimination and reticence.

This brings up a curious circumstance about the present interest in Berlioz. The music, strangely enough, suits the aesthetic of the moment. There is something about it which appeals to the young point of view, the taste which will not accept the orchestral torrents of Wagnerian or Straussian Romanticism. The present tendency is toward open scoring, in which every detail stands out clearly. Economy is the watchword, and this is exactly what Berlioz gives us, however large the forces he calls upon in the course of a single work. It was for just this reason that Berlioz' scoring was looked upon as rather tenuous, uneventful, in the plushy period of swollen orchestrations which thrived up to the first World War.

I remember the vestiges of Romanticism which captured the enthusiasm of my college days. Then Wagner had reached the highest point of favor; one was swept along in blissful excitement by his mighty flood of sound. Richard Strauss entranced most of us by his even larger orchestra, the lushness of his divided strings, and the rich tapestry of voices, many of which you could not possibly hear. Fervor was the order of the day. Liszt was accepted as a member of the immortals. The saintly Franck was mentioned with awe. It is strange what the passage of years will do to one's musical cosmos. Looking back, I have the feeling that Bach, Haydn or Mozart, being of the crystalline rather than the upholstered sort, were sometimes respected rather than loved. While doing proper obeisance to their exalted repute, many in those days privately found them rather thin. Even Mendelssohn was looked down upon as "sentimental" by those who swallowed Grieg or Tchaikovsky without a qualm. Mendelssohn's real offense was that his orchestral style was clean, open, lucid in detail, unpadded. If he resembled Berlioz in nothing else, he resembled him in this respect, and he was condescended to for the same reason.

How different is the effect of all these composers upon listeners nowadays! Take a look at a long-playing record catalog as a gauge of modern taste (a fair enough test). The pages of Bach, Mozart and Haydn reflect an apparently insatiable demand, a demand which has set the record companies combing through the immense heritage of each of these three, so that no choice bit may be missed. And the time was when Figaro or The Magic Flute was avoided by any business-minded opera company. A Bach Festival would have been madness outside of Bethlehem (Pa.), where a few devout pilgrims gathered. As for quartets by Mozart or Haydn — quartet recitals were attended by the small elect who were peculiar enough actually to like chamber music. All this does not necessarily mean that we have improved in taste rather than swung pendulum-wise away from excess, but I do think we have become a little more discerning. The aesthetics of 1954, the aesthetics in which the clean and tidy Stravinsky is the leading figure, emphatically includes Berlioz within its scheme. More than this, our present composers, from Stravinsky on down, could well do with some of Berlioz' warmth and emotional sensitivity without sacrifice of their code of purity.

The phenomenon of piecemeal performances of Berlioz' music is just as curious as his partial rejection by the musical world which owed so much to his pathfinding deeds. The world of performance has been for the most part content to be acquainted with one complete work — the Fantastic Symphony, an extravagance of his youth, and, although an enchanting piece of extravagance, still an early work. Otherwise, fragments of his more mature works have sufficed for most: the more brilliant overtures, convenient to open or close a symphony concert, or instrumental excerpts from the Damnation of Faust and Romeo and Juliet. I contend that these fragments give no adequate idea of the great works from which they are lifted. The Roman Carnival Overture or the Hungarian March, while unmatched in the limited category of showpiece overture or lively march, contain little more than the flashy aspect of Berlioz the orchestral master, a single and obvious aspect of a composer of depth, range of styles, delicacy and grandeur. The great music of his maturity, when sufficiently known, shows him to have been an artist of fine and considered judgment, eminently sane, and a closer examination of his life and brilliant writings confirms this belief in his ideals and integrity.

One reason for the scarcity of performances seems to be that Berlioz failed to oblige the conductors of generations to follow with pieces of convenient length and average requirements. Unfortunately, he enlisted for his expressive needs very large forces, often combining a full orchestra, chorus and soloists. As a result, he put himself again and again into virtual bankruptcy by engaging such forces to introduce a new piece. He has also alienated kill her, to have himself executed and then to bring himself back to life — all this on the spacious excuse that anything can happen in a nightmare? The literal listener, being a reasoning man (unfortunately), decided that since the composer's literary imagination had run riot beyond all acceptable bounds, his music had done the same.

Henrietta Smithson. What did she have to do with distant thunder?

EMERGENCE OF BERLIOZ

Continued from page 98

This, of course, was the whole trouble. If they could only have been spared the wild story of the opium-eater's dream, they would have sooner realized that here was a brand new apparition in a dull world, a tremendous and an unerring masterpiece of contrivance and construction compiled of musical logic which had no connection whatsoever with literary logic. The symphony is nothing else than the adventures of a gorgeously romantic melody, which its composer was moved to put through various paces — a rhapsodic first movement, a waltz in seductiveness anticipating Johann Strauss (at the time a five-year-old boy in Vienna), a march movement building to the utmost in sonority, and a finale in which Berlioz' love of the macabre and the grotesque has its first full fling. The charm of the Fantastic is its youthful ardors, its pristine freshness. Berlioz never again wrote anything like it. Neither did anyone else.

Let us not be so fatuous as to claim for Berlioz that he had no limitations. His genius was orchestral first and last, and his use of chorus or individual voices was often like an extension of the instrumental scheme. He was not instinctively operatic and he would have been quite out of his element in the chamber forms. There are occasional lapses of taste, lapses into clichés of harmony or declamation. In his struggle for recognition he sometimes went too far in trying to capture attention by being startling. It was characteristic of his time that he was possessed by literary images. It would be futile to try to understand the mystery of his creative processes. One must simply accept the magnificent musical results.

It used to be said that his place in

Continued on page 100

EMERGENCE OF BERLIOZ

Continued from page 99

musical history was merely that of an innovator, as if there were no personal side to his music! The very fact that his style has proved absolutely inimitable, despite his treatise on instrumentation, with specific directions for all to use, points to a rare and individual spirit. While generations of composers have owed much to Berlioz in a general sense, there have never been copiers of Berlioz' style in the sense that Wagner was followed by innumerable little Wagners, or Debussy by little Debussys. The color moods in Berlioz are the more cherishable because they are unique. There is none to place beside them.

2475 Central Avenue Yonkers, N. Y.
Spencer 9-6400

OHIO
IN CINCINNATI AND THE
TRI-STATE AREA
* COMPETENT ENGINEERING
* COMPONENTS AT NET PRICES
* FINE CABINETRY
* SERVICE ON ALL HI-FI COMPONENTS
Gustomcraftsmen, Inc.
2259 Gilbert Ave. • Capitol 3133 • Cincinnati 2, Ohio
"A Component or a Complete System"

the givers of concerts through the succeeding years, for their enterprise has continued to fall short of the trouble and expense involved. As a result, no general conception of the full and rounded Berlioz has been possible. An audience listening to, let us say, the "Ballet of the Sylphs," without the devilish commands and choral weavings which lead up to it, misses the point of that lullaby and its infernal intent. It would be a similar case if an audience should sit before a performance of the "Ride of the Valkyries" with no precise idea of what Valkyries were, and no suspicion whatever of the highly-charged scene that their purposeful music is leading into.

The Berlioz anniversary season, together with the accessibility of his major works complete in LP recordings, is at least bringing the whole of Berlioz, or at least the larger part of the greater Berlioz, before the sympathetic listener for his enjoyment. The lay inquirer can now easily perceive him in his full stature, in the great diversity of his powers. That diversity is revealed as prodigious. It shows his mastery of color to be unendingly various, to extend to the use of the human voice, to be most effective of all in quiet and delicate passages. What has not always been realized: his uncanny sense of tone-color has been only incidentally a contrivance for the sake of novelty, and basically merely a means to an expressive end.

It was entirely to be expected that Berlioz should have been a composer of fervid and riotous imagination. Among his fellow artists in Paris were Victor Hugo, Eugene Delacroix, Gustave Doret. The creator of Quasimodo, the painter of florid heroic groups, the illustrator of multitudes, pursued depiction by way of intensive flights of fancy. The macabre, the preposterous were in vogue. No colors could be too flamboyant for the graphic artists of this time. But musically, Berlioz' Paris remained stuffy and classical, much taken with Cherubini and Spohr, tradition-bound in classical ways, and in the field of opera such applause-seeking non-progressives as Rossini and Meyerbeer held sway — all of these, incidentally, importations from Germany or Italy.

So Berlioz' extravagances, although they bespoke his period, upset the classical traditions of music, and in doing so deflected attention from the quieter but more beautiful and probing qualities of the artist. Only the most discerning could perceive that this iconoclast, who had no traffic with such absolute forms as the strict symphony, quartet or sonata, was a true classicist at heart. He was second to none in his worship of Beethoven. He devoured the scores of Gluck under the disapproving eye of Cherubini, his master at the Conservatoire. He composed three operas following the dictates of his personal instincts as artist rather than the sure-fire formulas for operatic success in his time. Lacking, it must be admitted, a sufficient theater-sense, the resulting works never have and may never become practical repertory. But as music-drama, portions of them remain superb. The pastoral subject of the Nativity interested him and drew him on from a single air into a full-length oratorio. The first hearers of L'Enfance du Christ were completely taken aback at this placid music, wherein the fire-eating Berlioz does not indulge in a single startling fortissimo. It is largely in an antique modal style. Rolland has stressed Berlioz' love of Italy and of early Italian art. One is sometimes reminded in his music of the chaste serenity of the Renaissance Florentine painters, whose simple lines are drawn with warmly glowing colors — imagination both free and finely controlled.

It should be remembered that the Requiem, for all its cohorts of brass, its emphasis upon the style enorme, dwells at least as much on the piano style of dynamics as on the forte side. The supplementary brass-bands are used only three times, and briefly. If the work, with its hushed, quasi-churchly chants, more often inspires awe than true devotion, this sense of awe is most powerful when its tonal intensity is least.

The Damnation of Faust, by its nature as a conflict of the satanic and the saintly, is a long succession of contrasts — but do not the Easter Hymn, the seductive charms of the Sylphs, of the Will-o'-the-wisps, the naïve, musically archaic characterization of Marguerite linger longest of all in our musical affections? We are properly terrified, too, when Hell yawns, but somehow the most awesome moment of all is that which follows the swallowing up by Hell of its victim, when after a dreadful silence an earthly voice sings: "Alors, l'enfers se tut" — "Hell closes." Indeed, the Damnation of Faust is Berlioz' most diverse work, if only from the nature of the subject, which ranges freely (and frequently) between Heaven and Hell. Certainly the narrative is tautest and most consistently stirring.

Romeo and Juliet, on the other hand, is deliberately episodic, containing no story, but reflections upon a story the hearer is supposed to know already. The vocal parts are more episodic than the orchestral score, which finds perhaps the composer's most intense development, his peaks of orchestral color-magic. The Scene d'Amour is a true symphonic slow movement, having all the qualities which Berlioz' detractors have accused him of lacking.

Harold in Italy is a good instance of the kind of musical instinct, the inner directional compass which led its composer to great ends from uncongenial beginnings. Planning to write a viola concerto at the request of Paganini, a commission he could never have fulfilled, he came forth at last with the only suitable answer to the problem: a solo voice, innocent of display passage work, setting the special, dark tones of the instrument against the shifting colors of the orchestra.

Berlioz' urge to be poetically explicit, to convey to audiences what had prompted his music and so reach their understanding, often did him more harm than good. Sometimes his texts hampered the musical flow. When he followed the Fantastic Symphony, he made the mistake (which he later modified) of giving a symphony an explanatory story. It must be admitted that the persisting notion that music must have a meaning, a program, can be largely laid to his door.

When Berlioz wrote the Fantastic Symphony, he was not only setting the precedent for a whole century of "symphonic poems" which were to have poetic subjects of all imaginable sorts, he was unconsciously implanting the guide-book habit. When he wrote Continued on page 98 kill her, to have himself executed and then to bring himself back to life — all this on the spacious excuse that anything can happen in a nightmare? The literal listener, being a reasoning man (unfortunately), decided that since the composer's literary imagination had run riot beyond all acceptable bounds, his music had done the same.

EMERGENCE OF BERLIOZ

Continued from page 98

This, of course, was the whole trouble. If they could only have been spared the wild story of the opium-eater's dream, they would have sooner realized that here was a brand new apparition in a dull world, a tremendous and an unerring masterpiece of contrivance and construction compiled of musical logic which had no connection whatsoever with literary logic. The symphony is nothing else than the adventures of a gorgeously romantic melody, which its composer was moved to put through various paces — a rhapsodic first movement, a waltz in seductiveness anticipating Johann Strauss (at the time a five-year-old boy in Vienna), a march movement building to the utmost in sonority, and a finale in which Berlioz' love of the macabre and the grotesque has its first full fling. The charm of the Fantastic is its youthful ardors, its pristine freshness. Berlioz never again wrote anything like it. Neither did anyone else.

Let us not be so fatuous as to claim for Berlioz that he had no limitations. His genius was orchestral first and last, and his use of chorus or individual voices was often like an extension of the instrumental scheme. He was not instinctively operatic and he would have been quite out of his element in the chamber forms. There are occasional lapses of taste, lapses into clichés of harmony or declamation. In his struggle for recognition he sometimes went too far in trying to capture attention by being startling. It was characteristic of his time that he was possessed by literary images. It would be futile to try to understand the mystery of his creative processes. One must simply accept the magnificent musical results.

It used to be said that his place in

Continued on page 100

EMERGENCE OF BERLIOZ

Continued from page 99

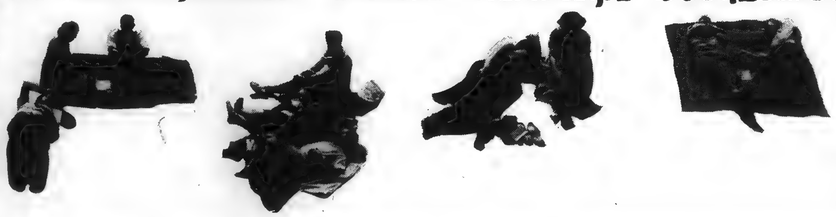
musical history was merely that of an innovator, as if there were no personal side to his music! The very fact that his style has proved absolutely inimitable, despite his treatise on instrumentation, with specific directions for all to use, points to a rare and individual spirit. While generations of composers have owed much to Berlioz in a general sense, there have never been copiers of Berlioz' style in the sense that Wagner was followed by innumerable little Wagners, or Debussy by little Debussys. The color moods in Berlioz are the more cherishable because they are unique. There is none to place beside them.

TIGHT BINDING

Between musical events, students and visitors feast on view of Stockbridge Bowl.

Symphonic Pastorale

A PHOTOGRAPHIC STROLL THROUGH TANGLEWOOD



Aaron Copland presides at one of the weekly Composers' Forums.

Listeners hear a contemporary quartet in the Chamber Music Hall.

Behind the audience in the huge Music Shed, thousands of lawn-listeners hear the Boston Symphony Orchestra begin an afternoon concert.

Student singers of the 1953 season in Gluck's Drunkard Reformed.

Noted conductor Hugh Ross is a member of the choral faculty.

photographs by
CLEMENS KALISCHER

Childe Harold." He explains that the principal of the Idée fixe used in the Fantastic Symphony here becomes the function of the soloist.

Royal Philharmonic Orchestra; Sir Thomas Beecham, conductor; William Primrose, viola.
COLUMBIA ML 4542. 12-in. $5.95.
Vienna Symphony Orchestra; Rudolf Moralt, conductor; Guenther Breitenbach, viola.
VOX PL 6700. 12-in. $5.95.

The recording with Primrose and Beecham is the best on all counts. The soloist is superior in expressive shading and in the body of tone, which flows through without forcing. The orchestral portion well matches this piece of individual musicianship. People with wide-range equipment will hear some rumble. Still, by contrast, the Vox simply sounds old and thin.

Grande Messe Des Morts (Requiem), Op. 5

The Requiem Mass was composed in 1837 and first performed at the Church of the Invalides in Paris in that year. This was a favorite with its composer, who once wrote: "If I were threatened with the destruction of the whole of my works save one, I would crave mercy for the Requiem." The score calls for a huge orchestra and chorus, plus four supplementary brass choirs, to be placed at the four corners of the regular performing forces, each containing four trumpets and four trombones with tubas and ophicleides. For once Berlioz indulged to the full his urge for the colossal, presenting us with the Day of Judgment in the Lacrymosa (for he was doing no less). He spared nothing to make it the mighty event which the devout anticipate. Needless to say, the overwhelming effect is achieved, not by the sheer quantity of sound but by its crafty distribution, its directional planning. When the hearer is assailed by fanfares as if from the four corners of the universe, he is properly awestruck.

Emile Passani Choir and Orchestra; Jean Fournet, conductor; Georges Jouatte, tenor.
COLUMBIA SL 159. Two 12-in. $11.90.

A recording of the Requiem inevitably proposes a difficult problem of placement and of the reproduction of great tonal power. Fournet, his forces and Columbia's technicians have done this remarkably well when it is considered that the record is not new. From the point of view of improved mechanical sound, however, there is a crying need for a new one which, if successful, would be a record indeed! We do not wish to minimize, however, the admirable recording which exists to date.

Overture to "Benvenuto Cellini," Op. 23

Berlioz finished this two-act opera, Benvenuto Cellini, in 1838 after working upon it for three years. He was stimulated by hopes for a post at the Paris Opéra. Its lack of success was partly due to an unfortunate libretto. "The Overture," wrote Berlioz, "received exaggerated applause and the rest was hissed with admirable energy and unanimity." But later he wrote, "I cannot help recognizing in it a variety in ideas, an impetuous verve, and a brilliance of musical coloring, which I shall probably never again achieve and which deserved a better fate." The Overture contains themes from the opera, welded almost symphonically.

Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra; Paul van Kempen, cond.
DECCA DL 4003. 10-in. $2.50.
(with Auber: Fra Diavolo Overture.)
Paris Conservatoire Orchestra; Charles Munch, cond.
LONDON LL 466. 10-in. $4.95.
(with Le Corsaire Overture and Ravel: Bolero).
LONDON LL 9019. 12-in. $5.95.
(with Le Corsaire Overture).
London Philharmonic Orchestra; Paul Kletzki, cond.
COLUMBIA ENTRE RL 3071. 12-in. $2.98.
(with 3 other Overtures).

Of the three recordings, the Paris Conservatoire gives the best as to expressive recording and performance, but Kletzki's is clearest in definition of tones. It is the only one of the three where the high staccato runs for the violins at the end of the slow section can be clearly heard.

Overture, "The Roman Carnival," Op. 9

This Overture is in reality the introduction to the second act of Benvenuto Cellini, a preparation for the carnival scene. When it was performed in Vienna, Berlioz wrote "it exploded like a mass of fireworks and was encored with a noise of feet and hands never heard except in Vienna." Indeed, the two Overtures from Benvenuto Cellini show that Berlioz had learned a thing or two about handling an orchestra since his earlier ones. They prompt the hope that the whole opera, plainly enough the work of a master, will appeal to the courage and enterprise of some recording company.

Minneapolis Symphony, Antal Dorati, conductor.
MERCURY MG 50005. 12-in. $4.85.
(with Ravel: Alborado del Gracioso).
Lamoureux Orchestra; Ferenc Fricsay, conductor.
DECCA DL 4027. 10-in. $2.50.
(with Dukas: Sorcerer's Apprentice).
Lamoureux Orchestra; Jean Martinon, conductor.
URANIA 7048. 12-in. $5.95.
(with 3 Other Overtures).
Rhineland Symphony Orchestra, Alfred Federer, cond.
REGENT MG 5039. 12-in. $5.45.
(with King Lear Overture).
Philadelphia "Pops" Orchestra; Alexander Hilsberg, conductor.
COLUMBIA AAL 34. 10-in. $2.85.
(with Suppé: Light Cavalry Overture).

A choice between these five recordings, all of them well-performed, would be a matter of personal preference. Forced to choose, I would take Martinon's recording, which yields to none in clarity and virtuosity of performance. There is another reason — it is one of an attractive assemblage of the Overtures to King Lear, The Corsair, and Beatrice and Benedick on the same disk. Sonically, the Mercury is a little more startling, but was intended for hearing in big rooms at high volume. Continued on page 82

Are High Frequencies Necessary?

by F. A. KUTTNER

Editor's Warning: The shockingly un-American opinions expressed in this article cannot possibly be shared by anyone but lunatics, communists, convicts, musicians, and other equally deplorable characters.

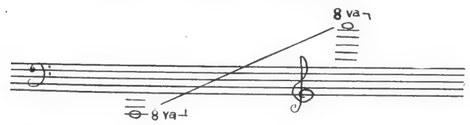
FOR THE past many months, I have been working with a high-precision, stroboscopic instrument* capable of measuring the frequency of sounds with an accuracy of one one-hundredth of a semi-tone. That means that a single octave on the piano can be divided into 1,200 distinct frequencies. The limited number of musicologists who are using this tool for their researches have been able to explode a number of favorite and traditional theories, based on inaccurate measurements with earlier, less precise instruments. It is impossible to predict what the stroboscopic frequency meter will do in the future to current hypotheses on instrumental tone colors or on the actual importance of high frequencies in high fidelity equipment and recordings.

Ah! The red flag! But let me fold it carefully and tuck it into my pocket, so that only a little bit shows as I stroll through these sacred halls, the pages of HIGH FIDELITY Magazine, speaking aloud some of the thoughts which have occurred to me as I have been analyzing sound with the stroboscopic meter. Seriously, there is a possibility that the future may bring some surprising revelations about the actual importance of the extreme high frequencies (say from 12,000 to 20,000 cycles) in sound recording and reproduction.

I do, of course, realize that this question is highly controversial, and that at present the greatest caution is imperative because so far there are no more than just a few indications on which to base suspicion. Much more physiological and psychological research will have to be done in order to prove or disprove these ideas and to find definite answers. Yet, a few common sense facts may not be out of place, even at this early stage.

The total range of the piano keyboard is:



or in terms of frequencies: 27.5 to 4,186 cycles. Of this theoretical maximum range, more than 99% of all piano compositions utilize a considerably smaller compass — only:

that is from 32.7 to 2,093 cycles. About 95% or more of all classical music literature stays within even narrower limits, from 41 to 1,568 cycles. Right now I cannot think of a single example in piano literature where the two highest piano notes, c^5 (4,186 cycles) and b^4 (3,951 cycles) have been prescribed by any composer. But they do occur in certain scores.

The same conditions are valid for all the instruments of the modern symphony orchestra. None of its individual components goes beyond the range of the piano keyboard: the lowest tone of the contrabassoon is Subcontra B-flat, or 29.14 cycles, one semitone higher than the lowest piano key. It sounds awful, and no composer in his senses would use this tone nor the next few above this one. The highest orchestral note is the c^5 of the piccolo flute, which is identical with the highest piano key, 4,186 cycles. Anyone who ever heard the vulgar, piercingly mean shrillness of this sound phenomenon, would not care to hear it often, especially in musical compositions; as far as I am able to tell, there is no symphonic score which makes use of this plebeian locomotive whistle. Next in order comes the violin; Richard Strauss occasionally required a g^4 on this instrument, a fourth below the piano top note, rating 3,136 cycles and that is about all there is to it, as far as fundamental tones go.*

At the extreme bass end, there are occasional exceptions. A few organs — very few indeed — have pipes which actually produce sound down to 14 or 15 cycles. For the sake of curiosity we may as well discuss these subcontrabass pipes. They have a length between 18 and 32 feet and are pretty thick in diameter. Consequently, their

*The instrument to which Dr. Kuttner refers is constructed by C. G. Conn, Ltd. the musical instrument manufacturers, for precise intonation control of the company's wind instrument production. Its ability to analyze sound is fascinating; we hope to have an article about its applications in the near future. — Editor.

*There is one harmonic or "Flageolet" note on the e string which sounds as b^4 (3,951 cps). I do not know whether it is ever used.

AUTHORitatively Speaking

John N. Burk, whose authoritative evaluation of Berlioz' music, on and off records, begins on page 26, has been program annotator for the Boston Symphony Orchestra since 1935. He lives, naturally, in Boston, close to Symphony Hall — except in summer, when he migrates to Tanglewood. He is the author or editor of several books, including Clara Schumann, A Romantic Biography; The Life and Works of Beethoven, and Letters of Richard Wagner (the Burrell Collection).

ABOUT BURK'S BERLIOZ

Various hazards necessitated some split-second timing this issue and sent pages 17-32 to the printer bearing some marks of haste. Mr. Burk had no chance to proofread his twin Berlioz article for errors. Hence we must hasten again, now to point out that he does know how to spell Doré (p. 28) and juges (p. 29) perfectly well. We also claim full credit for a line lost on page 28, questioning Berlioz's judgment in giving Lelio a verbal text.

WANTED

More and more people want more and more Berlioz, that we know. Every time a recording company or a concert management presents a performance of the Symphonie Fantastique or Harold in Italy, it is accompanied by the healthy, steady rustle of currency changing hands. Still, fond as we are of Harold and the Fantastique, they are not Hector Berlioz's only works. Would you not like to hear The Taking of Troy or Benvenuto Cellini given at the Metropolitan, and recorded? And, bearing in mind the Great Romantic's penchant for wonderful clangor, what about his choral-orchestral Song of the Railroads? And the Hamlet music? Next question: how do we get these works played and recorded? This problem presented itself last year to our Mr. W. Ernest Gillespie, now secretary-treasurer of the Society, who had traveled down east from Exeter to Boston for a rare performance of Romeo et Juliette. It occurred to him while he was taking the air at intermission on the steps of Symphony Hall, and at that epic instant, in the chill wind whipping down Huntington Avenue, the idea of a Berlioz Society was conceived. Now the Society has incorporated, publishes a monthly Newsletter and has a large and growing membership, including numerous recording executives, musical notables and writers in the field. Its president is Charles Munch; its honorary president is Sir Thomas Beecham. Any Berlioz-enthusiast who wants to join is welcome. The membership fee is $2 ($1 for students), but larger contributions — which have been gratifyingly numerous — will not be refused. This would have been Berlioz's 151st year, had he lived, and it seems likely to be the year of his greatest popularity. You do want a chance to hear Beatrice et Benedict, don't you?

the BERLIOZ SOCIETY, inc.

10 Wheelwright Ave.,
Exeter, N. H.

The Berlioz Recordings

by JOHN N. BURK

BETTMANN ARCHIVE

AS COMPARED with the works of the earlier great composers, or even with those of his important contemporaries, the heritage Berlioz has left is not large. Together with overtures, songs, or incidental pieces, there are 12 extensive works. These, with two or perhaps three exceptions, brought forth his best powers. Always, when the subject permitted, he put his heart into them.

With the forthcoming recording of the Te Deum, 10 of the 12 will be represented on disks, the exceptions being the two long-since unperformed operas, Benvenuto Cellini and Beatrice and Benedick (the earlier part of The Trojans is another unexplored field). The new release of L'Enfance du Christ and a pending one of the Damnation of Faust will result in a choice of recordings of most of the dozen. It is now possible for the Berlioz student to have a fairly complete acquaintance with music for the most part seldom performed.

Overture, "Les Francs-Jugues," Op. 3

This is music intended to inspire terror, intended also to open an opera which was never completed. The subject was a Fehmic Court of the Middle Ages in Germany, a secret chamber where sat masked figures. The victim's only privilege was to listen to his doom. A ponderous unison of the lower brass in the introductory section is a premonition of the Requiem Mass of later years. The maturer Berlioz may have blushed over the main theme, for the violins, written at the age of 23, for it is as cheerful as overture themes were expected to be at the time. Threats and incursions of brass attack this theme in development, but fail to dispel its jauntiness.

Symphony Orchestra of Radio Berlin; Sergiu Celibidache, conductor.
URANIA 7024. 12-in. $5.95.
(with Franck: Psyché).
Philharmonia Orchestra; Paul Kletzki, conductor.
COLUMBIA ENTRE RL 3071. 12-in. $2.98.
(with 3 other Overtures).

Both recordings are adequate. Kletzki's quicker tempo gives a dramatic excitement to the development and so comes closer to the intended effect. Also, it costs nearly $3 less than the other.

Overture, "King Lear," Op. 4

In composing this Overture, which was written in 1831, the year of Le Corsaire, Berlioz never forgot the stormy and unrelenting tragedy of his subject. It sets the mood with a powerful recitative-like theme in the depths of the strings. Cordelia enters with a cantilena, an oboe solo over an ominous pizzicato accompaniment. The main body develops these elements with a continuing wild storminess. A sombre piece, but an impressive one.

Rhineland Symphony Orchestra; Alfred Federer, cond.
REGENT MG 5039. 12-in. $5.45.
(with Roman Carnival Overture).
Lamoureux Orchestra; Jean Martinon, conductor.
URANIA 7048. 12-in. $5.95.
(with 3 other Overtures)

It is unfortunate that in each recording brilliance is attained at the expense of tonal velvet. The quality is hard.

Fantastic Symphony, Op. 14

If the Symphonie Fantastique is not the whole of Berlioz, it is the whole of the youthful Berlioz and is his only large work for orchestra alone. As the creation of a composer of 27, in the year 1830, it is, in its way, the most astounding phenomenon in all music. At the time, the latest thing in descriptive music was the gentle and unchallenging Pastoral Symphony by Beethoven, then three years dead. Musical ghostliness had a single example in opera — the "Wolf's Glen" Scene in Der Freischütz, which Berlioz admired enormously. As for Wagner, he was at the time a youth of 17 and had yet to learn his art. Liszt was not to invent the symphonic poem for 20 years. It may be asked whether Richard Strauss, putting the squealing Till Eulenspiegel on the scaffold, would ever have dreamed of such a thing without Berlioz' daring and similar depiction some 60 years before.

Cleveland Orchestra; Artur Rodzinski, conductor.
COLUMBIA ENTRE RL 3059. 12-in. $2.98.
Amsterdam Concertgebouw; Eduard Van Beinum, cond.
LONDON LL 489. 12-in. $5.95.
Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra; Willem Van Otterloo, conductor.
EPIC LC 3005. 12-in. $5.95.
San Francisco Orchestra; Pierre Monteux, conductor.
RCA VICTOR LM 1131. 12-in. $5.72.
Philadelphia Orchestra; Eugene Ormandy, conductor.

AUTHORitatively Speaking

John N. Burk, whose authoritative evaluation of Berlioz' music, on and off records, begins on page 26, has been program annotator for the Boston Symphony Orchestra since 1935. He lives, naturally, in Boston, close to Symphony Hall — except in summer, when he migrates to Tanglewood. He is the author or editor of several books, including Clara Schumann, A Romantic Biography; The Life and Works of Beethoven, and Letters of Richard Wagner (the Burrell Collection).

ABOUT BURK'S BERLIOZ . . .

Various hazards necessitated some split-second timing this issue and sent pages 17-32 to the printer bearing some marks of haste. Mr. Burk had no chance to proofread his twin Berlioz article for errors. Hence we must hasten again, now to point out that he does know how to spell Doré (p. 28) and juges (p. 29) perfectly well. We also claim full credit for a line lost on page 28, questioning Berlioz's judgment in giving Lelio a verbal text.

WANTED

More and more people want more and more Berlioz, that we know. Every time a recording company or a concert management presents a performance of the Symphonie Fantastique or Harold in Italy, it is accompanied by the healthy, steady rustle of currency changing hands. Still, fond as we are of Harold and the Fantastique, they are not Hector Berlioz's only works. Would you not like to hear The Taking of Troy or Benvenuto Cellini given at the Metropolitan, and recorded? And, bearing in mind the Great Romantic's penchant for wonderful clangor, what about his choral-orchestral Song of the Railroads? And the Hamlet music? Next question: how do we get these works played and recorded? This problem presented itself last year to our Mr. W. Ernest Gillespie, now secretary-treasurer of the Society, who had traveled down east from Exeter to Boston for a rare performance of Romeo et Juliette. It occurred to him while he was taking the air at intermission on the steps of Symphony Hall, and at that epic instant, in the chill wind whipping down Huntington Avenue, the idea of a Berlioz Society was conceived. Now the Society has incorporated, publishes a monthly Newsletter and has a large and growing membership, including numerous recording executives, musical notables and writers in the field. Its president is Charles Munch; its honorary president is Sir Thomas Beecham. Any Berlioz-enthusiast who wants to join is welcome. The membership fee is $2 ($1 for students), but larger contributions — which have been gratifyingly numerous — will not be refused. This would have been Berlioz's 151st year, had he lived, and it seems likely to be the year of his greatest popularity. You do want a chance to hear Beatrice et Benedict, don't you?

the BERLIOZ SOCIETY, inc.

10 Wheelwright Ave.,
Exeter, N. H.

COLUMBIA ML 4467. 12-in. $5.95.
London Symphony Orchestra; Hermann Scherchen, conductor.
WESTMINSTER WL 5268. 12-in. $5.95.

The six recordings give in each case a brilliant and satisfactory account of this exacting music. Even Rodzinski's, when you figure that he left the Cleveland Orchestra in 1943, is astonishingly good. Among the remaining five, a board of Berlioz enthusiasts would probably disagree, quarreling over their pet points. Monteux's is one of the best recordings that has come from the San Francisco Orchestra. The newest by Scherchen is splendid, with the right amount of the flexibility and expressive phrasing which is the first requirement of the Fantastic. This would have its just champions. Those who are after exciting phonographic sonority would choose the one from Philadelphia, a super-brilliant recording of a virtuoso orchestra. Unfortunately, Ormandy is often mannered in his reading — his phrasing is not always natural; scoops in the strings are a sample of what might be called "synthetic expressivity." Van Beinum on the other hand produces a more just and musicianly reading. He seems closest to Berlioz' inner fires, expressed in beauty of sensitive detail. The recording is on the under-side of brilliance, but has balance, etched detail, and tonal beauty. In this last respect it excels the Scherchen recording. In short, Van Beinum's is my choice, but it is a personal choice, not an iron-clad recommendation.

Lélio, or The Return To Life
Lyric Monodrama, Op. 14b

Of the music which recordings have brought to public acquaintance, not one is more interesting than this. Berlioz composed it as a sequel to the Fantastic Symphony in 1831. A poet indulges in voluble reflections between movements in a spoken part — such recitations combined with music were not unknown at the time. The poet speaks of Shakespeare. His ranging thoughts become a convenient repository for musical bits which Berlioz had hitherto composed, but which had not come to the light of performance. It is a skillful assemblage of heterogeneous elements — after all, the composer of the Fantastic knew what he was about.

There is more than one suggestion of the Eight Scenes from Faust — his Opus 1. The song for tenor, O mon amour, is in Berlioz' best romantic vein and a final Fantasia on Shakespeare's The Tempest, a siren-like apostrophe to Miranda, is entirely charming. It derives its color and mood from the "Chorus of Sylphs" in the Eight Scenes. This was the first of five plays of Shakespeare which inspired music from Berlioz — the others were King Lear, Hamlet, Romeo and Juliet, and Much Ado about Nothing.

New Paris Symphony Association; Réné Leibowitz, conductor.
VOX PL 8250. 12-in. $5.95.

The recording is admirable; wide-ranged, vivid — an invaluable contribution to a wider knowledge of Berlioz.

Overture, "The Corsaire," Op. 21

This is the fourth of the four Overtures of Berlioz' younger days. It is also the most brilliant of the four. With its exciting flash and thrust, it surely merits more frequent use on concert programs. Hans von Bülow, who was its early protagonist at Meiningen, once wrote that it went "like a shot from a pistol." Berlioz wrote this Overture in 1831 and revised it in 1844. The title, suggesting Byron's reckless adventurer, was really an afterthought. Even so, it seems to suit admirably the spirit of the music.

Paris Conservatoire Orchestra; Charles Munch, cond.
LONDON LL 466 12-in. $5.95.
(with Benvenuto Cellini Overture and Ravel: Bolero).
LONDON LL 9019. 10-in. $4.95.
(with Benvenuto Cellini Overture).
Philharmonia Orchestra; Paul Kletzki, conductor.
COLUMBIA ENTRE RL 3071. 12-in. $2.98.
(with 3 other Overtures).
Lamoureux Orchestra; Jean Martinon, conductor.
URANIA 7048. 12-in. $5.95.
(with 3 other Overtures).

All three recordings make the most of the work's brilliance. Martinon's is clearest on the highs and lows but the tone is hard in quality. Kletzki has a slight edge of clarity in the pick-up as compared to the London recording. Munch has the flare of greater rapidity of tempo and a more drawn-out sentiment in the Adagio section. If Berlioz wanted the extremity of contrast, this is the reading. After all, corsairs were supposed to be anything but moderate! Better listen before buying, if possible.

Nuits d'Eté, for Soprano and Orchestra, Op. 7

This song cycle, written partly in earlier years, was published in 1841 with piano accompaniment. L'Absence was orchestrated in 1843; the remaining five songs in 1856.

One is tempted into quoting this remark by the late Alfred Einstein: "Berlioz sowed the seeds for the entire musical lyricism of the 19th century in the French language — in its color, noble sentimentality, and refined sensuousness and grace." Nowhere is this truth more obvious than in these six songs to texts by Théophile Gauthier — poems of a lover's nostalgia. The orchestral accompaniments greatly intensify the mood and set off the voice.

Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra; Thor Johnson, conductor; Suzanne Danco, soprano.
LONDON LL 407. 12-in. $5.95.

This recording marks a venture by London (alas, temporary!) into the territory of American orchestral performers. Suzanne Danco misses no shade of the message. The Cincinnati Orchestra gives more than adequate support.

Harold in Italy, with Viola Solo, Op. 16

Berlioz has related his intentions in this work in his Memoirs: "I wished to write for the orchestra a series of scenes in which the solo viola should figure as a more or less active personage of constantly preserved individuality; I wished to put the viola in the midst of poetic recollections left me by my wanderings in the Abruzzi, and make it a sort of melancholy dreamer, after the manner of Byron's

[100]

AUTHORitatively Speaking

John N. Burk, whose authoritative evaluation of Berlioz' music, on and off records, begins on page 26, has been program annotator for the Boston Symphony Orchestra since 1935. He lives, naturally, in Boston, close to Symphony Hall — except in summer, when he migrates to Tanglewood. He is the author or editor of several books, including Clara Schumann, A Romantic Biography; The Life and Works of Beethoven, and Letters of Richard Wagner (the Burrell Collection).

ABOUT BURK'S BERLIOZ . . .

Various hazards necessitated some split-second timing this issue and sent pages 17-32 to the printer bearing some marks of haste. Mr. Burk had no chance to proofread his twin Berlioz article for errors. Hence we must hasten again, now to point out that he does know how to spell Doré (p. 28) and juges (p. 29) perfectly well. We also claim full credit for a line lost on page 28, questioning Berlioz's judgment in giving Lelio a verbal text.

WANTED

More and more people want more and more Berlioz, that we know. Every time a recording company or a concert management presents a performance of the Symphonie Fantastique or Harold in Italy, it is accompanied by the healthy, steady rustle of currency changing hands. Still, fond as we are of Harold and the Fantastique, they are not Hector Berlioz's only works. Would you not like to hear The Taking of Troy or Benvenuto Cellini given at the Metropolitan, and recorded? And, bearing in mind the Great Romantic's penchant for wonderful clangor, what about his choral-orchestral Song of the Railroads? And the Hamlet music? Next question: how do we get these works played and recorded? This problem presented itself last year to our Mr. W. Ernest Gillespie, now secretary-treasurer of the Society, who had traveled down east from Exeter to Boston for a rare performance of Romeo et Juliette. It occurred to him while he was taking the air at intermission on the steps of Symphony Hall, and at that epic instant, in the chill wind whipping down Huntington Avenue, the idea of a Berlioz Society was conceived. Now the Society has incorporated, publishes a monthly Newsletter and has a large and growing membership, including numerous recording executives, musical notables and writers in the field. Its president is Charles Munch; its honorary president is Sir Thomas Beecham. Any Berlioz-enthusiast who wants to join is welcome. The membership fee is $2 ($1 for students), but larger contributions — which have been gratifyingly numerous — will not be refused. This would have been Berlioz's 151st year, had he lived, and it seems likely to be the year of his greatest popularity. You do want a chance to hear Beatrice et Benedict, don't you?

the BERLIOZ SOCIETY, inc.

10 Wheelwright Ave.,
Exeter, N. H.

Childe Harold." He explains that the principal of the Idée fixe used in the Fantastic Symphony here becomes the function of the soloist.

Royal Philharmonic Orchestra; Sir Thomas Beecham, conductor; William Primrose, viola.
COLUMBIA ML 4542. 12-in. $5.95.
Vienna Symphony Orchestra; Rudolf Moralt, conductor; Guenther Breitenbach, viola.
VOX PL 6700. 12-in. $5.95.

The recording with Primrose and Beecham is the best on all counts. The soloist is superior in expressive shading and in the body of tone, which flows through without forcing. The orchestral portion well matches this piece of individual musicianship. People with wide-range equipment will hear some rumble. Still, by contrast, the Vox simply sounds old and thin.

Grande Messe Des Morts (Requiem), Op. 5

The Requiem Mass was composed in 1837 and first performed at the Church of the Invalides in Paris in that year. This was a favorite with its composer, who once wrote: "If I were threatened with the destruction of the whole of my works save one, I would crave mercy for the Requiem." The score calls for a huge orchestra and chorus, plus four supplementary brass choirs, to be placed at the four corners of the regular performing forces, each containing four trumpets and four trombones with tubas and ophicleides. For once Berlioz indulged to the full his urge for the colossal, presenting us with the Day of Judgment in the Lacrymosa (for he was doing no less). He spared nothing to make it the mighty event which the devout anticipate. Needless to say, the overwhelming effect is achieved, not by the sheer quantity of sound but by its crafty distribution, its directional planning. When the hearer is assailed by fanfares as if from the four corners of the universe, he is properly awestruck.

Emile Passani Choir and Orchestra; Jean Fournet, conductor; Georges Jouatte, tenor.
COLUMBIA SL 159. Two 12-in. $11.90.

A recording of the Requiem inevitably proposes a difficult problem of placement and of the reproduction of great tonal power. Fournet, his forces and Columbia's technicians have done this remarkably well when it is considered that the record is not new. From the point of view of improved mechanical sound, however, there is a crying need for a new one which, if successful, would be a record indeed! We do not wish to minimize, however, the admirable recording which exists to date.

Overture to "Benvenuto Cellini," Op. 23

Berlioz finished this two-act opera, Benvenuto Cellini, in 1838 after working upon it for three years. He was stimulated by hopes for a post at the Paris Opéra. Its lack of success was partly due to an unfortunate libretto. "The Overture," wrote Berlioz, "received exaggerated applause and the rest was hissed with admirable energy and unanimity." But later he wrote, "I cannot help recognizing in it a variety in ideas, an impetuous verve, and a brilliance of musical coloring, which I shall probably never again achieve and which deserved a better fate." The Overture contains themes from the opera, welded almost symphonically.

Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra; Paul van Kempen, cond.
DECCA DL 4003. 10-in. $2.50.
(with Auber: Fra Diavolo Overture.)
Paris Conservatoire Orchestra; Charles Munch, cond.
LONDON LL 466. 10-in. $4.95.
(with Le Corsaire Overture and Ravel: Bolero).
LONDON LL 9019. 12-in. $5.95.
(with Le Corsaire Overture).
London Philharmonic Orchestra; Paul Kletzki, cond.
COLUMBIA ENTRE RL 3071. 12-in. $2.98.
(with 3 other Overtures).

Of the three recordings, the Paris Conservatoire gives the best as to expressive recording and performance, but Kletzki's is clearest in definition of tones. It is the only one of the three where the high staccato runs for the violins at the end of the slow section can be clearly heard.

Overture, "The Roman Carnival," Op. 9

This Overture is in reality the introduction to the second act of Benvenuto Cellini, a preparation for the carnival scene. When it was performed in Vienna, Berlioz wrote "it exploded like a mass of fireworks and was encored with a noise of feet and hands never heard except in Vienna." Indeed, the two Overtures from Benvenuto Cellini show that Berlioz had learned a thing or two about handling an orchestra since his earlier ones. They prompt the hope that the whole opera, plainly enough the work of a master, will appeal to the courage and enterprise of some recording company.

Minneapolis Symphony, Antal Dorati, conductor.
MERCURY MG 50005. 12-in. $4.85.
(with Ravel: Alborado del Gracioso).
Lamoureux Orchestra; Ferenc Fricsay, conductor.
DECCA DL 4027. 10-in. $2.50.
(with Dukas: Sorcerer's Apprentice).
Lamoureux Orchestra; Jean Martinon, conductor.
URANIA 7048. 12-in. $5.95.
(with 3 Other Overtures).
Rhineland Symphony Orchestra, Alfred Federer, cond.
REGENT MG 5039. 12-in. $5.45.
(with King Lear Overture).
Philadelphia "Pops" Orchestra; Alexander Hilsberg, conductor.
COLUMBIA AAL 34. 10-in. $2.85.
(with Suppé: Light Cavalry Overture).

A choice between these five recordings, all of them well-performed, would be a matter of personal preference. Forced to choose, I would take Martinon's recording, which yields to none in clarity and virtuosity of performance. There is another reason — it is one of an attractive assemblage of the Overtures to King Lear, The Corsair, and Beatrice and Benedick on the same disk. Sonically, the Mercury is a little more startling, but was intended for hearing in big rooms at high volume. Continued on page 82

[100]

AUTHORitatively Speaking

John N. Burk, whose authoritative evaluation of Berlioz' music, on and off records, begins on page 26, has been program annotator for the Boston Symphony Orchestra since 1935. He lives, naturally, in Boston, close to Symphony Hall — except in summer, when he migrates to Tanglewood. He is the author or editor of several books, including Clara Schumann, A Romantic Biography; The Life and Works of Beethoven, and Letters of Richard Wagner (the Burrell Collection).

ABOUT BURK'S BERLIOZ . . .

Various hazards necessitated some split-second timing this issue and sent pages 17-32 to the printer bearing some marks of haste. Mr. Burk had no chance to proofread his twin Berlioz article for errors. Hence we must hasten again, now to point out that he does know how to spell Doré (p. 28) and juges (p. 29) perfectly well. We also claim full credit for a line lost on page 28, questioning Berlioz's judgment in giving Lelio a verbal text.

WANTED

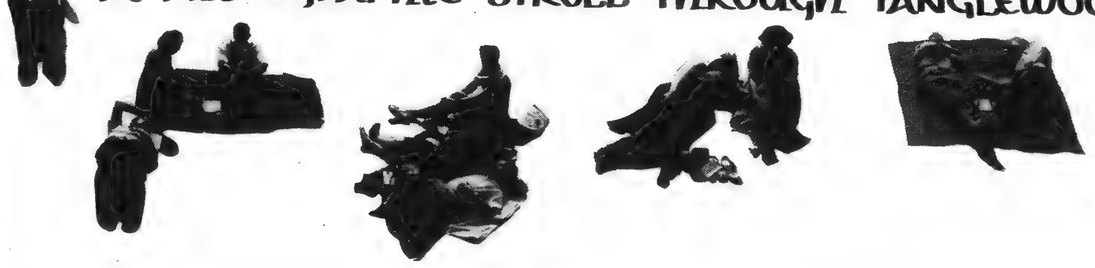
More and more people want more and more Berlioz, that we know. Every time a recording company or a concert management presents a performance of the Symphonie Fantastique or Harold in Italy, it is accompanied by the healthy, steady rustle of currency changing hands. Still, fond as we are of Harold and the Fantastique, they are not Hector Berlioz's only works. Would you not like to hear The Taking of Troy or Benvenuto Cellini given at the Metropolitan, and recorded? And, bearing in mind the Great Romantic's penchant for wonderful clangor, what about his choral-orchestral Song of the Railroads? And the Hamlet music? Next question: how do we get these works played and recorded? This problem presented itself last year to our Mr. W. Ernest Gillespie, now secretary-treasurer of the Society, who had traveled down east from Exeter to Boston for a rare performance of Romeo et Juliette. It occurred to him while he was taking the air at intermission on the steps of Symphony Hall, and at that epic instant, in the chill wind whipping down Huntington Avenue, the idea of a Berlioz Society was conceived. Now the Society has incorporated, publishes a monthly Newsletter and has a large and growing membership, including numerous recording executives, musical notables and writers in the field. Its president is Charles Munch; its honorary president is Sir Thomas Beecham. Any Berlioz-enthusiast who wants to join is welcome. The membership fee is $2 ($1 for students), but larger contributions — which have been gratifyingly numerous — will not be refused. This would have been Berlioz's 151st year, had he lived, and it seems likely to be the year of his greatest popularity. You do want a chance to hear Beatrice et Benedict, don't you?

the BERLIOZ SOCIETY, inc.
10 Wheelwright Ave.,
Exeter, N. H.

Between musical events, students and visitors feast on view of Stockbridge Bowl.

Symphonic Pastorale

A PHOTOGRAPHIC STROLL THROUGH TANGLEWOOD



Aaron Copland presides at one of the weekly Composers' Forums.

Listeners hear a contemporary quartet in the Chamber Music Hall.

AUTHORitatively Speaking

John N. Burk, whose authoritative evaluation of Berlioz' music, on and off records, begins on page 26, has been program annotator for the Boston Symphony Orchestra since 1935. He lives, naturally, in Boston, close to Symphony Hall — except in summer, when he migrates to Tanglewood. He is the author or editor of several books, including Clara Schumann, A Romantic Biography; The Life and Works of Beethoven, and Letters of Richard Wagner (the Burrell Collection).

ABOUT BURK'S BERLIOZ . . .

Various hazards necessitated some split-second timing this issue and sent pages 17-32 to the printer bearing some marks of haste. Mr. Burk had no chance to proofread his twin Berlioz article for errors. Hence we must hasten again, now to point out that he does know how to spell Doré (p. 28) and juges (p. 29) perfectly well. We also claim full credit for a line lost on page 28, questioning Berlioz's judgment in giving Lelio a verbal text.

NO. 9, IN G MINOR (1 Edition)
Breezily entertaining music easy to absorb, in a broad-toned performance so sure-handed as to cause surprise in a work so little known and so seldom played. The sound is at the mercy of the equipment used to reproduce it, since it can be first-class or repellent according to the equipment's ability to banish tinny shimmer from the violins. With that accomplished — and it is easier than with the overside No. 6 — the disk is vivid and warm, reverberant but not excessively so unless one requires high level of volume.
—Vienna Konzerthaus Quartet. WESTMINSTER WL 5224. 12-in. (with Qrt. 6). 33 min. $5.95.

NO. 10, IN E FLAT, OP. 125, NO. 1 (1 Edition)
This is Schubert at 20, and the earliest of his quartets to have fair currency. Opposing melodic contentment to harmonic reflection without serious emotional involvement, it is as insidiously memorable as a fair face glimpsed once, and less upsetting. It is played by the Viennese musicians with an insinuation of warm-hearted art that persuaded a critic exasperated with tonic vagaries to experiment through many hearings with ways of rendering the violins tractable. Eventually a combination of all known methods succeeded, and it must be confessed that for owners of flexible apparatus and grand patience the sound of this string quartet will in time emerge with surprising sweetness and realism. It also will be satisfactory when reproduced through systems deficient in high-frequency response. — Another edition, now withdrawn, did not, in its blunter playing, approach the mastery of this plastic performance.
—Vienna Konzerthaus Quartet. WESTMINSTER WL 5222. 12-in. (with Qrt. 11). 35 min. $5.95.

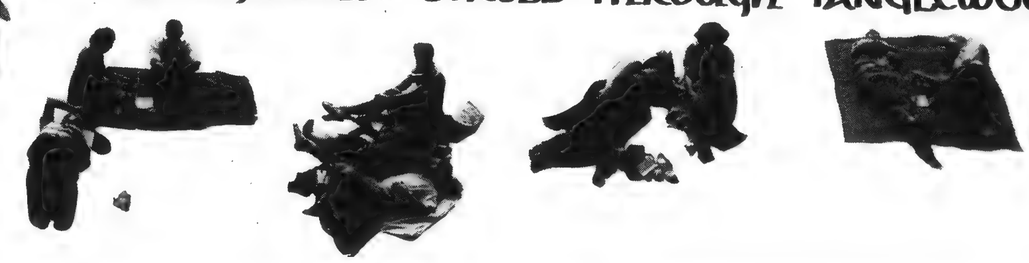
NO. 11, IN E, OP. 125, NO. 2 (2 Editions)
Admiration for music and performance cuts no treble, and no other way having been found to subdue the violins here without a consequent disturbance of balance, the recording is recommended only to those who will play at reduced volume, or whose instruments are moderate in high-frequency response. It ought to be said that the violins' escape from decency occurs only at fortes, and thus is no more than occasional in an otherwise exceptionally clear and delicate projection of the instruments.
—Vienna Konzerthaus Quartet. WEST-

Budapest Quartet: people who play chamber music may like their Schubert best.

Between musical events, students and visitors feast on view of Stockbridge Bowl.

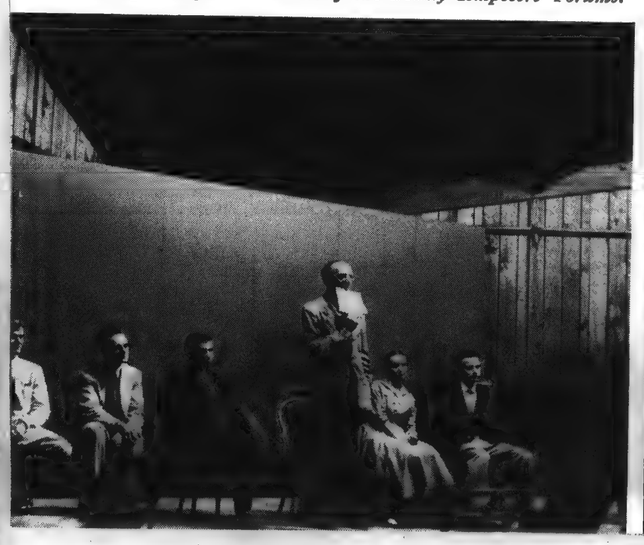
Symphonic Pastorale

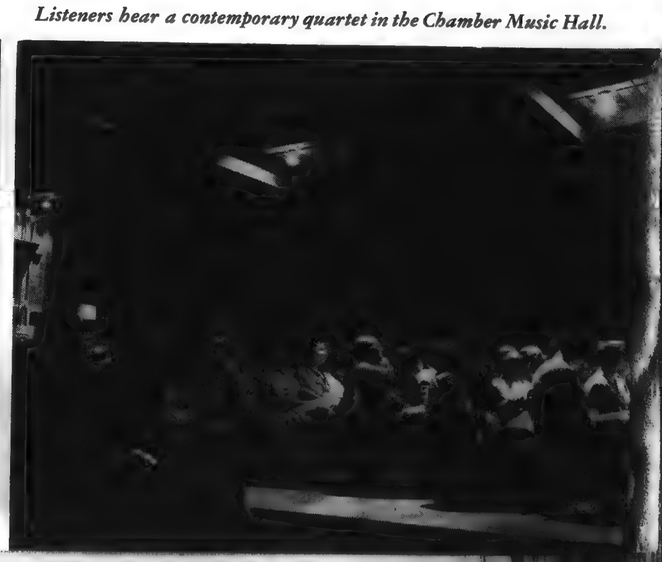
A PHOTOGRAPHIC STROLL THROUGH TANGLEWOOD



Aaron Copland presides at one of the weekly Composers' Forums.

Listeners hear a contemporary quartet in the Chamber Music Hall.





adapted from Part One of Goethe's great poem. Berlioz chose only those excerpts which suited his purpose and re-ordered them in the interest of a tight and moving plot. He never wrote anything else so engrossing as to events, so thematically concentrated, so rich and sure in musical characterization. This applies to the two lovers and likewise to Mephistopheles as he brings them together, hovering about them and at last striking down the one within his own reach. The three enact their story before a panoramic vista of crowds, as Faust, his companion escorting and directing, traverses the the gamut of experience. These crowds form a choral background to almost every air, and with great variety — they are in turn peasants, soldiers, students, angels, infernal sylphs or will-o'-the-wisps, neighindeed, much

Fournet, cond.; ; Mona Lau- Jouatte (t), André Pactat

Three 12-in.

the only one ellent as to stral portion obscured by ling by the tra will be CA Victor. luctor; the o, David d Donald rvard and nt hearer, o the pre- ile listen- sted atti- ng under ch solo- uality of rticular, ts him wer of 'defini-

Villem

BERLIOZ RECORDINGS

Continued from page 31

Romeo and Juliet, Dramatic Symphony, with Chorus and Soloists, Op. 17

In writing music around Shakespeare Berlioz never proved his devotion to the Bard more eloquently than here. The text is his own, a free adaptation from the love tragedy, shaped to his own purposes with the device of a narrator (tenor) and only an occasional and approximate translation from Shakespeare. The contralto solo with harp and cello obbligato suggests but does not name Juliet; only Friar Laurence (bass), at the last exhorting the rival houses to become reconciled, is an assigned character. High points are the tenor's light interjections about Queen Mab, echoed by the chorus, and the mourning chorus over Juliet's casket, singing "Jetez des fleurs" in a monotone to shifting orchestral strains.

Boston Symphony Orchestra; Charles Munch, conductor; Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, G. Wallace Woodworth, conductor; Margaret Roggero (c), Leslie Chabay (t), Yi-Kwei Sze (bs).
RCA Victor LM 6011. Two 12-in. $11.90.

Excerpts:

NBC Orchestra; Artur Toscanini, conductor.
RCA Victor LM 1019. 12-in. $5.72.
(with Tchaikovsky: Romeo and Juliet).

Paris Conservatoire Orchestra; Charles Munch, conductor.
London LL-3. 12-in. $5.95.
(with Les Troyens).

New York Philharmonic Symphony-Society; Dimitri Mitropoulos, cond.
Columbia ML 4632. 12-in. $5.95.

Mitropoulos has the advantage over Toscanini in having included five excerpts on one disk: the mettlesome Introduction describing the warring houses, the Queen Mab Scherzo, the Ball Scene, the Love Scene, and "Roméo au tombeau." Toscanini, offering only the Love Scene and the Ball Scene, is with these very much in the running, with a reading interesting, but not always in the Berlioz tradition. (It is a misfortune that he did not see

Continued on page 84

Funeral March For The Last Scene of "Hamlet," Op. 18, No. 3 (From Tristia)

The March is introduced in the depths of the strings. The lower brass gives the piece solemnity and interjects dissonant chords, as the strings carrying the refrain are accompanied by insistent beats from the bass drum. After an anguished climax, the March ends in almost ghostly tones, suggesting the Hostias of the Requiem.

Paris Conservatoire Orchestra; Georges Sebastian, conductor.
Urania 7061. 12-in. $5.95.
(with Damnation of Faust excerpts and Franck: Redemption).

The single recording is an excellent and sufficient rendering.

Te Deum, for 3 Choruses with Orchestra and Organ, Op. 22

This work is included in the present list of recordings because a recording has been made by Columbia under Sir Thomas Beecham and is announced for release in September. Berlioz composed his Te Deum in 1855. It was his last work for chorus and orchestra, his last music of large proportions excepting the opera The Trojans (1858) and the opera Beatrice and Benedick (1860; he had composed his Requiem in 1837). He planned this work with an eye to overwhelming effect, using a huge orchestra, writing an individual part for the organ, and placing his choruses separately. Writing to Liszt after the first performance, he described the event as "colossal, Babylonian, Ninivite . . . Yes, the Requiem has a brother, a brother which has come into the world with teeth (but without the hump), like Richard III."

The Damnation of Faust, Dramatic Legend for Orchestra with Chorus and Soloists, Op. 24

Berlioz' "Dramatic Legend" is really an oratorio, a story in the form of sung dialog, connecting solo airs and ensembles. The tale of Faust's pact with the devil, his winning of Marguerite, his damnation and her salvation, is told in words mostly his own,

Continued on page 86

The Trojans at Carthage (Les Troyens), Second Part of the Opera, The Trojans

This score of Berlioz' maturity required his most prolonged efforts. It had a succès d'estime, when belatedly produced in 1863, but the Paris nurtured on Rossini, Meyerbeer, Offenbach and his lighter kind, would never have taken to its heart an opera with a classic subject treated with classic purity of style. Nor has any later opera-going public embraced this piece antique in style and costume, static in plot. It will never rival a Butterfly. But as a recording, where the music is the thing, it is full of rich reward. Although the orchestral style is spare as compared to the rich fabric of Wagner, the declamation old-fashioned, still many phrases of this declamation are finely expressive, and the orchestra no less so. The Trojans at Carthage gets off to what must be a slow start, theatrically speaking. From the stormy entrance of Aeneas (a fine musical characterization, by the way) things move. The love scene, introduced by a chorus in gentle, lulling measures, is followed by the first note of tragic conflict at the apparition of Mercury, warning Aeneas in sepulchral tones that he must go on to Italy, where he is destined to found the Roman nation. Music reaching the very depths of ghostliness is called forth by the shades of the slain heroes of Troy, bearing the same message. Aeneas' inward struggle and decision, his command to the Trojans to take ship are superb and exciting. Increasingly so are the final scenes of Dido's imprecations, despair and suicide. This is not the Dido of Purcell, utterly heartbroken, nobly resigned. She is both a super-heroine and a super-queen who changes from a fury of anger to a fury of despair and, dying, foretells the glory of Rome and the destruction of her own Carthage.

Paris Conservatoire Orchestra; Hermann Scherchen, conductor; Ensemble Vocal de Paris; Dido (s), Arda Mandikian; Aeneas (t), Jean Giraudeau; other soloists.
Westminster WAL 304. Three 12-in. $17.85.

The recording has been and con-

Continued on page 91

(with Dvorak: Carnaval).

Paris Lamoureux Orchestra; Jean

Continued on page 93

Martinon, conductor.
Urania 7048. 12-in. $5.95.
(with 3 other Overtures).

Philharmonia Orchestra; Paul Kletzki, conductor.
Columbia Entrée 71. 12-in. $2.98. (with 3 Overtures).

The version by Kletzki is the liveliest, and if you will his swift opening tempo with ing at the printed direction "allegro scherzando," you may prefer this ng, which gives zip to themat rial otherwise verging on the A purist may prefer Martinon ng, and his sound is the best of e. However, as has been obs y now in this listing, the four es on the Columbia disk make tstanding group (Les Francs-juges, Benvenuto Cellini, The Corsair, Beatrice and Benedick) and the record is a lo ced item. Moreover, its sound is no means bad.

adapted from Part One of Goethe's great poem. Berlioz chose only those excerpts which suited his purpose and re-ordered them in the interest of a tight and moving plot. He never wrote anything else so engrossing as to events, so thematically concentrated, so rich and sure in musical characterization. This applies to the two lovers and likewise to Mephistopheles as he brings them together, hovering about them and at last striking down the one within his own reach. The three enact their story before a panoramic vista of crowds, as Faust, his companion escorting and directing, traverses the the gamut of experience. These crowds form a choral background to almost every air, and with great variety — they are in turn peasants, soldiers, students, angels, infernal sylphs or will-o'-the-wisps, neighbors, fiends of Hell; indeed, much happens in this score!

Paris Orch[illegible] Fournet, cond.; [illegible]us; Mona Lau[illegible]s Jouatte (t), [illegible]ndré Pactat [illegible]hree 12-in.

[illegible]e only one [illegible]lent as to [illegible]tal portion [illegible]bscured by [illegible]ng by the [illegible]a will be [illegible]A Victor. [illegible]ictor; the [illegible]o, David [illegible] Donald [illegible]vard and [illegible]it hearer, [illegible]o the pre- [illegible]le listen- [illegible]sted atti- [illegible]ng under [illegible]ch solo- [illegible]ality of [illegible]rticular, [illegible]ts him [illegible]wer of [illegible]definifit to approve his recording of the Scherzo.) The recording by Mitropoulos has the advantage of later developments in sound. In fact, Columbia has rarely captured the Philharmonic this well.

[illegible]illem

The full recording by Munch conveys in all of these fragments as well as the continuous whole a special sense of Berlioz' style and is superior to any competitors in its sound.

Funeral and Triumphal Symphony, Op. 15

Written in 1840, this Grande Symphonie Funèbre et Triomphale, the "Military Symphony" as Berlioz once called it, was performed in the streets of Paris in commemoration of those who fell in the July Revolution. It was composed for wind instruments and percussion, featuring military drums. It is here recorded in a later form, in which the high wind instruments are reinforced by a string orchestra, a chorus doubling at the end. The first movement is a protracted march in a reiterated funereal rhythm. The second consists of a recitative and air for tenor trombone, with answering chords. The finale is a rousing march movement of glorification. Wagner, who attended an indoor rehearsal where the music was not lost in the spread of the street procession, wrote: "From the first note to the last . . . its sublime fervor rises from the tone of patriotic grief to the highest summits of apotheosis." Jacques Barzun, who prepared the excellent notes for the recording, seems inclined to go a long way with Wagner on this estimate. It has without doubt some fine writing, some impressive moments, particularly in the first movement. The piece has the misfortune of lugubrious lengths, suitable for its lugubrious occasion, but hardly congenial to casual and normally cheerful listening.

Orchestra and Chorus of Cologne; Fritz Straub, conductor.

LYRICHORD LL 40. 12-in. $5.95.

The recording seems first-rate to this reviewer. Others have called it raucous. In any case, the nature of both the music and the recording make it advisable to listen before buying.

Continued on page 85

Funeral March For The Last Scene of "Hamlet," Op. 18, No. 3 (From Tristia)

The March is introduced in the depths of the strings. The lower brass gives the piece solemnity and interjects dissonant chords, as the strings carrying the refrain are accompanied by insistent beats from the bass drum. After an anguished climax, the March ends in almost ghostly tones, suggesting the Hostias of the Requiem.

Paris Conservatoire Orchestra; Georges Sebastian, conductor.

URANIA 7061. 12-in. $5.95.

(with Damnation of Faust excerpts and Franck: Redemption).

The single recording is an excellent and sufficient rendering.

Te Deum, for 3 Choruses with Orchestra and Organ, Op. 22

This work is included in the present list of recordings because a recording has been made by Columbia under Sir Thomas Beecham and is announced for release in September. Berlioz composed his Te Deum in 1855. It was his last work for chorus and orchestra, his last music of large proportions excepting the opera The Trojans (1858) and the opera Beatrice and Benedick (1860; he had composed his Requiem in 1837). He planned this work with an eye to overwhelming effect, using a huge orchestra, writing an individual part for the organ, and placing his choruses separately. Writing to Liszt after the first performance, he described the event as "colossal, Babylonian, Ninivite . . . Yes, the Requiem has a brother, a brother which has come into the world with teeth (but without the hump), like Richard III."

The Damnation of Faust, Dramatic Legend for Orchestra with Chorus and Soloists, Op. 24

Berlioz' "Dramatic Legend" is really an oratorio, a story in the form of sung dialog, connecting solo airs and ensembles. The tale of Faust's pact with the devil, his winning of Marguerite, his damnation and her salvation, is told in words mostly his own,

Continued on page 86

The Trojans at Carthage (Les Troyens), Second Part of the Opera, The Trojans

This score of Berlioz' maturity required his most prolonged efforts. It had a succès d'estime, when belatedly produced in 1863, but the Paris nurtured on Rossini, Meyerbeer, Offenbach and his lighter kind, would never have taken to its heart an opera with a classic subject treated with classic purity of style. Nor has any later opera-going public embraced this piece antique in style and costume, static in plot. It will never rival a Butterfly. But as a recording, where the music is the thing, it is full of rich reward. Although the orchestral style is spare as compared to the rich fabric of Wagner, the declamation old-fashioned, still many phrases of this declamation are finely expressive, and the orchestra no less so. The Trojans at Carthage gets off to what must be a slow start, theatrically speaking. From the stormy entrance of Aeneas (a fine musical characterization, by the way) things move. The love scene, introduced by a chorus in gentle, lulling measures, is followed by the first note of tragic conflict at the apparition of Mercury, warning Aeneas in sepulchral tones that he must go on to Italy, where he is destined to found the Roman nation. Music reaching the very depths of ghostliness is called forth by the shades of the slain heroes of Troy, bearing the same message. Aeneas' inward struggle and decision, his command to the Trojans to take ship are superb and exciting. Increasingly so are the final scenes of Dido's imprecations, despair and suicide. This is not the Dido of Purcell, utterly heartbroken, nobly resigned. She is both a super-heroine and a super-queen who changes from a fury of anger to a fury of despair and, dying, foretells the glory of Rome and the destruction of her own Carthage.

Paris Conservatoire Orchestra; Hermann Scherchen, conductor; Ensemble Vocal de Paris; Dido (s), Arda Mandikian; Aeneas (t), Jean Giraudeau; other soloists.

WESTMINSTER WAL 304. Three 12-in. $17.85.

The recording has been and con-

Continued on page 91

(with Dvorak: Carnaval).

Paris Lamoureux Orchestra; Jean

Continued on page 93

Martinon, conductor.

URANIA 7048. 12-in. $5.95.

(with 3 other Overtur[illegible]

Philharmonia Orch[illegible]; Paul Kletzki, conductor.

COLUMBIA ENTRI[illegible]071. 12-in. $2.98. (with 3 Ov[illegible]rtures).

The version by K[illegible] is the liveliest, and if you wi[illegible]t his swift opening tempo with[illegible]king at the printed direction "al[illegible]herzando," you may prefer thi[illegible]ling, which gives zip to them[illegible]erial otherwise verging on the[illegible]. A purist may prefer Martinon[illegible]ng, and his sound is the best o[illegible]ree. However, as has been o[illegible]by now in this listing, the fou[illegible]es on the Columbia disk mak[illegible]tstanding group (Les Francs-j[illegible]vanuto Cellini, The Corsair, Bea[illegible] Benedick) and the record is a [illegible]ced item. Moreover, its sound [illegible]o means bad.

Funeral March For The Last Scene of "Hamlet," Op. 18, No. 3 (From Tristia)

The March is introduced in the depths of the strings. The lower brass gives the piece solemnity and interjects dissonant chords, as the strings carrying the refrain are accompanied by insistent beats from the bass drum. After an anguished climax, the March ends in almost ghostly tones, suggesting the Hostias of the Requiem.

Paris Conservatoire Orchestra; Georges Sebastian, conductor.
URANIA 7061. 12-in. $5.95.
(with Damnation of Faust excerpts and Franck: Redemption).

The single recording is an excellent and sufficient rendering.

Te Deum, for 3 Choruses with Orchestra and Organ, Op. 22

This work is included in the present list of recordings because a recording has been made by Columbia under Sir Thomas Beecham and is announced for release in September. Berlioz composed his Te Deum in 1855. It was his last work for chorus and orchestra, his last music of large proportions excepting the opera The Trojans (1858) and the opera Beatrice and Benedick (1860; he had composed his Requiem in 1837). He planned this work with an eye to overwhelming effect, using a huge orchestra, writing an individual part for the organ, and placing his choruses separately. Writing to Liszt after the first performance, he described the event as "colossal, Babylonian, Ninivite . . . Yes, the Requiem has a brother, a brother which has come into the world with teeth (but without the hump), like Richard III."

The Damnation of Faust, Dramatic Legend for Orchestra with Chorus and Soloists, Op. 24

Berlioz' "Dramatic Legend" is really an oratorio, a story in the form of sung dialog, connecting solo airs and ensembles. The tale of Faust's pact with the devil, his winning of Marguerite, his damnation and her salvation, is told in words mostly his own,

Continued on page 86

adapted from Part One of Goethe's great poem. Berlioz chose only those excerpts which suited his purpose and re-ordered them in the interest of a tight and moving plot. He never wrote anything else so engrossing as to events, so thematically concentrated, so rich and sure in musical characterization. This applies to the two lovers and likewise to Mephistopheles as he brings them together, hovering about them and at last striking down the one within his own reach. The three enact their story before a panoramic vista of crowds, as Faust, his companion escorting and directing, traverses the the gamut of experience. These crowds form a choral background to almost every air, and with great variety — they are in turn peasants, soldiers, students, angels, infernal sylphs or will-o'-the-wisps, neighbors, fiends of Hell; indeed, much happens in this score!

n Fournet, cond.; rus; Mona Lau- es Jouatte (t), , André Pactat

Three 12-in.

, the only one xcellent as to estral portion l obscured by rding by the estra will be RCA Victor.

nductor; the nco, David nd Donald Harvard and ent hearer, to the pre- hile listen- ested attiling under ach soloquality of articular, pts him iewer of "defini-has Little l, has nd, I has a s and Willem ement nce is orded. color, hance, r who work is deHerod e maspared nch rethe one "Sacred not be that the of the ould be ntrast as low. A ould be has one offers an the text Mengelberg, conductor.

CAPITOL-TELEFUNKEN L8127. 10-in. $3.98 (with Tchaikovsky: 1812).
Concertgebouw Orchestra; Eduard Van Beinum, conductor.
LONDON LS 620. 10-in. $4.95. (with Handel: Fireworks Music).
Paris Conservatoire Orchestra; Georges Sebastian, conductor.
URANIA 7061. 12-in. $5.95. (with Franck: Redemption).

These recordings present an interesting variation in tempi. Mengelberg takes the ballet of the Sylphs slowly and dreamily; he takes the final part of the Minuet far less rapidly than the others. Van Beinum is in the middle in this respect and Sebastian is on the fast side. Did Berlioz intend a brilliant effect at all costs, or one more in character with the wispy creatures described? At the high speed, which Munch also takes, the ominous growl of the trombone, showing the devil's hand in the matter, is almost lost in the scramble, while the final phrase makes the will-o'-the-wisps vanish rather abruptly. As to sound, among the excerpts the London is probably the best by a slight margin. The Urania is adequate. The Capitol, though old, is interesting for the remote-single-microphone technique developed by Telefunken during the war.

L'Enfance du Christ (The Infant Christ), Sacred Trilogy, Op. 25

Berlioz, worshiping and serving the god Beauty, disclaimed any orthodox religious faith. This score compels one to question these protestations of scepticism. The two principal characters in the story are Mary and Joseph, and they are drawn with unmistakable fervor and delicacy of sentiment. It was the depiction of their flight into Egypt with the infant Jesus which first occupied him in 1850. He added a first part to precede this, "The Dream of Herod," and a third part, "The Arrival at Saïs" in 1854. The text was his own, based on the Second Chapter of St. Matthew and enlarged with great liberty. The music of Herod, the monarch beset by fear for his life, ordering the massacre of the innocents, is properly savage; the music of the soothsayers weird. The remainder of

Continued on page 88

The Trojans at Carthage (Les Troyens), Second Part of the Opera, The Trojans

This score of Berlioz' maturity required his most prolonged efforts. It had a succès d'estime, when belatedly produced in 1863, but the Paris nurtured on Rossini, Meyerbeer, Offenbach and his lighter kind, would never have taken to its heart an opera with a classic subject treated with classic purity of style. Nor has any later opera-going public embraced this piece antique in style and costume, static in plot. It will never rival a Butterfly. But as a recording, where the music is the thing, it is full of rich reward. Although the orchestral style is spare as compared to the rich fabric of Wagner, the declamation old-fashioned, still many phrases of this declamation are finely expressive, and the orchestra no less so. The Trojans at Carthage gets off to what must be a slow start, theatrically speaking. From the stormy entrance of Aeneas (a fine musical characterization, by the way) things move. The love scene, introduced by a chorus in gentle, lulling measures, is followed by the first note of tragic conflict at the apparition of Mercury, warning Aeneas in sepulchral tones that he must go on to Italy, where he is destined to found the Roman nation. Music reaching the very depths of ghostliness is called forth by the shades of the slain heroes of Troy, bearing the same message. Aeneas' inward struggle and decision, his command to the Trojans to take ship are superb and exciting. Increasingly so are the final scenes of Dido's imprecations, despair and suicide. This is not the Dido of Purcell, utterly heartbroken, nobly resigned. She is both a super-heroine and a super-queen who changes from a fury of anger to a fury of despair and, dying, foretells the glory of Rome and the destruction of her own Carthage.

Paris Conservatoire Orchestra; Hermann Scherchen, conductor; Ensemble Vocal de Paris; Dido (s), Arda Mandikian; Aeneas (t), Jean Giraudeau; other soloists.
WESTMINSTER WAL 304. Three 12-in. $17.85.

The recording has been and con-

Continued on page 91

(with Dvorak: Carnaval).
Paris Lamoureux Orchestra; Jean

Continued on page 93

Martinon, conductor.
URANIA 7048. 12-in. $5.95.
(with 3 other Overtures).
Philharmonia Orchestra; Paul Kletzki, conductor.
COLUMBIA ENTRE 071. 12-in. $2.98. (with 3 Overtures).

The version by K is the liveliest, and if you wi his swift opening tempo wit king at the printed direction "al herzando," you may prefer thi ling, which gives zip to them erial otherwise verging on the s. A purist may prefer Martino ng, and his sound is the best o ree. However, as has been o by now in this listing, the fou es on the Columbia disk ma tstanding group (Les Francs-j onuto Cellini, The Corsair, Bea Benedick) and the record is a ced item. Moreover, its sound o means bad.

Funeral March For The Last Scene of "Hamlet," Op. 18, No. 3 (From Tristia)

The March is introduced in the depths of the strings. The lower brass gives the piece solemnity and interjects dissonant chords, as the strings carrying the refrain are accompanied by insistent beats from the bass drum. After an anguished climax, the March ends in almost ghostly tones, suggesting the Hostias of the Requiem.

Paris Conservatoire Orchestra; Georges Sebastian, conductor.
URANIA 7061. 12-in. $5.95.
(with Damnation of Faust excerpts and Franck: Redemption).

The single recording is an excellent and sufficient rendering.

Te Deum, for 3 Choruses with Orchestra and Organ, Op. 22

This work is included in the present list of recordings because a recording has been made by Columbia under Sir Thomas Beecham and is announced for release in September. Berlioz composed his Te Deum in 1855. It was his last work for chorus and orchestra, his last music of large proportions excepting the opera The Trojans (1858) and the opera Beatrice and Benedick (1860; he had composed his Requiem in 1837). He planned this work with an eye to overwhelming effect, using a huge orchestra, writing an individual part for the organ, and placing his choruses separately. Writing to Liszt after the first performance, he described the event as "colossal, Babylonian, Ninivite . . . Yes, the Requiem has a brother, a brother which has come into the world with teeth (but without the hump), like Richard III."

The Damnation of Faust, Dramatic Legend for Orchestra with Chorus and Soloists, Op. 24

Berlioz' "Dramatic Legend" is really an oratorio, a story in the form of sung dialog, connecting solo airs and ensembles. The tale of Faust's pact with the devil, his winning of Marguerite, his damnation and her salvation, is told in words mostly his own,

Continued on page 86

adapted from Part One of Goethe's great poem. Berlioz chose only those excerpts which suited his purpose and re-ordered them in the interest of a tight and moving plot. He never wrote anything else so engrossing as to events, so thematically concentrated, so rich and sure in musical characterization. This applies to the two lovers and likewise to Mephistopheles as he brings them together, hovering about them and at last striking down the one within his own reach. The three enact their story before a panoramic vista of crowds, as Faust, his companion escorting and directing, traverses the the gamut of experience. These crowds form a choral background to almost every air, and with great variety — they are in turn peasants, soldiers, students, angels, infernal sylphs or will-o'-the-wisps, neighbors, fiends of Hell; indeed, much happens in this score!

Paris O[illegible] lean Fournet, cond.; horus; Mona Lauges Jouatte (t), n), André Pactat

the work is gentle, pastoral, entirely . Three 12-in. simple and unpretentious. The chorale of the shepherds, the air of the narrator ng, the only one (tenor) describing the Holy Family excellent as to resting on their journey, the trio of chestral portion two flutes and a harp as the refugees nd obscured by are befriended in a strange land, the cording by the final beatific chorus — these show a hestra will be hitherto unsuspected strain in the y RCA Victor. artist Berlioz. onductor; the

Paris Conservatoire Orchestra; Anlanco, David dré Cluytens, conductor; Chorus, and Donald Raymond St. Paul; Soloists of the Harvard and Paris Opéra (H. Bouvier, J. Giraueseni hearer, deau, L. Noguéra, M. Roux, H. s to the pre- Médus). while listen-

VOX PL 7120. Two 12-in. No text. erested atti- $11.90. ding under

Little Orchestra Society; Thomas each soloScherman, conductor; Choral Art quality of Society; Mary Davenport (ms), Mar- particular, tial Singher (bne), Leopold Simoneau mpts him (t), Donald Gramm (bs). viewer of COLUMBIA SL 199. Two 12-in. Text. "defini- $12.50.

The French recording, which has held the LP field alone until the Little Orchestra Society release last April, has t served its purpose beautifully and, I would say, still does so, for it has a uniformly good orchestra, chorus and Willem soloists, who perform with agreement as to style, and whose performance is faithfully, if not memorably, recorded. The new recording is brighter in color, more detailed and warmer in resonance, as would be expected. The singer who comes closest to the spirit of the work is Martial Singher. And yet his delivery of the tortured Song of Herod and his dread command for the massacre is even and subdued as compared to that of M. Roux in the French recording. It could be said on the one hand that the mood of the "Sacred Trilogy," being idyllic, should not be violated; on the other hand that the brief appearance of the villain of the piece and his bloody order should be properly terrifying, giving contrast as well as point to what will follow. A matter of opinion.* It should be added that the Vox version has one serious defect — its album offers an English synopsis, but not the text itself

ue on page 89

*The cover design for the earlier record is attractive, appropriate and in good taste; the newer one is the exact opposite in each respect.

The Trojans at Carthage (Les Troyens), Second Part of the Opera, The Trojans

This score of Berlioz' maturity required his most prolonged efforts. It had a succès d'estime, when belatedly produced in 1863, but the Paris nurtured on Rossini, Meyerbeer, Offenbach and his lighter kind, would never have taken to its heart an opera with a classic subject treated with classic purity of style. Nor has any later opera-going public embraced this piece antique in style and costume, static in plot. It will never rival a Butterfly. But as a recording, where the music is the thing, it is full of rich reward. Although the orchestral style is spare as compared to the rich fabric of Wagner, the declamation old-fashioned, still many phrases of this declamation are finely expressive, and the orchestra no less so. The Trojans at Carthage gets off to what must be a slow start, theatrically speaking. From the stormy entrance of Aeneas (a fine musical characterization, by the way) things move. The love scene, introduced by a chorus in gentle, lulling measures, is followed by the first note of tragic conflict at the apparition of Mercury, warning Aeneas in sepulchral tones that he must go on to Italy, where he is destined to found the Roman nation. Music reaching the very depths of ghostliness is called forth by the shades of the slain heroes of Troy, bearing the same message. Aeneas' inward struggle and decision, his command to the Trojans to take ship are superb and exciting. Increasingly so are the final scenes of Dido's imprecations, despair and suicide. This is not the Dido of Purcell, utterly heartbroken, nobly resigned. She is both a super-heroine and a super-queen who changes from a fury of anger to a fury of despair and, dying, foretells the glory of Rome and the destruction of her own Carthage.

Paris Conservatoire Orchestra; Hermann Scherchen, conductor; Ensemble Vocal de Paris; Dido (s), Arda Mandikian; Aeneas (t), Jean Giraudeau; other soloists.
WESTMINSTER WAL 304. Three 12-in. $17.85.

The recording has been and con-

Continued on page 91

(with Dvorak: Carnaval).

Paris Lamoureux Orchestra; Jean

Continued on page 93

Martinon, conductor.
URANIA 7048. 12-in. $5.95.
(with 3 other Overtur[illegible]).
Philharmonia Orch[illegible]; Paul Kletzki, conductor.
COLUMBIA ENTR[illegible]71. 12-in. $2.98. (with 3 O[illegible] tures).

The version by K[illegible] the liveliest, and if you wi[illegible] his swift opening tempo wit[illegible]king at the printed direction "a[illegible] herzando," you may prefer th[illegible]ing, which gives zip to them[illegible]rial otherwise verging on the[illegible]. A purist may prefer Martino[illegible]ng, and his sound is the best o[illegible]ree. However, as has been o[illegible]by now in this listing, the fou[illegible]es on the Columbia disk ma[illegible]utstanding group (Les Francs-[illegible]nuto Cellini, The Corsair, Bea[illegible] Benedick) and the record is a [illegible]ced item. Moreover, its sound is [illegible]o means bad.

Funeral March For The Last Scene of "Hamlet," Op. 18, No. 3 (From Tristia)

The March is introduced in the depths of the strings. The lower brass gives the piece solemnity and interjects dissonant chords, as the strings carrying the refrain are accompanied by insistent beats from the bass drum. After an anguished climax, the March ends in almost ghostly tones, suggesting the Hostias of the Requiem.

Paris Conservatoire Orchestra; Georges Sebastian, conductor.
URANIA 7061. 12-in. $5.95.
(with Damnation of Faust excerpts and Franck: Redemption).

The single recording is an excellent and sufficient rendering.

Te Deum, for 3 Choruses with Orchestra and Organ, Op. 22

This work is included in the present list of recordings because a recording has been made by Columbia under Sir Thomas Beecham and is announced for release in September. Berlioz composed his Te Deum in 1855. It was his last work for chorus and orchestra, his last music of large proportions excepting the opera The Trojans (1858) and the opera Beatrice and Benedick (1860; he had composed his Requiem in 1837). He planned this work with an eye to overwhelming effect, using a huge orchestra, writing an individual part for the organ, and placing his choruses separately. Writing to Liszt after the first performance, he described the event as "colossal, Babylonian, Ninivite . . . Yes, the Requiem has a brother, a brother which has come into the world with teeth (but without the hump), like Richard III."

The Damnation of Faust, Dramatic Legend for Orchestra with Chorus and Soloists, Op. 24

Berlioz' "Dramatic Legend" is really an oratorio, a story in the form of sung dialog, connecting solo airs and ensembles. The tale of Faust's pact with the devil, his winning of Marguerite, his damnation and her salvation, is told in words mostly his own,

Continued on page 86

adapted from Part One of Goethe's great poem. Berlioz chose only those excerpts which suited his purpose and re-ordered them in the interest of a tight and moving plot. He never wrote anything else so engrossing as to events, so thematically concentrated, so rich and sure in musical characterization. This applies to the two lovers and likewise to Mephistopheles as he brings them together, hovering about them and at last striking down the one within his own reach. The three enact their story before a panoramic vista of crowds, as Faust, his companion escorting and directing, traverses the the gamut of experience. These crowds form a choral background to almost every air, and with great variety — they are in turn peasants, soldiers, students, angels, infernal sylphs or will-o'-the-wisps, neighbors, fiends of Hell; indeed, much happens in this score!

nd.;
Lau(t), ctat

the work is gentle, pastoral, entirely -in.
simple and unpretentious. The chorale of the shepherds, the air of the narrator (tenor) describing the Holy Family one resting on their journey, the trio of to two flutes and a harp as the refugees on are befriended in a strange land, the by final beatific chorus — these show a he hitherto unsuspected strain in the be artist Berlioz. or.

Paris Conservatoire Orchestra; André Cluytens, conductor; Chorus, Raymond St. Paul; Soloists of the Paris Opéra (H. Bouvier, J. Giraudeau, L. Noguéra, M. Roux, H. Médus). he id ld id r, e-
VOX PL 7120. Two 12-in. No text. $11.90. 1- i-
Little Orchestra Society; Thomas Scherman, conductor; Choral Art Society; Mary Davenport (ms), Martial Singher (bne), Leopold Simoneau (t), Donald Gramm (bs). er o- of r, n of
COLUMBIA SL 199. Two 12-in. Text. $12.50. -

The French recording, which has held the LP field alone until the Little Orchestra Society release last April, has served its purpose beautifully and, I would say, still does so, for it has a uniformly good orchestra, chorus and soloists, who perform with agreement as to style, and whose performance is faithfully, if not memorably, recorded. The new recording is brighter in color, more detailed and warmer in resonance, as would be expected. The singer who comes closest to the spirit of the work is Martial Singher. And yet his delivery of the tortured Song of Herod and his dread command for the massacre is even and subdued as compared to that of M. Roux in the French recording. It could be said on the one hand that the mood of the "Sacred Trilogy," being idyllic, should not be violated; on the other hand that the brief appearance of the villain of the piece and his bloody order should be properly terrifying, giving contrast as well as point to what will follow. A matter of opinion.* It should be added that the Vox version has one serious defect — its album offers an English synopsis, but not the text itself.

Continued on page 89

*The cover design for the earlier record is attractive, appropriate and in good taste; the newer one is the exact opposite in each respect.

The Trojans at Carthage (Les Troyens), Second Part of the Opera, The Trojans

This score of Berlioz' maturity required his most prolonged efforts. It had a succès d'estime, when belatedly produced in 1863, but the Paris nurtured on Rossini, Meyerbeer, Offenbach and his lighter kind, would never have taken to its heart an opera with a classic subject treated with classic purity of style. Nor has any later opera-going public embraced this piece antique in style and costume, static in plot. It will never rival a Butterfly. But as a recording, where the music is the thing, it is full of rich reward. Although the orchestral style is spare as compared to the rich fabric of Wagner, the declamation old-fashioned, still many phrases of this declamation are finely expressive, and the orchestra no less so. The Trojans at Carthage gets off to what must be a slow start, theatrically speaking. From the stormy entrance of Aeneas (a fine musical characterization, by the way) things move. The love scene, introduced by a chorus in gentle, lulling measures, is followed by the first note of tragic conflict at the apparition of Mercury, warning Aeneas in sepulchral tones that he must go on to Italy, where he is destined to found the Roman nation. Music reaching the very depths of ghostliness is called forth by the shades of the slain heroes of Troy, bearing the same message. Aeneas' inward struggle and decision, his command to the Trojans to take ship are superb and exciting. Increasingly so are the final scenes of Dido's imprecations, despair and suicide. This is not the Dido of Purcell, utterly heartbroken, nobly resigned. She is both a super-heroine and a super-queen who changes from a fury of anger to a fury of despair and, dying, foretells the glory of Rome and the destruction of her own Carthage.

Paris Conservatoire Orchestra; Hermann Scherchen, conductor; Ensemble Vocal de Paris; Dido (s), Arda Mandikian; Aeneas (t), Jean Giraudeau; other soloists.
WESTMINSTER WAL 304. Three 12-in. $17.85.

The recording has been and con-

Continued on page 91

(with Dvorak: Carnaval).
Paris Lamoureux Orchestra; Jean

Continued on page 93

Martinon, conductor.
URANIA 7048. 12-in. $5.95.
(with 3 other Overtures).
Philharmonia Orchestra; Paul Kletzki, conductor.
COLUMBIA ENTR[illegible] 3071. 12-in. $2.98. (with 3 [illegible]vertures).

The version by K[illegible] is the liveliest, and if you w[illegible]cept his swift opening tempo wi[illegible]oking at the printed direction "[illegible]scherzando," you may prefer th[illegible]ding, which gives zip to them[illegible]aterial otherwise verging on th[illegible]us. A purist may prefer Martin[illegible]ling, and his sound is the best [illegible]hree. However, as has been [illegible]d by now in this listing, the fo[illegible]tures on the Columbia disk m[illegible]outstanding group (Les Francs-[illegible]renuto Cellini, The Corsair, Be[illegible]d Benedick) and the record is [illegible]priced item. Moreover, its soun[illegible]by no means bad.

Funeral March For The Last Scene of "Hamlet," Op. 18, No. 3 (From Tristia)

The March is introduced in the depths of the strings. The lower brass gives the piece solemnity and interjects dissonant chords, as the strings carrying the refrain are accompanied by insistent beats from the bass drum. After an anguished climax, the March ends in almost ghostly tones, suggesting the Hostias of the Requiem.

Paris Conservatoire Orchestra; Georges Sebastian, conductor.
URANIA 7061. 12-in. $5.95.
(with Damnation of Faust excerpts and Franck: Redemption).

The single recording is an excellent and sufficient rendering.

Te Deum, for 3 Choruses with Orchestra and Organ, Op. 22

This work is included in the present list of recordings because a recording has been made by Columbia under Sir Thomas Beecham and is announced for release in September. Berlioz composed his Te Deum in 1855. It was his last work for chorus and orchestra, his last music of large proportions excepting the opera The Trojans (1858) and the opera Beatrice and Benedick (1860; he had composed his Requiem in 1837). He planned this work with an eye to overwhelming effect, using a huge orchestra, writing an individual part for the organ, and placing his choruses separately. Writing to Liszt after the first performance, he described the event as "colossal, Babylonian, Ninivite . . . Yes, the Requiem has a brother, a brother which has come into the world with teeth (but without the hump), like Richard III."

The Damnation of Faust, Dramatic Legend for Orchestra with Chorus and Soloists, Op. 24

Berlioz' "Dramatic Legend" is really an oratorio, a story in the form of sung dialog, connecting solo airs and ensembles. The tale of Faust's pact with the devil, his winning of Marguerite, his damnation and her salvation, is told in words mostly his own,

Continued on page 86

adapted from Part One of Goethe's great poem. Berlioz chose only those excerpts which suited his purpose and re-ordered them in the interest of a tight and moving plot. He never wrote anything else so engrossing as to events, so thematically concentrated, so rich and sure in musical characterization. This applies to the two lovers and likewise to Mephistopheles as he brings them together, hovering about them and at last striking down the one within his own reach. The three enact their story before a panoramic vista of crowds, as Faust, his companion escorting and directing, traverses the the gamut of experience. These crowds form a choral background to almost every air, and with great variety — they are in turn peasants, soldiers, students, angels, infernal sylphs or will-o'-the-wisps, neighbors, fiends of Hell; indeed, much happens in this score!

Paris Orchestra; Jean Fournet, cond.; Emile Passani Chorus; Mona Laurena (ms), Georges Jouatte (t), Paul Cabanel (bn), André Pactat (bs).
COLUMBIA SL 110. Three 12-in. $17.50.

This French recording, the only one to date, is uniformly excellent as to performance, but the orchestral portion is often overbalanced and obscured by the solo voices. A recording by the Boston Symphony Orchestra will be released in September by RCA Victor. Charles Munch is the conductor; the soloists are Suzanne Danco, David Poleri, Martial Singher, and Donald Gramm, the chorus, the Harvard and Radcliffe forces. The present hearer, who has been given access to the preliminary tapes, has striven while listening to it to achieve a disinterested attitude and judgment. The reading under Munch, the performance of each soloist and of the chorus, the quality of the result, in general and in particular, musically and sonically, tempts him to use a word which any reviewer of records must use at his peril: "definitive."

The Damnation of Faust (Excerpts)

Concertgebouw Orchestra; Willem

Continued on page 87

tinues to be a major service to the general comprehension of Berlioz. The performance is uniformly satisfactory. Certain singers are less than the best, but Aeneas and Dido are histrionically superb. The Queen's part is as exacting as Brünnhilde's, however different musically, and would force any voice of less than reasonable power. The tonal grandeur of the recording was breathtaking when it was issued, and still impresses.

The Trojans (Excerpts)

Lamoureux Orchestra; Jean Martinon, conductor.
MGM E 127. 12-in. $4.85.
MGM E 3053. 10-in. $3.00.
(with Glinka: Russlan & Ludmilla Overture).

Paris Conservatoire Orchestra; Charles Munch, conductor.
LONDON LL 3. 12-in. $5.95.
(with Romeo & Juliet excerpts).

The recording by Munch of the Royal Hunt and Storm is more sensitive to detail. Martinon's, also fine, has the advantage of including, on the 10-inch disk, the Overture, the Trojan March which follows, and the Oriental Ballet from Act II. (It is too bad that only the Royal Hunt and Storm is retained on the 12-inch disk.) The Rakoczy March was not Berlioz' only stirring march! The Ballet could be held up to prove once more that Berlioz was a super-melodist. The MGM recording is not technically distinguished, and the London is, and sounds, old.

Overture to "Beatrice and Benedick"

Few people are acquainted with more than the Overture to Berlioz' last work. His two act Opéra Comique, Béatrice et Bénédict is his one venture upon a gay subject. In any case, the Overture, in a sparkling scherzo vein, gives a reasonable approximation of Shakespeare's comedy of banter. The last of Berlioz' overtures is thus a refreshing variation upon the more familiar previous ones.

Stadium Concerts Symphony of New York; Alexander Smallens, conductor.
DECCA DL 4034. 10-in. $2.50.
(with Dvorak: Carnaval).

Paris Lamoureux Orchestra; Jean

Continued on page 93

Martinon, conductor.
URANIA 7048. 12-in. $5.95.
(with 3 other Overtures).

Philharmonia Orchestra; Paul Kletzki, conductor.
COLUMBIA ENTRE[illegible]071. 12-in. $2.98. (with 3 Ot[illegible]rtures).

The version by Kl[illegible] is the liveliest, and if you will[illegible] his swift opening tempo with[illegible]king at the printed direction "all[illegible]cherzando," you may prefer this[illegible]ling, which gives zip to themat[illegible]erial otherwise verging on the [illegible]s. A purist may prefer Martinon[illegible]ng, and his sound is the best of [illegible]ree. However, as has been ob[illegible] by now in this listing, the four[illegible]es on the Columbia disk mak[illegible]utstanding group (Les Francs-ju[illegible]nuto Cellini, The Corsair, Bea[illegible] Benedick) and the record is a [illegible]ced item. Moreover, its sound is [illegible]no means bad.

Berlioz, worshiping and serving the god Beauty, disclaimed any orthodox religious faith. This score compels one to question these protestations of scepticism. The two principal characters in the story are Mary and Joseph, and they are drawn with unmistakable fervor and delicacy of sentiment. It was the depiction of their flight into Egypt with the infant Jesus which first occupied him in 1850. He added a first part to precede this, "The Dream of Herod," and a third part, "The Arrival at Sais" in 1854. The text was his own, based on the Second Chapter of St. Matthew and enlarged with great liberty. The music of Herod, the monarch beset by fear for his life, adapted from Part One of Goethe's great poem. Berlioz chose only those excerpts which suited his purpose and re-ordered them in the interest of a tight and moving plot. He never wrote anything else so engrossing as to events, so thematically concentrated, so rich and sure in musical characterization. This applies to the two lovers and likewise to Mephistopheles as he brings them together, hovering about them and at last striking down the one within his own reach. The three enact their story before a panoramic vista of crowds, as Faust, his companion escorting and directing, traverses the the gamut of experience. These crowds form a choral background to almost every air, and with great variety — they are in turn peasants, soldiers, students, angels, infernal sylphs or will-o'-the-wisps, neighbors, fiends of Hell; indeed, much happens in this score!

Paris Orchestra; Jean Fournet, cond.; Emile Passani Chorus; Mona Laurena (ms), Georges Jouatte (t), Paul Cabanel (bn), André Pactat (bs).

COLUMBIA SL 110. Three 12-in. $17.50.

This French recording, the only one to date, is uniformly excellent as to performance, but the orchestral portion is often overbalanced and obscured by the solo voices. A recording by the Boston Symphony Orchestra will be released in September by RCA Victor. Charles Munch is the conductor; the soloists are Suzanne Danco, David Poleri, Martial Singher, and Donald Gramm, the chorus, the Harvard and Radcliffe forces. The present hearer, who has been given access to the preliminary tapes, has striven while listening to it to achieve a disinterested attitude and judgment. The reading under Munch, the performance of each soloist and of the chorus, the quality of the result, in general and in particular, musically and sonically, tempts him to use a word which any reviewer of records must use at his peril: "definitive."

The Damnation of Faust (Excerpts)

Concertgebouw Orchestra; Willem

Continued on page 87

Mengelberg, conductor.
CAPITOL-TELEFUNKEN L8127. 10-in. $3.98 (with Tchaikovsky: 1812).
Concertgebouw Orchestra; Eduard Van Beinum, conductor.
LONDON LS 620. 10-in. $4.95. (with Handel: Fireworks Music).
Paris Conservatoire Orchestra; Georges Sebastian, conductor.
URANIA 7061. 12-in. $5.95. (with Franck: Redemption).

These recordings present an interesting variation in tempi. Mengelberg takes the ballet of the Sylphs slowly and dreamily; he takes the final part of the Minuet far less rapidly than the others. Van Beinum is in the middle in this respect and Sebastian is on the fast side. Did Berlioz intend a brilliant effect at all costs, or one more in character with the wispy creatures described? At the high speed, which Munch also takes, the ominous growl of the trombone, showing the devil's hand in the matter, is almost lost in the scramble, while the final phrase makes the will-o'-the-wisps vanish rather abruptly. As to sound, among the excerpts the London is probably the best by a slight margin. The Urania is adequate. The Capitol, though old, is interesting for the remote-single-microphone technique developed by Telefunken during the war.

L'Enfance du Christ (The Infant Christ), Sacred Trilogy, Op. 25

Berlioz, worshiping and serving the god Beauty, disclaimed any orthodox religious faith. This score compels one to question these protestations of scepticism. The two principal characters in the story are Mary and Joseph, and they are drawn with unmistakable fervor and delicacy of sentiment. It was the depiction of their flight into Egypt with the infant Jesus which first occupied him in 1850. He added a first part to precede this, "The Dream of Herod," and a third part, "The Arrival at Saïs" in 1854. The text was his own, based on the Second Chapter of St. Matthew and enlarged with great liberty. The music of Herod, the monarch beset by fear for his life, ordering the massacre of the innocents, is properly savage; the music of the soothsayers weird. The remainder of

Continued on page 88

Funeral March For The Last Scene of "Hamlet," Op. 18, No. 3 (From Tristia)

The March is introduced in the depths of the strings. The lower brass gives the piece solemnity and interjects dissonant chords, as the strings carrying the refrain are accompanied by insistent beats from the bass drum. After an anguished climax, the March ends in almost ghostly tones, suggesting the Hostias of the Requiem.

Paris Conservatoire Orchestra; Georges Sebastian, conductor.
URANIA 7061. 12-in. $5.95. (with Damnation of Faust excerpts and Franck: Redemption).

The single recording is an excellent and sufficient rendering.

Te Deum, for 3 Choruses with Orchestra and Organ, Op. 22

This work is included in the present list of recordings because a recording has been made by Columbia under Sir Thomas Beecham and is announced for release in September. Berlioz composed his Te Deum in 1855. It was his last work for chorus and orchestra, his last music of large proportions excepting the opera The Trojans (1858) and the opera Beatrice and Benedick (1860; he had composed his Requiem in 1837). He planned this work with an eye to overwhelming effect, using a huge orchestra, writing an individual part for the organ, and placing his choruses separately. Writing to Liszt after the first performance, he described the event as "colossal, Babylonian, Ninivite . . . Yes, the Requiem has a brother, a brother which has come into the world with teeth (but without the hump), like Richard III."

The Damnation of Faust, Dramatic Legend for Orchestra with Chorus and Soloists, Op. 24

Berlioz' "Dramatic Legend" is really an oratorio, a story in the form of sung dialog, connecting solo airs and ensembles. The tale of Faust's pact with the devil, his winning of Marguerite, his damnation and her salvation, is told in words mostly his own,

Continued on page 86

the work is gentle, pastoral, entirely simple and unpretentious. The chorale of the shepherds, the air of the narrator (tenor) describing the Holy Family resting on their journey, the trio of two flutes and a harp as the refugees are befriended in a strange land, the final beatific chorus — these show a hitherto unsuspected strain in the artist Berlioz.

Paris Conservatoire Orchestra; André Cluytens, conductor; Chorus, Raymond St. Paul; Soloists of the Paris Opéra (H. Bouvier, J. Giraudeau, L. Noguéra, M. Roux, H. Médus).
VOX PL 7120. Two 12-in. No text. $11.90.
Little Orchestra Society; Thomas Scherman, conductor; Choral Art Society; Mary Davenport (ms), Martial Singher (bne), Leopold Simoneau (t), Donald Gramm (bs).
COLUMBIA SL 199. Two 12-in. Text. $12.50.

The French recording, which has held the LP field alone until the Little Orchestra Society release last April, has served its purpose beautifully and, I would say, still does so, for it has a uniformly good orchestra, chorus and soloists, who perform with agreement as to style, and whose performance is faithfully, if not memorably, recorded. The new recording is brighter in color, more detailed and warmer in resonance, as would be expected. The singer who comes closest to the spirit of the work is Martial Singher. And yet his delivery of the tortured Song of Herod and his dread command for the massacre is even and subdued as compared to that of M. Roux in the French recording. It could be said on the one hand that the mood of the "Sacred Trilogy," being idyllic, should not be violated; on the other hand that the brief appearance of the villain of the piece and his bloody order should be properly terrifying, giving contrast as well as point to what will follow. A matter of opinion.* It should be added that the Vox version has one serious defect — its album offers an English synopsis, but not the text itself.

Continued on page 89

*The cover design for the earlier record is attractive, appropriate and in good taste; the newer one is the exact opposite in each respect.

Martinon, conductor.
URANIA 7048. 12-in $5.95.
(with 3 other Overture
Philharmonia Orches Paul Kletzki, conductor.
COLUMBIA ENTRE R 71. 12-in. $2.98. (with 3 Other rtures).

The version by Klet s the liveliest, and if you will his swift opening tempo without ing at the printed direction "allegr erzando," you may prefer this re ng, which gives zip to thematic rial otherwise verging on the ten A purist may prefer Martinon's g, and his sound is the best of th e. However, as has been obser y now in this listing, the four ov s on the Columbia disk make a tstanding group (Les Francs-juges, nuto Cellini, The Corsair, Beatric Benedick) and the record is a low ced item. Moreover, its sound is no means bad.

Its targets were Gov. Thomas E. Dewey and AFL President George Meany.

The union accused them of conspiring to interfere with last month's bargaining election among 22,000 New York longshoremen—the same charge both Dewey and Meany already have lodged against the ILA.

In Albany, Dewey's office said:

WASHINGTON (UP) — Checkers, Vice President Richard M. Nixon's famous pedigreed cocker spaniel, has given birth to five black and white pups. The father is unknown.

Checkers became prominent when Nixon mentioned her in a nationwide television broadcast during the 1952 election campaign.

acting under government orders handed back blankets and warm clothes to needy borrowers who couldn't repay their loans.

The weather death toll since winter's belated assault began six days ago climbed to 58. Italy alone had 22 dead. There were 20 killed in Britain and 16 in France.

Ice blocked the main river and the important Midland Canal in Germany. Railroads in Italy have

BSO Plans Concerts Over Six Weekends

estival

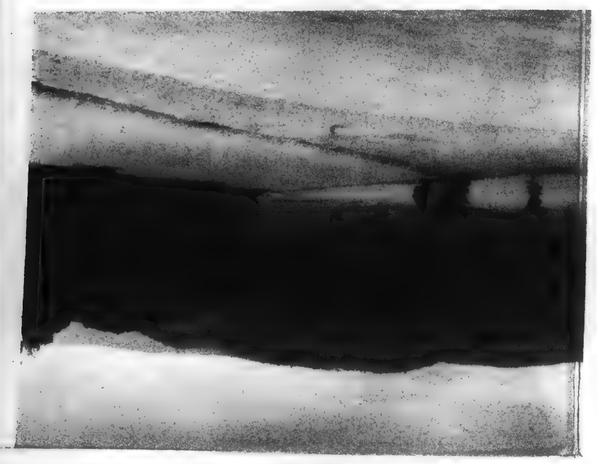
Continued From First Page

ent in the Berkshire Music will remain about the same he vicinity of 400 students. e of the students in Depart- V (the student orchestra), of the young musicians en- at the Music Center are on rships, Mr. Judd explained. eased costs for faculty mem- housing the students and gen- maintenance of the school it prohibitive for the Boston mphony to increase the enroll- ent at this time, he concluded.

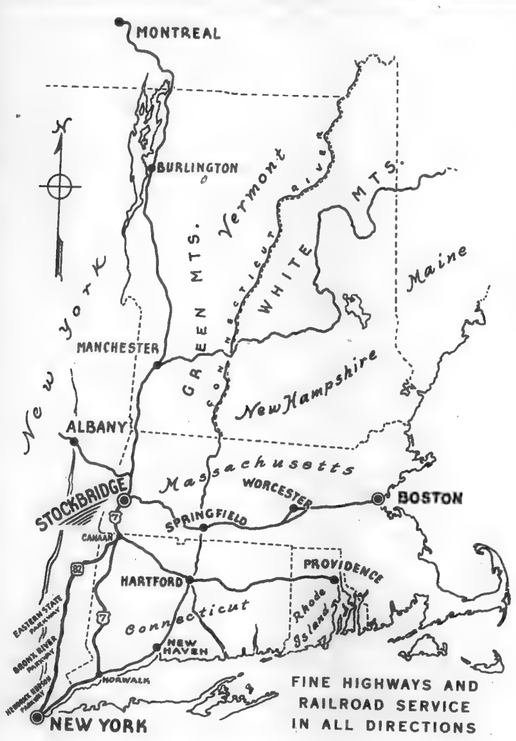
hed To Be Painted

HEATON HALL

Beautiful panorama from porch of Heaton Hall.



Heaton Hall from the meadow.



AUTO ROUTES RECOMMENDED

FROM NEW YORK CITY (130 Miles) Hendrick Hudson Highway, Bronx River Parkway, Eastern State Parkway to Route 82 at Arthursburg, then through Millbrook, Sharon and Canaan to U. S. Route 7 then to Stockbridge.

FROM BOSTON (135 Miles) U. S. Route 20 to East Lee, then Route 102 to Stockbridge.

FROM ALBANY (40 Miles) U. S. Route 20 to Pittsfield, then Route 7 to Stockbridge.

RAILROADS

FROM NEW YORK CITY: New York, New Haven and Hartford, Berkshire Division.

FROM EAST (BOSTON) OR WEST (ALBANY): Boston and Albany to Pittsfield, 12 Miles from Stockbridge.

Stockbridge in the Berkshire Hills of Massachusetts

HEATON HALL is owned and operated by the Treadway family, whose reputation offers a background of more than eight decades of successful hotel management. Under their direction, the very best of old fashioned New England hospitality awaits the guests in an excellent setting.

The outstanding recommendation for Heaton Hall is that it is the only first-class resort hotel in the Berkshire Hills removed from a main highway. Thus all noises and other disturbing influences of heavy traffic are completely eliminated. Heaton Hall is situated on a hillside, two blocks back from the main highway, overlooking the peaceful village of Stockbridge.

Directly beyond the wide expanse of front lawn is an open meadow, which assures complete privacy and lack of noise for the guests of the Hall. The broad porches afford an excellent view of the panorama of Berkshire Hills, noted far and wide for their restful charm and beauty.

The pictures inside the folder give a fine idea of the remarkable range of activities available in the Berkshires, but cannot possibly portray to the prospective guest the excellent service, cuisine and true homelike atmosphere that is an integral part of Heaton Hall's charm. The Hall offers the gracious air of a lovely country estate seldom found at summer resorts.

Tanglewood Music Shed where the world-renowned Berkshire Symphonic Festival is held is within ten minutes motoring distance of Heaton Hall.

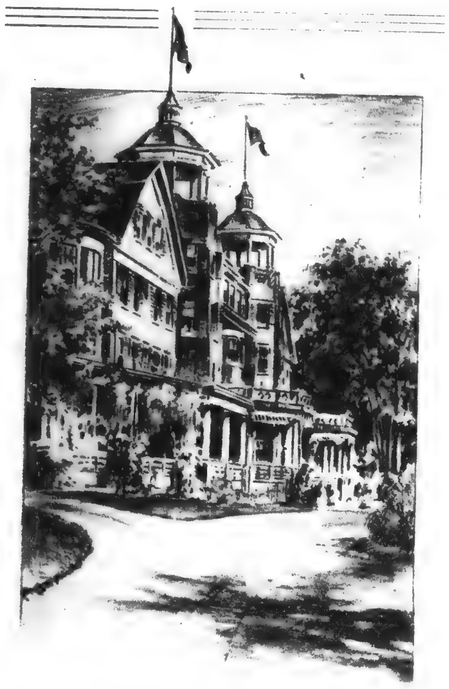
Tea music, dinner concerts and evening recitals by the Trio assure the music lover constant enjoyment, while a complete program of amusements, including Bridge, Keno, Ping-Pong and special entertainment features assures every one varied social activities.

Companionship, whether for golf, bridge, or merely a pleasant chat, is always available.

The Manager of Heaton Hall or Mr. Heaton I. Treadway, Proprietor, would appreciate an opportunity of telling you more about Heaton Hall, Stockbridge, and the Berkshire Hills.

Heaton Hall

STOCKBRIDGE · MASSACHUSETTS



woodbury
WORCESTER
MASS.
U.S.A.

who par- Center spend the Summer there and the festival programs are given for several weeks.

It is estimated that 18,000 persons attended the festival concerts last year. Those who cannot get into the buildings sit in the lawns where the music can be plainly heard.

Many of the outstanding modern composers and conductors who have been associated with the Berkshire Center include such important names as Leonard Bernstein, Aaron Copeland, Darius Milhaud, Charles Ives, Robert Shaw and Henry Cowell among many others.

Mrs. Irving G. Rouillard presided at the business session at which reports were given. Mrs. Thomas F. Luther reported for the membership committee.

Following are the program numbers presented:

Vocal, O Rest in the Lord, from Elijah, by Mendelssohn, Mrs. Leon M. Woodworth; piano, Story of Our Town and The Resting Place on the Hill, by Aaron Copeland, Mrs. Harry Loop; piano, Ritournelle, by

Leonard Bernstein, head of the conducting department at Tanglewood and a guest conductor for many seasons, will not be at Tanglewood next summer, Mr. Mr. Bernstein is and "by his own not be on hand for reported a $7,000 shown at Tanglewood last year, marking the first time in many many years that the Berkshire Festival ended up in the black.

Pierre Monteux will

"If this coming summer goes well," added Mr. Judd, "we should show a better cash net gain."

Festival

Continued on Second Page

Henry Cowell, Mrs. Carl R. Comstock.

Vocal, Requiescat, by David Van Vactor, Mrs. H. Dunham Hunt; piano, For Felicia Montealegre, Feb. 5, 1922, For Johnny Mehegan, June 6, 1920, For David Diamond, July 9, 1915, by Leonard Bernstein, Mrs. James Cudney.

Piano, My Own, The Awakening and Cooking, by Darius Milhaud, Mrs. Paul Hydon; vocal, Evening, words by John Milton, music by Charles Ives, Mrs. Meade; piano, Excerpts from Sonata for Piano (1950), by Robert Starer, Mrs. Meade.

The accompanists were Mrs. Hydon and Mrs. Comstock.

A social hour and refreshments followed the program with Mrs. Rouillard assisting the hostess.

endless school, or rather, student activities.

The new instructor in composition, Ernst Toch, will have his one-act opera, "The Princess and the Pea," given as part of a double bill on July 27.

• • • •

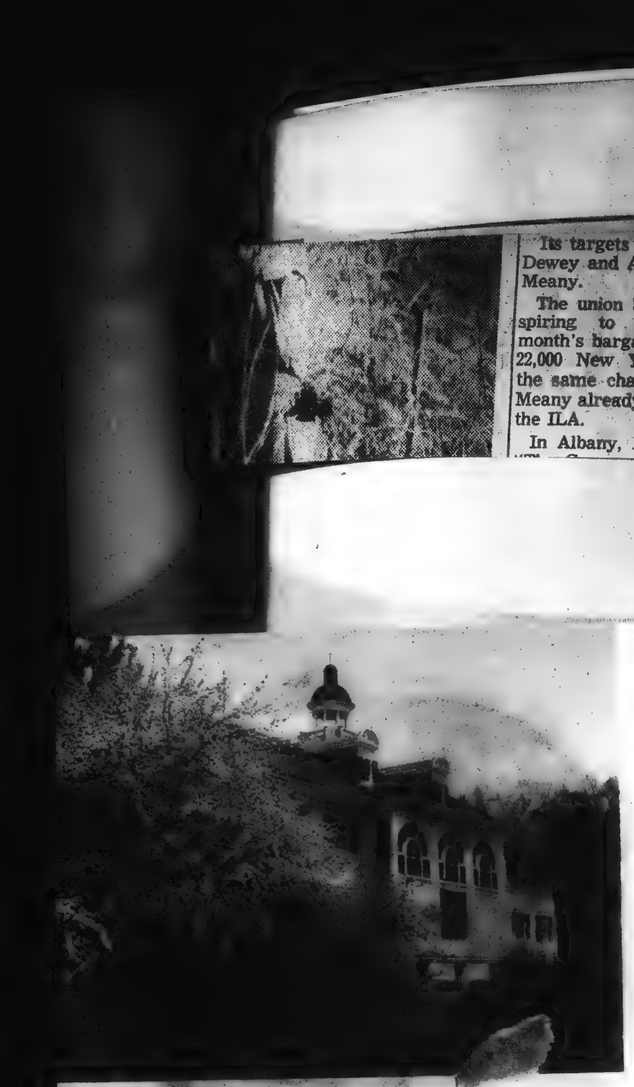
JEAN MOREL, who heads the orchestra at the Juilliard, will direct the orchestra and conducting departments and Frederick Cohen, who is in charge of opera at the Juilliard, will have the same job at Tanglewood.

Leonard Bernstein is on leave of absence, as is Boris Goldovsky, who will return in time to rehearse his "Barber of Seville" to come here with the Celebrity series on October 11.

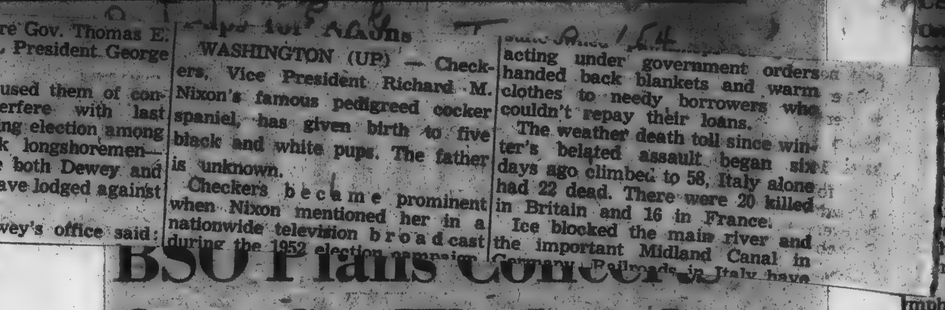
Four of the five departments of the school are intended for professional students, the Study Group being dedicated to those who study for enjoyment only.

H. A. F. P.

[10 2]



BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE — Famous Stage Folk appear on the stage of the Berkshire Playhouse — assuring you of pleasing performances for your summer evenings.



Its targets were Gov. Thomas E. Dewey and AFL President George Meany.

The union accused them of conspiring to interfere with last month's bargaining election among 22,000 New York longshoremen—the same charge both Dewey and Meany already have lodged against the ILA.

In Albany, Dewey's office said:

Tops for Nixons

WASHINGTON (UP) — Checkers, Vice President Richard M. Nixon's famous pedigreed cocker spaniel, has given birth to five black and white pups. The father is unknown.

Checkers became prominent when Nixon mentioned her in a nationwide television broadcast during the 1952 election campaign.

acting under government orders handed back blankets and warm clothes to needy borrowers who couldn't repay their loans.

The weather death toll since winter's belated assault began six days ago climbed to 58, Italy alone had 22 dead. There were 20 killed in Britain and 16 in France.

Ice blocked the main river and the important Midland Canal in

BSO Plans Concerts Over Six Weekends

estival

Continued From First Page

ent in the Berkshire Music will remain about the same the vicinity of 400 students. e of the students in Depart- V (the student orchestra), of the young musicians en- at the Music Center are on rships, Mr. Judd explained. eased costs for faculty mem- housing the students and gen- maintenance of the school it prohibitive for the Boston mphony to increase the enroll- ent at this time, he concluded.

hed To Be Painted

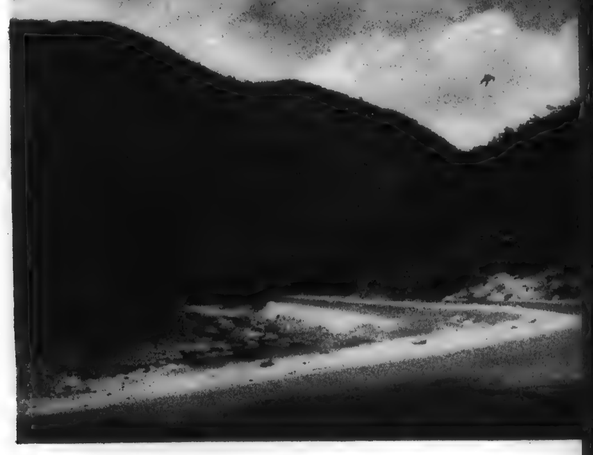
One of the major physical plant

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE — Famous Stage Folk appear on the stage of the Berkshire Playhouse — assuring you of pleasing performances for your summer evenings.

MUSIC SHED AT TANGLEWOOD where the Berkshire Symphonic Festival is held in July and August.

MAIN STREET, STOCKBRIDGE, MASSACHUSETTS

ICE GLEN IN STOCKBRIDGE — Always cool.



MODERN HIGHWAYS lead in all directions, also many safe mountain roads for rural scenes.

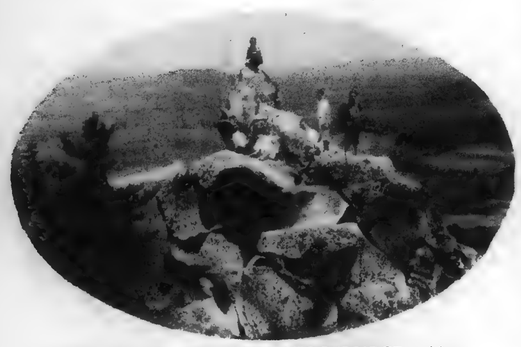
STOCKBRIDGE BOWL for water sports and swimming.

STOCKBRIDGE GOLF COURSE — 6300 yards over excellent turf.

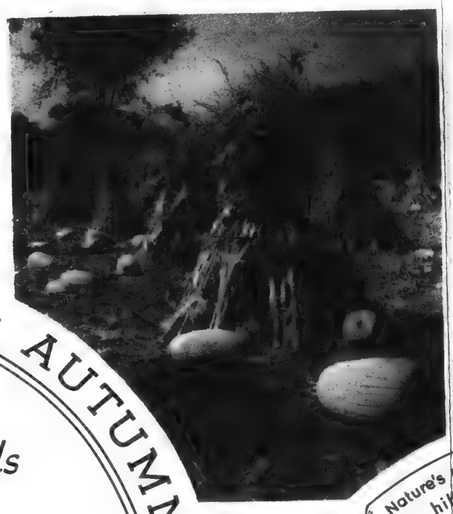
STOCKBRIDGE is a summer headquarters for golfers. Besides the Stockbridge Country Club there are half a dozen other good links within easy motoring distance. The Men's Tournament is the oldest consecutive annual competition in the country. At the Golf Club besides the golf there are three excellent Tenico tennis courts.

View across the meadow opposite Heaton Hall.

MISSION HOUSE MUSEUM — The house of the Reverend John Sargeant, first Missionary to the Stockbridge Indians, built in 1739, open to visitors.



MONUMENT MOUNTAIN, STOCKBRIDGE — Numerous mountain trails for the ambitious climber.



TENNIS IS POPULAR — Guests may play on three excellent courts at the Stockbridge Country Club.

SPRING · SUMMER · AUTUMN

Stockbridge in the Berkshire Hills of Massachusetts

The Berkshire Garden Center, of interest to horticulturists and one of many charming nooks for afternoon tea.

Nature's autumn change of color over hill and field is a delight.

...Expanse of ...and meadows. Elms, ...irches are found in ...d a lake borders one ...area. A house sup- ...around 1865 stands ...and was used as an ...and social center in ...d before the formal ... of Tanglewood. Na- ...thorne lived nearby ...some of his famed ...setting.

...was the locale of the ...n 1934 and one of ...uctors to be identi- ... music event was ...itsky. He figured ... its growth and de- ...til the time of his ... greater part of the ...ston Symphony Or- ...een the group which ... programs and the ...ductor is Charles ...

... shell was erected in ...re are also a theater

...estimated that 18,000 persons attended the festival concerts last year. Those who cannot get into the buildings sit in the lawns where the music can be plainly heard.

Many of the outstanding modern composers and conductors who have been associated with the Berkshire Center include such important names as Leonard Bernstein, Aaron Copeland, Darius Milhaud, Charles Ives, Robert Shaw and Henry Cowell among many others.

Mrs. Irving G. Rouillard presided at the business session at which reports were given. Mrs. Thomas F. Luther reported for the membership committee.

Following are the program numbers presented:

Vocal, O Rest in the Lord, from Elijah, by Mendelssohn, Mrs. Leon M. Woodworth; piano, Story of Our Town and The Resting Place on the Hill, by Aaron Copeland, Mrs. Harry Loop; piano, Ritournelle, by Henry Cowell, Mrs. Carl R. Comstock.

Vocal, Requiescat, by David Van Vactor, Mrs. H. Dunham Hunt; piano, For Felicia Montealegre, Feb. 5, 1922, For Johnny Mehegan, June 6, 1920, For David Diamond, July 9, 1915, by Leonard Bernstein, Mrs. James Cudney.

Piano, My Own, The Awakening and Cooking, by Darius Milhaud, Mrs. Paul Hydon; vocal, Evening, words by John Milton, music by Charles Ives, Mrs. Meade; piano, Excerpts from Sonata for Piano (1950), by Robert Starer, Mrs. Meade.

The accompanists were Mrs. Hydon and Mrs. Comstock.

A social hour and refreshments followed the program with Mrs. Rouillard assisting the hostess.

...wood ... guest conductor for ... many ... will not be at ... ...xt summer, Mr. ... Mr. Bernstein is ... and "by his own ... not be on hand for ... ...on.

... Pierre Monteux will ...

marking the first time in ... many years that the Berkshire ... tival ended up in the black.

"If this coming summer goes well," added Mr. Judd, "we should show a better cash net gain."

Festival
Continued on Second Page

...student activities.

The new instructor in composition, Ernst Toch, will have his one-act opera, "The Princess and the Pea," given as part of a double bill on July 27.

* * *

JEAN MOREL, who heads the orchestra at the Juilliard, will direct the orchestra and conducting departments and Frederick Cohen, who is in charge of opera at the Juilliard, will have the same job at Tanglewood.

Leonard Bernstein is on leave of absence, as is Boris Goldovsky, who will return in time to rehearse his "Barber of Seville" to come here with the Celebrity series on October 11.

Four of the five departments of the school are intended for professional students, the Study Group being dedicated to those who study for enjoyment only.

H. A. F. P.

[102]

TIGHT BINDING

Berkshire Festival Extends 1954 Season

★ ★

Berkshire Eagle Jan. 9 '54

BSO Plans Concerts Over Six Weekends

The 1954 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood will include Music Shed concerts by the full Boston Symphony Orchestra over a period of six weeks instead of the usual three weekends.

Announcement of the new plan, prompted by the record attendance of 118,000 people last summer, was made today following a meeting of the Tanglewood Advisory Committee at the Hotel Sheraton in this city yesterday.

12 Shed Concerts

George E. Judd, manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, explained at yesterday's luncheon meeting here that the new plan to extend the scope of the Festival at Tanglewood was devised by Charles Munch, the BSO conductor. Mr. Munch plans during the course of the 12 Shed concerts next summer to honor the sesquicentennial season of the birth of Hector Berlioz.

According to the Munch plan, the concerts by the full orchestra in the Shed will be given each Saturday evening and Sunday afternoons through the six weeks from July 5 to Aug. 15.

Friday Nights in Theater

Mr. Judd informed the Berkshire advisory group that the concerts by the orchestra of chamber proportions in the Theater-Concert Hall, devoted mostly to the music of Bach and Mozart, will now be given each Friday evening preceding the weekend Shed concerts. Heretofore the Bach-Mozart series, so-called, occupied the first three weeks of the Festival.

Together with the performance by the students of the Berkshire Music Center, this will result in six weeks of daily performances on an identical rotation through each week.

The Munch plan will thus provide 12 Berkshire Festival concerts in the Shed instead of nine as before, and six "Bach-Mozart" concerts in the theater as before, but now on a once-a-week basis.

In addition to the Berkshire Festival performances, a series of chamber music concerts at moderate prices will be given by different ensembles in the theater on the six Wednesday evenings, Mr. Judd announced.

Four Concerts a Week

The 1954 Festival therefore will consist of four concerts a week—Wednesday, Friday, Saturday, Sunday—for six weeks, or 24 concerts in all.

The various departments of the Berkshire Music Center will give further performances, continuing the custom of opera scenes on Tuesdays, orchestral concerts on Thursdays and chamber concerts on Sunday mornings.

Mr. Munch is "extremely enthusiastic" about the school, Mr. Judd declared, "and he is looking forward to directing the Music Center again this summer." The school will open for its 12th season in July.

Bernstein Abroad

Leonard Bernstein, head of the conducting department at Tanglewood and a guest conductor for many seasons, will not be at Tanglewood next summer, Mr. Judd announced. Mr. Bernstein is currently abroad and "by his own election" will not be on hand for the 1954 season.

However, Pierre Monteux will return to be guest conductor at two of the Festival concerts this summer. Another guest conductor and guest soloists will be announced soon.

A high light of the 1954 season will be the performances of choral works by Berlioz, including "The Damnation of Faust," "Romeo and Juliet," and the "Requiem," as well as the song cycle, "Summer Nights" and instrumental works.

Harvard, Radcliffe Chorus Coming

Because the Berkshire Music Center chorus will not be organized for the first performance of Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust," Mr. Judd announced the BSO has engaged the Harvard and Radcliffe chorus to appear at Tanglewood with the Boston Symphnoy to sing the choral work next summer. He expressed the hope that many Berkshire friends of the Harvard and Radcliffe Glee Club members would open their homes to the chorus while they are in the county for the performance.

Prior to coming to Tanglewood the Harvard and Radcliffe chorus will be on an extended tour throughout the country, winding up their trip at the Berkshire Festival.

Mr. Judd informed the Tanglewood Advisory Committee that the BSO couldn't possibly do three choral works in a three week program. With the enlarged season next summer he expressed the feeling that the new feature of the Berlioz portion of the Festival will be popular with music lovers.

Beethoven Festival in '55

In 1955, he revealed, Mr. Munch is considering a Beethoven festival, but definite plans will not be announced until the close of the 1954 summer season.

In addition to the 24 concerts planned during the summer Festival, Tanglewood on Parade will be scheduled as usual in the final week for the benefit of the Berkshire Music Center.

Up until now, the Berkshire Festivals have been planned with two patterns — one, the Bach-Mozart series or small concerts; two, the major performances or big concerts in the Music Shed. Now the season has been planned to follow one pattern, with the programming extended over a full six week season.

Out of Red in '53

Despite record breaking crowds in recent years, the Tanglewood operation has been a "red ink proposition," Mr. Judd told the Berkshire group yesterday, but, he "happily" reported a $4,000 net gain was shown at Tanglewood last year, marking the first time in many, many years that the Berkshire Festival ended up in the black.

"If this coming summer goes well," added Mr. Judd, "we should show a better cash net gain." The

Festival
Continued on Second Page

Festival
Continued From First Page

rollment in the Berkshire Music nter will remain about the same in the vicinity of 400 students. itside of the students in Depart- ent V (the student orchestra), ost of the young musicians en- lled at the Music Center are on holarships, Mr. Judd explained. Increased costs for faculty mem- rs, housing the students and gen- al maintenance of the school ake it prohibitive for the Boston mphony to increase the enroll- ent at this time, he concluded.

hed To Be Painted

One of the major physical plant ojects before the opening of the 4 season at Tanglewood will be repainting of the huge Music d. Careful study is being given the color in order to have it nd with the surroundings, Mr. id said.

The plan of subscription sales the BSO concerts will now be ided by pairs of Saturday even- and Sunday afternoon concerts. bscribers who retain their pres- locations will have the privilege seats at a reduced rate for the ch-Mozart concerts on each evious Friday and for the cham- r series each Wednesday.

The basic plan for the new 1954 rkshire Festival over a six-week riod follows:

Tuesday evening (Theater), era scenes*; Wednesday evening heater), chamber music; Thurs- y evening (Shed), Student Or- estra concert*; Friday evening heater), Bach-Mozart concert; turday evening (Shed), Boston mphony Orchestra concert; Sun- y morning (Chamber Hall), Stu- nt Chamber concert*; Sunday ternoon (Shed), Boston Sym- ony Orchestra concert.

pen by invitation to Friends of e Berkshire Music Center.

THE ORIGINAL
ROMEIKE
PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860

Cir. (D 226,467)

This Clipping From
BALTIMORE, MD.
NEWS-POST
JUN 18 1954

Six-Week Music Fete In Massachusetts

Pages could be written—and have been—concerning the widespread activities of the most inclusive of American music festivals that will occupy the six weeks from July 7 to August 15 at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

Not only several series of concerts for orchestra, chamber music and soloists have been planned, but the Music Centre, also sponsored by the Boston Symphony, will exhibit endless school, or rather, student activities.

The new instructor in composition, Ernst Toch, will have his one-act opera, "The Princess and the Pea," given as part of a double bill on July 27.

* * *

JEAN MOREL, who heads the orchestra at the Juilliard, will direct the orchestra and conducting departments and Frederick Cohen, who is in charge of opera at the Juilliard, will have the same job at Tanglewood.

Leonard Bernstein is on leave of absence, as is Boris Goldovsky, who will return in time to rehearse his "Barber of Seville," to come here with the Celebrity series on October 11.

Four of the five departments of the school are intended for professional students, the Study Group being dedicated to those who study for enjoyment only.

H. A. F. P.

Cir. (D 12,107)

This Clipping From
SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y.
SARATOGIAN

FEB 24 1954

Practice Club Hears Story Of Berkshire Music Festivals

How the Berkshire Music Festivals and later the Berkshire Music Center came into existence were explained by Mrs. Robert Meade in a detailed account before members of Practice Club at the home of Mrs. Newman E. Walt on Wilton Road, yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Meade who had studied and played at Tanglewood, the famed colony near Lenox, Mass., told of the early history of the music center and gave personal recollections of the activities and outstanding musicians who participate in concerts there.

The property consists of some 210 acres with the various buildings located on an expanse of green lawns and meadows. Elms, pines and birches are found in abundance and a lake borders one end of the area. A house supposedly built around 1865 stands in the center and was used as an art, musical and social center in the 1880's and before the formal establishment of Tanglewood. Nathaniel Hawthorne lived nearby and wrote some of his famed works in this setting.

Stockbridge was the locale of the first festival in 1934 and one of the first conductors to be identified with this music event was Serge Koussevitsky. He figured prominently in its growth and development until the time of his death. For the greater part of the time the Boston Symphony Orchestra has been the group which supplied the programs and the present conductor is Charles Munch.

The present shell was erected in 1938 and there are also a theater concert hall with a seating capacity of 1,200 and a chamber music hall for 500 patrons. Diversified programs are presented in each during the festival time.

Musicians who work at the Berkshire Center and also take part in many of the concerts are selected through try-outs and may study conducting, orchestral composition, the theater as connected with opera and the like and the student orchestra and festival chorus. Those who study at the Center spend the Summer there and the festival programs are given for several weeks.

It is estimated that 118,000 persons attended the festival concerts last year. Those who cannot get into the buildings sit in the lawns where the music can be plainly heard.

Many of the outstanding modern composers and conductors who have been associated with the Berkshire Center include such important names as Leonard Bernstein, Aaron Copeland, Darius Milhaud, Charles Ives, Robert Shaw and Henry Cowell among many others.

Mrs. Irving G. Rouillard presided at the business session at which reports were given. Mrs. Thomas F. Luther reported for the membership committee.

Following are the program numbers presented:

Vocal, O Rest in the Lord, from Elijah, by Mendelssohn, Mrs. Leon M. Woodworth; piano, Story of Our Town and The Resting Place on the Hill, by Aaron Copeland, Mrs. Harry Loop; piano, Ritournelle, by Henry Cowell, Mrs. Carl R. Comstock.

Vocal, Requiescat, by David Van Vactor, Mrs. H. Dunham Hunt; piano, For Felicia Montealegre, Feb. 3, 1922, For Johnny Mehegan, June 6, 1920, For David Diamond, July 9, 1915, by Leonard Bernstein, Mrs. James Cudney.

Piano, My Own, The Awakening and Cooking, by Darius Milhaud, Mrs. Paul Hydon; vocal, Evening, words by John Milton, music by Charles Ives, Mrs. Meade; piano, Excerpts from Sonata for Piano (1950), by Robert Starer, Mrs. Meade.

The accompanists were Mrs. Hydon and Mrs. Comstock.

A social hour and refreshments followed the program with Mrs. Rouillard assisting the hostess.

TIGHT BINDING

Tanglewood Lists Complete Programs

By FRANCIS D. PERKINS

Charles Munch will conduct eight of the twelve concerts which the complete Boston Symphony Orchestra will give in the 1954 Berkshire Festival on Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons in Tanglewood's Music Shed at Lenox, Mass. Pierre Monteux will conduct two concerts, and one each will be directed by Richard Burgin, the orchestra's concertmaster, and by Jean Morel, conductor of the Juilliard School's Orchestra, who makes his Tanglewood debut Saturday, July 24. Mr. Munch will also conduct four of the six chamber orchestra concerts, to be held on five Friday evenings and the closing Thursday evening of the festival in the Tanglewood Theater-Concert Hall; Mr. Morel and Lukas Foss will conduct one each. The Shed programs, as announced yesterday, are as follows:

Saturday, July 10, Munch: Berlioz, "Damnation of Faust" (Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society). Sunday, July 11, Monteaux: Beethoven, "Leonore" Overture No. 3; Piano Concerto No. 5 (Claudio Arrau); Symphony No. 5.

Saturday, July 17, Monteux: Franck, Le Chasseur Maudit, Les Eolides, Les Djinns (Vera Franceschi, pianist); Symphony. Sunday, July 18, Munch: Debussy, Iberia; Copland, Piano Concerto (Leo Smit); Berlioz, Fantastic Symphony.

Saturday, July 24, Morel: Weber, "Der Freischuetz" (Overture; Prokofiev, Symphony No. 2; Strauss, Don Juan; Elgar, Enigma Variations. Sunday, July 25, Munch: Berlioz, "Beatrice and Benedict"; Overture; Harold in Italy (William Primrose, violist); Toch, Symphony No. 2.

Saturday, July 31, Munch: Berlioz, "Romeo and Juliet," with Festival Chorus and soloists. Sunday, Aug. 1, Burgin: Prokofiev, "Chout," Dvorak, Violin Concerto (Ruth Posselt); Sibelius, Symphony No. 2.

Saturday, Aug. 7, Munch: Gluck, "Alceste" Overture; Beethoven, Violin Concerto (Zino Francescatti); Brahms, Symphony Noo. 2. Sunday, Aug. 8, Munch: Berlioz, "Benvenuto Cellini" Overture; Hunt and Storm from "The Trojans"; Summer Nights (Eleanor Steber, soprano); Te Deum.

Saturday, Aug. 14, Munch: Wagner, "Lohengrin," Prelude; Piston, Symphony No. 4; Ravel, Piano Concerto (Nicole Henriot); Saint-Saens, Symphony No. 3. Sunday, Aug. 15, Munch: Berlioz, Requiem, with Festival Chorus and four auxiliary orchestras.

• • •

Chamber

Seymour Lipkin as soloist, and excerpts from Mozart's "Idomeneo" with chorus and soloists. Mr. Morel closes the series Thursday, Aug. 12, with verture to "La Scala ozart's Symphony in 319) and Strauss's Le Bourgeois Gentil-

THE ORIGINAL ROMEIKE PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D 149,902) (S 382,056)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
EVENING GLOBE
FEB 20 1954

Berlioz Slated At Carnegie

THE ORIGINAL ROMEIKE PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D 26,991)
This Clipping From
PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE
FEB 27 1954

MUSIC

Munch Conducts Berlioz' "Damnation of Faust"

Sixteenth pair of concerts by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the Friday afternoon-Saturday evening series, at Symphony Hall, Charles Munch conducted "The Damnation of Faust" by Hector Berlioz. The choruses were the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, trained by G. Wallace Woodworth. The soloists: Suzanne Danco, soprano, as Marguerite; David Poleri, tenor, as Faust; Martial Singher, baritone, as Mephistopheles, and Donald Gramm, bass, as Brander. The baritone solo in the epilogue was sung by McHenry Boatwright.

By CYRUS DURGIN

Not the least of Charles Munch's distinctions during his years in Boston has been his devotion to the music of Hector Berlioz. That already has given us the Requiem, the complete "Romeo and Juliet" Symphony, the "Fantastic" Symphony, and "L'Enfance du Christ." Now it brings us, this week, the first local performances in nearly 20 years of "The Damnation of Faust." I think, when the record comes to be examined in times future, this performance of "The Damnation of Faust" will prove to have been one of the great achievements of Mr. Munch's sojourn here.

In the first place it was the whole score—except for the 55-measure introduction, on the bugle calls of the returning soldiers, which opens the third part but makes a jarring effect just before the scene in Marguerite's chamber. This, Mr. Munch was justified in omitting, in the second place it was a performance absolutely gorgeous in terms of orchestral virtuosity, and very superior, indeed, for the singing by chorus and soloists. Just for pure richness of tone, sweet, transparent and unforced, this performance was memorable.

It takes a real Berlioz conductor to re-create this work as the splendid and imposing work it can be; a conductor who understands and sustains the passion that filled most of the music that Berlioz ever wrote, and yet who does not dwell upon spectacular effects for their own sake.

"The Damnation of Faust," analyzed literarily, philosophically or poetically, is no more the "Faust" of Goethe than is Gounod's well-known opera. But like the opera it is a musical expression, peculiarly personal to the composer, of elements of "Faust". So far as each composer chose to go, his "Faust" is a masterpiece. Even, with Berlioz, the fiery, interpolated "Rakoczy" March yesterday won a special round of applause.

Though "The Damnation of Faust" ranges from the martial magnificence of the "Rakoczy" through the brilliant trivialities of the songs in Auerbach's cellar, to the amorous beauties of the lovers' songs, to the three-ring circus of the "Pandemonium" and the pious assurance of the epilogue, it must all be treated seriously and on the same level of worth. That Mr. Munch did, and thereby performed the score with irresistible eloquence.

The soloists were well suited to their parts, although the clean and finely styled singing of Mme. Danco was cucumber-cool for her part. David Poleri, as Faust, sang with ringing tones, real passion and admirable enunciation. Perhaps his style might have been a little more Italian than French, but the total result was glorious. Mr. Singher, unfailingly excellent in whatever he does, was resonant and expressive, and in every note the artist. The short role of Brander was commendably done by Mr. Gramm.

Mr. Woodworth prepared his Harvard and Radcliffe choruses well. As usual with young singers, their tone was light, but their vigor and precision were sufficient to compensate. If they got foul of the beat now and again, they need not feel badly, for Berlioz, when he goes fast, is the devil himself for tricky rhythms.

Mr. Boatwright, a promising young artist, did well the short solo of the epilogue which suffered not at all in being transferred to a single voice from the six basses originally prescribed. There was no boys' chorus for this section and it did not matter. The performance took just 2½ hours, with a single intermission.

THE ORIGINAL ROMEIKE PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D 358,568) (S 440,349)
This Clipping From
CHICAGO, ILL.
SUN
Tribune
FEB 28 1954

Tanglewood's Plans for Its Festival Set

The Berkshire Music festival at Tanglewood—Boston Symphony and all—has shaped its plans for the coming summer, promising an enlarged scheme of concerts. Twenty-four concerts will be given from July 7 thru Aug. 15 at the Massachusetts site, embracing six by various chamber ensembles, six by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony men, and 12 by the full orchestra.

Joining Charles Munch, musical director, will be the guest conductors Pierre Monteux, Jean Morel and Richard Burgin.

A feature of the season will be the commemoration of Hector Berlioz's 150th anniversary, with several of that composer's works to be given in complete form. These include "The Damnation of Faust" [July 10], "Fantastic Symphony" [July 18], "Harold in Italy," with William Primrose as viola soloist [July 25], "Romeo and Juliet" [July 31], a whole Berlioz program of "Summer Nights," "Te Deum," "Cellini" overture and excerpts from "The Trojans" [Aug. 7], and the Requiem [Aug. 15].

Other composers to be represented include Beethoven, Wagner, Brahms, Franck, Strauss, Copland, Toch, Sibelius, Prokofieff, Debussy, Elgar and Saint-Saens.

Other details are available, as are subscriptions, at Berkshire Festival office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass.

Complete Programs Listed For Extended 1954 Festival

BOSTON—The programs for the enlarged Berkshire Festival of July and August, 1954, were announced today by Charles Munch, the music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The increased season has been planned by Mr. Munch to meet the constantly growing popularity of these concerts, which drew a record number to Lenox last summer. Twenty-four concerts are announced for the six weeks from July 7 to Aug. 15, including six concerts by chamber groups on Wednesday evenings, six concerts by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players on Friday evenings, six concerts by the full orchestra in the Shed on Saturday evenings and six Sunday afternoons.

In the course of the Shed concerts, Charles Munch will honor the 150th anniversary season of the birth of Berlioz by conducting this composer's principal works in their complete form. Guest conductors in the Shed concerts will be Pierre Monteux, conducting two concerts; Jean Morel, and Richard Burgin, each conducting one.

Shed Programs

Mr. Munch will open the Shed series on Saturday, July 10, with Berlioz' "Damnation of Faust," with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society. On Sunday afternoon, July 11, Pierre Monteux will present a Beethoven program including the overture to "Leonore" No. 3, the Piano Concerto No. 5 ("Emperor") with Claudio Arrau as soloist, and the Fifth Symphony.

Second Week

(Shed, July 17, 18): Saturday eve. (Pierre Monteux) — Franck program: "Le Chasseur Maudit," "Les Eolides," "Les Djinns" (piano soloist, Vera Franceschi), Symphony in D minor; Sunday afternoon, (Charles Munch)—Debussy, "Iberia"; Copland, Piano Concerto (soloist, Leo Smit); Berlioz, "Fantastic Symphony."

Third Week

(Shed, July 24, 25): Saturday evening, (Jean Morel) — Weber, Overture, "Der Freischutz"; Prokofieff, Sixth Symphony; Strauss, "Don Juan"; Elgar, "Enigma Variations. Sunday afternoon, (Charles Munch)—Berlioz, "Beatrice and Benedict," Overture and "Harold in Italy" (viola soloist, William Primrose); Ernest Toch, Symphony No. 2.

Fourth week (Shed, July 31, Aug. 1): Saturday eve. (Charles Munch) —Berlioz, "Romeo and Juliet" with Festival Chorus and soloists; Sunday afternoon (Richard Burgin)—Prokofieff, "Chout," Dvorak, Violin Concerto (soloist, Ruth Posselt); Sibelius, Symphony No. 2.

Fifth week (Shed, Aug. 7,8): Saturday evening (Charles Munch)—Gluck, "Alceste" Overture; Beethoven, Violin Concerto (soloist, Zino Francescatti); Brahms, Symphony No. 2; Sunday afternoon (Charles Munch)—Berlioz program: "Benvenuto Cellini" Overture, "The Royal Hunt and Storm" from "The Trojans," "Summer Nights" for soprano and orchestra with Eleanor Steber as soloist, and the "Te Deum."

Sixth week (Shed, Aug. 14, 15): Saturday evening (Charles Munch) —Wagner, "Lohengrin" Prelude; Piston Fourth Symphony; Ravel, Piano Concerto (soloist, Nicole Henriot); Saint-Saens, Organ Symphony; Sunday afternoon (Charles Munch)—Berlioz, "Requiem" with Festival Chorus and four auxiliary orchestras.

Back-Mozart Series

On the six Friday evenings preceding each Shed concert, except in the final week when it will be given on Thursday, the concerts will be given in the theater-concert hall by an orchestra of chamber proportions. The first two weeks July 9 and 16) Charles Munch will conduct music of Bach, including in the first the Brandenburg Concertos Nos. 1, 3, 2, 6, 5, and in the second, the Cantata No. 93 and Suites Nos. 1 and 4. On July 23, he will conduct Handel's Concerto Grosso, Op. 6, No. 4, Haydn's "Military" Symphony, No. 100, and Hugh Ross will conduct Haydn's "Nelson" Mass. On July 30 Mr. Munch will conduct Roussel's "The Spider's Feast," the Ibert Flute Concerto with Doriot Anthony as soloist, Mozart's Serenade for 8 Winds in C minor, K. 388, and the same composer's "Paris" Symphony, K. 297. On Aug. 6 Lukas Foss will conduct the complete Stravinsky ballet "Pulcinella," a piano concerto by Mozart with Seymour Lipkin as soloist, and excerpts from Mozart's "Idomeneo" with chorus and soloists. At the final concert on Thursday, Aug. 12, Jean Morel as guest will conduct Rossini's Overture to "The Silk Ladder," Mozart's Symphony in B flat, K. 319, and Strauss' "Der Burger als Edelmann."

Chamber Concerts

The series of concerts in the theater-concert hall on the six Wednesday evenings will be devoted to music of chamber proportions. The first program on July 7 will be shared by Charles

THE ORIGINAL ROMEIKE PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D 186,970) (S 150,268)
This Clipping From
TOLEDO, OHIO
BLADE
FEB 28 1954

Guest Conductors Monteux, Morel, Burgin To Assist Munch

Special to The Blade

BOSTON, Feb. 27—Programs for the enlarged Berkshire Festival of July and August, 1954, have been decided under the supervision of Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The increased season has been planned by Mr. Munch to meet the growing popularity of these concerts, which drew a record number to Lenox in the Berkshire Hills last summer.

Twenty-four concerts are announced for the six weeks from July 7 to Aug. 15, including six by chamber groups Wednesday evenings; six by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players, Friday evenings; six by the full orchestra in the Shed, Saturday evenings; six, Sunday afternoons.

In the course of the Shed concerts, Charles Munch will honor the 150th anniversary season of the birth of Berlioz by conducting this composer's principal works in their complete form. Guest conductors in the Shed concerts will be Pierre Monteux, conducting two concerts; Jean Morel, and Richard Burgin, each conducting one.

★ ★ ★

MR. MUNCH will open the Shed series Saturday, July 10, with Berlioz's "Damnation of Faust," with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society. On Sunday afternoon, July 11, Pierre Monteux will present a Beethoven program, including the "Leonore" overture No. 3; the piano concerto No. 5 ("Emperor") with Claudio Arrau as soloist, and the fifth symphony.

Second week: (Shed, July 17, 18): Saturday evening (Pierre Monteux)—Franck program: "Le Chasseur Maudit," "Les Eolides," "Les Djinns" (piano soloist, Vera Franceschi), Symphony in D minor. Sunday afternoon (Charles Munch)—Debussy, "Iberia"; Copland, Piano concerto (soloist, Leo Smit); Berlioz, "Fantastic Symphony."

Third week: (Shed, July 24, 25): Saturday evening (Jean Morel) — Weber, overture, "Der Freischutz"; Prokofieff, Sixth Symphony; Strauss, "Don Juan"; Elgar, "Enigma" variations. Sunday afternoon (Charles Munch) — Berlioz, "Beatrice and Benedict" overture and "Harold in Italy" (viola soloist, William Primrose); Ernest Toch, Symphony No. 2.

Fourth week: (Shed, July 31, Aug. 1): Saturday evening (Charles Munch) — Berlioz, "Romeo and Juliet" with Festival Chorus and soloists. Sunday afternoon (Richard Burgin)—Prokofieff, "Chout," Dvorak, violin concerto (soloist, Ruth Posselt); Sibelius, Symphony No. 2.

Fifth week: (Shed, Aug. 7, 8): Saturday evening (Charles Munch)—Gluck, "Alceste" Overture; Beethoven, Violin Concerto (soloist, Zino Francescatti); Brahms, Symphony No. 2. Sunday afternoon (Charles Munch)—Berlioz program: "Benvenuto Cellini" Overture, "The Royal Hunt and Storm" from "The Trojans," "Summer Nights" for soprano and orchestra with Eleanor Steber as soloist, and the "Te Deum."

Sixth week (Shed, Aug. 14, 15): Saturday evening (Charles Munch) — Wagner, "Lohengrin" prelude; Piston, fourth symphony; Ravel, piano concerto (solist, Nicole Henriot); Saint-Saens, "organ" symphony. Sunday afternoon (Charles Munch) — Berlioz, "Requiem," with Festival Chorus and four auxiliary orchestras.

Berkshire Festival Lists Program Changes

Changes involving two Saturday evening programs by the Boston Symphony Orchestra during the Berkshire Festival, in the Music Shed, at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., are announced by Charles Munch, Music Director of the Boston Symphony. MILLB'K ROUNDTABLE

Pianist Nicole Henriot will appear with the orchestra as soloist three weeks earlier than scheduled, on Saturday evening, July 24, at the concert to be conducted by Jean Morel, performing the Liszt E flat Piano Concerto, which will replace the Strauss "Don Juan" previously listed.

On the concert of August 14, replacing the Ravel Piano Concerto, Mr. Munch will conduct Ravel's "Le Tombeau de Couperin."

Arthur Fiedler Marks 25th Year With Hub Pops

BOSTON (UP)—The first mus award of the annual Boston Ar Festival will be awarded tonig to Arthur Fiedler, who is observi his silver anniversary as conduct of the Boston Pops Orchestra.

The citation read: "To Arth Fiedler, on the occasion of his 25 year as conductor of the Bost Pops Orchestra — whose enthu asm, musicianship and ceasele search for new talent during the years has immeasurably enrich the musical life not only his own community, but of country."

THE ORIGINAL ROMEIKE PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D 26,991)
This Clipping From
PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE

Munch Heads Berlioz Society

NEW YORK—The Berlioz Society, founded "to advance the knowledge and understanding of Berlioz and his works," has announced the election of Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, as president, Duncan S. Robinson as vice president, and W. E. Gillespie as secretary-treasurer. Sir Thomas Beecham is honorary president and J. G. Prud'homme is honorary vice president.

An executive committee of seven members will select projects and put them into effect. The committee will be guided by the society's advisory board.

Members of the advisory board include Leon Barzin, Olin Downes, Harold Lawrence, Goddard Lieberson, Dimitri Mitropoulos, Pierre Monteux, Eugene Ormandy, Deems Taylor, Thomas K. Scherman, G. Wallace Woodworth, Carleton Sprague Smith.

Berkshire Fest Readies for Its Biggest Season

Lenox, Mass., June 15.

The Berkshire Festival—variously referred to as the summer music mecca of America, its Salzburg or Bayreuth—is readying for its 17th, and what appears as its biggest season at Tanglewood here. Due to the success of last year's season, when 118,000 persons were attracted to break all attendance records, with a $311,600 take, event will be extended. Season will run a full six weeks instead of four, for the first time, with full symphony concerts Saturdays-Sundays and chamber concerts Wednesdays-Fridays.

Festival will tee off July 7 in the Theatre-Concert Hall with Claudio Arrau and Bel Arte Trio in a Beethoven program, with another chamber concert Friday night (9) with a small orch playing the Bach Brandenburg concertos. First Shed concert, July 10, will have Charles Munch leading the Boston Symphony Orchestra in Berlioz's "Damnation of Faust" with soloists, the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society. Pierre Monteux will concert Sunday (11) all-Beethoven symph program.

Honoring the 150th anni season of Hector Berlioz, the fest will offer various works of the French-man during the six-week run, such as "Romeo and Juliet," "Requiem," "Fantastic Symphony," "Te Deum" and "Cellini" and "Harold in Italy." Season soloists will include Eleanor Steber, Nicole Henriot, Zino Francescatti, William Primrose, Vera Franceschi, Ruth Posselt and Leo Smit. Munch will conduct most of the Shed concerts. Richard Burgin, Jean Morel and Pierre Monteux taking one each. Season will end Aug. 15, when the Berlioz "Requiem" will be done with a soloist and chorus in memory of Serge Koussevitky, former conductor of the BSO.

[103]

[104]

TIGHT BINDING

Tanglewood Lists Complete Programs

By FRANCIS D. PERKINS

Charles Munch will conduct eight of the twelve concerts which the complete Boston Symphony Orchestra will give in the 1954 Berkshire Festival on Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons in Tanglewood's Music Shed at Lenox, Mass. Pierre Monteux will conduct two concerts, and one each will be directed by Richard Burgin, the orchestra's concertmaster, and by Jean Morel, conductor of the Juilliard School's Orchestra, who makes his Tanglewood debut Saturday, July 24. Mr. Munch will also conduct four of the six chamber orchestra concerts, to be held on five Friday evenings and the closing Thursday evening of the festival in the Tanglewood Theater-Concert Hall; Mr. Morel and Lukas Foss will conduct one each. The Shed programs, as announced yesterday, are as follows:

Saturday, July 10, Munch: Berlioz, "Damnation of Faust" (Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society). Sunday, July 11, Monteaux: Beethoven, "Leonore" Overture No. 3; Piano Concerto No. 5 (Claudio Arrau); Symphony No. 5.

Saturday, July 17, Monteux: Franck, Le Chasseur Maudit, Les Eolides, Les Djinns (Vera Franceschi, pianist). Sunday, July 18, Munch: Debussy, Iberia; Copland, Piano Concerto (Leo Smit); Berlioz, Fantastic Symphony.

Saturday, July 24, Morel: Weber, "Der Freischuetz" (Overture; Prokofiev, Symphony No. 6; Strauss, Don Juan; Elgar, Enigma Variations. Sunday, July 25, Munch: Berlioz, "Beatrice and Benedict" Overture; Harold in Italy (William Primrose, violist); Toch, Symphony No. 2.

Saturday, July 31, Munch: Berlioz, "Romeo and Juliet," with Festival Chorus and soloists. Sunday, Aug. 1, Burgin: Prokofiev, "Chout," Dvorak, Violin Concerto (Ruth Posselt); Sibelius, Symphony No. 2.

Saturday, Aug. 7, Munch: Gluck, "Alceste" Overture; Beethoven, Violin Concerto (Zino Francescatti); Brahms, Symphony Noo. 2. Sunday, Aug. 8, Munch: Berlioz, "Benvenuto Cellini" Overture; "The Royal Hunt and Storm" from "The Trojans"; Summer Nights (Eleanor Steber, soprano); Te Deum.

Saturday, Aug. 14, Munch: Wagner, "Lohengrin" Prelude; Piston, Symphony No. 4; Ravel, Piano Concerto (Nicole Henriot); Saint-Saens, Symphony No. 3. Sunday, Aug. 15, Munch: Berlioz, Requiem, with Festival Chorus and four auxiliary orchestras.

* * *

Seymour Lipkin as soloist, and excerpts from Mozart's "Idomeneo" with chorus and soloists. Mr. Morel closes the series Thursday, Aug. 12, with verture to "La Scala ozart's Symphony in 319) and Strauss's Le Bourgeois Gentil-

Berlioz Slated At Carnegie

THE ORIGINAL ROMEIKE PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D 149,902) (S 382,056)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
EVENING GLOBE
FEB 20 1954

MUSIC

Munch Conducts Berlioz' "Damnation of Faust"

Sixteenth pair of concerts by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the Friday afternoon-Saturday evening series, at Symphony Hall, Charles Munch conducted "The Damnation of Faust" by Hector Berlioz. The choruses were the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, trained by G. Wallace Woodworth. The soloists: Suzanne Danco, soprano, as Marguerite; David Poleri, tenor, as Faust; Martial Singher, baritone, as Mephistopheles, and Donald Gramm, bass, as Brander. The baritone solo in the epilogue was sung by McHenry Boatwright.

By CYRUS DURGIN

Not the least of Charles Munch's distinctions during his years in Boston has been his devotion to the music of Hector Berlioz. That already has given us the Requiem, the complete "Romeo and Juliet" Symphony, the "Fantastic" Symphony, and "L'Enfance du Christ." Now it brings us, this week, the first local performances in nearly 20 years of "The Damnation of Faust." I think, when the record comes to be examined in times future, this performance of "The Damnation of Faust" will prove to have been one of the great achievements of Mr. Munch's sojourn here.

In the first place it was the whole score—except for the 55-measure introduction, on the bugle calls of the returning soldiers, which opens the third part but makes a jarring effect just before the scene in Marguerite's chamber. This, Mr. Munch was justified in omitting, in the second place it was a performance absolutely gorgeous in terms of orchestral virtuosity, and very superior, indeed, for the singing by chorus and soloists. Just for pure richness of tone, sweet, transparent and unforced, this performance was memorable.

It takes a real Berlioz conductor to re-create this work as the splendid and imposing work it can be: a conductor who understands and sustains the passion that filled most of the music that Berlioz ever wrote, and yet who does not dwell upon spectacular effects for their own sake.

"The Damnation of Faust," analyzed literarily, philosophically or poetically, is no more the "Faust" of Goethe than is Gounod's well-known opera. But like the opera it is a musical expression, peculiarly personal to the composer, of elements of "Faust". So far as each composer chose to go, his "Faust" is a masterpiece. Even, with Berlioz, the fiery, interpolated "Rakoczy" March yesterday won a special round of applause.

Though "The Damnation of Faust" ranges from the martial magnificence of the "Rakoczy" through the brilliant trivialities of the songs in Auerbach's cellar, to the amorous beauties of the lovers' songs, to the three-ring circus of the "Pandemonium" and the pious assurance of the epilogue, it must all be treated seriously and on the same level of worth. That Mr. Munch did, and thereby performed the score with irresistible eloquence.

The soloists were well suited to their parts, although the clean and finely styled singing of Mme. Danco was cucumber-cool for her part. David Poleri, as Faust, sang with ringing tones, real passion and admirable enunciation. Perhaps his style might have been a little more Italian than French, but the total result was glorious. Mr. Singher, unfailingly excellent in whatever he does, was resonant and expressive, and in every note the artist. The short role of Brander was commendably done by Mr. Gramm.

Mr. Woodworth prepared his Harvard and Radcliffe choruses well. As usual with young singers, their tone was light, but their vigor and precision were sufficient to compensate. If they got foul of the beat now and again, they need not feel badly, for Berlioz, when he goes fast, is the devil himself for tricky rhythms.

Mr. Boatwright, a promising young artist, did well the short solo of the epilogue which suffered not at all in being transferred to a single voice from the six basses originally prescribed. There was no boys' chorus for this section and it did not matter. The performance took just 2½ hours, with a single intermission.

THE ORIGINAL ROMEIKE PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D 26,991)
This Clipping From
PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE

Complete Programs Listed For Extended 1954 Festival

BOSTON—The programs for the enlarged Berkshire Festival of July and August, 1954, were announced today by Charles Munch, the music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The increased season has been planned by Mr. Munch to meet the constantly growing popularity of these concerts, which drew a record number to Lenox last summer. Twenty-four concerts are announced for the six weeks from July 7 to Aug. 15, including six concerts by chamber groups on Wednesday evenings, six concerts by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players on Friday evenings, six concerts by the full orchestra in the Shed on Saturday evenings and six Sunday afternoons.

In the course of the Shed concerts, Charles Munch will honor the 150th anniversary season of the birth of Berlioz by conducting this composer's principal works in their complete form. Guest conductors in the Shed concerts will be Pierre Monteux, conducting two concerts; Jean Morel, and Richard Burgin, each conducting one.

Shed Programs

Mr. Munch will open the Shed series on Saturday, July 10, with Berlioz' "Damnation of Faust," with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society. On Sunday afternoon, July 11, Pierre Monteux will present a Beethoven program including the overture to "Leonore" No. 3, the Piano Concerto No. 5 ("Emperor") with Claudio Arrau as soloist, and the Fifth Symphony.

Second Week

(Shed, July 17, 18): Saturday eve. (Pierre Monteux) — Franck program: "Le Chasseur Maudit," "Les Eolides," "Les Djinns" (piano soloist, Vera Franceschi), Symphony in D minor; Sunday afternoon, (Charles Munch)—Debussy, "Iberia"; Copland, Piano Concerto (soloist, Leo Smit); Berlioz, "Fantastic Symphony."

Third Week

(Shed, July 24, 25): Saturday evening, (Jean Morel) — Weber, Overture, "Der Freischutz"; Prokofieff, Sixth Symphony; Strauss, "Don Juan"; Elgar, "Enigma Variations. Sunday afternoon, (Charles Munch)—Berlioz, "Beatrice and Benedict," Overture and "Harold in Italy" (viola soloist, William Primrose); Ernest Toch, Symphony No. 2.

Fourth week (Shed, July 31, Aug. 1): Saturday eve. (Charles Munch) —Berlioz, "Romeo and Juliet" with Festival Chorus and soloists; Sunday afternoon (Richard Burgin)—Prokofieff, "Chout," Dvorak, Violin Concerto (soloist, Ruth Posselt); Sibelius, Symphony No. 2.

Fifth week (Shed, Aug. 7,8): Saturday evening (Charles Munch)—Gluck, "Alceste" Overture; Beethoven, Violin Concerto (soloist, Zino Francescatti); Brahms, Symphony No. 2; Sunday afternoon (Charles Munch)—Berlioz program: "Benvenuto Cellini" Overture, "The Royal Hunt and Storm" from "The Trojans," "Summer Nights" for soprano and orchestra with Eleanor Steber as soloist, and the "Te Deum."

Sixth week (Shed, Aug. 14, 15): Saturday evening (Charles Munch) —Wagner, "Lohengrin" Prelude; Piston Fourth Symphony; Ravel, Piano Concerto (soloist, Nicole Henriot); Saint-Saens, Organ Symphony; Sunday afternoon (Charles Munch)—Berlioz, "Requiem" with Festival Chorus and four auxiliary orchestras.

Back-Mozart Series

On the six Friday evenings preceding each Shed concert, except in the final week when it will be given on Thursday, the concerts will be given in the theater-concert hall by an orchestra of chamber proportions. The first two weeks July 9 and 16) Charles Munch will conduct music of Bach, including in the first the Brandenburg Concertos Nos. 1, 3, 2, 6, 5, and in the second, the Cantata No. 93 and Suites Nos. 1 and 4. On July 23, he will conduct Handel's Concerto Grosso, Op. 6, No. 4, Haydn's "Military" Symphony, No. 100, and Hugh Ross will conduct Haydn's "Nelson" Mass. On July 30 Mr. Munch will conduct Roussel's "The Spider's Feast," the Ibert Flute Concerto with Doriot Anthony as soloist, Mozart's Serenade for 8 Winds in C minor, K. 388, and the same composer's "Paris" Symphony, K. 297. On Aug. 6 Lukas Foss will conduct the complete Stravinsky ballet "Pulcinella," a piano concerto by Mozart with Seymour Lipkin as soloist, and excerpts from Mozart's "Idomeneo" with chorus and soloists. At the final concert on Thursday, Aug. 12, Jean Morel as guest will conduct Rossini's Overture to "The Silk Ladder," Mozart's Symphony in B flat, K. 319, and Strauss' "Der Burger als Edelmann."

Chamber Concerts

The series of concerts in the theater-concert hall on the six Wednesday evenings will be devoted to music of chamber proportions. The first program on July 7 will be shared by Cha[illegible]

THE ORIGINAL ROMEIKE PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D 26,991)
This Clipping From
PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE

Arthur Fiedler Marks 25th Year With Hub Pops

BOSTON (UP)—The first mus[illegible] award of the annual Boston Ar[illegible] Festival will be awarded tonig[illegible] to Arthur Fiedler, who is observi[illegible] his silver anniversary as conduct[illegible] of the Boston Pops Orchestra.

The citation read: "To Arth[illegible] Fiedler, on the occasion of his 25[illegible] year as conductor of the Bost[illegible] Pops Orchestra — whose enthu[illegible] asm, musicianship and ceasele[illegible] search for new talent during the[illegible] years has immeasurably enrich[illegible] the musical life not only [illegible] his own community, but of [illegible] country."

THE ORIGINAL ROMEIKE PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D 26,991)
This Clipping From
PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE

Munch Heads Berlioz Society

NEW YORK: The Berlioz S[illegible] ciety ... to advance the knowledge and understanding of [illegible] ... has announced the election of Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, as president. Dan[illegible] Robinson as vice president and W. L. Gillespie as secretary-treasurer. Sir Thomas Beecham, honorary president and J. G. Prod'homme is honorary vice president.

An executive committee of seven [illegible] will select projects and put them into effect. The committee will be guided by the society's advisory board.

Members of the advisory board include Leon Barzin, Olin Downes, Howard Hanson, Goddard Lieberson, Dimitri Mitropoulos, Pierre Monteux, Eugene Ormandy, Deems Taylor, Thomas K. Spencer, G. Wallace Woodworth, Carleton Sprague Smith.

THE ORIGINAL ROMEIKE PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D 186,970) (S 150,268)
This Clipping From
TOLEDO, OHIO
BLADE
FEB [illegible] 1954

Guest Conductors Monteux, Morel, Burgin To Assist Munch

Special to The Blade

BOSTON, Feb. 27—Programs for the enlarged Berkshire Festival of July and August, 1954, have been decided under the supervision of Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The increased season has been planned by Mr. Munch to meet the growing popularity of these concerts, which drew a record number to Lenox in the Berkshire Hills last summer.

Twenty-four concerts are announced for the six weeks from July 7 to Aug. 15, including six by chamber groups Wednesday evenings; six by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players, Friday evenings; six by the full orchestra in the Shed, Saturday evenings; six, Sunday afternoons.

In the course of the Shed concerts, Charles Munch will honor the 150th anniversary season of the birth of Berlioz by conducting this composer's principal works in their complete form. Guest conductors in the Shed concerts will be Pierre Monteux, conducting two concerts; Jean Morel, and Richard Burgin, each conducting one.

★ ★ ★

MR. MUNCH will open the Shed series Saturday, July 10, with Berlioz's "Damnation of Faust," with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society. On Sunday afternoon, July 11, Pierre Monteux will present a Beethoven program including the "Leonore" overture No. 3; the piano concerto No. 5 ("Emperor") with Claudio Arrau as soloist, and the fifth symphony.

Second week: (Shed, July 17, 18): Saturday evening (Pierre Monteux) — Franck program: "Le Chasseur Maudit," "Les Eolides," "Les Djinns" (piano soloist, Vera Franceschi), Symphony in D minor; Sunday afternoon (Charles Munch)—Debussy, "Iberia"; Copland, Piano Concerto (soloist, Leo Smit); Berlioz, "Fantastic Symphony."

Third week: (Shed, July 24, 25): Saturday evening (Jean Morel) — Weber, Overture, "Der Freischutz"; Prokofieff, Sixth Symphony; Strauss, "Don Juan"; Elgar, "Enigma Variations. Sunday afternoon (Charles Munch)—Berlioz, "Beatrice and Benedict," Overture and "Harold in Italy" (viola soloist, William Primrose); Ernest Toch, Symphony No. 2.

Fourth week: (Shed, July 31, Aug. 1): Saturday eve. (Charles Munch) —Berlioz, "Romeo and Juliet" with Festival Chorus and soloists; Sunday afternoon (Richard Burgin)—Prokofieff, "Chout," Dvorak, Violin Concerto (soloist, Ruth Posselt); Sibelius, Symphony No. 2.

Fifth week (Shed, Aug. 7,8): Saturday evening (Charles Munch)—Gluck, "Alceste" Overture; Beethoven, Violin Concerto (soloist, Zino Francescatti); Brahms, Symphony No. 2; Sunday afternoon (Charles Munch)—Berlioz program: "Benvenuto Cellini" Overture, "The Royal Hunt and Storm" from "The Trojans," "Summer Nights" for soprano and orchestra with Eleanor Steber as soloist, and the "Te Deum."

Sixth week (Shed, Aug. 14, 15): Saturday evening (Charles Munch) —Wagner, "Lohengrin" prelude; Piston, fourth symphony; Ravel, piano concerto (soloist, Nicole Henriot); Saint-Saens, "organ" symphony. Sunday afternoon (Charles Munch)—Berlioz, "Requiem" with Festival Chorus and four auxiliary orchestras.

PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D 186,970) (S 150,268)
This Clipping From
TOLEDO, OHIO
BLADE
FEB [illegible] 1954

Berkshire Festival Lists Program Changes

July 1954

Changes involving two Saturday evening programs by the Boston Symphony Orchestra during the Berkshire Festival, in the Music Shed, at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., are announced by Charles Munch, Music Director of the Boston Symphony. MILLB'K ROUND TABLE

Pianist Nicole Henriot will appear with the orchestra as soloist three weeks earlier than scheduled, on Saturday evening, July 24, at the concert to be conducted by Jean Morel, performing the Liszt E flat Piano Concerto, which will replace the Strauss "Don Juan" previously listed.

On the concert of August 14, replacing the Ravel Piano Concerto, Mr. Munch will conduct Ravel's "Le Tombeau de Couperin."

THE ORIGINAL ROMEIKE PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D 26,991)
This Clipping From
PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE

Berkshire Fest Readies for Its Biggest Season

variety (Hy), 6/16/54

Lenox, Mass., June 15.

The Berkshire Festival—variously referred to as the summer music mecca of America, its Salzburg or Bayreuth—is readying for its 17th, and what appears as its biggest season at Tanglewood here. Due to the success of last year's season, when 118,000 persons were attracted to break all attendance records, with a $311,600 take, event has been extended. Season will open a full six weeks instead of four, for the first time, with full symphony concerts Saturdays-Sundays and chamber concerts Wednesdays-Fridays.

Fest will tee off July 7 in the Theatre-Concert Hall with Claudio Arrau and Bel Arte Trio in a Beethoven program, with another chamber concert Friday night (9) with a small orch playing the Bach Brandenburg concertos. First Music Shed concert, July 10, will have Charles Munch leading the Boston Symphony Orchestra in Berlioz's "Damnation of Faust" with soloists, the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society. Pierre Monteux will concert Sunday (11) all-Beethoven symph program.

Honoring the 150th anni season of Hector Berlioz, the fest will offer various works of the French-[illegible] during the six-week run, such as "Romeo and Juliet," "Requiem," "Fantastic Symphony," "Te Deum" and "Harold in Italy." Season soloists will include Eleanor Steber, Nicole Henriot, Zino Francescatti, William Primrose, Vera Franceschi, Ruth Posselt and Leo Smit. Munch will conduct most of the Shed concerts, with Richard Burgin, Jean Morel and Pierre Monteux taking one each. Season will end Aug. 15, when the Berlioz "Requiem" will be done with a soloist and chorus in memory of Serge Koussevitky, former conductor of the BSO.

THE ORIGINAL ROMEIKE PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D 358,568) (S 448,319)
This Clipping From
CHICAGO, ILL.
SUN-Tribune
FEB 28 1954

Tanglewood's Plans for Its Festival Set

The Berkshire Music festival at Tanglewood—Boston Symphony and all—has shaped its plans for the coming summer, promising an enlarged scheme of concerts. Twenty-four concerts will be given from July 7 thru Aug. 15 at the Massachusetts site, embracing six by various chamber ensembles, six by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony men, and 12 by the full orchestra.

Joining Charles Munch, musical director, will be the guest conductors Pierre Monteux, Jean Morel and Richard Burgin.

A feature of the season will be the commemoration of Hector Berlioz's 150th anniversary, with several of that composer's works to be given in complete form. These include "The Damnation of Faust" [July 10], "Fantastic Symphony" [July 18], "Harold in Italy," with William Primrose as viola soloist [July 25], "Romeo and Juliet" [July 31], a whole Berlioz program of "Summer Nights," "Te Deum," "Cellini" overture and excerpts from "The Trojans" [Aug. 7], and the Requiem [Aug. 15].

Other composers to be represented include Beethoven, Wagner, Brahms, Franck, Strauss, Copland, Toch, Sibelius, Prokofieff, Debussy, Elgar and Saint-Saens.

Other details are available, as are subscriptions, at Berkshire Festival office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass.

[103]

[104]

Eleanor Steber as soloist, and the "Te Deum."

Sixth week (Shed, Aug. 14, 15): Saturday evening (Charles Munch) — Wagner, "Lohengrin" prelude; Piston, fourth symphony; Ravel, piano concerto (soloist, Nicole Henriot); Saint-Saens, "organ" symphony. Sunday afternoon (Charles Munch)—Berlioz, "Requiem" with Festival Chorus and four auxiliary orchestras.

TIGHT BINDING

Tanglewood Lists Complete Programs

By FRANCIS D. PERKINS

Charles Munch will conduct eight of the twelve concerts which the complete Boston Symphony Orchestra will give in the 1954 Berkshire Festival on Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons in Tanglewood's Music Shed at Lenox, Mass. Pierre Monteux will conduct two concerts, and one each will be directed by Richard Burgin, the orchestra's concertmaster, and by Jean Morel, conductor of the Juilliard School's Orchestra, who makes his Tanglewood debut Saturday, July 24. Mr. Munch will also conduct four of the six chamber orchestra concerts, to be held on five Friday evenings and the closing Thursday evening of the festival in the Tanglewood Theater-Concert Hall; Mr. Morel and Lukas Foss will conduct one each. The Shed programs, as announced yesterday, are as follows:

Saturday, July 10, Munch: Berlioz, "Damnation of Faust" (Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society). Sunday, July 11, Monteaux: Beethoven, "Leonore" Overture No. 3; Piano Concerto No. 5 (Claudio Arrau); Symphony No. 5.

Saturday, July 17, Monteux: Franck, Le Chasseur Maudit, Les Eolides, Les Djinns (Vera Franceschi, pianist), Symphony. Sunday, July 18, Munch: Debussy, Iberia; Copland, Piano Concerto (Leo Smit); Berlioz, Fantastic Symphony.

Saturday, July 24, Morel: Weber, "Der Freischuetz," (Overture; Prokofiev, Symphony No. 6; Strauss, Don Juan; Elgar, Enigma Variations. Sunday, July 25, Munch: Berlioz, "Beatrice and Benedict" Overture; Harold in Italy (William Primrose, violist); Toch, Symphony No. 2.

Saturday, July 31, Munch: Berlioz, "Romeo and Juliet," with Festival Chorus and soloists. Sunday, Aug. 1, Burgin: Prokofiev, "Chout," Dvorak, Violin Concerto (Ruth Posselt); Sibelius, Symphony No. 2.

Saturday, Aug. 7, Munch: Gluck, "Alceste" Overture; Beethoven, Violin Concerto (Zino Francescatti); Brahms, Symphony Noo. 2. Sunday, Aug. 8, Munch: Berlioz, Benvenuto Cellini," Overture; Hunt and Storm from "The Trojans"; Summer Nights (Eleanor Steber, soprano); Te Deum.

Saturday, Aug. 14, Munch: Wagner, "Lohengrin" Prelude; Piston, Symphony No. 4; Ravel, Piano Concerto (Nicole Henriot); Saint-Saens, Symphony No. 3. Sunday, Aug. 15, Munch: Berlioz, Requiem, with Festival Chorus and four auxiliary orchestras.

• • •

Tanglewood Chamber Concerts

Mr. Munch will devote the first two chamber orchestra concerts to Bach, offering five Brandenburg Concertos July 9 and the 93d Cantata and Suites Nos. 1 and 4 July 16. On July 23, he will conduct a Handel Concerto Grosso and Haydn's "Military" Symphony (No. 100) and Hugh Ross will conduct Haydn's "Nelson" Mass. Roussel's "The Spider's Feast," Ibert's Flute Concerto, with Doriot Anthony as soloist, and Mozart's Wind Serenade in C minor (K. 388) and "Paris" Symphony (K. 297) are in his program for July 30. Lukas Foss will conduct the program for Aug. 6, including Stravinsky's ballet "Pulcinella," a Mozart piano concerto with Seymour Lipkin as soloist, and excerpts from Mozart's "Idomeneo" with chorus and soloists. Mr. Morel closes the series Thursday, Aug. 12, with Rossini's Overture to "La Scala di Seta," Mozart's Symphony in B flat (K. 319) and Strauss's music for "Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme."

The dates and artists for the Wednesday evening chamber music series in the Theater-Concert Hall are July 7, Claudio Arrau, pianist, and the Bel Arte String Trio; July 14, Albeneri Trio; July 21, Zimbler Sinfonietta; July 28, Griller Quartet; Aug. 4, Boston Woodwind Quintet and a soloist; Aug. 11, Kroll Quartet. Information about tickets and lists of programs may be obtained by writing to the Berkshire Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass.

Berlioz Slated At Carnegie

In honor of the 150th anniversary of Berlioz' birth, the Boston Symphony Orchestra will present his "Romeo and Juliet" Symphony in full under Charles Munch's direction in both of its next Carnegie Hall concerts, Wednesday night, March 10, and Saturday afternoon, March 13.

[illegible] opportunity [illegible]

which opens the third part but makes a jarring effect just before the scene in Marguerite's chamber. This Mr. Munch was justified in omitting, in the second place it was a performance absolutely gorgeous in terms of orchestral virtuosity, and very superior, indeed, for the singing by chorus and soloists. Just for pure richness of tone, sweet, transparent and unforced, this performance was memorable.

It takes a real Berlioz conductor to re-create this work as the splendid and imposing work it can be: a conductor who understands and sustains the passion that filled most of the music that Berlioz ever wrote, and yet who does not dwell upon spectacular effects for their own sake.

"The Damnation of Faust," analyzed literarily, philosophically or poetically, is no more the "Faust" of Goethe than is Gounod's well-known opera. But like the opera it is a musical expression, peculiarly personal to the composer, of elements of "Faust". So far as each composer chose to go, his "Faust" is a masterpiece. Even, with Berlioz, the fiery, interpolated "Rakoczy" March yesterday won a special round of applause.

Though "The Damnation of Faust" ranges from the martial magnificence of the "Rakoczy" through the brilliant trivialities of the songs in Auerbach's cellar, to the amorous beauties of the lovers' songs, to the three-ring circus of the "Pandemonium" and the pious assurance of the epilogue, it must all be treated seriously and on the same level of worth. That Mr. Munch did, and thereby performed the score with irresistible eloquence.

The soloists were well suited to their parts, although the clean and finely styled singing of Mme. Danco was cucumber-cool for her part. David Poleri, as Faust, sang with ringing tones, real passion and admirable enunciation. Perhaps his style might have been a little more Italian than French, but the total result was glorious. Mr. Singher, unfailingly excellent in whatever he does, was resonant and expressive, and in every note the artist. The short role of Brander was commendably done by Mr. Gramm.

Mr. Woodworth prepared his Harvard and Radcliffe choruses well. As usual with young singers, their tone was light, but their vigor and precision were sufficient to compensate. If they got foul of the beat now and again, they need not feel badly, for Berlioz, when he goes fast, is the devil himself for tricky rhythms.

Mr. Boatwright, a promising young artist, did well the short solo of the epilogue which suffered not at all in being transferred to a single voice from the six basses originally prescribed. There was no boys' chorus for this section and it did not matter. The performance took just 2½ hours, with a single intermission.

certs will be given [illegible] 7 thru Aug. 15 at the Massachusetts site, embracing six by various chamber ensembles, six by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony men, and 12 by the full orchestra.

Joining Charles Munch, musical director, will be the guest conductors Pierre Monteux, Jean Morel and Richard Burgin.

A feature of the season will be the commemoration of Hector Berlioz's 150th anniversary, with several of that composer's works to be given in complete form. These include "The Damnation of Faust" [July 10], "Fantastic Symphony" [July 18], "Harold in Italy," with William Primrose as viola soloist [July 25], "Romeo and Juliet" [July 31], a whole Berlioz program of "Summer Nights," "Te Deum," "Cellini" overture and excerpts from "The Trojans" [Aug. 7], and the Requiem [Aug. 15].

Other composers to be represented include Beethoven, Wagner, Brahms, Franck, Strauss, Copland, Toch, Sibelius, Prokofieff, Debussy, Elgar and Saint-Saens.

Other details are available, as are subscriptions, at Berkshire Festival office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass.

Arthur Fiedler Marks 25th Year With Hub Pops

BOSTON (UP)—The first music award of the annual Boston Arts Festival will be awarded tonight to Arthur Fiedler, who is observing his silver anniversary as conductor of the Boston Pops Orchestra.

The citation read: "To Arthur Fiedler, on the occasion of his 25th year as conductor of the Boston Pops Orchestra — whose enthusiasm, musicianship and ceaseless search for new talent during these years has immeasurably enriched the musical life not only of his own community, but of his country."

ıms Listed 54 Festival

ata No. 93 and Suites Nos. 1 l. On July 23, he will conduct el's Concerto Grosso, Op. 6, , Haydn's "Military" Symo. 100, and Hugh Ross will t Haydn's "Nelson" Mass. y 30 Mr. Munch will conduct l's "The Spider's Feast," rt Flute Concerto with Dorhony as soloist, Mozart's e for 8 Winds in C minor, and the same composer's "Paris" Symphony, K. 297. On Aug. 6 Lukas Foss will conduct the complete Stravinsky ballet "Pulcinella," a piano concerto by Mozart with Seymour Lipkin as soloist, and excerpts from Mozart's "Idomeneo" with chorus and soloists. At the final concert on Thursday, Aug. 12, Jean Morel as guest will conduct Rossini's Overture to "The Silk Ladder," Mozart's Symphony in B flat, K. 319, and Strauss' "Der Burger als Edelmann."

[illegible] Aug. 15, in [illegible] six concerts by chamber groups on Wednesday evenings, six concerts by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players on Friday evenings, six concerts by the full orchestra in the Shed on Saturday evenings and six Sunday afternoons.

In the course of the Shed concerts, Charles Munch will honor the 150th anniversary season of the birth of Berlioz by conducting this composer's principal works in their complete form. Guest conductors in the Shed concerts will be Pierre Monteux, conducting two concerts; Jean Morel, and Richard Burgin, each conducting one.

Chamber Concerts

The series of concerts in the theater-concert hall on the six Wednesday evenings will be devoted to music of chamber proportions. The first program on July 7 will be shared by Claudio Arrau, piano, and the Bel Arte String Trio. The second on July 14 will have the Albeneri Trio; the third on July 21 the Zimbler Sinfonietta; the fourth on July 28 the Griller String Quartet; the fifth on Aug. 4 will have the Boston Woodwind Quintet and a soloist to be announced; the sixth on Aug. 11, the Kroll Quartet.

sned Programs

Mr. Munch will open the Shed series on Saturday, July 10, with Berlioz' "Damnation of Faust," with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society. On Sunday afternoon, July 11, Pierre Monteux will present a Beethoven program including the overture to "Leonore" No. 3, the Piano Concerto No. 5 ("Emperor") with Claudio Arrau as soloist, and the Fifth Symphony.

Second Week

(Shed, July 17, 18): Saturday eve. (Pierre Monteux) — Franck program: "Le Chasseur Maudit," "Les Eolides," "Les Djinns" (piano soloist, Vera Franceschi), Symphony in D minor; Sunday afternoon, (Charles Munch)—Debussy, "Iberia"; Copland, Piano Concerto (soloist, Leo Smit); Berlioz, "Fantastic Symphony."

Third Week

(Shed, July 24, 25): Saturday evening, (Jean Morel) — Weber, Overture, "Der Freischutz"; Prokofieff, Sixth Symphony; Strauss, "Don Juan"; Elgar, "Enigma Variations. Sunday afternoon, (Charles Munch)—Berlioz, "Beatrice and Benedict," Overture and "Harold in Italy" (viola soloist, William Primrose); Ernest Toch, Symphony No. 2.

Fourth week (Shed, July 31, Aug. 1): Saturday eve. (Charles Munch) —Berlioz, "Romeo and Juliet" with Festival Chorus and soloists; Sunday afternoon (Richard Burgin)—Prokofieff, "Chout," Dvorak, Violin Concerto (soloist, Ruth Posselt); Sibelius, Symphony No. 2.

Fifth week (Shed, Aug. 7,8): Saturday evening (Charles Munch)—Gluck, "Alceste" Overture; Beethoven, Violin Concerto (soloist, Zino Francescatti); Brahms, Symphony No. 2; Sunday afternoon (Charles Munch)—Berlioz program: "Benvenuto Cellini" Overture, "The Royal Hunt and Storm" from "The Trojans," "Summer Nights" for soprano and orchestra with Eleanor Steber as soloist, and the "Te Deum."

Sixth week (Shed, Aug. 14, 15): Saturday evening (Charles Munch) —Wagner, "Lohengrin" Prelude; Piston Fourth Symphony; Ravel, Piano Concerto (soloist, Nicole Henriot); Saint-Saens, Organ Symphony; Sunday afternoon (Charles Munch)—Berlioz, "Requiem" with Festival Chorus and four auxiliary orchestras.

Back Mozart Series

On the six Friday evenings preceding each Shed concert, except in the final week when it will be given on Thursday, the concerts will be given in the theater-concert hall by an orchestra of chamber proportions. The first two weeks July 9 and 16) Charles Munch will conduct music of Bach, including in the first the Brandenburg Concertos Nos. 1, 3, 2, 6, 5, and in the second, the

Berkshire Festival Lists Program Changes

Changes involving two Saturday evening programs by the Boston Symphony Orchestra during the Berkshire Festival, in the Music Shed, at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., are announced by Charles Munch, Music Director of the Boston Symphony.

Pianist Nicole Henriot will appear with the orchestra as soloist three weeks earlier than scheduled, on Saturday evening, July 24, at the concert to be conducted by Jean Morel, performing the Liszt E flat Piano Concerto, which will replace the Strauss "Don Juan" previously listed.

On the concert of Aug. 14, replacing the Ravel Piano Concerto, Mr. Munch will conduct Ravel's "Le Tombeau de Couperin."

Monteux, Assist Munch

THE ORIGINAL ROMEIKE

the enlarged Be[rkshire] t. 1954, have be[en] les Munch, m[usic] ony Orchestra. The [pro]gram planned by Mr. Munch to [in]clude Arrau as soloist, and [the] fifth symphony.

Second week: (Shed, July 17, 18): Saturday evening (Pierre Monteux)—Franck program: "Le Chasseur Maudit," "Les Eolides," "Les Djinns" (piano soloist, Vera Franceschi), Symphony in D minor; Sunday afternoon, (Charles Munch)—Debussy, "Iberia"; Copland, Piano Concerto (soloist, Leo Smit); Berlioz, "Fantastic Symphony."

Third week: (Shed, July 24, 25): Saturday evening, (Jean Morel) — Weber, Overture, "Der Freischutz"; Prokofieff, Sixth Symphony; Strauss, "Don Juan"; Elgar, "Enigma Variations. Sunday afternoon, (Charles Munch)—Berlioz, "Beatrice and Benedict," Overture and "Harold in Italy" (viola soloist, William Primrose); Ernest Toch, Symphony No. 2.

Fourth week: (Shed, July 31, Aug. 1): Saturday evening (Charles Munch) —Berlioz, "Romeo and Juliet" with Festival Chorus and soloists; Sunday afternoon (Richard Burgin)—Prokofieff, "Chout," Dvorak, Violin Concerto (soloist, Ruth Posselt); Sibelius, Symphony No. 2.

Fifth week (Shed, Aug. 7,8): Saturday evening (Charles Munch)—Gluck, "Alceste" Overture; Beethoven, Violin Concerto (soloist, Zino Francescatti); Brahms, Symphony No. 2; Sunday afternoon (Charles Munch)—Berlioz program: "Benvenuto Cellini" Overture, "The Royal Hunt and Storm" from "The Trojans," "Summer Nights" for soprano and orchestra with Eleanor Steber as soloist, and the "Te Deum."

Sixth week (Shed, Aug. 14, 15): Saturday evening (Charles Munch) — Wagner, "Lohengrin" Prelude; Piston, Fourth Symphony; Ravel, Piano Concerto (soloist, Nicole Henriot); Saint-Saens, Organ Symphony; Sunday afternoon (Charles Munch)—Berlioz, "Requiem" with Festival Chorus and four auxiliary

[103]

[104]

The Berk[shire]
July 7 t[o]

BER[KSHIRE]

iire F[estival]
adies fo[r]

iggest Season

Lenox, Mass., June 15.
erkshire Festival—vari-erred to as the summer cca of America, its Salz-ayreuth—is readying for and what appears as its ason at Tanglewood here. he success of last year's 118,000 persons were at-o break all attendance ith a $311,600 take, event extended. Season will ll six weeks instead of the first time, with full concerts Saturdays-Sun-d chamber concerts ys-Fridays.

ll tee off July 7 in the oncert Hall with Claudio Bel Arte Trio in a Bee-program, with another concert Friday night (9) all orch playing the Bach urg concerts. First ed concert, July 10, will arles Munch leading the Symphony Orchestra in "Damnation of Faust" ists, the Harvard Glee Radcliffe Choral Society. onteux will concert Sun-all-Beethoven symph prog the 150th anni season Berlioz, the fest will of-s works of the French-ng the six-week run, such and Juliet," "Requiem," Symphony," "Te Deum" n Italy." Season soloists de Eleanor Steber, Nicole Zino Francescatti, William Vera Franceschi, Ruth d Leo Smit. Munch will ost of the Shed concerts. ard Burgin, Jean Morel eux taking one each. Sea-end Aug. 15, when the "Requiem" will be done soloist and chorus in of Serge Koussevitky, uctor of the BSO.

TIGHT BINDING

The Berkshire Festival 1954 - BOSTON SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

July 7 to August 15 - TANGLEWOOD - LENOX - MASSACHUSETTS

THE MUSIC SHED AND LAWN AT TANGLEWOOD

Full Programs together with Ticket Information may be obtained upon request direct to the

BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL OFFICE
SYMPHONY HALL
Boston 15, Massachusetts

TWENTY-FOUR CONCERTS

The programs for the enlarged Berkshire Festival of July and August, 1954, have been decided under the supervision of Charles Munch, the Music Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The increased season has been planned by Mr. Munch to meet the constantly growing popularity of these concerts, which drew a record number to Lenox in the Berkshire Hills last summer. Twenty-four concerts are announced for the six weeks from July 7 to August 15, including six concerts by chamber groups on Wednesday evenings, six concerts by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players on Friday evenings, six concerts by the full Orchestra in the Shed on Saturday evenings and six Sunday afternoons.

In the course of the Shed concerts, Charles Munch will honor the 150th anniversary season of the birth of Berlioz by conducting this composer's principal works in their complete form. Guest conductors in the Shed concerts will be Pierre Monteux, conducting two concerts; Jean Morel, and Richard Burgin, each conducting one.

BERKSHIRE TRIANGLE (BERKSHIRE LIFE INSURANCE CO) JUNE 1954

Litchfield's Music Patrons Prepare For Tanglewood

Litchfield Enquirer, 1954

Many of Litchfield's music lovers who attend regularly the Boston Symphony Orchestra's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood have already sent in the renewals of their subscriptions to the forthcoming season But there is still time for those who wish to get reserved seats, and there is ample room on the spacous grounds at Tanglewood for those who like to get their tickets at the gate and sit on the lawn for the concerts.

First performance this year will be a chamber music concert to be given in the Theatre-Concert Hall on Wednesday evening, July 8. Featured will be Bel Arte Trio, with Claudia Arrau at the piano in a Beethovan program.

On Friday, July 9, at 8:30 P.M. the Chamber Orchestra, with Charles Munch conducting, will play Bach's Brandenburg Concertos Nos. 1, 2, 3, 5, and 6, with Lukc Foss as piano soloist. This will be in the Theatre-Concert Hall.

"The Damnation of Faust" by Berlioz will be given in the Music Shed on Saturday July 10, at 8:30 P.M. with the Harvard Glee Club, the Radcliffe Choral Society and soloists, with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Munch conducting.

The big event of the first week will be in the Music Shed on Sunday afternoon July 11, at 2:30, when Pierre Monteux will conduct the Boston Symphony in an all-Beethoven concert: Overture to "Leonore," No. 3 Symphony No. 5 and the Emperor Concerto with Claudio Arrau as piano soloist.

Berkshire Fest Readies for Its Biggest Season

Variety (11) 6/16/54

Lenox, Mass., June 15.

The Berkshire Festival—variously referred to as the summer music mecca of America, its Salzburg or Bayreuth—is readying for its 17th, and what appears as its biggest season at Tanglewood here. Due to the success of last year's fest, when 118,000 persons were attracted to break all attendance records, with a $311,600 take, event has been extended. Season will run a full six weeks instead of three, for the first time, with full symphony concerts Saturdays-Sundays and chamber concerts Wednesdays-Fridays.

Fest will tee off July 7 in the Theatre-Concert Hall with Claudio Arrau and Bel Arte Trio in a Beethoven program, with another chamber concert Friday night (9) with a small orch playing the Bach Brandenburg concertos. First Music Shed concert, July 10, will have Charles Munch leading the Boston Symphony Orchestra in Berlioz's "Damnation of Faust" with soloists, the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society. Pierre Monteux will concert Sunday's (11) all-Beethoven symph program.

Honoring the 150th anni season of Hector Berlioz, the fest will offer various works of the Frenchman, during the six-week run, such as "Romeo and Juliet," "Requiem," "Fantastic Symphony," "Te Deum" "Harold in Italy." Season soloists will include Eleanor Steber, Nicole Henriot, Zino Francescatti, William Primrose, Vera Franceschi, Ruth Posselt and Leo Smit. Munch will conduct most of the Shed concerts, with Richard Burgin, Jean Morel and Monteux taking one each. Season will end Aug. 15, when the Berlioz "Requiem" will be done with a soloist and chorus in memory of Serge Koussevitky, late conductor of the BSO.

TANGLEWOOD—Lenox, Mass.
OPENING WEEK—July 7-9-10-11
Berkshire Festival
BY THE
BOSTON SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA
CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director
JULY 7 to AUG. 15
WED. EVE. CHAMBER CONCERTS—$2, $3
FRI. EVE. THEATRE CONCERTS—$4, $5
Sat. Eve. and Sun. Aft. Shed Concerts $2.50, $3, $3.50, $4, $5.50, $6.50 (Box Seats)
Address TICKET OFFICE, TANGLEWOOD, LENOX, MASS. Phone Lenox 600

Her. Trib. 6/20/54

Program Changes Announced For BSO Tanglewood Season

B. Eagle, 6/17/54

TANGLEWOOD — Two changes have been made in the Berkshire Festival programs to be presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in its six-week season, July 7 to Aug. 15, at Tanglewood.

Instead of an all-Cesar Franck program on Saturday evening, July 17, in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Guest Conductor Pierre Monteux will substitute two orchestral selections by Claude Debussy Excerpts from "St. Sebastian" and the tone poem "La Mer" will replace the previously programmed "Le Chausseur Maudit" and "Les Eolides" by Franck.

Mr. Munch's program of Saturday evening, Aug. 14, in the Shed will offer Brahms' "Tragic Overture" in place of Wagner's "A Faust Overture."

The Festival's closing program, Sunday afternoon, Aug. 15, in the Music Shed, has been designated as a memorial to Serge Koussevitzky, conductor of the Boston Symphony for 25 years, under whose direction the Berkshire Festival grew to its present world renown and under whom its summer school of music, the Berkshire Music Center, was founded. For this program Charles Munch will present Hector Berlioz' massive "Requiem," with the Festival Chorus, composed of students of the Berkshire Music Center, and soloists.

The Berkshire Festival also announces the summer of 1954 will witness six Saturday morning rehearsals of the full 104-man Boston Symphony Orchestra, at 10 on July 10, 17, 24, 31, Aug. 7 and 14, to which the public is admitted at the cost of $1 each, proceeds to the benefit of the orchestra's pension fund.

Sale of Festival tickets is proceeding at the Festival ticket office, The office of the Society of Friends of the music school is also open.

STARRING
Jennifer Montgomery
JONES · CLIFT
Astor
B'way & 45th St.
CHILDREN 50¢
when accompanied by an adult

Flourishing as Festival Locale

N.Y. Her-Trib. 6/20/54

New England Ranks High in Music

By Jay S. Harrison

In 1620 when the old world Pilgrims landed on Plymouth Rock they sang hymns out of joy. And New England has been making music ever since.

Throughout its history — during its bright days of hope and dark hours of despair — music has been a central New England activity. In no other region of America, in fact, has the muse been courted with more industry or greater success.

To the world at large, however, thoughts concerning music in our Eastern seaboard states are confined to the Boston Symphony, brought to its present eminence by the late Serge Koussevitzky and now under the masterful control of Charles Munch. And while there is no denying the kingly position held by what is often called this nation's leading symphonic group, the orchestral splendors of New England are by no means limited to the BSO alone.

Many Community Orchestras

In Massachusetts there are thirty-seven community orchestras, in addition to ten which function in colleges and universities. Connecticut boasts fifteen community ensembles, Maine six, New Hampshire four, Rhode Island three and Vermont one. Sundry school groups bring the grand total to eighty-four, a staggering number of orchestras for any single area to possess.

What is even more remarkable than the sum of these orchestras is their quality. By any standard, at least fifty of the semi-professional units rank high for the polish of their technique and the brilliance of their sonority.

But even more significant than the giant strides taken by its orchestral growth is New England's development as a flourishing festival locale. Name the state—there's a festival in it. As far as eye can see, tents, sheds, impromptu buildings are put up when the summer months march by, for the purpose of offering tourist and native an opportunity of sampling the wares of musical talents, domestic and imported. Again, Massachusetts is in the lead, since it is the seat of Tanglewood—located in Lenox—which is far and away the most important festival presented on these shores.

Admittedly, though, Tanglewood is much more than the pleasure-giving estate it appears to be. Flanked by the sprawling Berkshire hills, it is a great breeding ground for musical study, and hundreds of youngsters from here and abroad yearly travel to Lenox to work with the renowned composers and musicians of the Boston Symphony that comprise Tanglewood's formidable faculty.

This year the Berkshire Festival begins, with a chamber concert, on Wednesday evening, July 7, and concludes with a performance of Hector Berlioz' Requiem on Sunday afternoon, Aug. 15. Spanning the two dates are orchestral concerts each Friday and Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon. Opera presentations are also promised, and recitals as well.

A complete list of details may be had by writing the festival office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass.

Tanglewood, the largest jewel in New England's festival crown, is surrounded by other events only a little less bright. A survey of last summer's events, soon to be duplicated in June, July, August and early September, would necessarily include, in Massachusetts, a series of concerts given in Pittsfield, Duxbury and Ipswich: in Connecticut, at Falls Village and Scott's Cove; in Vermont, at Marlboro, Stowe, Manchester and Middlebury; in Maine, at North Bridgton, and in New Hampshire, at Mt. Sunapee. To call the list impressive is to understate the issue.

New England's Music Schools

In addition to the famed music schools of Harvard and Yale, New England possesses numberless conservatoires dedicated exclusively to training old and young alike in the mysterious ways of performance, theory and composition. Indeed, Boston's New England Conservatory of Music and Hartford's Hartt School of Music are equal in their reputation to any similar conservatory that is operating on either side of the Atlantic.

And there's a sound reason for the need of educational proficiency. The mantle of a grand tradition has fallen on to the shoulders of today's young musicians—and New England looks out for its own. It was, after all, the northeastern part of the United States that gave to America such leading figures on the early twentieth-century musical scene as Charles Ives, Henry Hadley, Arthur Shepherd, Daniel Gregory Mason, Arthur Foote, Horatio Parker, Frederick S. Converse, George Whitefield Chadwick and Arthur Foote.

Hendl Conquers Dallas

N.Y. Her. Trib. 6/20/54

Music World Applauds The Rise of a No. 2 Man

By JAMES LYONS

In music, as in politics, empty old titles have taken on new meaning lately. Whoever happens to be our "Veep" for instance, will be a VIP as long as he is in office henceforth because the job finally has been infused with real responsibility. Now comes a gifted young man who has single-handedly effected a similar revolution on the musical scene—or, at least has opened a door long closed by tradition.

He is Walter Hendl, who has proved that an "Assistant Conductor" can parlay his obsequious post into fame, fortune, and, most important of all, an orchestra of his own. What follows is about this erstwhile No. 2 man of the New York Philharmonic, who so bravely traded his sure thing for a dubious No. 1-ship in Dallas five years ago and doesn't regret it.

Hendl was in town the other day to sift the new music for his next season's repertory, and we sat down over lunch for a spot check on his progress, if any, since Texas lured him from 57th St.

Item: His Dallas Symphony is perhaps the only major orchestra in the nation that is not in financial hot water.

Item: This solvent state notwithstanding, Dallas has challenged even its heavyweight Eastern competition with the incidence of contemporary music on its programs and the hearty approval of its customers.

Item: Though he declines any credit for the trend, musical tastes in Dallas since his accession have metamorphosed to the extent that "pop" concerts just don't draw. Nor, believe it or not, does Liberace.

Busy Summer

As if all this were not enough, Hendl now is busying himself with further revolutionary plans for, of all places, conservative Chautauqua. This summer will be his second as musical director of that hallowed ground, and he proposes to accent mostly modern American music on all eight of its broadcast concerts.

For obvious reasons Hendl will not be going abroad this year, but it is not that he lacked invitations. In recent festival seasons he has conducted in such distant capitals as Manila, Vienna and Buenos Aires. Wherever he has gone the gospel of today's composer has been heard to advantage.

You will not guess from a perusal of this record that Hendl never discovered music until he was sixteen, never conducted for a living until less than a decade ago, and was grubbing along as an accompanist at $50 a concert when he joined the Philharmonic by a happy fluke.

Untypical Career

Hendl's career has not been typical, plain to see. Even the Chamber of Commerce in his native West New York, N. J. (which makes him a "New Yorker" of sorts), would not insist that it is notably a fountainhead of culture. Nor is burlesque-centered Union City, where he attended the public schools. But his first exposure to the tonal art, luckily, was in the able hands of Clarence Adler, who knew a musical aptitude when he saw one. So quickly did the boy penetrate the mysteries of the keyboard that, at eighteen, he won a state-wide contest sponsored by the Griffith Foundation and found himself a scholarship student at the Curtis Institute. There the belated prodigy had more good luck in teachers, David Saperton and Fritz Reiner among them.

Ambidextrousness came early to him. At the same time that he was found one day a week in an advanced conducting class (along with Lukas Foss, Max Goberman and Leonard Bernstein) he was lecturing four days a week at Sarah Lawrence, where Juilliard president William Schuman then headed the music faculty. The summers of 1941 and 1942 he spent at Tanglewood under the late Serge Koussevitzky, in the interim picking up a little podium experience with the New Jersey N. Y. A. Orchestra.

Air Force Service

From the autumn of 1942 through Christmas of 1944 Hendl was in the Air Force, performing the usual duties and a few things like organizing, and conducting [illegible] that boasted the [illegible] of "The Jive Bomber" aration; following ness, posed the problem of making a living in music or getting out of it. He resolved the issue temporarily by composing his official Opus 1—the Broadway musical "Dark of the Moon." By the summer of 1945 he was again unemployed, but fortunately a letter to Richard Burgin of the Boston Symphony (himself an assistant conductor) brought an offer to tour with Mrs. Burgin, otherwise known to concert audiences as the violinist Ruth Posselt.

Somehow on the road—he seems to recall that it was in Kansas City—Hendl read that Ignace Strasfogel had resigned his assistant conductorship of the Philharmonic. On the theory that he had nothing to lose, he got off a letter to the incumbent conductor, Arthur Rodzinski. A week or so later, when Miss Posselt played in Town Hall, the New York press was especially nice to her accompanist. Whether or not Rodzinski saw the notices, the unknown Hendl was summoned to the Steinway Building that very day, interviewed, and hired.

Seizes Break

No sooner had his first season begun when, for one reason or another, Oscar Levant had to default on an announced appearance two weeks away. Rodzinski asked Hendl if he knew the Gershwin Concerto. The apprentice crossed his fingers and said he was sure he could handle it. Whereupon he went out and bought a score, never having played the solo part in his life, and learned it so well that the critics, innocent of the drama, showered him with raves.

As far as the Philharmonic was concerned, Hendl's remaining with the organization went without saying; so much so that he learned about his 1948-'49 reappointment simply by checking a promotional leaflet. By the end of that third consecutive guest-led season, however, having served as the stand-by for more senior conductors than any other junior in the orchestra's annals, Hendl was beginning to think in terms of a nice new house for his wife and baby—hence wide open spaces.

When the oil and sagebrush beckoned via a call from John Rosenfeld, the Dallas critic who had been inducted as the protocol intermediary, Hendl was not in the slightest coy about his availability. The Philharmonic management, for their part, did not stand in his way. Maybe they took the long view that he would come back some day, the better for his toughening in the provinces. But not as No. 2, presumably.

THE OR
ROM
PRESS C
220 W. 19th St., N
Tel. CHe
Cir. (D

This Clip
PITTSFIEL
BERKSHIR
APR 9

Munch H
Berlioz S

NEW YORK—
ciety, founded knowledge and Berlioz and his nounced the ele
Munch, conducto
Symphony Orches
Duncan S. Robin
dent, and W. E.
tary-treasurer. S am is honorary p Prud'homme is h
dent.

An executive c members will se
put them into eff tee will be guide advisory board.

Members of th
include Leon Ba
Harold Lawrence, Goddard Lieber son, Dimitri Mitropoulos, Pierre Monteux, Eugene Ormandy, Deems
Taylor, Thomas K. Scherman, G
Wallace Woodworth, Carleto Sprague Smith.

from 12 Noon
— DINNERS fr
ive Wine Cell
commodations —
Plains, N. Y.

irst car to "shift

rs Monteux,
To Assist Munch

for the enlarged Berk-d August, 1954, have been n of Charles Munch, music phony Orchestra. The innad by Mr. Munch to meet lio Arrau as soloist, and the fifth symphony.

Second week: (Shed, July 17,
18): Saturday evening (Pierre Monteux)—Franck program:
"Le Chasseur Maudit," "Les Eolides," "Les Djinns" (piano
soloist, Vera Franceschi); Symphony in D minor. Sunday afternoon (Charles Munch)— Debussy, "Iberia"; Copland, piano concerto (soloist, Leo Smit); Berlioz, "Fantastic Symphony."

Third week: (Shed, July 24,
25): Saturday evening (Jean Morel)—Weber, overture, "Der Freischutz"; Prokofieff, Sixth Symphony; Strauss, "Don Juan"; Elgar, "Enigma" Variations. Sunday afternoon
(Charles Munch) — Berlioz,
"Beatrice and Benedict" overture and "Harold in Italy"
(viola soloist, William Primrose); Ernst Toch, Symphony
No. 2.

Fourth week: (Shed, July 31, Aug. 1): Saturday evening
(Charles Munch) — Berlioz,
"Romeo and Juliet" with Festival Chorus and soloists. Sunday afternoon (Richard Burgin) — Prokofieff, "Cho Dvorak, violin concerto (
Ruth

2 HITS!
VALI
FROM WARNER BROS. PRODU
THE NEW SENSATION YOU'RE MARILYN MONROE · CLAUDE DAUPHIN · P
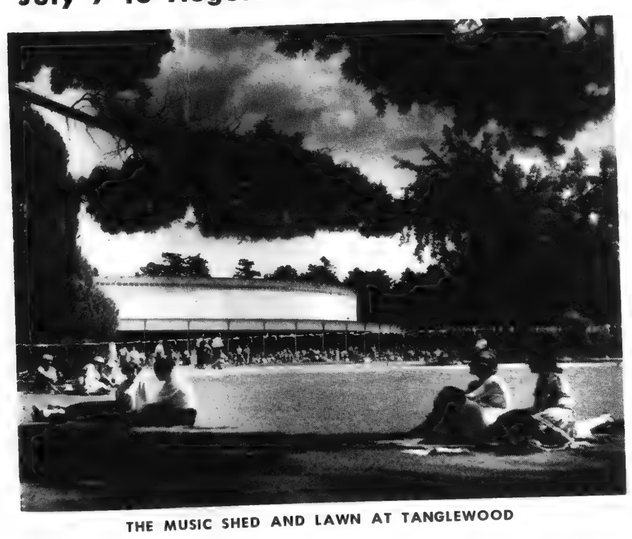
PHANTOM OF THE RUE MO

The Berkshire Festival 1954 - BOSTON SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

July 7 to August 15 - TANGLEWOOD - LENOX - MASSACHUSETTS



THE MUSIC SHED AND LAWN AT TANGLEWOOD

Full Programs together with Ticket Information may be obtained upon request direct to the

BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL OFFICE
SYMPHONY HALL
Boston 15, Massachusetts

TWENTY-FOUR CONCERTS

The programs for the enlarged Berkshire Festival of July and August, 1954, have been decided under the supervision of Charles Munch, the Music Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The increased season has been planned by Mr. Munch to meet the constantly growing popularity of these concerts, which drew a record number to Lenox in the Berkshire Hills last summer. Twenty-four concerts are announced for the six weeks from July 7 to August 15, including six concerts by chamber groups on Wednesday evenings, six concerts by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players on Friday evenings, six concerts by the full Orchestra in the Shed on Saturday evenings and six Sunday afternoons.

In the course of the Shed concerts, Charles Munch will honor the 150th anniversary season of the birth of Berlioz by conducting this composer's principal works in their complete form. Guest conductors in the Shed concerts will be Pierre Monteux, conducting two concerts; Jean Morel, and Richard Burgin, each conducting one.

BERKSHIRE TRIANGLE (BERKSHIRE LIFE INSURANCE CO) JUNE 1954

STARRING
Jennifer Montgomery
JONES · CLIFT
CHILDREN 50¢ when accompanied by an adult
Astor
B'way & 45th St.

Berkshire Fest Readies for Its Biggest Season

Lenox, Mass., June 15.

The Berkshire Festival—variously referred to as the summer music mecca of America, its Salzburg or Bayreuth—is readying for its 17th, and what appears as its biggest season at Tanglewood here. Due to the success of last year's fest, when 118,000 persons were attracted to break all attendance records, with a $311,600 take, event has been extended. Season will run a full six weeks instead of three, for the first time, with full symphony concerts Saturdays-Sundays and chamber concerts Wednesdays-Fridays.

Fest will tee off July 7 in the Theatre-Concert Hall with Claudio Arrau and Bel Arte Trio in a Beethoven program, with another chamber concert Friday night (9) with a small orch playing the Bach Brandenburg concertos. First Music Shed concert, July 10, will have Charles Munch leading the Boston Symphony Orchestra in Berlioz's "Damnation of Faust" with soloists, the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society. Pierre Monteux will concert Sunday's (11) all-Beethoven symph program.

Honoring the 150th anni season of Hector Berlioz, the fest will offer various works of the Frenchman, during the six-week run, such as "Romeo and Juliet," "Requiem," "Fantastic Symphony," "Te Deum" "Harold in Italy." Season soloists will include Eleanor Steber, Nicole Henriot, Zino Francescatti, William Primrose, Vera Franceschi, Ruth Posselt and Leo Smit. Munch will conduct most of the Shed concerts, with Richard Burgin, Jean Morel and Monteux taking one each. Season will end Aug. 15, when the Berlioz "Requiem" will be done with a soloist and chorus in memory of Serge Koussevitky, late conductor of the BSO.

B. Eagle, 6/17/54

Program Changes Announced For BSO Tanglewood Season

TANGLEWOOD — Two changes have been made in the Berkshire Festival programs to be presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in its six-week season, July 7 to Aug. 15, at Tanglewood.

Instead of an all-Cesar Franck program on Saturday evening, July 17, in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Guest Conductor Pierre Monteux will substitute two orchestral selections by Claude Debussy Excerpts from "St. Sebastian" and the tone poem "La Mer" will replace the previously programmed "Le Chausseur Maudit" and "Les Eolides" by Franck.

Mr. Munch's program of Saturday evening, Aug. 14, in the Shed will offer Brahms' "Tragic Overture" in place of Wagner's "A Faust Overture."

The Festival's closing program, Sunday afternoon, Aug. 15, in the Music Shed, has been designated as a memorial to Serge Koussevitzky, conductor of the Boston Symphony for 25 years, under whose direction the Berkshire Festival grew to its present world renown and under whom its summer school of music, the Berkshire Music Center, was founded. For this program Charles Munch will present Hector Berlioz' massive "Requiem," with the Festival Chorus, composed of students of the Berkshire Music Center, and soloists.

The Berkshire Festival also announces the summer of 1954 will witness six Saturday morning rehearsals of the full 104-man Boston Symphony Orchestra, at 10 on July 10, 17, 24, 31, Aug. 7 and 14, to which the public is admitted at the cost of $1 each, proceeds for the benefit of the orchestra's pension fund.

Sale of Festival tickets is proceeding at the Festival ticket office. The office of the Society of Friends of the music school is also open.

OPENING WEEK—July 7-9-10-11
Berkshire Festival
BY THE
BOSTON SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA
CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director
JULY 7 to AUG. 15
WED. EVE. CHAMBER CONCERTS—$2, $3
FRI. EVE. THEATRE CONCERTS—$4, $5
Sat. Eve. and Sun. Aft. Shed Concerts $2.50, $3, $3.50, $4, $5.50, $6.50 (Box Seats)
Address TICKET OFFICE, TANGLEWOOD, LENOX, MASS. Phone Lenox 600

Flourishing as Festival Locale

H.Y. Her-Trib., 6/20/54

New England Ranks High in Music

By Jay S. Harrison

In 1620 when the old world Pilgrims landed on Plymouth Rock they sang hymns out of joy. And New England has been making music ever since.

Throughout its history — during its bright days of hope and dark hours of despair — music has been a central New England activity. In no other region of America, in fact, has the muse been courted with more industry or greater success.

To the world at large, however, thoughts concerning music in our Eastern seaboard states are confined to the Boston Symphony, brought to its present eminence by the late Serge Koussevitzky and now under the masterful control of Charles Munch. And while there is no denying the kingly position held by what is often called this nation's leading symphonic group, the orchestral splendors of New England are by no means limited to the BSO alone.

Many Community Orchestras

In Massachusetts there are thirty-seven community orchestras, in addition to ten which function in colleges and universities. Connecticut boasts fifteen community ensembles, Maine six, New Hampshire four, Rhode Island three and Vermont one. Sundry school groups bring the grand total to eighty-four, a staggering number of orchestras for any single area to possess.

What is even more remarkable than the sum of these orchestras is their quality. By any standard, at least fifty of the semi-professional units rank high for the polish of their technique and the brilliance of their sonority.

But even more significant than the giant strides taken by its orchestral growth is New England's development as a flourishing festival locale. Name the state—there's a festival in it. As far as eye can see, tents, sheds, impromptu buildings are put up when the summer months march by, for the purpose of offering tourist and native an opportunity of sampling the wares of musical talents, domestic and imported. Again, Massachusetts is in the lead, since it is the seat of Tanglewood—located in Lenox—which is far and away the most important festival presented on these shores.

Admittedly, though, Tanglewood is much more than the pleasure-giving estate it appears to be. Flanked by the sprawling Berkshire hills, it is a great breeding ground for musical study, and hundreds of youngsters from here and abroad yearly travel to Lenox to work with the renowned composers and musicians of the Boston Symphony that comprise Tanglewood's formidable faculty.

This year the Berkshire Festival begins, with a chamber concert, on Wednesday evening, July 7, and concludes with a performance of Hector Berlioz' Requiem on Sunday afternoon, Aug. 15. Spanning the two dates are orchestral concerts each Friday and Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon. Opera presentations are also promised, and recitals as well.

A complete list of details may be had by writing the festival office. Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass.

Tanglewood, the largest jewel in New England's festival crown, is surrounded by other events only a little less bright. A survey of last summer's events, soon to be duplicated in June, July, August and early September, would necessarily include, in Massachusetts, a series of concerts given in Pittsfield, Duxbury and Ipswich; in Connecticut, at Falls Village and Scott's Cove; in Vermont, at Marlboro, Stowe, Manchester and Middlebury; in Maine, at North Bridgton, and in New Hampshire, at Mt. Sunapee. To call the list impressive is to understate the issue.

New England's Music Schools

In addition to the famed music schools of Harvard and Yale, New England possesses numberless conservatoires dedicated exclusively to training old and young alike in the mysterious ways of performance, theory and composition. Indeed, Boston's New England Conservatory of Music and Hartford's Hartt School of Music are equal in their reputation to any similar conservatory that is operating on either side of the Atlantic.

And there's a sound reason for the need of educational proficiency. The mantle of a grand tradition has fallen onto the shoulders of today's young musicians—and New England looks out for its own. It was, after all, the northeastern part of the United States that gave to America such leading figures on the early twentieth-century musical scene as Charles Ives, Henry Hadley, John Knowles Paine, Frederick Shepherd Converse, George Whitefield Chadwick and Arthur Foote.

TIGHT BINDING

Litchfield's Music Patrons Prepare For Tanglewood

Litchfield Enquirer, 1954

Many of Litchfield's music lovers who attend regularly the Boston Symphony Orchestra's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood have already sent in the renewals of their subscriptions to the forthcoming season But there is still time for those who wish to get reserved seats, and there is ample room on the spacous grounds at Tanglewood for those who like to get their tickets at the gate and sit on the lawn for the concerts.

First performance this year will be a chamber music concert to be given in the Theatre-Concert Hall on Wednesday evening, July 6. Featured will be Bel Arte Trio, with Claudia Arrau at the piano in a Beethovan program.

On Friday, July 9, at 8:30 P.M. the Chamber Orchestra, with Charles Munch conducting, will play Bach's Brandenburg Concertos Nos. 1, 2, 3, 5, and 6, with Luke Foss as piano soloist. This will be in the Theatre-Concert Hall.

"The Damnation of Faust" by Berlioz will be given in the Music Shed on Saturday July 10, at 8:30 P.M. with the Harvard Glee Club, the Radcliffe Choral Society and soloists, with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Munch conducting.

The big event of the first week will be in the Music Shed on Sunday afternoon July 11, at 2:30, when Pierre Monteux will conduct the Boston Symphony in an all-Beethoven concert: Overture to "Leonore," No. 3, Symphony No. 5 and the Emperor Concerto with Claudio Arrau as piano soloist.

Hendl Conquers Dallas

N.Y. Her. Trib. 6/20/54

Music World Applauds The Rise of a No. 2 Man

By JAMES LYONS

In music, as in politics, empty old titles have taken on new meaning lately. Whoever happens to be our "Veep" for instance, will be a VIP as long as he is in office henceforth because the job finally has been infused with real responsibility. Now comes a gifted young man who has single-handedly effected a similar revolution on the musical scene—or at least has opened a door long closed by tradition.

He is Walter Hendl, who has proved that an "Assistant Conductor" can parlay his obsequious post into fame, fortune, and, most important of all, an orchestra of his own. What follows is about this erstwhile No. 2 man of the New York Philharmonic, who so bravely traded his sure thing for a dubious No. 1-ship in Dallas five years ago and doesn't regret it.

Hendl was in town the other day to sift the new music for his next season's repertory, and we sat down over lunch for a spot check on his progress, if any, since Texas lured him from 57th St.

Item: His Dallas Symphony is perhaps the only major orchestra in the nation that is not in financial hot water.

Item: This solvent state notwithstanding, Dallas has challenged even its heavyweight Eastern competition with the incidence of contemporary music on its programs and the hearty approval of its customers.

Item: Though he declines any credit for the trend, musical tastes in Dallas since his accession have metamorphosed to the extent that "pop" concerts just don't draw. Nor, believe it or not, does Liberace.

Busy Summer

As if all this were not enough, Hendl now is busying himself with further revolutionary plans for, of all places, conservative Chautauqua. This summer will be his second as musical director of that hallowed ground, and he proposes to accent mostly modern American music on all eight of its broadcast concerts.

For obvious reasons Hendl will not be going abroad this year, but it is not that he lacked invitations. In recent festival seasons he has conducted in such distant capitals as Manila, Vienna and Buenos Aires. Wherever he has gone the gospel of today's composer has been heard to advantage

You will not guess from a perusal of this record that Hendl never discovered music until he was sixteen, never conducted for a living until less than a decade ago, and was grubbing along as an accompanist at $50 a concert when he joined the Philharmonic by a happy fluke.

Untypical Career

Hendl's career has not been typical, plain to see. Even the Chamber of Commerce in his native West New York, N. J. (which makes him a "New Yorker" of sorts), would not insist that it is notably a fountainhead of culture. Nor is burlesque-centered Union City, where he attended the public schools. But his first exposure to the tonal art, luckily, was in the able hands of Clarence Adler, who knew a musical aptitude when he saw one. So quickly did the boy penetrate the mysteries of the keyboard that, at eighteen, he won a state-wide contest sponsored by the Griffith Foundation and found himself a scholarship student at the Curtis Institute. There the belated prodigy had more good luck in teachers, David Saperton and Fritz Reiner among them.

Ambidextrousness came early to him. At the same time that he was found one day a week in an advanced conducting class (along with Lukas Foss, Max Goberman and Leonard Bernstein) he was lecturing four days a week at Sarah Lawrence, where Juilliard president William Schuman then headed the music faculty. The summers of 1941 and 1942 he spent at Tanglewood under the late Serge Koussevitzky, in the interim picking up a little podium experience with the New Jersey N. Y. A. Orchestra.

Air Force Service

From the autumn of 1942 through Christmas of 1944 Hendl was in the Air Force, performing the usual unpleasant duties and a few that were not—like organizing, arranging for and conducting a dance band that boasted the unlikely name of "The Jive Bombers." His separation, following [illegible] ness, posed the problem of making a living in music or getting out of it. He resolved the issue temporarily by composing his official Opus 1—the Broadway musical "Dark of the Moon." By the summer of 1945 he was again unemployed, but fortunately a letter to Richard Burgin of the Boston Symphony (himself an assistant conductor) brought an offer to tour with Mrs. Burgin, otherwise known to concert audiences as the violinist Ruth Posselt.

Somehow on the road—he seems to recall that it was in Kansas City—Hendl read that Ignace Strasfogel had resigned his assistant conductorship of the Philharmonic. On the theory that he had nothing to lose, he got off a letter to the incumbent conductor, Arthur Rodzinski. A week or so later, when Miss Posselt played in Town Hall, the New York press was especially nice to her accompanist. Whether or not Rodzinski saw the notices, the unknown Hendl was summoned to the Steinway Building that very day, interviewed, and hired.

Seizes Break

No sooner had his first season begun when, for one reason or another, Oscar Levant had to default on an announced appearance two weeks away. Rodzinski asked Hendl if he knew the Gershwin Concerto. The apprentice crossed his fingers and said he was sure he could handle it. Whereupon he went out and bought a score, never having played the solo part in his life, and learned it so well that the critics, innocent of the drama, showered him with raves.

As far as the Philharmonic was concerned, Hendl's remaining with the organization went without saying; so much so that he learned about his 1948-'49 reappointment simply by checking a promotional leaflet. By the end of that third consecutive guest-led season, however, having served as the stand-by for more senior conductors than any other junior in the orchestra's annals, Hendl was beginning to think in terms of a nice new house for his wife and baby—hence wide open spaces.

When the oil and sagebrush beckoned via a call from John Rosenfield, the Dallas critic who had been inducted as the protocol intermediary, Hendl was not in the slightest coy about his availability. The Philharmonic management, for their part, did not stand in his way. Maybe they took the long view that he would come back some day, the better for his toughening in the provinces. But not as No. 2, presumably.

Will Be Arriving at Tanglewood Soon

Springfield Republican, 6/30/54

Left to right: Guest conductor Pierre Monteux; flute soloist, Doriot Anthony; and the conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, under whose direction the orchestra and the Berkshire Music Festival drew record breaking crowds to Lenox last summer.

Ross Edman, Hotchkiss Graduate To Enter Harvard

B. Eagle, 6/23/54

Ross Edman, son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Edman of Pittsfield and Rome, Italy, graduated from Hotchkiss School, Lakeville, Conn., at recent commencement exercises.

Mr. Edman expects to enter Harvard University in September after working for the summer at Tanglewood. He is staying with Mrs. Sheridan R. Cate of 49 Kenilworth St. until next week, when he will move to Wheatleigh, the student dormitory at Lenox.

At Hotchkiss, Mr. Edman was on the third honor roll and won the choir-glee club prize. His father is deputy public affairs officer in Rome, Italy.

B. Eagle, 6/23/54

Mrs. Sheridan R. Cate of 49 Kenilworth St. has as her guests Miss Charlotte von Bomhard of Munich, Germany, a young actress of the famous Kammerspiele, the city theater of Munich; Nicholas Rizopeulos of Athens, Greece, and Ross Edman, son of George W. Edman, deputy public affairs officer in Rome, Italy, and Mrs. Edman. Mr. Rizopeulos and Mr. Edman, both of whom graduated this month from the Hotchkiss School, will work at Tanglewood this summer. Mr. Rizopoulos will enter Yale next fall.

BSO Official Tells Festival Plans To Harvard Club

B. Eagle, 6/24/54

Thomas D. Perry Jr., assistant manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, discussed plans for the forthcoming Tanglewood season last night at a dinner meeting of the Harvard Club of Berkshire County in the Yellow Aster.

Dr. Daniel B. Dorman presided, and about 35 members attended. Mr. Perry reminded them that the Harvard-Radcliffe Glee Club will be at Tanglewood for the June 10 concert, when Berlioz' "Damnation of Faust" will be presented.

In the Berkshires

Mt. Eagle, 6/27/54

The number of subscribers for this summer's Berkshire Festival concerts by the Boston Symphony in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., on Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons, beginning July 10 and 11, has exceeded the 1953 figure. Remaining tickets for all festival concerts are on sale at the Tanglewood box office (telephone, Lenox 600). Pierre Monteux has substituted Debussy's "La Mer" and music from his "Le Martyre de Saint Sebastian" on July 17, and Charles Munch will conduct Brahms' "Tragic" Overture instead of Wagner's "A Faust Overture" on Aug. 14. As before, the orchestra will hold public rehearsals on the six festival Saturday mornings for the benefit of its pension fund; the admission charge is one dollar. . . . The Berkshire Quartet opens its Sunday afternoon series at Music Mountain, Falls Village, Conn., on July 4; the season runs until Labor Day, with programs featuring works of Mozart, Brahms and Beethoven.

69 Pianos Arrive at Tanglewood

B Eagle, 6/25/54

Largest Shipment Ever Negotiated For Concert Use

TANGLEWOOD—The largest shipment of concert pianos ever negotiated, an annual event heralding the Berkshire Festival, has been completed with the arrival at Tanglewood, this week of 69 instruments, used for the Festival concerts and rehearsals, and for lessons and practice by students of the Berkshire Music Center, the six-week summer school of music maintained by the Boston Orchestra in connection with the Festival.

One Electric Organ

The shipment of all new instruments from the Baldwin Piano Co., in Cincinnati, Ohio, includes 14 grand pianos on which this summer such soloists as Claudio Arrau, Lukas Foss, Vera Franceschi, Leo Smit, Nicole Henriot and Seymour Lipkin will perform. There are also 55 upright pianos and an electric organ.

The move was accomplished in two huge orange and black trailer trucks of M. Newton Moving & Storage, Cincinnati agent for Allied Van Lines, a large mover of household goods. For 15 years Newton has been trucking the pianos from the factory to the Berkshire Festival, a 2½ day trip, in eight hour stages, from Cincinnati to Lenox; and 16 hours to load and unload. The Allied movers, with Raymond Schmidt acting as "nurse," exercise almost superhuman care in handling the delicate instruments, for the slightest damage to a piano's sounding board or lyre would mean its loss for concert use.

Each piano is carefully wrapped, the grands in seven pads each, the uprights in three pads each 72 inches by 84 inches, or nearly one-third of an acre of padding in all.

John Ortiz, of New York City, the Baldwin Piano Co's artists' manager, was on hand to supervise the unloading and installations, with the assistance of Harvey Genereux, the Boston Symphony's stage manager, and his assistant Rodman Henry of Pittsfield.

Two Changes Announced In Tanglewood Programs

Two Debussy Compositions to Be Played July 17; Brahms 'Tragic' Overture Listed Aug. 14; Closing Concert Memorial to Serge Koussevitzky

Boston, June 19—Two changes in the Berkshire Festival programs to be presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in its six-week season, July 7 to Aug. 15, at Tanglewood, Lenox, are announced by Charles Munch, music director.

Instead of an all-Cesar Franck program on Saturday evening, July 17, in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, guest conductor Pierre Monteux will substitute two orchestral selections by Claude Debussy. Excerpts from "St. Sebastian" and the tone poem "La Mer" will replace the previously programed "Le Chausseur Maudit" and "Les Eolides" by Franck.

Koussevitzky Memorial

Mr. Munch's program of Saturday evening, Aug. 14 in the Shed will offer Brahms' "Tragic Overture" in place of Wagner's "A Faust Overture."

The festival's closing program, Sunday afternoon, Aug. 15 in the Music Shed, has been designated as a memorial to Serge Koussevitzky, conductor of the Boston Symphony for 25 years, and under whose direction the Berkshire Festival grew to its present world renown and its summer school of music, the Berkshire Music Center, was founded. For this program Mr. Munch will present Hector Berlioz' massive "Requiem," with the Festival Chorus (composed of students of the Berkshire Music Center) and soloists.

The Berkshire Festival also announces the summer season will witness six Saturday morning rehearsals of the full 104-man Boston Symphony Orchestra, at 10 a. m. on July 10, 17, 24, 31, August 7 and 14, to which the public is admitted at the cost of $1 each, proceeds for the benefit of the Orchestra's Pension Fund.

Sale of festival tickets is now proceeding at the Festival ticket office at Tanglewood, telephone Lenox 600. Reservations may be made by telephone or by mail order, checks accompanied by self-addressed stamped envelope made payable to Boston Symphony Orchestra, Inc.

For complete festival programs, for a complete list of the summer's student concerts to which the public are admitted if they make a nominal contribution to the Society of Friends of the music school, and for price information, write the Berkshire Festival, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

Syracuse Her.-Journal, 6/25/54 SYRACUSE HE

Richard Burgin, left, concertmaster of the Boston Symphony, is among guest conductors in the Berkshire Music Festival in "Tanglewood," Lenox, Mass., this summer. Ruth Posselt, right, violinist, in private life Mrs. Burgin, will be among noted soloists during the 1954 season.

DETROIT, MICH. FREE PRESS FEB 28 1954

24 CONCERTS SCHEDULED

Munch Tells Plans for Famed Festival

BOSTON—Programs for the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., have been decided under the supervision of Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Twenty-four concerts will be presented in the six weeks July 7-Aug. 15. Included will be a series by the full orchestra in the Shed on Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons.

* * *

MUNCH WILL open the Shed Series July 10 with Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust," with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society. The matinee of July 11 will have Pierre Monteux as conductor in Beethoven's "Leonore" overture No. 3; "Emperor" Concerto with Claudio Arrau at the piano, and Fifth Symphony.

The program for July 17 will have Monteux conducting a Franck program consisting of "Le Chasseur Maudit"; "Les Eolides"; "Les Djinns" with Vera Franceschi as pianist, and the D-minor Symphony.

The July 18 matinee under Munch will comprise Debussy's "Iberia"; Copland's Piano Concerto with Leo Smit as soloist, and the Fantastic Symphony of Berlioz.

On July 24 the orchestra will be directed by Jean Morel in Weber's overture to "Der Freischutz"; Prokofieff's Sixth Symphony; "Don Juan" by Strauss and Elgar's "Enigma" Variations.

The Sunday matinee of July 25 consists the "Beatrice and Benedict" overture and "Harold in Italy" by Berlioz, with William Primrose as viola soloist, and Ernst Toch's Second Symphony.

THE FOURTH week, July 31 and Aug. 1, will have its Saturday night concert under Munch' direction, presenting Berlioz "Romeo and Juliet" with Festival Chorus and soloists.

The Sunday matinee under Richard Burgin will consist of Prokofieff's ballet music "Chout"; the Dvorak Violin Concerto with Ruth Posselt and the Sibelius Second Symphony.

Munch will conduct the Aug. 7 concert, consisting of the overture to "Alceste" by Gluck; the Beethoven Violin Concerto with Zino Francescatti and the Brahms Second Symphony.

The Sunday matinee will be Berlioz, with Munch conducting the "Benvenuto Cellini" overture; the Royal Hunt and [illegible] from "The Trojans"; "[illegible] Nights" with Eleanor Steber soloist and the "Te Deum."

* * *

THE SIXTH and final week Shed Concerts will have Munch on Aug. 14.

He will conduct the "Leonore" Prelude; Piston's Fifth Symphony and the Ravel Piano Concerto with Nicole Henriot. On Sunday afternoon Munch will conduct the Berlioz Requiem with Festival Chorus and four auxiliary orchestras.

The prevalence of Berlioz music in the programming is in honor of the 150th anniversary of the composer's birth.

Plouffe

HELPING UNPACK part of the shipment of 69 pianos sent to Tanglewood yesterday by the Baldwin Piano Co., are John Vohr of Newhampton, N.H., Marcel Roux of Lenox, Ray Schmidt, a trucker, and Marvin Rose of Lee.

Will Be Arriving at Tanglewood Soon

Springfield Republican, 6/20/54

Left to right: Guest conductor Pierre Monteux; flute soloist, Doriot Anthony; and the conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, under whose direction the orchestra and the Berkshire Music Festival drew record breaking crowds to Lenox last summer.

Ross Edman, Hotchkiss Graduate To Enter Harvard

B. Eagle, 6/23/54

Ross Edman, son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Edman of Pittsfield and Rome, Italy, graduated from Hotchkiss School, Lakeville, Conn., at recent commencement exercises.

Mr. Edman expects to enter Harvard University in September after working for the summer at Tanglewood. He is staying with Mrs. Sheridan R. Cate of 49 Kenilworth St. until next week, when he will move to Wheatleigh, the student dormitory at Lenox.

At Hotchkiss, Mr. Edman was on the third honor roll and won the choir-glee club prize. His father is deputy public affairs officer in Rome, Italy.

B. Eagle, 6/23/54

Mrs. Sheridan R. Cate of 49 Kenilworth St. has as her guests Miss Charlotte von Bomhard of Munich, Germany, a young actress of the famous Kammerspiele, the city theater of Munich; Nicholas Rizopoulos of Athens, Greece, and Ross Edman, son of George W. Edman, deputy public affairs officer in Rome, Italy, and Mrs. Edman. Mr. Rizopoulos and Mr. Edman, both of whom graduated this month from the Hotchkiss School, will work at Tanglewood this summer. Mr. Rizopoulos will enter Yale next fall.

BSO Official Tells Festival Plans To Harvard Club

B. Eagle, 6/24/54

Thomas D. Perry Jr., assistant manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, discussed plans for the forthcoming Tanglewood season last night at a dinner meeting of the Harvard Club of Berkshire County in the Yellow Aster.

Dr. Daniel B. Dorman presided, and about 35 members attended. Mr. Perry reminded them that the Harvard-Radcliffe Glee Club will be at Tanglewood for the June 10 concert, when Berlioz' "Damnation of Faust" will be presented.

In the Berkshires

N.Y. Times, 6/27/54

The number of subscribers for this summer's Berkshire Festival concerts by the Boston Symphony in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., on Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons, beginning July 10 and 11, has exceeded the 1953 figure. Remaining tickets for all festival concerts are on sale at the Tanglewood box office (telephone, Lenox 600). Pierre Monteux has substituted Debussy's "La Mer" and music from his "Le Martyre de Saint Sebastian" on July 17, and Charles Munch will conduct Brahms' "Tragic" Overture instead of Wagner's "A Faust Overture" on Aug. 14. As before, the orchestra will hold public rehearsals on the six festival Saturday mornings for the benefit of its pension fund; the admission charge is one dollar. . . . The Berkshire Quartet opens its Sunday afternoon series at Music Mountain, Falls Village, Conn., on July 4; the season runs until Labor Day, with programs featuring works of Mozart, Brahms and Beethoven.

69 Pianos Arrive at Tanglewood

B Eagle, 6/25/54

Largest Shipment Ever Negotiated For Concert Use

TANGLEWOOD—The largest shipment of concert pianos ever negotiated, an annual event heralding the Berkshire Festival, has been completed with the arrival at Tanglewood, this week of 69 instruments, used for the Festival concerts and rehearsals, and for lessons and practice by students of the Berkshire Music Center, the six-week summer school of music maintained by the Boston Orchestra in connection with the Festival.

One Electric Organ

The shipment of all new instruments from the Baldwin Piano Co., in Cincinnati, Ohio, includes 14 grand pianos on which this summer such soloists as Claudio Arrau, Lukas Foss, Vera Franceschi, Leo Smit, Nicole Henriot and Seymour Lipkin will perform. There are also 55 upright pianos and an electric organ.

The move was accomplished in two huge orange and black trailer trucks of M. Newton Moving & Storage, Cincinnati agent for Allied Van Lines, a large mover of household goods. For 15 years Newton has been trucking the pianos from the factory to the Berkshire Festival, a 2½ day trip, in eight hour stages, from Cincinnati to Lenox; and 16 hours to load and unload. The Allied movers, with Raymond Schmidt acting as "nurse," exercise almost superhuman care in handling the delicate instruments, for the slightest damage to a piano's sounding board or lyre would mean its loss for concert use.

Each piano is carefully wrapped, the grands in seven pads each, the uprights in three pads each 72 inches by 84 inches, or nearly one-third of an acre of padding in all.

John Ortiz, of New York City, the Baldwin Piano Co's artists' manager, was on hand to supervise the unloading and installations, with the assistance of Harvey Generoux, the Boston Symphony's stage manager, and his assistant Rodman Henry of Pittsfield.

DETROIT, MICH.
FREE PRESS
FEB 28 1954

24 CONCERTS SCHEDULED

Munch Tells Plans for Famed Festival

BOSTON—Programs for the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., have been decided under the supervision of Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Twenty-four concerts will be presented in the six weeks July 7-Aug. 15. Included will be a series by the full orchestra in the Shed on Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons.

* * *

MUNCH WILL open the Shed Series July 10 with Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust," with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society. The matinee of July 11 will have Pierre Monteux as conductor in Beethoven's "Leonore" overture No. 3; "Emperor" Concerto with Claudio Arrau at the piano, and Fifth Symphony.

The program for July 17 will have Monteux conducting a Franck program consisting of "Le Chasseur Maudit"; "Les Eolides"; "Les Djinns" with Vera Franceschi as pianist, and the D-minor Symphony.

The July 18 matinee under Munch will comprise Debussy's "Iberia"; Copland's Piano Concerto with Leo Smit as soloist, and the Fantastic Symphony of Berlioz.

On July 24 the orchestra will be directed by Jean Morel in Weber's overture to "Der Freischutz"; Prokofieff's Sixth Symphony; "Don Juan" by Strauss and Elgar's "Enigma" Variations.

The Sunday matinee of July 25 consists the "Beatrice and Benedict" overture and "Harold in Italy" by Berlioz, with William Primrose as viola soloist, and Ernet Toch's Second Symphony.

THE FOURTH week, July 31 and Aug. 1, will have its Saturday night concert under Munch's direction, presenting Berlioz' "Romeo and Juliet" with Festival Chorus and soloists.

The Sunday matinee under Richard Burgin will consist of Prokofieff's ballet music "Chout"; the Dvorak Violin Concerto with Ruth Posselt and the Sibelius Second Symphony.

Munch will conduct the Aug. 7 concert, consisting of the overture to "Alceste" by Gluck; the Beethoven Violin Concerto with Zino Francescatti and the Brahms Second Symphony.

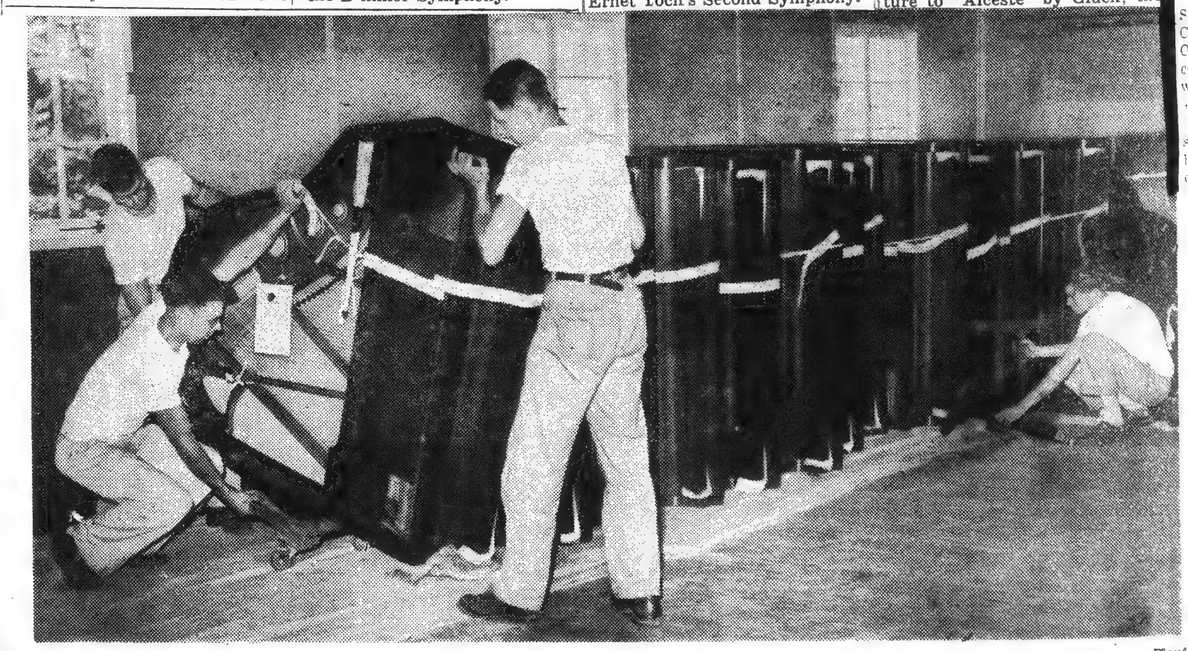
The Sunday matinee will have Munch conducting the "Benvenuto Cellini" overture; the Royal Hunt and Storm from "The Trojans"; "Scheherazade" from "Nights" with Eleanor Steber, soloist and the "Te Deum."

* * *

THE SIXTH and final week of Shed Concerts will have Munch on Aug. 14.

He will conduct the Symphony and the Ravel Piano Concerto with Nicole Henriot. On Sunday afternoon Munch will conduct the Berlioz Requiem with Festival Chorus and four auxiliary orchestras.

The prevalence of Berlioz music in the programmes is in honor of the 150th anniversary of the composer's birth.



Plouffe

HELPING UNPACK part of the shipment of 69 pianos sent to Tanglewood yesterday by the Baldwin Piano Co., are John Vohr of Newhampton, N.H., Marcel Roux of Lenox, Ray Schmidt, a trucker, and Marvin Rose of Lee.

Two Changes Announced In Tanglewood Programs

Two Debussy Compositions to Be Played July 17; Brahms 'Tragic' Overture Listed Aug. 14; Closing Concert Memorial to Serge Koussevitzky

Boston, June 19—Two changes in the Berkshire Festival programs to be presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in its six-week season, July 7 to Aug. 15, at Tanglewood, Lenox, are announced by Charles Munch, music director.

Instead of an all-Cesar Franck program on Saturday evening, July 17, in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, guest conductor Pierre Monteux will substitute two orchestral selections by Claude Debussy. Excerpts from "St. Sebastian" and the tone poem "La Mer" will replace the previously programed "Le Chausseur Maudit" and "Les Eolides" by Franck.

Koussevitzky Memorial

Mr. Munch's program of Saturday evening, Aug. 14 in the Shed will offer Brahms' "Tragic Overture" in place of Wagner's "A Faust Overture."

The festival's closing program, Sunday afternoon, Aug. 15 in the Music Shed, has been designated as a memorial to Serge Koussevitzky, conductor of the Boston Symphony for 25 years, and under whose direction the Berkshire Festival grew to its present world renown and its summer school of music, the Berkshire Music Center, was founded. For this program Mr. Munch will present Hector Berlioz' massive "Requiem" with the Festival Chorus (composed of students of the Berkshire Music Center) and soloists.

The Berkshire Festival also announces the summer season will witness six Saturday morning rehearsals of the full 104-man Boston Symphony Orchestra, starting at 10 a. m. on July 10, 17, 24, 31, August 7 and 14, to which 50 persons will be admitted at the cost of $1 each, proceeds for the benefit of the orchestra's Pension Fund.

Sale of festival tickets is now proceeding at the Festival ticket office at Tanglewood, telephone Lenox 600. Reservations may be made by telephone or by mail order, checks accompanied by self-addressed stamped envelope made payable to Boston Symphony Orchestra, Inc.

For complete festival programs, for a complete list of the summer's student concerts to which the public are admitted if they pay a nominal contribution to the Society of Friends of the music center, and for price information, address the Berkshire Festival, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

Syracuse Her.-Journal, 6/25/54 SYRACUSE HE

Richard Burgin, left, concertmaster of the Boston Symphony, is among guest conductors in the Berkshire Music Festival in "Tanglewood," Lenox, Mass., this summer. Ruth Posselt, right, violinist, in private life Mrs. Burgin, will be among noted soloists during the 1954 season.

Syracuse Herald Journal, 6/25/54

GEORGE E. JUDD, manager of the Berkshire Festival Series by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in "Tanglewood," Lenox, Mass., July 10-Aug. 14, says that subscribers to the 1954 season surpass those of summer of 1953. Festival patrons have 12 instead of the usual nine concerts in the Shed this summer. Friday night Chamber Music Concert tickets are sold separately. Conductors for the Shed Concerts by the full 104-man orchestra are Festival Music Director Charles Munch and guest conductors Pierre Monteux, Jean Morel and Richard Burgin.

THE 16th BERKSHIRE Festival in which the Boston Symphony Orchestra has participated commences on Wednesday, July 7, at 8:30 P.M., with the first of six Wednesday Chamber Music concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall. Claudio Arrau, eminent Chilean concert pianist, will perform Sontas Op. 79, 110, and 57 ("Appassionata"); and the Beaux Arts Trio (Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola; and Martin Hoherman, cello) will perform the String Trio in E flat, Op. [illegible] No. 1 on an all-Beethoven program.

CHARLES MUNCH will conduct a chamber section of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in an all-Bach program of Brandenburg Concertos, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 5, 6. Dr. Lukas Foss as piano soloist, in the first of six Friday chamber orchestra programs, at 8:30 P.M., in the Theater-Concert Hall, Friday, July 9.

AMONG THE season's noted soloists are Metropolitan Opera stars Eleanor Steber, soprano, and Nicola Moscona, bass-baritone; David Poleri and John McCollum, tenors; Martial Singher, baritone; Donald Gramm, bass-baritone. Piano soloists are Claudio Arrau, Lukas Foss, Vera Franceschi, Nicole Henriot, Seymour Lipkin and Leo Smit. Violin soloists are Zino Francescatti and Ruth Posselt. Other assisting artists are Doriot Anthony, flutist; William Primrose, violinist, the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society; the Albeneri Trio; the Zimbler Sinfonietta; the Griller String Quartet, and the Kroll String Quartet. In greatest demand, to date, is the opening weekend of the Berkshire Festival, July 9-10-11; with [illegible] E. Aug. 7-8 and the Stravinsky-Mozart chamber orchestra program on Aug. 6, in popular favor also.

Will Be Arriving at Tanglewood Soon

Springfield Republican, 6/30/54

Left to right: Guest conductor Pierre Monteux; flute soloist, Doriot Anthony; and the conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, under whose direction the orchestra and the Berkshire Music Festival drew record breaking crowds to Lenox last summer.

Ross Edman, Hotchkiss Graduate To Enter Harvard

B. Eagle, 6/23/54

Ross Edman, son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Edman of Pittsfield and Rome, Italy, graduated from Hotchkiss School, Lakeville, Conn., at recent commencement exercises.

Mr. Edman expects to enter Harvard University in September after working for the summer at Tanglewood. He is staying with Mrs. Sheridan R. Cate of 49 Kenilworth St. until next week, when he will move to Wheatleigh, the student dormitory at Lenox.

At Hotchkiss, Mr. Edman was on the third honor roll and won the choir-glee club prize. His father is deputy public affairs officer in Rome, Italy.

B. Eagle 6/23/54

Mrs. Sheridan R. Cate of 49 Kenilworth St. has as her guests Miss Charlotte von Bomhard of Munich, Germany, a young actress of the famous Kammerspiele, the city theater of Munich; Nicholas Rizopoulos of Athens, Greece, and Ross Edman, son of George W. Edman, deputy public affairs officer in Rome, Italy, and Mrs. Edman. Mr. Rizopoulos and Mr. Edman, both of whom graduated this month from the Hotchkiss School, will work at Tanglewood this summer. Mr. Rizopoulos will enter Yale next fall.

BSO Official Tells Festival Plans To Harvard Club

B. Eagle, 6/24/54

Thomas D. Perry Jr., assistant manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, discussed plans for the forthcoming Tanglewood season last night at a dinner meeting of the Harvard Club of Berkshire County in the Yellow Aster.

Dr. Daniel B. Dorman presided, and about 35 members attended. Mr. Perry reminded them that the Harvard-Radcliffe Glee Club will be at Tanglewood for the June 10 concert, when Berlioz' "Damnation of Faust" will be presented.

In the Berkshires

N.Y. Her.-Trib. 6/27/54

The number of subscribers for this summer's Berkshire Festival concerts by the Boston Symphony in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., on Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons, beginning July 10 and 11, has exceeded the 1953 figure. Remaining tickets for all festival concerts are on sale at the Tanglewood box office (telephone, Lenox 600). Pierre Monteux has substituted Debussy's "La Mer" and music from his "Le Martyre de Saint Sebastian" on July 17, and Charles Munch will conduct Brahms' "Tragic" Overture instead of Wagner's "A Faust Overture" on Aug. 14. As before, the orchestra will hold public rehearsals on the six festival Saturday mornings for the benefit of its pension fund; the admission charge is one dollar. . . . The Berkshire Quartet opens its Sunday afternoon series at Music Mountain, Falls Village, Conn., on July 4; the season runs until Labor Day, with programs featuring works of Mozart, Brahms and Beethoven.

Two Changes Announced In Tanglewood Programs

Two Debussy Compositions to Be Played July 17; Brahms 'Tragic' Overture Listed Aug. 14; Closing Concert Memorial to Serge Koussevitzky

Boston, June 19—Two changes in the Berkshire Festival programs to be presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in its six-week season, July 7 to Aug. 15, at Tanglewood, Lenox, are announced by Charles Munch, music director.

Instead of an all-Cesar Franck program on Saturday evening, July 17, in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, guest conductor Pierre Monteux will substitute two orchestral selections by Claude Debussy. Excerpts from "St. Sebastian" and the tone poem "La Mer" will replace the previously programed "Le Chausseur Maudit" and "Les Eolides" by Franck.

Koussevitzky Memorial

Mr. Munch's program of Saturday evening, Aug. 14 in the Shed will offer Brahms' "Tragic Overture" in place of Wagner's "A Faust Overture."

The festival's closing program, Sunday afternoon, Aug. 15 in the Music Shed, has been designated as a memorial to Serge Koussevitzky, conductor of the Boston Symphony for 25 years, and under whose direction the Berkshire Festival grew to its present world renown and its summer school of music, the Berkshire Music Center, was founded. For this program Mr. Munch will present Hector Berlioz' massive "Requiem," with the Festival Chorus (composed of students of the Berkshire Music Center) and soloists.

The Berkshire Festival also announces the summer season will witness six Saturday morning rehearsals of the full 104-man Boston Symphony Orchestra, at 10 a. m. on July 10, 17, 24, 31, August 7 and 14, to which the public is admitted at the cost of $1 each, proceeds for the benefit of the Orchestra's Pension Fund.

Sale of festival tickets is now proceeding at the Festival ticket office at Tanglewood, telephone Lenox 600. Reservations may be made by telephone or by mail order, checks accompanied by self-addressed stamped envelope made payable to Boston Symphony Orchestra, Inc.

For complete festival programs, for a complete list of the summer's student concerts to which the public are admitted if they make a nominal contribution to the Society of Friends of the music school, and for price information, write the Berkshire Festival, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

Syracuse Her.-Journal, 6/25/54 SYRACUSE HER

Richard Burgin, left, concertmaster of the Boston Symphony, is among guest conductors in the Berkshire Music Festival in "Tanglewood," Lenox, Mass., this summer. Ruth Posselt, right, violinist, in private life Mrs. Burgin, will be among noted soloists during the 1954 season.

69 Pianos Arrive at Tanglewood

B Eagle, 6/25/54

Largest Shipment Ever Negotiated For Concert Use

TANGLEWOOD—The largest shipment of concert pianos ever negotiated, an annual event heralding the Berkshire Festival, has been completed with the arrival at Tanglewood, this week of 69 instruments, used for the Festival concerts and rehearsals, and for lessons and practice by students of the Berkshire Music Center, the six-week summer school of music maintained by the Boston Orchestra in connection with the Festival.

One Electric Organ

The shipment of all new instruments from the Baldwin Piano Co., in Cincinnati, Ohio, includes 14 grand pianos on which this summer such soloists as Claudio Arrau, Lukas Foss, Vera Franceschi, Leo Smit, Nicole Henriot and Seymour Lipkin will perform. There are also 55 upright pianos and an electric organ.

The move was accomplished in two huge orange and black trailer trucks of M. Newton Moving & Storage, Cincinnati agent for Allied Van Lines, a large mover of household goods. For 15 years Newton has been trucking the pianos from the factory to the Berkshire Festival, a 2½ day trip, in eight hour stages, from Cincinnati to Lenox; and 16 hours to load and unload. The Allied movers, with Raymond Schmidt acting as "nurse," exercise almost superhuman care in handling the delicate instruments, for the slightest damage to a piano's sounding board or lyre would mean its loss for concert use.

Each piano is carefully wrapped, the grands in seven pads each, the uprights in three pads each 72 inches by 84 inches, or nearly one-third of an acre of padding in all.

John Ortiz, of New York City, the Baldwin Piano Co's artists' manager, was on hand to supervise the unloading and installations, with the assistance of Harvey Generoux, the Boston Symphony's stage manager, and his assistant Rodman Henry of Pittsfield.

24 CONCERTS SCHEDULED

Munch Tells Plans for Famed Festival

BOSTON—Programs for the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., have been decided under the supervision of Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Twenty-four concerts will be presented in the six weeks July 7-Aug. 15. Included will be a series by the full orchestra in the Shed on Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons.

* * *

MUNCH WILL open the Shed Series July 10 with Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust," with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society. The matinee of July 11 will have Pierre Monteux as conductor in Beethoven's "Leonore" overture No. 3; "Emperor" Concerto with Claudio Arrau at the piano, and Fifth Symphony.

The program for July 17 will have Monteux conducting a Franck program consisting of "Le Chasseur Maudit"; "Les Eolides"; "Les Djinns" with Vera Franceschi as pianist, and the D-minor Symphony.

The July 18 matinee under Munch will comprise Debussy's "Iberia"; Copland's Piano Concerto with Leo Smit as soloist, and the Fantastic Symphony of Berlioz.

On July 24 the orchestra will be directed by Jean Morel in Weber's overture to "Der Freischutz"; Prokofieff's Sixth Symphony; "Don Juan" by Strauss and Elgar's "Enigma" Variations.

The Sunday matinee of July 25 consists the "Beatrice and Benedict" overture and "Harold in Italy" by Berlioz, with William Primrose as viola soloist, and Ernst Toch's Second Symphony.

THE FOURTH week, July 31 and Aug. 1, will have its Saturday night concert under Munch's direction, presenting Berlioz' "Romeo and Juliet" with Festival Chorus and soloists.

The Sunday matinee under Richard Burgin will consist of Prokofieff's ballet music "Chout"; the Dvorak Violin Concerto with Ruth Posselt and the Sibelius Second Symphony.

Munch will conduct the Aug. 7 concert, consisting of the overture to "Alceste" by Gluck; the

HELPING UNPACK part of the shipment of 69 pianos sent to Tanglewood yesterday by the Baldwin Piano Co., are John Vohr of Newhampton, N.H., Marcel Roux of Lenox, Ray Schmidt, a trucker, and Marvin Rose of Lee. Plouffe

nounced d Programs

Be Played July 17; Listed Aug. 14; Clos- erge Koussevitzky

s founded. For this program nch will present Hector massive "Requiem," with ival Chorus (composed of s of the Berkshire Music and soloists.

Berkshire Festival also an- the summer season will six Saturday morning re- s of the full 104-man Bos- nphony Orchestra, at 10 July 10, 17, 24, 31, August 4, to which the public is l at the cost of $1 each, for the benefit of the Or- s Pension Fund.

f festival tickets is now ng at the Festival ticket t Tanglewood, telephone 00. Reservations may be telephone or by mail or- cks accompanied by self- d stamped envelope made to Boston Symphony Or- Inc.

mplete festival programs, mplete list of the summer's oncerts to which the pub- dmitted if they make a contribution to the Society s of the music school, and information, write the Festival, Tanglewood, lass.

SYRACUSE HER

of the Boston s in the Berk- " Lenox, Mass., inist, in private soloists during al

July 6 s Satur- Munch's erlioz' Festival under music Violin elt and Syme Aug. e over ck; the Beethoven Violin Concerto with Zino Francescatti and the Brahms Second Symphony.

The Sunday matinee will be all Berlioz, with Munch conducting the "Benvenuto Cellini" overture; the Royal Hunt and Storm from "The Trojans"; "Summer Night" with Eleanor Steber as soloist, and the "Te Deum."

* * *

THE SIXTH and final week o Shed Concerts will have Munch on Aug. 14.

He will conduct the "Lohen grin" Prelude; Piston's Fourt

Symphony and the Ravel Pian Concerto with Nicole Henrio On Sunday afternoon Munch w conduct the Berlioz Requie with Festival Chorus and fo auxiliary orchestras.

The prevalence of Berlioz m sic in the programming is honor of the 150th anniversa of the composer's birth.

Plouffe ohn Vohr

[105]

GEORGE E. JUDD, manager of the Berkshire Festival Series by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in "Tanglewood," Lenox, Mass., July 10-Aug. 14, says that subscribers to the 1954 season surpass those of summer of 1953. Festival patrons have 12 instead of the usual nine concerts in the Shed this summer. Friday night Chamber Music Concert tickets are sold separately. Conductors for the Shed Concerts by the full 104-man orchestra are Festival Music Director Charles Munch and guest conductors Pierre Monteux, Jean Morel and Richard Burgin.

Judd

THE 15th BERKSHIRE Festival in which the Boston Symphony Orchestra has participated commences on Wednesday, July 7, at 8:30 P.M., with the first of six Wednesday Chamber Music concerts in the Theater Concert Hall. Claudio Arrau, eminent Chilean concert pianist, will perform Sontas Op. 79, 110, and 57 ("Appassionata"); and the Bel Arte Trio (Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola; and Martin Hoherman, cello) will perform the String Trio in G, Op. 9 No. 1 on an all-Beethoven program.

CHARLES MUNCH will conduct a chamber section of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in an all-Bach program of Brandenburg Concertos, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 5, 6, with Lukas Foss as piano soloist, at the first of six Friday chamber orchestra programs, at 8:30 P.M., in the Theater-Concert Hall, Friday, July 9.

AMONG THE season's noted soloists are Metropolitan Opera stars Eleanor Steber, soprano, and Nicola Moscona, bass-baritone; David Poleri and John McCollum, tenors; Martial Singher, baritone; Donald Gramm, bass-baritone. Piano soloists are Claudio Arrau, Lukas Foss, Vera Franceschi, Nicole Henriot, Seymour Lipkin and Leo Smit. Violin soloists are Zino Francescatti and Ruth Posselt. Other assisting artists are Doriot Anthony, flutist; William Primrose, violinist, the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society; the Albeneri Trio; the Zimbler Sinfonietta; the Griller String Quartet, and the Kroll String Quartet. In greatest demand, to date, is the opening weekend of the Berkshire Festival, July 9-10-11; with Series E, Aug. 7-8 and the Stravinsky-Mozart chamber orchestra program on Aug. 6, in popular favor also.

New Personalities on Berkshire Music Center Faculty

B. Eagle, 6/26/54

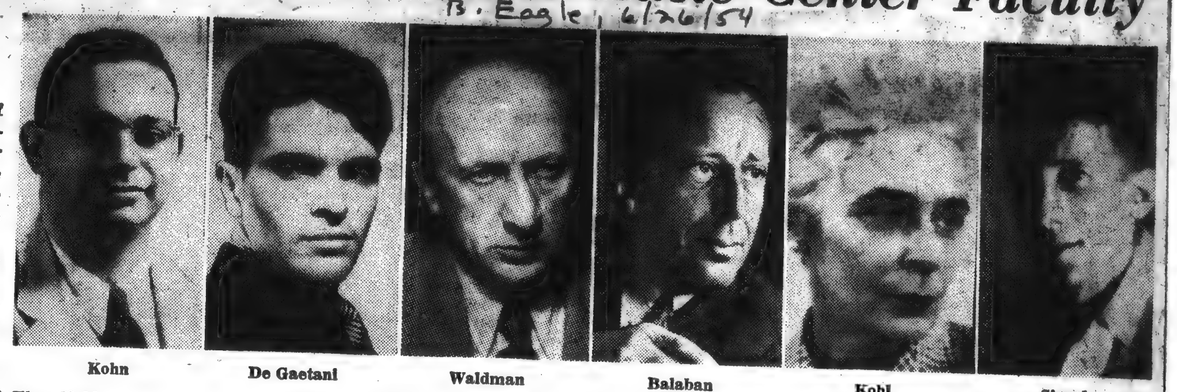
Most of Group To Aid Cohen In Opera Dept.

TANGLEWOOD — A number of new faces will be seen on the campus of the Berkshire Music Center this summer in addition to the three eminent musicians who are coming to head departments in the school.

Jean Morel, head of the orchestra and conducting department, Ernest Toch, guest teacher of composition and Frederic Cohen, head of the opera department, will be assisted by other widely known figures in the musical world.

Most of the new staff members will be associated with Mr. Cohen while Boris Goldovsky is on leave of absence from the opera department.

They are: Morton Siegel, stage director; Elsa Kahl, musical acting; Emanuel Balaban, coaching and repertoire; Frederic Waldman, coaching and conducting; and Thomas deGaetani, technical director. Other departmental members returning are Fanz Wolfes, in coaching and repertoire; John Blankenchip, stage design; Leo Van Witsen, costumes and make-up; and Ludwig and Laura Zirner in charge of the associate division.



Kohn — De Gaetani — Waldman — Balaban — Kohl — Siegel

Morton Siegel

Morton Siegel is a native of New York City, who attended New York University, the University of California, Columbia University, took his B.S. degree in piano from the Juilliard School of Music, and who directed the Green Mansions Opera Company at Warrensburg, N.Y., in 1951. He was stage director of the Hilltop musical company in Baltimore, Md., in 1952, and latterly has been assistant stage director of the Juilliard Opera Theater under Mr. Cohen.

Elsa Kahl

Elsa Kahl was born in Hamburg, Germany, studied at the university there and at schools in Muenster and Essen. Since 1924 she has been a solo dancer and actress in various European dance groups, opera houses and festivals. In 1930-31 she was solo dancer at Bayreuth, from 1932-42 solo dancer with the Jooss Ballet in world tours and for many years has taught dance and musical acting in Europe and America. From 1942-44 she has been an instructor of dance and consultant in dramatic art at Black Mountain College, North Carolina. Since 1946 she has been associated with the Juilliard School.

Emanuel Balaban

Emanuel Balaban, an eminent conductor who was a guest coach at Tanglewood for three weeks last summer, has been on the faculty of the Juilliard School for several years, teaching conducting, score-reading, and accompanying and coaching singers. His early career was as pianist and accompanist, but he switched to conducting after three years of study in Dresden with his appointment as associate conductor to the Dresden Opera. In New York he helped found the Rochester Opera Company, later known as the American Opera Company, with which he toured the U.S. and Canada for two years. For a time he served as director of the opera department of the Eastman School of Music.

In 1941 he toured South America with a ballet troupe, then for two years conducted the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo. On Broadway he was musical director of Gian-Carlo Menotti's operas "The Medium" and "The Telephone," also in their revivals at N.Y. City Center, on their recordings, and on the Omnibus television program. He has also conducted Marc Blitzstein's opera "Regina" on Broadway and the New York City Ballet on its tour of England, summer seasons of the New Orleans Symphony, the Minneapolis Symphony and been guest with the Carnegie Hall Pops Orchestra and the Connecticut Summer Symphony.

Frederic Waldman

Frederic Waldman was born in Vienna, where he studied. Since 1924 he conducted the orchestras of various European opera houses. From 1935 to 1939 he was director of the choral department and chamber music at Dartington Hall, England, and during 1939-41 took the Jooss Ballet on a world tour. Since coming to America in 1942 he has conducted and taught at the Mannes School of Music, and since his association with the Juilliard School, begun in 1947, conducted first American performances of Britten's "Beggar's Opera," Dallapiccola's "The Prisoner," and Richard Strauss' "Capriccio."

Thomas deGaetani

Thomas deGaetani, a native New Yorker, was graduated from the Professional School of Dramatic Arts, at Columbia University where he was president of the dramatic arts society. He continued his studies at the University of Miami, served in the Pacific and with the Far East Service Forces for three years, and as an actor has done summer stock, and appeared on Broadway with the Madeleine Renaud-Jean-Louis Barrault troupe from Paris.

Karl Kohn

Another Tanglewood newcomer this summer, associated with Lukas Foss, acting head of the Tanglewood Study Group, wherein amateurs of music may spend their vacation in an absorption of music, and with Florence Dunn, is Karl Kohn, presently on the faculty of the department of music at Pomona College, Claremont, Calif. Born in Vienna, a resident of the U.S. since 1939, Mr. Kohn studied at New York College of Music, piano and conducting. His studies at Harvard, interrupted by army service in the Pacific, were resumed in 1949 and he was graduated summa cum laude in 1950. He is an accomplished pianist and has given solo and duo recitals, the latter with his wife, Margaret. His compositions include works for piano and orchestra, string orchestra, chorus, brass, piano and other instrumental combinations.

Second Thoughts in Music

Chamber-Music Concerts On Wednesdays This Year

Springfield Republican, 6/27/54

Recordings Available of Works to Be Heard in Theater Concert Hall at Tanglewood; Beethoven Trio in G and 'Appassionata' Sonata Listed

By WILLARD M. CLARK

The Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood opens Wednesday night, July 7. It will not open with the pealing of trumpets or rumble of percussion. Rather it will open on an entirely new note, a program of chamber music. There will be six such programs on Wednesday nights. Heretofore, the chamber orchestra programs, devoted mainly to Bach and Mozart, have been the only small scale performances offered, but it appears that there has been a demand for a series of chamber music concerts, so you have them.

Arrau at Piano

It seems scarcely possible that a more distinguished list of performers could be assembled for these concerts. We note that pianist Claudio Arrau, and the Bel Arte Trio will open the first program. The Bel Arte Trio is composed of Ruth Posselt, violinist; Samuel Mayes, cello, and Joseph de Pasquale, violist. This admirable group will be heard in Beethoven's String Trio in G, Op. 9, No. 1. They have made a charming recording of this trio for Decca, matching it with the D major Trio, Op. 9, No. 2. D1-9635.

On, the same program Claudio Arrau will give us his interpretation of Beethoven's "Appassionata" sonata, as well as the No. 110.

The second program on Wednesday night, July 14, introduces the famed Albeneri Trio. The program will include the Brahms Trio in B; Martinu Trio in D minor, and Beethoven's Trio in B flat, known as the "Archduke" Trio.

Of this trio, there are several fine recorded performances. First of all we choose the reissued LCT version by Rubinstein, Heifetz and Feuermann, Victor LCT 1020. Our second choice is a fine performance by Fournier, Janigro and Badura-Skoda, made for Westminister on West. 5184.

Casals Recording

Our third choice brings us to the Casals Festival recordings where Istomin, Schneider and Casals provide a deeply felt and finely wrought performance on Columbia ML 4573. Brahms' Trio in B Op. 8 receives a fine, though somewhat tonally dated performance by Rubinstein, Heifetz and Feuermann on Victor LCT 1022.

The "Zimbler Sinfonietta," made up of members of the Boston Symphony orchestra, will be heard on Wednesday night, July 21. This admirable group of players has made a number of recordings for Decca and has appeared extensively in concert. Their program includes Vivaldi's "The Four Seasons"; Stravinsky's "Apollon Musagete" and Rossini's "Baroque Concerto." The first two works are for string orchestra.

Concert Hall Society provides an excellent recording of "The Four Seasons" on CHC-1 and another good performance is offered by Molinari and Cecelia orchestra on Cetra 50001. Igor Stravinsky conducts the RCA Victor orchestra in his own Appollon Musagete." Victor, LM-1096.

Griller String Quartet

Of the many fine string quartet ensembles now playing, few rank higher than the Griller String Quartet. They will play a delectable program on Wednesday evening, July 28, consisting of the Mozart Quartet in E flat, K.428; the first performance of Block's quartet No. 4 and Beethoven's Quartet in G major, Op. 18, No. 2.

The only satisfactory recording of the Mozart K. 428 is by the Amadeus Quarter, West. 5099. The Beethoven quartets, Op. 18 have been wonderfully recorded by the Budapest String Quartet and Pascal String Quartet, the first recording for Columbia and the latter for Concert Hall Society. Which recordings are preferred is entirely a personal choice.

Following the Griller String Quartet comes the equally estimable Kroll String Quartet on Wednesday night, Aug. 4. They offer a varied program, rich in quality, consisting of Haydn's Quartet in D, Op. 64, No. 5, "The Lark"; Hindemith's Quartet No. 3 and Ravel's Quartet in F. We like the Budapest recording of the Haydn quartet which is made on Col. ML-4216.

The Fine Arts String Quartet has made an excellent record of the Hindemith Quartet, with the reverse side given over to the Ravel Quartet. This is a Mercury 10105 disc. Far superior is the performance of the Ravel Quartet by the Budapest Quartet, Col. ML-4091.

Final Program.

The final program of these chamber music recitals will be given on Wednesday night, Aug. 11 by Zino Francescatti, violinist, and Arthur Balsam, pianist. This promises to be one of the most exciting and satisfactory of concerts. The Duo will play two Brahms' sonatas, the A-major and D-major. Francescatti will play the unaccompanied Suite in C by Bach.

The two Brahms sonatas have received a highly intelligent and tonally satisfactory performances from Albert Spalding. He made these recordings for Remington, shortly before his death. Rem. 199-49.

These, then, are some of the fine recordings of works to be played during the six chamber music concerts of the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood. It is hoped that hearing these recordings will enhance the pleasure of listening to the live performances. These concerts will be given on six successive Wednesday nights, opening July 7 at 8.30 in the Theater-Concert Hall, and concluding Aug. 11.

375 Students Already Enrolled At Tanglewood's Music Center

TANGLEWOOD — Student registration at the Berkshire Music Center has passed the 375 mark, Miss Edith A. Bossler, registrar, reports, with additional applications being processed daily, until the full enrollment of 400-450 is reached. The students will begin arriving soon from most of the 48 states, Canada and foreign countries, for the opening of the 12th season on Sunday, July 4. Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is director of the Berkshire Music Center; composer Aaron Copland is assistant director; Ralph Berkowitz is dean; and Boston Symphony manager-elect Thomas D. Perry Jr. is executive secretary with Gail Rector as his assistant.

Foss Heads Department 5

Enrollment is ahead of last year, when 345 students had registered at this time. The 375 students to date include 112 with the two-year-old Department 5, the Tanglewood Study Group, 35 of whom are spending the full six weeks at Tanglewood, 22 for four weeks, and 55 for two-week terms. Department 5 offers advanced students of music, professional or amateur, an opportunity to spend their vacations in absorption of music. Lukas Foss heads the department this summer. Last year 92 students had registered in the study group by mid-June.

As against last summer's 14 foreign students, Miss Bossler reports 30 to date, 12 from Canada, 4 from Cuba, 3 each from France and Israel, 1 each from Japan, Korea, Holland, Hungary, Greece, South Africa, Venezuela and Haiti. The study group includes seven from Canada, one each from France and Haiti.

Mother, Son Enrolled

A mother and son are students enrolled at the Berkshire Music Center, Mrs. Keith Rogers, president of the Island Radio Broadcasting Co., and her son, William Keith Rogers, musical director of radio station CFCY, both of Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, Canada. There are three husband-wife combinations, also three [illegible] of music departments of various colleges.

DEVELOPMENT: On July 7 Claudio Arrau and the Bel Arte Trio will begin what is probably the most significant new development in the summer chamber music situation. They will open the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood. There have nearly always been chamber music concerts on occasional evenings during previous Berkshire Festivals, but this year is the first time they are being incorporated into the total picture as a regular festival feature widely advertised to the general public. Under the new scheme, each Wednesday night of the six-week festival period will be given over to chamber music in the Theatre-Concert Hall.

Another festival featuring a big orchestra that has made chamber music an integral part of its annual event is the Ravinia Festival in Chicago. But it is not peppering its chamber music concerts through the whole period. Instead they will be given in a group in the seventh and final week. The first six weeks will consist of programs by the Chicago Symphony, and then the Fine Arts Quartet will take over for the concerts of Aug. 10, 12, 14 and 15.

H.Y. Times - 6/27/54

MEMORIALS: One of the persons most instrumental in making chamber music a feature of summer life in New England was the late Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge and she will be remembered in several of the series. The Berkshire Quartet will give an additional concert in her honor at Music Mountain, and on Aug. 21 and 22 there will be two Coolidge memorial concerts in the auditorium she built on South Mountain near Pittsfield, Mass. These concerts will come after the regular series of six Saturday afternoon concerts to be given there jointly by the South Mountain Association, the Fromm Music Foundation and the Coolidge Foundation of the Library of Congress. Alexander Schneider, violinist, and Artur Balsam, pianist, will open the main series on July 10 with the first of three concerts in a Beethoven cycle.

[106]

New Personalities on Berkshire Music Center Faculty

B. Eagle, 6/26/54

Most of Group To Aid Cohen In Opera Dept.

TANGLEWOOD — A number of new faces will be seen on the campus of the Berkshire Music Center this summer in addition to the three eminent musicians who are coming to head departments in the school.

Jean Morel, head of the orchestra and conducting department, Ernest Toch, guest teacher of composition and Frederic Cohen, head of the opera department, will be assisted by other widely known figures in the musical world.

Most of the new staff members will be associated with Mr. Cohen while Boris Goldovsky is on leave of absence from the opera department.

They are: Morton Siegel, stage director; Elsa Kahl, musical acting; Emanuel Balaban, coaching and repertoire; Frederic Waldman, coaching and conducting; and Thomas deGaetani, technical director. Other departmental members returning are Felix Wolfes, in coaching and repertoire; John Blankenchip, stage design; Leo Van Witsen, costumes and makeup; and Ludwig and Laura Zirner in charge of the associate division.

Kohn — De Gaetani — Waldman — Balaban — Kohl — Siegel

Morton Siegel

Morton Siegel is a native of New York City, who attended New York University, the University of California, Columbia University, took his B.S. degree in piano from the Juilliard School of Music, and who directed the Green Mansions Opera Company at Warrensburg, N.Y., in 1951. He was stage director of the Hilltop musical company in Baltimore, Md., in 1952, and latterly has been assistant stage director of the Juilliard Opera Theater under Mr. Cohen.

Elsa Kahl

Elsa Kahl was born in Hamburg, Germany, studied at the university there and at schools in Muenster and Essen. Since 1924 she has been a solo dancer and actress in various European dance groups, opera houses and festivals. In 1930-31 she was solo dancer at Bayreuth, from 1932-42 solo dancer with the Jooss Ballet in world tours and for many years has taught dance and musical acting in Europe and America. From 1942-44 she has been an instructor of dance and consultant in dramatic art at Black Mountain College, North Carolina. Since 1946 she has been associated with the Juilliard School.

Emanuel Balaban

Emanuel Balaban, an eminent conductor who was a guest coach at Tanglewood for three weeks last summer, has been on the faculty of the Juilliard School for several years, teaching conducting, score-reading, and accompanying and coaching singers. His early career was as pianist and accompanist, but he switched to conducting after three years of study in Dresden with his appointment as associate conductor to the Dresden Opera. In New York he helped found the Rochester Opera Company, later known as the American Opera Company, with which he toured the U.S. and Canada for two years. For a time he served as director of the opera department of the Eastman School of Music.

In 1941 he toured South America with a ballet troupe, then for two years conducted the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo. On Broadway he was musical director of Gian-Carlo Menotti's operas "The Medium" and "The Telephone," also in their revivals at N.Y. City Center, on their recordings, and on the Omnibus television program. He has also conducted Marc Blitzstein's opera "Regina" on Broadway and the New York City Ballet on its tour of England, summer seasons of the New Orleans Symphony, the Minneapolis Symphony and been guest with the Carnegie Hall Pops Orchestra and the Connecticut Summer Symphony.

Frederic Waldman

Frederic Waldman was born in Vienna, where he studied. Since 1924 he conducted the orchestras of various European opera houses. From 1935 to 1939 he was director of the choral department and chamber music at Dartington Hall, England, and during 1939-41 took the Jooss Ballet on a world tour. Since coming to America in 1942 he has conducted and taught at the Mannes School of Music, and since his association with the Juilliard School, begun in 1947, conducted first American performances of Britten's "Beggar's Opera," Dallapiccola's "The Prisoner," and Richard Strauss' "Capriccio."

Thomas deGaetani

Thomas deGaetani, a native New Yorker, was graduated from the Professional School of Dramatic Arts, at Columbia University where he was president of the dramatic arts society. He continued his studies at the University of Miami, served in the Pacific and with the Far East Service Forces for three years, and as an actor has done summer stock, and appeared on Broadway with the Madeleine Renaud-Jean-Louis Barrault troupe from Paris.

Karl Kohn

Another Tanglewood newcomer this summer, associated with Lukas Foss, acting head of the Tanglewood Study Group, wherein amateurs of music may spend their vacation in an absorption of music, and with Florence Dunn, is Karl Kohn, presently on the faculty of the department of music at Pomona College, Claremont, Calif. Born in Vienna, a resident of the U.S. since 1939, Mr. Kohn studied at New York College of Music, piano and conducting. His studies at Harvard, interrupted by army service in the Pacific, were resumed in 1949 and he was graduated summa cum laude in 1950. He is an accomplished pianist and has given solo and duo recitals, the latter with his wife, Margaret. His compositions include works for piano and orchestra, string orchestra, chorus, brass, piano and other instrumental combinations.

375 Students Already Enrolled At Tanglewood's Music Center

TANGLEWOOD — Student registration at the Berkshire Music Center has passed the 375 mark, Miss Edith A. Bossler, registrar, reports, with additional applications being processed daily, until the full enrollment of 400-450 is reached. The students will begin arriving soon from most of the 48 states, Canada and foreign countries, for the opening of the 12th season on Sunday, July 4. Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is director of the Berkshire Music Center; composer Aaron Copland is assistant director; Ralph Berkowitz is dean; and Boston Symphony manager-elect Thomas D. Perry Jr. is executive secretary with Gail Rector as his assistant.

Foss Heads Department 5

Enrollment is ahead of last year, when 345 students had registered at this time. The 375 students to date include 112 with the two-year-old Department 5, the Tanglewood Study Group, 35 of whom are spending the full six weeks at Tanglewood, 22 for four weeks, and 55 for two-week terms. Department 5 offers advanced students of music, professional or amateur, an opportunity to spend their vacations in absorption of music. Lukas Foss heads the department this summer. Last year 92 students had registered in the study group by mid-June.

As against last summer's 14 foreign students, Miss Bossler reports 30 to date, 12 from Canada, 4 from Cuba, 3 each from France and Israel, 1 each from Japan, Korea, Holland, Hungary, Greece, South Africa, Venezuela and Haiti. The study group includes seven from Canada, one each from France and Haiti.

Mother, Son Enrolled

A mother and son are students enrolled at the Berkshire Music Center, Mrs. Keith Rogers, president of the Island Radio Broadcasting Co., and her son, William Keith Rogers, musical director of radio station CFCY, both of Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, Canada. There are three husband-wife combinations, also three heads of music departments of various colleges.

Second Thoughts in Music

Chamber-Music Concerts On Wednesdays This Year

Springfield Republican, 6/27/54

Recordings Available of Works to Be Heard in Theater Concert Halt at Tanglewood; Beethoven Trio in G and 'Appassionata' Sonata Listed

By WILLARD M. CLARK

The Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood opens Wednesday night, July 7. It will not open with the pealing of trumpets or rumble of percussion. Rather it will open on an entirely new note, a program of chamber music. There will be six such programs on Wednesday nights. Heretofore, the chamber orchestra programs, devoted mainly to Bach and Mozart, have been the only small scale performances offered, but it appears that there has been a demand for a series of chamber music concerts, so you have them.

Arrau at Piano

It seems scarcely possible that a more distinguished list of performers could be assembled for these concerts. We note that pianist Claudio Arrau, and the Bel Arte Trio will open the first program. The Bel Arte Trio is composed of Ruth Posselt, violinist; Samuel Mayes, cello, and Joseph de Pasquale, violist. This admirable group will be heard in Beethoven's String Trio in G, Op. 9, No. 1. They have made a charming recording of this trio for Decca, matching it with the D major Trio, Op. 9, No. 2. D1-9635.

On the same program Claudio Arrau will give us his interpretation of Beethoven's "Appassionata" sonata, as well as the No. 110.

The second program on Wednesday night, July 14, introduces the famed Albeneri Trio. The program will include the Brahms Trio in B; Martinu Trio in D minor, and Beethoven's Trio in B flat, known as the "Archduke" Trio.

Of this trio, there are several fine recorded performances. First of all we choose the reissued LCT version by Rubinstein, Heifetz and Feuermann, Victor LCT 1020. Our second choice is a fine performance by Fournier, Janigro and Badura-Skoda, made for Westminister on West. 5181.

Casals Recording

Our third choice brings us to the Casals Festival recordings where Istomin, Schneider and Casals provide a deeply felt and finely wrought performance on Columbia ML 4573. Brahms' Trio in B Op. 8 receives a fine, though somewhat tonally dated performance by Rubinstein, Heifetz and Feuermann on Victor LCT 1022.

The "Zimbler Sinfonietta," made up of members of the Boston Symphony orchestra, will be heard on Wednesday night, July 21. This admirable group of players has made a number of recordings for Decca and has appeared extensively in concert. Their program includes Vivaldi's "The Four Seasons"; Stravinsky's "Apollon Musagete" and Rossini's "Baroque Concerto." The first two works are for string orchestra.

Concert Hall Society provides an excellent recording of "The Four Seasons" on CHC-1 and another good performance is offered by Molinari and Cecelia orchestra on Cetra 50001. Igor Stravinsky conducts the RCA Victor orchestra in his own Appollon Musagete." Victor LM-1096.

Griller String Quartet

Of the many fine string quartet ensembles now playing, few rank higher than the Griller String Quartet. They will play a delectable program on Wednesday evening, July 28, consisting of the Mozart Quartet in E flat, K.428; the first performance of Block's quartet No. 4 and Beethoven's Quartet in G major, Op. 18, No. 2.

The only satisfactory recording of the Mozart K. 428 is by the Amadeus Quarter, West. 5099. The Beethoven quartets, Op. 18 have been wonderfully recorded by the Budapest String Quartet and Pascal String Quartet, the first recording for Columbia and the latter for Concert Hall Society. Which recordings are preferred is entirely a personal choice.

Following the Griller String Quartet comes the equally estimable Kroll String Quartet on Wednesday night, Aug. 4. They offer a varied program, rich in quality, consisting of Haydn's Quartet in D, Op. 64, No. 5, "The Lark"; Hindemith's Quartet No. 3 and Ravel's Quartet in F. We like the Budapest recording of the Haydn quartet which is made on Col. ML-4216.

The Fine Arts String Quartet has made an excellent record of the Hindemith Quartet, with the reverse side given over to the Ravel Quartet. This is a Mercury 10105 disc. Far superior is the performance of the Ravel Quartet by the Budapest Quartet, Col. ML-4091.

Final Program.

The final program of these chamber music recitals will be given on Wednesday night, Aug. 11 by Zino Francescatti, violinist, and Arthur Balsam, pianist. This promises to be one of the most exciting and satisfactory of concerts. The Duo will play two Brahms' sonatas, the A-major and D-major. Francescatti will play the unaccompanied Suite in C by Bach.

The two Brahms sonatas have received a highly intelligent and tonally satisfactory performances from Albert Spalding. He made these recordings for Remington, shortly before his death. Rem. 199-49.

These, then, are some of the fine recordings of works to be played during the six chamber music concerts of the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood. It is hoped that hearing these recordings will enhance the pleasure of listening to the live performances. These concerts will be given on six successive Wednesday nights, opening July 7 at 8.30 in the Theater-Concert Hall, and concluding Aug. 11.

DEVELOPMENT: On July 7 Claudio Arrau and the Bel Arte Trio will begin what is probably the most significant new development in the summer chamber music situation. They will open the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood. There have nearly always been chamber music concerts on occasional evenings during previous Berkshire Festivals, but this year is the first time they are being incorporated into the total picture as a regular festival feature widely advertised to the general public. Under the new scheme, each Wednesday night of the six-week festival period will be given over to chamber music in the Theatre-Concert Hall.

Another festival featuring a big orchestra that has made chamber music an integral part of its annual event is the Ravinia Festival in Chicago. But it is not peppering its chamber music concerts through the whole period. Instead they will be given in a group in the seventh and final week. The first six weeks will consist of programs by the Chicago Symphony, and then the Fine Arts Quartet will take over for the concerts of Aug. 10, 12, 14 and 15.

H.Y. Times - 6/27/54

MEMORIALS: One of the persons most instrumental in making chamber music a feature of summer life in New England was the late Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge and she will be remembered in several of the series. The Berkshire Quartet will give an additional concert in her honor at Music Mountain, and on Aug. 21 and 22 there will be two Coolidge memorial concerts in the auditorium she built on South Mountain near Pittsfield, Mass. These concerts will come after the regular series of six Saturday afternoon concerts to be given there jointly by the South Mountain Association, the Fromm Music Foundation and the Coolidge Foundation of the Library of Congress. Alexander Schneider, violinist, and Artur Balsam, pianist, will open the main series on July 10 with the first of three concerts in a Beethoven cycle.

GEORGE E. JUDD, manager of the Berkshire Festival Series by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in "Tanglewood," Lenox, Mass., July 10-Aug. 14, says that subscribers to the 1954 season surpass those of summer of 1953. Festival patrons have 12 instead of the usual nine concerts. In the Shed this summer. Friday night Chamber Music Concert tickets are sold separately. Conductors for the Shed Concerts by the full 104-man orchestra are Festival Music Director Charles Munch and guest conductors Pierre Monteux, Jean Morel and Richard Burgin.

Judd

THE 15th BERKSHIRE Festival in which the Boston Symphony Orchestra has participated commences on Wednesday, July 7, at 8:30 P.M., with the first of six Wednesday Chamber Music concerts in the Theater Concert Hall. Claudio Arrau, eminent Chilean concert pianist, will perform Sontas Op. 79, 110, and 57 ("Appassionata"); and the Bel Arte Trio (Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola; and Martin Hoherman, cello) will perform the String Trio in G, Op. 9 No. 1 on an all-Beethoven program.

CHARLES MUNCH will conduct a chamber section of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in an all-Bach program of Brandenburg Concertos, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 5, 6 with Lukas Foss as piano soloist at the first of six Friday chamber orchestra programs, at 8:30 P.M., in the Theater-Concert Hall, Friday, July 9.

AMONG THE season's noted soloists are Metropolitan Opera stars Eleanor Steber, soprano, and Nicola Moscona, bass-baritone; David Poleri and John McCollum, tenors; Martial Singher, baritone; Donald Gramm, bass-baritone. Piano soloists are Claudio Arrau, Lukas Foss, Vera Franceschi, Nicolo Henriot, Seymour Lipkin and Leo Smit. Violin soloists are Zino Francescatti and Ruth Posselt. Other assisting artists are Doriot Anthony, flutist; William Primrose, violist, the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society; the Albeneri Trio; the Zimbler Sinfonietta; the Griller String Quartet, and the Kroll String Quartet. In greatest demand to date is the opening weekend of the Berkshire Festival, July 9-10-11; with Series E, Aug. 7-8 and the Stravinsky-Mozart chamber orchestra program on Aug. 6, in popular favor also.

[105]

[106]

Returning to Tanglewood

Springfield Republican, 6/27/54

Well known figures returning to Tanglewood. Left to right: Hugh Ross, conductor and director of choral groups; and Ruth Posselt, noted violin soloist.

Tanglewood Subscriptions Exceed Those of Last Year

Chamber Music Concerts Start Wednesday, July 7, With Claudio Arrau as Soloist

Lenox, June 26—Subscriptions to the 1954 Berkshire Festival series by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood, for concerts held on six Saturday evenings, July 10 to Aug. 14, and on six Sunday afternoons, July 11 to Aug. 15, in the huge Music Shed, have surpassed those of the summer of 1953, manager George E. Judd announces.

Prices for the Shed concerts by the full 104-man Boston Symphony Orchestra, which music director Charles Munch conducts, with Pierre Monteux, Jean Morel and Richard Burgin as guest conductors, are one-third less this year, since the Friday night chamber orchestra concerts in the intimate Theater Concert Hall are being sold separately. Yet Festival patrons have 12, instead of nine, Shed concerts this summer. The subscription sale, officially over June 1, was extended 10 days for the convenience of Berkshire County residents.

Opening July 7

The 15th Berkshire Festival in which the Boston Symphony Orchestra has participated commences on Wednesday, July 7, at 8.30 p. m., with the first of six Wednesday chamber music concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall. Claudio Arrau, eminent Chilean concert pianist, will perform Sonatas Op. 79, 110, and 57 ("Appassionata"); and the Bel Trio (Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola; and Martin Hoherman, cello) will perform the String Trio in G, Op. 9 No. 1 on an all-Beethoven program.

Charles Munch will conduct a chamber section of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in an all-Bach program of Brandenburg Concerts, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 5, 6, with Lukas Foss as piano soloist, at the first of six Friday evening chamber orchestra programs, at 8.30 p. m., in the Theater-Concert Hall, Friday, July 9.

Among the season's noted soloists are Metropolitan Opera stars Eleanor Steber, soprano, and Nicola Moscona, bass-baritone; David Poleri and John McCollum, tenors; Martial Singher, baritone; Donald Gramm, bass baritone. Piano soloists are Claudio Arrau, Lukas Foss, Vera Franceschi, Nicole Henriot, Seymour Lipkin and Leo Smit. Violin soloists are Zino Francescatti and Ruth Posselt. Other assisting artists are Doriot Anthony, flutist; William Primrose, violist, the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society; the Albeneri Trio; the Zimbler Sinfonietta; the Griller String Quartet, and the Kroll String Quartet.

In greatest demand, to date, is the opening week end of the Berkshire Festival, July 9-10-11; with Series E, August 7-8 and the Stravinsky-Mozart chamber orchestra program on August 6, in popular favor also.

Changes Made In Tanglewood Program

THE ECHO, New Lebanon, N.Y., 6/29/54

The Music Shed At Tanglewood

Two changes in the Berkshire Festival programs to be presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, in its six-week season, July 7 to August 15, at Tanglewood, Lenox, are announced by Charles Munch, Music Director.

Instead of an all-Cesar Franck program on Saturday evening, July 17, guest conductor Pierre Monteux will substitute two selections by Claude Debussy. Excerpts from "St. Sebastian" and the tone poem "La Mer" will replace the previously programmed "Le Chausseur Maudit" and "Les Eolides" by Franck.

Mr. Munch's program of Saturday evening, August 14 in the Shed will offer Brahms' "Tragic Overture" in place of Wagner's "A Faust Overture".

The Festival's closing program, Sunday afternoon, August 15 in the Music Shed, has been designated as a memorial to Serge Koussevitzky, conductor of the Boston Symphony for 25 years, and under whose direction the Berkshire Festival grew to its present world renown and its summer school of music, the Berkshire Music Center was founded.

The Berkshire Festival also announces the summer of 1954 will witness six Saturday morning rehearsals of the full 104-man Boston Symphony Orchestra, at 10 a. m. on July 10, 17, 24, 31, August 7 and 14, to which the public is admitted at low cost with proceeds for the benefit of the Orchestra's Pension Fund.

Sale of Festival tickets is now proceeding at the Festival ticket office. For complete Festival programs, for a complete list of the summer's student concerts to which the public are admitted if they make a nominal contribution to the Society of Friends of the music school, and for price information, write the Berkshire Festival, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

B. Eagle, 6/28/54

Boston Pops To Premiere Opus By Hub Newsman

BOSTON (AP)—A newspaperman-musician's new composition will be performed on Wednesday night for the first time by the Boston Pops Orchestra in Symphony Hall here. The work is titled "The Brook and the Dragonflies."

Lucien H. Thayer, assistant managing editor of the Boston Globe, started his musical training playing the flute in the Quincy High School Orchestra and in Harvard's Pierian Sodality.

While working as a newsman, he studied harmony and piano arrangement, developed his ability to read musical scores, and learned orchestration. He also studied with Jacobus Langendoen of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Mr. Thayer also has composed "Saratoga" and "Valse Creole."

375 ENROLLED AT TANGLEWOOD SUMMER SCHOOL

Springfield Republican 6/27/54

30 Foreign Students Already Registered at the Music Center

Lenox, June 26 — Student registration at the Berkshire Music Center, the six-week summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in connection with the annual Berkshire Festival concerts, has passed the 375 mark, Miss Edith A. Bossler, registrar, reports. Additional applications are being processed daily, and the full enrollment of 400-450 will be reached before the students begin arriving from most of the 48 states, Canada and foreign countries, for the opening of the 12th season on Sunday, July 4.

30 Foreign Students

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is director of the Berkshire Music Center; composer Aaron Copland is assistant director; Ralph Berkowitz is dean; and Boston Symphony manager-elect Thomas D. Perry, Jr., is executive secretary with Gail Rector as his assistant.

Enrollment is ahead of last year, when 345 students had registered at this time. The 375 students to date include 112 with the two-year-old Dept.. 5, the Tanglewood Study Group, 35 of whom are spending the full six weeks at Tanglewood, 22 for four weeks, and 55 for two week terms. Dept. 5 offers advanced students of music, professional or amateur, an opportunity to spend their vacations in absorption of music, Lukas Foss heads the department this summer. Last year 92 students had registered in the study group by mid-June.

As against last summer's 14 foreign students, Miss Bossler reports 30 to date, 12 from Canada, four from Cuba, three each from France and Israel, one each from Japan, Korea, Holland, Hungary, Greece, South Africa, Venezuela and Haiti. The study group includes seven from Canada, one each from France and Haiti.

A mother and son are students enrolled at the Berkshire Music Center, Mrs. Keith Rogers, president of the Island Radio Broadcasting Co., and her son, William Keith Rogers, musical director of radio station CFCY, both of Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, Can. There are three husband-wife combinations, also three heads of music departments of various colleges.

Students of the Berkshire Music Center study orchestra playing and conducting under Jean Morel, of the Juilliard School of Music, New York City; chamber music under first-chair members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; choral singing and conducting under Hugh Ross; composition under Aaron Copland, Lukas Foss and guest composer Ernst Toch; opera under Frederic Cohen, of the Juilliard School; or are enrolled in the Tanglewood Study Group under Mr. Foss.

SOUTH MOUNTAIN CONCERT SEASON TO OPEN THE 19TH

Springfield Union, 6/30/54

Kroll, Juilliard Quartets, Serkin, Schneider Are Among Performers

The biggest season since 1938 is planned at South Mountain, Pittsfield, this summer. Rudolf Serkin, pianist, Alexander Schneider, violinist, the Kroll String Quartet and the Juilliard String Quartet will be among those appearing during the nine South Mountain concerts in July and August.

A series of six Saturday afternoon chamber music concerts will begin July 10 at 4 p. m., and continue on July 17, 24, 31, Aug. 7 and 14.

Alexander Schneider and Artur Balsan, pianist, will perform all the Beethoven Sonatas in a cycle of three concerts, July 10, 24, and Aug. 7.

Leontyne Price, soprano, and Samuel Barber, pianist, will present a recital July 17. Miss Price will conclude the recital with a group of Negro spirituals. Rarely heard trios for horn, violin and piano will appear on the program for July 31 performed by Schneider, Balsan and John Barrows. The Saturday series will close Aug. 14 with a concert by the Juilliard String Quartet.

As a tribute to Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Collidge, the founder, her son, Albert Sprague Coolidge, will give a festival of chamber music in her memory on Aug. 21 and 22 at 11 a. m. and 4 p. m. Among the artists participating will be Rudolf Serkin, the Kroll Quartet, a chamber orchestra from the Boston Symphony, and Alexander Schneider.

Esplanade Season Is Launched July 5

Boston Herald 6/24/54

After concluding his Silver Jubilee season as Pops conductor next Friday, Arthur Fiedler and his Boston Symphony musicians will launch into the twenty-sixth season of free Esplanade Concerts on Monday evening, July 5 at the Hatch Memorial shell, at the foot of Mt. Vernon St. There will be a radically new plan this year. Instead of being concentrated in July, the concerts will extend from July 5 through August 10. They will be played on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday evenings from 8:30 to 10:00, and on Tuesday mornings from 10:15 to 11:15. In the second half of each week the orchestra will commute to Lenox to play in the Berkshire Festival concerts at "Tanglewood" under Charles Munch. By this plan, the daytime concerts will be raised from three to six, and also July vacationists will have an opportunity to hear five evening and two daytime concerts in August. Adults are welcome at the Tuesday morning concerts, long popular with children, although the music is of general appeal. As before, the maintenance of the concerts free of admission charge is dependent on contributions to the Esplanade Concerts Fund, which may be sent to the Merchants National Bank at Copley Sq.

Program Changes At Tanglewood Are Announced

Eagle 6/30/54

Changes involving two Saturday evening programs by the Boston Symphony Orchestra during the Berkshire Festival, in the Music Shed, at Tanglewood, were announced today by Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony.

Pianist Nicole Henriot will appear with the orchestra as soloist three weeks earlier than scheduled, on Saturday evening, July 24, at the concert to be conducted by Jean Morel, performing the Liszt E flat piano concerto, which will replace the Strauss "Don Juan" previously listed.

On the concert of Aug. 14, replacing the Ravel piano concerto, Mr. Munch will conduct Ravel's "Le Tombeau de Couperin."

[107]

Millbrook Roundtable June 24, 1954

Berkshire Festival Seats On Sale at Tanglewood

Two changes in the Berkshire Festival programs to be presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in its six-week season, July 7 to August 15, at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., are announced by Charles Munch, music director.

Instead of an all-Cesar Franck program on Saturday evening, July 17 in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, guest conductor Pierre Monteux will substitute two orchestral selections by Claude Debussy. Excerpts from "St. Sebastian" and the tone poem "La Mer" will replace the previously programmed "Le Chausseur Maudit" and "Les Eolides" by Franck.

Mr. Munch's program of Saturday evening, August 14 in the Shed will offer Brahms' "Tragic Overture" in place of Wagner's "A Faust Overture."

The Festival's closing program, Sunday afternoon, August 15 in the Music Shed, has been designated as a memorial to Serge Koussevitzky, conductor of the Boston Symphony for 25 years, and under whose direction the Berkshire Festival grew to its present world renown and its summer school of music, the Berkshire Music Center was founded. For this program Charles Munch will present Hector Berlioz' massive "Requiem," with the Festival Chorus (composed of students of the Berkshire Music Center) and soloists.

Sale of Festival tickets is now proceeding at the Festival ticket office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., telephone Lenox 600. Reservations may be made by telephone or by mail order, checks accompanied by self-addressed stamped envelope made payable to Boston Symphony Orchestra, Inc.

For complete Festival programs, for a complete list of the summer's student concerts to which the public are admitted if they make a nominal contribution to the Society of Friends of the music school, and for price information, write the Berkshire Festival, Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts.

7/4, 1954

Berkshire Festival Boxholders Listed

SPRINGFIELD UNION

Western Massachusetts Residents to Hear Concerts

Many Western Massachusetts residents are among those who have taken boxes at Tanglewood for the Berkshire Festival Shed concerts on Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons, and also for Tanglewood on Parade, which is Friday, Aug. 13.

Included are Eldon V. Johnson of Granby, Conn., president of the U. S. Envelope Co., in this city, Samuel Block of Springfield, Mrs. Robert A. Arms of Blandford, Mrs. Wil[illegible] Barre of Great Barrington, [illegible] James Putney Baxter III, [illegible] Bla[illegible] and Roger D. Cane of Wa[illegible] Mrs. Manuel Goode of New Y[illegible] and Stockbridge, Mrs. Bruce [illegible] and Washington, M. Crabe, [illegible] Detroit.

Also, Mrs. Francis Cooke[illegible] of Florida and Marblehead, Mrs. Davis Dunbar of Stockbridge and M. s. Charles C. Griswold of New York [illegible] Stockbridge, Mrs. Milton [illegible] New York and Lenox, Walter Hoving, Elm C[illegible] and Mrs. [illegible] of New [illegible] Kennedy of Stockbridge, Mrs. [illegible] Washington, and Mrs. [illegible]bridge, and Mrs. Serge Koussevitsky of Lenox.

Mrs. George Otis Rockwood of Stockbridge, also has taken a box, as have M.A. Donald Ryan of Stockbridge and New York, Mrs. Bruce W. Sanborn, Lenox and St. Paul, Minn., Mrs. John [illegible] Lenox and New York, Miss Gertrude Rogerson Smith of Great Barrington, George [illegible] Sokolsky of New York and Otis, Richard L. Snowden of New York and Great Barrington, Dr. Walter Von Hess[illegible] Boston, and Robert [illegible] of Great Barrington.

Among others are Mrs. Lowell Thomas of Pawling, N. Y., Mrs. Donald [illegible] Warner of Salisbury, Conn., Mrs. [illegible] B. Fleming of Great Barrington, Gordon Mendelssohn of Millbrook, N. Y., Mrs. Rodney Procter of Palm Beach and Stockbridge, Miss Edith Scoville of Salisbury, Conn., and New York.

Returning to Tanglewood

Springfield Republican, 6/27/54

Well known figures returning to Tanglewood. Left to right: Hugh Ross, conductor and director of choral groups; and Ruth Posselt, noted violin soloist.

Tanglewood Subscriptions Exceed Those of Last Year

Chamber Music Concerts Start Wednesday, July 7, With Claudio Arrau as Soloist

Lenox, June 26—Subscriptions to the 1954 Berkshire Festival series by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood, for concerts held on six Saturday evenings, July 10 to Aug. 14, and on six Sunday afternoons, July 11 to Aug. 15, in the huge Music Shed, have surpassed those of the summer of 1953, manager George E. Judd announces.

Prices for the Shed concerts by the full 104-man Boston Symphony Orchestra, which music director Charles Munch conducts, with Pierre Monteux, Jean Morel and Richard Burgin as guest conductors, are one-third less this year, since the Friday night chamber orchestra concerts in the intimate Theater Concert Hall are being sold separately. Yet Festival patrons have 12, instead of nine, Shed concerts this summer. The subscription sale, officially over June 1, was extended 10 days for the convenience of Berkshire County residents.

Opening July 7

The 15th Berkshire Festival in which the Boston Symphony Orchestra has participated commences on Wednesday, July 7, at 8.30 p. m., with the first of six Wednesday chamber music concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall. Claudio Arrau, eminent Chilean concert pianist, will perform Sonatas Op. 79- 110, and 57 ("Appassionata"); and the Bel Trio (Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola; and Martin Hoherman, cello) will perform the String Trio in G, Op. 9 No. 1 on an all-Beethoven program.

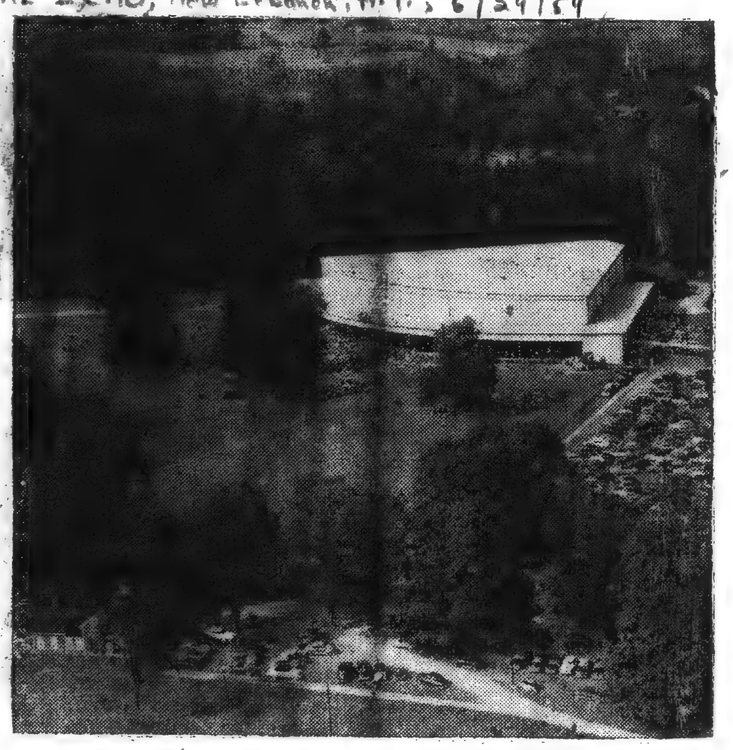
Charles Munch will conduct a chamber section of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in an all-Bach program of Brandenburg Concerts, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 5, 6, with Lukas Foss as piano soloist, at the first of six Friday evening chamber orchestra programs, at 8.30 p. m., in the Theater-Concert Hall, Friday, July 9.

Among the season's noted soloists are Metropolitan Opera stars Eleanor Steber, soprano, and Nicola Moscona, bass-baritone; David Poleri and John McCollum, tenors; Martial Singher, baritone; Donald Gramm, bass baritone. Piano soloists are Claudio Arrau, Lukas Foss, Vera Franceschi, Nicole Henriot, Seymour Lipkin and Leo Smit. Violin soloists are Zino Francescatti and Ruth Posselt. Other assisting artists are Doriot Anthony, flutist; William Primrose, violist, the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society; the Albeneri Trio; the Zimbler Sinfonietta; the Griller String Quartet, and the Kroll String Quartet.

In greatest demand, to date, is the opening week end of the Berkshire Festival, July 9-10-11; with Series E, August 7-8 and the Stravinsky-Mozart chamber orchestra program on August 6, in popular favor also.

Changes Made In Tanglewood Program

THE ECHO, New Lebanon, N.Y., 6/29/54



The Music Shed At Tanglewood

Two changes in the Berkshire Festival programs to be presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, in its six-week season, July 7 to August 15, at Tanglewood, Lenox, are announced by Charles Munch, Music Director.

Instead of an all-Cesar Franck program on Saturday evening, July 17, guest conductor Pierre Monteux will substitute two selections by Claude Debussy. Excerpts from "St. Sebastian" and the tone poem "La Mer" will replace the previously programmed "Le Chausseur Maudit" and "Les Eolides" by Franck.

Mr. Munch's program of Saturday evening, August 14 in the Shed will offer Brahms' "Tragic Overture" in place of Wagner's "A Faust Overture".

The Festival's closing program, Sunday afternoon, August 15 in the Music Shed, has been designated as a memorial to Serge Koussevitzky, conductor of the Boston Symphony for 25 years, and under whose direction the Berkshire Festival grew to its present world renown and its summer school of music, the Berkshire Music Center was founded.

The Berkshire Festival also announces the summer of 1954 will witness six Saturday morning rehearsals of the full 104-man Boston Symphony Orchestra, at 10 a. m. on July 10, 17, 24, 31, August 7 and 14, to which the public is admitted at low cost with proceeds for the benefit of the Orchestra's Pension Fund.

Sale of Festival tickets is now proceeding at the Festival ticket office. For complete Festival programs, for a complete list of the summer's student concerts to which the public are admitted if they make a nominal contribution to the Society of Friends of the music school, and for price information, write the Berkshire Festival, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

Boston Pops To Premiere Opus By Hub Newsman

B. Eagle, 6/28/54

BOSTON (AP)—A newspaperman-musician's new composition will be performed on Wednesday night for the first time by the Boston Pops Orchestra in Symphony Hall here. The work is titled "The Brook and the Dragonflies."

Lucien H. Thayer, assistant managing editor of the Boston Globe, started his musical training playing the flute in the Quincy High School Orchestra and in Harvard's Pierian Sodality.

While working as a newsman, he studied harmony and piano arrangement, developed his ability to read musical scores, and learned orchestration. He also studied with Jacobus Langendoen of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Mr. Thayer also has composed "Saratoga" and "Valse Creole."

375 ENROLLED AT TANGLEWOOD SUMMER SCHOOL

Springfield Republican 6/27/54

30 Foreign Students Already Registered at the Music Center

Lenox, June 26 — Student registration at the Berkshire Music Center, the six-week summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in connection with the annual Berkshire Festival concerts, has passed the 375 mark, Miss Edith A. Bossler, registrar, reports. Additional applications are being processed daily, and the full enrollment of 400-450 will be reached before the students begin arriving from most of the 48 states, Canada and foreign countries, for the opening of the 12th season on Sunday, July 4.

30 Foreign Students

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is director of the Berkshire Music Center; composer Aaron Copland is assistant director; Ralph Berkowitz is dean; and Boston Symphony manager-elect Thomas D. Perry, Jr., is executive secretary with Gail Rector as his assistant.

Enrollment is ahead of last year, when 345 students had registered at this time. The 375 students to date include 112 with the two-year-old Dept.. 5, the Tanglewood Study Group, 35 of whom are spending the full six weeks at Tanglewood, 22 for four weeks, and 55 for two week terms. Dept. 5 offers advanced students of music, professional or amateur, an opportunity to spend their vacations in absorption of music, Lukas Foss heads the department this summer. Last year 92 students had registered in the study group by mid-June.

As against last summer's 14 foreign students, Miss Bossler reports 30 to date, 12 from Canada, four from Cuba, three each from France and Israel, one each from Japan, Korea, Holland, Hungary, Greece, South Africa, Venezuela and Haiti. The study group includes seven from Canada, one each from France and Haiti.

A mother and son are students enrolled at the Berkshire Music Center, Mrs. Keith Rogers, president of the Island Radio Broadcasting Co., and her son, William Keith Rogers, musical director of radio station CFCY, both of Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, Can. There are three husband-wife combinations, also three heads of music departments of various colleges.

Students of the Berkshire Music Center study orchestra playing and conducting under Jean Morel, of the Juilliard School of Music, New York City; chamber music under first-chair members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; choral singing and conducting under Hugh Ross; composition under Aaron Copland, Lukas Foss and guest composer Ernst Toch; opera under Frederic Cohen, of the Juilliard School; or are enrolled in the Tanglewood Study Group under Mr. Foss.

SOUTH MOUNTAIN CONCERT SEASON TO OPEN THE 19TH

Springfield Union, 6/30/54

Kroll, Juilliard Quartets, Serkin, Schneider Are Among Performers

The biggest season since 1938 is planned at South Mountain, Pittsfield, this summer. Rudolf Serkin, pianist, Alexander Schneider, violinist, the Kroll String Quartet and the Juilliard String Quartet will be among those appearing during the nine South Mountain concerts in July and August.

A series of six Saturday afternoon chamber music concerts will begin July 10 at 4 p. m., and continue on July 17, 24, 31, Aug. 7 and 14.

Alexander Schneider and Artur Balsan, pianist, will perform all the Beethoven Sonatas in a cycle of three concerts, July 10, 24, and Aug. 7.

Leontyne Price, soprano, and Samuel Barber, pianist, will present a recital July 17. Miss Price will conclude the recital with a group of Negro spirituals. Rarely heard trios for horn, violin and piano will appear on the program for July 31 performed by Schneider, Balsan and John Barrows. The Saturday series will close Aug. 14 with a concert by the Juilliard String Quartet.

As a tribute to Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge, the founder, her son, Albert Sprague Coolidge, will give a festival of chamber music in her memory on Aug. 21 and 22 at 11 a. m. and 4 p. m. Among the artists participating will be Rudolf Serkin, the Kroll Quartet, a chamber orchestra from the Boston Symphony and Alexander Schneider.

Esplanade Season Is Launched July 5

Boston Herald, 6/24/54

After concluding his Silver Jubilee season as Pops conductor next Friday, Arthur Fiedler and his Boston Symphony musicians will launch into the twenty-sixth season of free Esplanade Concerts on Monday evening, July 5 at the Hatch Memorial shell, at the foot of Mt. Vernon St. There will be a radically new plan this year. Instead of being concentrated in July, the concerts will extend from July 5 through August 10. They will be played on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday evenings from 8:30 to 10:00, and on Tuesday mornings from 10:15 to 11:15. In the second half of each week the orchestra will commute to Lenox to play in the Berkshire Festival concerts at "Tanglewood" under Charles Munch. By this plan, the daytime concerts will be raised from three to six, and also July vacationists will have an opportunity to hear five evening and two daytime concerts in August. Adults are welcome at the Tuesday morning concerts, long popular with children, although the music is of general appeal. As before, the maintenance of the concerts free of admission charge is dependent on contributions to the Esplanade Concerts Fund, which may be sent to the Merchants National Bank at Copley Sq.

Program Changes At Tanglewood Are Announced

Eagle 6/30/54

Changes involving two Saturday evening programs by the Boston Symphony Orchestra during the Berkshire Festival, in the Music Shed, at Tanglewood, were announced today by Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony.

Pianist Nicole Henriot will appear with the orchestra as soloist three weeks earlier than scheduled, on Saturday evening, July 24, at the concert to be conducted by Jean Morel, performing the Liszt E flat piano concerto, which will replace the Strauss "Don Juan" previously listed.

On the concert of Aug. 14, replacing the Ravel piano concerto, Mr. Munch will conduct Ravel's "Le Tombeau de Couperin."

Millbrook Roundtable
June 24, 1954

Berkshire Festival Seats On Sale at Tanglewood

Two changes in the Berkshire Festival programs to be presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in its six-week season, July 7 to August 15, at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., are announced by Charles Munch, music director.

Instead of an all-Cesar Franck program on Saturday evening, July 17 in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, guest conductor Pierre Monteux will substitute two orchestral selections by Claude Debussy. Excerpts from "St. Sebastian" and the tone poem "La Mer" will replace the previously programmed "Le Chausseur Maudit" and "Les Eolides" by Franck.

Mr. Munch's program of Saturday evening, August 14 in the Shed will offer Brahms' "Tragic Overture" in place of Wagner's "A Faust Overture."

The Festival's closing program, Sunday afternoon, August 15 in the Music Shed, has been designated as a memorial to Serge Koussevitzky, conductor of the Boston Symphony for 25 years, and under whose direction the Berkshire Festival grew to its present world renown and its summer school of music, the Berkshire Music Center was founded. For this program Charles Munch will present Hector Berlioz' massive "Requiem," with the Festival Chorus (composed of students of the Berkshire Music Center) and soloists.

Sale of Festival tickets is now proceeding at the Festival ticket office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., telephone Lenox 600. Reservations may be made by telephone or by mail order, checks accompanied by self-addressed stamped envelope made payable to Boston Symphony Orchestra, Inc.

For complete Festival programs, for a complete list of the summer's student concerts to which the public are admitted if they make a nominal contribution to the Society of Friends of the music school, and for price information, write the Berkshire Festival, Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts.

Berkshire Festival Boxholders Listed

SPRINGFIELD UNION

Western Massachusetts Residents to Hear Concerts

Many Western Massachusetts residents are among those who have [illegible] at Tanglewood for the Berkshire Festival concerts on Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Tanglewood is [illegible]

Fri 6/18/54

Inc. of [illegible] Sa [illegible] Re [illegible] Wa [illegible] Ch [illegible] B [illegible] of [illegible] N [illegible] B [illegible] of [illegible] M [illegible] Bach Sergi [illegible] Pitts [illegible] Conn [illegible] Stoc [illegible] Bride [illegible] Pitts [illegible] Conn [illegible] Great [illegible] deissohn Rodney and Stock [illegible] ville of York

New York

ague Coolidge, will chambar music
Aug. 21 and 22
Among the will be Ru-
Kroll Quartet, a
from the Bosand Alexander

ooh Roundtable
ne 24, 1954

Festival Seats
Tanglewood

es in the Berkshire
rams to be presented
Symphony Orches-
week season, July 7
5, at Tanglewood,
are announced by
h, music director.
an all-Cesar Franck
turday evening, July ic Shed at Tangle-
nductor Pierre Mon-
titute two orchestral
Claude Debussy. Ex-
'St. Sebastian" and
"La Mer" will re-
viously programmed Maudit" and "Les
ranck.
program of Saturugust 14 in the Shed
hms' "Tragic Over-
e of Wagner's "A
e."
l's closing program,
oon, August 15 in
ed, has been desig-
memorial to Serge
conductor of the ny for 25 years, and direction the Berk-
grew to its present
and its summer
sic, the Berkshire
was founded. For
Charles Munch will
r Berlioz' massive ith the Festival
osed of students of
Music Center) and

ival tickets is now
the Festival ticket
ood, Lenox, Mass.,
x 600. Reservations
by telephone or by cks accompanied by stamped envelope
o Boston Symphony

Festival programs,
list of the summer's
s to which the pub-
ed if they make a bution to the So-
nds of the music
price information,
shire Festival, Tan-
Massachusetts

1954 e Festival
lers Listed
FIELD UNION
ssachusetts Res-
Hear Concerts

ern Massachusetts
among those who
xes at Tanglewood
hire Festival Shed
turday evenings and oons, and also for Parade, which is 3.

Eldon V. Johnson
n., president of the
e Co., in this city,
of Springfield, Mrs.
s of Blandford, Mrs.
rrett of Great Bar-
ames Phinney Bax-
lamstown, Alan J.
eld, Roger D. Cane
ss Mabel Choate of Stockbridge, Mrs.
and Winthrop M.
lton.
rancis Crowinshield
Marblehead, Mrs.
of Stockbridge, and
C. Griswold of New
ckbridge, Mrs. Mil-
of New York and
nox, Walter Hoving
and Stockbridge.
Karrick of Stock-
shington, and Mrs.
itsky of Lenox.
Otis Rockwood of
so has taken a box.
Donald Ryan of
New York, Mrs.
Lenox and St.
rs. John L. Senior,
York, Miss Ger-
Smith of Glendale,
elsky of New York
d L. Strobridge of
Great Barrington,
Horst of Housaert K. Wheeler of n.
s are Mrs. Lowell
wling, N. Y., Mrs.
rner of Salisbury,
ames B. Manning of rton, Gordon Men-
llbrook, N. Y., Mrs.
or of Palm Beach
Miss Edith Scory, Conn., and New

1954

N.Y. Times
June 29, 1954

34 C

N. B. C.-TV TO GIVE TWO NEW OPERAS

Station Commissions Work by Hollingsworth—Foss Opus Has Folk Basis

The first performances of new operas by Stanley Hollingsworth and Lukas Foss are planned as highlights of the 1954-55 season of the N. B. C. Television Opera Theatre, it was announced yesterday by Samuel Chotzinoff, producer.

Mr. Hollingsworth's opera, which was commissioned by N. B. C., is to be based on a short story by Balzac, "La Grande Bretèche." The composer, who received his commission two weeks ago, expects to have a first draft of the opera completed in January. The libretto as well as the music will be by Mr. Hollingsworth.

The Foss opera, as yet untitled, is to be a libretto by Alastair Reid, based on a German folk-legend. The opera, in three acts, is the story of a devil who loses his delishness by doing a good deed, thus becoming a human being. As a small boy in Germany, Mr. Foss heard this tale from his mother. He later suggested it to Mr. Reid as a libretto subject.

Both composers are graduates of the Curtis Institute of Music. Mr. Foss studied there with Rosario Scalero and later continued his studies with Paul Hindemith. Mr. Hollingsworth, a native of California, studied with Gian-Carlo Menotti. His first opera, "The Story of a Mother," was produced in March at the Curtis Institute. An earlier opera by Mr. Foss, "The Jumping Frog of Calaveras County," has received a number of performances in this country.

The fifth season of N. B. C. Television Opera Theatre will begin in October or November, Mr. Chotzinoff said. Although dates for performances have not been set officially, N. B. C. opera performances in past seasons generally have taken place on week-ends.

In addition to the two new operas, tentative plans call for performances of "Tosca," in a new English translation by John Gutman; "The Escape From the Seraglio," "Fidelio," "Billy Budd" and "Amahl and the Night Visitors."

Also planned is a production of "Ariadne" in its original version. According to Peter Herman Adler, musical director of the N. B. C. opera telecasts, it will be the first performance in this country of the Strauss work in its earliest form.

Mr. Chotzinoff also announced that he would go to Europe this summer to see Benjamin Britten's latest opera, "The Turn of the Screw," which will be considered as a possibility for the N. B. C. opera series.

Guest

Charles Munch, music directo... Symphony Orchestra, will direct its... Lenox, in its 17th season. Mr. Mu... shire Music Center, the summer sch... tion with the Berkshire Festival.

17th Berkshire F... With Beethover...

The 17th Berkshire Festival ... since concerts were inaugurated ... in the hills of Western Massa... chusetts in 1934, the fifteenth ... since the Boston Symphony ... Orchestra first participated, will ... commence six weeks of 24 con... certs on Wednesday evening ... (July 7) at 8:30 p.m. in the ... Theatre-Concert Hall at Tangle... wood, Lenox, Mass., with an all-... Beethoven program of chamber ... music, featuring Claudio Arrau, ... pianist, and the Bel Arte string ... trio.

On Friday (July 9) also at ... 8:30 p.m. in the Theatre-Concert ... Hall, Charles Munch, music di... rector of the Boston Symphony ... Orchestra, will conduct a cham... ber orchestra of Boston Sym... phony players in an all-Bach pro... gram with Lukas Foss as piano ... soloist.

For the first time in Berkshire ... Festival history, Saturday eve... ning and Sunday afternoon con... certs will be given commencing ... the opening weekend, July 10 at ... 8:30 p.m. and July 11 at 2:30 ... p.m. in the Music Shed. Mr. ... Munch will lead the full 101-... piece Boston Symphony Orches... tra on Saturday evening in the ... first Tanglewood presentation of ... Hector Berlioz' "The Damna... tion of Faust," with the Harvard ... and Radcliffe Choral ... Society directed by G. Wallace ... Woodworth, and ... Jennie Tourel (Mar... guerite), David ... Poleri (Faust), ... Lorenzo Fuchilo... (Mephistopheles) and Donald Gramm ... (Brander).

On Sunday afternoon guest ... conductor Pierre Monteux will ... direct the full Boston Sym... phony in an all-Beethoven pro... gram, with Claudio Arrau as ... soloist, on the occasion marking ... the 25th anniversary of Mr. ... Munch's first appearance with ... the orchestra.

tee, will preside. Composer Aaron Copland, who is assistant director of the school, will introduce the faculty.

As at every opening of the school since its founding under the direction of the late Dr. Serge Koussevitzky in 1940, Randall Thompson's "Alleluia," composed for the first opening of the school, will be sunng by the students. Hugh Ross, head of the choral department, will conduct.

Tea will be served in the Tanglewood formal gardens following the exercises.

The first school performance will be given Thursday, July 8, at 8:30 p.m. in the Music Shed, when for the first time the symphony orchestra of 100 students in department one will play together.

The first of six weekly chamber music concerts will be given by students of department one in the Chamber Music Hall Sunday morning, July 11, at 10 a.m. Sunday evening, July 11, at 8:30 p.m., also in the Chamber Music Hall, will bring the first composers' forum by students of department three studying with Aaron Copland, Lukas Foss and guest composer Ernst Toch. Their works will be performed by fellow students and commented upon.

Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, whose contributions help to support the school, are invited to all student concerts.

A PERFECT VACATION

. . . for every taste

. . . for every mood

. . . for every budget

THE BERKSHIRE HILLS OF MASSACHUSETTS

WHAT'S YOUR PLEASURE? The beautiful Berkshires offer an abundance of wonderful things to do and fascinating places to go. For example, if you are sports minded, there are 13 magnificent golf courses, offering you a wide diversity of challenges. Then there are the weekly Polo Matches at Pittsfield, the numberless hills and mountains for climbers, plenty of top-notch tennis courts where pro and amateur alike can find hours of sun-bathed fun. Many Berkshire inns and hotels offer horseback riding and hiking, and of course, in season, there's plenty of skiing and skating too! Countless lakes, dotting the pleasant Berkshire countryside, provide splendid opportunities for sailing. And there are 112 brooks and streams abounding in wondrous variety of game fish. Yes, whatever your sporting pleasure, the Berkshire Hills has it!

QUAINT, AIN'T IT? For the seeker of out-of-the-ordinary vacation fun, the Berkshire Hills provide many truly different sources of pleasure. Visitors will want to see the Great Barrington Fair, probably the most typical old-fashioned country fair in the East, where horse-racing, agricultural exhibits and midway fun abound. And at picturesque Jacob's Ladder, you'll find the famous summer long Dance festival, under the direction of Ted Shawn. If you seek a bit of diversification, you can leave this wonderful dance center where outstanding performers appear regularly, and make a side trip to South Lee where you'll find Beartown Mountain and State Forest. Or perhaps you're in the mood for visiting Williamstown, generally regarded as one of the most beautiful villages in all New England. Student guides will escort you on a visit through lovely Williams College. Possibly you may want to continue your "out-of-the-ordinary" explorations and take the children to visit the Crane Museum at Dalton where the romance and history of paper-making are presented in a most interesting manner. Indeed, the Berkshire Hills will seem to roll on and on, beckoning pleasantly, always holding more adventure, more enjoyment in store for you!

MUSIC HATH CHARMS. Of course, one Berkshire Hills attraction that needs little expansion here is the world-renowned Tanglewood Music Festival. Here, thousands upon thousands of music lovers make an annual pilgrimage to enjoy the magnificent combination of great music in a setting of natural splendor. Under the sweeping expanse of the Music Shed, the incomparable Boston Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Munch, gives the Bach-Mozart concerts followed by the Festival Series itself. Yes, July and August will see great music being made! Interspersed with the Festival are student concerts at the Tanglewood Music Center. Here, world famous conductors take the rostrum to direct operas, symphonies and other compositions including an occasional world premiere.

As noted previously, the Dance Festival at Jacob's Pillow offers a perfect companion piece to the music Festival. If music is your love, you'll love the Berkshires!

FROM NEW YORK ➔ 3 HOURS ➔ FROM BOSTON

ague Coolidge, will
of chamber music on Aug. 21 and 22
4 p.m. Among the ting will be Ru-
Kroll Quartet, a tra from the Bost
and Alexander

ook Roundtable
ne 24, 1954

Festival Seats
Tanglewood

es in the Berkshire
rams to be presented
Symphony Orches-
week season, July 7
5, at Tanglewood,
are announced by
h, music director.
an all-Cesar Franck
aturday evening, July sic Shed at Tangle-
nductor Pierre Mon-
titute two orchestral
Claude Debussy. Ex-
"St. Sebastian" and
"La Mer" will re-
viously programmed r Maudit" and "Les
ranck.
program of Satur-
ugust 14 in the Shed
hms' "Tragic Over-
e of Wagner's "A
e."
's closing program,
noon, August 15 in
ed, has been desig-
memorial to Serge
conductor of the
ony for 25 years, and
direction the Berk-
grew to its present
and its summer
sic, the Berkshire
was founded. For
Charles Munch will
r Berlioz' massive
ith the Festival
osed of students of
Music Center) and

ival tickets is now
the Festival ticket
ood, Lenox, Mass.,
x 600. Reservations
by telephone or by cks accompanied by stamped envelope
o Boston Symphony

Festival programs,
list of the summer's
s to which the pub-
ed if they make a bution to the So-
nds of the music
price information,
shire Festival, Tan-
Massachusetts

1954 é Festival
lers Listed
ELD UNION
ssachusetts Res-
Hear Concerts
ern Massachusetts
among those who
xes at Tanglewood
hire Festival Shed
urday evenings and
bons, and also for
Parade, which is 3.

Eldon V. Johnson
n., president of the
e Co., in this city,
of Springfield, Mrs.
s of Blandford, Mrs.
rrett of Great Bar-
ames Phinney Bax-
liamstown, Alan J.
eld, Roger D. Cane
iss Mabel Choate of d Stockbridge, Mrs.
and Winthrop M.
lton.
Francis Crowinshield
d Marblehead, Mrs.
of Stockbridge, and
C. Griswold of New
ckbridge, Mrs. Mil-
of New York and
enox, Walter Hoving
and Stockbridge,
Karrick of Stock-
ashington, and Mrs.
itsky of Lenox.
Otis Rockwood of
so has taken a box,
Donald Ryan of
New York. Mrs.
Lenox and St.
Irs. John L. Senior,
York, Miss Ger-
Smith of Glendale,
olsky of New York
d L. Strobridge of Great Barrington,
Horst of Housa-
bert K. Wheeler of
on.
s are Mrs. Lowell
wling, N. Y., Mrs.
rner of Salisbury,
ames B. Manning of gton, Gordon Men-
llbrook, N. Y., Mrs.
or of Palm Beach
ge, Miss Edith Scory, Conn., and New

N.Y. Times
June 29, 1954

C

N. B. C.-TV TO GIVE
TWO NEW OPERAS

Commissions Work
ngsworth—Foss
Has Folk Basis

[illegible] operas of new season. He announced th
[illegible] are planned as [illegible] of the 1954-5 season
N. B. C. Television Opera
[illegible] announced yes
[illegible] Samuel Chotzinoff.

Hollingsworth's opera
[illegible] commissioned by [illegible] to be based on a short [illegible] Balzac, "La Grande
[illegible] The composer, who [illegible] has commissioned two [illegible] expects to have t
[illegible] the opera completed
[illegible] The libretto as well
[illegible] music will be by Mr. Hol-
[illegible]

Foss's opera, as yet untitled,
[illegible] a libretto by Alastair
[illegible] on a German folk-
[illegible] The opera, in three acts
[illegible] of a devil who loses
[illegible] mistress by doing a good [illegible] by becoming a human [illegible] a small boy in Ger-
[illegible] Mr. Foss heard this tale
[illegible] stories. He later sug-
[illegible] Mr. Reid as a libretto

[illegible] composers are graduates
[illegible] Curtis Institute of Music
[illegible] Philadelphia, there with Bo-
[illegible] Sekofi and later continued
[illegible] studies with Paul Hindemith [illegible] Hollingsworth, a native of [illegible] California studied with Gian[illegible] Carlo Menotti. His first opera, [illegible] "The Story of a Mother," was [illegible] produced in March at the Curtis [illegible] Institute. An earlier opera by [illegible] Mr. Foss, "The Jumping Frog of [illegible] Calaveras County," has received [illegible] a number of performances in this [illegible] country.

The fifth season of N. B. C.
Television Opera Theatre will begin in October or November,
Mr. Chotzinoff said. Although dates for performances have not been set officially, N. B. C. opera performances in past seasons generally have taken place on weekends.

In addition to the two new operas, tentative plans call for performances of "Tosca," in a new English translation by John Gutman; "The Escape From the Seraglio," "Fidelio," "Billy Budd" and "Amahl and the Night Visitors."

Also planned is a production of
"Ariadne" in its original version.
According to Peter Herman Adler, musical director of the N. B. C. opera telecasts, it will be the first performance in this country of the Strauss work in its earliest form.

Mr. Chotzinoff also announced that he would go to Europe this summer to see Benjamin Brit-ten's latest opera, "The Turn of the Screw," which will be considered as a possibility for the N. B. C. opera series.

1954

Berkshire Hills

Berkshire Music Festival
Tanglewood

IN MASSACHUSETTS

Y, JUNE 28, 1954.

Munch
Sym-
Fantas-
; the Bene-
"Har-Prim-
25; the 20 and form of the and
a. Mos-
; the ellini," from cycle leanor
"Te
horus
Aug. with y of with David

kshire

p.m., mber
io in Arte
Jo-
artin
Piano
p. 57
Ar-

p.m., mber
burg
2, in oists
Or-lute, ger
gin,
No.
solo-
An-din;
ries

...m., ony
ma-ard iffe

tee, will preside. Composer Aaron Copland, who is assistant director of the school, will introduce the faculty.

As at every opening of the school since its founding under the direction of the late Dr. Serge Koussevitzky in 1940, Randall Thompson's "Alleluia," composed for the first opening of the school, will be sung by the students. Hugh Ross, head of the choral department, will conduct.

Tea will be served in the Tanglewood formal gardens following the exercises.

The first school performance will be given Thursday, July 8, at 8:30 p.m. in the Music Shed, when for the first time the symphony orchestra of 100 students in department one will play together.

The first of six weekly chamber music concerts will be given by students of department one in the Chamber Music Hall Sunday morning, July 11, at 10 a.m. Sunday evening, July 11, at 8:30 p.m., also in the Chamber Music Hall, will bring the first composers' forum by students of department three studying with Aaron Copland, Lukas Foss and guest composer Ernst Toch. Their works will be performed by fellow students and commented upon.

Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, whose contributions help to support the school, are invited to all student concerts.

A PERFECT VACATION

. . . for every taste

. . . for every mood

. . . for every budget

THE BERKSHIRE HILLS OF MASSACHUSETTS

WHAT'S YOUR PLEASURE? The beautiful Berkshires offer an abundance of wonderful things to do and fascinating places to go. For example, if you are sports minded, there are 13 magnificent golf courses, offering you a wide diversity of challenges. Then there are the weekly Polo Matches at Pittsfield, the numberless hills and mountains for climbers, plenty of top-notch tennis courts where pro and amateur alike can find hours of sun-bathed fun. Many Berkshire inns and hotels offer horseback riding and hiking, and of course, in season, there's plenty of skiing and skating too! Countless lakes, dotting the pleasant Berkshire countryside, provide splendid opportunities for sailing. And there are 112 brooks and streams abounding in wondrous variety of game fish. Yes, whatever your sporting pleasure, the Berkshire Hills has it!

QUAINT, AIN'T IT? For the seeker of out-of-the-ordinary vacation fun, the Berkshire Hills provide many truly different sources of pleasure. Visitors will want to see the Great Barrington Fair, probably the most typical old-fashioned country fair in the East, where horse-racing, agricultural exhibits and midway fun abound. And at picturesque Jacob's Ladder, you'll find the famous summer long Dance festival, under the direction of Ted Shawn. If you seek a bit of diversification, you can leave this wonderful dance center where outstanding performers appear regularly, and make a side trip to South Lee where you'll find Beartown Mountain and State Forest. Or perhaps you're in the mood for visiting Williamstown, generally regarded as one of the most beautiful villages in all New England. Student guides will escort you on a visit through lovely Williams College. Possibly you may want to continue your "out-of-the-ordinary" explorations and take the children to visit the Crane Museum at Dalton where the romance and history of paper-making are presented in a most interesting manner. Indeed, the Berkshire Hills will seem to roll on and on, beckoning pleasantly, always holding more adventure, more enjoyment in store for you!

MUSIC HATH CHARMS. Of course, one Berkshire Hills attraction that needs little expansion here is the world-renowned Tanglewood Music Festival. Here, thousands upon thousands of music lovers make an annual pilgrimage to enjoy the magnificent combination of great music in a setting of natural splendor. Under the sweeping expanse of the Music Shed, the incomparable Boston Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Munch, gives the Bach-Mozart concerts followed by the Festival Series itself. Yes, July and August will see great music being made! Interspersed with the Festival are student concerts at the Tanglewood Music Center. Here, world famous conductors take the rostrum to direct operas, symphonies and other compositions including an occasional world premiere.

As noted previously, the Dance Festival at Jacob's Pillow offers a perfect companion piece to the music Festival. If music is your love, you'll love the Berkshires!

FROM NEW YORK ➔ 3 HOURS ➔ FROM BOSTON

Enjoy a Glorious Vacation in the...

Berkshire Hills

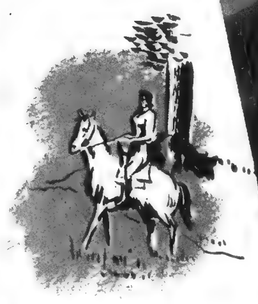
All year-round, the most accessible, attractive and complete vacation area. Its natural beauty, Historic points of interest, sports facilities, cultural attractions, picnic areas and roadside snack tables, make it a perfect vacation paradise.

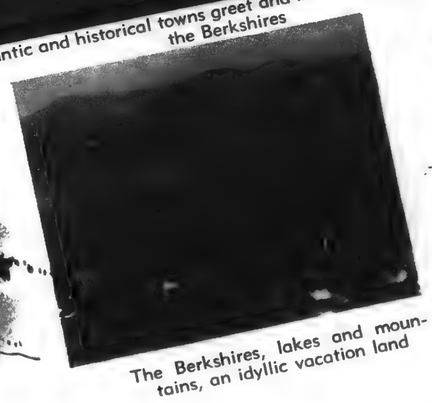
Romantic and historical towns greet and intrigue you all through the Berkshires

Well marked and paved scenic roads and highways await you, throughout the Berkshires

Many beautiful lakes, nestled in the Berkshire Hills

Exciting sport fishing is yours, along the many streams





The Berkshires, lakes and mountains, an idyllic vacation land

US-COLORPRINT
PRODUCTION BY H. W. HANNAU
(ROBINSONS COLOR PROCESS)

For Further Information, Write BERKSHIRE HILLS CONFERENCE, Pittsfield, Massachusetts

A BERKSHIRE HILLS VACATION FOR LIMITLESS FUN AND ACTIVITIES

BEAUTIFUL STATE FORESTS AND RESERVATIONS
MOUNTAIN TRAILS AND QUAINT INNS
MUSEUMS, MODERN AND ANTIQUE
13 GREAT GOLF COURSES
LUXURIOUS HOTELS, MODERN MOTELS
FRIENDLY GUEST HOUSES

For sun-filled days, fun-filled nights, the Berkshire Hills have no equal. If you're in the mood for peaceful relaxation, you'll find many an idyllic spot to suit you . . . or, should you prefer gay activities, a constant round of enjoyable things to do, you'll agree the Berkshires has more to offer. Indeed, no matter what your vacation desire, here among the snug green hills of Western Massachusetts you will find the happiest hours you've ever spent!

112 BROOKS AND STREAMS TO DELIGHT THE FISHERMAN—COUNTY FAIR RACING
COUNTLESS LAKES FOR ALL WATER SPORTS
COOL, SHADED PICNIC GROVES
ART, MUSIC AND DANCE CENTERS
SPORTS LODGES, HORSE SHOWS

The Berkshire Hills abound in natural attractions which hold great fascination for those who love to roam in the midst of forests, or along winding mountain trails or over gently rolling hills beyond which lie a vista of great charm. Here the explorer will find ample picnic facilities, barbecue pits and plenty of play areas for the kiddies. Here too is majestic Mount Greylock, highest peak in the Region towering over the famous Mohawk Trail. The Trail, of course, is an adventure in itself, so replete is it with breathtaking scenery. Yes, there's adventure on the high ledges, the picturesque road, spectacular Hairpin Turn and in the sheer beauty of Nature's glory. Summer's greenery may turn to riotous combination of russet, yellow and gold, but the Mohawk Trail beckons endlessly, timelessly.

MODERN, SAFE HIGHWAYS - EASILY APPROACHED FROM ALL DIRECTIONS
A WIDE SELECTION OF FAMOUS RESTAURANTS
UNEQUALLED SCENERY - EVERY SEASON OF THE YEAR—HONEYMOONERS' HAVEN
ROMANTIC, MEMORY-MAKING VISTAS
SUMMER THEATRES—BICYCLING

ENGINEERING OPPORTUNITIES AVAILABLE

Berkshire County is not only a wonderful place to spend your vacation, but it offers year-round living and working advantages worth considering.

Fine engineering opportunities are usually open in the Berkshire Plants of some of America's best known and respected companies. For complete information, write the Berkshire Hills Conference, County Court House, Pittsfield 50, Mass.

INDUSTRIAL SITES IN THE BERKSHIRES

Manufacturers will find many advantages in locating their plants in Berkshire County. For information on choice industrial sites, labor supply, and complete details, write The Berkshire Hills Conference, County Court House, Pittsfield 50, Mass.

FROM BOSTON → 3 HOURS ← FROM NEW YORK

eek-ends.
In addition[illegible] two new eras, tentative plans call for rformances of "Tosca," in a w English translation by John utman; "The Escape From the raglio," "Fidelio," "Billy Budd" d "Amahl and the Night Visits."
Also planned is a production of Ariadne" in its original version.
cording to Peter Herman Adler, sical director of the N. B. C. era telecasts, it will be the first rformance in this country of Strauss work in its earliest
m.
Mr. Chotzinoff also announced
t he would go to Europe this mmer to see Benjamin Brits latest opera, "The Turn of Screw," which will be conered as a possibility for the
B. C. opera series.

Charles Munch, music director
Symphony Orchestra, will direc
Lenox, in its 17th season. Mr.
shire Music Center, the summe tion with the Berkshire Festival

17th Berkshire
With Beethov

The 17th Berkshire Festiv since concerts were inaugurat in the hills of Western Mass chusetts in 1934, the fifteen since the Boston Symphon Orchestra first participated, w commence six weeks of 24 co
certs on Wednesday evenin
(July 7) at 8:30 p.m. in th
Theatre-Concert Hall at Tangl wood, Lenox, Mass., with an al
Beethoven program of chambe music, featuring Claudio Arra pianist, and the Bel Arte strin trio.

On Friday (July 9) also a
8:30 p.m. in the Theatre-Concer
Hall, Charles Munch, music d rector of the Boston Symphon Orchestra, will conduct a cham ber orchestra of Boston Sym phony players in an all-Bach pro gram, with Lukas Foss as pian soloist.

For the first time in Berkshir Festival history, Saturday eve ning and Sunday afternoon con certs will be given commencin the opening weekend, July 10 a 8:30 p.m. and July 11 at 2:3
p.m. in the Music Shed. Mr Munch will lead the full 104 piece Boston Symphony Orches tra on Saturday evening in the first Tanglewood presentation o
Hector Berlioz' "The Damna
tion of Faust," with the Harvar
Glee Club and Radcliffe Chora
Society directed by G. Wallace Woodworth participating, and soloists Eleanor Steber (Mar guerite), David Poleri (Faust) Martial Singher (Mephisto pheles) and Donald Gramm (Brander).

On Sunday afternoon guest conductor Pierre Monteux will conduct the full Boston Sym phony in an all-Beethoven pro gram, with Claudio Arrau as piano soloist, the occasion mark ing the 30th anniversary of Mr.
Arrau's first appearance [with

Festival programs,
ist of the summer's
s to which the pub-
d if they make a oution to the So-
nds of the music
price information,
shire Festival, Tan-Massachusetts

é Festival
lers Listed
ED UNION
ssachusetts Res-
lear Concerts
ern Massachusetts
among those who
xes at Tanglewood
hire Festival Shed
urday evenings and cons, and also for Parade, which is 13.
Eldon V. Johnson
n., president of the
Co., in this city,
Springfield, Mrs.
of Blandford, Mrs.
ett of Great Bar-ies Phinney Baxnstown, Alan J.
d, Roger D. Cane
s Mabel Choate of Stockbridge, Mrs.
and Winthrop M.
ton.
ancis Crowinshield
Marblehead, Mrs.
of Stockbridge, and
C. Griswold of New bridge, Mrs. Mil-
of New York and
Walter Hoving
ood, Stockbridge,
Garrick of Stock-
shington, and Mrs.
of Lenox.
Rockwood of s taken a box.
ald Ryan of York, Mrs.
Lenox and St.
n L. Senior,
Miss Ger-
h of Glendale,
of New York
Strobridge of eat Barrington,
forst of Housa-
K. Wheeler of

re Mrs. Lowell
ne, N. Y., Mrs.
er of Salisbury,
s B. Manning of Gordon Men-
k, N. Y., Mrs.
Palm Beach
s Edith Sco-Conn., and New

[10¢]

Enjoy a Glorious Vacation in the...

Berkshire Hills

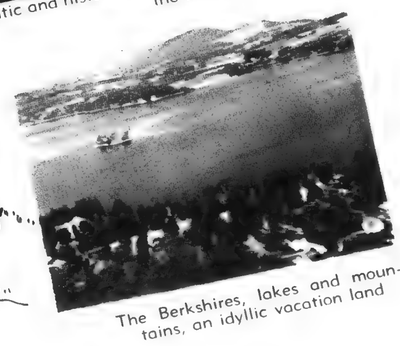
All year-round, the most accessible, attractive and complete vacation area. Its natural beauty, Historic points of interest, sports facilities, cultural attractions, picnic areas and roadside snack tables, make it a perfect vacation paradise.

Well marked and paved scenic roads and highways await you, throughout the Berkshires

Romantic and historical towns greet and intrigue you all through the Berkshires

Exciting sport fishing is yours, along the many streams

Many beautiful lakes, nestled in the Berkshire Hills



The Berkshires, lakes and mountains, an idyllic vacation land

For Further Information, Write BERKSHIRE HILLS CONFERENCE, Pittsfield, Massachusetts

A BERKSHIRE HILLS VACATION FOR LIMITLESS FUN AND ACTIVITIES

BEAUTIFUL STATE FORESTS AND RESERVATIONS
MOUNTAIN TRAILS AND QUAINT INNS
MUSEUMS, MODERN AND ANTIQUE
13 GREAT GOLF COURSES
LUXURIOUS HOTELS, MODERN MOTELS
FRIENDLY GUEST HOUSES

For sun-filled days, fun-filled nights, the Berkshire Hills have no equal. If you're in the mood for peaceful relaxation, you'll find many an idyllic spot to suit you . . . or, should you prefer gay activities, a constant round of enjoyable things to do, you'll agree the Berkshires has more to offer. Indeed, no matter what your vacation desire, here among the snug green hills of Western Massachusetts you will find the happiest hours you've ever spent!

112 BROOKS AND STREAMS TO DELIGHT THE FISHERMAN—COUNTY FAIR RACING
COUNTLESS LAKES FOR ALL WATER SPORTS
COOL, SHADED PICNIC GROVES
ART, MUSIC AND DANCE CENTERS
SPORTS LODGES, HORSE SHOWS

The Berkshire Hills abound in natural attractions which hold great fascination for those who love to roam in the midst of forests, or along winding mountain trails or over gently rolling hills beyond which lie a vista of great charm. Here the explorer will find ample picnic facilities, barbecue pits and plenty of play areas for the kiddies. Here too is majestic Mount Greylock, highest peak in the Region towering over the famous Mohawk Trail. The Trail, of course, is an adventure in itself, so replete is it with breathtaking scenery. Yes, there's adventure on the high ledges, the picturesque road, spectacular Hairpin Turn and in the sheer beauty of Nature's glory. Summer's greenery may turn to riotous combination of russet, yellow and gold, but the Mohawk Trail beckons endlessly, timelessly.

MODERN, SAFE HIGHWAYS - EASILY APPROACHED FROM ALL DIRECTIONS
A WIDE SELECTION OF FAMOUS RESTAURANTS
UNEQUALLED SCENERY - EVERY SEASON OF THE YEAR—HONEYMOONERS' HAVEN
ROMANTIC, MEMORY-MAKING VISTAS
SUMMER THEATRES—BICYCLING

ENGINEERING OPPORTUNITIES AVAILABLE

Berkshire County is not only a wonderful place to spend your vacation, but it offers year-round living and working advantages worth considering.

Fine engineering opportunities are usually open in the Berkshire Plants of some of America's best known and respected companies. For complete information, write the Berkshire Hills Conference, County Court House, Pittsfield 50, Mass.

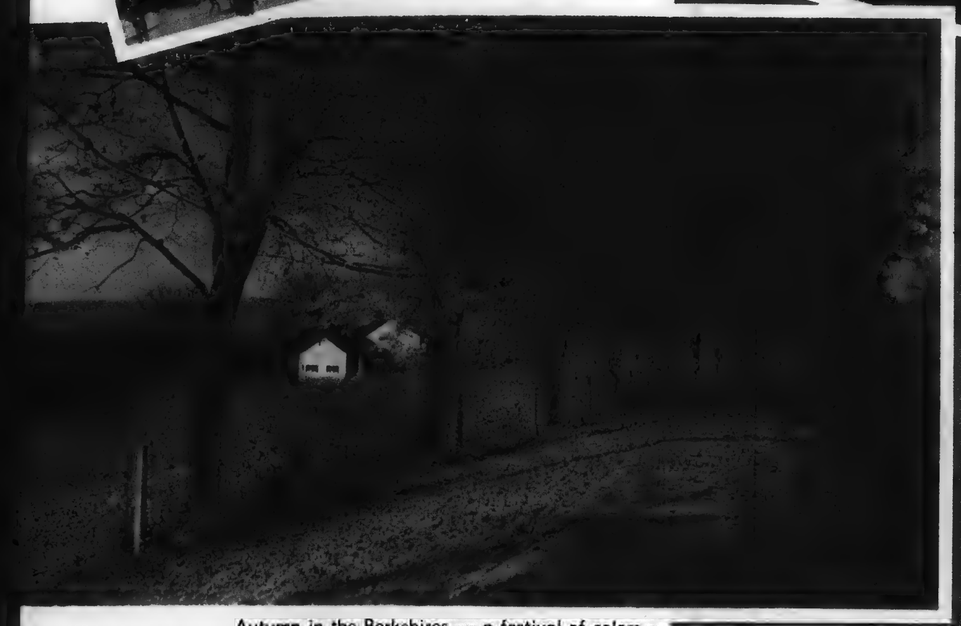
INDUSTRIAL SITES IN THE BERKSHIRES

Manufacturers will find many advantages in locating their plants in Berkshire County. For information on choice industrial sites, labor supply, and complete details, write The Berkshire Hills Conference, County Court House, Pittsfield 50, Mass.

FROM BOSTON → 3 HOURS ← FROM NEW YORK

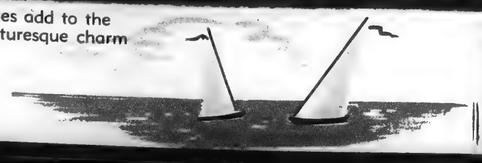
Enjoy a Glorious Vacation in the...

Sandy beaches . . . Sparkling lakes
. . . For relaxation or sport



Autumn in the Berkshires — a festival of colors

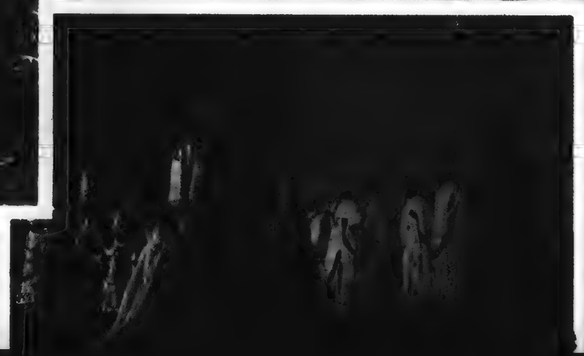
Covered bridges add to the historic and picturesque charm



Berkshire Hospitality —
Choice of Gracious and Charming
Inns, Hotels, Resorts, Motels
for the Vacationist

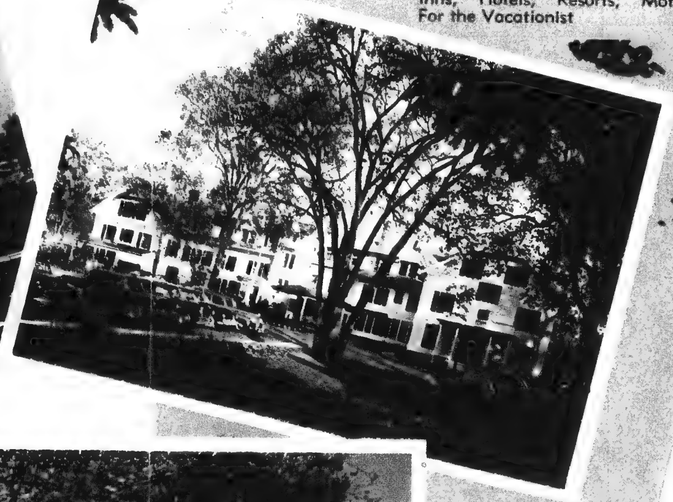
Titus at Tanglewood

Culture: Art, Theatre, Dance
and Music Festivals

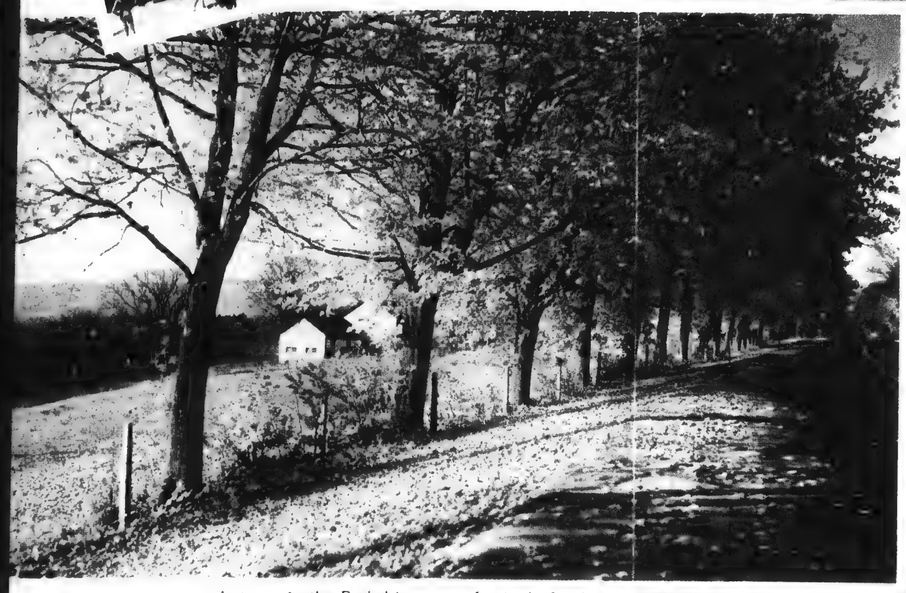


Enjoy a Glorious Vacation in the...

Sandy beaches . . . Sparkling lakes
. . . For relaxation or sport



Berkshire Hospitality —
Choice of Gracious and Charming
Inns, Hotels, Resorts, Motels
For the Vacationist



Autumn in the Berkshires — a festival of colors

Covered bridges add to the historic and picturesque charm

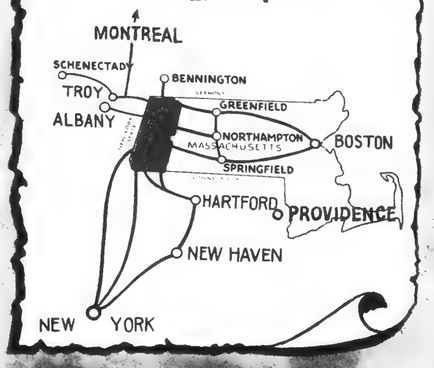
COME BY...



Titus at Tanglewood

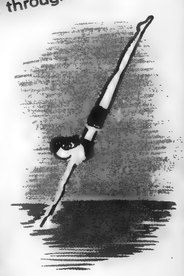
Culture: Art, Theatre, Dance
and Music Festivals

BERKSHIRE HILLS CONFERENCE, INC.
County Courthouse
Pittsfield, Mass.

Berkshire Hills

All year-round, the most accessible, attractive and complete vacation area. Its natural beauty, Historic points of interest, sports facilities, cultural attractions, picnic areas and roadside snack tables, make it a perfect vacation paradise.

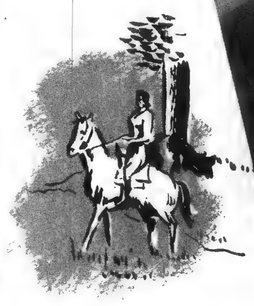
Romantic and historical towns greet and intrigue you all through the Berkshires

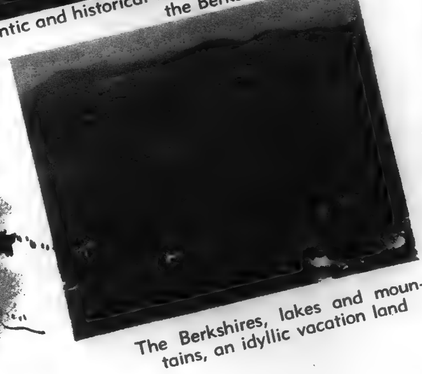


Well marked and paved scenic roads and highways await you, throughout the Berkshires

Many beautiful lakes, nestled in the Berkshire Hills

Exciting sport fishing is yours, along the many streams





The Berkshires, lakes and mountains, an idyllic vacation land

US-COLORPRINT
PRODUCTION BY H. W. HANNAU
(ROBINSONS COLOR PROCESS)

For Further Information, Write BERKSHIRE HILLS CONFERENCE, Pittsfield, Massachusetts

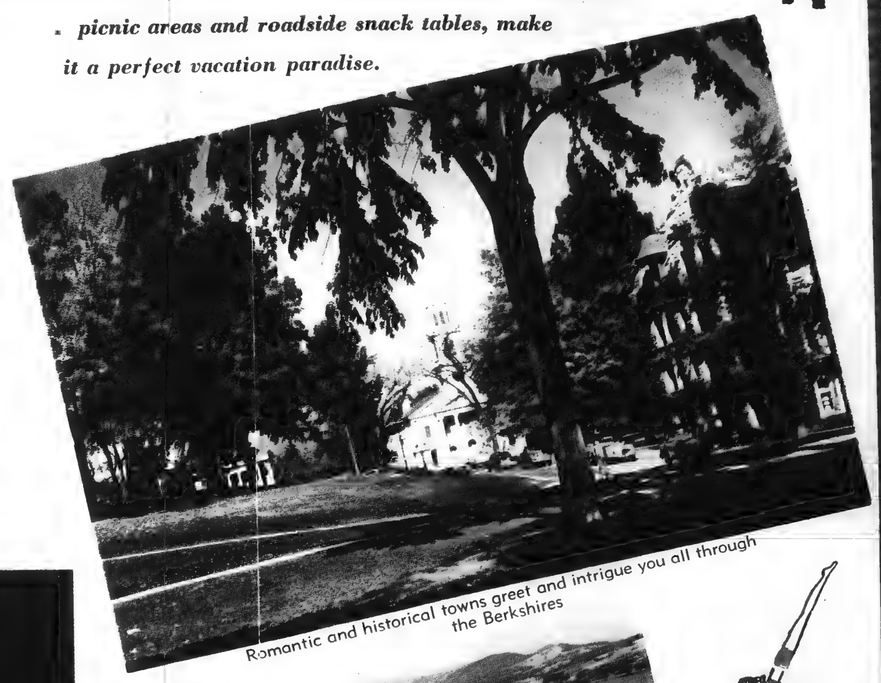
Berkshire Hills

The Vacation Paradise

Berkshire Hills

All year-round, the most accessible, attractive and complete vacation area. Its natural beauty, Historic points of interest, sports facilities, cultural attractions, picnic areas and roadside snack tables, make it a perfect vacation paradise.

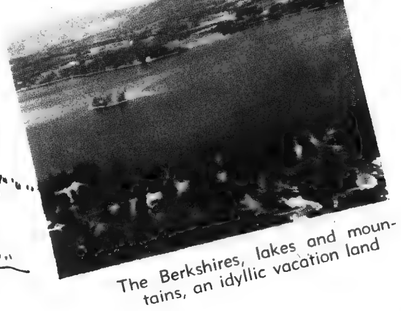
Well marked and paved scenic roads and highways await you, throughout the Berkshires



Romantic and historical towns greet and intrigue you all through the Berkshires

Exciting sport fishing is yours, along the many streams

Many beautiful lakes, nestled in the Berkshire Hills



The Berkshires, lakes and mountains, an idyllic vacation land

For Further Information, Write BERKSHIRE HILLS CONFERENCE, Pittsfield, Massachusetts

Berkshire Hills

The Vacation Paradise

IN MASSACHUSETTS

1957

Berkshire Hills

IN MASSACHUSETTS

The Vacation Paradise

Berkshire Hills

...ue Coolidge, will ...chamber music ...Aug. 21 and 22 ...m. Among the ... will be Ru... Kroll Quartet, a ... from the Bos... and Alexander ...

...ch Roundtable ...e 24, 1954

...estival Seats ... Tanglewood

... in the Berkshire ...ms to be presented ... Symphony Orches... ...eek season, July 7 ... at Tanglewood, ... are announced by ... music director. ... all-Cesar Franck ...urday evening, July ...c Shed at Tangle... ...ductor Pierre Mon... ...tute two orchestral ...aude Debussy. Ex... ...t. Sebastian" and "La Mer" will re... ...ously programmed ... Maudit" and "Les ...nck.

...program of Satur... ...gust 14 in the Shed ...ms' "Tragic Over... ... of Wagner's "A ..."

...s closing program, ...on, August 15 in ..., has been desig... ...emorial to Serge ...conductor of the ...y for 25 years, and ...rection the Berk... ...rew to its present ... and its summer ...c, the Berkshire ...was founded. For ...harles Munch will ... Berlioz' massive ...h the Festival ...sed of students of ...fusic Center) and

...val tickets is now ...he Festival ticket ...od, Lenox, Mass., ... 600. Reservations ...y telephone or by ...s accompanied by ...tamped envelope ... Boston Symphony

...Festival programs, ...t of the summer's ... to which the pub... ... if they make a ...ution to the So... ...ls of the music ...price information, ...hire Festival, Tan... Massachusetts

1954
...e Festival ...ers Listed ...LD UNION ...achusetts Res... ...ear Concerts

...n Massachusetts ...mong those who ...es at Tanglewood ...re Festival Shed ...rday evenings and ...ns, and also for ... Parade, which is

...Eldon V. Johnson ..., president of the ... Co., in this city, ... Springfield, Mrs. ...of Blandford, Mrs. ...ett of Great Bar... ...mes Phinney Bax... ...amstown, Alan J. ...d, Roger D. Cane ...s Mabel Choate of ... Stockbridge, Mrs. ...and Winthrop M. ...on.

...ancis Crowinshield ... Marblehead, Mrs. ...f Stockbridge, and ... Griswold of New ...bridge, Mrs. Mil... ...of New York and ...ox, Walter Hoving ... and Stockbridge, ... Karrick of Stock... ...hington, and Mrs. ...sky of Lenox. ... Otis Rockwood of ... has taken a box. ... Donald Ryan of ... New York, Mrs. ...enox and St. ... John L. Senior, ... York, Miss Ger... ...Smith of Glendale, ...sky of New York ...d L. Strobridge of ... Great Barrington, ... Horst of Housa... ...ert K. Wheeler of ...

...are Mrs. Lowell ...ling, N. Y., Mrs. ...ner of Salisbury, ...nes B. Manning of ...on, Gordon Men... ...brook, N. Y., Mrs. ... of Palm Beach ... Miss Edith Sco... ..., Conn., and New

N.Y. Times
June 29, 1954

34 C

N. B. C.-TV TO GIVE TWO NEW OPERAS

Station Commissions Work by Hollingsworth—Foss Opus Has Folk Basis

The first performances of new operas by Stanley Hollingsworth and Lukas Foss are planned as highlights of the 1954-55 season of the N. B. C. Television Opera Theatre, it was announced yesterday by Samuel Chotzinoff, producer.

Mr. Hollingsworth's opera, which was commissioned by N. B. C., is to be based on a short story by Balzac, "La Grande Bretèche." The composer, who received his commission two weeks ago, expects to have a first draft of the opera completed in January. The libretto as well as the music will be by Mr. Hollingsworth.

The Foss opera, as yet untitled, is to be a libretto by Alastair Reid, based on a German folk-legend. The opera, in three acts, is the story of a devil who loses his delishness by doing a good deed, thus becoming a human being. As a small boy in Germany, Mr. Foss heard this tale from his mother. He later suggested it to Mr. Reid as a libretto subject.

Both composers are graduates of the Curtis Institute of Music. Mr. Foss studied there with Rosario Scalero and later continued his studies with Paul Hindemith. Mr. Hollingsworth, a native of California, studied with Gian-Carlo Menotti. His first opera, "The Story of a Mother," was produced in March at the Curtis Institute. An earlier opera by Mr. Foss, "The Jumping Frog of Calaveras County," has received a number of performances in this country.

The fifth season of N. B. C. Television Opera Theatre will begin in October or November, Mr. Chotzinoff said. Although dates for performances have not been set officially, N. B. C. opera performances in past seasons generally have taken place on week-ends.

In addition to the two new operas, tentative plans call for performances of "Tosca," in a new English translation by John Gutman; "The Escape From the Seraglio," "Fidelio," "Billy Budd" and "Amahl and the Night Visitors."

Also planned is a production of "Ariadne" in its original version. According to Peter Herman Adler, musical director of the N. B. C. opera telecasts, it will be the first performance in this country of the Strauss work in its earliest form.

Mr. Chotzinoff also announced that he would go to Europe this summer to see Benjamin Britten's latest opera, "The Turn of the Screw," which will be considered as a possibility for the N. B. C. opera series.

Guest At Tanglewood

Charles Munch, music director for the past five years of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will direct its Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, in its 17th season. Mr. Munch is also director of the Berkshire Music Center, the summer school of music operated in connection with the Berkshire Festival.

17th Berkshire Festival Opens With Beethoven Concert July 7

The 17th Berkshire Festival since concerts were inaugurated in the hills of Western Massachusetts in 1934, the fifteenth since the Boston Symphony Orchestra first participated, will commence six weeks of 24 concerts on Wednesday evening (July 7) at 8:30 p.m. in the Theatre-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., with an all-Beethoven program of chamber music, featuring Claudio Arrau, pianist, and the Bel Arte string trio.

On Friday (July 9) also at 8:30 p.m. in the Theatre-Concert Hall, Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will conduct a chamber orchestra of Boston symphony players in an all-Bach program, with Lukas Foss as piano soloist.

For the first time in Berkshire Festival history, Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon concerts will be given commencing [illegible] weekend, July 10 at [illegible] p.m. and July 11 at 2:30 [illegible] in the Music Shed. Mr. [illegible] will lead the full 104-[illegible] Boston Symphony Orchestra on Saturday evening in the [illegible] Tanglewood presentation of [illegible] "The Damnation [illegible]" with the Harvard [illegible] and Radcliffe Choral [illegible] directed by G. Wallace Woodworth participating, and [illegible] Eleanor Steber (Marguerite), David Poleri (Faust), [illegible] Singher (Mephistopheles) and Donald Gramm [illegible].

On Sunday afternoon guest conductor Pierre Monteux will [illegible] the full Boston Symphony in an all-Beethoven program, with Claudio Arrau as piano soloist, the occasion marking the 30th anniversary of Mr. Arrau's first appearance with the orchestra which was then under the baton of Mr. Monteux.

Since 1938 when the 6,000-seat Music Shed was erected on the Tanglewood estate where Nathaniel Hawthorne was a guest a century ago, open on three sides so the music might spill out to the thousands who listen to it on the grass under the stars, the Berkshire Festival has attracted increasingly large crowds from all over Eastern United States and Canada, until last summer all attendance records were broken, with an average of 10,250 at each Shed concert.

To accommodate its growing crowds of music lovers, the 1954 Berkshire Festival has been increased in scope within its six-week framework: 12 Shed concerts instead of last year's nine, on Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons; the popular Bach-Mozart concerts which last summer were concentrated in the Festival's first three weekends this year are to be held each Friday evening; and a new series has been inaugurated of six Wednesday evening chamber music programs, a total of 24 concerts in all.

On Saturday morning, July 10, at 10 a.m. the Boston Symphony will hold the first of six weekly open rehearsals, for the benefit of the orchestra's pension fund, to which the public is invited for the nominal admission of $1.

The Music Shed concerts in 1954 will honor the 150th anniversary season of the birth of Hector Berlioz by performing complete versions of this composer's principal works.

In addition to the opening Shed concerts Tanglewood premiere of "The Damnation of Faust," a masterpiece lasting two and a half hours and seldom heard in its entirety, Mr. Munch will conduct the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the "Fantastic Symphony" July 18; the Overture to "Beatrice and Benedick" and the Symphony "Harold in Italy," with William Primrose as viola soolist, July 25; the dramatic symphony "Romeo and Juliet" in its complete form with the Festival Chorus of the Berkshire Music Center, and John McCollum and Nicola Moscana as soloists, July 31; the Overture to "Benvenuto Cellini," "Royal Hunt and Storm" from "The Trojans," the song cycle "Summer Nights" with Eleanor Steber as soloist, and the "Te Deum" with the Festival Chorus and David Poleri, soloist, Aug. 7; concluding the Festival with the "Requiem" in memory of Serge Koussevitzky, again with the Festival Chorus and David Poleri, soloist, Aug. 15.

The first week's Berkshire Festival programs are:

Wednesday, July 7—8:30 p.m., Theatre-Concert Hall, Chamber Music: Beethoven, String Trio in G, Op. 9, No. 1—The Bel Arte Trio (Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola; Martin Hoherman, violoncello); Piano Sonatas, Op. 79, Op. 110, Op. 57 ("Appassionata"), Claudio Arrau.

Friday, July 9—8:30 p.m., Theatre-Convert Hall, Chamber Orchestra: Bach: Brandenburg Concertos No. 1, in F; No. 2, in F, with the following soloists from the Boston Symphony Orchestra: Doriot Anthony, flute, Harold Gomberg, oboe, Roger Voisin, trumpet, Richard Burgin, violin; No. 3, in G, strings; No. 5, in D, with the following soloists: Lukas Foss, piano, Miss Anthony, flute, Mr. Burgin, violin; No. 6, in B-flat, strings. Charles Bunch, conductor.

Saturday, July 10—8:30 p.m., Music Shed, Boston Symphony Orchestra: Berlioz, "The Damnation of Faust," with the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Chorale Society, directed by G. Wallace Woodworth, and soloists Eleanor Steber, soprano (Marguerite), David Poleri, tenor Faust), Martial Singher, baritone (Mephistopheles) and Donald Gramm, bass-baritone (Brander). Charles Munch, conductor.

Sunday, July 11—2:30 p.m., Music Shed, Boston Symphony Orchestra: Beethoven: Overture to "Leonore," No. 3; Piano Concerto No. 5 ("Emporer"), with Claudio Arrau as soloist; Symphony No. 5. Pierre Monteux, conductor.

The Berkshire Music Center, the summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in connection with the Berkshire Festival, opens its 12th season, a six-week course of music studies for advanced students and professionals, at Tanglewood, Lenox, Sunday, July 4.

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and director of the Berkshire Music Center, will arrive from Paris to address students and guests at the opening exercises, at 3:30 p.m. in the Theatre-Concert Hall.

Dr. Lewis Perry, honorary chairman of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, whose contributions help to support the school, and an orchestra trustee, will preside. Composer Aaron Copland, who is assistant director of the school, will introduce the faculty.

As at every opening of the school since its founding under the direction of the late Dr. Serge Koussevitzky in 1940, Randall Thompson's "Alleluia," composed for the first opening of the school, will be sunng by the students. Hugh Ross, head of the choral department, will conduct.

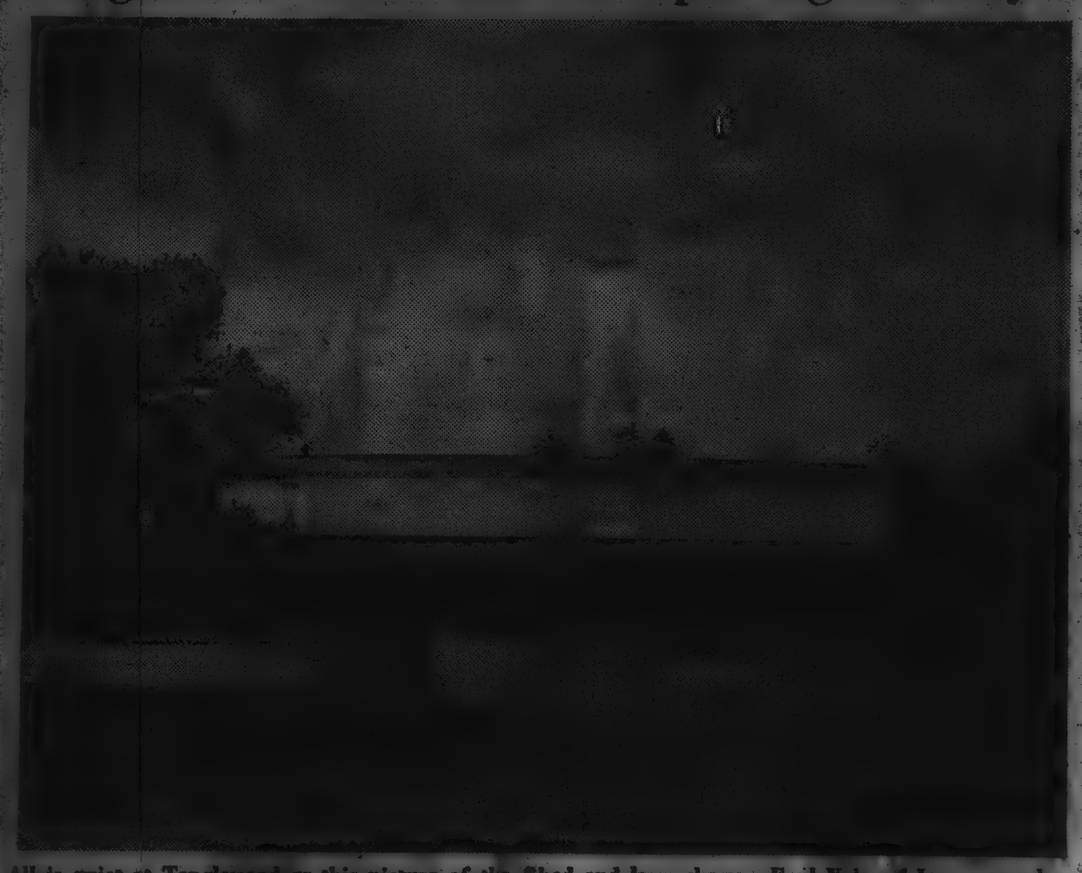
Tea will be served in the Tanglewood formal gardens following the exercises.

The first school performance will be given Thursday, July 8, at 8:30 p.m. in the Music Shed, when for the first time the symphony orchestra of 100 students in department one will play together.

The first of six weekly chamber music concerts will be given by students of department one in the Chamber Music Hall Sunday morning, July 11, at 10 a.m. Sunday evening, July 11, at 8:30 p.m., also in the Chamber Music Hall, will bring the first composers' forum by students of department three studying with Aaron Copland, Lukas Foss and guest composer Ernst Toch. Their works will be performed by fellow students and commented upon.

Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, whose contributions help to support the school, are invited to all student concerts.

Tanglewood Staff Set for Opening Sunday



All is quiet at Tanglewood as this picture of the Shed and lawn shows. Fred Vohr of Lee, a member of the grounds crew, mows the grass. Next week this lawn will be covered with people and blankets and the Shed will echo the tones of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Eagle, 6/30/54

Press Bureau, Grounds Crew, Guides Are Busy

By RICHARD T. TIBBETTS

Nothing but the wind in Tanglewood's stately 100-year-old pine pine trees can be heard these days and the Shed's spacious front lawn has not been covered by a music lover's blanket since last summer, but there is plenty of activity at the Boston Symphony Orchestra's summer home these days. The season starts Sunday with the formal opening of the Berkshire Music Center.

Supt. Ward Gaston and his grounds crew have been busy since early spring in a variety of jobs that range all the way from installing new, one-ton beams in the Theater-Concert Hall to trimming the hedges in the formal gardens.

But that is only part of the beehive of activity at Tanglewood. Also working feverishly toward the opening date are Walter Alford's press bureau, the Friends office, the 12-man staff of guides, and the staff of the Berkshire Music Center.

100 Gallons Used

The most colorful by far of the preparations for the extended Tanglewood season was the painting of the Shed, the first face-lifting the huge pie-shaped building has experienced since its erection in 1938. The new look is not much different than the old one. The mustard tan coat of paint looks much like the old except for a general freshening.

Painters spread 130 gallons of specially mixed paint on the structure, using a portable steel scaffold on wheels to roll around the triangular rim of the building. The Shed needs another coat, but that will not be applied until next summer.

The installation of four beams measuring 37 feet by 24 inches in the Theater-Concert Hall was another tricky problem for the grounds crew. Special staging had to be constructed for the installation, strengthening the hall's supporting arches.

There are innumerable other repairing and groundskeeping chores for Gaston's 20-man staff on the 40-acre former estate. A hundred white pines have been set out to replace eventually the 100-year-old pines. The 55-year-old hedges in the formal garden have been trimmed and reshaped.

Other duties include mowing the spreading lawns, cutting the hay in the parking lots, repairing the leaves in the roads around the area, installing lights, repairing and making additions to the rehearsal stage in the apple orchard, trimming trees, erecting the tent for the cafeteria and putting out the dock and rafts at the Tanglewood boathouse on Stockbridge Bowl.

Press Bureau Busy

Walter Alford's press bureau is making arrangements for newspaper, radio, and television coverage of the season by media all over the United States and in other countries. His staff includes Harry Beall of Columbia Artists in New York and students Ross Edman and Miss Margo Miller of Pittsfield.

John N. Burk of the Boston Symphony Orchestra will do the programming for the Festival and handle advertising. Tanglewood photographers are Gus Manos of the University of South Carolina and James Cusati of Pittsfield.

This group is now making corrections in press lists for releases and pictures, writing and mailing releases and feature stories, labeling photographs, and undertaking the vast mailing of press seats for the concerts. In addition, Mr. Alford is making arrangements for radio and television coverage during the Festival season and helping newsmen who are already converging on the world-famous summer music center.

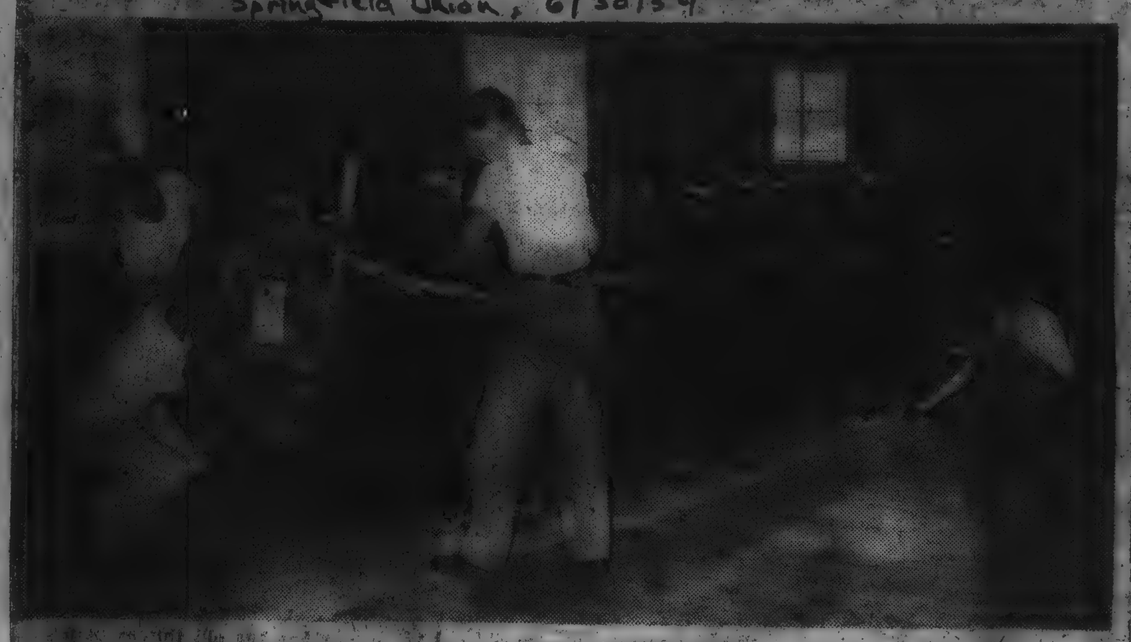
Guides Arrive

The guides arrived Monday and are receiving instruction in their duties from Stoddard G. Spader of Brooks School, head of the guides. They will conduct tours of the grounds for visitors, serve as ushers during concerts, and help parking lot attendants on big nights.

Most of the guides are college students, looking forward to a pleasant vacation. An exception is Cecil Mapes, superintendent of schools in Chatham, N.Y., who annually offers his services as a guide. Others are Harry Kraut of Brooklyn, N.Y., and Harvard; Timothy Cogan of New York City and Harvard; William Verner of Baltimore, Md., and Princeton; Crayton Bedford of Middlebury, Vt., and Amherst; Nicholas Rizopoulos of Athens, Greece, and Hotchkiss School; Frederick Shriver of Harvard; Talbott W. Huey of Baltimore and Yale; Peter M. Jenkins of Albany, N.Y., and the Windsor Mountain School; and Allen Wardwell of New York City and Yale.

Piling Up Pianos for Berkshire Festival

Springfield Union, 6/30/54



These men are unloading some of the 69 concert pianos just arrived at Tanglewood, Lenox, for use in the Berkshire Music Festival and summer school which opens with the first concert Wednesday night, July 7, and continues through Aug. 15.

69 New Pianos for Six-Week Berkshire Festival Unloaded

Sixty-nine new concert pianos have just arrived at Tanglewood, Lenox, heralding the Berkshire Festival, which will open its six weeks of 24 concerts next Wednesday night, July 7.

The 69 pianos, which include 14 concert grands, will be used for the festival concerts and rehearsals, for lessons and practice by students of the Berkshire Music Center, the six-week summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in connection with the festival, and for the big-name soloists who will appear in the festival.

17th Year of Festivals

This year's is the 17th annual festival at Tanglewood, the 15th since the Boston orchestra first took part. The honor of opening the season with next Wednesday's concert falls to Claudio Arrau, pianist, and the Bel Arte string trio, who will give an all-Beethoven concert of chamber music. This will be in the Theater-Concert Hall, at 8.30 p. m. On Friday night, July 9, also at 8.30 in the same place, Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will conduct a chamber orchestra in an all-Bach program, with Lukas Foss as piano soloist.

The "big" concerts, those in the Music Shed, start Saturday night, July 10, at 8.30, and Sunday afternoon at 2.30, and will continue each Saturday night and Sunday afternoon through Aug. 15.

The "little" concerts, in the Theater-Concert Hall, will be given each Wednesday and Friday nights through Aug. 11, and on Thursday night Aug. 12. The spectacle, "Tanglewood on Parade," takes place on Friday, Aug. 13.

Pianist, Bel Arte String Trio At First Festival Event July 7

B. Eagle, 6/29/54

Claudio Arrau

TANGLEWOOD — The 17th annual Berkshire Festival, featuring the Boston Symphony Orchestra in its 15th season, will open six weeks of 24 concerts on Wednesday evening, July 7, at 8:30 in the Theater-Concert Hall, with an all-Beethoven program of chamber music. Featured in the opening concert will be Claudio Arrau, pianist and the Bel Arte string trio.

On Friday, July 9, at 8:30 in the Theater-Concert Hall, Charles Munch, music director of the BSO, will conduct a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players in an all-Bach program with Lukas Foss as piano soloist.

Shed Concerts July 10, 11

For the first time in Berkshire Festival history, Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon concerts will be given commencing the opening weekend, July 10 at 8:30 p.m. and July 11 at 2:30 p.m. in the Music Shed. Mr. Munch will lead the full 104-piece Boston Symphony Orchestra on Saturday evening in the first Tanglewood presentation of Hector Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust," with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society directed by G. Wallace Woodworth participating, and soloists Eleanor Steber (Marguerite), David Poleri (Faust), Martial Singher (Mephistopheles) and Donald Gramm (Brander).

On Sunday afternoon guest conductor Pierre Monteux will conduct the full Boston Symphony in an all-Beethoven program, with Claudio Arrau as piano soloist, the occasion marking the 30th anniversary of Mr. Arrau's first appearance with the orchestra which was then under the baton of Mr. Monteux.

To accommodate its growing crowds of music lovers, the 1954 Berkshire Festival has been increased in scope within its six-week framework. Twelve Shed concerts instead of last year's nine, on Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons; the popular Bach-Mozart concerts which last summer were concentrated in the Festival's first three weekends this year are to be held each Friday evening; and a new series has been inaugurated of six Wednesday evening chamber music programs, a total of 24 concerts in all. On Saturday morning, July 10, at 10 the Boston Symphony will hold the first of six weekly open rehearsals, for the benefit of the orchestra's pension fund, to which the public is invited for the nominal admission of $1.

Music Center To Open Sunday

TANGLEWOOD — The Berkshire Music Center, the summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in connection with the Berkshire Festival, opens its 12th session, a six-week course of music studies for advanced students and professionals, at Tanglewood Sunday.

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and director of the Berkshire Music Center, will arrive from Paris to address students and guests at the opening exercises, at 3:30 p.m. in the Theater-Concert Hall.

Dr. Lewis Perry, honorary chairman of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, whose contributions help to support the school, and an orchestra trustee, will preside. Composer Aaron Copland, assistant director of the school, will introduce the faculty.

As at every opening of the school since its founding under the direction of the late Dr. Serge Koussevitsky in 1940, Randall Thompson's "Alleluia," composed for the first opening of the school, will be sung by the students. Hugh Ross, head of the choral department, will conduct.

Tea in Gardens

Tea will be served in the Tanglewood formal gardens following the exercises.

The first school performance will be given Thursday, July 8, at 8:30 p.m. in the Music Shed, when for the first time the symphony orchestra of 100 students in Department I will play together.

The first of six weekly chamber music concerts will be given by students of Department I in the Chamber Music Hall Sunday, July 11 at 10 a.m., Sunday, July 11 at 8:30 p.m., also in the Chamber Music Hall, will bring the first composers' forum by students of Department III studying with Aaron Copland, Lukas Foss and guest composer Ernst Toch. Their works will be performed by fellow students and commented upon.

Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, whose contributions help to support the school, are invited to all student concerts.

New Yorker, 7/3/54

IN THE COUNTRY

BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL—Opening performances of the season, which will run through Sunday, Aug. 15—Wednesday, July 7: Claudio Arrau, piano, and the Bel Arte Trio in an all-Beethoven program. . . . ¶ Friday, July 9: Charles Münch conducting a chamber orchestra, made up of members of the Boston Symphony, in a program of Bach's "Brandenburg" concertos, with Lukas Foss, piano. . . . ¶ Saturday, July 10: Charles Münch directing the Boston Sym[illegible] of Berlioz's "The D[illegible]" with Eleanor Steber, soprano; Martial Sin[illegible], baritone; David Poleri, tenor; Donald Gramm, bass-baritone; the Harvard Glee [illegible] and the Radcliffe Choral Society. [illegible] Tanglewood; [illegible] Evenings at 8:30.)

[109]

Tanglewood Staff Set for Opening Sunday

All is quiet at Tanglewood as this picture of the Shed and lawn shows. Fred Vohr of Lee, a member of the grounds crew, mows the grass. Next week this lawn will be covered with people and blankets and the Shed will echo the tones of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Eagle, 6/30/54

Press Bureau, Grounds Crew, Guides Are Busy

By RICHARD T. TIBBETTS

Nothing but the wind in Tanglewood's stately 100-year-old pine pine trees can be heard these days and the Shed's spacious front lawn has not been covered by a music lover's blanket since last summer, but there is plenty of activity at the Boston Symphony Orchestra's summer home these days. The season starts Sunday with the formal opening of the Berkshire Music Center.

Supt. Ward Gaston and his grounds crew have been busy since early spring in a variety of jobs that range all the way from installing new, one-ton beams in the Theater-Concert Hall to trimming the hedges in the formal gardens.

But that is only part of the beehive of activity at Tanglewood. Also working feverishly toward the opening date are Walter Alford's press bureau, the Friends office, the 12-man staff of guides, and the staff of the Berkshire Music Center.

130 Gallons Used

The most colorful by far of the preparations for the extended Tanglewood season was the painting of the Shed, the first face-lifting the huge pie-shaped building has experienced since its erection in 1938. The new look is not much different than the old one. The mustard tan coat of paint looks much like the old except for a general freshening.

Painters spread 130 gallons of specially mixed paint on the structure, using a portable steel scaffold on wheels to roll around the triangular rim of the building. The Shed needs another coat, but that will not be applied until next summer.

The installation of four beams measuring 37 feet by 24 inches in the Theater-Concert Hall was another tricky problem for the grounds crew. Special staging had to be constructed for the installation, strengthening the hall's supporting arches.

There are innumerable other repairing and groundskeeping chores for Gaston's 20-man staff on the 40-acre former estate. A hundred white pines have been set out to replace eventually the 100-year-old pines. The 55-year-old hedges in the formal garden have been trimmed and reshaped.

Other duties include mowing the spreading lawns, cutting the hay in the parking lots, repairing the heaves in the roads around the area, installing lights, repairing and making additions to the rehearsal stage in the apple orchard, trimming trees, erecting the tent for the cafeteria and putting out the dock and rafts at the Tanglewood boathouse on Stockbridge Bowl.

Press Bureau Busy

Walter Alford's press bureau is making arrangements for newspaper, radio, and television coverage of the season by media all over the United States and in other countries. His staff includes Harry Beall of Columbia Artists in New York and students Ross Edman and Miss Margo Miller of Pittsfield.

John N. Burk of the Boston Symphony Orchestra will do the programming for the Festival and handle advertising. Tanglewood photographers are Gus Manos of the University of South Carolina and James Cusati of Pittsfield.

This group is now making corrections in press lists for releases and pictures, writing and mailing releases and feature stories, labeling photographs, and undertaking the vast mailing of press seats for the concerts. In addition, Mr. Alford is making arrangements for radio and television coverage during the Festival season and helping newsmen who are already converging on the world-famous summer music center.

Guides Arrive

The guides arrived Monday and are receiving instruction in their duties from Stoddard G. Spader of Brooks School, head of the guides. They will conduct tours of the grounds for visitors, serve as ushers during concerts, and help parking lot attendants on big nights.

Most of the guides are college students, looking forward to a pleasant vacation. An exception is Cecil Mapes, superintendent of schools in Chatham, N.Y., who annually offers his services as a guide. Others are Harry Kraut of Brooklyn, N.Y., and Harvard; Timothy Cogan of New York City and Harvard; William Verner of Baltimore, Md., and Princeton; Crayton Bedford of Middlebury, Vt., and Amherst; Nicholas Rizopoulos of Athens, Greece, and Hotchkiss School; Frederick Shriver of Harvard; Talbott W. Huey of Baltimore and Yale; Peter M. Jenkins of Albany, N.Y., and the Windsor Mountain School; and Allen Wardwell of New York City and Yale.

Piling Up Pianos for Berkshire Festival

Springfield Union, 6/30/54

These men are unloading some of the 69 concert pianos just arrived at Tanglewood, Lenox, for use in the Berkshire Music Festival and summer school which opens with the first concert Wednesday night, July 7, and continues through Aug. 15.

69 New Pianos for Six-Week Berkshire Festival Unloaded

Sixty-nine new concert pianos have just arrived at Tanglewood, Lenox, heralding the Berkshire Festival, which will open its six weeks of 24 concerts next Wednesday night, July 7.

The 69 pianos, which include 14 concert grands, will be used for the festival concerts and rehearsals, for lessons and practice by students of the Berkshire Music Center, the six-week summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in connection with the festival, and for the big-name soloists who will appear in the festival.

17th Year of Festivals

This year's is the 17th annual festival at Tanglewood, the 15th since the Boston orchestra first took part. The honor of opening the season with next Wednesday's concert falls to Claudio Arrau, pianist, and the Bel Arte string trio, who will give an all-Beethoven concert of chamber music. This will be in the Theater-Concert Hall, at 8.30 p. m. On Friday night, July 9, also at 8.30 in the same place, Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will conduct a chamber orchestra in an all-Bach program, with Lukas Foss as piano soloist.

The "big" concerts, those in the Music Shed, start Saturday night, July 10, at 8.30, and Sunday afternoon at 2.30, and will continue each Saturday night and Sunday afternoon through Aug. 15.

The "little" concerts, in the Theater-Concert Hall, will be given each Wednesday and Friday nights through Aug. 11, and on Thursday night Aug. 12. The spectacle, 'Tanglewood on Parade," takes place on Friday, Aug. 13.

Pianist, Bel Arte String Trio At First Festival Event July 7

B. Eagle, 6/29/54

Claudio Arrau

TANGLEWOOD — The 17th annual Berkshire Festival, featuring the Boston Symphony Orchestra in its 15th season, will open six weeks of 24 concerts on Wednesday evening, July 7, at 8:30 in the Theater-Concert Hall, with an all-Beethoven program of chamber music. Featured in the opening concert will be Claudio Arrau, pianist and the Bel Arte string trio.

On Friday, July 9, at 8:30 in the Theater-Concert Hall, Charles Munch, music director of the BSO, will conduct a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players in an all-Bach program with Lukas Foss as piano soloist.

Shed Concerts July 10, 11

For the first time in Berkshire Festival history, Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon concerts will be given commencing the opening weekend, July 10 at 8:30 p.m. and July 11 at 2:30 p.m. in the Music Shed. Mr. Munch will lead the full 104-piece Boston Symphony Orchestra on Saturday evening in the first Tanglewood presentation of Hector Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust," with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society directed by G. Wallace Woodworth participating, and soloists Eleanor Steber (Marguerite), David Poleri (Faust), Martial Singher (Mephistopheles) and Donald Gramm (Brander).

On Sunday afternoon guest conductor Pierre Monteux will conduct the full Boston Symphony in an all-Beethoven program, with Claudio Arrau as piano soloist, the occasion marking the 30th anniversary of Mr. Arrau's first appearance with the orchestra which was then under the baton of Mr. Monteux.

To accommodate its growing crowds of music lovers, the 1954 Berkshire Festival has been increased in scope within its six-week framework: Twelve Shed concerts instead of last year's nine, on Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons; the popular Bach-Mozart concerts which last summer were concentrated in the Festival's first three weekends this year are to be held each Friday evening; and a new series has been inaugurated of six Wednesday evening chamber music programs, a total of 24 concerts in all. On Saturday morning, July 10, at 10 the Boston Symphony will hold the first of six weekly open rehearsals, for the benefit of the orchestra's pension fund, to which the public is invited for the nominal admission of $1.

Music Center To Open Sunday

TANGLEWOOD — The Berkshire Music Center, the summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in connection with the Berkshire Festival, opens its 12th session, a six-week course of music studies for advanced students and professionals, at Tanglewood Sunday.

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and director of the Berkshire Music Center, will arrive from Paris to address students and guests at the opening exercises, at 3:30 p.m. in the Theater-Concert Hall.

Dr. Lewis Perry, honorary chairman of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, whose contributions help to support the school, and an orchestra trustee, will preside. Composer Aaron Copland, assistant director of the school, will introduce the faculty.

As at every opening of the school since its founding under the direction of the late Dr. Serge Koussevitsky in 1940, Randall Thompson's "Alleluia," composed for the first opening of the school, will be sung by the students. Hugh Ross, head of the choral department, will conduct.

Tea in Gardens

Tea will be served in the Tanglewood formal gardens following the exercises.

The first school performance will be given Thursday, July 8, at 8:30 p.m. in the Music Shed, when for the first time the symphony orchestra of 100 students in Department I will play together.

The first of six weekly chamber music concerts will be given by students of Department I in the Chamber Music Hall Sunday, July 11 at 10 a.m., Sunday, July 11 at 8:30 p.m., also in the Chamber Music Hall, will bring the first composers' forum by students of Department III studying with Aaron Copland, Lukas Foss and guest composer Ernst Toch. Their works will be performed by fellow students and commented upon.

Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, whose contributions help to support the school, are invited to all student concerts.

IN THE COUNTRY

BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL—Opening performances of the season, which will run through Sunday, Aug. 15—Wednesday, July 7: Claudio Arrau, piano, and the Bel Arte Trio in an all-Beethoven program. . . . ¶ Friday, July 9: Charles Münch conducting a chamber orchestra, made up of members of the Boston Symphony, in a program of Bach's "Brandenburg" concertos, with Lukas Foss, piano. . . . ¶ Saturday, July 10: Charles Münch directing the Boston Symphony in a performance of Berlioz's "The Damnation of Faust," with Eleanor Steber, soprano; Martial Singher, baritone; David Poleri, tenor; Donald Gramm, bass-baritone; the Harvard Glee Club; and the Radcliffe Choral Society. (Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Evenings at 8:30.)

[109

The Lively Arts

By Milton [illegible] Bass

USUALLY whenever columnist Robert Ruark opines that something is white, I immediately take it for granted that it is black. But one thing we have agreed upon in the past, see eye to eye on now and will always be together on in the future is that Joe Bushkin is one of the great jazz pianists of our time.

Up to now when my craving to hear Mr. Bushkin could not be denied, it was necessary to journey down to the Embers in New York and spend much loot for such things as whisky and whisky. But things are going to be different this summer. The mountain has come here to Mahomet.

Mr. Bushkin, his lovely wife and five-year-old daughter have moved to the Berkshires for the summer and now all I have to do to get the savage breast soothed is whip down to Richmond and drink HIS whisky. Verily, Mahomet is in Nirvana.

* * *

WITH ONE exception, everybody who has heard Mr. Bushkin is convinced that his stuff cannot be improved upon. He is known as a musician's musician and all the top names in show business can be found clustered around the stand in whatever club he's playing after their own evening's stints are finished.

The one exception to the rule is Mr. Bushkin himself who is up here to do something about it. He is going to study composition under Lukas Foss at Tanglewood this summer, and take in the concerts and walk in the woods and go swimming with his little girl and assess everything he has accomplished and everything he wants to accomplish. "I'm trying to get grouped," says Joe, "and this seems a fine place to do it."

* * *

HE CAME to the Berkshires on the recommendation of his good friend Leonard Bernstein who has successfully combined a career of classical, popular and jazz music. Joe wants to start writing down his music, create songs that will last for himself and for the public.

"It isn't enough just to play music," says Joe, "because the pleasure it gives you lasts for a short time. If you get one or two good sets a night, it's enough to send you home feeling happy. But the next day it's gone and you may not hit it right for quite a while. I want to write it down so I can look at it and feel it's good and know that other people feel it's right. That kind of happiness is always there when you need it."

So the slim, intense-looking musician decided to forego the offers he had for the summer and come here with his piano, wife, daughter, and three white Maltese dogs. These dogs are related to ones owned by Tallulah Bankhead and Rosemary Clooney and they are named Reginald (after good friend Jackie Gleason's pet character), Scampy and Butch. Butch was tagged because of the incongruity between the tough name and the cute little button of a dog.

* * *

RIGHT NOW Mr. Bushkin is more concerned with working his barbecue than with working on his music. This electrically driven contraption was purchased at Hammacher Schlemmer's (I repeat this name at every available opportunity in New York and it has everything on it including power steering. A plump chicken was whirling gaily on the spit during most of the evening and its fragrance blended exotically with the night air and the soft music. Mr. Bushkin handles a chicken on a spit as dexterously as any of his musical phrases.

Joe Bushkin started playing the piano at the age of 10 in his native city of New York, but he dropped it at 12 in favor of the trumpet. He wanted to play in the school band and a piano was too big to lug around a field. At 15 he returned to the piano and in 1935 was good enough to tour the country with Bunny Berigan's band. He was also good enough on the trumpet to engage in trumpet battles with Berigan and when he went with Tommy Dorsey in 1940, he and Tommy would play the horn at each other just for kicks.

* * *

IN 1942 HE enlisted in the Air Force and headed bands at various bases before he was assigned as an orchestra leader with the touring company of "Winged Victory." He took this as long as he could, but finally went "pit happy" as they say in the business and upon pleading insanity to his commanding officer, was shipped to the Pacific where he played trumpet on a long island tour. In 1940 he had written the hit "Oh Look at Me Now" and while in service he wrote "There'll Be a Hot Time in the Town of Berlin." His old buddy Bing Crosby happened to see a copy of it, recorded it with the Andrews sisters and the rest is history.

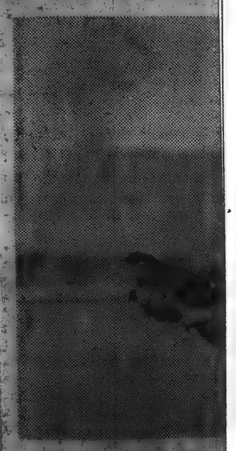
Joe was discharged in 1946 and after a stint with NBC, he joined Benny Goodman for a year. Then in 1947 he went down to Rio with Bud Freeman and they toured South America for four months. It was while he was down there that he telephoned his girl in Chicago and suggested she come down. When she asked why, he said, "Maybe we'll get married or something." She went and they were.

* * *

UPON HIS return north he studied composition with Stefan Wolpe, a teacher of the French neo-classic school, and then in 1948 he opened in Garson Kanin's "Rat Race" on Broadway. This had a nice run and then there were a couple of cross country tours with string and jazz quartets, Jackie Gleason and a large band. Last year he went over to Europe with his friend Jose Ferrer to look for plays that might be made into musicals and while over there he wrote 25 songs with Garson Kanin which they hope to incorporate into a Broadway musical of their own.

He sat down and played a few of the songs and it was a lovely moment as his gentle voice combined with the fabulous piano technique and feeling. He may think he has something to learn about French neo-classic technique but in his own field the man has few equals. Try listening to his LP records titled "After Hours," "I Love a Piano" and "Piano Moods" and you'll find out why they call this man a musician's musician. Or drive around Richmond some night and maybe just beyond the bridge you will hear magic sounds and whisperings. It won't be elves or sprites; it'll be Joe Bushkin, feeling pretty good and expressing it in the best way he knows.

BOSTON MU[illegible]



NEXT STOP EUR[illegible]
Symphony about to airport. The sea bi[illegible] record 12½ days.

A Speed[illegible]

By [illegible]

How a Boston Sympho[illegible] estra clarinetist playe[illegible]
n experiments sheddi[illegible] ight on the mystery [illegible] migration and navigatio[illegible] n "Sea Birds" by Jame[illegible] and R. M. Lockley, tw[illegible] scientists, wh[illegible] book published in [illegible]ton th[illegible]
by Houghton [illegible]lin Co[illegible]
The musician is Rosa[illegible] zeo, clarinetist and p[illegible] manager of the Bosto[illegible] phony. The sea bird in [illegible] was a little Skokholm

DRUG STORES

DRUG STORES

"Good Listening", 7/54

"First Chair"

ROSARIO MAZZEO
Bass Clarinet

Sometimes questions asked about the Boston Symphony by laymen remind staff members of the question raised by a city child visiting a farm, and the manner in which she was answered.

"The reason why that there cow hasn't got horns," the farmer said, "is because that there cow is a horse."

As a case in point it may be stated that the reason "that saxophone" is played in certain symphonic works is that really it is a bass clarinet. And it is played with impeccable symphonic musicianship by Rosario Mazzeo. And besides the resemblance of his clarinet to the jazz instrument, it has been noted that Mr. Mazzeo is the player who resembles Einstein. That latter coincidence is accompanied by the remarkable fa t that the Mazzeo mind has a strong scientific aptitude.

When Koussevitzky planned to perform Shostakovitch's Seventh Symphony, the irksome discovery was made by Mr. Mazzeo that the part for bass clarinet dived deeper than his lowest available note. Making a careful survey of the situation, Mr. Mazzeo turned up some interesting facts. First, no instrument could be had in America that would go so low. Second, Shostakovitch had written the

(Continued on Next Page)

← Inside

"Good Listening", 7/54

MUSIC

BERKSHIRE MUSIC FESTIVAL (TANGLEWOOD). Tuesdays (except July 6 and 13): Opera. Wednesdays: Chamber Music. Thursdays: Orchestra. Fridays: Chamber music. Saturdays (morn.) BSO rehearsal; (eve.) Boston Symphony Orchestra. Sundays (morn.) Chamber music; (aft.) Boston Symphony Orchestra; (eve.) Composers' forum.

THE ROVING EYE

Boston Herald 7/1/54

By RUDOLPH ELIE

Tuk-Tuk Sans Onions? Not for Us!

The boys are up on Bylot now, I suppose, studying the ecology of the horned lark in the Arctic habitat, and I am down here slaving away at the old typewriter, and I hope they choke on those tuk-tuks.

I hate to take this peevish attitude, but if everything had gone well in my cooking test I'd have been up there with them rustling up delicious boiled eggs a la Newbury street, fried eggs Rudolph, omelettes en brochette and scrambled eggs Park Street Under. But it didn't. I flopped miserably, and was ignominiously scratched from the roster of the expedition.

First word of the expedition came to me via Rosario Mazzeo, bass clarinetist and personnel manager of the Boston Symphony orchestra, ornithologist, photographer, explorer and gourmet, who thought up the idea and organized the expedition to this remote arctic island. (That word "gourmet," as you will see, is the key word to my fiasco).

Bylot, it seems, is a large, mountainous island half as big as Massachusetts located off the upper right hand corner of Baffinland, which in turn is located off the upper edge of Labrador. It is still pretty much of a mystery so far as its birds and bees are concerned, too, and the expedition, supported by grants from the Arctic Institute and the New York Zoological Society, is particularly interested in seeing if Bylot is the nesting-colony of such birds as Brunnich murres, blue geese, dovekies and so forth.

Advice Sought

It will also check up on the narwhals and whatever else turns up during its five or six weeks in the field, and climb a few mountains as well.

In telling me of the proposed expedition, Mr. Mazzeo asked me if I knew of a good cook who could go along with the party, which was to be flown in some time in June. I instantly replied that I did know of a good cook, a very good cook indeed. One of the [illegible]

"But can he shoot a shotgun?" inquired Mr. Mazzeo. "Could he bring down a puffin at 100 yards, for study purposes?"

"He certainly could," I said. "After all, I didn't get my lumberjack's muscles as a boy camper for nothing."

"Say," said Mr. Mazzeo, cocking his head, "are you by any chance recommending yourself?"

I said yes, I was, and how [illegible]? It wouldn't cost the expedition a cent because The Herald had been looking for a correspondent in Bylot for years and would eagerly snatch up the whole tab for my transportation and keep. Besides, I could write magazine articles about it and probably even a book to immortalize the expedition.

Master of Egg

"Now about cooking," said Mr. Mazzeo, unimpressed by the chance for immortality. "What have you ever cooked?"

"Well," I said, "everybody speaks very highly of my cheese rabbit and I am a master of the egg in all its culinary forms."

"Fine," said Mr. Mazzeo, "only we won't be taking either cheese or eggs on the trip. What else can you do?"

"Fry bacon," I said, "beautiful crisp bacon. I am also good at making toast, peanut butter and jam sandwiches, and a particular specialty of mine, namely, creamed vichysoisse."

"What do you put in your Vichysoisse?" Mr. Mazzeo asked, "onions or leeks?"

"Onions," I said. "Why?"

"Onions in Vichyssoise?" cried the gourmet in Mr. Mazzeo. "Saerilegious! However," he added, "I'm going up to Bylot in a few weeks to make preparations for the expedition, and I'll think it over."

So Mr. Mazzeo went up to Bylot on a two-week, 9000-mile reconnaissance trip, obtaining permits from the Canadian government, arranging for the coopera-

When your youngsters ask for more k[illegible] give them all they want because it supplie[illegible] benefits of pure, whole milk. Here's a de[illegible] nourished family dessert that wins mothe[illegible]
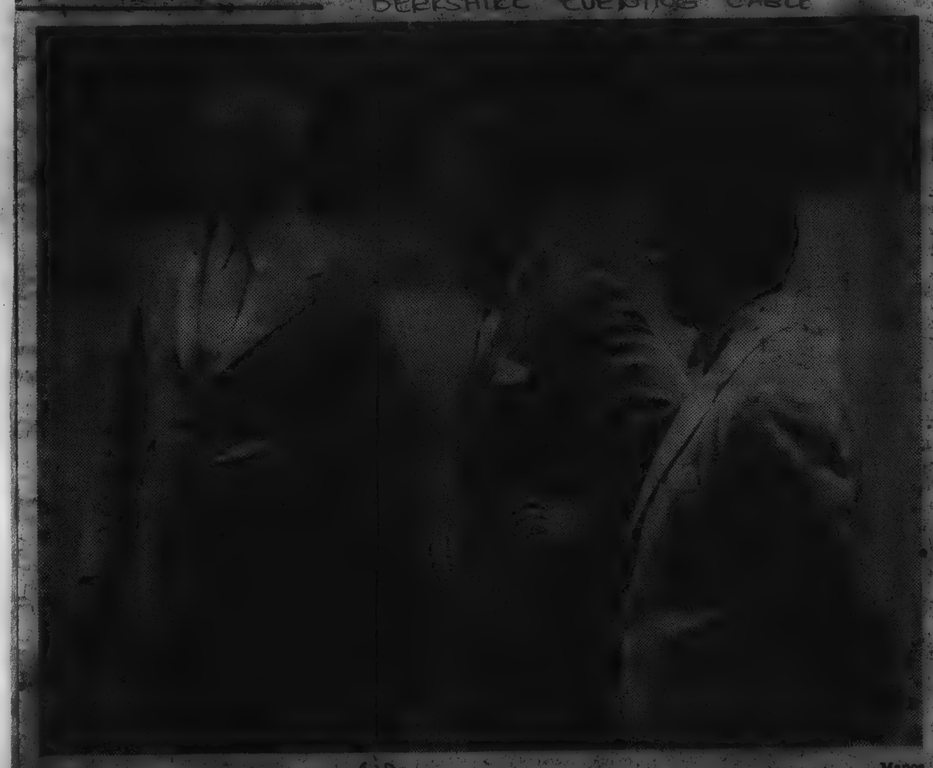
Get all 6 popular flavors today: Van[illegible]
Lemon, Orange, Raspberry and Maple...

Milk Des[illegible]

of this nourishing

Boston Herald, Thursday, July 1, 1954 BERKSHIRE EVENING EAGLE



Mazzo

TANGLEWOOD VISITOR, Sir Adrian Boult, left, eminent British orchestral conductor, looks over the Festival property during his visit this week, with Thomas D. Perry Jr., center, manager-elect of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and Ralph Berkowitz, dean of the Berkshire Music Center.

[110]

The Lively Arts

By Milton [illegible] Bass

USUALLY whenever columnist Robert Ruark opines that something is white, I immediately take it for granted that it is black. But one thing we have agreed upon in the past, see eye to eye on now and will always be together on in the future is that Joe Bushkin is one of the great jazz pianists of our time.

Up to now when my craving to hear Mr. Bushkin could not be denied, it was necessary to journey down to the Embers in New York and spend much loot for such things as whisky and whisky. But things are going to be different this summer. The mountain has come here to Mahomet.

Mr. Bushkin, his lovely wife and five-year-old daughter have moved to the Berkshires for the summer and now all I have to do to get the savage breast soothed is whip down to Richmond and drink HIS whisky. Verily, Mahomet is in Nirvana.

* * *

WITH ONE exception, everybody who has heard Mr. Bushkin is convinced that his stuff cannot be improved upon. He is known as a musician's musician and all the top names in show business can be found clustered around the stand in whatever club he's playing after their own evening's stints are finished.

The one exception to the rule is Mr. Bushkin himself who is up here to do something about it. He is going to study composition under Lukas Foss at Tanglewood this summer, and take in the concerts and walk in the woods and go swimming with his little girl and assess everything he has accomplished and everything he wants to accomplish. "I'm trying to get grouped," says Joe, "and this seems a fine place to do it."

* * *

HE CAME to the Berkshires on the recommendation of his good friend Leonard Bernstein who has successfully combined a career of classical, popular and jazz music. Joe wants to start writing down his music, create songs that will last for himself and for the public.

"It isn't enough just to play music," says Joe, "because the pleasure it gives you lasts for a short time. If you get one or two good sets a night, it's enough to send you home feeling happy. But the next day it's gone and you may not hit it right for quite a while. I want to write it down so I can look at it and feel it's good and know that other people feel it's right. That kind of happiness is always there when you need it."

So the slim, intense-looking musician decided to forego the offers he had for the summer and come here with his piano, wife, daughter, and three white Maltese dogs. These dogs are related to ones owned by Tallulah Bankhead and Rosemary Clooney and they are named Reginald (after good friend Jackie Gleason's pet character), Scampy and Butch. Butch was tagged because of the incongruity between the tough name and the cute little button of a dog.

* * *

RIGHT NOW Mr. Bushkin is more concerned with working his barbecue than with working on his music. This electrically driven contraption was purchased at Hammacher Schlemmer's (I repeat this name at every available opportunity in New York and it has everything on it including power steering. A plump chicken was whirling gaily on the spit during most of the evening and its fragrance blended exotically with the night air and the soft music. Mr. Bushkin handles a chicken on a spit as dexterously as any of his musical phrases.

Joe Bushkin started playing the piano at the age of 10 in his native city of New York, but he dropped it at 12 in favor of the trumpet. He wanted to play in the school band and a piano was too big to lug around a field. At 15 he returned to the piano and in 1935 was good enough to tour the country with Bunny Berigan's band. He was also good enough on the trumpet to engage in trumpet battles with Berigan and when he went with Tommy Dorsey in 1940, he and Tommy would play the horn at each other just for kicks.

* * *

IN 1942 HE enlisted in the Air Force and headed bands at various bases before he was assigned as an orchestra leader with the touring company of "Winged Victory." He took this as long as he could, but finally went "pit happy" as they say in the business and upon pleading insanity to his commanding officer, was shipped to the Pacific where he played trumpet on a long island tour. In 1940 he had written the hit "Oh Look at Me Now" and while in service he wrote "There'll be a Hot Time in the Town of Berlin." His old buddy Bing Crosby happened to see a copy of it, recorded it with the Andrews sisters and the rest is history.

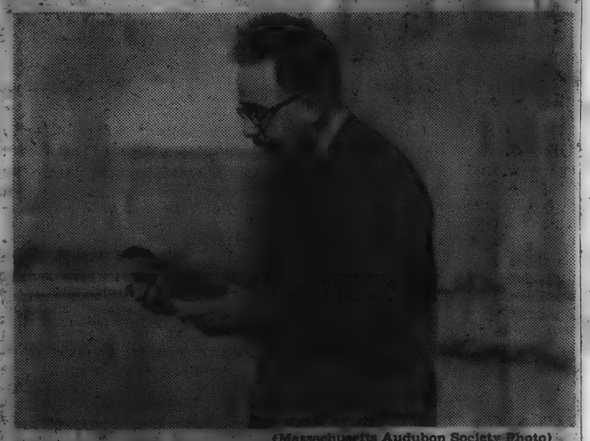
Joe was discharged in 1946 and after a stint with NBC, he joined Benny Goodman for a year. Then in 1947 he went down to Rio with Bud Freeman and they toured South America for four months. It was while he was down there that he telephoned his girl in Chicago and suggested she come down. When she asked why, he said, "Maybe we'll get married or something." She went, and they were.

* * *

UPON HIS return north he studied composition with Stefan Wolpe, a teacher of the French neo-classic school, and then in 1949 he opened in Garson Kanin's "Rat Race" on Broadway. This had a nice run and then there were a couple of cross country tours with Krupa, and jazz quartets, Jackie Gleason and a large band. Last year he went over to Europe with his friend Jose Ferrer to look for plays that might be made into musicals and while over there he wrote 27 songs with Garson Kanin which they hope to incorporate into a Broadway musical of their own.

He sat down and played a few of the songs and it was a lovely moment as his gentle voice combined with the fabulous piano technique and feeling. He may think he has something to learn about French neo-classic technique but in his own field the man has few equals. Try listening to his LP records titled "After Hours," "I Love a Piano" and "Piano Moods" and you'll find out why they call this man a musician's musician. Or drive around Richmond some night and maybe just beyond the breeze you will hear magic sounds and whisperings. It won't be elves or sprites; it'll be Joe Bushkin, feeling pretty good and expressing it in the best way he knows.

BOSTON MUSICIAN FIGURES



(Massachusetts Audubon Society Photo)

NEXT STOP EUROPE — Rosario Mazzeo of Boston Symphony about to release Manx shearwater at Logan airport. The sea bird flew 3200 miles to home nest in record 12¾ days.

A Speed Record for Birds

By EARL BANNER

How a Boston Symphony Orchestra clarinetist played a role in experiments shedding new light on the mystery of bird migration and navigation is told in "Sea Birds" by James Fisher and R. M. Lockley, two British scientists, whose book is being published in Boston this week by Houghton Mifflin Company.

The musician is Rosario Mazzeo, clarinetist and personnel manager of the Boston Symphony. The sea bird in question was a little Skokholm shearwater used in earlier tests had not bettered this record.

* * *

"Sea Birds" reports: "It was a fine clear morning when it was released at Boston and it immediately flew eastward in the direction of the open Atlantic—and Skokholm. This initial correct orientation can be explained satisfactorily by stating that it was accidental, or that a sea bird would naturally fly away from the land; our shearwater at Venice turned inland over its high mountains, and Mazzeo's

NEW! CONVENIENT DAVOL
Especially for Baby
LIGGETT DRUG STORES
Rexall
Cab driver John Cesapullo, 28, had become suspicious at 8:45 when a customer in the apartment house where Pollard was trapped left from the apartment. Dispatcher Edith Hunt
LIGGETT DRUG STORES
Rexall
PACE AT YOUR

FIRST CHAIR (Cont.)

notes for a unique clarinet imported by him from France. What to do — transpose those deep notes? Not if it could be avoided. Both Mazzeo and Koussevitzky considered that the special effect written down by the composer was too good to lose. So Mazzeo designed and supervised the making of a new "sub-bass" clarinet. It was not easy. After calculations to make the lower notes theoretically possible, there remained the problem of making them readily accessible to the fingers of the player. A practical instrument was the result of the efforts of Mr. Mazzeo. Doubtless he was aided by the fact that he is an expert on the history of the clarinet and has enough material on the subject to write a book.

If a problem arises about obtaining certain particular photographs of the conductor or the orchestra, vexed camera men are first startled and then more than pleased to find that the bass clarinet can tell them what camera, with which adjustment, and where placed, will yield the desired result.

The comprehensive camera lore of Mr. Mazzeo comes of his activities in photographing birds — even in difficult mountain hideaways. In turn, this has made him a skilled mountain climber. To cap it all, he is recognized as an authority on bird life, and thereby has become a valued director of the Massachusetts Audubon Society. His enthusiastic attention to ornithology dates back to his earliest years when his interest in natural science was encouraged by the Boy Scout program. And his skill and knowledge has grown until today Mr. Mazzeo's place in ornithological circles far surpasses that of a casual amateur "birder". A keen eye for exciting experiences has added some amazing bird stories to his repertoire. There was the chance spotting of three northern phalaropes in the Boston Public Garden from the vantage point of a swan boat. Then his travels have led to more distant realms, including the New Mexico-Colorado region, where he lived for a month at an altitude of 13,000 feet. There was the exciting voyage on a fishing vessel working off Cape Sable, Nova Scotia. Other natural science expeditions have found Mr. Mazzeo in Newfoundland, Labrador, California, Wales and the Artic island of Bylot.

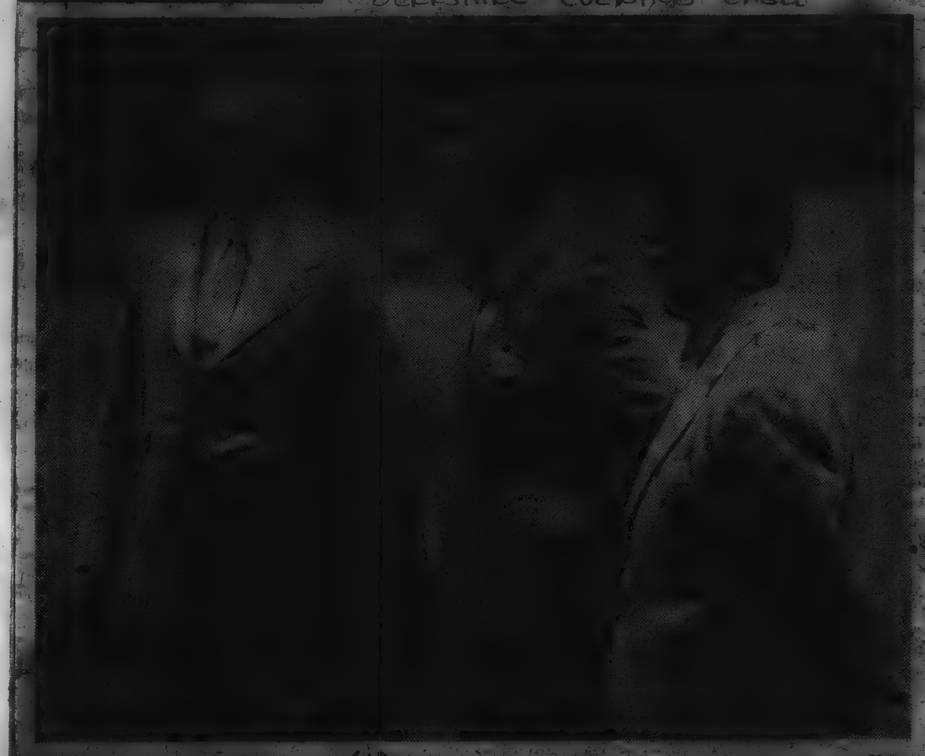
8

"Good Listening", 7/5[illegible]

MUSIC

BERKSHIRE MUSIC FESTIVAL (TANGLEWOOD). Tuesdays (except July 6 and 13): Opera. Wednesdays: Chamber Music. Thursdays: Orchestra. Fridays: Chamber music. Saturdays (morn.) BSO rehearsal; (eve.) Boston Symphony Orchestra. Sundays (morn.) Chamber music; (aft.) Boston Symphony Orchestra; (eve.) Composers' forum.

[illegible], Thursday, July 1, 1954 BERKSHIRE EVENING EAGLE



Marcus

TANGLEWOOD VISITOR, Sir Adrian Boult, left, eminent British orchestral conductor, looks over the Festival property during his visit this week, with Thomas D. Perry Jr., center, manager-elect of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and Ralph Berkowitz, dean of the Berkshire Music Center.

[110]

When your youngsters ask for more R give them all they want because it supplie beauty of pure, whole milk. Here's a de nourished family dessert that wins mothe
Get all 6 popular flavors today: Van
Lemon, Orange, Raspberry and Maple
Milk Des
of the mountains

The Lively Arts

By Milton E. Bass

USUALLY whenever columnist Robert Ruark opines that something is white, I immediately take it for granted that it is black. But one thing we have agreed upon in the past, see eye to eye on now and will always be together on in the future is that Joe Bushkin is one of the great jazz pianists of our time.

Up to now when my craving to hear Mr. Bushkin could not be denied, it was necessary to journey down to the Embers in New York and spend much loot for such things as whisky and whisky. But things are going to be different this summer. The mountain has come here to Mahomet.

Mr. Bushkin, his lovely wife and five-year-old daughter have moved to the Berkshires for the summer and now all I have to do to get the savage breast soothed is whip down to Richmond and drink HIS whisky. Verily, Mahomet is in Nirvana.

* * *

WITH ONE exception, everybody who has heard Mr. Bushkin is convinced that his stuff cannot be improved upon. He is known as a musician's musician and all the top names in show business can be found clustered around the stand in whatever club he's playing after their own evening's stints are finished.

The one exception to the rule is Mr. Bushkin himself who is up here to do something about it. He is going to study composition under Lukas Foss at Tanglewood this summer, and take in the concerts and walk in the woods and go swimming with his little girl and assess everything he has accomplished and everything he wants to accomplish. "I'm trying to get grouped," says Joe; "and this seems a fine place to do it."

* * *

HE CAME to the Berkshires on the recommendation of his good friend Leonard Bernstein who has successfully combined a career of classical, popular and jazz music. Joe wants to start writing down his music, create songs that will last for himself and for the public.

"It isn't enough just to play music," says Joe, "because the pleasure it gives you lasts for a short time. If you get one or two good sets a night, it's enough to send you home feeling happy. But the next day it's gone and you may not hit it right for quite a while. I want to write it down so I can look at it and feel it's good and know that other people feel it's right. That kind of happiness is always there when you need it."

So the slim, intense-looking musician decided to forego the offers he had for the summer and come here with his piano, wife, daughter, and three white Maltese dogs. These dogs are related to ones owned by Tallulah Bankhead and Rosemary Clooney and they are named Reginald (after good friend Jackie Gleason's pet character), Scampy and Butch. Butch was tagged because of the incongruity between the tough name and the cute little button of a dog.

* * *

RIGHT NOW Mr. Bushkin is more concerned with working his barbecue than with working on his music. This electrically driven contraption was purchased at Hammacher Schlemmer's (I repeat this name at every available opportunity in New York and it has everything on it including power steering. A plump chicken was whirling gally on the spit during most of the evening and its fragrance blended exotically with the night air and the soft music. Mr. Bushkin handles a chicken on a spit as dexterously as any of his musical phrases.

Joe Bushkin started playing the piano at the age of 10 in his native city of New York, but he dropped it at 12 in favor of the trumpet. He wanted to play in the school band and a piano was too big to lug around a field. At 15 he returned to the piano and in 1935 was good enough to tour the country with Bunny Berigan's band. He was also good enough on the trumpet to engage in trumpet battles with Berigan and when he went with Tommy Dorsey in 1940, he and Tommy would play the horn at each other just for kicks.

* * *

IN 1942 HE enlisted in the Air Force and headed bands at various bases before he was assigned as an orchestra leader with the touring company of "Winged Victory." He took this as long as he could, but finally went "pit happy" as they say in the business and upon pleading insanity to his commanding officer, was shipped to the Pacific where he played trumpet on a long island tour. In 1940 he had written the hit "Oh Look at Me Now" and while in service he wrote "There'll be a Hot Time in the Town of Berlin." His old buddy Bing Crosby happened to see a copy of it, recorded it with the Andrews sisters and the rest is history.

Joe was discharged in 1946 and after a stint with NBC, he joined Benny Goodman for a year. Then in 1947 he went down to Rio with Bud Freeman and they toured South America for four months. It was while he was down there that he telephoned his girl in Chicago and suggested she come down. When she asked why, he said, "Maybe we'll get married or something." She went, and they were.

* * *

UPON HIS return north he studied composition with Stefan Wolpe, a teacher of the French neo-classic school, and then in 1949 he opened in Garson Kanin's "Rat Race" on Broadway. This had a nice run and then there were a couple of cross country tours with string and jazz quartets, Jackie Gleason and a large band. Last year he went over to Europe with his friend Jose Ferrer to look for plays that might be made into musicals and while over there he wrote 22 songs with Garson Kanin which they hope to incorporate into a Broadway musical of their own.

He sat down and played a few of the songs and it was a lovely moment as his gentle voice combined with the fabulous piano technique and feeling. He may think he has something to learn about French neo-classic technique but in his own field the man has few equals. Try listening to his LP records titled "After Hours," "I Love a Piano" and "Piano Moods" and you'll find out why they call this man a musician's musician. Or drive around Richmond some night and maybe just beyond the breeze you will hear magic sounds and whisperings. It won't be elves or sprites; it'll be Joe Bushkin, feeling pretty good and expressing it in the best way he knows.

BOSTON, MASS.
EVENING GLOBE
MAY 13 1954

BOSTON MUSICIAN FIGURES

(Massachusetts Audubon Society Photo)

NEXT STOP EUROPE — Rosario Mazzeo of Boston Symphony about to release Manx shearwater at Logan airport. The sea bird flew 3200 miles to home nest in record 12½ days.

A Speed Record for Birds

By EARL BANNER

How a Boston Symphony Orchestra clarinetist played a role in experiments shedding new light on the mystery of bird migration and navigation is told in "Sea Birds" by James Fisher and R. M. Lockley, two British scientists, whose book is being published in Boston this week by Houghton Mifflin Company.

The musician is Rosario Mazzeo, clarinetist and personnel manager of the Boston Symphony. The sea bird in question was a little Skokholm shearwater used in earlier tests had not bettered this record.

* * *

"Sea Birds" reports:

"It was a fine clear morning when it was released at Boston and it immediately flew eastwards in the direction of the open Atlantic—and Skokholm. This initial correct orientation can be explained satisfactorily by stating that it was accidental, or that a sea bird would naturally fly away from the land; our shearwater at Venice turned inland towards high mountains, and Mazzeo, clarinetist and personnel manager of the Boston Symphony. The sea bird in question was a little Skokholm shear-

NEW! CONVENIENT!
Especially for Baby
NATIONAL BABY WEEK
LIGGETT DRUG STORES
DAVOL
PACE ATTOUR
LIGGETT DRUG STORES

Dispatcher Starts Hunt
Cab driver John Ceaspullo, 28, had become suspicious of Rydhalf from the apartment where Pollard was trapped.

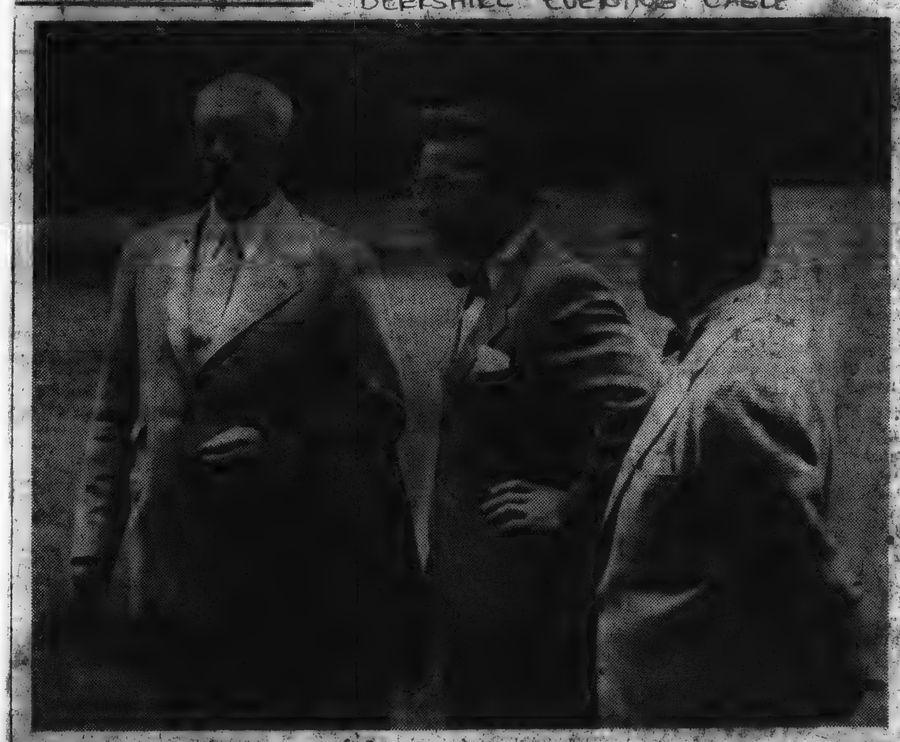
"Good Listening, 7/54

MUSIC

BERKSHIRE MUSIC FESTIVAL (TANGLEWOOD). Tuesdays (except July 6 and 13): Opera. Wednesdays: Chamber Music. Thursdays: Orchestra. Fridays: Chamber music. Saturdays (morn.) BSO rehearsal; (eve.) Boston Symphony Orchestra. Sundays (morn.) Chamber music; (aft.) Boston Symphony Orchestra; (eve.) Composers' forum.

BERKSHIRE EVENING EAGLE



Mason

TANGLEWOOD VISITOR, Sir Adrian Boult, left, eminent British orchestral conductor, looks over the Festival property during his visit this week, with Thomas D. Perry Jr., center, manager-elect of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and Ralph Berkowitz, dean of the Berkshire Music Center.

[110]

FIRST CHAIR (Cont.)

notes for a unique clarinet imported by him from France. What to do — transpose those deep notes? Not if it could be avoided. Both Mazzeo and Koussevitzky considered that the special effect written down by the composer was too good to lose. So Mazzeo designed and supervised the making of a new "subbass" clarinet. It was not easy. After calculations to make the lower notes theoretically possible, there remained the problem of making them readily accessible to the fingers of the player. A practical instrument was the result of the efforts of Mr. Mazzeo. Doubtless he was aided by the fact that he is an expert on the history of the clarinet and has enough material on the subject to write a book.

If a problem arises about obtaining certain particular photographs of the conductor or the orchestra, vexed camera men are first startled and then more than pleased to find that the bass clarinet can tell them what camera, with which adjustment, and where placed, will yield the desired result.

The comprehensive camera lore of Mr. Mazzeo comes of his activities in photographing birds — even in difficult mountain hideaways. In turn, this has made him a skilled mountain climber. To cap it all, he is recognized as an authority on bird life, and thereby has become a valued director of the Massachusetts Audubon Society. His enthusiastic attention to ornithology dates back to his earliest years when his interest in natural science was encouraged by the Boy Scout program. And his skill and knowledge has grown until today Mr. Mazzeo's place in ornithological circles far surpasses that of a casual amateur "birder". A keen eye for exciting experiences has added some amazing bird stories to his repertoire. There was the chance spotting of three northern phalaropes in the Boston Public Garden from the vantage point of a swan boat. Then his travels have led to more distant realms, including the New Mexico-Colorado region, where he lived for a month at an altitude of 13,000 feet. There was the exciting voyage on a fishing vessel working off Cape Sable, Nova Scotia. Other natural science expeditions have found Mr. Mazzeo in Newfoundland, Labrador, California, Wales and the Artic island of Bylot.

8

head, "are you by any chance recommending yourself?"

I said yes, I was, and how about it? It wouldn't cost the expedition a cent because The Herald had been looking for a correspondent in Bylot for years and would eagerly snatch up the whole tab for my transportation and keep. Besides, I could write magazine articles about it and probably even a book to immortalize the expedition.

Master of Egg

"Now about cooking," said Mr. Mazzeo, unimpressed by the chance for immortality. "What have you ever cooked?"

"Well," I said, "everybody speaks very highly of my cheese rabbit, and I am a master of the egg in all its culinary forms."

"Fine," said Mr. Mazzeo, "only we won't be taking either cheese or eggs on the trip. What else can you do?"

"Fry bacon," I said, "beautiful crisp bacon. I am also good at making toast, peanut butter and jam sandwiches, and a particular specialty of mine, namely, creamed vichysoisse."

"What do you put in your Vichysoisse?" Mr. Mazzeo asked, "onions or leeks?"

"Onions," I said. "Why?"

"Onions in Vichyssisse?" cried the gourmet in Mr. Mazzeo. "Sacrilegious! However," he added, "I'm going up to Bylot in a few weeks to make preparations for the expedition, and I'll think it over."

So Mr. Mazzeo went up to Bylot on a two-week, 9000-mile reconnaissance trip, obtaining permits from the Canadian government, arranging for the coopera-

...of this mountain
Milk Des
When your youngsters ask for more R... give them all they want because it supplie... bounties of pure, whole milk. Here's a de... nourishing family dessert that wise moth... Get all 6 popular flavors today: Van... Lemon, Orange, Raspberry and Maple...

ing Trio
nt July 7

n Symphony will hold six weekly open re-
the benefit of the or-nsion fund, to which invited for the nom-
on of $1.

enter n Sunday
OOD — The Berkshire
r, the summer school
aintained by the Bos-
ny Orchestra in con-
the Berkshire Festi-
ts 12th session, a six-
of music studies for udents and profession-
lewood Sunday.
funch, music director
n Symphony Orchestra
of the Berkshire Mu-
will arrive from Paris
tudents and guests at exercises, at 3:30 p.m.
ter-Concert Hall.
Perry, honorary chair-
Friends of the Berk-
Center, whose contri-
to support the school,
estra trustee, will pre-
oser Aaron Copland,
rector of the school,
e the faculty.
y opening of the school
nding under the direc-
iate Dr. Serge Kous-
1940, Randall Thomp-
luia," composed for ning of the school, will
the students. Hugh of the choral depart-
onduct.
dens
e served in the Tanglegardens following the

chool performance will ursday, July 8, at 8:30
Music Shed, when for ne the symphony or-
00 students in Depart-
play together.
f six weekly chamber
rts will be given by stu-
artment I in the Cham-
all Sunday, July 11 at nday, July 11 at 8:30
n the Chamber Music
ring the first compos-
by students of Depart-dying with Aaron Cop-
Foss and guest com-
Toch. Their works formed by fellow stu-
ommented upon.
f the Berkshire Music
ose contributions help
he school, are invited
nt concerts.

The Lively Arts

By Milton R. Bass

...LY whenever column-
... Ruark opines that
... is white, I immediate-
...r granted that it is
... one thing we have
...e in the past, see eye
... now and will always
...r on in the future is
... Bushkin is one of the
...z pianists of our time.
...now when my craving
...ic. Bushkin could not
..., it was necessary to
...own to the Embers in
... and spend much loot
...things as whisky and
... but things are going
...ferent this summer. The
... has come here to Ma-
...

...Bushkin, his lovely wife
... year-old daughter have
... the Berkshires for the
... and now all I have to do
... get the savage breast soothed
... wing down to Richmond and
... drink HIS whisky. Verily, Ma-
...ner is in Nirvana.

* * *

WITH ONE exception, every-body who has heard Mr. Bushkin is convinced that his stuff can-not be improved upon. He is known as a musician's musician and all the top names in show business can be found clustered around the stand in whatever club he's playing after their own evening's stints are finished.

The one exception to the rule is Mr. Bushkin himself who is up here to do something about it. He is going to study compo-sition under Lukas Foss at Tanglewood this summer and take in the concerts and walk in the woods and go swimming with his little girl and assess every-thing he has accomplished and everything he wants to accom-plish. "I'm trying to get grouped," says Joe, "and this seems a fine place to do it."

* * *

HE CAME to the Berkshires on the recommendation of his good friend Leonard Bernstein who has successfully combined a career of classical, popular and jazz mu-sic. Joe wants to start writing down his music, create songs that will last for himself and for the public.

"It isn't enough just to play music," says Joe, "because the pleasure it gives you lasts for a short time. If you get one or two good sets a night, it's enough to send you home feeling happy. But the next day it's gone and you may not hit it right for quite a while. I want to write it down so I can look at it and feel it's good and know that other people feel it's right. That kind of hap-piness is always there when you need it."

So the slim, intense-looking mu-sician decided to forego the offers he had for the summer and come here with his piano, wife, daugh-ter, and three white Maltese dogs. These dogs are related to ones owned by Tallulah Bankhead and Rosemary Clooney and they are named Reginald (after good friend Jackie Gleason's pet char-acter), Scampy and Butch. Butch was tagged because of the incon-gruity between the tough name and the cute little button of a dog.

* * *

RIGHT NOW Mr. Bushkin is more concerned with working his barbecue than with working on his music. This electrically driv-en contraption was purchased at Hammacher Schlemmer's (I re-peat this name at every avail-able opportunity in New York and it has everything on it includ-ing power steering. A plump chicken was whirling gaily on the spit during most of the evening and its fragrance blended exotic-ally with the night air and the soft music. Mr. Bushkin handles a chicken on a spit as dexterously as any of his musical phrases.

Joe Bushkin started playing the piano at the age of 10 in his na-tive city of New York, but he dropped it at 12 in favor of the trumpet. He wanted to play in the school band and a piano was too big to lug around a field. At 15 he returned to the piano and in 1935 was good enough to tour the country with Bunny Berigan's band. He was also good enough on the trumpet to engagé in trumpet battles with Berigan and when he went with Tommy Dor-sey in 1940, he and Tommy would play the horn at each other just for kicks.

* * *

IN 1942 HE enlisted in the Air Force and headed bands at vari-ous bases before he was assigned as an orchestra leader with the touring company of "Winged Vic-tory." He took this as long as he could, but finally went "pit hap-py" as they say in the business and upon pleading insanity to his commanding officer, was shipped to the Pacific where he played trumpet on a long island tour. In 1940 he had written the hit "Oh Look at Me Now" and while in service he wrote "There'll be a Hot Time in the Town of Ber-lin." His old buddy Bing Crosby happened to see a copy of it, re-corded it with the Andrews sis-ters and the rest is history.

Joe was discharged in 1946 and after a stint with NBC, he joined Benny Goodman for a year. Then in 1947 he went down to Rio with Bud Freeman and they toured South America for four months. It was while he was down there that he telephoned his girl in Chicago and suggested she come down. When she asked why, he said, "Maybe we'll get married or something." She went and they were.

* * *

UPON HIS return north he studied composition with Stefan Wolpe, a teacher of the French neo-classic school, and then in 1949 he opened in Garson Kan-in's "Rat Race" on Broadway. This had a nice run and then there were a couple of cross coun-try tours with string and jazz quartets, Jackie Gleason and a large band. Last year he went over to Europe with his friend Jose Ferrer to look for plays that might be made into musicals and while over there he wrote 22 songs with Garson Kanin which they hope to incorporate into a Broad-way musical of their own.

He sat down and played a few of the songs and it was a lovely moment as his gentle voice com-bined with the fabulous piano technique and feeling. He may think he has something to learn about French neo-classic tech-nique but in his own field the man has few equals. Try listening to his LP records titled "After Hours," "I Love a Piano" and "Piano Moods" and you'll find out why they call this man a mu-sician's musician. Or drive around Richmond some night and maybe just beyond the breeze you will hear magic sounds and whis-perings. It won't be elves or sprites; it'll be Joe Bushkin, feel-ing pretty good and expressing it in the best way he knows.

BOSTON, MASS.
EVENING GLOBE
MAY 13 1954

BOSTON MUSICIAN FIGURES

(Massachusetts Audubon Society Photo)

NEXT STOP EUROPE — Rosario Mazzeo of Boston Symphony about to release Manx shearwater at Logan airport. The sea bird flew 3200 miles to home nest in record 12½ days.

A Speed Record for Birds

By EARL BANNER

How a Boston Symphony Or-chestra clarinetist played a role in experiments shedding new light on the mystery of bird migration and navigation is told in "Sea Birds" by James Fisher and R. M. Lockley, two British scientists, whose book is being published in Boston this week by Houghton Mifflin Company.

The musician is Rosario Maz-zeo, clarinetist and personnel manager of the Boston Sym-phony. The sea bird in question was a little Skokholm shear-water which returned to its nest on a rocky crag off the coast of Wales only 12½ days after it was released from Logan Inter-national Airport in East Boston by Mazzeo.

Skokholm, 3200 miles from Boston, is a small island about 12 miles off the west coast of Wales and is an important nest-ing ground of the Manx shear-water. Mazzeo, an enthusiastic amateur ornithologist and a di-rector of the Massachusetts Audubon Society, visited co-author Lockley at his bird-band-ing station there at the end of the Boston Symphony's tour of Europe in 1952.

Lockley asked Mazzeo to bring a pair of banded shearwaters to Boston and release them. This Mazzeo agreed to do. There-upon, only minutes after his plane from England landed here, he released the surviving bird. The other had died en route.

* * *

The Boston musician released the surviving bird early on the morning of June 3, 1952. On June 16, about 12½ days later, the same bird was observed by Lock-ley back on its own nest, all the way—and then some—across the Atlantic.

This little sea bird, which doesn't look so much different from a Boston Common pigeon, had covered 3200 miles at an average daily rate of about 250 miles, or about 10 miles an hour. This was considerably more than all previously recorded home flights by either land or sea birds. Even swallows (128 miles a day) and terns (139 miles a day) used in earlier tests had not bet-tered this record.

* * *

"Sea Birds" reports:

"It was a fine clear morning when it was released at Boston and it immediately flew eastwards in the direction of the open At-lantic—and Skokholm. This in-itial correct orientation can be explained satisfactorily by stat-ing that it was accidental, or that a sea bird would naturally fly away from the land; our shear-water at Venice turned inland towards high mountains, and Mat-thews' shearwarter in London and Cambridge flew at first fur-ther inland (in order to reach Skokholm quickly) rather than eastwards to the nearest sea. In-itial orientation almost (in some instances quite) on the right com-pass bearing in fine weather and unknown territory can only be explained by the possession by the shearwater of an orientation mechanism which is quite inde-pendent of topographical 'knowl-edge' or memory; and the fact that the mechanism breaks down in cloudy weather suggests very strongly that orientation is by the sun."

The British naturalists conclude from their own experiments and the accumulated knowledge of many others before them that sea-birds navigate like human beings do at sea. Although they have no mechanical aids, "they find their way by learning the chart; by knowing the time (it is becoming clear that most birds have an ac-curate time sense); by dead-reck-oning, probably in terms of flying time, rather than distance cov-ered; by observing the sun and stars and their position in rela-tion to the horizon."

"They may exploit other signs, such as the set of the currents, temperatures, and the presence of animals of their own or other kinds. We know that birds can make the mistakes that human navigators do," Fisher and Lock-ley conclude, "such as getting adrift and wrecked. And we know that they can, by instinctive orientation and navigation, with-out instruments, do things that humans cannot do."

BERKSHIRE EVENING EAGLE

Manos

TANGLEWOOD VISITOR, Sir Adrian Boult, left, eminent British orchestral conductor, looks over the Festival property during his visit this week, with Thomas D. Perry Jr., center, manager-elect of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and Ralph Berkowitz, dean of the Berkshire Music Center.

[110]

FIRST CHAIR (Cont.)

notes for a unique clarinet imported by him from France. What to do — trans-pose those deep notes? Not if it could be avoided. Both Mazzeo and Kousse-vitzky considered that the special effect written down by the composer was too good to lose. So Mazzeo designed and supervised the making of a new "sub-bass" clarinet. It was not easy. After calculations to make the lower notes the-oretically possible, there remained the problem of making them readily acces-sible to the fingers of the player. A prac-tical instrument was the result of the efforts of Mr. Mazzeo. Doubtless he was aided by the fact that he is an expert on the history of the clarinet and has enough material on the subject to write a book.

If a problem arises about obtaining cer-tain particular photographs of the con-ductor or the orchestra, vexed camera men are first startled and then more than pleased to find that the bass clarinet can tell them what camera, with which ad-justment, and where placed, will yield the desired result.

The comprehensive camera lore of Mr. Mazzeo comes of his activities in photo-graphing birds — even in difficult moun-tain hideaways. In turn, this has made him a skilled mountain climber. To cap it all, he is recognized as an authority on bird life, and thereby has become a val-ued director of the Massachusetts Audubon Society. His enthusiastic attention to or-nithology dates back to his earliest years when his interest in natural science was encouraged by the Boy Scout program. And his skill and knowledge has grown until today Mr. Mazzeo's place in orni-thological circles far surpasses that of a casual amateur "birder". A keen eye for exciting experiences has added some amazing bird stories to his repertoire. There was the chance spotting of three northern phalaropes in the Boston Public Garden from the vantage point of a swan boat. Then his travels have led to more distant realms, including the New Mexi-co-Colorado region, where he lived for a month at an altitude of 13,000 feet. There was the exciting voyage on a fish-ing vessel working off Cape Sable, Nova Scotia. Other natural science expeditions have found Mr. Mazzeo in Newfound-land, Labrador, California, Wales and the Artic island of Bylot.

"Say," said Mr. Mazzeo, cocking his head, "are you by any chance recommend-ing yourself?"

I said yes, I was, and how about it? It wouldn't cost the expedition a cent because The Herald had been looking for a correspondent in Bylot for years and would eagerly snatch up the whole tab for my transportation and keep. Be-sides, I could write magazine articles about it and probably even a book to im-mortalize the expedition.

Master of Egg

"Now about cooking," said Mr. Mazzeo, unimpressed by the chance for im-mortality. "What have you ever cooked?"

"Well," I said, "everybody speaks very highly of my cheese rabbit, and I am a master of the egg in all its culinary forms."

"Fine," said Mr. Mazzeo, "only we won't be taking either cheese or eggs on the trip. What else can you do?"

"Fry bacon," I said, "beautiful crisp bacon. I am also good at making toast, peanut butter and jam sandwiches, and a particular specialty of mine, namely, creamed vichysoisse."

"What do you put in your Vichy-soisse?" Mr. Mazzeo asked, "onions or leeks?"

"Onions," I said. "Why?"

"Onions in Vichysoisse?" cried the gourmet in Mr. Mazzeo. "Sacrilegious! However," he added, "I'm going up to Bylot in a few weeks to make prepara-tions for the expedition, and I'll think it over."

So Mr. Mazzeo went up to Bylot on a two-week, 9000-mile reconnaissance trip, obtaining permits from the Canadian government, arranging for the coopera-tion of the Eskimos, arranging for dog sleds and bush pilots, and aerially photo-graphing the island to be explored and studied.

Learns of Personnel

In the meantime the personnel of the expedition became known. Going along, I learned, were Dr. William Drury, Jr., Dr. Josselyn Van Tyne, Dr. Richard Miller, Dr. Benjamin Ferris, M.D., Edward Ames, Axel and Katherine Rosen, and Mrs. Wil-liam Drury, Jr., amateur ornithologist. The name of Dr. Rudolph Elie, cookolo-gist, however, was conspicuously missing. And when Mr. Mazzeo returned from his reconnaissance, deeply tanned from the glare of the ice and snow of Bylot, I caught up with him one night as, with bass clarinet in hand, he was preparing to take his place with the Pops orchestra.

"How about it?" I demanded.

"I'm sorry to say you don't qualify," said Mr. Mazzeo. "Any man who puts onions instead of leeks into Vichysoisse cannot qualify as cook on our expedition, even though we won't be having any Vichysoisse on Bylot. What we'll be having up there mostly is tuk-tuk, but even tuk-tuk requires the master hand in the kitchen."

"Tuk-tuk?" I inquired. "And what is tuk-tuk?"

"Tuk-tuk," said Mr. Mazzeo, "is a sort of Eskimo hot dog. It consists of a hunk of narwhal blubber wrapped up in the skin of a fish. Very chewy, of course, but delicious. It has a nutty fla-vor. Well, I must dash now."

He dashed, and all I can say is I hope they choke on their old tuk-tuk. Narwhal blubber and fish skin without onions? Ugh!

ing Trio
nt July 7

n Symphony will hold
six weekly open re-
the benefit of the or-nsion fund, to which invited for the nom-
on of $1.

Center
n Sunday
WOOD — The Berkshire
r, the summer school
aintained by the Bos-
ny Orchestra in con-
the Berkshire Festi-
ts 12th session, a six-
of music studies for
udents and profession-
lewood Sunday.
unch, music director
n Symphony Orchestra
of the Berkshire Mu-
will arrive from Paris
tudents and guests at
exercises, at 3:30 p.m.
ter-Concert Hall.
Perry, honorary chair-
Friends of the Berk-
Center, whose contri-
to support the school,
estra trustee, will pre-
oser Aaron Copland,
rector of the school,
e the faculty.
y opening of the school
nding under the direc-
late Dr. Serge Kous-
1940, Randall Thomp-
luia," composed for ning of the school, will
the students. Hugh
of the choral depart-conduct.
dens
e served in the Tangle-
l gardens following the

chool performance will ursday, July 8, at 8:30
Music Shed, when for me the symphony or-
00 students in Depart-
play together.
of six weekly chamber
rts will be given by stu-
artment I in the Cham-
Hall Sunday, July 11 at nday, July 11 at 8:30
in the Chamber Music
ring the first compos-
by students of Depart-dying with Aaron Cop-
Foss and guest com-
t Toch. Their works
formed by fellow stu-
commented upon.
f the Berkshire Music
ose contributions help
he school, are invited
nt concerts.

10—The Berkshire Evening Eagle, Thursday, July 1, 1954

The Lively Arts

By Milton R. Bass

TYPICALLY whenever columnist [illegible] Ruark opines that something is white, I immediately take for granted that it is black. It is one thing we have learned in the past, see eye to eye now and will always agree on in the future is that Joe Bushkin is one of the great pianists of our time.

Up to now when my craving for Joe Bushkin could not be satisfied, it was necessary to journey down to the Embers in New York and spend much loot for such things as whisky and food. But things are going to be different this summer. The Bushkin has come here to Massachusetts.

The Joe Bushkin, his lovely wife and three-year-old daughter have moved to the Berkshires for the summer and now all I have to do to get the savage breast soothed is walk down to Richmond and drink HIS whisky. Verily, Mahomet is in Nirvana.

* * *

WITH ONE EXCEPTION, everybody who has heard Mr. Bushkin is convinced that his stuff cannot be improved upon. He is known as a musician's musician and all the top names in show business can be found clustered around the stand in whatever club he's playing after their own evening's stints are finished.

The one exception to the rule is Mr. Bushkin himself who is up here to do something about it. He is going to study composition under Lukas Foss at Tanglewood this summer, and take in the concerts and walk in the woods and go swimming with his little girl and assess everything he has accomplished and everything he wants to accomplish. "I'm trying to get grounded," says Joe, "and this seems a fine place to do it."

* * *

HE CAME to the Berkshires on the recommendation of his good friend Leonard Bernstein who has successfully combined a career of classical, popular and jazz music. Joe wants to start writing down his music, create songs that will last for himself and for the public.

"It isn't enough just to play music," says Joe, "because the pleasure it gives you lasts for a short time. If you get one or two good sets a night, it's enough to send you home feeling happy. But the next day it's gone and you may not hit it right for quite a while. I want to write it down so I can look at it and feel it's good and know that other people feel it's right. That kind of happiness is always there when you need it."

So the slim, intense-looking musician decided to forego the offers he had for the summer and come here with his piano, wife, daughter, and three white Maltese dogs. These dogs are related to ones owned by Tallulah Bankhead and Rosemary Clooney and they are named Reginald (after good friend Jackie Gleason's pet character), Scampy and Butch. Butch was tagged because of the incongruity between the tough name and the cute little button of a dog.

* * *

RIGHT NOW Mr. Bushkin is more concerned with working his barbecue than with working on his music. This electrically driven contraption was purchased at Hammacher Schlemmer's (I repeat this name at every available opportunity in New York and it has everything on it including power steering. A plump chicken was whirling gaily on the spit during most of the evening and its fragrance blended exotically with the night air and the soft music. Mr. Bushkin handles a chicken on a spit as dexterously as any of his musical phrases.

Joe Bushkin started playing the piano at the age of 10 in his native city of New York, but he dropped it at 12 in favor of the trumpet. He wanted to play in the school band and a piano was too big to lug around a field. At 15 he returned to the piano and in 1935 was good enough to tour the country with Bunny Berigan's band. He was also good enough on the trumpet to engage in trumpet battles with Berigan and when he went with Tommy Dorsey in 1940, he and Tommy would play the horn at each other just for kicks.

* * *

IN 1942 HE enlisted in the Air Force and headed bands at various bases before he was assigned as an orchestra leader with the touring company of "Winged Victory." He took this as long as he could, but finally went "pit happy" as they say in the business and upon pleading insanity to his commanding officer, was shipped to the Pacific where he played trumpet on a long island tour. In 1940 he had written the hit "Oh Look at Me Now" and while in service he wrote "There'll be a Hot Time in the Town of Berlin." His old buddy Bing Crosby happened to see a copy of it, recorded it with the Andrews sisters and the rest is history.

Joe was discharged in 1946 and after a stint with NBC, he joined Benny Goodman for a year. Then in 1947 he went down to Rio with Bud Freeman and they toured South America for four months. It was while he was down there that he telephoned his girl in Chicago and suggested she come down. When she asked why, he said, "Maybe we'll get married or something." She went and they were.

* * *

UPON HIS return north he studied composition with Stefan Wolpe, a teacher of the French neo-classic school, and then in 1949 he opened in Garson Kanin's "Rat Race" on Broadway. This had a nice run and then there were a couple of cross country tours with string and jazz quartets, Jackie Gleason and a large band. Last year he went over to Europe with his friend Jose Ferrer to look for plays that might be made into musicals and while over there he wrote 22 songs with Garson Kanin which they hope to incorporate into a Broadway musical of their own.

He sat down and played a few of the songs and it was a lovely moment as his gentle voice combined with the fabulous piano technique and feeling. He may think he has something to learn about French neo-classic technique but in his own field the man has few equals. Try listening to his LP records titled "After Hours," "I Love a Piano" and "Piano Moods" and you'll find out why they call this man a musician's musician. Or drive around Richmond some night and maybe just beyond the breeze you will hear magic sounds and whisperings. It won't be elves or sprites; it'll be Joe Bushkin, feeling pretty good and expressing it in the best way he knows.

BOSTON, MASS.
EVENING GLO
MAY 13
BOSTON MU

NEXT STOP EUR
Symphony about to airport. The sea bir
record 12½ days.

A Speed

By

How a Boston Symph
chestra clarinetist playec in experiments sheddir light on the mystery migration and navigation in "Sea Birds" by James and R. M. Lockley, two scientists, whose book i published in Boston thi
by Houghton Mifflin Con

The musician is Rosar zeo, clarinetist and pe manager of the Bostor phony. The sea bird in (
was a little Skokholm

DAVOL
To Celebrate
NATIONAL BABY WEEK
DRUG STORES

DRUG STORES

"First Chair"

ROSARIO MAZZEO
Bass Clarinet

Sometimes questions asked about the Boston Symphony by laymen remind staff members of the question raised by a city child visiting a farm, and the manner in which she was answered.

"The reason why that there cow hasn't got horns," the farmer said, "is because that there cow is a horse."

As a case in point it may be stated that the reason "that saxophone" is played in certain symphonic works is that really it is a bass clarinet. And it is played with impeccable symphonic musicianship by Rosario Mazzeo. And besides the resemblance of his clarinet to the jazz instrument, it has been noted that Mr. Mazzeo is the player who resembles Einstein. That latter coincidence is accompanied by the remarkable fact that the Mazzeo mind has a strong scientific aptitude.

When Koussevitzky planned to perform Shostakovitch's Seventh Symphony, the irksome discovery was made by Mr. Mazzeo that the part for bass clarinet dived deeper than his lowest available note. Making a careful survey of the situation, Mr. Mazzeo turned up some interesting facts. First, no instrument could be had in America that would go so low. Second, Shostakovitch had written the

(Continued on Next Page)

FREE ATTOUR
half from the apartment where

MUSIC

BERKSHIRE MUSIC FESTIVAL (TANGLEWOOD). Tuesdays (except July 6 and 13): Opera. Wednesdays: Chamber Music. Thursdays: Orchestra. Fridays: Chamber music. Saturdays (morn.) BSO rehearsal; (eve.) Boston Symphony Orchestra. Sundays (morn.) Chamber music; (aft.) Boston Symphony Orchestra; (eve.) Composers' forum.

gle, Thursday, July 1, 1954

BERKSHIRE EVENING EAGLE

Manos

TANGLEWOOD VISITOR, St. Adrian Boult, left, eminent British orchestral conductor, looks over the Festival property during his visit this week, with Thomas D. Perry Jr., center, manager-elect of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and Ralph Berkowitz, dean of the Berkshire Music Center.

[110]

THE ROVING EYE

Boston Herald 7/1/54

By RUDOLPH ELIE

Tuk-Tuk Sans Onions? Not for Us!

The boys are up on Bylot now, I suppose, studying the ecology of the horned lark in the Arctic habitat, and I am down here slaving away at the old typewriter, and I hope they choke on those tuk-tuks.

I hate to take this peevish attitude, but if everything had gone well in my cooking test I'd have been up there with them rustling up delicious boiled eggs a la Newbury street, fried eggs Rudolph, omelettes en brochette and scrambled eggs Park Street Under. But it didn't; I flopped miserably, and was ignominiously scratched from the roster of the expedition.

First word of the expedition came to me via Rosario Mazzeo, bass clarinetist and personnel manager of the Boston Symphony orchestra, ornithologist, photographer, explorer and gourmet, who thought up the idea and organized the expedition to this remote arctic island. (That word "gourmet," as you will see, is the key word to my fiasco).

Bylot, it seems, is a large, mountainous island half as big as Massachusetts located off the upper right hand corner of Baffinland, which in turn is located off the upper edge of Labrador. It is still pretty much of a mystery so far as its birds and bees are concerned, too, and the expedition, supported by grants from the Arctic Institute and the New York Zoological Society, is particularly interested in seeing if Bylot is the nesting colony of such birds as Brunnich murres, blue geese, dovekies and so forth.

Advice Sought

It will also check up on the narwhals and whatever else turns up during its five or six weeks in the field, and climb a few mountains as well.

In telling me of the proposed expedition, Mr. Mazzeo asked me if I knew of a good cook who could go along with the party, which was to be flown in sometime in June. I instantly replied that I did know of a good cook, a very good cook indeed. One of the best.

"But can he shoot a shotgun?" inquired Mr. Mazzeo. "Could he bring down a puffin at 100 yards, for study purposes?"

"He certainly could," I said. "After all, I didn't get my marksman's medal as a boy camper for nothing."

"Say," said Mr. Mazzeo, cocking his head, "are you by any chance recommending yourself?"

I said yes, I was, and how about it? It wouldn't cost the expedition a cent because The Herald had been looking for a correspondent in Bylot for years and would eagerly snatch up the whole tab for my transportation and keep. Besides, I could write magazine articles about it and probably even a book to immortalize the expedition.

Master of Egg

"Now about cooking," said Mr. Mazzeo, unimpressed by the chance for immortality. "What have you ever cooked?"

"Well," I said, "everybody speaks very highly of my cheese rabbit, and I am a master of the egg in all its culinary forms."

"Fine," said Mr. Mazzeo, "only we won't be taking either cheese or eggs on the trip. What else can you do?"

"Fry bacon," I said, "beautiful crisp bacon. I am also good at making toast, peanut butter and jam sandwiches, and a particular specialty of mine, namely, creamed vichysoisse."

"What do you put in your Vichysoisse?" Mr. Mazzeo asked, "onions or leeks?"

"Onions," I said. "Why?"

"Onions in Vichysoisse?" cried the gourmet in Mr. Mazzeo. "Sacrilegious! However," he added, "I'm going up to Bylot in a few weeks to make preparations for the expedition, and I'll think it over."

So. Mr. Mazzeo went up to Bylot on a two-week, 9000-mile reconnaissance trip, obtaining permits from the Canadian government, arranging for the cooperation of the Eskimos, arranging for dog sleds and bush pilots, and aerially photographing the island to be explored and studied.

Learns of Personnel

In the meantime the personnel of the expedition became known. Going along, I learned, were Dr. William Drury, Jr., Dr. Josselyn Van Tyne, Dr. Richard Miller, Dr. Benjamin Ferris, M.D., Edward Ames, Axel and Katherine Rosen, and Mrs. William Drury, Jr., amateur ornithologist. The name of Dr. Rudolph Elie, cookologist, however, was conspicuously missing. And when Mr. Mazzeo returned from his reconnaissance, deeply tanned from the glare of the ice and snow of Bylot, I caught up with him one night as, with bass clarinet in hand, he was preparing to take his place with the Pops orchestra.

"How about it?" I demanded.

"I'm sorry to say you don't qualify," said Mr. Mazzeo. "Any man who puts onions instead of leeks into Vichysoisse cannot qualify as cook on our expedition, even though we won't be having any Vichysoisse on Bylot. What we'll be having up there mostly is tuk-tuk, but even tuk-tuk requires the master hand in the kitchen."

"Tuk-tuk?" I inquired. "And what is tuk-tuk?"

"Tuk-tuk," said Mr. Mazzeo, "is a sort of Eskimo hot dog. It consists of a hunk of narwhal blubber wrapped up in the skin of a fish. Very chewy, of course, but delicious. It has a nutty flavor. Well, I must dash now."

He dashed, and all I can say is I hope they choke on their old tuk-tuk. Narwhal blubber and fish skin without onions? Ugh!

Dr. Munch Plans Busy First Week at Berkshire Festival

Springfield Union 7/11/54

Tanglewood, June 30—Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra will arrive in New York Friday, by Air France from Paris, and will drive to Lenox, tomorrow, to his summer residence at Elm Court.

Mr. Munch immediately will prepare for his summer duties as conductor of the 1954 Berkshire Festival, his fourth summer as permanent conductor of the Boston Symphony and as Director of the Berkshire Music Center, the summer school of music maintained by the orchestra in connection with the Festival.

Mr. Munch will give his first concert Friday, July 9 with a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players, in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, at 8.30 p. m., an all-Bach program of Brandenburg Concertos, with Lukas Foss as piano soloist. On Saturday, July 10, he will inaugurate the Music Shed series with the first Tanglewood performance of Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust," with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society trained by G. Wallace Woodworth and soloists Eleanor Steber (Marguerite), David Poleri (Faust), Martial Singher (Mephistopheles) and Donald Gramm (Brander).

"The Damnation of Faust" will be the first of a number of the works of Hector Berlioz to be presented in their complete form at Tanglewood this summer, under the baton of Mr. Munch, in observance of the 150th anniversary season of the birth of the French composer.

During his month vacation in France, at the conclusion of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's 73d season, Dr. Munch conducted at music festivals in Bordeaux and in his native city of Strasbourg, where at the Cathedral St. Andre he has just performed Berlioz' biblical work, "L'Enfance du Christ." He also conducted concerts at the Opera in Paris.

Dr. Munch will address opening exercises of the Berkshire Music Center in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood Sunday at 3.30 p. m., and will have his first rehearsal with the Boston Symphony Orchestra on Wednesday afternoon. The Saturday morning rehearsal at 10 a. m., July 10, preceding the first Music Shed concert, for the benefit of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's pension fund, will be open to the public for $1, a pattern for succeeding Saturday mornings during the Berkshire Festival.

N.Y. Times 7/2/54

Munch Is Arriving Today

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will arrive today by plane from France and will drive to Lenox, Mass., tomorrow for his season at the Berkshire Musical Festival. He will make his first appearance of the summer next Friday evening, conducting a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players in an all-Bach program.

Music Margin Notes

Boris Goldovsky, who is on leave from Tanglewood's Opera Dept. is a champion of English texts. Almost 9 years ago he wrote to some not impoverished music lovers and claimed that with $10,000 and 24 months' time he could prove that good opera in English had a business and artistic future in Boston. Goldovsky got the dough and opened in 1946 at Jordan Hall with "The Marriage of Figaro". The enterprise clicked and in 1947 the New England Opera Theatre moved to the larger Boston Opera House. From then on the NEOT was a sure thing.

Recommended

The following RCA Victor discs are highly recommended: Gladys Swarthout's recording of Chausson's "Poeme de l'amour at de la mer" with Pierre Monteux and the RCA Victor Symphony; a reissue of Virgil Thomson's "Four Saints in Three Acts", for first time on long play; Cellist Piatigorsky's recording made in the New Red Barn at Tanglewood of the Bach Sonata No. 2 in D and the Prokofieff Sonata Op. 119 with Ralph Berkowitz at the piano; Charles Munch and the Boston Symphony provide superb support for violinist Nathan Millstein in a recording of the Tchaikovsky Violin Concerto with new orthophonic high fidelity technique.

Pittsfield Pianist To Tour South America

Warren Rich, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rich of Pittsfield, will tour South America this fall.

A Julliard graduate and Tanglewood student, the young and talented pianist has appeared the past season in Italy and Austria.

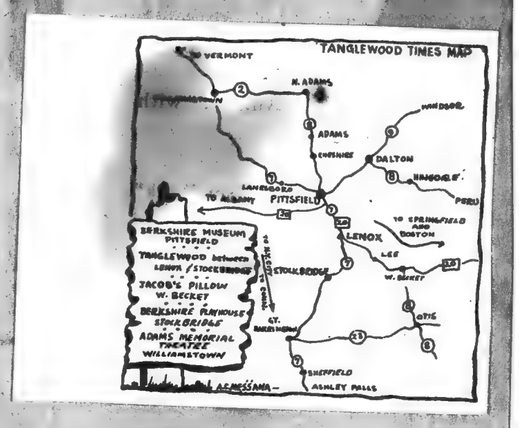
Tanglewood On Parade - Friday, August 13

DON'T MISS IT!

The Tanglewood Times

15c IN WESTERN MASS.

Vol. 9 - No. 1 MUSIC ◆ DANCE ◆ THEATRE ◆ RECREATION Summer, 1954



* * *

Dallapiccola, who taught composition at Tanglewood, has a new piece named "Goethelieder" . . . very interesting.

Munch Arrives in Tanglewood Tomorrow

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, arrives in New York [illegible] by Air France [illegible] will drive to L[illegible] morrow, to his s[illegible] at Elm Court.

Mr. Munch w[illegible] prepare for his su[illegible] conductor of the [illegible] Festival, his fou[illegible] permanent conduc[illegible] ton Symphony an[illegible] the Berkshire Mu[illegible]

Mr. Munch will [illegible] concert a week fro[illegible] chamber orche[illegible]

Symphony players, in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood.

Student Concerts

About 25 concerts by students of the Berkshire Music Center (of which there are about 400 from the U.S. and foreign countries) will be given during the Tanglewood Festival. The concerts are open to Friends of the Berkshire Music Center. A voluntary contribution constitutes membership. Saturday morning rehearsals of the BSO may be attended, admission $1. Proceeds are for the Orchestra's pension fund.

* * *

The Church-on-the-Hill, Lenox, will celebrate its 150th anniversary in Oct. 1955. Serge Koussevitzky is buried in the church cemetery.

[illegible]

Hailed
by Time, [illegible]
Henriot, w[illegible]
Aug. 14, [illegible]
with the N[illegible]
ing the S[illegible]
Charles M[illegible] played th[illegible]
Boston Sy[illegible] claimed in[illegible]
tugal, C[illegible]
Switzerlan[illegible]
Algeria, I[illegible]

Before
France in an innocen work in th
moiselle H
from the
June 7, 1
Gestapo k in a raid before she pers to he ber of th decorated Command less than

VIVA CLAUDIO ARRAU

STAR SHINES OVER BRONX TANGLEWOOD PROGRAM

THE STRATFORD LIFE WORD ABOUT KEATS

PIANIST DEFIES NAZIS

HUNT FOR CARMEN PILLOW, PLAYHOUSE BILLS

BSO OVER NBC

SPORTS IN BERKSHIRES

NEW YORK POST THURSDAY, JULY 1, 1954

WORDS and MUSIC

By Harriett Johnson

Chamber Music at Tanglewood

The enlarged Berkshire Festival, due to run six weeks this season, beginning Wednesday night and closing Sunday afternoon, Aug. 15, is featuring among its special attractions six concerts of chamber music.

Any music-hungry New Yorker who can spare a week night away from the city will be able to enjoy one or more of these events on Wednesday evenings in Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., at a cost of $2 or $3 per ticket.

The series opens Wednesday with an all-Beethoven concert featuring Claudio Arrau, pianist, and the Bel Arte Trio. In addition to the String Trio in G Major, to be performed by Ruth Posselt, violinist; Joseph de Pasquale, violist, and Martin Hoberman, 'cellist, Arrau will play three sonatas by the composer.

Ensembles and soloists for the remaining events are as follows: July 14, the Albeneri Trio; July 21, the Zimbler Sinfonietta; July 28, the Griller String Quartet; Aug. 4, the Kroll String Quartet; Aug. 11, Zino Francescatti, violinist, and Artur Balsam, pianist, in a Sonata Recital.

Pons-Kostelanetz Saturday

Lily Pons and Andre Kostelan-

Berkshire Fete Changes Announced

Changes involving two Saturday evening programs by the Boston Symphony Orchestra during the Berkshire Festival, in the Music Shed, at Tanglewood, Lenox, have been announced by Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony.

Pianist Nicole Henriot will appear with the orchestra as soloist three weeks earlier than scheduled on Saturday evening, July 24, at the concert to be conducted by Jean Morel, performing the Liszt E flat Piano Concerto, which will replace the Strauss "Don Juan" previously listed. On the concert of Aug. 14, replacing the Ravel Piano Concerto, Mr. Munch will conduct Ravel's "Le Tombeau de Couperin."

[117]

Dr. Munch Plans Busy First Week at Berkshire Festival

Springfield Union, 7/1/54

Tanglewood, June 30—Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra will arrive in New York Friday, by Air France from Paris, and will drive to Lenox, tomorrow, to his summer residence at Elm Court.

Mr. Munch immediately will prepare for his summer duties as conductor of the 1954 Berkshire Festival, his fourth summer as permanent conductor of the Boston Symphony and as Director of the Berkshire Music Center, the summer school of music maintained by the orchestra in connection with the Festival.

Mr. Munch will give his first concert Friday, July 9 with a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players, in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, at 8.30 p. m., an all-Bach program of Brandenburg Concertos, with Lukas Foss as piano soloist. On Saturday, July 10, he will inaugurate the Music Shed series with the first Tanglewood performance of Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust," with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society trained by G. Wallace Woodworth, and soloists Eleanor Steber (Marguerite), David Poleri (Faust), Martial Singher (Mephistopheles) and Donald Gramm (Brander).

"The Damnation of Faust" will be the first of a number of the works of Hector Berlioz to be presented in their complete form at Tanglewood this summer, under the baton of Mr. Munch, in observance of the 150th anniversary season of the birth of the French composer.

During his month vacation in France, at the conclusion of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's 73d season, Dr. Munch conducted at music festivals in Bordeaux and in his native city of Strasbourg, where at the Cathedral St. Andre he has just performed Berlioz' biblical work, "L'Enfance du Christ." He also conducted concerts at the Opera in Paris.

Dr. Munch will address opening exercises of the Berkshire Music Center in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood Sunday at 3.30 p. m., and will have his first rehearsal with the Boston Symphony Orchestra on Wednesday afternoon. The Saturday morning rehearsal at 10 a. m., July 10, preceding the first Music Shed concert, for the benefit of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's pension fund, will be open to the public for $1, a pattern for succeeding Saturday mornings during the Berkshire Festival.

N.Y. TIMES 7/2/54

Munch Is Arriving Today

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will arrive today by plane from France and will drive to Lenox, Mass., tomorrow for his season at the Berkshire Musical Festival. He will make his first appearance of the summer next Friday evening, conducting a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players in an all-Bach program.

Music Margin Notes

Boris Goldovsky, who is on leave from Tanglewood's Opera Dept. is a champion of English texts. Almost 9 years ago he wrote to some not impoverished music lovers and claimed that with $10,000 and 24 months' time he could prove that good opera in English had a business and artistic future in Boston. Goldovsky got the dough and opened in 1946 at Jordan Hall with "The Marriage of Figaro". The enterprise clicked and in 1947 the New England Opera Theatre moved to the larger Boston Opera House. From then on the NEOT was a sure thing.

Recommended

The following RCA Victor discs are highly recommended: Gladys Swarthout's recording of Chausson's "Poeme de l'amour at de la mer" with Pierre Monteux and the RCA Victor Symphony; a reissue of Virgil Thomson's "Four Saints in Three Acts", for first time on long play; Cellist Piatigorsky's recording made in the New Red Barn at Tanglewood of the Bach Sonata No. 2 in D and the Prokofieff Sonata Op. 119 with Ralph Berkowitz at the piano; Charles Munch and the Boston Symphony provide superb support for violinist Nathan Millstein in a recording of the Tchaikovsky Violin Concerto with new orthophonic high fidelity technique.

Pittsfield Pianist To Tour South America

Warren Rich, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rich of Pittsfield, will tour South America this fall.

A Julliard graduate and Tanglewood student, the young and talented pianist has appeared the past season in Italy and Austria.

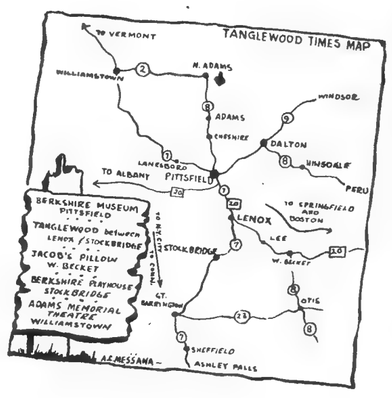
Tanglewood On Parade - Friday, August 13

DON'T MISS IT!

The Tanglewood Times

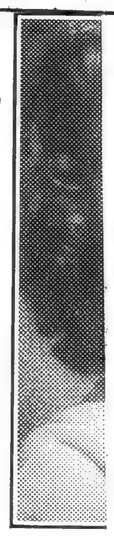
15c IN WESTERN MASS.

Vol. 9 - No. 1 MUSIC ❖ DANCE ❖ THEATRE ❖ RECREATION Summer, 1954



* * *

Dallapiccola, who taught composition at Tanglewood, has a new piece named "Goethelieder" . . . very interesting.



VIVA CLAUDIO ARRAU

STAR SHINES OVER BRONX

TANGLEWOOD PROGRAM

THE STRATFORD LIFE

WORD ABOUT KEATS

PIANIST DEFIES NAZIS

HUNT FOR CARMEN

PILLOW, PLAYHOUSE BILLS

BSO OVER NBC

SPORTS IN BERKSHIRES

NI
At T

Hailed
by Time,
Henriot, w
Aug. 14,
with the N
ing the S
Charles M
played th
Boston Sy claimed in tugal, C Switzerlan
Algeria, I

Before
France in an innocei
work in th
moiselle H
from the
June 7, 1
Gestapo k in a raid
before she pers to hei
ber of th decorated Commande
less than

BOSTON HERALD 7/2/54

Munch Arrives in Tanglewood Tomorrow

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, arrives in New York today by Air France from Paris, and will drive to Lenox, Mass., tomorrow, to his summer residence at Elm Court.

Mr. Munch will immediately prepare for his summer duties as conductor of the 1954 Berkshire Festival, his fourth summer as permanent conductor of the Boston Symphony and as director of the Berkshire Music Center.

Mr. Munch will give his first concert a week from tonight with a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players, in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, at 8:30 p.m., an all-Bach program of Brandenburg Concertos, with Lukas Foss as piano soloist. The following night he inaugurates the Music Shed series with the first Tanglewood performance of Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust," with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society trained by G. Wallace Woodworth, and soloists Eleanor Steber (Marguerite), David Poleri (Faust), Martial Singher (Mephistopheles) and Donald Gramm (Brander).

NEW YORK POST, THURSDAY, JULY 1, 1954 30

WORDS and MUSIC

By Harriett Johnson

Chamber Music at Tanglewood

The enlarged Berkshire Festival, due to run six weeks this season, beginning Wednesday night and closing Sunday afternoon, Aug. 15, is featuring among its special attractions six concerts of chamber music.

Any music-hungry New Yorker who can spare a week night away from the city will be able to enjoy one or more of these events on Wednesday evenings in Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., at a cost of $2 or $3 per ticket.

The series opens Wednesday with an all-Beethoven concert featuring Claudio Arrau, pianist, and the Bel Arte Trio. In addition to the String Trio in G Major, to be performed by Ruth Posselt, violinist; Joseph de Pasquale, violist, and Martin Hoherman, 'cellist, Arrau will play three sonatas by the composer.

Ensembles and soloists for the remaining events are as follows: July 14, the Albeneri Trio; July 21, the Zimbler Sinfonietta; July 8, the Griller String Quartet; Aug. 4, the Kroll String Quartet; Aug. 11, Zino Francescatti, violinist, and Artur Balsam, pianist, in a Sonata Recital.

Going Out Tonight

Herald 7/1/54

Berkshire Fete Changes Announced

Changes involving two Saturday evening programs by the Boston Symphony Orchestra during the Berkshire Festival, in the Music Shed, at Tanglewood, Lenox, have been announced by Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony.

Pianist Nicole Henriot will appear with the orchestra as soloist three weeks earlier than scheduled on Saturday evening, July 24, at the concert to be conducted by Jean Morel, performing the Liszt E flat Piano Concerto, which will replace the Strauss "Don Juan" previously listed. On the concert of Aug. 14, replacing the Ravel Piano Concerto, Mr. Munch will conduct Ravel's "Le Tombeau de Couperin."

Pons-Kostelanetz Saturday

Lily Pons and Andre Kostelan-

[115]

Dr. Munch Plans Busy First Week at Berkshire Festival

Springfield Union, 7/1/54

Tanglewood, June 30—Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra will arrive in New York Friday, by Air France from Paris, and will drive to Lenox, tomorrow, to his summer residence at Elm Court.

Mr. Munch immediately will prepare for his summer duties as conductor of the 1954 Berkshire Festival, his fourth summer as permanent conductor of the Boston Symphony and as Director of the Berkshire Music Center, the summer school of music maintained by the orchestra in connection with the Festival.

Mr. Munch will give his first concert Friday, July 9 with a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players, in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, at 8.30 p. m., an all-Bach program of Brandenburg Concertos, with Lukas Foss as piano soloist. On Saturday, July 10, he will inaugurate the Music Shed series with the first Tanglewood performance of Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust," with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society trained by G. Wallace Woodworth, and soloists Eleanor Steber (Marguerite), David Poleri (Faust), Martial Singher (Mephistopheles) and Donald Gramm (Brander).

"The Damnation of Faust" will be the first of a number of the works of Hector Berlioz to be presented in their complete form at Tanglewood this summer, under the baton of Mr. Munch, in observance of the 150th anniversary season of the birth of the French composer.

During his month vacation in France, at the conclusion of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's 73d season, Dr. Munch conducted at music festivals in Bordeaux and in his native city of Strasbourg, where at the Cathedral St. Andre he has just performed Berlioz' biblical work, "L'Enfance du Christ." He also conducted concerts at the Opera in Paris.

Dr. Munch will address opening exercises of the Berkshire Music Center in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood Sunday at 3.30 p. m., and will have his first rehearsal with the Boston Symphony Orchestra on Wednesday afternoon. The Saturday morning rehearsal at 10 a. m., July 10, preceding the first Music Shed concert, for the benefit of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's pension fund, will be open to the public for $1, a pattern for succeeding Saturday mornings during the Berkshire Festival.

N.Y. TIMES 7/2/54

Munch Is Arriving Today

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will arrive today by plane from France and will drive to Lenox, Mass., tomorrow for his season at the Berkshire Musical Festival. He will make his first appearance of the summer next Friday evening, conducting a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players in an all-Bach program.

Music Margin Notes

Boris Goldovsky, who is on leave from Tanglewood's Opera Dept. is a champion of English texts. Almost 9 years ago he wrote to some not impoverished music lovers and claimed that with $10,000 and 24 months' time he could prove that good opera in English had a business and artistic future in Boston. Goldovsky got the dough and opened in 1946 at Jordan Hall with "The Marriage of Figaro". The enterprise clicked and in 1947 the New England Opera Theatre moved to the larger Boston Opera House. From then on the NEOT was a sure thing.

Recommended

The following RCA Victor discs are highly recommended: Gladys Swarthout's recording of Chausson's "Poeme de l'amour at de la mer" with Pierre Monteux and the RCA Victor Symphony; a reissue of Virgil Thomson's "Four Saints in Three Acts", for first time on long play; Cellist Piatigorsky's recording made in the New Red Barn at Tanglewood of the Bach Sonata No. 2 in D and the Prokofieff Sonata Op. 119 with Ralph Berkowitz at the piano; Charles Munch and the Boston Symphony provide superb support for violinist Nathan Millstein in a recording of the Tchaikovsky Violin Concerto with new orthophonic high fidelity technique.

Pittsfield Pianist To Tour South America

Warren Rich, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rich of Pittsfield, will tour South America this fall.

A Julliard graduate and Tanglewood student, the young and talented pianist has appeared the past season in Italy and Austria.

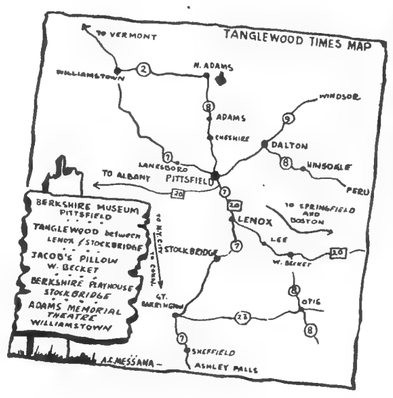
Tanglewood On Parade - Friday, August 13

DON'T MISS IT!

The Tanglewood Times

15c IN WESTERN MASS.

Vol. 9 - No. 1 MUSIC ✦ DANCE ✦ THEATRE ✦ RECREATION Summer, 1954



* * *

Dallapiccola, who taught composition at Tanglewood, has a new piece named "Goethelieder" . . . very interesting.

VIVA CLAUDIO ARRAU

STAR SHINES OVER BRONX

TANGLEWOOD PROGRAM

THE STRATFORD LIFE

WORD ABOUT KEATS

PIANIST DEFIES NAZIS

HUNT FOR CARMEN

PILLOW, PLAYHOUSE BILLS

BSO OVER NBC

SPORTS IN BERKSHIRES

BOSTON HERALD 7/2/54

Munch Arrives in Tanglewood Tomorrow

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, arrives in New York today by Air France from Paris, and will drive to Lenox, Mass., tomorrow, to his summer residence at Elm Court.

Mr. Munch will immediately prepare for his summer duties as conductor of the 1954 Berkshire Festival, his fourth summer as permanent conductor of the Boston Symphony and as director of the Berkshire Music Center.

Mr. Munch will give his first concert a week from tonight with a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players, in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, at 8:30 p.m., an all-Bach program of Brandenburg Concertos, with Lukas Foss as piano soloist. The following night he inaugurates the Music Shed series with the first Tanglewood performance of Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust," with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society trained by G. Wallace Woodworth, and soloists Eleanor Steber (Marguerite), David Poleri (Faust), Martial Singher (Mephistopheles) and Donald Gramm (Brander).

NEW YORK POST, THURSDAY, JULY 1, 1954 30

WORDS and MUSIC

By Harriett Johnson

Chamber Music at Tanglewood

The enlarged Berkshire Festival, due to run six weeks this season, beginning Wednesday night and closing Sunday afternoon, Aug. 15, is featuring among its special attractions six concerts of chamber music.

Any music-hungry New Yorker who can spare a week night away from the city will be able to enjoy one or more of these events on Wednesday evenings in Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., at a cost of $2 or $3 per ticket.

The series opens Wednesday with an all-Beethoven concert featuring Claudio Arrau, pianist, and the Bel Arte Trio. In addition to the String Trio in G Major, to be performed by Ruth Posselt, violinist; Joseph de Pasquale, violist, and Martin Hoberman, 'cellist, Arrau will play three sonatas by the composer.

Ensembles and soloists for the remaining events are as follows: July 14, the Albeneri Trio; July 21, the Zimbler Sinfonietta; July 8, the Griller String Quartet; Aug. 4, the Kroll String Quartet; Aug. 11, Zino Francescatti, violinist, and Artur Balsam, pianist, in a Sonata Recital.

Going Out Tonight?

Pons-Kostelanetz Saturday

Lily Pons and Andre Kostelan-

Herald 7/1/54

Berkshire Fete Changes Announced

Changes involving two Saturday evening programs by the Boston Symphony Orchestra during the Berkshire Festival, in the Music Shed, at Tanglewood, Lenox, have been announced by Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony.

Pianist Nicole Henriot will appear with the orchestra as soloist three weeks earlier than scheduled on Saturday evening, July 24, at the concert to be conducted by Jean Morel, performing the Liszt E flat Piano Concerto, which will replace the Strauss "Don Juan" previously listed. On the concert of Aug. 14, replacing the Ravel Piano Concerto, Mr. Munch will conduct Ravel's "Le Tombeau de Couperin."

[117]

Dr. Munch Plans Busy First Week at Berkshire Festival

Springfield Union 7/11/54

Tanglewood, June 30—Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra will arrive in New York Friday, by Air France from Paris, and will drive to Lenox, tomorrow, to his summer residence at Elm Court.

Mr. Munch immediately will prepare for his summer duties as conductor of the 1954 Berkshire Festival, his fourth summer as permanent conductor of the Boston Symphony and as Director of the Berkshire Music Center, the summer school of music maintained by the orchestra in connection with the Festival.

Mr. Munch will give his first concert Friday, July 9 with a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players, in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, at 8.30 p. m., an all-Bach program of Brandenburg Concertos, with Lukas Foss as piano soloist. On Saturday, July 10, he will inaugurate the Music Shed series with the first Tanglewood performance of Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust," with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society trained by G. Wallace Woodworth, and soloists Eleanor Steber (Marguerite), David Poleri (Faust), Martial Singher (Mephistopheles) and Donald Gramm (Brander).

"The Damnation of Faust" will be the first of a number of the works of Hector Berlioz to be presented in their complete form at Tanglewood this summer, under the baton of Mr. Munch, in observance of the 150th anniversary season of the birth of the French composer.

During his month vacation in France, at the conclusion of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's 73d season, Dr. Munch conducted at music festivals in Bordeaux and in his native city of Strasbourg, where at the Cathedral St. Andre he has just performed Berlioz' biblical work, "L'Enfance du Christ." He also conducted concerts at the Opera in Paris.

Dr. Munch will address opening exercises of the Berkshire Music Center in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood Sunday at 3.30 p. m., and will have his first rehearsal with the Boston Symphony Orchestra on Wednesday afternoon. The Saturday morning rehearsal at 10 a. m., July 10, preceding the first Music Shed concert, for the benefit of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's pension fund, will be open to the public for $1, a pattern for succeeding Saturday mornings during the Berkshire Festival.

N.Y. TIMES 7/2/54

Munch Is Arriving Today

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will arrive today by plane from France and will drive to Lenox, Mass., tomorrow for his season at the Berkshire Musical Festival. He will make his first appearance of the summer next Friday evening, conducting a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players in an all-Bach program.

Music Margin Notes

Boris Goldovsky, who is on leave from Tanglewood's Opera Dept. is a champion of English texts. Almost 9 years ago he wrote to some not impoverished music lovers and claimed that with $10,000 and 24 months' time he could prove that good opera in English had a business and artistic future in Boston. Goldovsky got the dough and opened in 1946 at Jordan Hall with "The Marriage of Figaro". The enterprise clicked and in 1947 the New England Opera Theatre moved to the larger Boston Opera House. From then on the NEOT was a sure thing.

Recommended

The following RCA Victor discs are highly recommended: Gladys Swarthout's recording of Chausson's "Poeme de l'amour at de la mer" with Pierre Monteux and the RCA Victor Symphony; a reissue of Virgil Thomson's "Four Saints in Three Acts", for first time on long play; Cellist Piatigorsky's recording made in the New Red Barn at Tanglewood of the Bach Sonata No. 2 in D and the Prokofieff Sonata Op. 119 with Ralph Berkowitz at the piano; Charles Munch and the Boston Symphony provide superb support for violinist Nathan Millstein in a recording of the Tchaikovsky Violin Concerto with new orthophonic high fidelity technique.

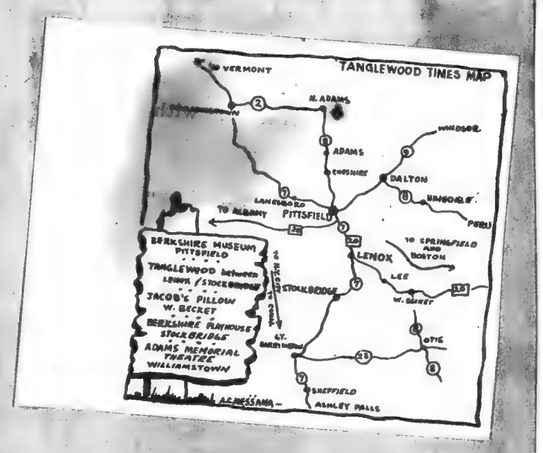
Pittsfield Pianist To Tour South America

Warren Rich, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rich of Pittsfield, will tour South America this fall.

A Julliard graduate and Tanglewood student, the young and talented pianist has appeared the past season in Italy and Austria.

Tanglewood On Parade - Friday, August 13

DON'T MISS IT!



* * * Dallapiccola, who taught composition at Tanglewood, has a new piece named "Goethelieder", very interesting. . . .

THE TANGLEWOOD TIMES

Nicole Henriot Defied Gestapo

NICOLE HENRIOT
At Tanglewood, Aug. 14

Hailed as the Frail Thunderer by Time, Paris-born pianist Nicole Henriot, who plays at Tanglewood Aug. 14, made her U. S. debut with the N. Y. Philharmonic playing the Schubert Concerto under Charles Munch. She has already played three seasons with the Boston Symphony. She's been acclaimed in Holland, Belgium, Portugal, Czechoslovakia, Austria, Switzerland, Scandinavia, Egypt, Algeria, Israel and Turkey.

Before and after the Fall of France in World War Two she was an innocent cover for dangerous work in the Underground. Mademoiselle Henriot still bears scars from the morning after D-Day, June 7, 1944, when the diabolic Gestapo knocked her unconscious in a raid on her home, but not before she disposed of hidden papers to her brother, an active member of the Resistance. She was decorated with the Badge of the Commandos d'Afrique, given to less than 40 civilians . . .

Munch Arrives in Tanglewood Tomorrow

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, arrives in New York today by Air France from Paris, and will drive to Lenox, Mass., tomorrow, to his summer residence at Elm Court.

Mr. Munch will immediately prepare for his summer duties as conductor of the 1954 Berkshire Festival, his fourth summer as permanent conductor of the Boston Symphony and as director of the Berkshire Music Center.

Mr. Munch will give his first concert a week from tonight with a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players, in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood at 8:30 p.m., an all-Bach program of Brandenburg Concertos, with Lukas Foss as piano soloist. The following night he inaugurates the Music Shed series with the first Tanglewood performance of Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust," with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society trained by G. Wallace Woodworth, and soloists Eleanor Steber (Marguerite), David Poleri (Faust), Martial Singher (Mephistopheles) and Donald Gramm (Brander).

NEW YORK POST, THURSDAY, JULY 1, 1954 30

WORDS and MUSIC

By Harriett Johnson

Chamber Music at Tanglewood

The enlarged Berkshire Festival, due to run six weeks this season, beginning Wednesday night and closing Sunday afternoon, Aug. 15, is featuring among its special attractions six concerts of chamber music.

Any music-hungry New Yorker who can spare a week night away from the city will be able to enjoy one or more of these events on Wednesday evenings in Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., at a cost of $2 or $3 per ticket.

The series opens Wednesday with an all-Beethoven concert featuring Claudio Arrau, pianist, and the Bel Arte Trio. In addition to the String Trio in G Major, to be performed by Ruth Posselt, violinist; Joseph de Pasquale, violist, and Martin Hoberman, 'cellist, Arrau will play three sonatas by the composer.

Ensembles and soloists for the remaining events are as follows: July 14, the Albeneri Trio; July 21, the Zimbler Sinfonietta; July 28, the Griller String Quartet; Aug. 4, the Kroll String Quartet; Aug. 11, Zino Francescatti, violinist, and Artur Balsam, pianist, in a Sonata Recital.

Pons-Kostelanetz Saturday

Lily Pons and Andre Kostelan-

Berkshire Fete Changes Announced

Changes involving two Saturday evening programs by the Boston Symphony Orchestra during the Berkshire Festival, in the Music Shed, at Tanglewood, Lenox, have been announced by Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony.

Pianist Nicole Henriot will appear with the orchestra as soloist three weeks earlier than scheduled on Saturday evening, July 24, at the concert to be conducted by Jean Morel, performing the Liszt E flat Piano Concerto, which will replace the Strauss "Don Juan" previously listed. On the concert of Aug. 14, replacing the Ravel Piano Concerto, Mr. Munch will conduct Ravel's "Le Tombeau de Couperin."

[111]

Dr. Munch Plans Busy First Week at Berkshire Festival

Springfield Union 7/11/54

Tanglewood, June 30—Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra will arrive in New York Friday, by Air France from Paris, and will drive to Lenox, tomorrow, to his summer residence at Elm Court.

Mr. Munch immediately will prepare for his summer duties as conductor of the 1954 Berkshire Festival, his fourth summer as permanent conductor of the Boston Symphony and as Director of the Berkshire Music Center, the summer school of music maintained by the orchestra in connection with the Festival.

Mr. Munch will give his first concert Friday, July 9 with a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players, in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, at 8.30 p. m., an all-Bach program of Brandenburg Concertos, with Lukas Foss as piano soloist. On Saturday, July 10, he will inaugurate the Music Shed series with the first Tanglewood performance of Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust," with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society trained by G. Wallace Woodworth and soloists Eleanor Steber (Marguerite), David Poleri (Faust), Martial Singher (Mephistopheles) and Donald Gramm (Brander).

"The Damnation of Faust" will be the first of a number of the works of Hector Berlioz to be presented in their complete form at Tanglewood this summer, under the baton of Mr. Munch, in observance of the 150th anniversary season of the birth of the French composer.

During his month vacation in France, at the conclusion of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's 73d season, Dr. Munch conducted at music festivals in Bordeaux and in his native city of Strasbourg, where at the Cathedral St. Andre he has just performed Berlioz' biblical work, "L'Enfance du Christ." He also conducted concerts at the Opera in Paris.

Dr. Munch will address opening exercises of the Berkshire Music Center in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood Sunday at 3.30 p. m., and will have his first rehearsal with the Boston Symphony Orchestra on Wednesday afternoon. The Saturday morning rehearsal at 10 a. m., July 10, preceding the first Music Shed concert, for the benefit of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's pension fund, will be open to the public for $1, a pattern for succeeding Saturday mornings during the Berkshire Festival.

N.Y. TIMES 7/2/54

Munch Is Arriving Today

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will arrive today by plane from France and will drive to Lenox, Mass., tomorrow for his season at the Berkshire Musical Festival. He will make his first appearance of the summer next Friday evening, conducting a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players in an all-Bach program.

Music Margin Notes

Boris Goldovsky, who is on leave from Tanglewood's Opera Dept. is a champion of English texts. Almost 9 years ago he wrote to some not impoverished music lovers and claimed that with $10,000 and 24 months' time he could prove that good opera in English had a business and artistic future in Boston. Goldovsky got the dough and opened in 1946 at Jordan Hall with "The Marriage of Figaro". The enterprise clicked and in 1947 the New England Opera Theatre moved to the larger Boston Opera House. From then on the NEOT was a sure thing.

Recommended

The following RCA Victor discs are highly recommended: Gladys Swarthout's recording of Chausson's "Poeme de l'amour at de la mer" with Pierre Monteux and the RCA Victor Symphony; a reissue of Virgil Thomson's "Four Saints in Three Acts", for first time on long play; Cellist Piatigorsky's recording made in the New Red Barn at Tanglewood of the Bach Sonata No. 2 in D and the Prokofieff Sonata Op. 119 with Ralph Berkowitz at the piano; Charles Munch and the Boston Symphony provide superb support for violinist Nathan Millstein in a recording of the Tchaikovsky Violin Concerto with new orthophonic high fidelity technique.

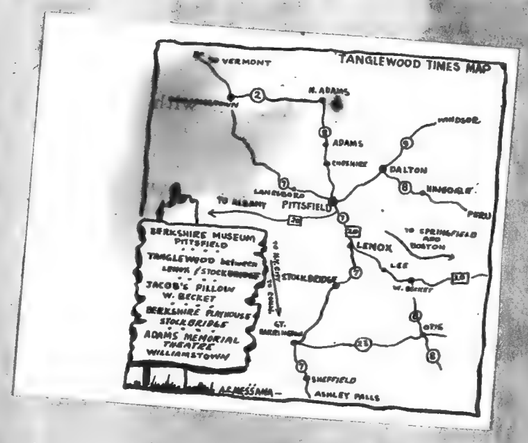
Pittsfield Pianist To Tour South America

Warren Rich, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rich of Pittsfield, will tour South America this fall.

A Julliard graduate and Tanglewood student, the young and talented pianist has appeared the past season in Italy and Austria.

Tanglewood On Parade - Friday, August 13

DON'T MISS IT!



* * * Dallapiccola, who taught composition at Tanglewood, has a new piece named "Goethelieder" . . . very interesting.

THE TANGLEWOOD TIMES

Folk Music Workshop At Lenox Library

The Berkshire Folk-Music Workshop will present five concerts at the Lenox Library beginning July 13, according to Dr. Charles and Irmgard Carle, directors. The all Tuesday concerts begin at 8:30 P. M.

July 13, Fred Hellerman, folksinger and guitarist.

July 20, Irwin Burgess, calypso singer.

July 27, Suzy Sam, continental singer, and Irmgard Carle, guitarist.

August 3, Richard Dyer-Bennett, singer-guitarist.

Aug. 10, Betty MacDonald, soprano, and Jerry Silverman, singer-guitarist.

Notes

July 11-15 at Colgate University the 6th annual conference on American Foreign Policy diplomats from 35 nations will be represented including 16 ambassadors.

Orchids to Nobel Prize winner Dr. Albert Schwitzer who used his $33,200 prize money to put a galvanized iron roof on the Leper colony building near his hospital in Equatorial Africa.

Want To Read A Good Story?

Read "The Death of Kings" by Charles Wertenbaker (Random House). This is the story of Louis Baron, publisher of a weekly news magazine labeled Beacon, and the principal members of his staff. As the Beacon grew it became the chief organ of Baron's power complex and it also became the sounding board for the conflicting ideologies and aspirations of his editors, who represented everything from Left to Right.

Pro Musica At Lenox Town Hall in Lenox

Six concerts by Pro Musica An-

BOSTON HERALD 7/12/54

Munch Arrives in Tanglewood Tomorrow

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, arrives in New York today by Air France from Paris, and will drive to Lenox, Mass., tomorrow, to his summer residence at Elm Court.

Mr. Munch will immediately prepare for his summer duties as conductor of the 1954 Berkshire Festival, his fourth summer as permanent conductor of the Boston Symphony and as director of the Berkshire Music Center.

Mr. Munch will give his first concert a week from tonight with a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players, in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, at 8:30 p.m., an all-Bach program of Brandenburg Concertos, with Lukas Foss as piano soloist. The following night he inaugurates the Music Shed series with the first Tanglewood performance of Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust," with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society trained by G. Wallace Woodworth, and soloists Eleanor Steber (Marguerite), David Poleri (Faust), Martial Singher (Mephistopheles) and Donald Gramm (Brander).

NEW YORK POST, THURSDAY, JULY 1, 1954 30

WORDS and MUSIC

By Harriett Johnson

Chamber Music at Tanglewood

The enlarged Berkshire Festival, due to run six weeks this season, beginning Wednesday night and closing Sunday afternoon, Aug. 15, is featuring among its special attractions six concerts of chamber music.

Any music-hungry New Yorker who can spare a week night away from the city will be able to enjoy one or more of these events on Wednesday evenings in Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., at a cost of $2 or $3 per ticket.

The series opens Wednesday with an all-Beethoven concert featuring Claudio Arrau, pianist, and the Bel Arte Trio. In addition to the String Trio in G Major, to be performed by Ruth Posselt, violinist; Joseph de Pasquale, violist, and Martin Hoberman, 'cellist, Arrau will play three sonatas by the composer.

Ensembles and soloists for the remaining events are as follows: July 14, the Albeneri Trio; July 21, the Zimbler Sinfonietta; July 28, the Griller String Quartet; Aug. 4, the Kroll String Quartet; Aug. 11, Zino Francescatti, violinist, and Artur Balsam, pianist, in a Sonata Recital.

Pons-Kostelanetz Saturday

Lily Pons and Andre Kostelan-

Berkshire Fete Changes Announced

Changes involving two Saturday evening programs by the Boston Symphony Orchestra during the Berkshire Festival, in the Music Shed, at Tanglewood, Lenox, have been announced by Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony.

Pianist Nicole Henriot will appear with the orchestra as soloist three weeks earlier than scheduled on Saturday evening, July 24, at the concert to be conducted by Jean Morel, performing the Liszt E flat Piano Concerto, which will replace the Strauss "Don Juan" previously listed. On the concert of Aug. 14, replacing the Ravel Piano Concerto, Mr. Munch will conduct Ravel's "Le Tombeau de Couperin."

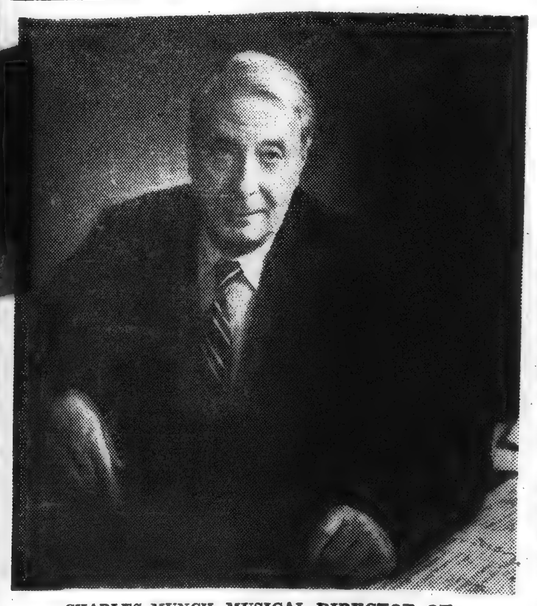
[117]

The Westchester Papers

THE DAILY TIMES, MAMARONECK, N. Y., MONDAY, MARCH 8, 1954

at the NEW YORK THEATRES

by Charles K. Freeman



CHARLES MUNCH, MUSICAL DIRECTOR OF BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL

BERKSHIRE PLANS

With the welcome Spring sunshine nudging the small shoots and bulbs into appearance this is as good a time as any to alert true music fans to the program planned by the Berkshire Festival associates for the Summer ahead. And from thte headquarters of Charles Munch, music director of this annual event comes a dispatch enumerating the 24 concerts planned for the New Tanglewood season.

The constantly growing popularity of these concerts, which drew a record number to Lenox, Massachusetts last Summer has indicated an increase in the number of musical treats and to that end an enlarged program has been set down on paper which will be realized in the environs of the Berkshire hills for the six weeks from July 7th to August 15th.

* * *

In the course of the Shed concerts, Mr. Munch will honor the 150th anniversary season of the birth of Berlioz by conducting this composer's principal works in their complete form. Guest conductors in these concerts at the Shed will be Pierre Monteux, conducting two concerts; Jean Morel and Richard Burgin each conducting one.

The breakdown includes six concerts by chamber groups on Wednesday evenings, six concerts by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players on Friday evenings, six concerts by the full orchestra in the Shed on Saturday evenings and Six Sunday afternoons.

* * *

On July 10th Berlioz' "Damnation of Faust" with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society will be presented. And on Sunday afternoon, July 11th, Mr. Monteux will present a Beethoven program with Claudio Arrau as soloist. Bach and Mozart also will be featured in the Theatre-Concert Hall. A full complement of soloists will appear through the season.

dio Arrau as soloist. Bach and Mozart also will be featured in the Theatre-Concert Hall. A full complement of soloists will appear through the season.

dio Arrau as soloist. Bach and Mozart also will be featured in the Theatre-Concert Hall. A full complement of soloists will appear through the season.

conducting one.

The breakdown includes six concerts by chamber groups on Wednesday evenings, six concerts

The breakdown includes six concerts by chamber groups on Wednesday evenings, six concerts

concerts by chamber groups on Wednesday evenings, six concerts

concerts by chamber groups on Wednesday evenings, six concerts

concerts by chamber groups on Wednesday evenings, six concerts

220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D 26,991)
This Clipping From
PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE
MAY 24 1954

...lac Morgan ...o Sing at ...ops Concert

...tockbridge Baritone ...ill Be Guest Artist ...or Program June 18

...ac Morgan of Stockbridge, bari... and member of the New Eng... Opera The... will be a...

Mac Morgan

...est artist on the Little Sym... ...ony's Pops Concert program ...iday, June 18.

Mr. Morgan, born in Texas and ...ucated in Florida, is a graduate ... the Eastman School of Music, ...chester, N.Y.

During the Bach-Mozart series of ...e Boston Symphony at the Berk... ...ire Fe... Mr. Morgan has ...ng in a Bach Cantata for the past ...ree summers. He also has ap...eared in leading roles at opera ...erformances during the Festival. ...e will be remembered as Ford in ...e opera "Falstaff"; as Gianni ...chicci; and in "Pique Dame," ...Adriadne," "The Merry Masquer...de" and "Comedy on the Bridge."

...sang With BSO

Some of his most recent appear...ces include a performance of ...rlioz' "L'Enfance du Christ" ...h the Boston Symphony Orches... in Boston; Beethoven's Ninth ...mphony in Boston with the Bos... Symphony Orchestra under ...arles Munch; an eight-week tour ... the New England Opera Thea... ...'s production of Mozart's "The ...ry Masquerade," under the di...ection of Boris Goldovsky; and two performances of "Pagliacci" with the Kansas City Philharmonic. His recent concert tours during January, February and March were in the southwest, Michigan and Ohio. For 2½ years he was baritone soloist for the Cities Service radio program, "Highways in Melody." He also has appeared with the New York Philharmonic, the NBC Symphony, the Rochester Philharmonic, the Cleveland Symphony and the Toronto Symphony.

In August Mr. Morgan will give recitals in West Virginia and the South, and with the Buffalo Symphony in July. He will then begin the 1954-55 season with a nine-week tour with the New England Opera Theater in Rossini's "The Barber of Seville."

His wife, Helen Morgan, who is his accompanist, will play for him at the pops concert.

THE ORIGINAL
ROMEIKE
PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D 294,089) (S 252,207)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
POST
MAY 22 1954

The Observant Citizen

\+ + + +

This is the anniversary of Wagner's birth in 1813. His wedding march from "Lohengrin" will be a top tune next month—as it is every June.

Speaking of music, let anyone who doesn't believe that music hath charm to draw crowds read the following released by Boston's Symphony: In the enlarged Berkshire Festival, which attracted a record-breaking total attendance of 117,950 music lovers to Tanglewood last summer, an average of 4360 in its chamber concerts in the theatre-concert hall and an average of 10,200 in each of its huge music shed concerts, 24 concerts will be held in 1954, during the six weeks, July 7 to Aug. 15.

\+ + + +

THE ORIGINAL
ROMEIKE
PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D 26,991)
This Clipping From
PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE
MAY 21 1954

THE ORIGINAL
ROMEIKE
PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D [illegible]) (S 172,[illegible])
This Clipping From
DALLAS, TEX.
NEWS
MAY 23 1954

Copland Work In Berkshires

NEW YORK (UP).—The opera department of the Berkshire Music Center plans three productions for this summer's festival in the Massachusetts hills. They will be Aaron Copland's "The Tender Land," Ernest Toch's "The Princess on the Pea" and the madrigal opera, "L'Amfiparnaso," by the sixteenth century's Orazio Vecchi.

The Copland opera, which had its world premiere by the New York Opera Company, will be given two performances—on the evenings of Aug. 2 and 3. The other two will be a double bill, on July 27.

Toch's new string quartet was featured at the season's last concert of the League of Composers in New York. On the same program were first performances of chamber ensemble pieces by Alexei Haieff and William Flanagan.

ON THE OTHER HAND, French Renaissance music was the meat of the annual and esteemed concert of the Dessoff Choirs, which is directed by Paul Boepple. None of it was more recent than the eighteenth century.

New York's summer open-air concerts in the Lewishohn Stadium of the College of the City of New York, will have an "All-American night" this year, featuring contemporary American music, with Virgil Thomson conducting.

Catholic Daughters Arrive; Tanglewood Mass Tomorrow

State Convention Opens Here Tonight—Public Invited to Pontifical Solemn High Mass Starting at 10 A.M.

Delegates to the biannual state convention of the Catholic Daughters of America started arriving in Pittsfield this noon as plans were completed for the Pontifial Solemn High Mass Bishop Christopher J. Weldon of Springfield will celebrate at Tanglewood as part of the three-day meeting.

Full Tanglewood facilities that have accommodated crowds as large as 14,000 will be available for the public Mass tomorrow morning at 10, according to the Rev. Robert L. Ahern, pastor of St. Charles' Church, Pittsfield.

The Airport Weather Bureau today forecast favorable weather tomorrow. The rain is scheduled to end tonight. Tomorrow will be continued cool with partial clearing.

Father Ahern again urged all persons interested to attend the Mass, whether or not they are Catholics.

Plenty of Parking Room

He said the regular Tanglewood parking facilities used for the Boston Symphony Orchestra's Berkshire Music Festival will be in use to handle the expected crowd of several thousand tomorrow. The state Highway Department will have the regular directional signs in place showing the way to Tanglewood.

State police, the regular Tanglewood force and policemen from Lenox and Stockbridge will direct the expected heavy flow of traffic. Catholic Boy Scouts from this area will assist in directing parking cars. Yesterday afternoon the 100-voice choir of seminarians and priests from six Berkshire County religious communities that will be one of two choirs at the Mass rehearsed in the Tanglewood Music Shed.

The religious choir will be seated on tiers of bleachers tomorrow in rear of the special 20-foot altar that has been constructed for the Mass. The 250-voice choir from Cathedral High School, Springfield, will be in the left front portion of the spacious Shed.

Bishop To Lead Procession

Bishop Weldon, officers of the Mass and delegates to the convention will take part in a procession from the Tanglewood administration building to the Music Shed prior to the start of the Mass.

The Bishop Conaty Assembly, fourth degree Knights of Columbus, of Berkshire County will serve as honor guard. Priests of Berkshire County and the religious from various communities in the county will participate in the procession.

Father Ahern said the Red Cross building on the grounds will be staffed by nurses from St. Luke's Hospital. The Lenox ambulance will also be on hand.

The 62 voting delegates from Catholic Daughters courts throughout the state and more than 300 additional representatives from those courts and junior courts startd registering for the convention this noon at the Hotel Sheraton.

Convention Opens Tonight

Miss Catherine A. Dwyer of Boston, state grand regent, is scheduled to officiate at the opening session of the convention at 8 tonight in the Sheraton ballroom.

The convention will be the 19th biannual for the state Catholic Daughters. The organization has 10,000 members in 62 senior courts and 2,500 members in 38 junior courts.

The Mass will be rebroadcast over WBRK at 8 tomorrow night. The Rev. Paul A. Riedl of St. Joseph's Church will be commentator for the broadcast.

[112]

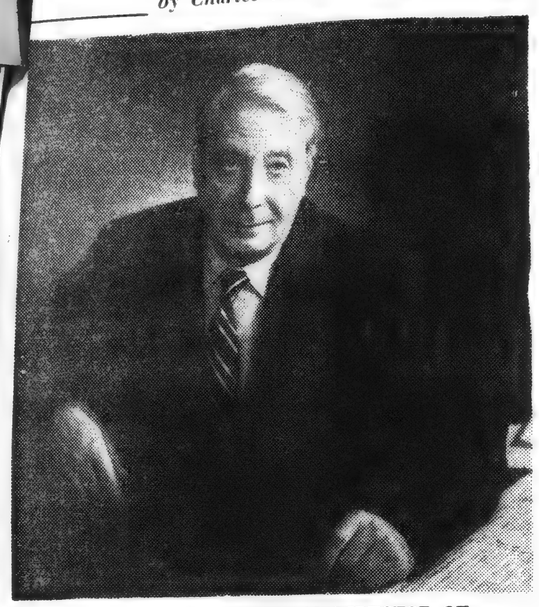
THE ORIGINAL ROMEIKE PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D 294,899) (S 252,207)
This Clipping From BOSTON, MASS.

THE ORIGINAL ROMEIKE PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D 148,036) (S 177,699)
This Clipping From DALLAS, TEX. NEWS
MAY 2 3 1954

ENGLEWOOD TIMES
August 13

at the NEW YORK THEATRES

by Charles K. Freeman



CHARLES MUNCH, MUSICAL DIRECTOR OF BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL

BERKSHIRE PLANS

With the welcome Spring sunshine nudging the small shoots and bulbs into appearance this is as good a time as any to alert true music fans to the program planned by the Berkshire Festival associates for the Summer ahead. And from thte headquarters of Charles Munch, music director of this annual event comes a dispatch enumerating the 24 concerts planned for the New Tanglewood season.

The constantly growing popularity of these concerts, which drew a record number to Lenox, Massachusetts last Summer has indicated an increase in the number of musical treats and to that end an enlarged program has been set down on paper which will be realized in the environs of the Berkshire hills for the six weeks from July 7th to August 15th.

* * *

In the course of the Shed concerts, Mr. Munch will honor the 150th anniversary season of the birth of Berlioz by conducting this composer's principal works in their complete form. Guest conductors in these concerts at the Shed will be Pierre Monteux, conducting two concerts; Jean Morel and Richard Burgin each conducting one.

The breakdown includes six concerts by chamber groups on Wednesday evenings, six concerts by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players on Friday evenings, six concerts by the full orchestra in the Shed on Saturday evenings and Six Sunday afternoons.

* * *

On July 10th Berlioz' "Damnation of Faust" with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society will be presented. And on Sunday afternoon, July 11th, Mr. Monteux will present a Beethoven program with Claudio Arrau as soloist. Bach and Mozart also will be featured in the Theatre-Concert Hall. A full complement of soloists will appear through the season.

BERKSHIRE PLANS

With the welcome Spring sunshine nudging the small shoots and bulbs into appearance this is as good a time as any to alert true music fans to the program planned by the Berkshire Festival associates for the Summer ahead. And from thte headquarters of Charles Munch, music director of this annual event comes a dispatch enumerating the 24 concerts planned for the New Tanglewood season.

The constantly growing popularity of these concerts, which drew a record number to Lenox, Massachusetts last Summer has indicated an increase in the number of musical treats and to that end an enlarged program has been set down on paper which will be realized in the environs of the Berkshire hills for the six weeks from July 7th to August 15th.

* * *

In the course of the Shed concerts, Mr. Munch will honor the 150th anniversary season of the birth of Berlioz by conducting this composer's principal works in their complete form. Guest conductors in these concerts at the Shed will be Pierre Monteux, conducting two concerts; Jean Morel and Richard Burgin each conducting one.

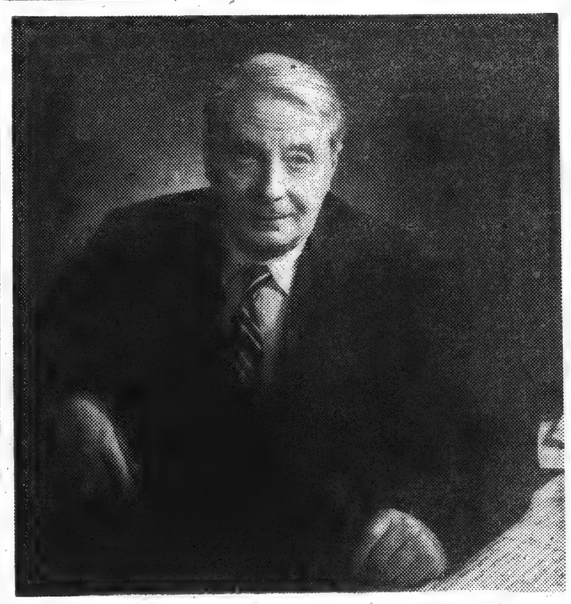
The breakdown includes six concerts by chamber groups on Wednesday evenings, six concerts by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players on Friday evenings, six concerts by the full orchestra in the Shed on Saturday evenings and Six Sunday afternoons.

* * *

On July 10th Berlioz' "Damnation of Faust" with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society will be presented. And on Sunday afternoon, July 11th, Mr. Monteux will present a Beethoven program with Claudio Arrau as soloist. Bach and Mozart also will be featured in the Theatre-Concert Hall. A full complement of soloists will appear through the season.

at the NEW YORK THEATRES

by Charles K. Freeman



CHARLES MUNCH, MUSICAL DIRECTOR OF BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL

BERKSHIRE PLANS

With the welcome Spring sunshine nudging the small shoots and bulbs into appearance this is as good a time as any to alert true music fans to the program planned by the Berkshire Festival associates for the Summer ahead. And from thte headquarters of Charles Munch, music director of this annual event comes a dispatch enumerating the 24 concerts planned for the New Tanglewood season.

The constantly growing popularity of these concerts, which drew a record number to Lenox, Massachusetts last Summer has indicated an increase in the number of musical treats and to that end an enlarged program has been set down on paper which will be realized in the environs of the Berkshire hills for the six weeks from July 7th to August 15th.

* * *

In the course of the Shed concerts, Mr. Munch will honor the 150th anniversary season of the birth of Berlioz by conducting this composer's principal works in their complete form. Guest conductors in these concerts at the Shed will be Pierre Monteux, conducting two concerts; Jean Morel and Richard Burgin each conducting one.

The breakdown includes six concerts by chamber groups on Wednesday evenings, six concerts by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players on Friday evenings, six concerts by the full orchestra in the Shed on Saturday evenings and Six Sunday afternoons.

* * *

On July 10th Berlioz' "Damnation of Faust" with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society will be presented. And on Sunday afternoon, July 11th, Mr. Monteux will present a Beethoven program with Claudio Arrau as soloist. Bach and Mozart also will be featured in the Theatre-Concert Hall. A full complement of soloists will appear through the season.

Copland Work In Berkshires

NEW YORK (UP).—The opera department of the Berkshire Music Center plans three productions for this summer's festival in the Massachusetts hills. They will be Aaron Copland's "The Tender Land," Ernest Toch's "The Princess on the Pea" and the madrigal opera, "L'Amfiparnaso," by the sixteenth century's Orazio Vecchi.

The Copland opera, which had its world premiere by the New York Opera Company, will be given two performances—on the evenings of Aug. 2 and 3. The other two will be a double bill, on July 27.

Toch's new string quartet was featured at the season's last concert of the League of Composers in New York. On the same program were first performances of chamber ensemble pieces by Alexei Haieff and William Flanagan.

ON THE OTHER HAND, French Renaissance music was the meat of the annual and esteemed concert of the Dessoff Choirs, which is directed by Paul Boepple. None of it was more recent than the eighteenth century.

New York's summer open-air concerts in the Lewishohn Stadium of the College of the City of New York, will have an "All-American night" this year, featuring contemporary American music, with Virgil Thomson conducting.

Arrive; Tomorrow

re Tonight— l Solemn .M.

delegates to the convenke part in a procession Tanglewood administrang to the Music Shed e start of the Mass.
hop Conaty Assembly, ree Knights of Columbus, re County will serve as rd. Priests of Berkshire and the religious from vaommunities in the county rticipate in the procession. r Ahern said the Red Cross on the grounds will be by nurses from St. Luke's . The Lenox ambulance be on hand.

The 62 voting delegates from Catholic Daughters courts throughout the state and more than 300 additional representatives from those courts and junior courts startd registering for the convention this noon at the Hotel Sheraton.

Convention Opens Tonight

Miss Catherine A. Dwyer of Boston, state grand regent, is scheduled to officiate at the opening session of the convention at 8 tonight in the Sheraton ballroom.

The convention will be the 19th biannual for the state Catholic Daughters. The organization has 10,000 members in 62 senior courts and 2,500 members in 38 junior courts.

The Mass will be rebroadcast over WBRK at 8 tomorrow night. The Rev. Paul A. Riedl of St. Joseph's Church will be commentator for the broadcast.

BERKSHIRE PLANS

With the welcome Spring sunshine nudging the small shoots and bulbs into appearance this is as good a time as any to alert true music fans to the program planned by the Berkshire Festival associates for the Summer ahead. And from thte headquarters of Charles Munch, music director of this annual event comes a dispatch enumerating the 24 concerts planned for the New Tanglewood season.

The constantly growing popularity of these concerts, which drew a record number to Lenox, Massachusetts last Summer has indicated an increase in the number of musical treats and to that end an enlarged program has been set down on paper which will be realized in the environs of the Berkshire hills for the six weeks from July 7th to August 15th.

* * *

In the course of the Shed concerts, Mr. Munch will honor the 150th anniversary season of the birth of Berlioz by conducting this composer's principal works in their complete form. Guest conductors in these concerts at the Shed will be Pierre Monteux, conducting two concerts; Jean Morel and Richard Burgin each conducting one.

The breakdown includes six concerts by chamber groups on Wednesday evenings, six concerts by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players on Friday evenings, six concerts by the full orchestra in the Shed on Saturday evenings and Six Sunday afternoons.

* * *

On July 10th Berlioz' "Damnation of Faust" with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society will be presented. And on Sunday afternoon, July 11th, Mr. Monteux will present a Beethoven program with Claudio Arrau as soloist. Bach and Mozart also will be featured in the Theatre-Concert Hall. A full complement of soloists will appear through the season.

He also has appeared with the New York Philharmonic, the NBC Symphony, the Rochester Philharmonic, the Cleveland Symphony and the Toronto Symphony.

In August Mr. Morgan will give recitals in West Virginia and the South, and with the Buffalo Symphony in July. He will then begin the 1954-55 season with a nine-week tour with the New England Opera Theater in Rossini's "The Barber of Seville."

His wife, Helen Morgan, who is his accompanist, will play for him at the pops concert.

arking Room

e regular Tanglewood lities used for the Bosny Orchestra's Berkhire Music Festival will be in use o handle the expected crowd of everal thousand tomorrow. The tate Highway Department will ave the regular directional signs n place showing the way to Tanglewood.

State police, the regular Tanglewood force and policemen from Lenox and Stockbridge will direct the expected heavy flow of traffic. Catholic Boy Scouts from this area will assist in directing parking cars. Yesterday afternoon the 100-voice choir of seminarians and priests from six Berkshire County religious communities that will be one of two choirs at the Mass rehearsed in the Tanglewood Music Shed.

The religious choir will be seated on tiers of bleachers tomorrow in rear of the special 20-foot altar that has been constructed for the Mass. The 250-voice choir from Cathedral High School, Springfield, will be in the left front portion of the spacious Shed.

Bishop To Lead Procession

Bishop Weldon, officers of the [112]

THE ORIGINAL
ROMEIKE
PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D 26,991)
This Clipping From
PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE

THE ORIGINAL
ROMEIKE
PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D 294,689) (S 252,207)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
POST
MAY 22 1954

The Observant Citizen

+ + + +

This is the anniversary of

THE ORIGINAL
ROMEIKE
PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D 148,034) (S 173,179)
This Clipping From
DALLAS, TEX.
NEWS
MAY 23 1954

Copland Work In Berkshires

NEW YORK (UP).—The opera department of the Berkshire Music Center plans three productions for this summer's festival in the Massachusetts hills. They will be Aaron Copland's "The Tender Land," Ernest Toch's "The Princess on the Pea" and the madrigal opera, "L'Amfiparnaso," by the sixteenth century's Orazio Vecchi.

The Copland opera, which had its world premiere by the New York Opera Company, will be given two performances—on the evenings of Aug. 2 and 3. The other two will be a double bill, on July 27.

Toch's new string quartet was featured at the season's last concert of the League of Composers in New York. On the same program were first performances of chamber ensemble pieces by Alexei Haieff and William Flanagan.

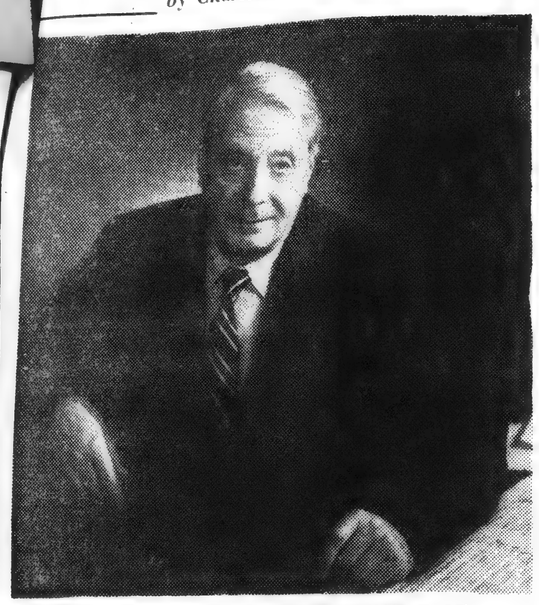
ON THE OTHER HAND, French Renaissance music was the meat of the annual and esteemed concert of the Dessoff Choirs, which is directed by Paul Boepple. None of it was more recent than the eighteenth century.

New York's summer open-air concerts in the Lewishohn Stadium of the College of the City of New York, will have an "All-American night" this year, featuring contemporary American music, with Virgil Thomson conducting.

...ILY ITEM, PORT CHESTER, N. Y., MONDAY, MAR TH
...GLEWOOD TIMES
...gust 13

at the NEW YORK THEATRES

by Charles K. Freeman



CHARLES MUNCH, MUSICAL DIRECTOR OF BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL

BERKSHIRE PLANS

With the welcome Spring sunshine nudging the small shoots and bulbs into appearance this is as good a time as any to alert true music fans to the program planned by the Berkshire Festival associates for the Summer ahead. And from thte headquarters of Charles Munch, music director of this annual event comes a dispatch enumerating the 24 concerts planned for the New Tanglewood season.

The constantly growing popularity of these concerts, which drew a record number to Lenox, Massachusetts last Summer has indicated an increase in the number of musical treats and to that end an enlarged program has been set down on paper which will be realized in the environs of the Berkshire hills for the six weeks from July 7th to August 15th.

* * *

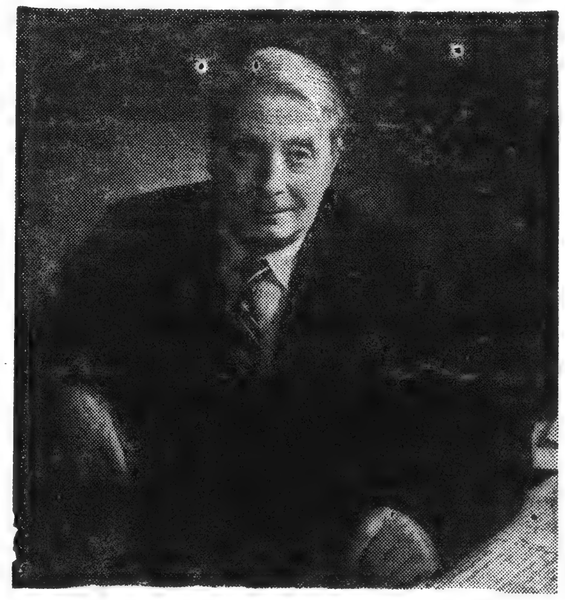
In the course of the Shed concerts, Mr. Munch will honor the 150th anniversary season of the birth of Berlioz by conducting this composer's principal works in their complete form. Guest conductors in these concerts at the Shed will be Pierre Monteux, conducting two concerts; Jean Morel and Richard Burgin each conducting one.

The breakdown includes six concerts by chamber groups on Wednesday evenings, six concerts by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players on Friday evenings, six concerts by the full orchestra in the Shed on Saturday evenings and Six Sunday afternoons.

* * *

On July 10th Berlioz' "Damnation of Faust" with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society will be presented. And on Sunday afternoon, July 11th, Mr. Monteux will present a Beethoven program with Claudio Arrau as soloist. Bach and Mozart also will be featured in the Theatre-Concert Hall. A full complement of soloists will appear through the season.

at the Peekskill, N.Y. Evening Star 3-854
NEW YORK THEATRES
by Charles K. Freeman



CHARLES MUNCH, MUSICAL DIRECTOR OF BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL

BERKSHIRE PLANS

With the welcome Spring sunshine nudging the small shoots and bulbs into appearance this is as good a time as any to alert true music fans to the program planned by the Berkshire Festival associates for the Summer ahead. And from thte headquarters of Charles Munch, music director of this annual event comes a dispatch enumerating the 24 concerts planned for the New Tanglewood season.

The constantly growing popularity of these concerts, which drew a record number to Lenox, Massachusetts last Summer has indicated an increase in the number of musical treats and to that end an enlarged program has been set down on paper which will be realized in the environs of the Berkshire hills for the six weeks from July 7th to August 15th.

* * *

In the course of the Shed concerts, Mr. Munch will honor the 150th anniversary season of the birth of Berlioz by conducting this composer's principal works in their complete form. Guest conductors in these concerts at the Shed will be Pierre Monteux, conducting two concerts; Jean Morel and Richard Burgin each conducting one.

The breakdown includes six concerts by chamber groups on Wednesday evenings, six concerts by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players on Friday evenings, six concerts by the full orchestra in the Shed on Saturday evenings and Six Sunday afternoons.

* * *

On July 10th Berlioz' "Damnation of Faust" with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society will be presented. And on Sunday afternoon, July 11th, Mr. Monteux will present a Beethoven program with Claudio Arrau as soloist. Bach and Mozart also will be featured in the Theatre-Concert Hall. A full complement of soloists will appear through the season.

...Arrive; ...Tomorrow

...re Tonight— ...l Solemn ...M.

...delegates to the conven... ...ake part in a procession ... Tanglewood administra... ...ng to the Music Shed ...e start of the Mass.

...hop Conaty Assembly, ...ree Knights of Columbus, ...re County will serve as ...rd. Priests of Berkshire ...and the religious from va... ...ommunities in the county ...rticipate in the procession. ...r Ahern said the Red Cross ... on the grounds will be ... by nurses from St. Luke's ... The Lenox ambulance ... be on hand.

The 62 voting delegates from Catholic Daughters courts throughout the state and more than 300 additional representatives from those courts and junior courts startd registering for the convention this noon at the Hotel Sheraton.

Convention Opens Tonight

Miss Catherine A. Dwyer of Boston, state grand regent, is scheduled to officiate at the opening session of the convention at 8 tonight in the Sheraton ballroom.

The convention will be the 19th biannual for the state Catholic Daughters. The organization has 10,000 members in 62 senior courts and 2,500 members in 38 junior courts.

The Mass will be rebroadcast over WBRK at 8 tomorrow night. The Rev. Paul A. Riedl of St. Joseph's Church will be commentator for the broadcast.

...ay evenings, six concerts

...guest a... ...hony's ...riday, ... Mr. M... ...ducated ...f the ...tochest... ...Durin... ...he Bos... ...hire F... ...ung in ...ree s... ...eared ...erform... ...e will ...e ope... ...chicci ... Adriad... ...de" an... ...Sang W... ...Some ...ces i... ...rlioz' ...h the ... in F... ...nphon... ...Sym... ...arles ... the N... ...s pro... ...ry M...

...rection ... two perf... ...with the ... ic. His re... ...January, ... were in ... and Ohio ... baritone ... ice radio ... Melody." He also has appeared with the New York Philharmonic, the NBC Symphony, the Rochester Philharmonic, the Cleveland Symphony and the Toronto Symphony.

In August Mr. Morgan will give recitals in West Virginia and the South, and with the Buffalo Symphony in July. He will then begin the 1954-55 season with a nine-week tour with the New England Opera Theater in Rossini's "The Barber of Seville."

His wife, Helen Morgan, who is his accompanist, will play for him at the pops concert.

...ay evenings, six concerts

...ay will be presented. ...iday afternoon, July ...onteux will present ... program with Clau... ...is soloist. Bach and ... will be featured in ...Concert Hall. A full ... of soloists will ap... ...n the season.

...e favorable weather ...The rain is scheduled ...ht. Tomorrow will be ...ol with partial clear...

...ern again urged all ...rested to attend the ...ier or not they are

...arking Room

...e regular Tanglewood ...ities used for the Bos... ...ny Orchestra's Berk...hire Music Festival will be in use ...o handle the expected crowd of ...everal thousand tomorrow. The ...tate Highway Department will ...have the regular directional signs ...n place showing the way to Tanglewood.

State police, the regular Tanglewood force and policemen from Lenox and Stockbridge will direct the expected heavy flow of traffic. Catholic Boy Scouts from this area will assist in directing parking cars. Yesterday afternoon the 100-voice choir of seminarians and priests from six Berkshire County religious communities that will be one of two choirs at the Mass rehearsed in the Tanglewood Music Shed.

The religious choir will be seated on tiers of bleachers tomorrow in rear of the special 20-foot altar that has been constructed for the Mass. The 250-voice choir from Cathedral High School, Springfield, will be in the left front portion of the spacious Shed.

Bishop To Lead Procession

Bishop Weldon, officers of the [112]

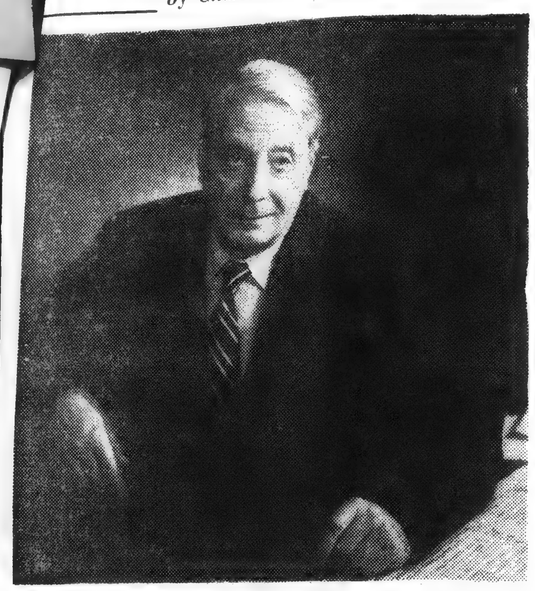
ILY ITEM, PORT CHESTER, N. Y., MONDAY, MAR

GLEWOOD TIMES
gust 13

at the
NEW YORK THEATRES
by Charles K. Freeman



CHARLES MUNCH, MUSICAL DIRECTOR OF BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL

BERKSHIRE PLANS

With the welcome Spring sunshine nudging the small shoots and bulbs into appearance this is as good a time as any to alert true music fans to the program planned by the Berkshire Festival associates for the Summer ahead. And from thte headquarters of Charles Munch, music director of this annual event comes a dispatch enumerating the 24 concerts planned for the New Tanglewood season.

The constantly growing popularity of these concerts, which drew a record number to Lenox, Massachusetts last Summer has indicated an increase in the number of musical treats and to that end an enlarged program has been set down on paper which will be realized in the environs of the Berkshire hills for the six weeks from July 7th to August 15th.

* * *

In the course of the Shed concerts, Mr. Munch will honor the 150th anniversary season of the birth of Berlioz by conducting this composer's principal works in their complete form. Guest conductors in these concerts at the Shed will be Pierre Monteux, conducting two concerts; Jean Morel and Richard Burgin each conducting one.

The breakdown includes six concerts by chamber groups on Wednesday evenings, six concerts by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players on Friday evenings, six concerts by the full orchestra in the Shed on Saturday evenings and Six Sunday afternoons.

* * *

On July 10th Berlioz' "Damnation of Faust" with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society will be presented. And on Sunday afternoon, July 11th, Mr. Monteux will present a Beethoven program with Claudio Arrau as soloist. Bach and Mozart also will be featured in the Theatre-Concert Hall. A full complement of soloists will appear through the season.

ESTIVAL

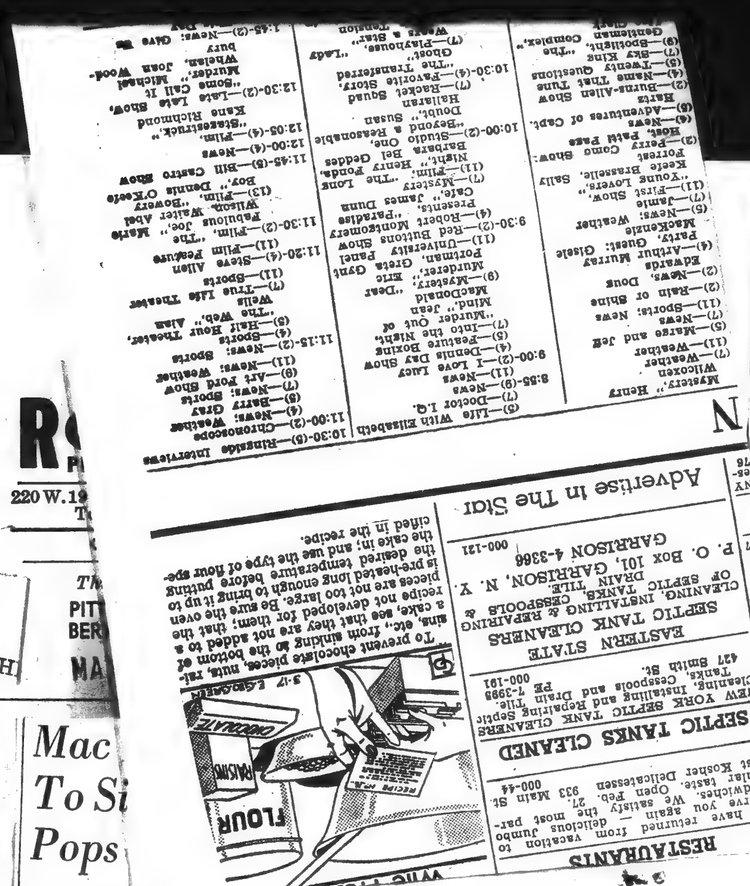
a chamber orchestra of Bos- Symphony players on Friday nings, six concerts by the full hestra in the Shed on Satur- evenings and Six Sunday af- noons.

* * *

On July 10th Berlioz' "Dam- ion of Faust" with the Har- d Glee Club and Radcliffe oral Society will be presented. d on Sunday afternoon, July h, Mr. Monteux will present eethoven program with Clau- Arrau as soloist. Bach and zart also will be featured in Theatre-Concert Hall. A full mplement of soloists will ap- r through the season.

In the course of the Shed concerts, Mr. Munch will honor the 150th anniversary season of the birth of Berlioz by conducting this composer's principal works in their complete form. Guest conductors in these concerts at the Shed will be Pierre Monteux, conducting two concerts; Jean Morel and Richard Burgin each conducting one.

The breakdown includes six concerts by chamber groups on Wednesday evenings, six concerts



THE ORIGINAL
ROMEIKE
PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-0865
Cir. (D 148,036)-(S 177,699)
This Clipping From
DALLAS, TEX.
NEWS
MAY 2 3 1954

Copland Work n Berkshires

EW YORK (UP).—The opera artment of the Berkshire Mu- enter plans three productions his summer's festival in the chusetts hills. They will be Copland's "The Tender Ernest Toch's "The Prin- the Pea" and the madri- era, "L'Amfiparnaso," by sixteenth century's Orazio chi.

e Copland opera, which had its d premiere by the New York a Company, will be given two rmances—on the evenings of 2 and 3. The other two will be uble bill, on July 27.

ch's new string quartet was red at the season's last con- f the League of Composers in York. On the same program first performances of cham- nsemble pieces by Alexei and William Flanagan.

THE OTHER HAND, French ssance music was the meat of nual and esteemed concert of essoff Choirs, which is di- by Paul Boepple. None of s more recent than the enth century.

York's summer open-air ts in the Lewishohn Stadium College of the City of New will have an "All-American this year, featuring contem- American music, with Virgil n conducting.

at the
NEW YORK THEATRES
by Charles K. Freeman

Daily News
3-8-54
Tarrytown

CHARLES MUNCH, MUSICAL DIRECTOR OF BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL

BERKSHIRE PLANS

With the welcome Spring sunshine nudging the small shoots and bulbs into appearance this is as good a time as any to alert true music fans to the program planned by the Berkshire Festival associates for the Summer ahead. And from thte headquarters of Charles Munch, music director of this annual event comes a dispatch enumerating the 24 concerts planned for the New Tanglewood season.

The constantly growing popularity of these concerts, which drew a record number to Lenox, Massachusetts last Summer has indicated an increase in the number of musical treats and to that end an enlarged program has been set down on paper which will be realized in the environs of the Berkshire hills for the six weeks from July 7th to August 15th.

* * *

In the course of the Shed concerts, Mr. Munch will honor the 150th anniversary season of the birth of Berlioz by conducting this composer's principal works in their complete form. Guest conductors in these concerts at the Shed will be Pierre Monteux, conducting two concerts; Jean Morel and Richard Burgin each conducting one.

The breakdown includes six concerts by chamber groups on Wednesday evenings, six concerts by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players on Friday evenings, six concerts by the full orchestra in the Shed on Saturday evenings and Six Sunday afternoons.

* * *

On July 10th Berlioz' "Damnation of Faust" with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society will be presented. And on Sunday afternoon, July 11th, Mr. Monteux will present a Beethoven program with Claudio Arrau as soloist. Bach and Mozart also will be featured in the Theatre-Concert Hall. A full complement of soloists will appear through the season.

Bishop To Lead Procession

Bishop Weldon, officers of the rtive;

norrow onight—lemn

es to the conven- t in a procession vood administra- the Music Shed of the Mass. naty Assembly, hts of Columbus, ty will serve as sts of Berkshire ligious from va- in the county the procession. d the Red Cross rounds will be from St. Luke's nox ambulance d.

delegates from courts through- more than 300 tatives from junior courts startd registering for the convention this noon at the Hotel Sheraton.

Convention Opens Tonight

Miss Catherine A. Dwyer of Boston, state grand regent, is scheduled to officiate at the opening session of the convention at 8 tonight in the Sheraton ballroom.

The convention will be the 19th biannual for the state Catholic Daughters. The organization has 10,000 members in 62 senior courts and 2,500 members in 38 junior courts.

The Mass will be rebroadcast over WBRK at 8 tomorrow night. The Rev. Paul A. Riedl of St. Joseph's Church will be commentator for the broadcast.

Advertise in The Star

SEPTIC TANKS CLEANED
NEW YORK SEPTIC TANK CLEANERS
Tanks Installing and Repairing Tile. Cesspools and Drain Tile.
437 Smith St. PE 7-3985 000-181

EASTERN STATE
SEPTIC TANK CLEANERS
CLEANING, INSTALLING & REPAIRING OF SEPTIC TANKS, CESSPOOLS & DRAIN TILE.
P. O. Box 101, GARRISON, N. Y.
GARRISON 4-3366 000-131

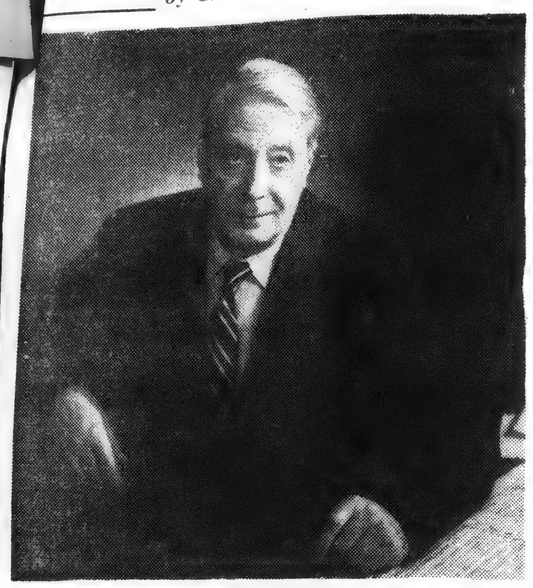
RESTAURANTS
WE Have returned from Vacation to serve You again — delicious Jumbo sandwiches. We satisfy the most particular taste. Opened Feb. 27. Main St. Best Kosher Delicatessen 933 000-44

THE ORIGINAL ROMEIKE PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D 26,991)
This Clipping From
ITTSFIELD, MASS.
ERKSHIRE EAGLE
AY 24 1954

LEWOOD TIMES
gust 13

at the NEW YORK THEATRES

by Charles K. Freeman



CHARLES MUNCH, MUSICAL DIRECTOR OF BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL

BERKSHIRE PLANS

With the welcome Spring sunshine nudging the small shoots and bulbs into appearance this is as good a time as any to alert true music fans to the program planned by the Berkshire Festival associates for the Summer ahead. And from thte headquarters of Charles Munch, music director of this annual event comes a dispatch enumerating the 24 concerts planned for the New Tanglewood season.

The constantly growing popularity of these concerts, which drew a record number to Lenox, Massachusetts last Summer has indicated an increase in the number of musical treats and to that end an enlarged program has been set down on paper which will be realized in the environs of the Berkshire hills for the six weeks from July 7th to August 15th.

* * *

In the course of the Shed concerts, Mr. Munch will honor the 150th anniversary season of the birth of Berlioz by conducting this composer's principal works in their complete form. Guest conductors in these concerts at the Shed will be Pierre Monteux, conducting two concerts; Jean Morel and Richard Burgin each conducting one.

The breakdown includes six concerts by chamber groups on Wednesday evenings, six concerts by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players on Friday evenings, six concerts by the full orchestra in the Shed on Saturday evenings and Six Sunday afternoons.

* * *

On July 10th Berlioz' "Damnation of Faust" with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society will be presented. And on Sunday afternoon, July 11th, Mr. Monteux will present a Beethoven program with Claudio Arrau as soloist. Bach and Mozart also will be featured in the Theatre-Concert Hall. A full complement of soloists will appear through the season.

ESTIVAL

a chamber orchestra of Bos- Symphony players on Friday nings, six concerts by the full hestra in the Shed on Saturevenings and Six Sunday afnoons.

* * *

n July 10th Berlioz' "Damion of Faust" with the Harl Glee Club and Radcliffe ral Society will be presented. on Sunday afternoon, July , Mr. Monteux will present eethoven program with Claurrau as soloist. Bach and art also will be featured in Theatre-Concert Hall. A full plement of soloists will apr through the season.

plement of soloists will apr through the season.

In the course of the Shed concerts, Mr. Munch will honor the 150th anniversary season of the birth of Berlioz by conducting this composer's principal works in their complete form. Guest conductors in these concerts at the Shed will be Pierre Monteux, conducting two concerts; Jean Morel and Richard Burgin each conducting one.

The breakdown includes six concerts by chamber groups on Wednesday evenings, six concerts

THE ORIGINAL ROMEIKE PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D 26,991)
This Clipping From
ITTSFIELD, MASS.
ERKSHIRE EAGLE
MAY 24 1954

Mac Morgan To Sing at Pops Concert

Stockbridge Baritone Will Be Guest Artist For Program June 18

Mac Morgan of Stockbridge, baritone and member of the New England Opera Theater, will be a

Mac Morgan

guest artist on the Little Symphony's Pops Concert program Friday, June 18.

Mr. Morgan, born in Texas and educated in Florida, is a graduate of the Eastman School of Music, Rochester, N.Y.

During the Bach-Mozart series of the Boston Symphony at the Berkshire Festival, Mr. Morgan has sung in a Bach Cantata for the past three summers. He also has appeared in leading roles at opera performances during the Festival. He will be remembered as Ford in the opera "Falstaff"; as Gianni Schicci; and in "Pique Dame," "Adriadne," "The Merry Masquerade" and "Comedy on the Bridge."

Sang With BSO

Some of his most recent appearances include a performance of Berlioz' "L'Enfance du Christ" with the Boston Symphony Orchestra in Boston; Beethoven's Ninth Symphony in Boston with the Boston Symphony Orchestra under Charles Munch; an eight-week tour with the New England Opera Theater's production of Mozart's "The Merry Masquerade," under the direction of Boris Goldovsky; and two performances of "Pagliacci" with the Kansas City Philharmonic. His recent concert tours during January, February and March were in the southwest, Michigan and Ohio. For 2½ years he was baritone soloist for the Cities Service radio program, "Highways in Melody." He also has appeared with the New York Philharmonic, the NBC Symphony, the Rochester Philharmonic, the Cleveland Symphony and the Toronto Symphony.

In August Mr. Morgan will give recitals in West Virginia and the South, and with the Buffalo Symphony in July. He will then begin the 1954-55 season with a nine-week tour with the New England Opera Theater in Rossini's "The Barber of Seville."

His wife, Helen Morgan, who is his accompanist, will play for him at the pops concert.

THE ORIGINAL ROMEIKE PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D 294,889) (S 252,207)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
POST
MAY 22 1954

The Observant Citizen

\+ + + +

This is the anniversary of Wagner's birth in 1813. His wedding march from "Lohengrin" will be a top tune next month—as it is every June.

Speaking of music, let anyone who doesn't believe that music hath charm to draw crowds read the following released by Boston's Symphony: In the enlarged Berkshire Festival, which attracted a record-breaking total attendance of 117,950 music lovers to Tanglewood last summer, an average of 4360 in its chamber concerts in the theatre-concert hall and an average of 10,200 in each of its huge music shed concerts, 24 concerts will be held in 1954, during the six weeks, July 7 to Aug. 15.

\+ + + +

THE ORIGINAL ROMEIKE PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D [illegible])
This Clipping From
PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE
MAY 21 1954

THE ORIGINAL ROMEIKE PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D [illegible]) (S 173,[illegible])
This Clipping From
DALLAS, TEXAS
NEWS
MAY 23 1954

Copland Work In Berkshires

NEW YORK (UP).—The opera department of the Berkshire Music Center plans three productions for this summer's festival in the Massachusetts hills. They will be Aaron Copland's "The Tender Land," Ernest Toch's "The Princess on the Pea" and the madrigal opera, "L'Amfiparnaso," by the sixteenth century's Orazio Vecchi.

The Copland opera, which had its world premiere by the New York Opera Company, will be given two performances—on the evenings of Aug. 2 and 3. The other two will be a double bill, on July 27.

Toch's new string quartet was featured at the season's last concert of the League of Composers in New York. On the same program were first performances of chamber ensemble pieces by Alexei Haieff and William Flanagan.

ON THE OTHER HAND, French Renaissance music was the meat of the annual and esteemed concert of the Dessoff Choirs, which is directed by Paul Boepple. None of it was more recent than the eighteenth century.

New York's summer open-air concerts in the Lewishohn Stadium of the College of the City of New York, will have an "All-American night" this year, featuring contemporary American music, with Virgil Thomson conducting.

Catholic Daughters Arrive; Tanglewood Mass Tomorrow

State Convention Opens Here Tonight—Public Invited to Pontifical Solemn High Mass Starting at 10 A.M.

Delegates to the biannual state convention of the Catholic Daughters of America started arriving in Pittsfield this noon as plans were completed for the Pontifial Solemn High Mass Bishop Christopher J. Weldon of Springfield will celebrate at Tanglewood as part of the three-day meeting.

Full Tanglewood facilities that have accommodated crowds as large as 14,000 will be available for the public Mass tomorrow morning at 10, according to the Rev. Robert L. Ahern, pastor of St. Charles' Church, Pittsfield.

The Airport Weather Bureau today forecast favorable weather tomorrow. The rain is scheduled to end tonight. Tomorrow will be continued cool with partial clearing.

Father Ahern again urged all persons interested to attend the Mass, whether or not they are Catholics.

Plenty of Parking Room

He said the regular Tanglewood parking facilities used for the Boston Symphony Orchestra's Berkshire Music Festival will be in use to handle the expected crowd of several thousand tomorrow. The state Highway Department will have the regular directional signs in place showing the way to Tanglewood.

State police, the regular Tanglewood force and policemen from Lenox and Stockbridge will direct the expected heavy flow of traffic. Catholic Boy Scouts from this area will assist in directing parking cars. Yesterday afternoon the 100-voice choir of seminarians and priests from six Berkshire County religious communities that will be one of two choirs at the Mass rehearsed in the Tanglewood Music Shed.

The religious choir will be seated on tiers of bleachers tomorrow in rear of the special 20-foot altar that has been constructed for the Mass. The 250-voice choir from Cathedral High School, Springfield, will be in the left front portion of the spacious Shed.

Bishop To Lead Procession

Bishop Weldon, officers of the Mass and delegates to the convention will take part in a procession from the Tanglewood administration building to the Music Shed prior to the start of the Mass.

The Bishop Conaty Assembly, fourth degree Knights of Columbus, of Berkshire County will serve as honor guard. Priests of Berkshire County and the religious from various communities in the county will participate in the procession.

Father Ahern said the Red Cross building on the grounds will be staffed by nurses from St. Luke's Hospital. The Lenox ambulance will also be on hand.

The 62 voting delegates from Catholic Daughters courts throughout the state and more than 300 additional representatives from those courts and junior courts startd registering for the convention this noon at the Hotel Sheraton.

Convention Opens Tonight

Miss Catherine A. Dwyer of Boston, state grand regent, is scheduled to officiate at the opening session of the convention at 8 tonight in the Sheraton ballroom.

The convention will be the 19th biannual for the state Catholic Daughters. The organization has 10,000 members in 62 senior courts and 2,500 members in 38 junior courts.

The Mass will be rebroadcast over WBRK at 8 tomorrow night. The Rev. Paul A. Riedl of St. Joseph's Church will be commentator for the broadcast.

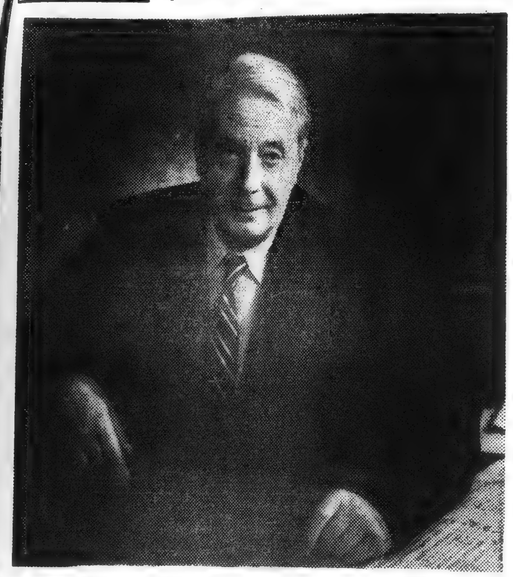
[118]

THE DAILY ITEM

Citizen Register Issing, N.Y. 3-9-54

at the
NEW YORK THEATRES

by Charles K. Freeman



CHARLES MUNCH, MUSICAL DIRECTOR OF BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL

BERKSHIRE PLANS

With the welcome Spring sunshine nudging the small shoots and bulbs into appearance this is as good a time as any to alert true music fans to the program planned by the Berkshire Festival associates for the Summer ahead. And from thte headquarters of Charles Munch, music director of this annual event comes a dispatch enumerating the 24 concerts planned for the New Tanglewood season.

The constantly growing popularity of these concerts, which drew a record number to Lenox, Massachusetts last Summer has indicated an increase in the number of musical treats and to that end an enlarged program has been set down on paper which will be realized in the environs of the Berkshire hills for the six weeks from July 7th to August 15th.

* * *

In the course of the Shed concerts, Mr. Munch will honor the 150th anniversary season of the birth of Berlioz by conducting this composer's principal works in their complete form. Guest conductors in these concerts at the Shed will be Pierre Monteux, conducting two concerts; Jean Morel and Richard Burgin each conducting one.

The breakdown includes six concerts by chamber groups on Wednesday evenings, six concerts by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players on Friday evenings, six concerts by the full orchestra in the Shed on Saturday evenings and Six Sunday afternoons.

* * *

On July 10th Berlioz' "Damnation of Faust" with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society will be presented. And on Sunday afternoon, July 11th, Mr. Monteux will present a Beethoven program with Claudio Arrau as soloist. Bach and Mozart also will be featured in the Theatre-Concert Hall. A full complement of soloists will appear through the season.

[illegible] Society will be presented. And on Sunday afternoon, July 11th, Mr. Monteux will present a Beethoven program with Claudio Arrau as soloist. Bach and Mozart also will be featured in the Theatre-Concert Hall. A full complement of soloists will appear through the season.

[illegible] six concerts

[112]

THE ORIGINAL
ROMEIKE
PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D 26,991)
This Clipping From
PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE
MAY 24 1954

Mac Morgan To Sing at Pops Concert

Stockbridge Baritone Will Be Guest Artist For Program June 18

Mac Morgan of Stockbridge, baritone and member of the New England Opera Theater will be a guest artist on the Little Symphony's Pops Concert program Friday, June 18.

Mac Morgan

Mr. Morgan, born in Texas and educated in Florida, is a graduate of the Eastman School of Music, Rochester, N.Y.

During the Bach-Mozart series of the Boston Symphony at the Berkshire Festival, Mr. Morgan has sung in a Bach Cantata for the past three summers. He also has appeared in leading roles at opera performances during the Festival. He will be remembered as Ford in the opera "Falstaff"; as Gianni Schicci; and in "Pique Dame," "Adriadne," "The Merry Masquerade" and "Comedy on the Bridge."

Sang With BSO

Some of his most recent appearances include a performance of Berlioz' "L'Enfance du Christ" with the Boston Symphony Orchestra in Boston; Beethoven's Ninth Symphony in Boston with the Boston Symphony Orchestra under Charles Munch; an eight-week tour with the New England Opera Theater's production of Mozart's "The Merry Masquerade," under the direction of Boris Goldovsky; and two performances of "Pagliacci" with the Kansas City Philharmonic. His recent concert tours during January, February and March were in the southwest, Michigan and Ohio. For 2½ years he was baritone soloist for the Cities Service radio program, "Highways in Melody." He also has appeared with the New York Philharmonic, the NBC Symphony, the Rochester Philharmonic, the Cleveland Symphony and the Toronto Symphony.

In August Mr. Morgan will give recitals in West Virginia and the South, and with the Buffalo Symphony in July. He will then begin the 1954-55 season with a nine-week tour with the New England Opera Theater in Rossini's "The Barber of Seville."

His wife, Helen Morgan, who is his accompanist, will play for him at the pops concert.

THE ORIGINAL
ROMEIKE
PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D 294,859) (S 252,207)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
POST
MAY 22 1954

The Observant Citizen

\+ + + +

This is the anniversary of Wagner's birth in 1813. His wedding march from "Lohengrin" will be a top tune next month—as it is every June.

Speaking of music, let anyone who doesn't believe that music hath charm to draw crowds read the following released by Boston's Symphony: In the enlarged Berkshire Festival, which attracted a record-breaking total attendance of 117,950 music lovers to Tanglewood last summer, an average of 4360 in its chamber concerts in the theatre-concert hall and an average of 10,200 in each of its huge music shed concerts, 24 concerts will be held in 1954, during the six weeks, July 7 to Aug. 15.

\+ + + +

THE ORIGINAL
ROMEIKE
PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D 26,991)
This Clipping From
PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE
MAY 21 1954

THE ORIGINAL
ROMEIKE
PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D 148,934) (S 177,859)
This Clipping From
DALLAS, TEX.
NEWS
MAY 2-3 1954

Copland Work In Berkshires

NEW YORK (UP).—The opera department of the Berkshire Music Center plans three productions for this summer's festival in the Massachusetts hills. They will be Aaron Copland's "The Tender Land," Ernest Toch's "The Princess on the Pea" and the madrigal opera, "L'Amfiparnaso," by the sixteenth century's Orazio Vecchi.

The Copland opera, which had its world premiere by the New York Opera Company, will be given two performances—on the evenings of Aug. 2 and 3. The other two will be a double bill, on July 27.

Toch's new string quartet was featured at the season's last concert of the League of Composers in New York. On the same program were first performances of chamber ensemble pieces by Alexei Haieff and William Flanagan.

ON THE OTHER HAND, French Renaissance music was the meat of the annual and esteemed concert of the Dessoff Choirs, which is directed by Paul Boepple. None of it was more recent than the eighteenth century.

New York's summer open-air concerts in the Lewishohn Stadium of the College of the City of New York, will have an "All-American night" this year, featuring contemporary American music, with Virgil Thomson conducting.

Catholic Daughters Arrive; Tanglewood Mass Tomorrow

State Convention Opens Here Tonight—Public Invited to Pontifical Solemn High Mass Starting at 10 A.M.

Delegates to the biannual state convention of the Catholic Daughters of America started arriving in Pittsfield this noon as plans were completed for the Pontifial Solemn High Mass Bishop Christopher J. Weldon of Springfield will celebrate at Tanglewood as part of the three-day meeting.

Full Tanglewood facilities that have accommodated crowds as large as 14,000 will be available for the public Mass tomorrow morning at 10, according to the Rev. Robert L. Ahern, pastor of St. Charles' Church, Pittsfield.

The Airport Weather Bureau today forecast favorable weather tomorrow. The rain is scheduled to end tonight. Tomorrow will be continued cool with partial clearing.

Father Ahern again urged all persons interested to attend the Mass, whether or not they are Catholics.

Plenty of Parking Room

He said the regular Tanglewood parking facilities used for the Boston Symphony Orchestra's Berkshire Music Festival will be in use to handle the expected crowd of several thousand tomorrow. The state Highway Department will have the regular directional signs in place showing the way to Tanglewood.

State police, the regular Tanglewood force and policemen from Lenox and Stockbridge will direct the expected heavy flow of traffic. Catholic Boy Scouts from this area will assist in directing parking cars. Yesterday afternoon the 100-voice choir of seminarians and priests from six Berkshire County religious communities that will be one of two choirs at the Mass rehearsed in the Tanglewood Music Shed.

The religious choir will be seated on tiers of bleachers tomorrow in rear of the special 20-foot altar that has been constructed for the Mass. The 250-voice choir from Cathedral High School, Springfield, will be in the left front portion of the spacious Shed.

Bishop To Lead Procession

Bishop Weldon, officers of the Mass and delegates to the convention will take part in a procession from the Tanglewood administration building to the Music Shed prior to the start of the Mass.

The Bishop Conaty Assembly, fourth degree Knights of Columbus, of Berkshire County will serve as honor guard. Priests of Berkshire County and the religious from various communities in the county will participate in the procession.

Father Ahern said the Red Cross building on the grounds will be staffed by nurses from St. Luke's Hospital. The Lenox ambulance will also be on hand.

The 62 voting delegates from Catholic Daughters courts throughout the state and more than 300 additional representatives from those courts and junior courts startd registering for the convention this noon at the Hotel Sheraton.

Convention Opens Tonight

Miss Catherine A. Dwyer of Boston, state grand regent, is scheduled to officiate at the opening session of the convention at 8 tonight in the Sheraton ballroom.

The convention will be the 19th biannual for the state Catholic Daughters. The organization has 10,000 members in 62 senior courts and 2,500 members in 38 junior courts.

The Mass will be rebroadcast over WBRK at 8 tomorrow night. The Rev. Paul A. Riedl of St. Joseph's Church will be commentator for the broadcast.

THE ORIGINAL
ROMEIKE
PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D 26,991)
This Clipping From
PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE
MAY 24 1954

Mac Morgan To Sing at Pops Concert

Stockbridge Baritone Will Be Guest Artist For Program June 18

Mac Morgan of Stockbridge, baritone and member of the New England Opera Theater, will be a

Mac Morgan

guest artist on the Little Symphony's Pops Concert program Friday, June 18.

Mr. Morgan, born in Texas and educated in Florida, is a graduate of the Eastman School of Music, Rochester, N.Y.

During the Bach-Mozart series of the Boston Symphony at the Berkshire Festival, Mr. Morgan has sung in a Bach Cantata for the past three summers. He also has appeared in leading roles at opera performances during the Festival. He will be remembered as Ford in the opera "Falstaff"; as Gianni Schicci; and in "Pique Dame," "Adriadne," "The Merry Masquerade" and "Comedy on the Bridge."

Sang With BSO

Some of his most recent appearances include a performance of Berlioz' "L'Enfance du Christ" with the Boston Symphony Orchestra in Boston; Beethoven's Ninth Symphony in Boston with the Boston Symphony Orchestra under Charles Munch; an eight-week tour of the New England Opera Theater's production of Mozart's "The Merry Masquerade," under the direction of Boris Goldovsky; and two performances of "Pagliacci" with the Kansas City Philharmonic. His recent concert tours during January, February and March were in the southwest, Michigan and Ohio. For 2½ years he was baritone soloist for the Cities Service radio program, "Highways in Melody." He also has appeared with the New York Philharmonic, the NBC Symphony, the Rochester Philharmonic, the Cleveland Symphony and the Toronto Symphony.

In August Mr. Morgan will give recitals in West Virginia and the South, and with the Buffalo Symphony in July. He will then begin the 1954-55 season with a nine-week tour with the New England Opera Theater in Rossini's "The Barber of Seville."

His wife, Helen Morgan, who is his accompanist, will play for him at the pops concert.

THE ORIGINAL
ROMEIKE
PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D 294,889) (S 252,207)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
POST
MAY 22 1954

The Observant Citizen

+ + + +

This is the anniversary of Wagner's birth in 1813. His wedding march from "Lohengrin" will be a top tune next month—as it is every June.

Speaking of music, let anyone who doesn't believe that music hath charm to draw crowds read the following released by Boston's Symphony: In the enlarged Berkshire Festival, which attracted a record-breaking total attendance of 117,950 music lovers to Tanglewood last summer, an average of 4360 in its chamber concerts in the theatre-concert hall and an average of 10,200 in each of its huge music shed concerts, 24 concerts will be held in 1954, during the six weeks, July 7 to Aug. 15.

+ + + +

THE ORIGINAL
ROMEIKE
PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D 26,991)
This Clipping From
PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE
MAY 21 1954

THE ORIGINAL
ROMEIKE
PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D [illegible]) (S 177,[illegible])
This Clipping From
DALLAS, TEX.
NEWS
MAY 2 3 1954

Copland Work In Berkshires

NEW YORK (UP).—The opera department of the Berkshire Music Center plans three productions for this summer's festival in the Massachusetts hills. They will be Aaron Copland's "The Tender Land," Ernest Toch's "The Princess on the Pea" and the madrigal opera, "L'Amfiparnaso," by the sixteenth century's Orazio Vecchi.

The Copland opera, which had its world premiere by the New York Opera Company, will be given two performances—on the evenings of Aug. 2 and 3. The other two will be a double bill, on July 27.

Toch's new string quartet was featured at the season's last concert of the League of Composers in New York. On the same program were first performances of chamber ensemble pieces by Alexei Haieff and William Flanagan.

ON THE OTHER HAND, French Renaissance music was the meat of the annual and esteemed concert of the Dessoff Choirs, which is directed by Paul Boepple. None of it was more recent than the eighteenth century.

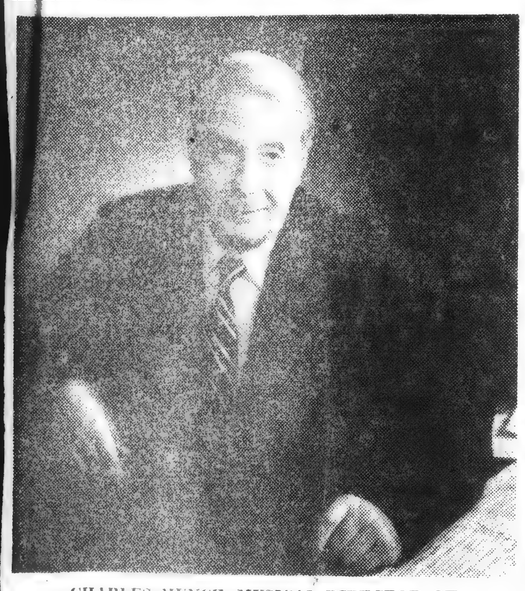
New York's summer open-air concerts in the Lewishohn Stadium of the College of the City of New York, will have an "All-American night" this year, featuring contemporary American music, with Virgil Thomson conducting.

, MARCH 8, 1954. TELEPHONE WHITE PLAINS

The Reporter Dispatch
White Plains, N.Y.

at the NEW YORK THEATRES

by Charles K. Freeman



CHARLES MUNCH, MUSICAL DIRECTOR OF BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL

BERKSHIRE PLANS

With the welcome Spring sunshine nudging the small shoots and bulbs into appearance this is as good a time as any to alert true music fans to the program planned by the Berkshire Festival associates for the Summer ahead. And from this headquarters of Charles Munch [illegible] a distinguished [illegible] Festival will [illegible] by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players on Friday evenings, six concerts by the full orchestra in the Shed on Saturday evenings and Six Sunday afternoons.

* * *

On July 10th Berlioz' "Damnation of Faust" with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society will be presented. And on Sunday afternoon, July 11th, Mr. Monteux will present a Beethoven program with Claudio Arrau as soloist. Bach and Mozart also will be featured in the Theatre-Concert Hall. A full complement of soloists will appear through the season.

[illegible] chamber groups on [illegible]day evenings, six concerts

Catholic Daughters Arrive; Tanglewood Mass Tomorrow

State Convention Opens Here Tonight—Public Invited to Pontifical Solemn High Mass Starting at 10 A.M.

Delegates to the biannual state convention of the Catholic Daughters of America started arriving in Pittsfield this noon as plans were completed for the Pontifial Solemn High Mass Bishop Christopher J. Weldon of Springfield will celebrate at Tanglewood as part of the three-day meeting.

Full Tanglewood facilities that have accommodated crowds as large as 14,000 will be available for the public Mass tomorrow morning at 10, according to the Rev. Robert L. Ahern, pastor of St. Charles' Church, Pittsfield.

The Airport Weather Bureau today forecast favorable weather tomorrow. The rain is scheduled to end tonight. Tomorrow will be continued cool with partial clearing.

Father Ahern again urged all persons interested to attend the Mass, whether or not they are Catholics.

Plenty of Parking Room

He said the regular Tanglewood parking facilities used for the Boston Symphony Orchestra's Berkshire Music Festival will be in use to handle the expected crowd of several thousand tomorrow. The state Highway Department will have the regular directional signs in place showing the way to Tanglewood.

State police, the regular Tanglewood force and policemen from Lenox and Stockbridge will direct the expected heavy flow of traffic. Catholic Boy Scouts from this area will assist in directing parking cars. Yesterday afternoon the 100-voice choir of seminarians and priests from six Berkshire County religious communities that will be one of two choirs at the Mass rehearsed in the Tanglewood Music Shed.

The religious choir will be seated on tiers of bleachers tomorrow in rear of the special 20-foot altar that has been constructed for the Mass. The 250-voice choir from Cathedral High School, Springfield, will be in the left front portion of the spacious Shed.

Bishop To Lead Procession

Bishop Weldon, officers of the Mass and delegates to the convention will take part in a procession from the Tanglewood administration building to the Music Shed prior to the start of the Mass.

The Bishop Conaty Assembly, fourth degree Knights of Columbus, of Berkshire County will serve as honor guard. Priests of Berkshire County and the religious from various communities in the county will participate in the procession.

Father Ahern said the Red Cross building on the grounds will be staffed by nurses from St. Luke's Hospital. The Lenox ambulance will also be on hand.

The 62 voting delegates from Catholic Daughters courts throughout the state and more than 300 additional representatives from those courts and junior courts startd registering for the convention this noon at the Hotel Sheraton.

Convention Opens Tonight

Miss Catherine A. Dwyer of Boston, state grand regent, is scheduled to officiate at the opening session of the convention at 8 tonight in the Sheraton ballroom.

The convention will be the 19th biannual for the state Catholic Daughters. The organization has 10,000 members in 62 senior courts and 2,500 members in 38 junior courts.

The Mass will be rebroadcast over WBRK at 8 tomorrow night. The Rev. Paul A. Riedl of St. Joseph's Church will be commentator for the broadcast.

[118]

THE ORIGINAL
ROMEIKE
PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D 26,991)
This Clipping From
PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE
MAY 24 1954

Mac Morgan To Sing at Pops Concert

Stockbridge Baritone Will Be Guest Artist For Program June 18

Mac Morgan of Stockbridge, baritone and member of the New England Opera Theater, will be a

Mac Morgan

guest artist on the Little Symphony's Pops Concert program Friday, June 18.

Mr. Morgan, born in Texas and educated in Florida, is a graduate of the Eastman School of Music, Rochester, N.Y.

During the Bach-Mozart series of the Boston Symphony at the Berkshire Festival, Mr. Morgan has sung in a Bach Cantata for the past three summers. He also has appeared in leading roles at opera performances during the Festival. He will be remembered as Ford in the opera "Falstaff"; as Gianni Schicci; and in "Pique Dame," "Adriadne," "The Merry Masquerade" and "Comedy on the Bridge."

Sang With BSO

Some of his most recent appearances include a performance of Berlioz' "L'Enfance du Christ" with the Boston Symphony Orchestra in Boston; Beethoven's Ninth Symphony in Boston with the Boston Symphony Orchestra under Charles Munch; an eight-week tour of the New England Opera Theater's production of Mozart's "The Merry Masquerade," under the direction of Boris Goldovsky; and two performances of "Pagliacci" with the Kansas City Philharmonic. His recent concert tours during January, February and March were in the southwest, Michigan and Ohio. For 2½ years he was baritone soloist for the Cities Service radio program, "Highways in Melody." He also has appeared with the New York Philharmonic, the NBC Symphony, the Rochester Philharmonic, the Cleveland Symphony and the Toronto Symphony.

In August Mr. Morgan will give recitals in West Virginia and the South, and with the Buffalo Symphony in July. He will then begin the 1954-55 season with a nine-week tour with the New England Opera Theater in Rossini's "The Barber of Seville."

His wife, Helen Morgan, who is his accompanist, will play for him at the pops concert.

THE ORIGINAL
ROMEIKE
PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D 294,859) (S 252,207)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
POST
MAY 22 1954

The Observant Citizen

+ + + +

This is the anniversary of Wagner's birth in 1813. His wedding march from "Lohengrin" will be a top tune next month—as it is every June.

Speaking of music, let anyone who doesn't believe that music hath charm to draw crowds read the following released by Boston's Symphony: In the enlarged Berkshire Festival, which attracted a record-breaking total attendance of 117,950 music lovers to Tanglewood last summer, an average of 4360 in its chamber concerts in the theatre-concert hall and an average of 10,200 in each of its huge music shed concerts, 24 concerts will be held in 1954, during the six weeks, July 7 to Aug. 15.

+ + + +

THE ORIGINAL
ROMEIKE
PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D 26,991)
This Clipping From
PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE
MAY 21 1954

THE ORIGINAL
ROMEIKE
PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D [illegible]) (S 177,[illegible])
This Clipping From
DALLAS, TEX.
NEWS
MAY 23 1954

Copland Work In Berkshires

NEW YORK (UP).—The opera department of the Berkshire Music Center plans three productions for this summer's festival in the Massachusetts hills. They will be Aaron Copland's "The Tender Land," Ernest Toch's "The Princess on the Pea" and the madrigal opera, "L'Amfiparnaso," by the sixteenth century's Orazio Vecchi.

The Copland opera, which had its world premiere by the New York Opera Company, will be given two performances—on the evenings of Aug. 2 and 3. The other two will be a double bill, on July 27.

Toch's new string quartet was featured at the season's last concert of the League of Composers in New York. On the same program were first performances of chamber ensemble pieces by Alexei Haieff and William Flanagan.

ON THE OTHER HAND, French Renaissance music was the meat of the annual and esteemed concert of the Dessoff Choirs, which is directed by Paul Boepple. None of it was more recent than the eighteenth century.

New York's summer open-air concerts in the Lewishohn Stadium of the College of the City of New York, will have an "All-American night" this year, featuring contemporary American music, with Virgil Thomson conducting.

THE ORIGINAL
ROMEIKE
PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D 26,991)
This Clipping From
PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE
MAY 21 1954

Catholic Daughters Arrive; Tanglewood Mass Tomorrow

State Convention Opens Here Tonight—Public Invited to Pontifical Solemn High Mass Starting at 10 A.M.

Delegates to the biannual state convention of the Catholic Daughters of America started arriving in Pittsfield this noon as plans were completed for the Pontifial Solemn High Mass Bishop Christopher J. Weldon of Springfield will celebrate at Tanglewood as part of the three-day meeting.

Full Tanglewood facilities that have accommodated crowds as large as 14,000 will be available for the public Mass tomorrow morning at 10, according to the Rev. Robert L. Ahern, pastor of St. Charles' Church, Pittsfield.

The Airport Weather Bureau today forecast favorable weather tomorrow. The rain is scheduled to end tonight. Tomorrow will be continued cool with partial clearing.

Father Ahern again urged all persons interested to attend the Mass, whether or not they are Catholics.

Plenty of Parking Room

He said the regular Tanglewood parking facilities used for the Boston Symphony Orchestra's Berkshire Music Festival will be in use to handle the expected crowd of several thousand tomorrow. The state Highway Department will have the regular directional signs in place showing the way to Tanglewood.

State police, the regular Tanglewood force and policemen from Lenox and Stockbridge will direct the expected heavy flow of traffic. Catholic Boy Scouts from this area will assist in directing parking cars. Yesterday afternoon the 100-voice choir of seminarians and priests from six Berkshire County religious communities that will be one of two choirs at the Mass rehearsed in the Tanglewood Music Shed.

The religious choir will be seated on tiers of bleachers tomorrow in rear of the special 20-foot altar that has been constructed for the Mass. The 250-voice choir from Cathedral High School, Springfield, will be in the left front portion of the spacious Shed.

Bishop To Lead Procession

Bishop Weldon, officers of the Mass and delegates to the convention will take part in a procession from the Tanglewood administration building to the Music Shed prior to the start of the Mass.

The Bishop Conaty Assembly, fourth degree Knights of Columbus, of Berkshire County will serve as honor guard. Priests of Berkshire County and the religious from various communities in the county will participate in the procession.

Father Ahern said the Red Cross building on the grounds will be staffed by nurses from St. Luke's Hospital. The Lenox ambulance will also be on hand.

The 62 voting delegates from Catholic Daughters courts throughout the state and more than 300 additional representatives from those courts and junior courts startd registering for the convention this noon at the Hotel Sheraton.

Convention Opens Tonight

Miss Catherine A. Dwyer of Boston, state grand regent, is scheduled to officiate at the opening session of the convention at 8 tonight in the Sheraton ballroom.

The convention will be the 19th biannual for the state Catholic Daughters. The organization has 10,000 members in 62 senior courts and 2,500 members in 38 junior courts.

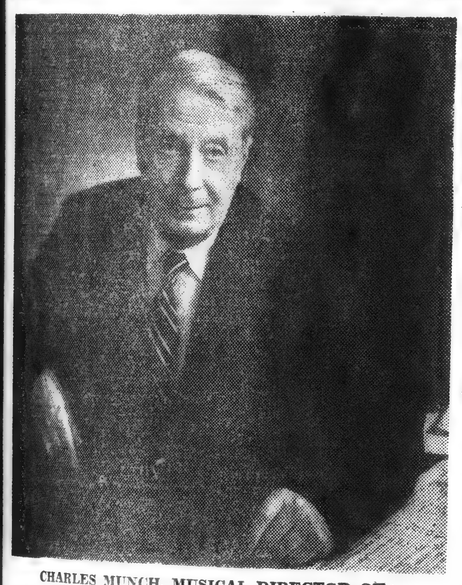
The Mass will be rebroadcast over WBRK at 8 tomorrow night. The Rev. Paul A. Riedl of St. Joseph's Church will be commentator for the broadcast.

THE H

at the Herald Statesman Yonkers, N.Y.

NEW YORK THEATRES

by Charles K. Freeman



CHARLES MUNCH, MUSICAL DIRECTOR OF BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL

BERKSHIRE PLANS

With the welcome Spring sunshine nudging the small shoots and bulbs into appearance this is as good a time as any to alert true music fans to the program planned by the Berkshire Festival associates for the Summer ahead. And from the headquarters of Charles Munch, music director of this annual event comes a dispatch enumerating the 24 concerts planned for the New Tanglewood season.

The constantly growing popularity of these concerts, which drew a record number to Lenox, Massachusetts last Summer, has indicated an increase in the number of musical treats and to that end an enlarged program has been set down on paper which will be realized in the environs of the Berkshire hills for the six weeks from July 7th to August 15th.

* * *

In the course of the Shed concerts Mr. Munch will honor the 150th anniversary season of the birth of Berlioz by conducting this composer's principal works in their complete form. Guest conductors in these concerts at the Shed will be Pierre Monteux, conducting two concerts; Jean Morel and Richard Burgin each conducting one.

The breakdown includes six concerts by chamber groups on Wednesday evenings, six concerts by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players on Friday evenings, six concerts by the full orchestra in the Shed on Saturday evenings and Six Sunday afternoons.

* * *

On July 10th Berlioz' "Damnation of Faust" with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society will be presented. And on Sunday afternoon, July 11th, Mr. Monteux will present a Beethoven program with Claudio Arrau as soloist. Bach and Mozart also will be featured in the Theatre-Concert Hall. A full complement of soloists will appear through the season.

[112]

THE ORIGINAL
ROMEIKE
PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D 26,991)
This Clipping From
PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE
MAY 24 1954

Mac Morgan To Sing at Pops Concert

Stockbridge Baritone Will Be Guest Artist For Program June 18

Mac Morgan of Stockbridge, baritone and member of the New England Opera Theatre, will be a

Mac Morgan

guest artist on the Little Symphony's Pops Concert program Friday, June 18.

Mr. Morgan, born in Texas and educated in Florida, is a graduate of the Eastman School of Music, Rochester, N.Y.

During the Bach-Mozart series of the Boston Symphony at the Berkshire Festival, Mr. Morgan has sung in a Bach Cantata for the past three summers. He also has appeared in leading roles at opera performances during the Festival. He will be remembered as Ford in the opera "Falstaff"; as Gianni Schicci; and in "Pique Dame," "Adriadne," "The Merry Masquerade" and "Comedy on the Bridge."

Sang With BSO

Some of his most recent appearances include a performance of Berlioz' "L'Enfance du Christ" with the Boston Symphony Orchestra in Boston; Beethoven's Ninth Symphony in Boston with the Boston Symphony Orchestra under Charles Munch; an eight-week tour of the New England Opera Theater's production of Mozart's "The Merry Masquerade," under the direction of Boris Goldovsky; and two performances of "Pagliacci" with the Kansas City Philharmonic. His recent concert tours during January, February and March were in the southwest, Michigan and Ohio. For 2½ years he was baritone soloist for the Cities Service radio program, "Highways in Melody." He also has appeared with the New York Philharmonic, the NBC Symphony, the Rochester Philharmonic, the Cleveland Symphony and the Toronto Symphony.

In August Mr. Morgan will give recitals in West Virginia and the South, and with the Buffalo Symphony in July. He will then begin the 1954-55 season with a nine-week tour with the New England Opera Theater in Rossini's "The Barber of Seville."

His wife, Helen Morgan, who is his accompanist, will play for him at the pops concert.

THE ORIGINAL
ROMEIKE
PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D 294,859) (S 252,207)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
POST
MAY 22 1954

The Observant Citizen

+ + + +

This is the anniversary of Wagner's birth in 1813. His wedding march from "Lohengrin" will be a top tune next month as it is every June.

Speaking of music, let anyone who doesn't believe that music hath charm to draw crowds read the following released by Boston's Symphony: In the enlarged Berkshire Festival, which attracted a record-breaking total attendance of 117,950 music lovers to Tanglewood last summer, an average of 4360 in its chamber concerts in the theatre-concert hall and an average of 10,200 in each of its huge music shed concerts, 24 concerts will be held in 1954, during the six weeks, July 7 to Aug. 15.

+ + + +

THE ORIGINAL
ROMEIKE
PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D 26,991)
This Clipping From
PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE
MAY 21 1954

THE ORIGINAL
ROMEIKE
PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D [illegible]) (S 177,199)
This Clipping From
DALLAS, TEX.
NEWS
MAY 23 1954

Copland Work In Berkshires

NEW YORK (UP).—The opera department of the Berkshire Music Center plans three productions for this summer's festival in the Massachusetts hills. They will be Aaron Copland's "The Tender Land," Ernest Toch's "The Princess on the Pea" and the madrigal opera, "L'Amfiparnaso," by the sixteenth century's Orazio Vecchi.

The Copland opera, which had its world premiere by the New York Opera Company, will be given two performances—on the evenings of Aug. 2 and 3. The other two will be a double bill, on July 27.

Toch's new string quartet was featured at the season's last concert of the League of Composers in New York. On the same program were first performances of chamber ensemble pieces by Alexei Haieff and William Flanagan.

ON THE OTHER HAND, French Renaissance music was the meat of the annual and esteemed concert of the Dessoff Choirs, which is directed by Paul Boepple. None of it was more recent than the eighteenth century.

New York's summer open-air concerts in the Lewishohn Stadium of the College of the City of New York, will have an "All-American night" this year, featuring contemporary American music, with Virgil Thomson conducting.

Catholic Daughters Arrive; Tanglewood Mass Tomorrow

State Convention Opens Here Tonight—Public Invited to Pontifical Solemn High Mass Starting at 10 A.M.

Delegates to the biannual state convention of the Catholic Daughters of America started arriving in Pittsfield this noon as plans were completed for the Pontifial Solemn High Mass Bishop Christopher J. Weldon of Springfield will celebrate at Tanglewood as part of the three-day meeting.

Full Tanglewood facilities that have accommodated crowds as large as 14,000 will be available for the public Mass tomorrow morning at 10, according to the Rev. Robert L. Ahern, pastor of St. Charles' Church, Pittsfield.

The Airport Weather Bureau today forecast favorable weather tomorrow. The rain is scheduled to end tonight. Tomorrow will be continued cool with partial clearing.

Father Ahern again urged all persons interested to attend the Mass, whether or not they are Catholics.

Plenty of Parking Room

He said the regular Tanglewood parking facilities used for the Boston Symphony Orchestra's Berkshire Music Festival will be in use to handle the expected crowd of several thousand tomorrow. The state Highway Department will have the regular directional signs in place showing the way to Tanglewood.

State police, the regular Tanglewood force and policemen from Lenox and Stockbridge will direct the expected heavy flow of traffic. Catholic Boy Scouts from this area will assist in directing parking cars. Yesterday afternoon the 100-voice choir of seminarians and priests from six Berkshire County religious communities that will be one of two choirs at the Mass rehearsed in the Tanglewood Music Shed.

The religious choir will be seated on tiers of bleachers tomorrow in rear of the special 20-foot altar that has been constructed for the Mass. The 250-voice choir from Cathedral High School, Springfield, will be in the left front portion of the spacious Shed.

Bishop To Lead Procession

Bishop Weldon, officers of the Mass and delegates to the convention will take part in a procession from the Tanglewood administration building to the Music Shed prior to the start of the Mass.

The Bishop Conaty Assembly, fourth degree Knights of Columbus, of Berkshire County will serve as honor guard. Priests of Berkshire County and the religious from various communities in the county will participate in the procession.

Father Ahern said the Red Cross building on the grounds will be staffed by nurses from St. Luke's Hospital. The Lenox ambulance will also be on hand.

The 62 voting delegates from Catholic Daughters courts throughout the state and more than 300 additional representatives from those courts and junior courts startd registering for the convention this noon at the Hotel Sheraton.

Convention Opens Tonight

Miss Catherine A. Dwyer of Boston, state grand regent, is scheduled to officiate at the opening session of the convention at 8 tonight in the Sheraton ballroom.

The convention will be the 19th biannual for the state Catholic Daughters. The organization has 10,000 members in 62 senior courts and 2,500 members in 38 junior courts.

The Mass will be rebroadcast over WBRK at 8 tomorrow night. The Rev. Paul A. Riedl of St. Joseph's Church will be commentator for the broadcast.

THE [illegible]

at the [illegible] Yonkers, N.Y.

NEW YORK THEATRES

by Charles K. Freeman

CHARLES MUNCH, MUSICAL DIRECTOR OF BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL

BERKSHIRE PLANS

With the welcome Spring sunshine making the small shoots and buds on apple trees look as good a time as any to anticipate true music fans to the [illegible] planned by the [illegible] val appearances for the [illegible] ahead. And from the [illegible] ters of Charles Munch, [illegible] rector of this genius [illegible] a dispatch announcing [illegible] concerts [illegible] for the Tanglewood season.

The concerts [illegible] larity of these [illegible] drew a record number to the Massachusetts hills [illegible] indicate an increase [illegible] ber of music lovers [illegible] cal an orchestra [illegible] been set down on [illegible] will be played in the [illegible] of the Berkshire hills [illegible] weeks from July 7 to August 15th.

* * *

In the course of the six [illegible] ers Mr. Munch will [illegible] 150th anniversary season of the birth of Berlioz by conducting this composer's principal works in their complete form. Guest conductors in the concerts at the Shed will be Pierre Monteux conducting two concerts; Jean Morel and Richard Burgin each conducting one.

The breakdown includes six concerts by chamber groups on Wednesday evenings, six concerts by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players on Friday evenings, six concerts by the full orchestra in the Shed on Saturday evenings and Six Sunday afternoons.

* * *

On July 10th Berlioz' "Damnation of Faust" with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society will be presented. And on Sunday afternoon, July 11th, Mr. Monteux will present Beethoven program with Claudio Arrau as soloist. Bach and Mozart also will be featured in the Theatre-Concert Hall. A full complement of soloists will appear through the season.

[118]

Summer - 1954

ELEANOR STEBER

DAVID POLERI

Koussevitzky Memorial

Soloists at Tanglewood this season include: David Poleri, the Met's Nicola Moscona, John McCollum, Martial Singher and David Gramm. (See program page for other soloists). Baritone Singher, Tenor Poleri, Bass Baritone Gramm and Soprano Eleanor Steber will be the soloists July 10th in Berlioz' "Damnation of Faust" with the full 104-piece BSO conducted by Munch, assisted by the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society under the direction of G. Wallace Woodworth.

Poleri sings the solo part in Berlioz' Requiem with which Munch will close the Festival on August 15 as a Memorial to Serge Koussevitzky, who for 25 years headed the BSO and pioneered Tanglewood.

Aaron Copland, eminent American composer, whose opera "The Tender Land" will be performed Aug. 2 and 3.

Pictures of Copland and Ross by Whitestone Photo of New York City and Lenox.

Viva Claudio Arrau, Fabulous Pianist

By R. LIBRIZZI

Claudio Arrau, world famous pianist is the only living pianist ever to have played all the keyboard works of Bach in a series of

CLAUDIO ARRAU

See program page

12 recitals and all the piano works of Mozart, Weber, Beethoven and Schubert.

Last year in London he was the first pianist to give all the Beethoven Sonatas since Schnabel in the 30's and recently he repeated the feat in seven New York recitals.

In the recent film "Rhapsody" with Elizabeth Taylor, Gassman and Erickson, there's a sound track of 12 glorious minutes of piano playing by Arrau including the Rachmanninoff Concerto No. 2 and shorter pieces of Liszt, Chopin, Scriabin and Weber in 3-d stereophonic sound.

Who is this handsome artist? Where did he come from and how did he get that way?

Neo-Liszt

Known as the "Neo-Liszt from the Tropic of Capricorn", 50-year old Arrau gave his first recital at 5 in Santiago, Chile, near which he was born. Two years later (correct, age 7) he was sent with his entire family at the expense of the Chilean Government to study in Germany.

As a teenager he won the homage of what were then snobbish German audiences by his supreme power over the keyboards.

He is the first major pianist of his generation to be acclaimed on five continents and the only pianist in history to achieve that renown before age 50, winning the admiration of both audiences and musicians everywhere.

Starred As Liszt

Claudio first came to play in this country when he was 20 years old, and that was an appearance with the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

He once starred in a Mexican film on the life of Liszt. In the film he acted Liszt as both a young and an old man. Arrau is not ashamed to admit that tears rolled down his cheeks as Liszt died a movieland death; he was simply overcome by the acting of the part.

Truly, he's a fabulous pianist, and Chile has profited from its smart investment for wherever he performs, and that's just about around the world, his fame has brought renown to Chile. In his own lifetime Chile has named a street in Santiago after him, and gladly allows him to travel about with a Chilean passport. Why not? He's a great cultural ambassador.

He's a "Hijo Predilecto", Mexico's highest decoration of the arts.

About street naming, Arrau says that's wonderful recognition and, being an admirer of Mississippi writer William Faulkner and California architect Frank Lloyd Wright, he recommends that the U.S. name streets after them.

His style-mastery is all embracing and his repertoire and memory is considered to be without equal in his field. With what he plays, he could give a different recital program for 76 straight evenings, and he could present 63 orchestral works in addition.

Greatest of the Greatest

And the women. They go crazy over Arrau, (pronounced A-row, by the way). The fair sex swoon in the aisles from Moscow to Tel Aviv. There was such a demand for tickets for his recitals in Israel that like eggs and milk they had to be rationed.

What an artist! He gets top billing from both Columbia and RCA Victor, which is no surprise because his recordings are prized items.

No wonder the famed Manchester Guardian calls him the "greatest of the greatest pianists."

New Tanglewood Tales

The $300, 1953 Harvey Gaul composition prize went to Ramiro Cortes of Los Angeles for his piano and string quintet. The $100 harp prize was won by Isadore Freed of NYC for his Trio for Harp, Flute and Viola.

Guest conductor Jean Morel heads the orchestra of the Julliard School, and has conducted the Opera Comique and the Orchestre Symphonique of Paris, Opera Rio de Janeiro and N.Y. Center Opera. He is replacing Leonard Bernstein, who is on leave of absence, in the B.M. Center's Conducting Dept.

Charles Munch completed five years as Music Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. It has been a period of great activity and growth, including among other things a triumphant tour of Europe. This season at Tanglewood Monsieur Munch will conduct eight of the 12 shed concerts.

The Shed concerts will be inaugurated July 10 by Munch, and will be in honor of the 150th anniversary of Hector Berlioz. Complete versions of the composer's principal works will be performed. Guest conductors in the Shed are: Pierre Monteux; Jean Morel; and Richard Burgin, concertmaster of the BSO. (See program page).

September 12 in Venice a violin concerto by Leonard Bernstein will be introduced by Isaac Stern at the Biennale International Festival of Contemporary Music. Mr. Bernstein will conduct a complete program that will include the concerto. His JEREMIAH was played there 8 years ago.

Orchids to the new traveling opera Co., the Lyric Theatre of Pittsburg which is located on the campus of Pennsylvania College for Women. Dr. Richard Karp, its director, says the Theatre grew from a demand in the area for the opportunity to hear opera performed in English . . .

Cristine Cardillo of North Adams, who won one of the top four awards in the Metropolitan Opera auditions of the air in April is singing 2 roles in 12 performances at the Central City (Col.) Festival this July and August. She has role of Nyade in Strauss' "Aridane Auf Naxos" and Marguerite in Gounod's "Faust".

An exciting masterpiece the past season: Kurt Weils' "The Threepenny Opera" with English adaptation and lyrics by Marc Blitzstein.

Ralph Vaughan, England's greatest composer, will be teaching at Cornell University this fall as a visiting prof.

Arturo Toscanini's RCA recording of "Otello" was rated the No. 1 classical recording of 1953 in the Saturday Review's annual national poll . . . 35 of the 66 critics gave it 1st, 7 placed it 2nd.

The Boston Symphony was awarded the annual Grand Prix for vocal ensemble with orchestra for its recording of Berlioz "Romeo and Juliet" by the Academie Charles Cros of France.

MUNCH

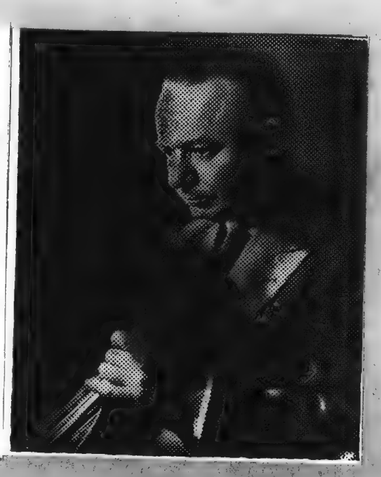
MONTEUX

WILLIAM PRIMROSE

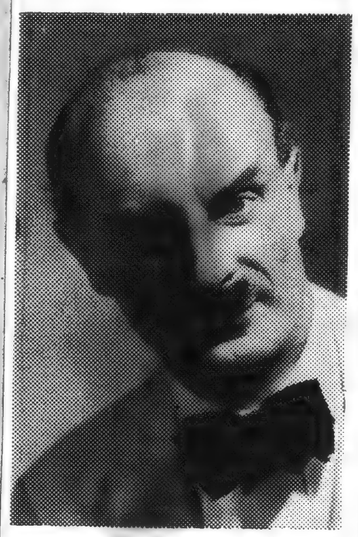
Newsweek Magazine says, "critics, on the subject of violists, are in solid agreement: William Primrose is the world's finest viola player". He is known as the man who popularized the viola as a solo instrument. He was with the London String Quartet from 1930 to 1935, touring Europe, South and North America. After the Quartet disbanded he returned to London for his debut as a soloist under Sir Thomas Beecham. From 1937 to 1942 he played with the NBC Symphony under the baton of Toscanini. He left the orchestra to devote full time to solo performances.

ZINO FRANCESCATTI

Francescatti called worthy of the mantle of Paganini is the violin soloist at Tanglewood, Aug .8 and 11. He has toured the world in concert. As a child in France he played for the soldiers. His technique is overwhelming: In the Paganini "Perpetuum Mobile," for example, he plays 2800 notes in less than four minutes. He's a great chess player and plays a series of games with William Primrose via correspondence when they are on tour.



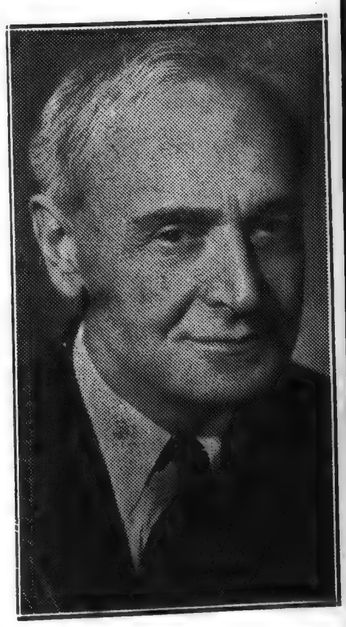
THE TANGLEWOOD TIMES



Hugh Ross, Choral director of Berkshire Music Center. See program page.

MOREL

Picture of Munch by WHITESTONE PHOTO, 124 West 72nd St., New York, and Main St., Lenox, Mass. Dates these three conductors will perform on next page.



Koussevitzky Memorial
August 15th

[113]

THE TANGLEWOOD PROGRAM - 1954

THEATRE-CONCERT HALL
6 Wednesday Evenings at 8:30
Chamber Music

Wednesday Evening, July 7
CLAUDIO ARRAU, Piano
The BEL ARTE TRIO
Beethoven: String Trio in G, Op. 9 No. 1 — Piano Sonatas, Op. 79, 110, 57

Wednesday Evening, July 14
The ALBENERI TRIO
Brahms: Trio in B, Op. 8
Martinu: Trio in D minor
Beethoven: Trio in B flat, Op. 97

Wednesday Evening, July 21
The ZIMBLER SINFONIETTA
Vivaldi: "The Four Seasons" (String Orchestra)
Stravinsky: "Apollon Musagete" (String Orchestra)
Rossini: "Baroque Concerto"

Wednesday Evening, July 28
The GRILLER STRING QUARTET
Mozart: Quartet in E flat, K. 428
Bloch: Quartet No. 4 (First performance)
Beethoven: Quartet in G major, Op. 18, No. 2

Wednesday Evening, August 4
The KROLL STRING QUARTET
Haydn: Quartet in D, Op. 64, No. 5
Hindemith: Quartet No. 3, Op. 22
Ravel: Quartet in F

Wednesday Evening, August 11
ZINO FRANCESCATTI, Violin
Artur Balsam, Piano
Brahms: Violin Sonata in A major
Bach: Suite in C (Violin unaccompanied)
Brahms: Violin Sonata in D minor

THEATRE-CONCERT HALL
Friday Evenings at 8:30
Chamber Orchestra
("Bach-Mozart" Concerts)

Friday Evening, July 9
Bach: Brandenburg Concertos, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 5, 6
Piano Solo: LUKAS FOSS
Conductor: CHARLES MUNCH

Friday Evening, July 16
Bach: Cantata No. 93 "Wer nur den lieben Gott"
(HUGH ROSS Conducting
Suites Nos. 1 and 4
Conductor: CHARLES MUNCH

Friday Evening, July 23
Handel: Concerto Grosso for Strings, Op. 6, No. 4
Haydn: Symphony No. 100, "Military"
Haydn: "Nelson" Mass
(HUGH ROSS Conducting)
Conductor: CHARLES MUNCH

Friday Evening, July 30
Roussel: "The Spider's Feast"
Ibert: Flute Concerto
Soloist: DORIOT ANTHONY
Mozart: Serenade for Eight Winds K. 388
Mozart: "Paris" Symphony K. 297
Conductor: CHARLES MUNCH

Friday Evening, August 6
Stravinsky: "Pulcinella" (Complete)
Mozart: Piano Concerto in B flat, K. 450
Soloist: SEYMOUR LIPKIN
Mozart: "Idomeneo" (Excerpts with Chorus and Soloists
Conductor: LUKAS FOSS

Thursday Evening, August 12
Rossini: Overture to "Scala di Seta"
Mozart: Symphony in B flat K. 319
Ravel: "Mother Goose" Suite
Strauss: "Der Burger als Edelmann"
Conductor: JEAN MOREL

MUSIC SHED
6 Saturday Evenings at 8:30
Boston Symphony Orchestra
Saturday Evening, July 10
Berlioz: "THE DAMNATION OF FAUST" with Harvard Glee Club, Radcliffe Choral Society
Conductor: CHARLES MUNCH and Soloists

Saturday Evening, July 17
Debussy: Excerpts, "St. Sebastian"
Debussy: "La Mer"
Franck: "Les Djinns," for Piano and Orchestra
Soloist: VERA FRANCESCHI
Franck: Symphony in D Minor
Conductor: PIERRE MONTEUX

Saturday Evening, July 24
Weber: Overture to "Der Freischutz"
Prokofieff: Symphony No. 6
Strauss: "Don Juan"
Elgar: "Enigma" Variations
Conductor: JEAN MOREL

Saturday Evening, July 31
Berlioz: "ROMEO and JULIET" Dramatic Symphony with Festival Chorus and Soloists
Conductor: CHARLES MUNCH

Saturday Evening, August 7
Berlioz: Overture to "Benvenuto Cellini," Royal Hunt and Storm" from "The Trojans," "Summer Nights," for Soprano and Orchestra
Soloist: ELEANOR STEBER
"Te Deum" with Festival Chorus and Soloist
Conductor: CHARLES MUNCH

Saturday Evening, August 14
Brahms: "Tragic Overture"
Piston: Symphony No. 4
Ravel: Piano Concerto
Soloist: NICOLE HENRIOT
Saint-Saens: Symphony No. 3, (With Organ)
Conductor: CHARLES MUNCH

MUSIC SHED
6 Sunday Afternoons at 2:30
Boston Symphony Orchestra

Sunday Afternoon, July 11
Beethoven: Overture to "Lenore," No. 3 — Piano Concerto No. 5 ("Emperor")
Soloist: CLAUDIO ARRAU
Symphony No. 5
Conductor: PIERRE MONTEUX

Sunday Afternoon, July 18
Debussy: "Iberia"
Copland: Piano Concerto
Soloist: LEO SMIT
Berlioz: "Fantastic Symphony"
Conductor: CHARLES MUNCH

Sunday Afternoon, July 25
Berlioz: Overture to "Beatrice and Benedick," "Harold in Italy," Symphony (with Viola Solo)
Soloist: WILLIAM PRIMROSE
Toch: Symphony No. 2
Conductor: CHARLES MUNCH

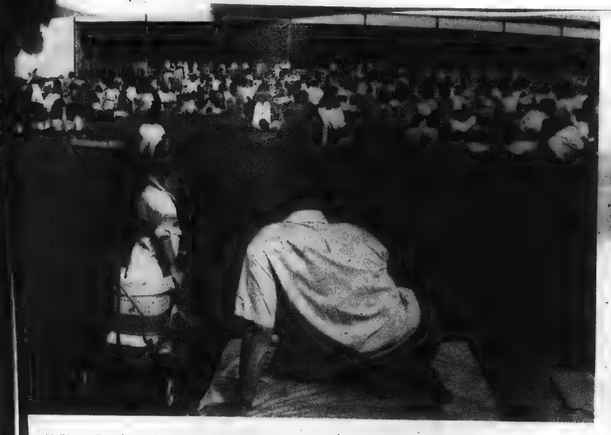
Sunday Afternoon, August 1
Prokofieff: "Chout," Ballet Suite
Dvorak: Violin Concerto
Soloist: RUTH POSSELT
Sibelius: Symphony No. 2
Conductor: RICHARD BURGIN

Sunday Afternoon, August 8
Gluck: Overture to "Alceste"
Beethoven: Violin Concerto
Soloist: ZINO FRANCESCATTI
Brahms: Symphony No. 2
Conductor: CHARLES MUNCH

Sunday Afternoon, August 15
Berlioz: "REQUIEM" with Festival Chorus and Soloist
In Memory of Serge Koussevitzky
Conductor: CHARLES MUNCH

...glewood

...ept. while Boris Goldovsky ...ave of absence, says "The ...Land" will be a different ...on than the New York ...ter premiere of April 1st. ... one-act opera "The Prin... the Pea" will be presented ... and on the same date the ...emiere of Orazio Vecchi's ...ntury madrigal, "L'Amfi... will be presented.



SHED at Tanglewood seats 6,000 music lovers, but another 3,000 sit on the beautiful hill-top lawn and listen to the Boston Symphony orchestra in outdoor comfort

CULTURE is dispensed in informal manner at festival. 'Cellist Piatogorsky (left) shows an inquiring visitor some pointers

'CUE' July 3, 1954

Mountains of Music

THE BERKSHIRES ARE MECCA FOR MUSIC LOVERS, OFFERING EVERYTHING FROM BACH TO BECHET

by Emory Lewis

ONCE upon a time, cultivated Americans regularly journeyed abroad to attend the summer music festivals. Now the process is being reversed. A large quota of Europeans each summer make a pilgrimage to Massachusetts' Berkshire mountains to attend the Tanglewood Music Festival. Today, the Tanglewood festival is... to the pioneering efforts of the late ... Koussevitsky, one of the most ...sive assemblies of musical talent ...here in the world.

For music in the moun... ...e New Yorker need only turn ... ...obile radiator northward and ... four hours—to the gently ro... Berkshires. Here the traffic-bewilder... ...-bothered city dweller will disco... ...et, tree-shaded villages like ... ...ington, Lenox and Stockbridg... ... in an earlier age vacationist ... Melville wrote "Moby Dick" and ... ...ead Nathaniel Hawthorne co... ... "The House of Seven Gab...s."

The concerts at Tangle... a lovely old New England estate ... hill and overlooking a lake, begin July 7th, end August 15th. Accent this season will be on the works of 19th-century French composer Hector Berlioz. This is fitting, for within the past decade, Berlioz has come in for a sweeping reappraisal. An earlier judgment that his works were merely the empty rhetoric of a 19th-century romantic has been discarded, and he now looms as one of the authentic music masters of the past century.

Highlight of the Tanglewood season will be the presentation July 10th of Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust," never before attempted at the festival. Baritone Martial Singher, tenor David Poleri, bass-baritone Donald Gramm and soprano Eleanor Steber will be the soloists. This enormous master-work, which calls for a large chorus, will have Charles Munch conducting the full, 104-piece Boston Symphony, assisted by the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society, recently returned from their first transcontinental tour. Other Berlioz events include the "Romeo and Juliet" July 31st; the Overture to "Benevenuto Cellini," "Royal Hunt and Storm" from "The Trojans," "Summer Nights" for Soprano (Eleanor Steber) and the "Te Deum"—all on August 7th. The above are all part of the Saturday night series in the Shed.

On the Sunday afternoon series at 2:30, the festival has scheduled Berlioz' "Fantastic Symphony" July 18th; the Overture to "Beatrice and Benedick" and the "Harold in Italy Symphony" July 25th. "Harold in Italy," one of Berlioz' masterpieces, will employ William Primrose in the viola solo. Once you have heard Mr. Primrose perform this moving work, it is difficult to imagine any other interpretation. August 15th, conductor Munch and the Boston Symphony will present Berlioz' "Requiem."

This year, Tanglewood has added another innovation to its crowded music schedule. A series of Wednesday chamber music concerts will be open to the public, along with the usual Friday evening chamber orchestra sessions in the Theatre-Concert Hall. The distinguished programs include pianist Claudio Arrau and violinist Zino Francescatti, as well as the Griller and the Kroll String Quartets. The opera department will include a presentation of Aaron Copland's "The Tender Land" (which had its premiere at the City Center during the past season) and "L'Amfiparnaso," a madrigal opera composed in the 16th-century by Orazio Veechi. The opera will be given its first staged performance in America.

Tanglewood is, of course, also a summer school, with some 400 students, selected from 2,000 applicants from all over the world. The graduates, who include Leonard Bernstein and Lukas Foss, hold down jobs with every major orchestra in the nation. Numerous instrumental, choral and operatic performances of the school are open by invitation to members of the Society of Friends of the Center. A contribution to the support of the Center constitutes membership, and by such a contribution, the Tanglewood visitor can attend concerts daily. Another little-known fact: you can attend rehearsals of the Boston Symphony for $1.

You may take a picnic lunch onto the grounds. Many people picnic on the lawns surrounding the Shed. You can either bring or buy your lunch there.

Not all the music in the Berkshires is at Tanglewood. The mountains reverber-

(Continued on page 34)

MOUNTAINS OF MUSIC

(Continued from page 13)

ate with other diverse music. At the close of the Tanglewood season, the New York Pro Musica Antiqua, from August 18th to August 29th, will present a six-concert festival of Renaissance music at the Town Hall in Lenox.

Just 30 miles from Tanglewood, near Falls Village, Connecticut, is Music Mountain. The chamber music concerts here, on a grassy hilltop surrounded by 115 acres of forest, have retained some of the intimate character reminiscent of the early days of Tanglewood. Season after season, in a long clapboard shed whose soft wood panelling has the resonance of a fine stringed instrument, the Berkshire String Quartet plays Mozart, Shubert and Brahms, as well as a spate of contemporary composers. Tab for the Sunday afternoon concerts is $2 per person. If you wish, you can listen on the lawn in the Tanglewood manner.

A half-hour's walk from Tanglewood is Music Inn, where from August 15th through September 7th the tone poems and concerti get blue and gutty. A Round-table of Jazz is conducted by Professor Marshall Stearns, includes such teachers as composer Henry Cowell (who employs the jazz idiom in his longhair music) and blues singer "Ma" Yancey. Aaron Copland, who conducts the Tanglewood Music School, is a frequent student here.

For those who want to make their own music, there's the Folk Music Workshop at the Birchwood Barn in Lenox. Sponsored by the New York Folk-Guitar Club, this group teaches the folk guitar, the classic guitar and the recorder in one-week sessions beginning July 5th. And they hold concerts by students at Sedgwick Hall in Lenox.

How to get to the Berkshires? Follow the American Automobile Association recommendations: take the Taconic State Parkway to the Millbrook turnoff, then follow Route 44 to Canaan. Route 7 in Canaan will take you to Lenox or wherever your particular inn may be.

There's a hotel around every bend, so we can only mention a few here. Call CUE's Information Department for further details. Elm Court, a luxurious former estate, is a monument of what happened when a Vanderbilt (Emily) married a Sloane (W. & J.). It's elegant and somewhat expensive. For the young and frenetic, Eastover in Lenox is more appropriate. Once a banker's estate, it is now an athletic factory equipped with swimming pool, golf range, tennis court, archery range, ball diamond. The Berkshire Inn in Great Barrington and the Red Lion Inn are a bit more staid, and they offer excellent accommodations.

For good old mountain music—whether it be do-si-do or Bessie Smith or Berlioz—the Berkshires are the place to go.

[114]

Opera At Tanglewood

Aaron Copland, head of the opera dept. while Boris Goldovsky Composition Dept. at Tanglewood's is on leave of absence, says "The Berkshire Music Center, will be assisted this season by Ernest Toch, Austrian composer.

Copland's opera "The Tender Land," with libretto by the young California painter and poet Horace Everett, will have 2 performances, Aug. 2 and 3.

Frederic Cohen, who heads the Tender Land" will be a different production than the New York City Center premiere of April 1st.

Toch's one-act opera "The Princess and the Pea" will be presented July 27, and on the same date the U. S. premiere of Orazio Vecchi's 16th century madrigal, "L'Amfiparnaso" will be presented.

SHED at Tanglewood seats 6,000 music lovers, but another 3,000 sit on the beautiful hill-top lawn and listen to the Boston Symphony orchestra in outdoor comfort

CULTURE is dispensed in informal manner at festival. 'Cellist Piatogorsky (left) shows an inquiring visitor some pointers

"CUE" July 3, 1954

Mountains of Music

THE BERKSHIRES ARE MECCA FOR MUSIC LOVERS, OFFERING EVERYTHING FROM BACH TO BECHET

by Emory Lewis

ONCE upon a time, cultivated Americans regularly journeyed abroad to attend the summer music festivals. Now the process is being reversed. A large quota of Europeans each summer make a pilgrimage to Massachusetts' Berkshire mountains to attend the Tanglewood Music Festival. Today, the Tanglewood festival is, the pioneering efforts of the late Serge Koussevitsky, one of the most important assemblies of musical talent anywhere in the world.

For music in the mountains, New Yorker need only turn his automobile radiator northward and drive for hours—to the gently rolling Berkshires. Here the traffic-bewildered, hearing-deafened city dweller will discover tree-shaded villages like Great Barrington, Lenox and Stockbridge, where an earlier age vacationist Herman Melville wrote "Moby Dick" and his friend Nathaniel Hawthorne completed "The House of Seven Gables."

The concerts at Tanglewood, on a lovely old New England estate atop a hill and overlooking a lake, begin July 7th, end August 15th. Accent this season will be on the works of 19th-century French composer Hector Berlioz. This is fitting, for within the past decade, Berlioz has come in for a sweeping reappraisal. An earlier judgment that his works were merely the empty rhetoric of a 19th-century romantic has been discarded, and he now looms as one of the authentic music masters of the past century.

Highlight of the Tanglewood season will be the presentation July 10th of Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust," never before attempted at the festival. Baritone Martial Singher, tenor David Poleri, bass-baritone Donald Gramm and soprano Eleanor Steber will be the soloists. This enormous master-work, which calls for a large chorus, will have Charles Munch conducting the full, 104-piece Boston Symphony, assisted by the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society, recently returned from their first transcontinental tour. Other Berlioz events include the "Romeo and Juliet" July 31st; the Overture to "Benevenuto Cellini," "Royal Hunt and Storm" from "The Trojans," "Summer Nights" for Soprano (Eleanor Steber) and the "Te Deum"—all on August 7th. The above are all part of the Saturday night series in the Shed.

On the Sunday afternoon series at 2:30, the festival has scheduled Berlioz' "Fantastic Symphony" July 18th; the Overture to "Beatrice and Benedick" and "Harold in Italy Symphony" July 25th. "Harold in Italy," one of Berlioz' masterpieces, will employ William Primrose in the viola solo. Once you have heard Mr. Primrose perform this moving work, it is difficult to imagine any other interpretation. August 15th, conductor Munch and the Boston Symphony will present Berlioz' "Requiem."

This year, Tanglewood has added another innovation to its crowded music schedule. A series of Wednesday chamber music concerts will be open to the public, along with the usual Friday evening chamber orchestra sessions in the Theatre-Concert Hall. The distinguished programs include pianist Claudio Arrau and violinist Zino Francescatti, as well as the Griller and the Kroll String Quartets. The opera department will include a presentation of Aaron Copland's "The Tender Land" (which had its premiere at the City Center during the past season) and "L'Amfiparnaso," a madrigal opera composed in the 16th-century by Orazio Veechi. The opera will be given its first staged performance in America.

Tanglewood is, of course, also a summer school, with some 400 students, selected from 2,000 applicants from all over the world. The graduates, who include Leonard Bernstein and Lukas Foss, hold down jobs with every major orchestra in the nation. Numerous instrumental, choral and operatic performances of the school are open by invitation to members of the Society of Friends of the Center. A contribution to the support of the Center constitutes membership, and by such a contribution, the Tanglewood visitor can attend concerts daily. Another little-known fact: you can attend rehearsals of the Boston Symphony for $1.

You may take a picnic lunch onto the grounds. Many people picnic on the lawns surrounding the Shed. You can either bring or buy your lunch there.

Not all the music in the Berkshires is at Tanglewood. The mountains reverber-

(Continued on page 34)

MOUNTAINS OF MUSIC

(Continued from page 13)

ate with other diverse music. At the close of the Tanglewood season, the New York Pro Musica Antiqua, from August 18th to August 29th, will present a six-concert festival of Renaissance music at the Town Hall in Lenox.

Just 30 miles from Tanglewood, near Falls Village, Connecticut, is Music Mountain. The chamber music concerts here, on a grassy hilltop surrounded by 115 acres of forest, have retained some of the intimate character reminiscent of the early days of Tanglewood. Season after season, in a long clapboard shed whose soft wood panelling has the resonance of a fine stringed instrument, the Berkshire String Quartet plays Mozart, Shubert and Brahms, as well as a spate of contemporary composers. Tab for the Sunday afternoon concerts is $2 per person. If you wish, you can listen on the lawn in the Tanglewood manner.

A half-hour's walk from Tanglewood is Music Inn, where from August 15th through September 7th the tone poems and concerti get blue and gutty. A Round-table of Jazz is conducted by Professor Marshall Stearns, includes such teachers as composer Henry Cowell (who employs the jazz idiom in his longhair music) and blues singer "Ma" Yancey. Aaron Copland, who conducts the Tanglewood Music School, is a frequent student here.

For those who want to make their own music, there's the Folk Music Workshop at the Birchwood Barn in Lenox. Sponsored by the New York Folk-Guitar Club, this group teaches the folk guitar, the classic guitar and the recorder in one-week sessions beginning July 5th. And they hold concerts by students at Sedgwick Hall in Lenox.

How to get to the Berkshires? Follow the American Automobile Association recommendations: take the Taconic State Parkway to the Millbrook turnoff, then follow Route 44 to Canaan. Route 7 in Canaan will take you to Lenox or wherever your particular inn may be.

There's a hotel around every bend, so we can only mention a few here. Call CUE's Information Department for further details. Elm Court, a luxurious former estate, is a monument of what happened when a Vanderbilt (Emily) married a Sloane (W. & J.). It's elegant and somewhat expensive. For the young and frenetic, Eastover in Lenox is more appropriate. Once a banker's estate, it is now an athletic factory equipped with swimming pool, golf range, tennis court, archery range, ball diamond. The Berkshire Inn in Great Barrington and the Red Lion Inn are a bit more staid, and they offer excellent accommodations.

For good old mountain music—whether it be do-si-do or Bessie Smith or Berlioz—the Berkshires are the place to go.

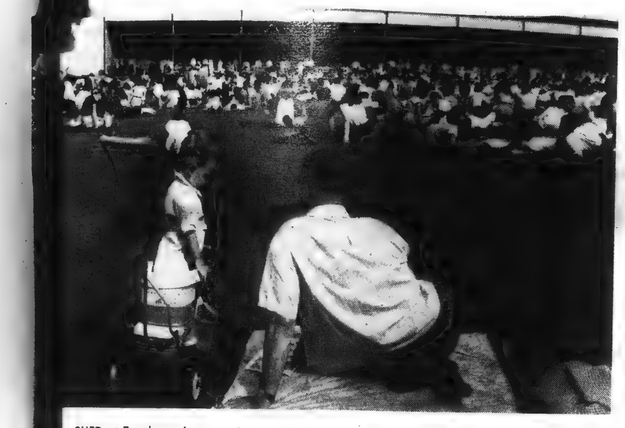
Opera At Tanglewood

Aaron Copland, head of the Composition Dept. at Tanglewood's Berkshire Music Center, will be assisted this season by Ernest Toch, Austrian composer.

Copland's opera "The Tender Land," with libretto by the young California painter and poet Horace Everett, will have 2 performances, Aug. 2 and 3.

Frederic Cohen, who heads the opera dept. while Boris Goldovsky is on leave of absence, says "The Tender Land" will be a different production than the New York City Center premiere of April 1st.

Toch's one-act opera "The Princess and the Pea" will be presented July 27, and on the same date the U. S. premiere of Orazio Vecchi's 16th century madrigal, "L'Amfiparnaso" will be presented.



SHED at Tanglewood seats 6,000 music lovers, but another 3,000 sit on the beautiful hill-top lawn and listen to the Boston Symphony orchestra in outdoor comfort

CULTURE is dispensed in informal manner at festival. 'Cellist Piatogorsky (left) shows an inquiring visitor some pointers

"CUE" July 3, 1954

Mountains of Music

THE BERKSHIRES ARE MECCA FOR MUSIC LOVERS, OFFERING EVERYTHING FROM BACH TO BECHET

by Emory Lewis

ONCE upon a time, cultivated Americans regularly journeyed abroad to attend the summer music festivals. Now the process is reversed. A large quota of Europeans each summer make a pilgrimage to Massachusetts' Berkshire mountains and the Tanglewood Music Festival. Tanglewood festival is, the pioneering efforts of the late Serge Koussevitsky, one of the most distinguished assemblies of musical talent in the world.

For music in the mountains New Yorker need only turn his radiator northward and, in hours—to the gently rolling hills. Here the traffic-bewildered city dweller will discover red-shaded villages like Great Barrington, Lenox and Stockbridge. An earlier age vacationist Herman Melville wrote "Moby Dick" and Nathaniel Hawthorne completed the House of Seven Gables."

The concerts at Tanglewood, at the old New England estate atop Lenox Mountain overlooking a lake, begin July 9th and end August 15th. Accent this season will be on the works of 19th-century French composer Hector Berlioz. This is fitting, for within the past decade, Berlioz has come in for a sweeping reappraisal. An earlier judgment that his works were merely the empty rhetoric of a 19th-century romantic has been discarded, and he now looms as one of the authentic music masters of the past century.

Highlight of the Tanglewood season will be the presentation July 10th of Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust," never before attempted at the festival. Baritone Martial Singher, tenor David Poleri, bass-baritone Donald Gramm and soprano Eleanor Steber will be the soloists. This enormous master-work, which calls for a large chorus, will have Charles Munch conducting the full, 104-piece Boston Symphony, assisted by the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society, recently returned from their first transcontinental tour. Other Berlioz events include the "Romeo and Juliet" July 31st; the Overture to "Benevenuto Cellini," "Royal Hunt and Storm" from "The Trojans," "Summer Nights" for Soprano (Eleanor Steber) and the "Te Deum"—all on August 7th. The above are all part of the Saturday night series in the Shed.

On the Sunday afternoon series at 2:30, the festival has scheduled Berlioz' "Fantastic Symphony" July 18th; the Overture to "Beatrice and Benedick" and the "Harold in Italy Symphony" July 25th. "Harold in Italy," one of Berlioz' masterpieces, will employ William Primrose in the viola solo. Once you have heard Mr. Primrose perform this moving work, it is difficult to imagine any other interpretation. August 15th, conductor Munch and the Boston Symphony will present Berlioz' "Requiem."

This year, Tanglewood has added another innovation to its crowded music schedule. A series of Wednesday chamber music concerts will be open to the public, along with the usual Friday evening chamber orchestra sessions in the Theatre-Concert Hall. The distinguished programs include pianist Claudio Arrau and violinist Zino Francescatti, as well as the Griller and the Kroll String Quartets. The opera department will include a presentation of Aaron Copland's "The Tender Land" (which had its premiere at the City Center during the past season) and "L'Amfiparnaso," a madrigal opera composed in the 16th-century by Orazio Veechi. The opera will be given its first staged performance in America.

Tanglewood is, of course, also a summer school, with some 400 students, selected from 2,000 applicants from all over the world. The graduates, who include Leonard Bernstein and Lukas Foss, hold down jobs with every major orchestra in the nation. Numerous instrumental, choral and operatic performances of the school are open by invitation to members of the Society of Friends of the Center. A contribution to the support of the Center constitutes membership, and by such a contribution, the Tanglewood visitor can attend concerts daily. Another little-known fact: you can attend rehearsals of the Boston Symphony for $1.

You may take a picnic lunch onto the grounds. Many people picnic on the lawns surrounding the Shed. You can either bring or buy your lunch there.

Not all the music in the Berkshires is at Tanglewood. The mountains reverberate with other diverse music. At the close of the Tanglewood season, the New York Pro Musica Antiqua, from August 18th to August 29th, will present a six-concert festival of Renaissance music at the Town Hall in Lenox.

(Continued on page 34)

MOUNTAINS OF MUSIC

(Continued from page 13)

Just 30 miles from Tanglewood, near Falls Village, Connecticut, is Music Mountain. The chamber music concerts here, on a grassy hilltop surrounded by 115 acres of forest, have retained some of the intimate character reminiscent of the early days of Tanglewood. Season after season, in a long clapboard shed whose soft wood panelling has the resonance of a fine stringed instrument, the Berkshire String Quartet plays Mozart, Shubert and Brahms, as well as a spate of contemporary composers. Tab for the Sunday afternoon concerts is $2 per person. If you wish, you can listen on the lawn in the Tanglewood manner.

A half-hour's walk from Tanglewood is Music Inn, where from August 15th through September 7th the tone poems and concerti get blue and gutty. A Round-table of Jazz is conducted by Professor Marshall Stearns, includes such teachers as composer Henry Cowell (who employs the jazz idiom in his longhair music) and blues singer "Ma" Yancey. Aaron Copland, who conducts the Tanglewood Music School, is a frequent student here.

For those who want to make their own music, there's the Folk Music Workshop at the Birchwood Barn in Lenox. Sponsored by the New York Folk-Guitar Club, this group teaches the folk guitar, the classic guitar and the recorder in one-week sessions beginning July 5th. And they hold concerts by students at Sedgwick Hall in Lenox.

How to get to the Berkshires? Follow the American Automobile Association recommendations: take the Taconic State Parkway to the Millbrook turnoff, then follow Route 44 to Canaan. Route 7 in Canaan will take you to Lenox or wherever your particular inn may be.

There's a hotel around every bend, so we can only mention a few here. Call CUE's Information Department for further details. Elm Court, a luxurious former estate, is a monument of what happened when a Vanderbilt (Emily) married a Sloane (W. & J.). It's elegant and somewhat expensive. For the young and frenetic, Eastover in Lenox is more appropriate. Once a banker's estate, it is now an athletic factory equipped with swimming pool, golf range, tennis court, archery range, ball diamond. The Berkshire Inn in Great Barrington and the Red Lion Inn are a bit more staid, and they offer excellent accommodations.

For good old mountain music—whether it be do-si-do or Bessie Smith or Berlioz—the Berkshires are the place to go.

THE ORIGINAL
ROMEIKE
PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D 38,155)
This Clipping From
PAWTUCKET, R. I.
TIMES
MAY 7 - 1954

THE ORIGINAL
ROMEIKE
PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D 10,283)
This Clipping From
FRAMINGHAM, MASS.
NEWS
MAY 21 1954

THE ORIGINAL
ROMEIKE
PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D 26,991)
This Clipping From
PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE
MAY

Berkshire Music Center Plans Opera Auditions

Auditions for admission to the opera department of the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, will be held at Symphony Hall, Boston, May 13, from 2:30 to 4:30. An accompanist will be present.

The Berkshire Music Center is the summer school maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in connection with the Berkshire Festival and will have its twelfth session from July 5 to Aug. 15.

Applicants should notify the school office of their intention to attend these auditions. Address —The Registrar, Berkshire Music Center, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Massachusetts. Catalogue and application forms may be obtained at the time of audition or by writing to the above address.

THE ORIGINAL
ROMEIKE
PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D 20,402) (S 41,868)
This Clipping From
WATERBURY, CONN.
REPUBLICAN
MAY 16 19

Berkshire Festival July 7 - Aug. 15

This is the final week for patrons of the Berkshire Music Festival, the 17th to be held in the hills of Western Massachusetts and the 15th in which the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, music director, has participated, to effect a savings and secure preferential locations by obtaining series subscriptions.

In the enlarged Berkshire festival, which attracted a record-breaking total attendance of 117,950 music lovers to Tanglewood last summer, an average of 4,360 in its chamber concerts in the Theatre-Concert hall and an average of 10,200 in each of its huge Music Shed concerts, twenty-four concerts will be held in 1954, during the six weeks, July 7-Aug. 15.

The Berkshire Festival—1954

Tanglewood Ready For Another Banner Season; Director Munch Returning

The Boston Symphony Orchestra is preparing these days for its huge annual Operation Tanglewood. For the 15th summer in which the Boston Symphony has participated, music will be given under the elm and tall pines in the hills of Western Massachusetts where Nathaniel Hawthorne walked a century ago, on the plateau-like estate where the American author was a guest and to which he gave its name with his "Tanglewood Tales."

Since 1938 when the huge pie-shaped Music Shed was erected on the lawns of the Tanglewood grounds, open on three sides so the music might spill out to the thousands who listen to it on the grass under the stars or over their Sunday picnic lunches, the Berkshire Festival has attracted crowds from all over eastern United States and Canada.

Last year — Music Director Charles Munch's fourth summer with the 104-man Boston Symphony at Tanglewood — all attendance records were broken. In the six weeks from early July to mid-August the Festival concert attendance totaled 117,950, total paid admissions were $311,600. Average attendance at three preliminary week ends of intimate music by the chamber section of the Symphony in the 1,152-seat capacity theater-concert hall was 4,360. Average attendance for the nine Shed concerts by the full orchestra—the Shed seats 6,000—was 10,200.

Opens July 7

The Berkshire Festival 1954 has been enlarged in scope, within its six-week period, to commence Wednesday evening, July 7, with a chamber music program in the Theater-Concert Hall when Claudio Arrau, who will mark the occasion as a 30th anniversary of his first engagement with the orchestra as a piano soloist, and the Bel Arte Trio (Ruth Posselt, Joseph de Pasquale, Martin Hoherman) will give an all-Beethoven recital. It will wind up on Sunday afternoon, Aug. 15, when Charles Munch will conduct Berlioz' massive "Requiem" with David Poleri, tenor, and other soloists and chorus from the choral and opera departments of the Music Center.

In 1954 the Festival will comprise six Wednesday evening concerts of chamber music, by The Albeneri Trio, the Zimbler Sinfonietta, the Griller String Quartet, the Kroll String Quartet and Zino Francescatti donating their services, these concerts benefiting the Music Center. The six concerts by the chamber section of the Boston Symphony known popularly as "the Bach-Mozart series," formerly given during the first three week ends of the Festival, this season will be strung over each Friday night (except Aug. 13, the day of the gala "Tanglewood on Parade"), when the concert will be given Thursday, Aug. 12. Mr. Munch, with the assistance of Lukas Foss, Jean Morel and Hugh Ross conducts these concerts, and soloists include Lukas Foss, Seymour Lipkin, pianists; Doriot Anthony, flute.

The Shed concerts this year total 12, as against last year's nine, six on Saturday evenings, six on Sunday afternoons. Charles Munch will conduct, with two concerts led by Pierre Monteux, one by Jean Morel (who heads the orchestra department of the Berkshire Music Center), one by Richard Burgin (concertmaster of the Boston Symphony). The Shed concerts will honor the 150th anniversary season of the birth of Hector Berlioz by performing complete versions of this composer's principal works. These include "The Damnation of Faust" which Mr. Munch conducts Saturday evening, July 10, with Eleanor Steber, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, David Poleri, tenor; Martial Singher, baritone; Donald Gramm, bass-baritone, and the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, trained by G. Wallace Woodward; the "Fantastic Symphony," which Mr. Munch conducts Sunday afternoon, July 18; the Overture to "Beatrice and Benedick" and the Symphony, "Harold in Italy" which Mr. Munch conducts Sunday afternoon, July 25, with William Primrose as viola soloist; a repeat of last summer's Dramatic Symphony, "Romeo and Juliet," which Charles Munch performs Saturday evening, July 31, with John McCollum, tenor; Nicola Moscona, bass, of the Metropolitan Opera, and an alto soloist to be chosen from the Berkshire Music Center's pupils, and the Festival chorus; the Saturday evening, Aug. 7, performance of Mr. Munch including Berlioz' Overture to "Benvenuto Cellini," the "Royal Hunt and Storm" from "The Trojans," "Summer Nights," with Eleanor Steber, and the "Te Deum" with David Poleri and other soloists and Festival and Chorus; and the Festival's concluding "Requiem," Aug. 15 afternoon. Other noted soloists on the Festival's Shed programs are Claudio Arrau, Vera Franceschi, Nicole Henriot and Leo Smit, pianists; Zino Francescatti and Ruth Posselt, violinists.

Dividends for Festival patrons are two Saturday afternoon organ recitals by E. Power Biggs in August; and six Saturday morning rehearsals by the full Symphony Orchestra.

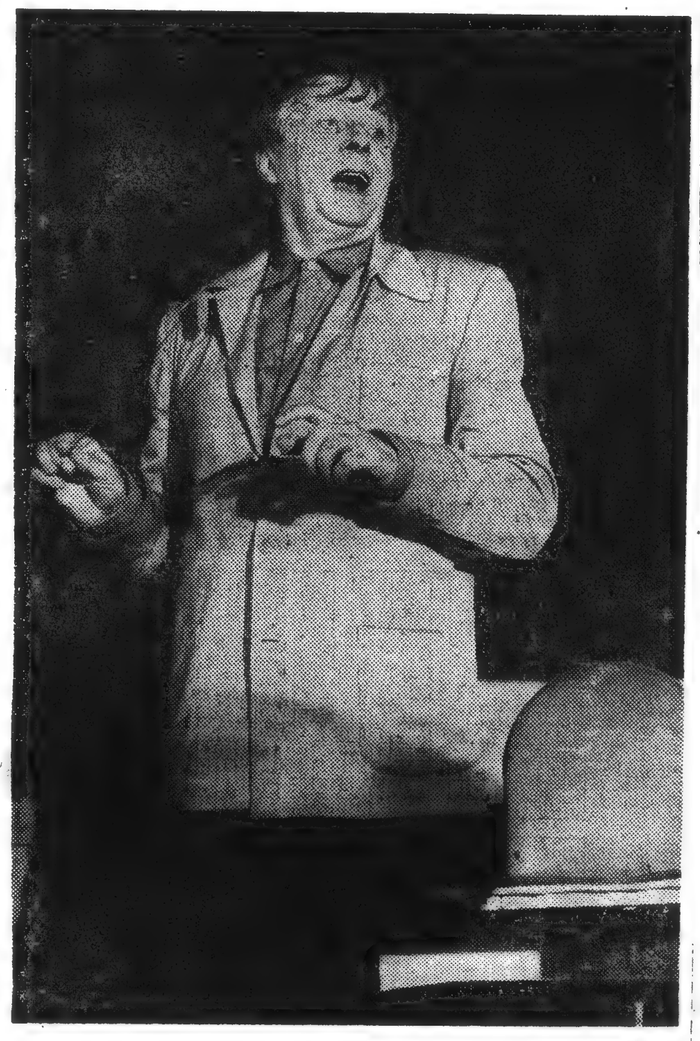
Twelfth Season

The Berkshire Music Center, established by the late Serge Koussevitzky in 1940 is in its 12th season. Annually a student body of 400 is chosen from some 1,500 applicants. Last year the student enrollment was composed of 292 full-time students from 41 states and seven foreign countries, 86 of whom were former students returning. The Tanglewood Study Group (Department V), which permits those who are not professionals of music but who wish to spend their vacations in an atmosphere of music, enrolled 105 students last year, including housewives, social workers, foremen, clerks, teachers of kindergarten, attorneys, architects, bookkeepers, chemists, stenographers, and such varied occupations as bookstore manager, organ builder, photo finisher, public health nurse, animated cartoon artist, research engineer.

Edmund Wilson described the workings of the Berkshire Music Center in The New Yorker magazine (Sept. 4, 1948): "No student of evident ability is refused because he cannot pay; if necessary, lodging and food are provided free of charge. The music that is played and sung is derived from a great variety of nationalities and schools and periods: European and North and South American. The teaching of composition is conducted by the American Aaron Copland, with whom is associated every year some other distinguished composer. The visiting instructors have included Hindemith, Samuel Barber, Honegger, Milhaud, Dallpiccola, Carlos Chavez (this year noted Austro - American composer Ernst Toch will be present) . . . . Here is an American musical center of national and international importance. It is not merely that the various departments of the student activity at Tanglewood have been kept up, like the Boston Symphony, to a high standard of discipline and quality, that conducting is taught (this year by Jean Morel, of the Juilliard School of Music) and the instruments by men of the orchestra (with Gregor Piatigorsky giving instruction in chamber music), that composing is taught by Copland, that the choruses are trained by Hugh Ross, and that the opera is directed (this year by Frederic Cohen, of Juilliard). But one feels, on the part of these teachers as well as on that of the students, pervading the whole place, a spirit of excited enthusiasm and a sense of satisfactory accomplishment.

"A contribution of any sum, however little, to the organization known as the Friends of the Berkshire Festival admits you to all the student concerts, which take place almost every day and are hardly inferior in interest to the advertised professional concerts, for the students play their own compositions, which are sometimes quite remarkable, as well as a variety of classics, and the student chamber orchestra affords an opportunity to hear chamber music from Mozart to Schoenberg always competently, often admirably played."

In 1953 at Tanglewood 54 such concerts were provided, with membership in the Friends jumping to 5,472, and attendance at student concerts totaling 43,825, contributions from this source to the Berkshire Music Center totaling $27,637.



MUSIC DIRECTOR CHARLES MUNCH will be back for his fifth summer with the Boston Symphony.

Little Symphony Will Present Pops Concert

Mrs. Koussevitzky Named Chairman of Sponsored Tables

Mrs. Serge Koussevitzky, wife of the late conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and founder and director of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, has accepted the chairmanship of sponsored tables for the pops concert to be presented Friday June 18 by the Pittsfield Little Symphony, it was announced today.

Mahan
Mrs. Serge Koussevitzky

Mrs. Koussevitzky presently is carrying on the work of her late husband in encouraging young music students and composers.

Other chairmen of this committee will be: Mrs. Willem Willeke, Mrs. Paul K. Fodder and Mrs. Frank Williams, all of Pittsfield; and Mrs. Cynthia Woolverton of Richmond.

Headed Publicity

The musical director of South Mountain, and a member of the board of directors of the Pittsfield Community Music School, Mrs. Willeke served as publicity chairman for the 1953 pops concert, and was a judge for the 1954 Musical Talent in Our Schools contest.

Mrs. Fodder was a patron of the 1952 pops concert. Her husband is the treasurer and member of the board of directors of the music school.

Mrs. Williams is active in the Friends of the Pittsfield Community Music School. She was a hostess at the open house last fall, served on the ticket committee for last year's pop concert, and on the ticket committee of the Little Symphony's 1954 midwinter concert.

A member of the board of directors of the Music School, Mrs. Woolverton was a hostess at the fall open house at the school. She is on the board of directors of Pittsfield General Hospital, and chairman of the Richmond-West Stockbridge Community Health Assn.

[115]

TIGHT BINDING

JUDGESHIP
Little Force to Arguments For a Berkshire Appointee (Michelson)—Page 14

The Berkshire Evening Eagle

Volume 63—No. 18 Pittsfield, Massachusetts, Saturday, May 22, 1954.

SOLEMN PONTIFICAL MASS AT TANGLEWOOD, celebrated this morning by Most Rev. Christopher J. Weldon, bishop of Springfield, Mahan highlighted the 19th biennial convention of the Catholic Daughters of America, as 4,000 persons attended the colorful ceremony in the Music Shed, used for the first time for a public event other than the regular concerts of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The procession was cancelled due to inclement weather.

Marian Year Mass Draws 4,000 to Shed

Bishop Weldon Celebrant at Colorful CDA Event

TANGLEWOOD — In a misting rain that fell from low, rolling clouds, over 4,000 of the faithful turned out at the Music Shed here this morning for the Pontifical Solemn High Mass, highlighting the biennial state convention of the Catholic Daughters of America.

Feast of Extra-Solemnity

Celebrated by the Most Rev. Christopher J. Weldon, bishop of Springfield, the Holy Sacrifice was the Solemn Votive Mass of the Immaculate Conception, said in observance of the Marian Year. Instead of the white vestments prescribed for this Mass, however, Bishop Weldon and his assistants wore golden vestments for a feast of extra-solemnity.

Tanglewood personnel estimated a crowd of from 4,000 to 4,500 people. They filled about two-thirds of the Shed.

Due to the rain, the procession planned from the administration building to the Shed was cancelled. The units which would have marched in the procession, entered the Shed individually. Bishop Weldon and his assisting priests entered from the rear.

The purple-clad grand regents of the 62 courts of Catholic Daughters represented were led into the Shed by state Grand Regent Miss Catherine Dwyer of Boston, who wore a gold cape. Junior daughters were dressed in green.

Dressed in black with red capes and swords were the Bishop Conaty Assembly of Berkshire County, fourth degree Knights of Columbus. Two pages from St. Michael's Cathedral, Springfield, were in purple.

Seminarians in Choir

The music of the Ordinary of the Mass, that part which never changes, was sung by the Cathedral High School Choir of Springfield under the direction of the Rev. James P. Sears. Organist was George Hart of St. Michael's Cathedral.

The Gregorian chants of the Proper of the Mass, that part written specifically for a Mass of the Immaculate Conception, were sung by the combined seminary choirs of six Berkshire County religious communities. The seminarians were directed by the Rev. William A. Carroll, S.J. and their organist was the Rev. Norman A. Pepin, S.J.

In addition to the Introit, Alleluia, Offertory and Communion, the seminarians also sang the Ecce Sacredos, Ave Coelorum, Lauda Sion, Sicut Cervus and Magnificat.

Bishop Weldon based his sermon on the first and second verses of the 110th Psalm: "Unless the Lord build the house, they labor in vain who build it. Unless the Lord guard the city, they watch in vain who guard it."

Convert Russia by Love

In the world today, we guard our nation in vain unless we follow the guidance of Almighty God, he said. We must place our hands with simple confidence in the hands of God. Atheistic Russia, the source of communism, he said, will not be converted by force but by love.

Msgr. Eugene F. Marshall of St. Mary's Church, Pittsfield, was assistant priest. The Rev. David F. Daley of St. Patrick's Church, Williamstown, and the Rev. James A. Lahey of St. Thomas' Church, Adams, were deacons of honor.

The Rev. John T. MacPherson, rector of St. Michael's Cathedral, Springfield, was deacon of the Mass. The Rev. Bernard L. Dohoney, curator of St. Michael's, was subdeacon. Master of ceremonies for the Mass was the Rev. George A. Berthiaume of Springfield, diocesan master of ceremonies. He was assisted by the Rev. Edward J. Kroyak of St. Mary's Church, Lee.

Acolytes were the Rev. John J. Ayers of St. Agnes' Church, Dalton and the Rev. Raymond M. Lepire of St. Mark's Church, Pittsfield. The Rev. Daniel G. Shea of St. Joseph's Church, Stockbridge was cross-bearer and the Rev. Leonard B. Burke of St. Francis' Church, North Adams, was thurifer.

The Rev. William F. Mahoney of Sacred Heart Church, Pittsfield, was in charge of arrangements in the sanctuary and the Rev. F. E. Hilbert of St. Teresa's Church, Pittsfield, directed the procession preceding the Mass.

100 Voice Choir

The 100-voice religious choir consisted of seminarians and priests from the Jesuit Novitiate at Shadowbrook, Lenox; the Carmelite Seminary, Williamstown; the Marian Seminary, Stockbridge; the Fathers of Mercy Seminary, Lenox; the Franciscan Novitiate, Becket; and the Fathers of the Sacred Heart at Dehon Seminary, Great Barrington.

The 200 altar boys from area parishes were under the direction of the Rev. John J. Murphy, curate of St. Mary's Church, Pittsfield.

The Bishop Conaty Assembly of Berkshire County, fourth degree Knights of Columbus, served as honor guard. Priests and the religious from Berkshire communities also participated.

Catholic Boy Scouts from the area, under the direction of the Rev. Thomas W. Courtney of Sacred Heart Church, Pittsfield, assisted in traffic direction and parking.

THE ORIGINAL ROMEIKE PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D 74,847) (S 117,225)
This Clipping From
HARTFORD, CONN. COURANT
MAY 15 1954

Tanglewood Chosen For Pontifical Mass

PITTSFIELD, Mass. — A Pontifical High Mass will be celebrated for the first time from the Tanglewood Music Shed in nearby Lenox May 22 during a state convention of the Catholic Daughters of America.

Nearly 10,000 persons are expected at the Boston Symphony Orchestra's summer music shed for the mass. It will be celebrated by the Most Rev. Christopher J. Weldon, bishop of Springfield.

THE ORIGINAL ROMEIKE PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D 24,991)
This Clipping From
PITTSFIELD, MASS. BERKSHIRE EAGLE
MAY 22 1954

In Brief . . .

A welcome to the Catholic Daughters of America, whose visit to the Berkshires makes history in marking the first time the Shed at Tanglewood has been used by any group except the Boston Symphony . . .

THE ORIGINAL ROMEIKE PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D 26,042)
This Clipping From
HOLYOKE, MASS. TRANSCRIPT-TELEGRAM
APR 27 1954

here.

Tanglewood, Mass. To Be Officiated By Bishop Weldon

Bishop Chistopher J. Weldon will officiate at a pontifical high mass at Tanglewood in Lenox on Sunday morning, May 22, in a history making premier in the huge music shed which has only been used for Boston Symphony concerts.

The pontifical Mass, open to the public, will be a highlight of the biannual state convention of the Catholic Daughters of America. The shed accommodates 9,000 and the event is expected to be the largest attended Mass in the history of the diocese.

A large all-male choir will sing the Gregorian Mass.

Some 62 courts of the Catholic Daughters of America and an additional number of junior courts will be in the Berkshires for this convention and will be in attendance. Outside of the Berkshire Living Rosary held in Pittsfield a few years ago, this will be the largest religious service ever held in the county. And it will perhaps have the largest congregation ever to attend Mass in the history of the Diocese of Springfield.

THE ORIGINAL ROMEIKE PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D 60,097) (S 112,417)
This Clipping From
ALBANY, N. Y. TIMES-UNION
MAY 21 1954

CDA Mass at Tanglewood

Tanglewood Music Shed, scene of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's annual Summer concerts, will be used for the first time tomorrow as the setting for a religious ceremony that is expected to draw more than 10,000 persons.

The Most Rev. Christopher J. Weldon, bishop of the Springfield, Mass., Catholic diocese, will celebrate a Pontifical Solemn High Mass there at 10 a.m., as part of the bi-annual state convention of the Catholic Daughters of America. The three-day convention opened today at the Hotel Sheraton in Pittsfield.

Programs for the six Wednesday night chamber music concerts during the Tanglewood season have been announced:

July 7 — Claudio Arrau, piano and the Bel Arte Trio in an all Beethoven program.

July 14 — The Albeneri Trio in Brahms, B Major; Martinu, D Minor; and Beethoven, B flat.

July 21—The Zimbler Sinfonietta playing works by Vivaldi, Stravinsky and Rossini.

July 28 — The Griller String Quartet playing Mozart, Bloch and Beethoven.

Aug. 4—The Kroll String Quartet in Haydn, Hindemith and Ravel.

Aug. 11—Zino Francescatti, violin, and Arthur Balsam, piano, playing works by Brahms and Bach.

Tickets for these concerts are available from the Berkshire Festival office for $3 and $2.

The Tanglewood office also announces that there will be twenty-five concerts by students of the Music Center during the season. Admission to these concerts is by membership in the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center.

Don't forget the Saturday morning rehearsals of the full orchestra from 10 a.m. to about 1 p.m. Admission is only $1 and this is an excellent way to introduce young people to an orchestra. Much less formal than a regular concert.

GREENE COUNTY "RECORDER-EXAMINER" June 17, 1954

[116]

TIGHT BINDING

The Berkshire Evening Eagle

Volume 63—No. 18 — Pittsfield, Massachusetts, Saturday, May 22, 1954.

JUDGESHIP
Little Force to Arguments For a Berkshire Appointee (Michelson)—Page 14

SOLEMN PONTIFICAL MASS AT TANGLEWOOD, celebrated this morning by Most Rev. Christopher J. Weldon, bishop of Springfield, highlighted the 19th biennial convention of the Catholic Daughters of America, as 4,000 persons attended the colorful ceremony in the Music Shed, used for the first time for a public event other than the regular concerts of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The procession was cancelled due to inclement weather. Mahan

Marian Year Mass Draws 4,000 to Shed

Bishop Weldon Celebrant at Colorful CDA Event

TANGLEWOOD — In a misting rain that fell from low, rolling clouds, over 4,000 of the faithful turned out at the Music Shed here this morning for the Pontifical Solemn High Mass, highlighting the biennial state convention of the Catholic Daughters of America.

Feast of Extra-Solemnity

Celebrated by the Most Rev. Christopher J. Weldon, bishop of Springfield, the Holy Sacrifice was the Solemn Votive Mass of the Immaculate Conception, said in observance of the Marian Year. Instead of the white vestments prescribed for this Mass, however, Bishop Weldon and his assistants wore golden vestments for a feast of extra-solemnity.

Tanglewood personnel estimated a crowd of from 4,000 to 4,500 people. They filled about two-thirds of the Shed.

Due to the rain, the procession planned from the administration building to the Shed was cancelled. The units which would have marched in the procession, entered the Shed individually. Bishop Weldon and his assisting priests entered from the rear.

The purple-clad grand regents of the 62 courts of Catholic Daughters represented were led into the Shed by state Grand Regent Miss Catherine Dwyer of Boston, who wore a gold cape. Junior daughters were dressed in green.

Dressed in black with red capes and swords were the Bishop Conaty Assembly of Berkshire County, fourth degree Knights of Columbus. Two pages from St. Michael's Cathedral, Springfield, were in purple.

Seminarians in Choir

The music of the Ordinary of the Mass, that part which never changes, was sung by the Cathedral High School Choir of Springfield under the direction of the Rev. James P. Sears. Organist was George Hart of St. Michael's Cathedral.

The Gregorian chants of the Proper of the Mass, that part written specifically for a Mass of the Immaculate Conception, were sung by the combined seminary choirs of six Berkshire County religious communities. The seminarians were directed by the Rev. William A. Carroll, S.J. and their organist was the Rev. Norman A. Pepin, S.J.

In addition to the Introit, Alleluia, Offertory and Communion, the seminarians also sang the Ecce Sacredos, Ave Coelorum, Lauda Sion, Sicut Cervus and Magnificat.

Bishop Weldon based his sermon on the first and second verses of the 110th Psalm: "Unless the Lord build the house, they labor in vain who build it. Unless the Lord guard the city, they watch in vain who guard it."

Convert Russia by Love

In the world today, we guard our nation in vain unless we follow the guidance of Almighty God, he said. We must place our hands with simple confidence in the hands of God. Atheistic Russia, the source of communism, he said, will not be converted by force but by love.

Msgr. Eugene F. Marshall of St. Mary's Church, Pittsfield, was assistant priest. The Rev. David F. Daley of St. Patrick's Church, Williamstown, and the Rev. James A. Lahey of St. Thomas' Church, Adams, were deacons of honor.

The Rev. John T. MacPherson, rector of St. Michael's Cathedral, Springfield, was deacon of the Mass. The Rev. Bernard L. Dohoney, curator of St. Michael's, was subdeacon. Master of ceremonies for the Mass was the Rev. George A. Berthiaume of Springfield, diocesan master of ceremonies. He was assisted by the Rev. Edward J. Kroyak of St. Mary's Church, Lee.

Acolytes were the Rev. John J. Ayers of St. Agnes' Church, Dalton and the Rev. Raymond M. Lepire of St. Mark's Church, Pittsfield. The Rev. Daniel G. Shea of St. Joseph's Church, Stockbridge, was cross-bearer and the Rev. Leonard B. Burke of St. Francis' Church, North Adams, was thurifer.

The Rev. William F. Mahoney of Sacred Heart Church, Pittsfield, was in charge of arrangements in the sanctuary and the Rev. F. E. Hilbert of St. Teresa's Church, Pittsfield, directed the procession preceding the Mass.

100 Voice Choir

The 100-voice religious choir consisted of seminarians and priests from the Jesuit Novitiate at Shadowbrook, Lenox; the Carmelite Seminary, Williamstown; the Marian Seminary, Stockbridge; the Fathers of Mercy Seminary, Lenox; the Franciscan Novitiate, Becket; and the Fathers of the Sacred Heart at Dehon Seminary, Great Barrington.

The 200 altar boys from area parishes were under the direction of the Rev. John J. Murphy, curate of St. Mary's Church, Pittsfield.

The Bishop Conaty Assembly of Berkshire County, fourth degree Knights of Columbus, served as honor guard. Priests and the religious from Berkshire communities also participated.

Catholic Boy Scouts from the area, under the direction of the Rev. Thomas W. Courtney of Sacred Heart Church, Pittsfield, assisted in traffic direction and parking.

THE ORIGINAL ROMEIKE PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D 74,847) (S 117,225)
This Clipping From
HARTFORD, CONN. COURANT
MAY 15 1954

Tanglewood Chosen For Pontifical Mass

PITTSFIELD, Mass. — A Pontifical High Mass will be celebrated for the first time from the Tanglewood Music Shed in nearby Lenox May 22 during a state convention of the Catholic Daughters of America.

Nearly 10,000 persons are expected at the Boston Symphony Orchestra's summer music shed for the mass. It will be celebrated by the Most Rev. Christopher J. Weldon, bishop of Springfield.

THE ORIGINAL ROMEIKE PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D 26,991)
This Clipping From
PITTSFIELD, MASS. BERKSHIRE EAGLE
MAY 22 1954

In Brief . . .

A welcome to the Catholic Daughters of America, whose visit to the Berkshires makes history in marking the first time the Shed at Tanglewood has been used by any group except the Boston Symphony . . .

THE ORIGINAL ROMEIKE PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D 26,042)
This Clipping From
HOLYOKE, MASS. TRANSCRIPT-TELEGRAM
APR 27 1954

Tanglewood, Mass. To Be Officiated By Bishop Weldon

Bishop Chistopher J. Weldon will officiate at a pontifical high mass at Tanglewood in Lenox on Sunday morning, May 22, in a history making premier in the huge music shed which has only been used for Boston Symphony concerts.

The pontifical Mass, open to the public, will be a highlight of the biannual state convention of the Catholic Daughters of America. The shed accommodates 9,000 and the event is expected to be the largest attended Mass in the history of the diocese.

A large all-male choir will sing the Gregorian Mass.

Some 62 courts of the Catholic Daughters of America and an additional number of junior courts will be in the Berkshires for this convention and will be in attendance. Outside of the Berkshire Living Rosary held in Pittsfield a few years ago, this will be the largest religious service ever held in the county. And it will perhaps have the largest congregation ever to attend Mass in the history of the Diocese of Springfield.

THE ORIGINAL ROMEIKE PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D 60,097) (S 112,417)
This Clipping From
ALBANY, N. Y. TIMES-UNION
MAY 21 1954

CDA Mass at Tanglewood

Tanglewood Music Shed, scene of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's annual Summer concerts, will be used for the first time tomorrow as the setting for a religious ceremony that is expected to draw more than 10,000 persons.

The Most Rev. Christopher J. Weldon, bishop of the Springfield, Mass., Catholic diocese, will celebrate a Pontifical Solemn High Mass there at 10 a.m., as part of the bi-annual state convention of the Catholic Daughters of America. The three-day convention opened today at the Hotel Sheraton in Pittsfield.

GREENE COUNTY "RECORDER-EXAMINER" June 17, 1954 [116]

Programs for the six Wednesday night chamber music concerts during the Tanglewood season have been announced:

July 7 — Claudio Arrau, piano and the Bel Arte Trio in an all Beethoven program.

July 14 — The Albeneri Trio in Brahms, B Major; Martinu, D Minor; and Beethoven, B flat.

July 21—The Zimbler Sinfonietta playing works by Vivaldi, Stravinsky and Rossini.

July 28 — The Griller String Quartet playing Mozart, Bloch and Beethoven.

Aug. 4—The Kroll String Quartet in Haydn, Hindemith and Ravel.

Aug. 11—Zino Francescatti, violin, and Arthur Balsam, piano, playing works by Brahms and Bach.

Tickets for these concerts are available from the Berkshire Festival office for $3 and $2.

The Tanglewood office also announces that there will be twenty-five concerts by students of the Music Center during the season. Admission to these concerts is by membership in the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center.

Don't forget the Saturday morning rehearsals of the full orchestra from 10 a.m. to about 1 p.m. Admission is only $1 and this is an excellent way to introduce young people to an orchestra. Much less formal than a regular concert.

Cir. (D 26,991)
This Clipping From
PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE
MAY 8 - 1954

Aaron Copland's New Opera To Have Tanglewood Premiere

TANGLEWOOD — "The Tender Land," a new opera by Aaron Copland on an American theme, will have its second production anywhere and its New England premiere as the major project this summer of the Berkshire Music Center opera department, the Boston Symphony Orchestra announces. There will be two performances of "The Tender Land" in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, on Monday and Tuesday evenings, Aug. 2 and 3.

Double Bill July 27

There will be a single performance on July 27 of a double bill of Ernst Toch's one-act opera, "The Princess and the Pea," and the 16th century madrigal opera, "L'Amfiparnaso" by Orazio Vecchi, which will have its first staged performance in the U.S.

Admission to Tanglewood for the opera performances is by invitation to the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, who support its activities with contributions. Membership in the Friends results also in an invitation to some 40 additional concerts by students during the Tanglewood season, July 5 to Aug. 15.

In announcing "The Tender Land," Frederic Cohen, who will head the Berkshire Music Center opera department this summer, while its head, Boris Goldovsky, is on leave of absence, stresses that the planned production by the students at Tanglewood will be different in conception from the opera's premiere by the New York City Opera Company at New York City Center on April 1.

Aaron Copland, composer of many symphonies, concert selections, ballets, chamber music and theater and film music, explored the opera medium only once before, when he wrote "The Second Hurricane," a children's piece more than 15 years ago.

"The Tender Land," finished in March of this year, was written on a commission from the League of Composers from a grant by Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein II. The composer chose a libretto by Horace Everett, young California poet and painter, inspired by a photograph by Edward Weston in a book about Southern tenant farmers in the '30s. "Let Us Now Praise Famous Men," by James Agee. In two acts, lasting an hour and a half, it tells the story of Laurie, eldest of two daughters of a farmer's wife, and her decision on the eve of her graduation to strike out for happiness beyond the horizon of the farm.

THE ORIGINAL
ROMEIKE
PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (D 26,991)
This Clipping From
PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE
APR 28 1954

Lenox Wants BSO Benefit To Ease Expenses for Town

President Henry Cabot, However, Declines Request Citing Other Communities and Orchestra's Own Financial Problems

LENOX—Town authorities here today released a letter to the Boston Symphony Orchestra suggesting that a benefit performance be given annually at Tanglewood, the proceeds to go to the town treasury, and a reply from the orchestra declining to give the concert this summer.

The letter to the orchestra was addressed to Henry B. Cabot, president of the trustees of the BSO, and was signed by R. Harry Barnes, chairman of the Board of Selectmen, and John D. Kennedy, chairman of the Planning Board. The reply was signed by Mr. Cabot.

In their letter, the town officials point out that the season of the Berkshire Festival has been extended this summer.

Town Expenses Increased

"The Festival has in past years," the letter states, "added directly and indirectly to the expense of town government. The services rendered by the Fire Department, Police Department, Library, etc., have of necessity been increased, and with a fuller program in prospect, these services will have to be further extended . . .

"As Lenox is almost entirely a residential community with no industries," the town officials point out, "and with business confined to local merchants and seasonal inns and motels, the expense of local government is borne preponderantly by the home-owner."

The letter also mentions the extra expense to the town of the proposal to take over the local community center. This was approved at the last annual meeting though "a portion of the population was reluctant . . . in view of a pressing need for water and sewer mains, and sidewalks."

Suggest Annual Event

"It has occurred to the Lenox Board of Selectmen and Planning Board," the letter continues, "that the festival might help the town by giving an annual benefit performance by the Boston Symphony Orchestra during the Tanglewood season, the proceeds . . . to be turned over to the town as a contribution to the welfare of the Community Center, Fire Department, Police Department and Library.

"The Boston Symphony Orchestra has been appealing to the general public for support which has not been denied them, and we, the public of a small community, are in turn appealing to the Boston Symphony Orchestra for support which we hope will not be denied us."

'Sentiments . . . Are Mutual'

In his reply, Mr. Cabot stated that "the trustees and management of the orchestra have been most appreciative of the good will and cooperation which the festival has enjoyed from the officials and residents of Lenox. . . . Certainly the sentiments which you express are mutual . . .

"However, we are still in the process of making an experiment and apart from any other considerations it is my feeling that we have obligated ourselves concertwise to as great an extent as it would be wise to do this summer.

"What we could do in the future to meet your suggestion I am not sure," Mr. Cabot continues, "but I think I should mention that if and when your suggestion is acted upon, it would be necessary to take into account similar feelings on the part of other communities, particularly Stockbridge, and probably other neighboring towns, all of whom assist in our community effort and in some measure share in resulting responsibilities.

Orchestra Needs $250,000

"You may have noticed that this year the trustees (of the orchestra) undertook to secure contributions principally for current needs in the amount of $250,000. We are still substantially short of this goal. By this you will see that the trustees . . . are also faced with financial problems.

"I expect," Mr. Cabot's letter concludes, "as usual, to attend several of the concerts this summer and shall be very happy to meet with you gentlemen, which I am sure would result in our each understanding the other's point of view."

MUSIC

Munch Conducts Berlioz' "Damnation of Faust"

Sixteenth pair of concerts by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the Friday afternoon-Saturday evening series, at Symphony Hall, Charles Munch conducted "The Damnation of Faust," by Hector Berlioz. The choruses were the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, trained by G. Wallace Woodworth. The soloists: Suzanne Danco, soprano, as Marguerite; David Poleri, tenor, as Faust; Martial Singher, baritone, as Mephistopheles, and Donald Gramm, bass, as Brander. The baritone solo in the epilogue was sung by McHenry Boatwright.

By CYRUS DURGIN

Not the least of Charles Munch's distinctions during his years in Boston has been his devotion to the music of Hector Berlioz. That already has given us the Requiem, the complete "Romeo and Juliet" Symphony, the "Fantastic" Symphony, and "L'Enfance du Christ." Now it brings us, this week, the first local performances in nearly 20 years of "The Damnation of Faust." I think, when the record comes to be examined in times future, this performance of "The Damnation of Faust" will prove to have been one of the great achievements of Mr. Munch's sojourn here.

In the first place it was the whole score—except for the 55-measure introduction, on the bugle calls of the returning soldiers, which opens the third part but makes a jarring effect just before the scene in Marguerite's chamber. This, Mr. Munch was justified in omitting. In the second place it was a performance absolutely gorgeous in terms of orchestral virtuosity, and very superior, indeed, for the singing by chorus and soloists. Just for pure richness of tone, sweet, transparent and unforced, this performance was memorable.

It takes a real Berlioz conductor to re-create this work as the splendid and imposing work it can be; a conductor who understands and sustains the passion that filled most of the music that Berlioz ever wrote, and yet who does not dwell upon spectacular effects for their own sake.

"The Damnation of Faust," analyzed literarily, philosophically or poetically, is no more the "Faust" of Goethe than is Gounod's well-known opera. But like the opera it is a musical expression, peculiarly personal to the composer, of elements of "Faust". So far as each composer chose to go, his "Faust" is a masterpiece. Even, with Berlioz, the fiery, interpolated "Rakoczy" March yesterday won a special round of applause.

Though "The Damnation of Faust" ranges from the martial magnificence of the "Rakoczy" through the brilliant trivialities of the songs in Auerbach's cellar, to the amorous beauties of the lovers' songs, to the three-ring circus of the "Pandemonium" and the pious assurance of the epilogue, it must all be treated seriously and on the same level of worth. That Mr. Munch did, and thereby performed the score with irresistible eloquence.

The soloists were well suited to their parts, although the clean and finely styled singing of Mme. Danco was cucumber-cool for her part. David Poleri, as Faust, sang with ringing tones, real passion and admirable enunciation. Perhaps his style might have been a little more Italian than French, but the total result was glorious. Mr. Singher, unfailingly excellent in whatever he does, was resonant and expressive, and in every note the artist. The short role of Brander was commendably done by Mr. Gramm.

Mr. Woodworth prepared his Harvard and Radcliffe choruses well. As usual with young singers, their tone was light, but their vigor and precision were sufficient to compensate. If they got foul of the beat now and again, they need not feel badly, for Berlioz, when he goes fast, is the devil himself for tricky rhythms.

Mr. Boatwright, a promising young artist, did well the short solo of the epilogue which suffered not at all in being transferred to a single voice from the six basses originally prescribed. There was no boys' chorus for this section and it did not matter. The performance took just 2½ hours, with a single intermission.

Cir. (D 26,991)
This Clipping From
PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE
MAY 17 1954

BSO Meeting Is Sought In June

Town Officials Want Session Before Concerts

LENOX — The Selectmen and Planning Board here have sent another letter to Henry B. Cabot of Boston, president of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, requesting a meeting with BSO representatives in June.

In response to a letter mailed last month, suggesting a special concert to raise money to help meet expenses to the town resulting from the Tanglewood season, Mr. Cabot said he would be glad to meet with Selectmen during the 1954 Berkshire Festival season.

"We feel it would be unwise to wait until the concert season begins as there are several pressing matters that ought to receive prompt attention," the new letter from town officials states.

"We wish to thank you for your letter of April 22," the town officials begin. "We welcome the opportunity to meet with you to discuss problems that have arisen in connection with the expansion of the festival season . . ."

The letter suggests that a meeting be arranged early in June between officials of the town and representatives of the orchestra. The signers of the letter are R. Harry Barnes, chairman of the Selectmen, and John D. Kennedy, chairman of the Planning Board, who also signed the previous letter.

BOSTON, MASS.
HERALD
MAY 16 1954

Additional Berkshire Festival Soloists

Martial Singher, baritone; David Poleri, tenor; Donald Gramm, bass-baritone; John McCollum, tenor; Nicola Moscona, bass-baritone of the Metropolitan Opera; and E. Power Biggs, organist, have been added to the roster of soloists for the Berkshire Festival by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. this summer. The six weekends of summer concerts in the hills of Western Massachusetts commence with a chamber music concert by Claudio Arrau, pianist, and the Bel Arte Trio (Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola; and Martin Hoherman, 'cello) in an all-Beethoven program in the Theater-Concert Hall on Wednesday evening, July 7. Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will conduct a chamber orchestra in a program of Bach's Brandenburg Concertos, with Lukas Foss as solist, in the Theater-Concert Hall on Friday, July 9. The Festival continues through Sunday afternoon, August 15.

Mr. Singher, Mr. Poleri, Mr. Gramm and Eleanor Steber, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, will be soloists in Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust," to be given for the first time at a Berkshire Festival, on Saturday evening, July 10, in the huge Music Shed at Tanglewood, by the full 104-piece Boston Symphony conducted by Mr. Munch, with the assistance of the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society under the direction of G. Wallace Woodworth. The choruses from Cambridge, returning from their first transcontinental tour, will make their first visit to Tanglewood for this occasion.

HOLYOKE, MASS.
TRANSCRIPT-TELEGRAM
MAY 15 1954

Soloists Announced For Tanglewood

Martial Singher, baritone; David Poleri, tenor; Donald Gramm, bass-baritone; John McCollum, tenor; Nicola Moscona, bass-baritone of the Metropolitan Opera; and E. Power Biggs, organist, have been added to the roster of soloists for the Berkshire Festival by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood this summer.

Mr. Singher, Mr. Poleri, Mr. Gramm and Eleanor Steber, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, will be soloists in Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust" to be given for the first time at a Berkshire Festival, on July 10, in the Music Shed by the full 104-piece Boston Symphony conducted by Mr. Munch, with the assistance of the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society under the direction of G. Wallace Woodworth. The choruses from Cambridge, returning from their first transcontinental tour, will make their first visit to Tanglewood for this occasion.

Mr. Poleri will also be the soloist in Berlioz' "Te Deum" which Mr. Munch will conduct at the Shed concert of Saturday evening, Aug. 7, with the assistance of the Berkshire Festival Chorus of students of the Berkshire Music Center. Mr. Poleri will sing the single solo part in Berlioz' "Requiem," with which Mr. Munch will close the Festival on Sunday afternoon, Aug. 15, this program a memorial to Serge Koussevitzky, for 25 years music director of the Boston Symphony.

John McCollum and Nicola Moscona, who were two of the three soloists in the 1953 Festival performance of Berlioz' dramatic symphony "Romeo and Juliet," will repeat their roles in the performance of July 31.

Mr. Biggs will give two Saturday afternoon organ recitals in the Music Shed during the latter part of the Berkshire Festival.

Other of the summer soloists previously announced, are Miss Steber in Berlioz' "Summer Nights," on Saturday evening, Aug. 7; Lukas Foss in the Bach Brandenburg Concerto No. 5 (Friday evening, July 9) Claudio Arrau, in Beethoven's "Emperor" Concerto (Sunday afternoon, July 11) in an all-Beethoven program which Pierre Monteux will conduct; Vera Franceschi, pianist, in Franck's "Les Djinns," which Mr. Monteux wil conduct (Saturday evening, July 17); Leon Smit, pianist, in Aaron Copland's Piano Concerto (Sunday afternoon, July 18); William Primrose, violist, in Berlioz's "Harold in Italy" Symphony (Sunday afternoon, July 25); Doriot Anthony, first flutist of the Boston Symphony, in Jacques Ibert's Flute Concerto (Friday evening, July 30); Ruth Posselt, violinist, in Dvorak's Violin Concerto (Sunday afternoon, Aug. 1); Seymour Lipkin, pianist, in a Mozart Piano Concerto (Friday evenign, Aug. 6); Zina Francescatti in Beethoven's Violin Concerto (Sunday afternoon, Aug. 8); and Nicole Henriot, pianist, in Ravel's Piano Concerto (Saturday evening, Aug. 14).

Music News: Tanglewood To Hear 'Tender Land'

N.Y. Herald Trib., 5/16/54

By FRANCIS D. PERKINS

Had Brandeis University been able to carry out its plans for its third festival, Aaron Copland's "The Tender Land" would have been staged in Waltham this June. But on-and-off campus construction has made a 1954 Brandeis festival unfeasible, and the event has been put off to next year. "The Tender Land," however, will not have to wait that long for its first New England production, which will be given by the Berkshire Music Center's opera department Monday and Tuesday nights, Aug. 2 and 3, at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

[117]

Clr. (D 26,991)
This Clipping From
PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE
MAY 8 - 1954

Aaron Copland's New Opera To Have Tanglewood Premiere

TANGLEWOOD — "The Tender Land," a new opera by Aaron Copland on an American theme, will have its second production anywhere and its New England premiere as the major project this summer of the Berkshire Music Center opera department, the Boston Symphony Orchestra announces. There will be two performances of "The Tender Land" in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, on Monday and Tuesday evenings, Aug. 2 and 3.

Double Bill July 27

There will be a single performance on July 27 of a double bill of Ernst Toch's one-act opera, "The Princess and the Pea," and the 16th century madrigal opera, "L'Amfiparnaso" by Orazio Vecchi, which will have its first staged performance in the U.S.

Admission to Tanglewood for the opera performances is by invitation to the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, who support its activities with contributions. Membership in the Friends results also in an invitation to some 40 additional concerts by students during the Tanglewood season, July 5 to Aug. 15.

In announcing "The Tender Land," Frederic Cohen, who will head the Berkshire Music Center opera department this summer, while its head, Boris Goldovsky, is on leave of absence, stresses that the planned production by the students at Tanglewood will be different in conception from the opera's premiere by the New York City Opera Company at New York City Center on April 1.

Aaron Copland, composer of many symphonies, concert selections, ballets, chamber music and theater and film music, explored the opera medium only once before, when he wrote "The Second Hurricane," a children's piece more than 15 years ago.

"The Tender Land," finished in March of this year, was written on a commission from the League of Composers from a grant by Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein II. The composer chose a libretto by Horace Everett, young California poet and painter, inspired by a photograph by Edward Weston in a book about Southern tenant farmers in the '30s, "Let Us Now Praise Famous Men," by James Agee. In two acts, lasting an hour and a half, it tells the story of Laurie, eldest of two daughters of a farmer's wife, and her decision on the eve of her graduation to strike out for happiness beyond the horizon of the farm.

THE ORIGINAL
ROMEIKE
PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860

Clr. (D 26,991)
This Clipping From
PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE
APR 28 1954

Lenox Wants BSO Benefit To Ease Expenses for Town

President Henry Cabot, However, Declines Request Citing Other Communities and Orchestra's Own Financial Problems

LENOX—Town authorities here today released a letter to the Boston Symphony Orchestra suggesting that a benefit performance be given annually at Tanglewood, the proceeds to go to the town treasury, and a reply from the orchestra declining to give the concert this summer.

The letter to the orchestra was addressed to Henry B. Cabot, president of the trustees of the BSO, and was signed by R. Harry Barnes, chairman of the Board of Selectmen, and John D. Kennedy, chairman of the Planning Board. The reply was signed by Mr. Cabot.

In their letter, the town officials point out that the season of the Berkshire Festival has been extended this summer.

Town Expenses Increased

"The Festival has in past years," the letter states, "added directly and indirectly to the expense of town government. The services rendered by the Fire Department, Police Department, Library, etc., have of necessity been increased, and with a fuller program in prospect, these services will have to be further extended . . .

"As Lenox is almost entirely a residential community with no industries," the town officials point out, "and with business confined to local merchants and seasonal inns and motels, the expense of local government is borne preponderantly by the home-owner."

The letter also mentions the extra expense to the town of the proposal to take over the local community center. This was approved at the last annual meeting though "a portion of the population was reluctant . . . in view of a pressing need for water and sewer mains, and sidewalks."

Suggest Annual Event

"It has occurred to the Lenox Board of Selectmen and Planning Board," the letter continues, "that the festival might help the town by giving an annual benefit performance by the Boston Symphony Orchestra during the Tanglewood season, the proceeds . . . to be turned over to the town as a contribution to the welfare of the Community Center, Fire Department, Police Department and Library.

"The Boston Symphony Orchestra has been appealing to the general public for support which has not been denied them, and we, the public of a small community, are in turn appealing to the Boston Symphony Orchestra for support which we hope will not be denied us."

'Sentiments . . . Are Mutual'

In his reply, Mr. Cabot stated that "the trustees and management of the orchestra have been most appreciative of the good will and cooperation which the festival has enjoyed from the officials and residents of Lenox. . . . Certainly the sentiments which you express are mutual . . .

"However, we are still in the process of making an experiment and apart from any other considerations it is my feeling that we have obligated ourselves concertwise to as great an extent as it would be wise to do this summer.

"What we could do in the future to meet your suggestion I am not sure," Mr. Cabot continues, "but I think I should mention that if and when your suggestion is acted upon, it would be necessary to take into account similar feelings on the part of other communities, particularly Stockbridge, and probably other neighboring towns, all of whom assist in our community effort and in some measure share in resulting responsibilities.

Orchestra Needs $250,000

"You may have noticed that this year the trustees (of the orchestra) undertook to secure contributions principally for current needs in the amount of $250,000. We are still substantially short of this goal. By this you will see that the trustees . . . are also faced with financial problems.

"I expect," Mr. Cabot's letter concludes, "as usual, to attend several of the concerts this summer and shall be very happy to meet with you gentlemen, which I am sure would result in our each understanding the other's point of view."

MUSIC

Munch Conducts Berlioz' "Damnation of Faust"

Sixteenth pair of concerts by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the Friday afternoon–Saturday evening series, at Symphony Hall, Charles Munch conducted "The Damnation of Faust," by Hector Berlioz. The choruses were the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, trained by G. Wallace Woodworth. The soloists: Suzanne Danco, soprano, as Marguerite; David Poleri, tenor, as Faust; Martial Singher, baritone, as Mephistopheles, and Donald Gramm, bass, as Brander. The baritone solo in the epilogue was sung by McHenry Boatwright.

By CYRUS DURGIN

Not the least of Charles Munch's distinctions during his years in Boston has been his devotion to the music of Hector Berlioz. That already has given us the Requiem, the complete "Romeo and Juliet" Symphony, the "Fantastic" Symphony, and "L'Enfance du Christ." Now it brings us, this week, the first local performances in nearly 20 years of "The Damnation of Faust." I think, when the record comes to be examined in times future, this performance of "The Damnation of Faust" will prove to have been one of the great achievements of Mr. Munch's sojourn here.

In the first place it was the whole score—except for the 55-measure introduction, on the bugle calls of the returning soldiers, which opens the third part but makes a jarring effect just before the scene in Marguerite's chamber. This, Mr. Munch was justified in omitting. In the second place it was a performance absolutely gorgeous in terms of orchestral virtuosity, and very superior, indeed, for the singing by chorus and soloists. Just for pure richness of tone, sweet, transparent and unforced, this performance was memorable.

It takes a real Berlioz conductor to re-create this work as the splendid and imposing work it can be; a conductor who understands and sustains the passion that filled most of the music that Berlioz ever wrote, and yet who does not dwell upon spectacular effects for their own sake.

"The Damnation of Faust," analyzed literarily, philosophically or poetically, is no more the "Faust" of Goethe than is Gounod's well-known opera. But like the opera it is a musical expression, peculiarly personal to the composer, of elements of "Faust". So far as each composer chose to go, his "Faust" is a masterpiece. Even, with Berlioz, the fiery, interpolated "Rakoczy" March yesterday won a special round of applause.

Though "The Damnation of Faust" ranges from the martial magnificence of the "Rakoczy" through the brilliant trivialities of the songs in Auerbach's cellar, to the amorous beauties of the lovers' songs, to the three-ring circus of the "Pandemonium" and the pious assurance of the epilogue, it must all be treated seriously and on the same level of worth. That Mr. Munch did, and thereby performed the score with irresistible eloquence.

The soloists were well suited to their parts, although the clean and finely styled singing of Mme. Danco was cucumber-cool for her part. David Poleri, as Faust, sang with ringing tones, real passion and admirable enunciation. Perhaps his style might have been a little more Italian than French, but the total result was glorious. Mr. Singher, unfailingly excellent in whatever he does, was resonant and expressive, and in every note the artist. The short role of Brander was commendably done by Mr. Gramm.

Mr. Woodworth prepared his Harvard and Radcliffe choruses well. As usual with young singers, their tone was light, but their vigor and precision were sufficient to compensate. If they got foul of the beat now and again, they need not feel badly, for Berlioz, when he goes fast, is the devil himself for tricky rhythms.

Mr. Boatwright, a promising young artist, did well the short solo of the epilogue which suffered not at all in being transferred to a single voice from the six basses originally prescribed. There was no boys' chorus for this section and it did not matter. The performance took just 2½ hours, with a single intermission.

Clr. (D 26,991)
This Clipping From
PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE
MAY 17 1954

BSO Meeting Is Sought In June

Town Officials Want Session Before Concerts

LENOX — The Selectmen and Planning Board here have sent another letter to Henry B. Cabot of Boston, president of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, requesting a meeting with BSO representatives in June.

In response to a letter mailed last month, suggesting a special concert to raise money to help meet expenses to the town resulting from the Tanglewood season, Mr. Cabot said he would be glad to meet with Selectmen during the 1954 Berkshire Festival season.

"We feel it would be unwise to wait until the concert season begins as there are several pressing matters that ought to receive prompt attention," the new letter from town officials states.

"We wish to thank you for your letter of April 22," the town officials begin. "We welcome the opportunity to meet with you to discuss problems that have arisen in connection with the expansion of the festival season . . ."

The letter suggests that a meeting be arranged early in June between officials of the town and representatives of the orchestra. The signers of the letter are R. Harry Barnes, chairman of the Selectmen, and John D. Kennedy, chairman of the Planning Board, who also signed the previous letter.

BOSTON, MASS.
HERALD
MAY 16 1954

Additional Berkshire Festival Soloists

Martial Singher, baritone; David Poleri, tenor; Donald Gramm, bass-baritone; John McCollum, tenor; Nicola Moscona, bass-baritone of the Metropolitan Opera; and E. Power Biggs, organist, have been added to the roster of soloists for the Berkshire Festival by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. this summer. The six weekends of summer concerts in the hills of Western Massachusetts commence with a chamber music concert by Claudio Arrau, pianist, and the Bel Arte Trio (Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola; and Martin Hoherman, 'cello) in an all-Beethoven program in the Theater-Concert Hall on Wednesday evening, July 7. Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will conduct a chamber orchestra in a program of Bach's Brandenburg Concertos, with Lukas Foss as solist, in the Theater-Concert Hall on Friday, July 9. The Festival continues through Sunday afternoon, August 15.

Mr. Singher, Mr. Poleri, Mr. Gramm and Eleanor Steber, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, will be soloists in Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust," to be given for the first time at a Berkshire Festival, on Saturday evening, July 10, in the huge Music Shed at Tanglewood, by the full 104-piece Boston Symphony conducted by Mr. Munch, with the assistance of the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society under the direction of G. Wallace Woodworth. The choruses from Cambridge, returning from their first transcontinental tour, will make their first visit to Tanglewood for this occasion.

HOLYOKE, MASS.
TRANSCRIPT-TELEGRAM
Apr 3 1954

Soloists Announced For Tanglewood

Martial Singher, baritone; David Poleri, tenor; Donald Gramm, bass-baritone; John McCollum, tenor; Nicola Moscona, bass-baritone of the Metropolitan Opera; and E. Power Biggs, organist, have been added to the roster of soloists for the Berkshire Festival by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood this summer.

Mr. Singher, Mr. Poleri, Mr. Gramm and Eleanor Steber, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, will be soloists in Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust," to be given for the first time at a Berkshire Festival, on July 10, in the Music Shed by the full 104-piece Boston Symphony conducted by Mr. Munch, with the assistance of the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society under the direction of G. Wallace Woodworth. The choruses from Cambridge, returning from their first transcontinental tour, will make their first visit to Tanglewood for this occasion.

Mr. Poleri will also be the soloist in Berlioz' "Te Deum," which Mr. Munch will conduct at the Shed concert of Saturday evening, Aug. 7, with the assistance of the Berkshire Festival Chorus of students of the Berkshire Music Center. Mr. Poleri will sing the single solo part in Berlioz' "Requiem," with which Mr. Munch will close the Festival on Sunday afternoon, Aug. 15, this program a memorial to Serge Koussevitzky, for 25 years music director of the Boston Symphony.

John McCollum and Nicola Moscona, who were two of the three soloists in the 1953 Festival performance of Berlioz' dramatic symphony "Romeo and Juliet," will repeat their roles in the performance of July 31.

Mr. Biggs will give two Saturday afternoon organ recitals in the Music Shed during the latter part of the Berkshire Festival.

Other of the summer soloists previously announced, are Miss Steber in Berlioz' "Summer Nights," on Saturday evening, Aug. 7; Lukas Foss in the Bach Brandenburg Concerto No. 5 (Friday evening, July 9) Claudio Arrau, in Beethoven's "Emperor" Concerto (Sunday afternoon, July 11) in an all-Beethoven program which Pierre Monteux will conduct; Vera Franceschi, pianist, in Franck's "Les Djinns," which Mr. Monteux wil conduct (Saturday evening, July 17); Leo Smit, pianist, in Aaron Copland's Piano Concerto (Sunday afternoon, July 18); William Primrose, violist, in Berlioz's "Harold in Italy" Symphony (Sunday afternoon, July 25); Doriot Anthony, first flutist of the Boston Symphony, in Jacques Ibert's Flute Concerto (Friday evening, July 30); Ruth Posselt, violinist, in Dvorak's Violin Concerto (Sunday afternoon, Aug. 1); Seymour Lipkin, pianist, in a Mozart Piano Concerto (Friday evenign, Aug. 6); Zina Francescatti in Beethoven's Violin Concerto (Sunday afternoon, Aug. 8); and Nicole Henriot, pianist, in Ravel's Piano Concerto (Saturday evening, Aug. 14).

Music News: Tanglewood To Hear 'Tender Land'

N.Y. Herald Trib., 5/16/54

By FRANCIS D. PERKINS

Had Brandeis University been able to carry out its plans for its third festival, Aaron Copland's "The Tender Land" would have been staged in Waltham this June. But on-and-off campus construction has made a 1954 Brandeis festival unfeasible, and the event has been put off to next year. "The Tender Land," however, will not have to wait that long for its first New England production, which will be given by the Berkshire Music Center's opera department Monday and Tuesday nights, Aug. 2 and 3, at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

C173

TIGHT BINDING

HOLYOKE, MASS.
TRANSCRIPT-TELEGRAM

MAY 15 1954

Soloists Announced For Tanglewood

Martial Singher, baritone; David Poleri, tenor; Donald Gramm, bass-baritone; John McCollum, tenor; Nicola Moscona, bass-bartone of the Metropolitan Opera; and E. Power Biggs, organist, have been added to the roster of soloists for the Berkshire Festival by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood this summer.

Mr. Singher, Mr. Poleri, Mr. Gramm and Eleanor Steber, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, will be soloists in Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust," to be given for the first time at a Berkshire Festival, on July 10, in the Music Shed by the full 104-piece Boston Symphony conducted by Mr. Munch, with the assistance of the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society under the direction of G. Wallace Woodworth. The choruses from Cambridge, returning from their first transcontinental tour, will make their first visit to Tanglewood for this occasion.

Mr. Poleri will also be the soloist in Berlioz' "Te Deum," which Mr. Munch will conduct at the Shed concert of Saturday evening, Aug. 7, with the assistance of the Berkshire Festival Chorus of students of the Berkshire Music Center. Mr. Poleri will sing the single solo part in Berlioz' "Requiem," with which Mr. Munch will close the Festival on Sunday afternoon, Aug. 15, this program a memorial to Serge Koussevitzky, for 25 years music director of the Boston Symphony.

John McCollum and Nicola Moscona, who were two of the three soloists in the 1953 Festival performance of Berlioz' dramatic symphony "Romeo and Juliet," will repeat their roles in the performance of July 31.

Mr. Biggs will give two Saturday afternoon organ recitals in the Music Shed during the latter part of the Berkshire Festival.

Other of the summer soloists previously announced, are Miss Steber in Berlioz' "Summer Nights," on Saturday evening, Aug. 7; Lukas Foss in the Bach Brandenburg Concerto No. 5 (Friday evening, July 9) Claudio Arrau, in Beethoven's "Emperor" Concerto (Sunday afternoon, July 11) in an all-Beethoven program which Pierre Monteux will conduct; Vera Franceschi, pianist, in Franck's "Les Djinns," which Mr. Monteux wil conduct (Saturday evening, July 17); Leo Smit, pianist, in Aaron Copland's Piano Concerto (Sunday afternoon, July 18); William Primrose, violist, in Berlioz's "Harold in Italy" Symphony (Sunday afternoon, July 25); Doriot Anthony, first flutist of the Boston Symphony, in Jacques Ibert's Flute Concerto (Friday evening, July 30); Ruth Posselt, violinist, in Dvorak's Violin Concerto (Sunday afternoon, Aug. 1); Seymour Lipkin, pianist, in a Mozart Piano Concerto (Friday evenign, Aug. 6); Zina Francescatti in Beethoven's Violin Concerto (Sunday afternoon, Aug. 8); and Nicole Henriot, pianist, in Ravel's Piano Concerto (Saturday evening, Aug. 14).

Cir. (D 26,042)

This Clipping From
HOLYOKE, MASS.
TRANSCRIPT-TELEGRAM

Tanglewood Has New Schedule Of Concert Programs Outlined

A new schedule of concert programs will go into effect at the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood this summer. This year there will be six Saturday evening and six Sunday afternoon concerts by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the big Music Shed, six chamber music concerts on Wednesday evenings in the Theatre-Concert Hall, and six Friday night concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall by the chamber orchestra.

Most of the orchestral concerts, both the chamber orchestra, and the full orchestra will be conducted by Charles Munch, Boston Symphony director. Guest conductors will include Pierre Monteux, Jean Morel, and Lukas Foss. A good many compositions by Hector Berlioz will be played this year in honor of the French composer's 150th anniversary.

Tickets are available for all these concerts. For the student concerts, which include the opera or choral presentations on Tuesday nights and the student orchestra concerts on Thursday nights as well as a number of other concerts, admission is open to those who have become members through voluntary contribution to the Society of Friends of the Berkshire Music Center.

The Festival programs as now planned are as follows:

Theatre-Concert Hall: six Wednesday evenings: Chamber Music: Claudio Arrau, piano, The Bel Arte Trio, Beethoven program.

July 14, The Albeneri Trio.

July 21, The Zimbler Sinfonietta. Vivaldi-Stravinsky-Rossini.

July 28, The Griller String Quartet.

Aug. 4, The Kroll String Quartet.

Aug. 11, Zino Francescatti, violin, Sonata Program.

Friday evenings at Chamber orchestra:

July 9, Bach, Brandenburg Concertos, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 5, 6, Piano solo: Lukas Foss, conductor: Charles Munch.

July 16, Bach, Cantata No. 93 "Wer nur den lieben Gott", (Hugh Ross conducting), Suites Nos. 1 and 4, conductor Charles Munch.

July 23, Handel Concerto Grosso for Strings, Op. 6, No. 4, Haydn Symphony No. 100, "Military", Haydn "Nelson" Mass, (Hugh Ross conducting) conductor: Charles Munch.

Charles Munch

chorus and soloists, conductor: Lukas Foss.

Thursday evening, Aug. 12, Rossini, overture to "Scala di Seta", Mozart, symphony in B flat K.319, Ravel, "Mother Goose" Suite, Strauss "Der Burger als Edelmann", conductor: Jean Morel.

The annual Tanglewood on Parade program will take place on Friday, Aug. 13.

Music Shed: Six Saturday evenings, Boston Symphony orchestra.

July 10, Berlioz, "The Damnation of Faust", with Harvard Glee club, Radcliffe Choral Society and Soloists, conductor: Charles Munch.

July 17, Franck, "Le Chasseur Maudit", "Les Eolides", "Les Djinns", for piano and orchestra, soloist: Vera Franceschi, symphony in D Minor, conductor: Pierre Monteux.

July 24, Weber Overture to "Der Freischutz", Prokofieff Symphony No. 6, Strauss "Don Juan", Elgar "Enigma" variations, conductor: Jean Morel.

July 31, Berlioz, "Romeo and Juliet", Dramatic Symphony, with Festival Chorus and soloists, conductor: Charles Munch.

Aug. 7, Berlioz, Overture to "Benvenuto Cellini", "Royal Hun and Storm" from "The Trojans" "Summer Nights", for soprani and orchestra, soloist: Eleano Steberr, "Te Deum" with Festiva Chorus and soloists, conductor Charles Munch.

Aug. 14, Wagner "A Faus Overture", Piston Symphony No 4, Ravel, Piano Concerto, soloist Nicole Henriot, Saint-Saens sym phony No. 3, (With organ), con ductor: Charles Munch.

Six Sunday afternoons, Bostor Symphony orchestra:

July 11, Beethoven, Overture to "Leonore", No. 3, Piano Concerto No. 5 ("Emperor"), soloist: Claudio Arrau, Symphony No. 5 conductor: Pierre Monteux.

July 18, Debussy "Iberia", Copland, Piano Concerto, soloist: Leo Smit, Berlioz "Fantastic Symphony", conductor: Charles Munch.

July 25, Berlioz, Overture to "Beatrice and Benedick", "Harold in Italy", Symphony, (with Viola Solo), soloist: William Primrose, Toch Symphony No. 2, conductor: Charles Munch.

Aug. 1, Prokofieff "Chout", Ballet Suite, Dvorak Violin Concerto, Soloist: Ruth Posselt, Sibelius Symphony No. 2, conductor: Richard Burgin.

Aug. 8, Gluck Overture to "Alceste", Beethoven violin concerto, Soloist: Zino Francescatti Brahms Symhphony No. 2, conductor: Charles Munch.

Aug. 15, Berlioz, "Requiem" with Festival chorus and soloists, conductor: Charles Munch.

Before June 1, inquiries should be addressed to the Berkshire Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston, and after June 1, to the Berkshire Festival, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

THE ORIGINAL
ROMEIKE
PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860

Cir. (D 99,838)

This Clipping From
WORCESTER, MASS.
GAZETTE

MAY 13 1954

BOSTON, MASS.
MORNING GLOBE

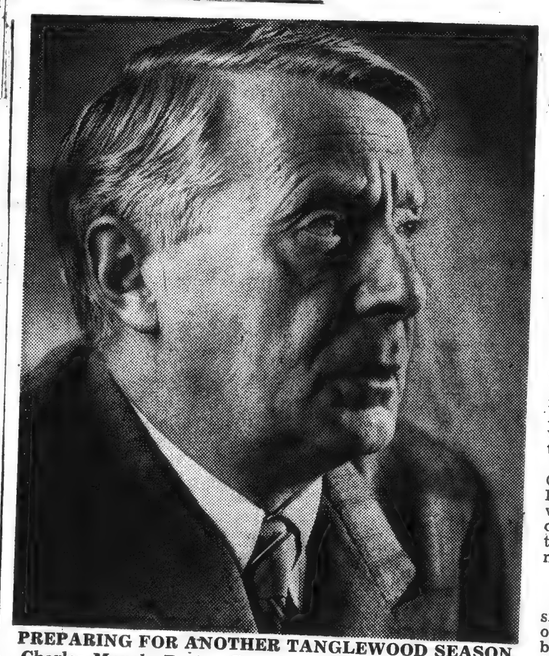
MAY 16 1954

Berkshire Festival Announces Soloists for Great Variety of Summer Concerts

...baritone; David Poleri will sing the single solo ... tenor; Donald Gramm part in Berlioz' "Requiem," with ... John McCollum which Mr. Munch will close the ... Festival on Sunday afternoon, Aug. ... this program a memorial to ... Koussevitsky, for 25 years ... director of the Boston Symphony, pioneer of the Tanglewood ... development.

...John McCollum and Nicola Moscona, who were two of the three soloists in the 1953 festival performance of Berlioz' dramatic symphony "Romeo and Juliet," will repeat their roles in the performance of Saturday evening, ... glewood for this occasion.

Mr. Poleri will also be the soloist in Berlioz' "Te Deum," which Mr. Munch will conduct at the Shed concert of Saturday evening, Aug. 7, with the assistance of the Berkshire Festival Chorus of students of the Berkshire Music Center. Mr. Poleri will sing the single solo part in Berlioz' "Requiem," with which Mr. Munch will close the Festival on Sunday afternoon, Aug. 15, this program a memorial to Serge Koussevitsky, for 25 years music director of the Boston Symphony. John McCollum and Nicola Moscona, who were two of the three soloists in the 1953 festival performance of Berlioz' dramatic symphony "Romeo and Juliet," will repeat their roles in the performance of July 31. Mr. Biggs will give two Saturday afternoon organ recitals in the Music Shed during the latter part of the Berkshire Festival. Other of the summer soloists previously announced, are Miss Steber in Berlioz' "Summer Nights," on Saturday evening, Aug. 7; Lukas Foss in the Bach Brandenburg Concerto No. 5 (Friday evening, July 9) Claudio Arrau, in Beethoven's "Emperor" Concerto (Sunday afternoon, July 11) in an all-Beethoven program which Pierre Monteux will conduct; Vera Franceschi, pianist, in Franck's "Les Djinns," which Mr. Monteux wil conduct (Saturday evening, July 17); Leo Smit, pianist, in Aaron Copland's Piano Concerto (Sunday afternoon, July 18); William Primrose, violist, in Berlioz's "Harold in Italy" Symphony (Sunday afternoon, July 25); Doriot Anthony, first flutist of the Boston Symphony, in Jacques Ibert's Flute Concerto (Friday evening, July 30); Ruth Posselt, violinist, in Dvorak's Violin Concerto (Sunday afternoon, Aug. 1); Seymour Lipkin, pianist, in a Mozart Piano Concerto (Friday evenign, Aug. 6); Zina Francescatti in Beethoven's Violin Concerto (Sunday afternoon, Aug. 8); and Nicole Henriot, pianist, in Ravel's Piano Concerto (Saturday evening, Aug. 14).



PREPARING FOR ANOTHER TANGLEWOOD SEASON
Charles Munch, Boston Symphony Orchestra Conductor

Tanglewood Season Will Open July 7

Special to The Gazette

LENOX, May 13—Operation Tanglewood is under way in this pine-shaded community in the Berkshires as the Boston Symphony Orchestra prepares for its 15th Summer season.

Since 1938 when the huge pie-shaped Music Shed was erected, the Berkshire Music Festival has attracted music lovers from all over the eastern United States and Canada.

This year's program has been eplarged. It will open for six weeks on July 7 with a chamber music concert featuring Claudio Arrau marking his 30th anniversary as a piano soloist with the orchestra.

It will conclude Aug. 15 when Charles Munch will conduct Berlioz's massive "Requiem" with David Poleri, tenor, and other soloists and chorus from the choral and opera departments of the Music Center.

Evening Concerts

The Festival will comprise six Wednesday evening concerts of chamber music by The Alberneri Trio, the Zimbler Sinfonietta, the Griller String Quartet, the Kroll String Quartet and Zino Francescatti donating their services, these concerts benefiting the Music Center. The six concerts by the chamber section of the Boston Symphony, known popularly as "the Bach-Mozart series" formerly given during the first three weekends of the Festival will be strung over each Friday night (except Aug. 13, the day of the gala "Tanglewood on Parade"), when the concert will be given Aug. 12. Mr. Munch, with the assistance of Lukas Foss, Jean Morel and Hugh Ross conducts these concerts, and soloists include Lukas Foss, Seymour Lipkin, pianists; Doriot Anthony, flute.

The Shed concerts this year total 12, as against last year's nine, six on Saturday evenings, six on Sunday afternoons. Charles Munch will conduct, with two concerts led by Pierre Monteux, one by Jean Morel, who heads the orchestra department of the Berkshire Music Center, one by Richard Burgin, concertmaster of the Boston Symphony.

Will Honor Composer

The Shed concerts will honor the 150th anniversary of the birth of Hector Berlioz by performing complete versions of this composer's principal works. These include "The Damnation of Faust" which Mr. Munch conducts July 10, with Eleanor Steber, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, David Poleri, tenor; Martial Singher, baritone; Donald Gramm, bass-baritone, and the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, trained by G. Wallace Woodward; the "Fantastic Symphony," which Mr. Munch conducts July 18; the Overture to "Benvenuto Cellini," "Royal Hunt and Storm" from "The Trojans," "Summer Nights," with Eleanor Steber, and the "Te Deum" with David Poleri and other soloists and Festival and Chorus; and the Festival's concluding "Requiem," Aug. 15 afternoon. Other noted soloists on the Festival's Shed programs are Claudio Arrau, Vera Franceschi, Nicole Henriot and Leo Smit, pianists; Zino Francescatti and Ruth Posselt, violinists.

[118]

SYRACUSE, N. Y.
HERALD-AMERICAN

MAY 16 1954

'54 Tanglewood Soloists; Season in Chautauqua; Lyric Tent Raising

This date in music: 1904, on the 60th anniversary of his first appearance in England, Violinist Joseph Joachim plays the Beethoven Concerto in Queens Hall, London and is presented with Sargent's portrait of him by A. J. Balfour, British statesman.

By E. V. W.

SIX WEEKENDS of summer concerts in "Tanglewood," Lenox, Mass., summer home of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, start in July with members of the Metropolitan Opera among soloists in the huge Music Shed, the orchestra conducted by Charles Munch, music director of the orchestra and the Berkshire Music Festival.

AMONG NOTED soloists during the Tanglewood season: Eleanor Steber, soprano; David Poleri and John McCollum, tenors Martial Singher, baritone; Nicola Moscona, bass-baritone; E. Power Biggs, organist; Claudio Arrau, pianist; Zino Francescatti, violinist. When the Berlioz' "Damnation of Faust" is sung on July 10, the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society under direction of G. Wallace Woodworth, will assist, these choruses from Cambridge, Mass., returning from a first transcontinental tour will make their first visit to Tanglewood. The full 104-piece orchestra will play.

THE FIRST Piano Quartet has been engaged for a concert in Chautauqua the night of Aug. 28, according to Dr. Ralph McCallister, Chautauqua program director, formerly of the faculty of Syracuse University. The Quartet goes to Chautauqua in a Special Music Event. Edwin Fadiman organized the musicians: Adam Garner, glauco D'Atili, Frank Mittler and Edward Edson, each a concert pianist in his own right.

The center will also give a double bill, Orazio Vecchi's sixteenth-century madrigal opera, "L'Amfiparnasso," and Ernst Toch's "The Princess and the Pea," on Tuesday, July 27. According to Frederic Cohen, who heads the opera department this summer, the Tanglewood production of "The Tender Land" will differ in conception from the one first staged here by the City Opera on April 1.

"The Princess and the Pea," first performed in 1927 at Baden Baden in Germany, was introduced to America by a W. P. A. opera company in New York in June, 1936. The Vecchi work, which has been heard here in concert form, will have its first American stage performance.

WORCESTER, MASS.
TELEGRAM
MAY 16 1954

Music

New Copland Opera Slated for Tanglewood

By RAYMOND MORIN, Telegram Music Critic

It may well be that the greatest of the Berkshire Music Center will provide the most important musical event at Tanglewood this Summer.

On Aug. 2 and 3 they will present the second performance anywhere and the New England premiere of Aaron Copland's opera, "The Tender Land," finished in March of this year.

In announcing the new Copland drama, Frederic Cohen, who will head the Center's opera department this Summer while Boris Goldovsky is on leave of absence, stresses that the planned production by the students at Tanglewood will be different in conception from the opera's premiere by the N. Y. City Opera Company at City Center on April [illegible].

Knowing the [illegible] and ingenuity that lies behind these students' efforts, I can well believe it.

Several Surprises

This [illegible] no means the first time that the Berkshire students have hit the jackpot. In 1942, they gave the first Western Hemisphere Concert performance of Shostakovitch's Seventh Symphony. That was the one about which so many of the critics raved [illegible]ly and changed their minds after hearing it a few times.

The Berkshire operatic department was responsible also for stunning productions of "Peter Grimes," "Albert Herring" (one critic inadvertently called it "Albert's Herring" throughout a review), and Jacques Ibert's "Le Roi d'Yvetot."

Perhaps the Copland opera announcement will help soothe Geoffrey O'Hara just a little. He's associated with the American Composer-Authors Guild and is a composer in his own right.

Wrote a Letter

Mr. O'Hara wrote a letter to the editor of Musical Courier and it's in the current issue. It says that he read in the March issue of the magazine, "Complete Berkshire Festival Program"—and it left him speechless.

The letter continues: "The Boston Symphony Orchestra has its hat out asking us American money barons to contribute about half a million dollars of American money or the orchestra will have to fold up.

"So, in the light of this fantastic request, let us take a peek at the programs this orchestra announces, to find out what they proposed to play in the way of American music in return for a half million dollars of American money. And here it is. Hold your seats everybody. The orchestra is giving us two items, one Copland (Piano Concerto) the other Piston (Symphony No. 4). More than 30 hours of music, and maybe (I said maybe) one of these hours given to promote native composers."

Record Stands Up

In the first place, the Boston Symphony has not requested a half million dollars to be earmarked for the performance of American music. Secondly, we reported in this column two weeks ago that the record shows that during the past five seasons, one out of every 11 works conducted by Charles Munch was by an American composer by birth or long residence.

That record stands up well against those of most major symphony orchestras in this country.

Award Winner

I doubt if much of America had ever heard of John Browning until this month. The Juilliard School of Music student, working toward his bachelor of science degree, has now had a taste of fame by winning first prize in the Steinway Centennial Award. The prize is $2000 and the publicity value is worth many times that amount.

The 20-year-old pianist from Los Angeles is a student of Mme. Rosina Lhevinne, widow of Joseph Lhevinne, who played many times in Worcester.

Like the late Olga Samaroff, Mme. Lhevinne has had great success in teaching. The ladies may not reach the highest plateau as composers, but they certainly can turn out pianists.

Heads Recital

Something a little different in the nature of an organ recital will be given at Memorial Hall, Webster, Wednesday evening, May 19, at 8 o'clock.

Porter Heaps will [illegible] max[illegible] day of master cl[illegible] with a program on the H[illegible] and concert organ models, which will include such full-toned works as the "Allegro vivace" from Widor's Fifth Symphony, de Falla's "Ritual Fire Dance," and the "Ride of the Valkyries" by Wagner.

It's expected that about 10 church organists and teachers from the vicinity will attend the sessions at 10 a. m., 2 p. m. and the evening program.

The seminar is sponsored by M. Steinert & Sons Co.

Good Music

Herewith are the complete programs of classical and concert music to be heard this week on the Raymond Morin programs over WTAG and WTAG-FM.

TODAY, 10.30-11 p. m.

KLENKA: Russian and Ludmilla Overture — Philadelphia Orchestra, Eugene Ormandy, conductor.

SIBELIUS: Symphony No. 7 in C major, Opus 105—New York Philharmonic, Sir Thomas Beecham.

Monday, 10.30-11 p. m.

KHACHATURIAN: Lezghinka, from "Gayne Ballet Suite No. 1"—New York Philharmonic, Efrem Kurtz.

IPPOLITOV-IVANOV: Caucasian Sketches, Opus 10 [illegible] Mountain pass; In the [illegible]; Procession of the [illegible] New York Philharmonic, [illegible] conductor.

Tuesday, 10.30-11 p. m.

WAGNER: Invitation to the Dance, Opus 65—Philadelphia Orchestra, Eugene Ormandy.

GRIEG: Norwegian Dances, Opus 35—City of Birmingham Orchestra, George Weldon.

Wednesday, 10.30-11 p. m.

BRAHMS: Hungarian Dance No. 5—Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra, Fritz Reiner.

DEBUSSY: En Blanc et Noir—Vitya Vronsky and Victor Babin, duo-pianists.

JOHANN STRAUSS: Acceleration Waltz—Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, Eugene Ormandy.

Thursday, 10.30-11 p. m.

FRANCK: Symphony in D minor (2nd Mvt.) — Columbia Symphony Orchestra, Artur Rodzinski.

FRANCK: Symphonic Variations—Robert Casadesus, pianist, Philharmonia Orchestra, George Weldon.

Friday, 10.30-11 [illegible]

HANDEL: Water Music Suite (Sarabande and Hornpipe) — Philadelphia Orchestra, Eugene Ormandy.

GRIEG: Peer Gynt Suite No. 1 (Abduction of the Bride; Ingrid's Lament; Arabian Dance; Peer Gynt's Homecoming; Solveig's Song)—City of Birmingham Orchestra, George Weldon.

GERMAN: Henry VIII Dances (Morris Dance; Shepherd's Dance; a Three Dance)—City of Birmingham Orchestra, George Weldon.

KINGSTON, N.Y
FREE
5/20/54

Players and Pipers

By John and Betty Bagley

New Opera

"The Tender Land", a new opera by Aaron Copeland on an American theme, will have its second performance anywhere and its New England premiere as the major production of the Berkshire Music Center Opera Department at Tanglewood on August 2 and 3. There will also be a single performance on July 27 of a double opera bill including Ernst Toch's one-act opera, "The Princess and the Pea" and the 16th century madrigal opera, "L'Amfiparnaso" by Orazio Vecchi. Admission to these operas, (as well as many other special events at Tanglewood), is by membership in the Society of Friends of the Berkshire Music Center only.

Concert Series

Something new is being added to the Berkshire Festival this year in the form of a six-concert series, (including two Sunday concerts), to follow immediately the regular Festival, to be presented by the New York Pro Musica Antiqua. English and Italian 7th century music; court and chapel music from the reigns of Henry V and Henry VIII; Spanish and German Renaissance music; and English medieval and Elizabethan carols will be included on the programs.

The six singers and five instrumentalists in the group have rented a twenty-two room house and an enormous barn in Canaan, New York, which they will occupy early in June, along with their wives and children. There they will prepare for the six concerts, to be given during August in the Town Hall at Lenox, Massachusetts.

Mozart For the Natives

A Mozart Symphony, played on a portable phonograph to Indians in hitherto unexplored jungles of Venezuela and Brazil, was one of the best means of breaking down social barriers, according to a recently returned explorer. Alain Gheerbrant in his just published book, "Journey to the Far Amazon: An Expedition into Unknown Territory" is authority for the statement. He goes on to say that the same Indians remained indifferent to "The Stars and Stripes Forever" and to a Louis Armstrong recording.

Music In The Hills . . .

Next week will mark the last chance for patrons of this summer's Berkshire Music Festival (the 17th, and the 15th in which the Boston Symphony Orchestra has participated) both to save money and obtain preferential seat locations.

In the enlarged Berkshire Festival — which attracted a record-breaking total attendance of 117,950 music-lovers to Tanglewood last summer, an average of 4,360 in its chamber concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall and an average of 10,200 in each of its huge Music Shed concerts — twenty-four concerts will be held in 1954 during the six weeks, July 7 - August 15.

Until June 1, subscriptions may be purchased or further information obtained by writing to the Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15; after that, by mail or telephone to the Box Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. (phone Lenox 600).

NEW CANAAN, CONN
ADVERTISER
5/20/54

Music In The Hills . . .

Next week will mark the last chance for patrons of this summer's Berkshire Music Festival (the 17th, and the 15th in which the Boston Symphony Orchestra has participated) both to save money and obtain preferential seat locations.

In the enlarged Berkshire Festival — which attracted a record-breaking total attendance of 117,950 music-lovers to Tanglewood last summer, an average of 4,360 in its chamber concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall and an average of 10,200 in each of its huge Music Shed concerts — twenty-four concerts will be held in 1954 during the six weeks, July 7 - August 15.

Until June 1, subscriptions may be purchased or further information obtained by writing to the Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15; after that, by mail or telephone to the Box Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. (phone Lenox 600).

New Copland Opera In Berkshire Bow

"The Tender Land," a new opera by Aaron Copland on an American theme, will have its second production anywhere and a New England premiere as the major project this summer of the Berkshire Music Center Opera Department, the Boston Symphony Orchestra announces. There will be two performances of the work in the Theatre-Concert Hall, Tanglewood, Lenox, on Monday and Tuesday evenings, August 2 and 3.

There will be a single performance on July 27 of a double bill of Ernst Toch's one-act opera, "The Princess and the Pea," and the 16th century madrigal opera, "L'Amfiparnaso" by Orazio Vecchi, which will have its first staged performance in the U. S.

Admission to Tanglewood for the opera performances is by invitation to the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, who support its activities with contributions.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN
MAY 16 1954

Six More Soloists Added To Roster for Tanglewood

Martial Singher, David Poleri, Donald Gramm, John McCollum, Nicola Mascona and E. Power Biggs Engaged for Feature Roles

Boston, May 15—Martial Singher, baritone; David Poleri, tenor; Donald Gramm, bass-baritone; John McCollum, tenor; Nicola Moscona, bass-baritone of the Metropolitan Opera; and E. Power Biggs, organist, have been added to the roster of soloists for the Berkshire Festival by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood, Lenox, this summer.

The six weed ends of summer concerts in the hills of Western Massachusetts commence with a chamber music concert by Claudio Arrau, pianist, and the Bel Arte Trio (Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola; and Martin Hoherman, 'cello) in an all-Beethoven program in the Theater-Concert Hall on Wednesday evening, July 7.

College Choruses

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will conduct a chamber orchestra in a program of Bach's Brandenburg Concertos, with Lukas Foss as soloist, in the Theater-Concert Hall on Friday, July 9. The Festival continues through Sunday afternoon, Aug. 15.

Singher, Poleri, Gramm and Eleanor Steber, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, will be soloists in Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust," to be given for the first time at a Berkshire Festival, on Saturday evening, July 10, in the huge Music Shed at Tanglewood, by the full 104-piece Boston Symphony conducted by Mr. Munch, with the assistance of the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society under the direction of G. Wallace Woodworth. The choruses from Cambridge, returning from their first transcontinental tour, will make their first visit to Tanglewood for this occasion.

Poleri will also be the soloist in Berlioz' "Te Deum," which Mr. Munch will conduct at the Shed concert of Saturday evening, Aug. 7, with the assistance of the Berkshire Festival Chorus of students of the Berkshire Music Center, the summer school of music maintained by the orchestra. Poleri will sing the single solo part in Berlioz' "Requiem," which will close the festival on Sunday afternoon, Aug. 15, this program a memorial to Serge Koussevitzky, for 25 years music director of the Boston Symhony, pioneer of the Tanglewood development.

Biggs in Shed

John McCollum and Nicola Moscona, who were two of the three soloists in the 1953 festival performance of Berlioz' dramatic symphony "Romeo and Juliet," will repeat their roles in the performance of Saturday evening, July 31. Biggs will give two Saturday afternoon organ recitals in the Music Shed during the latter part of the Berkshire festival.

Other of the summer soloists, previously announced, are Miss Steber in Berlioz' "Summer Nights," on Saturday evening, Aug. 7; Lukas Foss in the Bach Brandenburg Concerto No. 5 (Fri. eve., July 9) Claudio Arrau, in Beethoven's "Emperor" Concerto (Sun. aft., July 11) in an all-Beethoven program which Pierre Monteux will conduct; Vera Franceschi, pianist, in Franck's "Les Djinns," which Mr. Monteux will conduct (Sat. eve., July 17); Leo Smit, pianist, in Aaron Copland's piano concerto (Sun. aft., July 18).

Other Soloists

Also William Primrose, violist, in Berlioz' "Harold in Italy" Symphony (Sun. aft., July 25); Doriot Anthony, first flutist of the Boston Symphony, in Jacques Ibert's flute concerto (Fri. eve., July 30); Ruth Posselt, violinist, in Dvorak's violin concerto (Sun. aft., Aug. 1); Seymour Lipkin, pianist, in a Mozart piano concerto (Fri. eve., Aug. 6); Zino Francescatti in Beethoven's violin concerto (Sun. aft., Aug. 8); and Nicole Henriot, pianist, in Ravel's piano concerto (Sat. eve., Aug. 14).

Soloists in six choral works which the Berkshire Festival will offer will be chosen from among choral and opera students of the Berkshire Music Center, and will be announced later. These are: the Bach Cantata No. 93 ("Wer nur den lieben Gott") (Fri. eve., July 16); Haydn's "Nelson" Mass, which Hugh Ross conducts (Fri. eve., July 23); the alto role in "Romeo and Juliet" (Sat. eve., July 31); excerpts from Mozart's Berlioz "Te Deum" (Sat. eve., "Idomeneo," which Lukas Foss conducts (Fri. eve., Aug. 6); the Aug. 7) and "Requiem," (Sun. aft., Aug. 15).

PORTLAND, ME.
SUNDAY TELEGRAM
MAY 23 1954

"Aaron Copland's new opera, "The Tender Land," will have its second production and the New England premiere as major project of the summer at the Berkshire Music Center Opera Department, according to an announcement by the Boston Symphony [illegible] These will be two performances of "The Tender Land" at Tanglewood, Lenox, Theater-Concert Hall Aug. 2 and 3. [illegible] to the festival is announced for the Berkshire Festival, it is an impressive list, as is the list of works [illegible] for performance. A trip to the festival offers many delights to the music-minded during the season.

WORCESTER, MASS.
TELEGRAM
MAY 16 1954

Music

New Copland Opera Slated for Tanglewood

By RAYMOND MORIN, Telegram Music Critic

It may well be that the student of the Berkshire Music Center will provide the most important musical event at Tanglewood this Summer.

On Aug. 2 and 3 they will present the second performance anywhere and the New England premiere of Aaron Copland's opera, "The Tender Land," finished in March of this year.

In announcing the new Copland drama, Frederic Cohen, who will head the Center's opera department this Summer while Boris Goldovsky is on leave of absence, stresses that the planned production by the students at Tanglewood will be different in conception from the opera's premiere, by the N. Y. City Opera Company at City Center, on April [illegible].

Knowing the enthusiasm and ingenuity that lies behind these students' efforts, I can well believe it.

Seventh Symphony

This is by no means the first time that the Berkshire students have "hit the jackpot." In 1942, they gave the first Western Hemisphere Concert performance of Shostakovich's Seventh Symphony. That was the one about which so many of the critics raved so rhapsodically and changed their minds after hearing it a few times.

The Berkshire operatic department was responsible also for stunning productions of "Peter Grimes," Albert Herring" (one critic inadvertently called it "Albert's Herring" throughout a review), and Jacques Ibert's "Le Roi d'Yvetot."

Perhaps the Copland opera announcement will help soothe Geoffrey O'Hara just a little. He's associated with the American Composer-Authors Guild and is a composer in his own right.

Wrote a Letter

Mr. O'Hara wrote a letter to the editor of Musical Courier and it's in the current issue. It says that he read in the March issue of the magazine, "Complete Berkshire Festival Program"—and it left him speechless.

The letter continues: "The Boston Symphony Orchestra has its hat out asking us American money barons to contribute about half a million dollars of American money, or the orchestra will have to fold up.

"So, in the light of this fantastic request, let us take a peek at the programs this orchestra announces, to find out what they proposed to play in the way of American music in return for a half million dollars of American money. And here it is. Hold your seats everybody. The orchestra is giving us two items, one Copland (Piano Concerto) the other Piston (Symphony No. 4). More than 30 hours of music, and maybe (I said maybe) one of these hours given to promote native composers."

Record Stands Up

In the first place, the Boston Symphony has not requested a half million dollars to be earmarked for the performance of American music. Secondly, we reported in this column two weeks ago that the record shows that during the past five seasons, one out of every 11 works conducted by Charles Munch was by an American composer by birth or long residence.

That record stands up well against those of most major symphony orchestras in this country.

Award Winner

I doubt if much of America had ever heard of John Browning until this month. The Juilliard School of Music student, working toward his bachelor of science degree, has now had a taste of fame by winning first prize in the Steinway Centennial Award. The prize is $2000 and the publicity value is worth many times that amount.

The 20-year-old pianist from Los Angeles is a student of Mme. Rosina Lhevinne, widow of Joseph Lhevinne, who played many times in Worcester.

Like the late Olga Samaroff, Mme. Lhevinne has had great success in teaching. The ladies may not reach the highest plateaus as composers, but they certainly can turn out pianists.

Heaps Recital

Something a little different in the nature of an organ recital will be given at Memorial Hall YWCA, Wednesday evening May 26, at 8 o'clock.

Porter Heaps will [illegible] day of master classes with a program on the Hall and concert organ model, which will include such full-toned works as the "Allegro vivace" from Widor's Fifth Symphony, de Falla's "Ritual Fire Dance," and the "Ride of the Valkyries" by Wagner.

It's expected that about 10 church organists and teachers from the vicinity will attend the sessions at 10 a. m., 2 p. m. and the evening program.

The seminar is sponsored by M. Steinert & Sons Co.

Good Music

Herewith are the complete programs of classical and concert music to be heard this week on the Raymond Morin programs over WTAG and WTAG-FM.

TODAY, 10.30-11 p. m.

KLENKA: Russian and Ludmilla Overture — Philadelphia Orchestra, Eugene Ormandy, conductor.

SIBELIUS: Symphony No. 7 in C major, Opus 105—New York Philharmonic, Sir Thomas Beecham.

Monday, 10.30-11 p. m.

KHACHATURIAN: Lezghinka, from "Gayne Ballet Suite No. 1"—New York Philharmonic, Efrem Kurtz.

IPPOLITOV-IVANOV: Caucasian Sketches, Opus 10 [illegible] mountain pass; In the village; The Procession of the Sardar) — New York Philharmonic, [illegible] Mitropoulos.

Tuesday, 10.30-11 p. m.

WEBER: Invitation to the Dance, Opus 65—Philadelphia Orchestra, Eugene Ormandy.

GRIEG: Norwegian Dances, Opus 35—City of Birmingham Orchestra, George Weldon.

Wednesday, 10.30-11 p. m.

BRAHMS: Hungarian Dance No. 5—Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra, Fritz Reiner.

DEBUSSY: En Blanc et Noir—Vitya Vronsky and Victor Babin, duo-pianists.

JOHANN STRAUSS: Acceleration Waltz—Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, Eugene Ormandy.

Thursday, 10.30-11 p. m.

FRANCK: Symphony in D minor (2nd Mvt.) — Columbia Symphony Orchestra, Artur Rodzinski.

FRANCK: Symphonic Variations—Robert Casadesus, pianist, Philharmonia Orchestra, George Weldon.

Friday, 10.30-11 p. m.

HANDEL: Water Music Suite (Bourree and Hornpipe) — Philadelphia Orchestra, Eugene Ormandy.

GRIEG: Peer Gynt Suite No. 2 (Abduction of the Bride; Ingrid's Lament; Arabian Dance; Peer Gynt's Homecoming; Solveig's Song)—City of Birmingham Orchestra, George Weldon.

GERMAN: Henry VIII Dances (Morris Dance; Shepherd's Dance; Torch Dance)—City of Birmingham Orchestra, George Weldon.

KINGSTON, N.Y
PRESS
5/20/54

Players and Pipers

By John and Betty Bagley

New Opera

"The Tender Land", a new opera by Aaron Copeland on an American theme, will have its second performance anywhere and its New England premiere as the major production of the Berkshire Music Center Opera Department at Tanglewood on August 2 and 3. There will also be a single performance on July 27 of a double opera bill including Ernst Toch's one-act opera, "The Princess and the Pea" and the 16th century madrigal opera, "L'Amfiparnaso" by Orazio Vecchi. Admission to these operas, (as well as many other special events at Tanglewood), is by membership in the Society of Friends of the Berkshire Music Center only.

Concert Series

Something new is being added to the Berkshire Festival this year in the form of a six-concert series, (including two Sunday concerts), to follow immediately the regular Festival, to be presented by the New York Pro Musica Antiqua. English and Italian 7th century music; court and chapel music from the reigns of Henry V and Henry VIII; Spanish and German Renaissance music; and English medieval and Elizabethan carols will be included on the programs.

The six singers and five instrumentalists in the group have rented a twenty-two room house and an enormous barn in Canaan, New York, which they will occupy early in June, along with their wives and children. There they will prepare for the six concerts, to be given during August in the Town Hall at Lenox, Massachusetts.

Mozart For the Natives

A Mozart Symphony, played on a portable phonograph to Indians in hitherto unexplored jungles of Venezuela and Brazil, was one of the best means of breaking down social barriers, according to a recently returned explorer. Alain Gheerbrant in his just published book, "Journey to the Far Amazon' An Expedition into Unknown Territory" is authority for the statement. He goes on to say that the same Indians remained indifferent to "The Stars and Stripes Forever" and to a Louis Armstrong recording.

NEW CANAAN, CONN
ADVERTISER
5/20/54

Music In The Hills . . .

Next week will mark the last chance for patrons of this summer's Berkshire Music Festival (the 17th, and the 15th in which the Boston Symphony Orchestra has participated) both to save money and obtain preferential seat locations.

In the enlarged Berkshire Festival — which attracted a record-breaking total attendance of 117,950 music-lovers to Tanglewood last summer, an average of 4,360 in its chamber concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall and an average of 10,200 in each of its huge Music Shed concerts — twenty-four concerts will be held in 1954 during the six weeks, July 7 - August 15.

Until June 1, subscriptions may be purchased or further information obtained by writing to the Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15; after that, by mail or telephone to the Box Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. (phone Lenox 600).

New Copland Opera In Berkshire Bow

"The Tender Land," a new opera by Aaron Copland on an American theme, will have its second production anywhere and a New England premiere as the major project this summer of the Berkshire Music Center Opera Department, the Boston Symphony Orchestra announces. There will be two performances of the work in the Theatre-Concert Hall, Tanglewood, Lenox, on Monday and Tuesday evenings, August 2 and 3.

There will be a single performance on July 27 of a double bill of Ernst Toch's one-act opera, "The Princess and the Pea," and the 16th century madrigal opera, "L'Amfiparnaso" by Orazio Vecchi, which will have its first staged performance in the U. S.

Admission to Tanglewood for the opera performances is by invitation to the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, who support its activities with contributions.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN
MAY 16 1954

Six More Soloists Added To Roster for Tanglewood

Martial Singher, David Poleri, Donald Gramm, John McCollum, Nicola Mascona and E. Power Biggs Engaged for Feature Roles

Boston, May 15—Martial Singher, baritone; David Poleri, tenor; Donald Gramm, bass-baritone; John McCollum, tenor; Nicola Moscona, bass-baritone of the Metropolitan Opera; and E. Power Biggs, organist, have been added to the roster of soloists for the Berkshire Festival by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood, Lenox, this summer.

The six weed ends of summer concerts in the hills of Western Massachusetts commence with a chamber music concert by Claudio Arrau, pianist, and the Bel Arte Trio (Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola; and Martin Hoherman, 'cello) in an all-Beethoven program in the Theater-Concert Hall on Wednesday evening, July 7.

College Choruses

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will conduct a chamber orchestra in a program of Bach's Brandenburg Concertos, with Lukas Foss as soloist, in the Theater-Concert Hall on Friday, July 9. The Festival continues through Sunday afternoon, Aug. 15.

Singher, Poleri, Gramm and Eleanor Steber, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, will be soloists in Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust," to be given for the first time at a Berkshire Festival, on Saturday evening, July 10, in the huge Music Shed at Tanglewood, by the full 104-piece Boston Symphony conducted by Mr. Munch, with the assistance of the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society under the direction of G. Wallace Woodworth. The choruses from Cambridge, returning from their first transcontinental tour, will make their first visit to Tanglewood for this occasion.

Poleri will also be the soloist in Berlioz' "Te Deum," which Mr. Munch will conduct at the Shed concert of Saturday evening, Aug. 7, with the assistance of the Berkshire Festival Chorus of students of the Berkshire Music Center, the summer school of music maintained by the orchestra. Poleri will sing the single solo part in Berlioz' "Requiem," which will close the festival on Sunday afternoon, Aug. 15, this program a memorial to Serge Koussevitzky, for 25 years music director of the Boston Symhony, pioneer of the Tanglewood development.

Biggs in Shed

John McCollum and Nicola Moscona, who were two of the three soloists in the 1953 festival performance of Berlioz' dramatic symphony "Romeo and Juliet," will repeat their roles in the performance of Saturday evening, July 31. Biggs will give two Saturday afternoon organ recitals in the Music Shed during the latter part of the Berkshire festival.

Other of the summer soloists, previously announced, are Miss Steber in Berlioz' "Summer Nights," on Saturday evening, Aug. 7; Lukas Foss in the Bach Brandenburg Concerto No. 5 (Fri. eve., July 9) Claudio Arrau, in Beethoven's "Emperor" Concerto (Sun. aft., July 11) in an all-Beethoven program which Pierre Monteux will conduct; Vera Franceschi, pianist, in Franck's "Les Djinns," which Mr. Monteux will conduct (Sat. eve., July 17); Leo Smit, pianist, in Aaron Copland's piano concerto (Sun. aft., July 18).

Other Soloists

Also William Primrose, violist, in Berlioz' "Harold in Italy" Symphony (Sun. aft., July 25); Doriot Anthony, first flutist of the Boston Symphony, in Jacques Ibert's flute concerto (Fri. eve., July 30); Ruth Posselt, violinist, in Dvorak's violin concerto (Sun. aft., Aug. 1); Seymour Lipkin, pianist, in a Mozart piano concerto (Fri. eve., Aug. 6); Zino Francescatti in Beethoven's violin concerto (Sun. aft., Aug. 8); and Nicole Henriot, pianist, in Ravel's piano concerto (Sat. eve., Aug. 14).

Soloists in six choral works which the Berkshire Festival will offer will be chosen from among choral and opera students of the Berkshire Music Center, and will be announced later. These are: the Bach Cantata No. 93 ("Wer nur den lieben Gott") (Fri. eve., July 16); Haydn's "Nelson" Mass, which Hugh Ross conducts (Fri. eve., July 23); the [illegible] role in "Romeo and Juliet" (Sat. eve., July 31); excerpts from Mozart's Berlioz "Te Deum" (Sat. eve., "Idomeneo," which Lukas Foss conducts (Fri. eve., Aug. 6); the Aug. 7) and "Requiem" (Sun. aft., Aug. 15).

Music . . .

Next week will mark the last chance for patrons of this summer's Berkshire Music Festival (the 17th, and the 15th in which the Boston Symphony Orchestra has participated) both to save money and obtain preferential seat locations.

In the enlarged Berkshire Festival — which attracted a record-breaking total attendance of 117,950 music-lovers to Tanglewood last summer, an average of 4,360 in its chamber concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall and an average of 10,200 in each of its huge Music Shed concerts — twenty-four concerts will be held in 1954 during the six weeks, July 7 - August 15.

Until June 1, subscriptions may be purchased or further information obtained by writing to the Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15; after that, by mail or telephone to the Box Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. (phone Lenox 600).

PORTLAND, ME.
SUNDAY TELEGRAM
MAY 23 195[illegible]

"Aaron Copland's new opera, "The Tender Land," will have its second production and its New England premiere as major project of the Summer at the Berkshire Music Center Opera department, according to an announcement by the Boston Symphony Orchestra. There will be two performances of "The Tender Land" at Tanglewood, Mass., Theater-Concert Hall the evenings of Aug. 2 and 3. As to the soloists announced for the Berkshire Festival, it is an impressive list, as is the list of works scheduled for performance. A trip to the festival offers many delights to the music-minded during the season.

TIGHT BINDING

IRFIELD, CONN
WS
/23/54

sic In The Hills . . .

ext week will mark the last nce for patrons of this sum-
's Berkshire Music Festival
17th, and the 15th in which Boston Symphony Orches-has participated) both to money and obtain prefer-l seat locations.

the enlarged Berkshire Fes-
— which attracted a rec-breaking total attendance of 950 music-lovers to Tangled last summer, an average 360 in its chamber concerts
Theatre-Concert Hall and verage of 10,200 in each of uge Music Shed concerts — nty-four concerts will be in 1954 during the six ks, July 7 - August 15.

ntil June 1, subscriptions be purchased or further in-nation obtained by writing
e Festival Office, Symphony l, Boston 15; after that, by
l. or telephone to the Box
ce, Tanglewood, Lenox,
s. (phone Lenox 600).

Added
nglewood

ald Gramm, John nd E. Power Biggs

f the Boston Symhony,
the Tanglewood de-

Biggs in Shed

Collum and Nicola Moswere two of the three the 1953 festival per-of Berlioz' dramatic
"Romeo and Juliet," their roles in the per-
of Saturday evening,
Biggs will give two fternoon organ recitals ic Shed during the lat-
the Berkshire festival.
the summer soloists,
announced, are Miss Berlioz' "Summer
on. Saturday evening,
ukas Foss in the Bach
g Concerto No. 5 (Fri.
9) Claudio Arrau, in "Emperor" Concerto
July 11) in an all-program which Pierre ill conduct; Vera Fran-nist, in Franck's "Les hich Mr. Monteux will
at. eve., July 17); Leo st, in Aaron Copland's erto (Sun. aft., July

ther Soloists

iam Primrose, violist,
"Harold in Italy"
(Sun. aft., July 25);
ony, first flutist of the mphony, in Jacques concerto (Fri. eve.,
Ruth Posselt, violinist, violin concerto (Sun.
1) ; Seymour Lipkin,
a Mozart piano con-eve., Aug. 6); Zino
in Beethoven's violin
un. aft., Aug. 8); and iot, pianist, in Ravel's erto (Sat. eve., Aug.

n six choral works
Berkshire Festival will e chosen from among opera students of the lusic Center, and will ed later. These are:
antata No. 93 ("Wer
en Gott") (Fri. eve.,
ydn's "Nelson" Mass,
Ross conducts (Fri.
23); the alto role in d Juliet" (Sat. eve.,
cerpts from Mozart's Deum" (Sat. eve., which Lukas Foss eve., Aug. 6); the d "Requiem" (Sun
).

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
EVE. NEWS
MAY 22 1954

Series Subscription Drive Goes Into Its Final Week

Patrons Desiring Preferential Locations for Berkshire Music Festival Notified of Deadline by Boston Symphony Officials

Boston, May 22—This is the final week for patrons of the Berkshire Music Festival, the 17th to be held in the hills of Western Massachusetts and the 15th in which the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, music director, has participated, to effect a savings and secure preferential locations by obtaining series subscriptions.

ELEANOR STEBER

In the enlarged Berkshire Festival, which attracted a record-breaking total attendance of 117,950 music lovers to Tanglewood last summer, an average of 4360 in its chamber concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall and an average of 10,200 in each of its huge Music Shed concerts, 24 concerts will be held in 1954, during the six weeks, July 7-August 15.

Until June 1, subscriptions may be purchased by writing to the Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15 for the following pairs of Shed concerts: Saturday evening July 10 and Sunday afternoon July 11; July 17 and 18; July 24 and 25; July 31 and Aug. 1; Aug. 7 and 8; Aug. 14 and 15. Applications for single concert ticket sale are received by mail or telephone to the box office, Tanglewood, Lenox, phone: Lenox 600.

Berlioz Memorial

The Shed concerts, which Mr. Munch will inaugurate on July 10 with the full 104-piece Boston Symphony Orchestra, will honor the 150th anniversary season of the birth of Hector Berlioz by performing complete versions of this composer's principal works. Guest conductors in the Shed series will be Pierre Monteux (two concerts), Jean Morel (one concert), Richard Burgin (one concert). Among the soloists, will be Metropolitan Opera stars Eleanor Steber, soprano, and Nicola Moscona, bass-baritone; David Poleri and John McCollum, tenors; Martial Singher, baritone; Donald Gramm, bass-baritone. Piano soloists will be Claudio Arrau, Vera Franceschi, Nicole Henriot, and Leo Smit. Violin soloists are Zino Francescatti and Ruth Posselt. Other guest artists are William Primrose, violist, and the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society.

Friday Concerts

The Festival offers also six Friday evening chamber concerts, known popularly as "the Bach-Mozart series," in the Theatre-Concert Hall on July 9, 16, 23, 30, Aug. 6 and 12 (Thursday), performed by Charles Munch and the chamber section of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, with Lukas Foss, Jean Morel and Hugh Ross as guest conductors, and with Lukas Foss and Seymour Lipkin, pianists, and Doriot Anthony, flutist, as soloists. Tickets for each concert are available now to subscribers to one or more of the Shed series.

An innovation this summer is the Wednesday evening chamber music concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall, on July 7, 14, 21, 28, Aug. 4, 11. These feature such noted artists as Claudio Arrau, the Bel Arte Trio, the Albeneri Trio, the Zimbler Sinfonietta, the Griller String Quartet, the Kroll String Quartet, and Zino Francescatti.

NORTHAMPTON, MASS.
HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE
MAY 21 1954

the play.

Time Short To Purchase Berkshire Festival Tickets

This is the final week for patrons of the Berkshire Music Festival, the 17th to be held in the hills of Western Massachusetts and the 15th in which the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, music director, has participated, to effect a savings and secure preferential locations by obtaining series subscriptions.

In the enlarged Berkshire Festival, which attracted a record-breaking total attendance of 117,950 music lovers to Tanglewood last summer, an average of 4,360 in its chamber concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall and an average of 10,200 in each of its huge Music Shed concerts, 24 concerts will be held in 1954, during the six weeks, July 7-August 15.

Until June 1, subscriptions may be purchased by writing to the Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass., for the following pairs of Shed concerts: Saturday evening, July 10 and Sunday afternoon, July 11; July 17 and 18; July 24 and 25; July 31 and August 1; August 7 and 8; August 14 and 15, at $10, $7.50, $6.50, $5.50 and $4.50, a saving over individual price for remaining seats for any single concert which after June 1 are priced at $6.50, $5.50, $4.00, $3.50, $3.00 and $2.50. Applications for single concert ticket sale are received by mail or telephone to the Box Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

The Shed concerts, which Mr. Munch will inaugurate on July 10 with the full 104-piece Boston Symphony Orchestra, will honor the 150th anniversary season of the birth of Hector Berlioz by performing complete versions of this composer's principal works. Guest conductors in the Shed series will be Pierre Monteux (two concerts), Jean Morel (one concert), Richard Burgin (one concert). Among the noted soloists will be Metropolitan Opera stars Eleanor Steber, soprano, and Nicola Moscona, bass-baritone; David Poleri and John McCollum, tenors; Martial Singher, baritone; Donald Gramm, bass-baritone. Piano soloists will be Claudio Arrau, Vera Franceschi, Nicole Henriot, and Leo Smit. Violin soloists are Zino Francescatti and Ruth Posselt. Other guest artists are William Primrose, violist, and the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society.

NORTH ADAMS, MASS.
TRANSCRIPT
MAY 29 1954

Berkshire Residents Get 10 Days More For Tanglewood Tickets

Berkshire county residents have been given an extra 10 days to subscribe for series tickets to the Berkshire Symphonic festival concerts at Tanglewood, Lenox, this summer.

The Boston Symphony orchestra management announced today that although the series subscription sale ends this week-end for everyone else, it will be extended until June 10 for county residents. George E. Judd, orchestra manager, said the intent was to give "Tanglewood's neighbors an advantage in securing seats" in the more desirable locations and at the reduced rates applying to season tickets. Meantime, the sale of tickets for the individual concerts will open at the Tanglewood box office Thursday. Applications for season tickets may be made there by mail or by telephone.

At the same time, Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony, orchestra which presents the Tanglewood concerts, and director of the Berkshire Music center, advanced school for serious students of music conducted in connection with the festival, said that more than a dozen special scholarships had been made available at the school this year. The school will operate from July 5 to Aug 15. The festival opens July 7 and also runs to Aug. 15. It will include six Wednesday evening chamber music concerts and six Friday evening Bach-Mozart concerts in the theater-concert hall and six Saturday evening and six Sunday afternoon concerts by the full Boston Symphony orchestra in the huge Tanglewood music shed.

BOSTON, MASS.
MORNING GLOBE
MAY 30 1954

Munch Recording Wins Grand Prix

The recording of Berlioz' "Romeo and Juliet," as made by the Boston Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Charles Munch for R. C. A. Victor, has been awarded the "Grand Prix for vocal ensemble with orchestra" by the Academie Charles Cros of France. Assisting the orchestra were the Harvard and Radcliffe choruses. The soloists were Margaret Roggiero, contralto; Leslie Chabay, tenor, and Yi Kwei-Sze, bass.

This recording and likewise the performances of the work by Boston's Orchestra have been a feature of the past season, celebrating the 150th anniversary of the composer's birth. These performances were given in New York, Washington, D. C., and Lenox (Tanglewood), as well as Boston.

Berlioz' "Damnation of Faust," another feature of the past season, has likewise been recorded by this orchestra. Both scores will be featured in a Berlioz anniversary season at the Berkshire Festival next July and August.

BOSTON, MASS.
MORNING GLOBE
MAY 23 1954

Sale of Tickets for Berkshire Festival

This is the final week for patrons of the Berkshire Music Festival, the 17th to be held in the hills of Western Massachusetts and the 15th in which the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, music director, has participated, to effect a savings and secure preferential locations by obtaining series subscriptions.

Until June 1, subscriptions may be purchased by writing to the Festival office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass., for the following pairs of Shed concerts: Saturday evening, July 10 and Sunday afternoon, July 11; July 17 and 18; July 24 and 25; July 31 and Aug. 1; Aug. 7 and 8; Aug. 14 and 15, at $10, $7.50, $6.50, $5.50 and $4.50, a saving over individual price for remaining seats for any single concert which after June 1 are priced at $6.50, $5.50, $4, $3.50, $3 and $2.50. Applications for single concert ticket sale are received by mail or telephone to the box office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.; phone Lenox 600.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN
MAY 23 1954

ADVANCE SALE FOR TANGLEWOOD

Boston, May 22—This is the final week for patrons of the Berkshire Music Festival, the 17th to be held in the hills of Western Massachusetts and the 15th in which the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, music director, has participated, to effect a savings and secure preferential locations by obtaining series subscriptions.

In the enlarged Berkshire Festival, which attracted a record-breaking total attendance of 117,950 music lovers to Tanglewood last summer, an average of 4360 in its chamber concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall and an average of 10,200 in each of its huge Music Shed concerts, 24 concerts will be held in 1954, during the six weeks, July 7-August 15.

Until June 1, subscriptions may be purchased by writing to the Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15. Applications for single concert ticket sale are received by mail or telephone to the Box office, Tanglewood, Lenox; phone Lenox 600.

PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE
MAY 28 1954

Tanglewood Box Office Opens June 3

TANGLEWOOD—The series subscription sale for the Berkshire Festival concerts by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood ends this weekend. The sale of tickets for single concerts commences Thursday, June 3, when the Tanglewood box office opens for the season. However, Berkshire County residents will be given an extension to June 10, orchestra manager George E. Judd announces, to take advantage of preferential locations and the saving involved in securing series subscriptions.

Under the direction of Charles Munch, music director, the Boston Symphony Orchestra will give 24 concerts at the 1954 Berkshire Festival, between July 7 and Aug. 15, including six Wednesday evening chamber concerts, six Friday evening "Bach-Mozart" concerts by the chamber section of the orchestra, six Saturday evening and six Sunday afternoon concerts by the full 104-man symphony in the Music Shed.

In announcing the extension of series sale to Berkshire County residents, a popular innovation this year, Mr. Judd feels Tanglewood's neighbors will have an advantage of securing seats if they act promptly over those who have not made similar provision and must find accommodation on the grounds of Tanglewood. Last year the Berkshire Festival shattered all attendance records, with an average of 4,360 at its chamber concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall (capacity 1,152) and an average of 10,200 for each of its concerts in the Music Shed (capacity 6,000).

BALTIMORE, MD.
NEWS-POST
MAY 26 1954

Berkshire Music Fete July 7

This is the final week for patrons of the Berkshire Music Festival to obtain subscription tickets for the various series of concerts, to be held at Tanglewood during the six weeks from July 7 to August 15.

The enlarged Festival will be the seventeenth in the series, and the fifteenth in which the Boston Symphony Orchestra has participated. It is expected this season's attendance will surpass the record-breaking figure of nearly 118-000 in 1953.

Twenty-four Shed concerts will be given, on Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons, beginning July 10-11, and there is a large saving to be made by subscribing, for which address Symphony Hall, Boston 15. For single seats, write to the Box Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

* * *

CHARLES MUNCH, who has just completed his fifth year as conductor of the Boston Symphony, will lead that ensemble of 104 in complete versions of the works of Berlioz, commemorating the 150th anniversary of the composer's birth.

The Bach-Mozart series of Chamber Music concerts will also be held, on Friday evenings, and the newly-arranged Wednesday evening Chamber music series, both in the Theater-Concert Hall.

H. A. F. P.

WEST HARTFORD, CONN
NEWS
5/27/54

BERKSHIRE

Monday, June 1st is the deadline for mailing subscriptions in for the Berkshire Festival if you want preferential locations and at the same time save a buck. Send your checks to the Festival Office, Symphony Hall. Applications for single concert ticket may be sent by mail or telephone to the box office at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

The 16th annual festival last year broke all attendance records with over 117,000 music lovers. This year's concerts have doubled up in both Shed and Concert-Theater Hall. Marking the 150th anniversary of the birth of Hector Berlioz, complete versions of his principal works will be given by the 104 piece Boston Symphony with Pierre Monteux, Jean Morel and Richard Burgin as guest conductors. Among noted Metropolitan Opera stars will be Eleanor Steber, Nicola Moscona, David Poleri, John McCollum, Martial Singher, and Donald Gramm. Other guest artists will include William Primrose, Vera Franceschi, Zino Francescatti, Ruth Posselt, Claudio Arrau, Nicole Henriot, the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society. Another big season seems to be in the making.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
MAR 14 1954

GUESTS

Each summer the Berkshire Music Center has a famous composer as guest instructor. This year the guest at Tanglewood will be Ernst Toch. He will join Aaron Copland in teaching composition during the six-week session.

Because Leonard Bernstein and Boris Goldovsky will be on leaves of absence, their posts as heads of the orchestra and opera departments will be taken by Jean Morel and Frederic Cohen. Lukas Foss will be head of the Tanglewood study group in place of Ingolf Dahl, another faculty member on leave.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE
MAY 23 1954

Tanglewood Tickets

BOSTON, May 22.—The subscription ticket sale at reduced rates for the Boston Symphony Orchestra's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., closes June 1. Until that date, subscriptions for the pairs of concerts by the full orchestra in Tanglewood's Music Shed, Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons, July 10-11 through Aug. 14-15, can be purchased by writing to the Festival Ofice, Symphony Hall, Boston 15 Mass. Applications for single concert tickets may be made by mail or telephone to the box ofice at Tanglewood (Lenox 600). Subscribers to the Shed series are also entitled to tickets at reduced rates in Tanglewood's Theater-Concert Hall on Friday nights, July 6 through Aug. 4, and Thursday, Aug. 12.

[120]

TIGHT BINDING

...FIELD, CONN.
...54

...sic In The Hills . . .

...ext week will mark the last ...nce for patrons of this sum... ...'s Berkshire Music Festival ... 17th, and the 15th in which ... Boston Symphony Orches... ...has participated) both to ... money and obtain prefer... ...l seat locations.

... the enlarged Berkshire Fes... — which attracted a rec... ...breaking total attendance of ...950 music-lovers to Tangle... ...d last summer, an average ...360 in its chamber concerts ...e Theatre-Concert Hall and ...verage of 10,200 in each of ...uge Music Shed concerts — ...nty-four concerts will be ... in 1954 during the six ...ks, July 7 - August 15.

...ntil June 1, subscriptions ... be purchased or further in... ...nation obtained by writing ...e Festival Office, Symphony ..., Boston 15; after that, by ...1 or telephone to the Box ...ce, Tanglewood, Lenox, ...s. (phone Lenox 600).

...Added ...anglewood

...nald Gramm, John ...nd E. Power Biggs

...f the Boston Symhony, ... the Tanglewood de...

...Biggs in Shed

...Collum and Nicola Mos... were two of the three ... the 1953 festival per... of Berlioz' dramatic "Romeo and Juliet," ... their roles in the per... of Saturday evening, Biggs will give two ...fternoon organ recitals ...sic Shed during the lat... ...f the Berkshire festival. ... the summer soloists, ... announced, are Miss ... Berlioz' "Summer ...on, Saturday evening, ...ukas Foss in the Bach ...rg Concerto No. 5 (Fri. 9) Claudio Arrau, in ...s "Emperor" Concerto July 11) in an all- program which Pierre ...ill conduct; Vera Fran... ...nist, in Franck's "Les ...hich Mr. Monteux will ...at. eve., July 17); Leo ...ist, in Aaron Copland's ...certo (Sun. aft., July

...Other Soloists

...liam Primrose, violist, "Harold in Italy" (Sun. aft., July 25); ...hony, first flutist of the ...mphony, in Jacques ...e concerto (Fri. eve., Ruth Posselt, violinist, ...s violin concerto (Sun. 1) ; Seymour Lipkin, a Mozart piano con... eve., Aug. 6); Zino ...i in Beethoven's violin Sun. aft., Aug. 8); and ...riot, pianist, in Ravel's ...certo (Sat. eve., Aug.

...in six choral works Berkshire Festival will ...e chosen from among opera students of the Music Center, and will ...ed later. These are: Cantata No. 93 ("Wer ...ben Gott") (Fri. eve., ...aydn's "Nelson" Mass, ...h Ross conducts (Fri. 23); the alto role in ...d Juliet" (Sat. eve., excerpts from Mozart's ...e Deum" (Sat. eve., ... which Lukas Foss ...ri. eve., Aug. 6); the ...nd "Requiem" (Sun. ...5).

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
EVE. NEWS
MAY 2...

Series Subscription Drive Goes Into Its Final Week

Patrons Desiring Preferential Locations for Berkshire Music Festival Notified of Deadline by Boston Symphony Officials

Boston, May 22—This is the final week for patrons of the Berkshire Music Festival, the 17th to be held in the hills of Western Massachusetts and the 15th in which the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, music director, has participated, to effect a savings and secure preferential locations by obtaining series subscriptions.

In the enlarged Berkshire Festival, which attracted a record-breaking total attendance of 117,950 music lovers to Tanglewood last summer, an average of 4,360 in its chamber concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall and an average of 10,200 in each of its huge Music Shed concerts, 24 concerts will be held in 1954, during the six weeks, July 7-August 15.

Until June 1, subscriptions may be purchased by writing to the Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass., for the following pairs of Shed concerts: Saturday evening, July 10 and Sunday afternoon, July 11; July 17 and 18; July 24 and 25; July 31 and August 1; August 7 and 8; August 14 and 15, at $10, $7.50, $6.50, $5.50 and $4.50, a saving over individual price for remaining seats for any single concert which after June 1 are priced at $6.50, $5.50, $4.00, $3.50, $3.00 and $2.50. Applications for single concert ticket sale are received by mail or telephone to the Box Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

The Shed concerts, which Mr. Munch will inaugurate on July 10 with the full 104-piece Boston Symphony Orchestra, will honor the 150th anniversary season of the birth of Hector Berlioz by performing complete versions of this composer's principal works. Guest conductors in the Shed series will be Pierre Monteux (two concerts), Jean Morel (one concert), Richard Burgin (one concert). Among the soloists, will be Metropolitan Opera stars Eleanor Steber, soprano, and Nicola Moscona, bass-baritone; David Poleri and John McCollum, tenors; Martial Singher, baritone; Donald Gramm, bass-baritone. Piano soloists will be Claudio Arrau, Vera Franceschi, Nicole Henriot, and Leo Smit. Violin soloists are Zino Francescatti and Ruth Posselt. Other guest artists are William Primrose, violist, and the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society.

Berlioz Memorial

The Shed concerts, which Mr. Munch will inaugurate on July 10 with the full 104-piece Boston Symphony Orchestra, will honor the 150th anniversary season of the birth of Hector Berlioz by performing complete versions of this composer's principal works. Guest conductors in the Shed series will be Pierre Monteux (two concerts), Jean Morel (one concert), Richard Burgin (one concert). Among the soloists, will be Metropolitan Opera stars Eleanor Steber, soprano, and Nicola Moscona, bass-baritone; David Poleri and John McCollum, tenors; Martial Singher, baritone; Donald Gramm, bass-baritone. Piano soloists will be Claudio Arrau, Vera Franceschi, Nicole Henriot, and Leo Smit. Violin soloists are Zino Francescatti and Ruth Posselt. Other guest artists are William Primrose, violist, and the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society.

Friday Concerts

The Festival offers also six Friday evening chamber concerts, known popularly as "the Bach-Mozart series," in the Theatre-Concert Hall on July 9, 16, 23, 30, Aug. 6 and 12 (Thursday), performed by Charles Munch and the chamber section of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, with Lukas Foss, Jean Morel and Hugh Ross as guest conductors, and with Lukas Foss and Seymour Lipkin, pianists, and Doriot Anthony, flutist, as soloists. Tickets for each concert are available now to subscribers to one or more of the Shed series.

An innovation this summer is the Wednesday evening chamber music concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall, on July 7, 14, 21, 28, Aug. 4, 11. These feature such noted artists as Claudio Arrau, the Bel Arte Trio, the Albeneri Trio, the Zimbler Sinfonietta, the Griller String Quartet, the Kroll String Quartet, and Zino Francescatti.

ELEANOR STEBER

Charles Munch, music director, has participated, to effect a savings and secure preferential locations by obtaining series subscriptions.

In the enlarged Berkshire Festival, which attracted a record-breaking total attendance of 117,950 music lovers to Tanglewood last summer, an average of 4360 in its chamber concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall and an average of 10,200 in each of its huge Music Shed concerts, 24 concerts will be held in 1954, during the six weeks, July 7-August 15.

Until June 1, subscriptions may be purchased by writing to the Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass., for the following pairs of Shed concerts: Saturday evening, July 10 and Sunday afternoon, July 11; July 17 and 18; July 24 and 25; July 31 and Aug. 1; Aug. 7 and 8; Aug. 14 and 15, at $10, $7.50, $6.50, $5.50 and $4.50, a saving over individual price for remaining seats for any single concert which after June 1 are priced at $6.50, $5.50, $4.00, $3.50, $3.00 and $2.50. Applications for single concert ticket sale are received by mail or telephone to the Box Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

The Shed concerts, which Mr. Munch will inaugurate on July 10 with the full 104-piece Boston Symphony Orchestra, will honor the 150th anniversary season of the birth of Hector Berlioz by performing complete versions of this composer's principal works. Guest conductors in the Shed series will be Pierre Monteux (two concerts), Jean Morel (one concert), Richard Burgin (one concert). Among the noted soloists will be Metropolitan Opera stars Eleanor Steber, soprano, and Nicola Moscona, bass-baritone; David Poleri and John McCollum, tenors; Martial Singher, baritone; Donald Gramm, bass-baritone. Piano soloists will be Claudio Arrau, Vera Franceschi, Nicole Henriot, and Leo Smit. Violin soloists are Zino Francescatti and Ruth Posselt. Other guest artists are William Primrose, violist, and the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society.

An innovation this summer is the Wednesday evening chamber music concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall, on July 7, 14, 21, 28, Aug. 4, 11. These feature such noted artists as Claudio Arrau, the Bel Arte Trio, the Albeneri Trio, the Zimbler Sinfonietta, the Griller String Quartet, the Kroll String Quartet, and Zino Francescatti.

NORTHAMPTON, MASS.
HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE
MAY 21 1954

...the play.

Time Short To Purchase Berkshire Festival Tickets

This is the final week for patrons of the Berkshire Music Festival, the 17th to be held in the hills of Western Massachusetts and the 15th in which the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, music director, has participated, to effect a savings and secure preferential locations by obtaining series subscriptions.

In the enlarged Berkshire Festival, which attracted a record-breaking total attendance of 117,950 music lovers to Tanglewood last summer, an average of 4,360 in its chamber concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall and an average of 10,200 in each of its huge Music Shed concerts, 24 concerts will be held in 1954, during the six weeks, July 7-August 15.

Until June 1, subscriptions may be purchased by writing to the Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass., for the following pairs of Shed concerts: Saturday evening, July 10 and Sunday afternoon, July 11; July 17 and 18; July 24 and 25; July 31 and August 1; August 7 and 8; August 14 and 15, at $10, $7.50, $6.50, $5.50 and $4.50, a saving over individual price for remaining seats for any single concert which after June 1 are priced at $6.50, $5.50, $4.00, $3.50, $3.00 and $2.50. Applications for single concert ticket sale are received by mail or telephone to the Box Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

The Shed concerts, which Mr. Munch will inaugurate on July 10 with the full 104-piece Boston Symphony Orchestra, will honor the 150th anniversary season of the birth of Hector Berlioz by performing complete versions of this composer's principal works. Guest conductors in the Shed series will be Pierre Monteux (two concerts), Jean Morel (one concert), Richard Burgin (one concert. Among the noted soloists will be Metropolitan Opera stars Eleanor Steber, soprano, and Nicola Moscona, bass-baritone; David Poleri and John McCollum, tenors; Martial Singher, baritone; Donald Gramm, bass-baritone. Piano soloists will be Claudio Arrau, Vera Franceschi, Nicole Henriot, and Leo Smit. Violin soloists are Zino Francescatti and Ruth Posselt. Other guest artists are William Primrose, violist, and the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society.

NORTH ADAMS, MASS.
TRANSCRIPT
MAY 29 1954

Berkshire Residents Get 10 Days More For Tanglewood Tickets

Berkshire county residents have been given an extra 10 days to subscribe for series tickets to the Berkshire Symphonic festival concerts at Tanglewood, Lenox, this summer.

The Boston Symphony orchestra management announced today that although the series subscription sale ends this week-end for everyone else, it will be extended until June 10 for county residents. George E. Judd, orchestra manager, said the intent was to give "Tanglewood's neighbors an advantage in securing seats" in the more desirable locations and at the reduced rates applying to season tickets. Meantime, the sale of tickets for the individual concerts will open at the Tanglewood box office Thursday. Applications for season tickets may be made there by mail or by telephone.

At the same time, Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony orchestra which presents the Tanglewood concerts, and director of the Berkshire Music center, advanced school for serious students of music conducted in connection with the festival, said that more than a dozen special scholarships had been made available at the school this year. The school will operate from July 5 to Aug 15. The festival opens July 7 and also runs to Aug. 15. It will include six Wednesday evening chamber music concerts and six Friday evening Bach-Mozart concerts in the theater-concert hall and six Saturday evening and six Sunday afternoon concerts by the full Boston Symphony orchestra in the huge Tanglewood music shed.

BOSTON, MASS.
MORNING GLOBE
MAY 30 1954

Munch Recording Wins Grand Prix

The recording of Berlioz' "Romeo and Juliet," as made by the Boston Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Charles Munch for R. C. A. Victor, has been awarded the "Grand Prix for vocal ensemble with orchestra" by the Academie Charles Cros of France. Assisting the orchestra were the Harvard and Radcliffe choruses. The soloists were Margaret Roggiero, contralto; Leslie Chabay, tenor, and Yi Kwei-Sze, bass.

This recording and likewise the performances of the work by Boston's Orchestra have been a feature of the past season, celebrating the 150th anniversary of the composer's birth. These performances were given in New York, Washington, D. C., and Lenox (Tanglewood), as well as Boston.

Berlioz' "Damnation of Faust," another feature of the past season, has likewise been recorded by this orchestra. Both scores will be featured in a Berlioz anniversary season at the Berkshire Festival next July and August.

BOSTON, MASS.
MORNING GLOBE
MAY 23 1954

Sale of Tickets for Berkshire Festival

This is the final week for patrons of the Berkshire Music Festival, the 17th to be held in the hills of Western Massachusetts and the 15th in which the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, music director, has participated, to effect a savings and secure preferential locations by obtaining series subscriptions.

Until June 1, subscriptions may be purchased by writing to the Festival office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass., for the following pairs of Shed concerts; Saturday evening, July 10 and Sunday afternoon, July 11; July 17 and 18; July 24 and 25; July 31 and Aug. 1; Aug. 7 and 8; Aug. 14 and 15, at $10, $7.50, $6.50, $5.50 and $4.50, a saving over individual price for remaining seats for any single concert which, after June 1, are priced at $6.50, $5.50, $4, $3.50, $3 and $2.50. Applications for single concert ticket sale are received by mail or telephone to the box office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.; phone Lenox 600.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN
MAY 23 1954

ADVANCE SALE FOR TANGLEWOOD

Boston, May 22—This is the final week for patrons of the Berkshire Music Festival, the 17th to be held in the hills of Western Massachusetts and the 15th in which the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, music director, has participated, to effect a savings and secure preferential locations by obtaining series subscriptions.

In the enlarged Berkshire Festival, which attracted a record-breaking total attendance of 117,950 music lovers to Tanglewood last summer, an average of 4360 in its chamber concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall and an average of 10,200 in each of its huge Music Shed concerts, 24 concerts will be held in 1954, during the six weeks, July 7-August 15.

Until June 1, subscriptions may be purchased by writing to the Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15. Applications for single concert ticket sale are received by mail or telephone to the Box office, Tanglewood, Lenox; phone Lenox 600.

PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE

Tanglewood Box Office Opens June 3

TANGLEWOOD—The series subscription sale for the Berkshire Festival concerts by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood ends this weekend. The sale of tickets for single concerts commences Thursday, June 3, when the Tanglewood box office opens for the season. However, Berkshire County residents will be given an extension to June 10, orchestra Manager George E. Judd announces, to take advantage of preferential locations and the saving involved in securing series subscriptions.

Under the direction of Charles Munch, music director, the Boston Symphony Orchestra will give 24 concerts at the 1954 Berkshire Festival, between July 7 and Aug. 15, including six Wednesday evening chamber concerts, six Friday evening "Bach-Mozart" concerts by the chamber section of the orchestra, six Saturday evening and six Sunday afternoon concerts by the full 104-man symphony in the Music Shed.

In announcing the extension of series sale to Berkshire County residents, a popular innovation last year, Mr. Judd feels Tanglewood's neighbors will have an advantage of securing seats if they act promptly over those who have not made similar provision and must find accommodation on the lawns of Tanglewood. "Last year the Berkshire Festival shattered all attendance records, with an average of 4,360 at its chamber concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall (capacity 1,152) and an average of 10,200 for each of its concerts in the Music Shed (capacity 6,000).

BALTIMORE, MD.
NEWS-POST
MAY 26 1954

Berkshire Music Fete July 7

This is the final week for patrons of the Berkshire Music Festival to obtain subscription tickets for the various series of concerts, to be held at Tanglewood during the six weeks from July 7 to August 15.

The enlarged Festival will be the seventeenth in the series, and the fifteenth in which the Boston Symphony Orchestra has participated. It is expected this season's attendance will surpass the record-breaking figure of nearly 118-000 in 1953.

Twenty-four Shed concerts will be given, on Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons, beginning July 10-11, and there is a large saving to be made by subscribing, for which address Symphony Hall, Boston 15. For single seats, write to the Box Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

* * *

CHARLES MUNCH, who has just completed his fifth year as conductor of the Boston Symphony, will lead that ensemble of 104 in complete versions of the works of Berlioz, commemorating the 150th anniversary of the composer's birth.

The Bach-Mozart series of Chamber Music concerts will also be held, on Friday evenings, and the newly-arranged Wednesday evening Chamber music series, both in the Theater-Concert Hall.

H. A. F. P.

WEST HARTFORD, CONN
NEWS
5/27/54

BERKSHIRE

Monday, June 1st is the deadline for mailing subscriptions in for the Berkshire Festival if you want preferential locations and at the same time save a buck. Send your checks to the Festival Office, Symphony Hall. Applications for single concert ticket may be sent by mail or telephone to the box office at Tanglewood, Lennox, Mass.

The 16th annual festival last year broke all attendance records with over 117,000 music lovers. This year's concerts have doubled up in both Shed and Concert-Theater Hall. Marking the 150th anniversary of the birth of Hector Berlioz, complete versions of his principal works will be given by the 104 piece Boston Symphony with Pierre Monteux, Jean Morel and Richard Burgin as guest conductors. Among noted Metropolitan Opera stars will be Eleanor Steber, Nicola Moscona, David Poleri, John McCollum, Martial Singher, and Donald Gramm. Other guest artists will include William Primrose, Vera Franceschi, Zino Francescatti, Ruth Posselt, Claudio Arrau, Nicole Henriot, the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society. Another big season seems to be in the making.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
MAR 14 1954

GUESTS

Each summer the Berkshire Music Center has a famous composer as guest instructor. This year the guest at Tanglewood will be Ernst Toch. He will join Aaron Copland in teaching composition during the six-week session.

Because Leonard Bernstein and Boris Goldovsky will be on leaves of absence, their posts as heads of the orchestra and opera departments will be taken by Jean Morel and Frederic Cohen. Lukas Foss will be head of the Tanglewood study group in place of Ingolf Dahl, another faculty member on leave.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE
MAY 23 1954

Tanglewood Tickets

BOSTON, May 22.—The subscription ticket sale at reduced rates for the Boston Symphony Orchestra's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., closes June 1. Until that date, subscriptions for the pairs of concerts by the full orchestra in Tanglewood's Music Shed, Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons, July 10-11 through Aug. 14-15, can be purchased by writing to the Festival Ofice, Symphony Hall, Boston 15 Mass. Applications for single concert tickets may be made by mail or telephone to the box ofice at Tanglewood (Lenox 600). Subscribers to the Shed series are also entitled to tickets at reduced rates in Tanglewood's Theater-Concert Hall on Friday nights, July 6 through Aug. 4, and Thursday, Aug. 12.

[130]

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN

MAY 30 1954

Scholarships, Tuition Aids Available at Tanglewood

Many Special Grants for Students Offered by Berkshire Music Center; Revolving Scholarship Fund Awards Totaled 210 Last Year

Boston, May 29—More than a dozen special scholarships and tuition aids to summer music students are being offered by the Berkshire Music Center, the school of music operated by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, July 5—Aug. 15, in connection with its annual Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood Lenox. Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony, is the school's director, and composer Aaron Copland is assistant director.

Tuition For 210

The principal aid to the 400 students selected annually from applicants all over the United States, Canada and abroad, is the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund, which in 1953 awarded grants for the tuition of 210 students. Established in 1947 by RCA-Victor, and since augmented from other sources, the fund is drawn upon each year for students selected as instrumentalists, conductors, singers, and composers, and is reimbursed by students when they are able to do so in order that others may benefit in future school years.

Berkshire Music Center students will work during the six summer weeks at Tanglewood Study Group, a special section available to amateurs.

Special Scholaships

In addition, special scholarships available in 1954 to Tanglewood students include the following:

The Jascha Heifetz Prize, $250, established in 1949 by the eminent violinist, awarded to the outstanding student violinist of the summer;

The Gregor Piatigorsky Prize, $250 established in 1950, awarded by the noted cellist to the year's best student in that field,

A prize of $250 established this year by the Koussevitzky Music Foundation, to be awarded for a work writen at Tanglewood by a student composer;

The Margaret Lee Crofts Scholarships, two gifts of $250 each, to students of compostion;

The Samuel Wechsler Commission, established in 1952, $300 to a Tanglewood composer;

The Koussevitzky Memorial Scholarship, for an outstanding student of conducting;

The Selly A. Eiseman Scholarship, a tuition award;

The Carlotta M. Dreyfus Scholarship, a tuition award established in 1953.

In many other ways the Berkshire Music Center is assisted in its scholarship projects. For the third year, the Koussevitzky Music Foundation has granted $1,000 to help students take advantage of their tuition scholarships. The Anne M. Gannett Fund of the National Federation of Music Clubs annually provides a $400 scholarship to a student. The Music Study Club of Newark and the Oranges, N. J., contributes $225 each year to a like purpose.

Students Help Out

The Louisville Philharmonic Chorus annually raises money to send a student to Tanglewood, as in the past have Grinnell College, Grinnell, Ia., and Adelphi College, Long Island City. The women's committee of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra since 1950 has contributed $300 to the expenses of a string player for the student orchestra; in 1954, Mary Dodge, violinist, has won the competition. Through the Wyomissing Institute of Fine Arts, Pa., Mrs. Bruce Harden of Honolulu, a Tanglewood student in 1940, annually selects a Berkshire summer student.

Even the Tanglewood students who can afford to do so co-operate through the Student Council Fund to contribute toward the living expenses of needy students.

In 1954's enlarged Berkshire Festival, six Wednesday evening concerts of chamber music will benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund. Contributing their services to these concerts are such noted artists as Claoudio Arrau, William Kroll, the Bel Arte Trio and Zino Francescatti.

Further information about the school can be secured from the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, Lenox.

This Clipping From
PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE
MAY 29 1954

Scholarships Aid Students At Tanglewood

TANGLEWOOD — More than a dozen special scholarships and tuition aids to summer music students are being offered by the Berkshire Music Center, the school of music operated by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, July 5-Aug. 15, in connection with its annual Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood in Lenox. Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony, is the school's director, and composer Aaron Copland is assistant director.

The principal aid to the 400 students selected annually from applicants all over the U.S., Canada and abroad, is the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund, which in 1953 awarded grants for the tuition of 210 students. Established in 1947 by RCA-Victor, and since augmented from other sources, the fund is drawn upon each year for students selected as instrumentalists, conductors, singers, and composers, and is reimbursed by students when they are able, so others may benefit in future school years. Berkshire Music Center students will work during the six summer weeks at Tanglewood with such eminent faculty members as Jean Morel, head of the orchestra and conducting departments; Ernst Toch, teacher of composition; Frederic Cohen, head of the opera department; Hugh Ross, in the choral department; Lukas Foss, in the Tanglewood Study Group, a special section available to amateurs.

This Clipping From
NORTHAMPTON, MASS.
HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE
MAY 28 1954

Scholarships Aid Music Students At Berkshire Festival

More than a dozen special scholarships and tuition aids to summer music students are being offered by the Berkshire Music Center, the school of music operated by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, July 5-Aug. 15, in connection with its annual Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony, is the school's director, and composer Aaron Copland is assistant director.

The principal aid to the 400 students selected annually from applicants all over the U.S., Canada and abroad, is the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund, which in 1953 awarded grants for the tuition of 210 students. Established in 1947 by RCA-Victor, and since augmented from other sources, the fund is drawn upon each year for students selected as instrumentalists, conductors, singers and composers, and is reimbursed by students when they are able to do so in order that others may benefit in future school years. Berkshire Music Center students will work during the six summer weeks at Tanglewood with such eminent faculty members as Jean Morel, head of the orchestra and conducting departments: Ernst Toch, teacher of composition; Frederic Cohen, head of the opera department; Hugh Ross, in the choral department; Lukas Foss, in the Tanglewood Study Group, a special section available to amateurs.

In addition, special scholarships available in 1954 to Tanglewood students include the following:

The Jascha Heifetz Prize, $250, established in 1949 by the eminent violinist, awarded to the outstanding student violinist of the summer;

The Gregor Piatigorsky Prize, $250, established in 1950, awarded by the noted cellist to the year's best student in that field;

A prize of $250 established this year by the Koussevitzky Music Foundation, to be awarded for a work written at Tanglewood by a student composer;

The Margaret Lee Crofts Scholarships, two gifts of $250 each, to students of composition;

The Samuel Wechsler Commission, established in 1952, $300 to a Tanglewood composer;

The Koussevitzky Memorial Scholarship, for an outstanding student of conducting;

The Selly A. Eiseman Scholarship, a tuition award;

The Carlotta M. Dreyfus Scholarship, a tuition award established in 1953.

BOSTON, MASS.
HERALD
MAY 30 1954

Scholarships to Aid Tanglewood Students

More than a dozen special scholarships and tuition aids to summer music students are being offered by the Berkshire Music Center, the school of music operated by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, July 5-Aug. 15, in connection with its annual Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony, is the school's director, and composer Aaron Copland is assistant director.

The principal aid to the 400 students selected annually from applicants all over the U. S., Canada and abroad, is the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund, which in 1953 awarded grants for the tuition of 210 students. Established in 1947 by RCA-Victor, and since augmented from other sources, the fund is drawn upon each year for students selected as instrumentalists, conductors, singers and composers, and is reimbursed by students when they are able to do so in order that others may benefit in future school years.

Berkshire Music Center students will work during the six summer weeks at Tanglewood with such eminent faculty members as Jean Morel, head of the orchestra and conducting departments; Ernst Toch, teacher of composition; Frederic Cohen, head of the opera department; Hugh Ross, in the choral department; Lukas Foss, in the Tanglewood Study Group, a special section available to amateurs.

In addition, special scholarships available in 1954 to Tanglewood students include the following:

The Jascha Heifetz Prize, $250 established in 1949 by the eminent violinist, awarded to the outstanding student violinist of the summer;

The Gregor Piatigorsky Prize, $250, established in 1950, awarded by the noted cellist to the year's best student in that field;

A prize of $250 established this year by the Koussevitzky Music Foundation, to be awarded for a work written at Tanglewood by a student composer;

The Margaret Lee Crofts Scholarships, two gifts of $250 each, to students of composition;

The Samuel Wechsler Commission, established in 1952, $300 to a Tanglewood composer;

The Koussevitzky Memorial Scholarship, for an outstanding student of conducting;

The Selly A. Eiseman Scholarship, a tuition award;

The Carlotta M. Dreyfus Scholarship, a tuition award established in 1953.

In many other ways the Berkshire Music Center is assisted in its scholarship projects. For the third year, the Koussevitzky Music Foundation has granted $1,000 to help students take advantage of their tuition scholarships.

Further information about the school can be secured from the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts.

SHOW BUSINESS
NEW YORK, N. Y.
MAY 31 1954

Scholarships Offered To All Music Students at Tanglewood

More than a dozen special scholarships and tuition aids to summer music students are being offered by the Berkshire Music Center, the school of music operated by the Boston Symphony Orchestra July 5-August 15, in connection with its annual Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Charles Bunch, conductor of the Boston Symphony, is the school's director, and composer Aaron Copland is assistant director.

The principal aid to the 400 students selected annually from applicants all over the P. S., Canada and abroad, is the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund, which in 1953 awarded grants for the tuition of 210 students. Established in 1947 by RCA-Victor and since augmented from other sources, the fund is drawn upon each year for students selected as instrumentalists, conductors, singers and composers, and is reimbursed by students when they are able to do so in order that others may benefit in future school years. Berkshire Music Center students will work during the six summer weeks at Tanglewood with such eminent faculty members as Jean Morel, head of the orchestra and conducting departments; Ernest Toch, teacher of composition; Frederic Cohen, head of the opera department; Hugh Ross, in the choral department; Lukas Foss, in the Tanglewood Study Group, a special section available to amateurs.

In addition, special scholarships available in 1954 to Tanglewood students include the following:

The Jascha Heifetz Prize, $250, established in 1949 by the eminent violinist, awarded to the outstanding student violinist of the summer;

The Gregor Piatigorsky Prize, $250, established in 1950, awarded by the noted cellist to the year's best student in that field;

A prize of $250 established this year by the Koussevitzky Music Foundation, to be awarded for a work written at Tanglewood by a student composer;

The Margaret Lee Crofts Scholarships, two gifts of $250 each, to students of composition;

The Samuel Wechsler Commission, established in 1952, $300 to a Tanglewood composer;

The Koussevitzky Memorial Scholarship, for an outstanding student of conducting;

The Selly A. Eiseman Scholarship, a tuition award;

The Carlotta M. Dreyfus Scholarship, a tuition award established in 1953.

WATERBURY, CONN.
REPUBLICAN
MAY 30 1954

Tanglewood Fund Helps Many Students

More than a dozen special scholarships and tuition aids to summer music students are being offered by the Berkshire Music Center, the school of music operated by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, July 5—Aug. 15, in connection with its annual Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony, is the school's director, and composer Aaron Copland is assistant director.

The principal aid to the 400 students selected annually from applicants all over the U. S., Canada and abroad, is the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund, which in 1953 awarded grants for the tuition of 210 students. Established in 1947 by RCA-Victor, and since augmented from other sources, the fund is drawn upon each year for students selected as instrumentalists, conductors, singers, and composers, and is reimbursed by students when they are able to do so in order that others may benefit in future school years.

Berkshire Music Center students will work during the six summer weeks at Tanglewood with such eminent faculty members as Jean Morel, head of the orchestra and conducting departments; Ernest Toch, teacher of composition; Frederic Cohen, head of the opera department; Hugh Ross, in the choral department; Lukas Foss, in the Tanglewood Study Group, a special section available to amateurs.

In addition, special scholarships available in 1954 to Tanglewood students include the following:

The Jascha Heifetz Prize, $250, established in 1949 by the eminent violinist, awarded to the outstanding student violinist of the summer;

The Gregor Piatigorsky Prize, $250, established in 1950, awarded by the noted cellist to the year's best student in that field;

A prize of $250 established this year by the Koussevitzky Music Foundation, to be awarded for a work written at Tanglewood by a student composer;

The Margaret Lee Crofts Scholarships, two gifts of $250 each, to students of composition;

The Samuel Wechsler Commission, established in 1952, $300 to a Tanglewood composer;

The Koussevitzky Memorial Scholarship, for an outstanding student of conducting;

The Selly A. Eiseman Scholarship, a tuition award;

The Carlotta M. Dreyfus Scholarship, a tuition award established in 1953.

In many other ways the Berkshire Music Center is assisted in its scholarship projects. For the third year, the Koussevitzky Music Foundation has granted $1,000 to help students take advantage of their tuition scholarships.

Further information about the school can be secured from the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts.

The Jascha Heifetz Prize, $250 established in 1949 by the eminent violinist, awarded to the outstanding student violinist of the summer;

The Gregor Piatigorsky Prize, $250, established in 1950, awarded by the noted cellist to the year's best student in that field;

A prize of $250 established this year by the Koussevitzky Music Foundation, to be awarded for a work written at Tanglewood by a student composer;

The Margaret Lee Crofts Scholarships, two gifts of $250 each, to students of composition;

The Samuel Wechsler Commission, established in 1952, $300 to a Tanglewood composer;

The Koussevitzky Memorial Scholarship, for an outstanding student of conducting;

The Selly A. Eiseman Scholarship, a tuition award;

The Carlotta M. Dreyfus Scholarship, a tuition award established in 1953.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
MAY 29

TANGLEWOOD LISTS SCHOLARSHIP PRIZES

A "revolving scholarship fund" and special scholarships will be available to students at the Berkshire Music Center in Tanglewood, Mass., when the school opens its six-week summer session on July 5.

The scholarship fund was established in 1947 by RCA Victor Records and since augmented by other contributions is drawn upon by students for tuition and living expenses while at Tanglewood. The students reimburse the fund when they are able to do so.

In addition, special scholarships available this summer will include: The Jascha Heifetz Prize, $250, awarded to the outstanding student violinist of the summer; the Gregor Piatigorsky Prize, $250, awarded to the outstanding student cellist; a $250 prize established by the Koussevitsky Music Foundation to be awarded for a work written at Tanglewood by a student composer.

Also two Margaret Lee Crofts Scholarships of $250 each to be awarded to student composers; the Samuel Wechsler Commission, $300, to a Tanglewood composer; the Koussevitsky Memorial Scholarship, to an outstanding student of conducting; the Selly A. Eiseman Scholarship, a tuition award, and the Carlotta M. Dreyfus Scholarship, a tuition award.

[121]

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN

MAY 30 1954

Scholarships, Tuition Aids Available at Tanglewood

Many Special Grants for Students Offered by Berkshire Music Center; Revolving Scholarship Fund Awards Totaled 210 Last Year

Boston, May 29—More than a dozen special scholarships and tuition aids to summer music students are being offered by the Berkshire Music Center, the school of music operated by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, July 5—Aug. 15, in connection with its annual Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood Lenox. Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony, is the school's director, and composer Aaron Copland is assistant director.

Tuition For 210

The principal aid to the 400 students selected annually from applicants all over the United States, Canada and abroad, is the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund, which in 1953 awarded grants for the tuition of 210 students. Established in 1947 by RCA-Victor, and since augmented from other sources, the fund is drawn upon each year for students selected as instrumentalists, conductors, singers, and composers, and is reimbursed by students when they are able to do so in order that others may benefit in future school years.

Berkshire Music Center students will work during the six summer weeks at Tanglewood Study Group, a special section available to amateurs.

Special Scholaships

In addition, special scholarships available in 1954 to Tanglewood students include the following:

The Jascha Heifetz Prize, $250, established in 1949 by the eminent violinist, awarded to the outstanding student violinist of the summer;

The Gregor Piatigorsky Prize, $250 established in 1950, awarded by the noted cellist to the year's best student in that field,

A prize of $250 established this year by the Koussevitzky Music Foundation, to be awarded for a work writen at Tanglewood by a student composer;

The Margaret Lee Crofts Scholarships, two gifts of $250 each, to students of compostion;

The Samuel Wechsler Commission, established in 1952, $300 to a Tanglewood composer;

The Koussevitzky Memorial Scholarship, for an outstanding student of conducting;

The Selly A. Eiseman Scholarship, a tuition award;

The Carlotta M. Dreyfus Scholarship, a tuition award established in 1953.

In many other ways the Berkshire Music Center is assisted in its scholarship projects. For the third year, the Koussevitzky Music Foundation has granted $1,000 to help students take advantage of their tuition scholarships. The Anne M. Gannett Fund of the National Federation of Music Clubs annually provides a $400 scholarship to a student. The Music Study Club of Newark and the Oranges, N. J., contributes $225 each year to a like purpose.

Students Help Out

The Louisville Philharmonic Chorus annually raises money to send a student to Tanglewood, as in the past have Grinnell College, Grinnell, Ia., and Adelphi College, Long Island City. The women's committee of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra since 1950 has contributed $300 to the expenses of a string player for the student orchestra; in 1954, Mary Dodge, violinist, has won the competition. Through the Wyomissing Institute of Fine Arts, Pa., Mrs. Bruce Harden of Honolulu, a Tanglewood student in 1940, annually selects a Berkshire summer student.

Even the Tanglewood students who can afford to do so co-operate through the Student Council Fund to contribute toward the living expenses of needy students.

In 1954's enlarged Berkshire Festival, six Wednesday evening concerts of chamber music will benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund. Contributing their services to these concerts are such noted artists as Claoudio Arrau, William Kroll, the Bel Arte Trio and Zino Francescatti.

Further information about the school can be secured from the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, Lenox.

This Clipping From
PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE
MAY 29 1954

Scholarships Aid Students At Tanglewood

TANGLEWOOD — More than a dozen special scholarships and tuition aids to summer music students are being offered by the Berkshire Music Center, the school of music operated by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, July 5-Aug. 15, in connection with its annual Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood in Lenox. Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony, is the school's director, and composer Aaron Copland is assistant director.

The principal aid to the 400 students selected annually from applicants all over the U.S., Canada and abroad, is the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund, which in 1953 awarded grants for the tuition of 210 students. Established in 1947 by RCA-Victor, and since augmented from other sources, the fund is drawn upon each year for students selected as instrumentalists, conductors, singers, and composers, and is reimbursed by students when they are able, so others may benefit in future school years. Berkshire Music Center students will work during the six summer weeks at Tanglewood with such eminent faculty members as Jean Morel, head of the orchestra and conducting departments; Ernst Toch, teacher of composition; Frederic Cohen, head of the opera department; Hugh Ross, in the choral department; Lukas Foss, in the Tanglewood Study Group, a special section available to amateurs.

This Clipping From
NORTHAMPTON, MASS.
HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE
MAY 28 1954

Scholarships Aid Music Students At Berkshire Festival

More than a dozen special scholarships and tuition aids to summer music students are being offered by the Berkshire Music Center, the school of music operated by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, July 5-Aug. 15, in connection with its annual Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony, is the school's director, and composer Aaron Copland is assistant director.

The principal aid to the 400 students selected annually from applicants all over the U.S., Canada and abroad, is the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund, which in 1953 awarded grants for the tuition of 210 students. Established in 1947 by RCA-Victor, and since augmented from other sources, the fund is drawn upon each year for students selected as instrumentalists, conductors, singers and composers, and is reimbursed by students when they are able to do so in order that others may benefit in future school years. Berkshire Music Center students will work during the six summer weeks at Tanglewood with such eminent faculty members as Jean Morel, head of the orchestra and conducting departments: Ernst Toch, teacher of composition; Frederic Cohen, head of the opera department; Hugh Ross, in the choral department; Lukas Foss, in the Tanglewood Study Group, a special section available to amateurs.

In addition, special scholarships available in 1954 to Tanglewood students include the following:

The Jascha Heifetz Prize, $250, established in 1949 by the eminent violinist, awarded to the outstanding student violinist of the summer;

The Gregor Piatigorsky Prize, $250, established in 1950, awarded by the noted cellist to the year's best student in that field;

A prize of $250 established this year by the Koussevitzky Music Foundation, to be awarded for a work written at Tanglewood by a student composer;

The Margaret Lee Crofts Scholarships, two gifts of $250 each, to students of composition;

The Samuel Wechsler Commission, established in 1952, $300 to a Tanglewood composer;

The Koussevitzky Memorial Scholarship, for an outstanding student of conducting;

The Selly A. Eiseman Scholarship, a tuition award;

The Carlotta M. Dreyfus Scholarship, a tuition award established in 1953.

BOSTON, MASS.
HERALD
MAY 30 1954

Scholarships to Aid Tanglewood Students

More than a dozen special scholarships and tuition aids to summer music students are being offered by the Berkshire Music Center, the school of music operated by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, July 5-Aug. 15, in connection with its annual Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony, is the school's director, and composer Aaron Copland is assistant director.

The principal aid to the 400 students selected annually from applicants all over the U. S., Canada and abroad, is the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund, which in 1953 awarded grants for the tuition of 210 students. Established in 1947 by RCA-Victor, and since augmented from other sources, the fund is drawn upon each year for students selected as instrumentalists, conductors, singers and composers, and is reimbursed by students when they are able to do so in order that others may benefit in future school years.

Berkshire Music Center students will work during the six summer weeks at Tanglewood with such eminent faculty members as Jean Morel, head of the orchestra and conducting departments; Ernst Toch, teacher of composition; Frederic Cohen, head of the opera department; Hugh Ross, in the choral department; Lukas Foss, in the Tanglewood Study Group, a special section available to amateurs.

In addition, special scholarships available in 1954 to Tanglewood students include the following.

SHOW BUSINESS
NEW YORK, N. Y.
MAY 31 1954

Scholarships Offered To Aid MusicStudents at Tanglewood

More than a dozen special scholarships and tuition aids to summer music students are being offered by the Berkshire Music Center, the school of music operated by the Boston Symphony Orchestra July 5-August 15, in connection with its annual Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Charles Bunch, conductor of the Boston Symphony, is the school's director and composer Aaron Copland is assistant director.

The principal aid to the 400 students selected annually from applicants all over the P. S., Canada and abroad, is the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund, which in 1953 awarded grants for the tuition of 210 students. Established in 1947 by RCA-Victor and since augmented from other sources, the

WATERBURY, CONN.
REPUBLICAN
MAY 30 1954

Tanglewood Fund Helps Many Students

More than a dozen special scholarships and tuition aids to summer music students are being offered by the Berkshire Music Center, the school of music operated by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, July 5—Aug. 15, in connection with its annual Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony, is the school's director, and composer Aaron Copland is assistant director.

The principal aid to the 400 students selected annually from applicants all over the U. S., Canada and abroad, is the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund, which in 1953 awarded grants for the tuition of 210 students. Established in 1947 by RCA-Victor, and since augmented from other sources, the fund is drawn upon each year for students selected as instrumentalists, conductors, singers, and composers, and is reimbursed by students when they are able to do so in order that others may benefit in future school years.

Berkshire Music Center students will work during the six summer weeks at Tanglewood with such eminent faculty members as Jean Morel, head of the orchestra and conducting departments; Ernest Toch, teacher of composition; Frederic Cohen, head of the opera department; Hugh Ross, in the choral department; Lukas Foss, in the Tanglewood Study Group, a special section available to amateurs.

In addition, special scholarships available in 1954 to Tanglewood students include the following:

The Jascha Heifetz Prize, $250, established in 1949 by the eminent violinist, awarded to the outstanding student violinist of the summer;

The Gregor Piatigorsky Prize, $250, established in 1950, awarded by the noted cellist to the year's best student in that field;

A prize of $250 established this year by the Koussevitzky Music Foundation, to be awarded for a work written at Tanglewood by a student composer;

The Margaret Lee Crofts Scholarships, two gifts of $250 each, to students of composition;

The Samuel Wechsler Commission, established in 1952, $300 to a Tanglewood composer;

The Koussevitzky Memorial Scholarship, for an outstanding student of conducting;

The Selly A. Eiseman Scholarship, a tuition award;

The Carlotta M. Dreyfus Scholarship, a tuition award established in 1953.

In many other ways the Berkshire Music Center is assisted in its scholarship projects. For the third year, the Koussevitzky Music Foundation has granted $1,000 to help students take advantage of their tuition scholarships.

Further information about the school can be secured from the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts.

is drawn upon each year for nts selected as instrumentalconductors, singers, and com-rs, and is reimbursed by stu-
s when they are able to do so rder that others may benefit ture school years. Berkshire Center students will work
g the six summer weeks at glewood.

addition, special scholarships lable in 1954 to Tanglewood
dents include the following:

The Jascha Heifetz Prize, $250, tablished in 1949 by the eminent linist, awarded to the outstand-student violinist of the sum-
er;

The Gregor Piatigorsky Prize,
50, established in 1950, awarded by the noted cellist to the year's best student in that field;

A prize of $250 established this year by the Koussevitzky Music Foundation, to be awarded for a work written at Tanglewood by a student composer;

The Margaret Lee Crofts Scholarships, two gifts of $250 each, to students of composition;

The Samuel Wechsler Commission, established in 1952 $300 to a Tanglewood composer;

Koussevitzky Memorial Scholarship, for an outstanding student of conducting;

The Selly A. Eiseman Scholarship, a tuition award;

The Carlotta M. Dreyfus Scholarship, a tuition award established in 1953.

In many other ways the Berkshire Music Center is assisted in its scholarship projects. For the third year, the Koussevitzky Music Foundation has granted $1,000 to help students take advantage of their tuition scholarships. The Anne M. Gannett Fund of the National Federation of Music Clubs annually provides a $400 scholarship to a student. The Music Study Club of Newark and the Oranges,
N. J., contributes $225 each year to a like purpose. The Louisville Philharmonic Chorus annually raises money to send a student to Tanglewood, as in the past have Grinnell College, Grinnell, Iowa, and Adelphi College, Long Island City. The Women's Committee of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra since 1950 has contributed $300 to the expenses of a string player for the student orchestra; in 1954,
Mary Dodge, violist, has won the competition. Through the Wyomissing Institute of Fine Arts, Pa.,
Mrs. Bruce Harden of Honolulu, a Tanglewood student in 1940, annually selects a Berkshire summer student.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
MAY 29

TANGLEWOOD LISTS SCHOLARSHIP PRIZES

A "revolving scholarship fund" and special scholarships will be available to students at the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, Mass., when the school opens its six-week summer session on July 5.

The scholarship fund, established in 1947 by R.C.A. Victor Records and since augmented by other contributions, is drawn upon by students for tuition and living expenses while at Tanglewood. The students reimburse the fund when they are able to do so.

In addition, special scholarships available this summer will include: The Jascha Heifetz Prize, $250, awarded for the outstanding student violinist of the summer; the Gregor Piatigorsky Prize, $250, awarded to the outstanding student cellist; a $250 prize established by the Koussevitsky Music Foundation, to be awarded for a work written at Tanglewood by a student composer.

Also two Margaret Lee Crofts Scholarships of $250 each, to be awarded to student composers; the Samuel Wechsler Commission, $300, to a Tanglewood composer; the Koussevitsky Memorial Scholarship, to an outstanding student of conducting; the Selly A. Eiseman Scholarship, a tuition award, and the Carlotta M. Dreyfus Scholarship, a tuition award.

The Jascha Heifetz Prize, $250 established in 1949 by the eminent violinist, awarded to the outstanding student violinist of the summer;

The Gregor Piatigorsky Prize, $250, established in 1950, awarded by the noted cellist to the year's best student in that field;

A prize of $250 established this year by the Koussevitzky Music Foundation, to be awarded for a work written at Tanglewood by a student composer;

The Margaret Lee Crofts Scholarships, two gifts of $250 each, to students of composition;

The Samuel Wechsler Commission, established in 1952, $300 to a Tanglewood composer;

The Koussevitzky Memorial Scholarship, for an outstanding student of conducting;

The Selly A. Eiseman Scholarship, a tuition award;

The Carlotta M. Dreyfus Scholarship, a tuition award established in 1953.

In many other ways the Berkshire Music Center is assisted in its scholarship projects. For the third year, the Koussevitzky Music Foundation has granted $1,000 to help students take advantage of their tuition scholarships.

Further information about the school can be secured from the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts.

TIGHT BINDING

INFORMATION OBSCURED

...ESS
...Y.
...1954

...os Offered To Aid ...ents at Tanglewood

...l scholarships available in 1954 to Tanglewood students include the following:

The Jascha Heifetz Prize, $250, established in 1949 by the eminent violinist, awarded to the outstanding student violinist of the summer;

The Gregor Piatigorsky Prize, $250, established in 1950, awarded by the noted cellist to the year's best student in that field;

A prize of $250 established this year by the Koussevitzky Music Foundation, to be awarded for a work written at Tanglewood by a student composer;

The Margaret Lee Crofts Scholarships, two gifts of $250 each, to students of composition;

The Samuel Wechsler Commission, established in 1952 $300 to a Tanglewood composer;

Koussevitzky Memorial Scholarship, for an outstanding student of conducting;

The Selly A. Eiseman Scholarship, a tuition award;

The Carlotta M. Dreyfus Scholarship, a tuition award established in 1953.

In many other ways the Berkshire Music Center is assisted in its scholarship projects. For the third year, the Koussevitzky Music Foundation has granted $1,000 to help students take advantage of their tuition scholarships. The Anne M. Gannett Fund of the National Federation of Music Clubs annually provides a $400 scholarship to a student. The Music Study Club of Newark and the Oranges, N. J., contributes $225 each year to a like purpose. The Louisville Philharmonic Chorus annually raises money to send a student to Tanglewood, as in the past have Grinnell College, Grinnell, Iowa, and Adelphi College, Long Island City. The Women's Committee of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra since 1950 has contributed $300 to the expenses of a string player for the student orchestra: in 1951 Mary Dodge, violist, has won this competition. Through the Wyomissing Institute of Fine Arts, Pennsylvania, Mrs. Bruce Harden of Honolulu, a Tanglewood student in 1940, annually selects a Berkshire summer student.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
MAY 29 195...

TANGLEWOOD LISTS SCHOLARSHIP PRIZE

A "revolving scholarship fund" and special scholarships will be available to students at the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, Mass., when the school opens its six-week summer session on July 5.

The scholarship fund, established in 1947 by R. C. A. Victor Records and since augmented by other contributions, is drawn upon by students for tuition and living expenses while in Tanglewood. The students reimburse the fund when they are able to do so.

In addition, special scholarships available this summer will include: The Jascha Heifetz Prize, $250, awarded to the outstanding student violinist of the summer; the Gregor Piatigorsky Prize, $250, awarded to the outstanding student 'cellist, and a $250 prize established by the Koussevitsky Music Foundation, to be awarded for a work written at Tanglewood by a student composer.

Also two Margaret Lee Crofts Scholarships of $250 each, to be awarded to student composers; the Samuel Wechsler Commission, $300, to a Tanglewood composer; the Koussevitsky Memorial Scholarship, to an outstanding student of conducting; the Selly A. Eiseman Scholarship, a tuition award, and the Carlotta M. Dreyfus Scholarship, a tuition award.

PAWTUCKET, R. I.
TIMES
MAY 29 1954

Aid Programs Announced For Berkshire Music Center

The Boston Symphony Orchestra announced today the music scholarships and students' aid programs offered by the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., this summer.

More than a dozen special scholarships and tuition aids to summer music students are being offered by the Berkshire Music Center, the school of music operated by the Boston Symphony Orchestra from July 5 to Aug. 15, in connection with its annual Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox.

Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony, is the school's director. Composer Aaron Copland is assistant director.

The principal aid to the 400 students selected annually from applicants all over the United States and Canada and from abroad is the Tanglewood revolving scholarship fund, which in 1953 awarded grants for the tuition of 210 students. Eastablished in 1947 by RCA-Victor and since augmented from other sources, the fund is drawn upon each year for students selected as instrumentalists, conductors, singers and composers.

It is reimbursed by students when they are able to do so in order that others may benefit in future school years.

Faculty Members

Berkshire Music Center students will work during the six summer weeks at Tanglewood with such eminent faculty members as Jean Morel, head of the orchestra and conducting departments; Ernst Toch, teacher of composition; Frederic Cohen, head of the opera department; Hugh Ross, in the choral department; Lukas Foss, in a special section for amateurs.

In addition, special scholarships available in 1954 include:

The Jascha Heifetz Prize, $250, established in 1949 by the eminent violinist, awarded to the outstanding student violinist of the summer;

The Gregor Piatigorsky Prize, $250, established in 1950, awarded by the noted cellist to the year's best student in that field;

A prize of $250 established this year by the Koussevitzky Music Foundation, to be awarded for a work written at Tanglewood by a student composer;

The Margaret Lee Crofts Scholarships, two gifts of $250 each, to students of composition;

The Samuel Wechsler Commission, established in 1952, $300 to a Tanglewood composer;

The Koussevitzky Memorial Scholarship, for an outstanding student of conducting;

The Selly A. Eiseman Scholarship, a tuition award;

The Carlotta M. Dreyfus Scholarship, a tuition award established in 1953.

In many other ways the Berkshire Music Center is assisted in its scholarship projects. For the third year, the Koussevitzky Music Foundation has granted $1,000 to help students take advantage of their tuition scholarships.

Federation Scholarships

The Anne M. Gannett Fund of the National Federation of Music Clubs annually provides a $400 scholarship to a student. Music organizations in many localities also aid this program. Tanglewood students who can afford to do so co-operate through the Student Council Fund to contribute toward the living expenses of other students.

In 1954's enlarged Berkshire Festival, six Wednesday evening concerts of chamber music will benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund. Contributing their services to these concerts are such noted artists as Claudio Arrau, William Kroll, the Bel Arte Trio and Zino Francescatti.

Further information about the school can be obtained from the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

ERIE, PA.
TIMES
MAY 30 1954

Offer 12 Scholarships

MORE THAN a dozen special scholarships and tuition aids to summer music students are being offered by the Berkshire Music Center, the school of music operated by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, July 5-August 15, in connection with its annual Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony, is the school's director, and composer Aaron Copland is assistant director.

The principal aid to the 400 students selected annually from applicants all over the U. S., Canada and abroad, is the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund, which in 1953 awarded grants for the tuition of 210 students. Established in 1947 by RCA Victor, and since augmented from other sources, the fund is drawn upon each year for students selected as instrumentalists, conductors, singers and composers, and is reimbursed by students when they are able to do so in order that others may benefit in future school years.

Berkshire Music Center students will work during the six summer weeks at Tanglewood with such eminent faculty members as Jean Morel, head of the orchestra and conducting departments; Ernst Toch, teacher of composition; Frederic Cohen, head of the opera department; Hugh Ross, in the choral department; Lukas Foss, in the Tanglewood Study Group, a special section available to amateurs.

In addition, special scholarships available in 1954 to Tanglewood students include the following:

The Jascha Heifetz Prize, $250, established in 1949 by the eminent violinist, awarded to the outstanding student violinist of the summer.

The Gregor Piatigorsky Prize, $250, established in 1950, awarded by the noted cellist to the year's best student in that field.

A prize of $250 established this year by the Koussevitzky Music Foundation, to be awarded for a work written at Tanglewood by a student composer.

The Margaret Lee Crofts Scholarships, two gifts of $250 each, to students of composition.

The Samuel Weschler Commission, established in 1952, $300 to a Tanglewood composer.

The Koussevitzky Memorial Scholarship, for an outstanding student of conducting.

The Selly A. Eiseman Scholarship, a tuition award.

The Carlotta M. Dreyfus Scholarship, a tuition award established in 1953.

In many other ways the Berkshire Music Center is assisted in its scholarship projects. For the third year, the Koussevitzky Music Foundation has granted $1,000 to help students take advantage of their tuition scholarships.

The Anne M. Gannett Fund of the National Federation of Music Clubs annually provides a $400 scholarship to a student. The Music Study Club of Newark and the Oranges, N. Y., contributes $225 each year to a like purpose. Many other groups affiliated with colleges and symphony orchestras, contribute their share.

Even the Tanglewood students who can afford to do so cooperate through the Student Council Fund to contribute toward the living expenses of needy students.

In 1954's enlarged Berkshire Festival, six Wednesday evening concerts of chamber music will benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund. Contributing their services to these concerts are such noted artists as Claudio Arrau, William Kroll, the Bel Arte Trio and Zino Francescatti.

Further information about the school can be secured from the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

BOSTON, MASS.
MORNING GLOBE
MAY 30 1954

Scholarships and Special Aids Available for Berkshire Music Center Students

More than a dozen special scholarships and tuition aids are being offered by the Berkshire Music Center, the school of music operated by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, July 5-Aug. 15, in connection with its annual Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony, is the school's director, and composer Aaron Copland is assistant director.

The principal aid to the 400 students selected annually from applicants all over the United States, Canada and abroad is the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund, which in 1953 awarded grants for the tuition of 210 students. Established in 1947 by RCA-Victor, and since augmented from other sources, the fund is drawn upon each year for students selected as instrumentalists, conductors, singers and composers, and is reimbursed by students when they are able to do so in order that others may benefit in future school years.

Berkshire Music Center students will work during the six Summer weeks at Tanglewood with such eminent faculty members as Jean Morel, head of the orchestra and conducting departments; Ernst Toch, teacher of composition; Frederic Cohen, head of the opera department; Hugh Ross, in the choral department; Lukas Foss, in the Tanglewood Study Group, a special section available to amateurs.

Special Scholarships

In addition, special scholarships available in 1954 to Tanglewood students include the following:

The Jascha Heifetz Prize, $250, established in 1949 by the eminent violinist, awarded to the outstanding student violinist of the Summer.

The Gregor Piatigorsky Prize, $250, established in 1950, awarded by the noted 'cellist to the year's best student in that field.

A prize of $250 established this year by the Koussevitzky Music Foundation, to be awarded for a work written at Tanglewood by a student composer.

The Margaret Lee Crofts Scholarships, two gifts of $250 each, to students of composition.

The Samuel Wechsler Commission, established in 1952, $300 to a Tanglewood composer.

The Koussevitzky Memorial Scholarship, for an outstanding student of conducting.

The Selly A. Eiseman Scholarship, a tuition award.

The Carlotta M. Dreyfus Scholarship, a tuition award established in 1953.

For the third year, the Koussevitzky Music Foundation has granted $1000 to help students take advantage of their tuition scholarships. The Anne M. Gannett Fund of the National Federation of Music Clubs annually provides a $400 scholarship to a student. The Music Study Club of Newark and the Oranges, N. J., contributes $225 each year. The Louisville Philharmonic Chorus annually raises money to send a student to Tanglewood, as in the past have Grinnell College, Grinnell, Ia., and Adelphi College, Long Island City. The Women's Committee of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra since 1950 has contributed $300 to the expenses of a string player for the student orchestra. Through the Wyomissing Institute of Fine Arts, Pennsylvania, Mrs. Bruce Harden of Honolulu, a Tanglewood student in 1940, annually selects a Berkshire Summer student.

Even the Tanglewood students who can afford to do so cooperate through the Student Council Fund to contribute toward the living expenses of needy students.

Further information about the school can be secured from the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

TANGLEWOOD LISTS SCHOLARSHIP PRIZES

A "revolving scholarship fund" and special scholarships will be available to students at the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, Mass., when the school opens its six-week summer session on July 5.

The scholarship fund, established in 1947 by R. C. A. Victor Records and since augmented by other contributions, is drawn upon by students for tuition and living expenses while in Tanglewood. The students reimburse the fund when they are able to do so.

In addition, special scholarships available this summer will include: The Jascha Heifetz Prize, $250, awarded to the outstanding student violinist of the summer; the Gregor Piatigorsky Prize, $250, awarded to the outstanding student 'cellist, and a $250 prize established by the Koussevitsky Music Foundation, to be awarded for a work written at Tanglewood by a student composer.

Also two Margaret Lee Crofts Scholarships of $250 each, to be awarded to student composers; the Samuel Wechsler Commission, $300, to a Tanglewood composer; the Koussevitsky Memorial Scholarship, to an outstanding student of conducting; the Selly A. Eiseman Scholarship, a tuition award, and the Carlotta M. Dreyfus Scholarship, a tuition award. N.Y. Times

BOSTON, MASS.
HERALD
MAY 30 1954

Munch's "Juliet" Wins Grand Prix

The recording of Berlioz' "Romeo and Juliet" as made by the Boston Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Charles Munch for RCA Victor has been awarded the "Grand Prix for vocal ensemble with orchestra" by the Academie Charles Cros of France. Assisting the Orchestra were the Harvard and Radcliffe choruses, and the soloists were Margaret Roggiero, contralto, Leslie Chabay, tenor, and Yi Kwei-Sze, bass. This recording and likewise the performances of the work by Boston's Orchestra have been a feature of the past season, celebrating the 150th anniversary of the composer's birth. These performances were given in New York, Washington, D. C., and Lenox (Tanglewood), as well as Boston. Berlioz' "Damnation of Faust," another feature of the past season, has likewise been recorded by this Orchestra. Both scores will be featured in a Berlioz anniversary season at the Berkshire Festival next July and August.

TOLEDO, OHIO
BLADE
MAY 30 1954

NOT ONLY the Tanglewood activity of the Boston Symphony Orchestra but also the winter scene in Symphony Hall and the points visited on tour will be missing a familiar face with the retirement of George Judd, long-time manager of the Boston orchestra.

Mr. Judd, who began his association with the famous ensemble after graduation from Harvard some 40 years ago, had the distinction of serving as secretary to Colonel Higginson, the orchestra's founder, as well as manager during the long tenure of Serge Koussevitzky. His successor will be Thomas Perry, who came to Boston from Philadelphia several years ago.

Jean Morel, a Frenchman who came to this country in the early days of the war from South America with nothing more than his talent to speak for him, has attained a new recognition in being chosen to head the orchestra and conducting departments at the summer school in Tanglewood, Mass. He succeeds Leonard Bernstein.

BUFFALO, N. Y.
NEWS
MAY 29 1954

Berkshire Festival Dra...

By THEODOLINDA C. BORIS

THE Berkshire Music Festival, enlarged in scope for the 1954 season, lists six Wednesday evening chamber music concerts, six Friday evening concerts by a chamber orchestra, and six Saturday evening and six Sunday afternoon concerts by the full Boston Symphony Orchestra.

In addition, there will be approximately 40 concerts by students of the Berkshire Music Center, roughly following this schedule: Tuesday evenings, opera or choral works; Thursday evenings, student orchestra; Sunday mornings, chamber music; Sunday evenings, composers' forums.

Other major events of the festival season on the Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., grounds will be the Saturday morning rehearsals of the orchestra, Saturday afternoon organ recitals by E. Power Biggs, Saturday afternoon demonstrations by Department V (Tanglewood Study Group); an evening of one-act operas by Department IV, Tuesday, July 27; a full-length opera by Department V on Monday and Tuesday, Aug. 2 and 3; the annual "Tanglewood On Parade" benefit for the center on Aug. 13, and lectures and round-table discussions.

The festival attracts thousands of music-lovers, and each year more Western New Yorkers discover for themselves how wonderfully it combines music and beautiful natural surroundings.

This year's festival will do special honor to the 150th anniversary of the birth of Hector Berlioz.

The Boston Symphony programs will be as follows:

Saturday, July 10, Berlioz's "Damnation of Faust" with Harvard Glee Club, Radcliffe Choral Society and soloists, Charles Munch conducting; Sunday, July 11, Beethoven's Leonore No. 3 and Symphony No. 5 and Piano Concerto No. 5 (Claudio Arrau, soloist). Pierre Monteux conducting.

Saturday, July 17, all-Franck program ("Le Chasseur Maudit" and "Les Eolides" and Les Djinns" (Vera Franceschi, soloist) and Symphony in D minor, Monteux conducting; Sunday, July 18, Debussy's "Iberia," Copland's Piano Concerto (Leo Smit, soloist), Berlioz's Fantastic Symphony, Munch conducting.

Saturday, July 24, Weber's "Der Freischuetz" Overture, Prokofieff's Sixth Symphony, Strauss' "Don Juan," and Elgar's Enigma Variations, Jean Morel conducting.

Sunday, July 25, Berlioz's Overture to to "Beatrice and Benedict," and his "Harold in Italy" Symphony (William Primrose, viola, soloist), Toch's Second Symphony, Munch conducting.

Saturday, July 31, Berlioz's "Romeo and Juliet," dramatic symphony with festival chorus and soloists, Munch conducting.

Sunday, Aug. 1, Prokofieff's "Chout" ballet, Dvorak's Violin Concerto (Ruth Posselt, soloist), Sibelius' Second Symphony, Richard Burgin conducting.

Saturday, Aug. 7, all-Berlioz program with Overture to "Benevenuto Cellini, "Royal Hunt and Storm" from "The Trojans," "Summer Nights," (Eleanor Steber, soprano, soloist) and "Te Deum," with festival chorus and soloists, Munch conducting.

Saturday, Aug. 14, Wagner's Faust Overture, Piston's Symphony No. 4, Ravel's Piano Concerto (Nicole Henriot, soloist) Saint-Saens' Symphony No. 3 (with organ), Munch conducting.

Sunday, Aug. 15, Berlioz's Requiem with chorus and soloists, Munch conducting.

Music by Bach, Handel, Haydn, Roussel, Ibert, Mozart, Stravinsky, Rossini and Ravel will be heard on the Friday evening programs.

[122]

TIGHT BINDING — INFORMATION OBSCURED

ESS
. Y.
1 1954

ps Offered To Aid ents at Tanglewood

l scholo sumging ofic Cenperated rchestra nnection Festival. CharBoston irector, land is 400 stuom apCanada ood Reh, which for the tablishd since es, the fund is drawn upon each year for students selected as instrumentalists, conductors, singers, and composers, and is reimbursed by students when they are able to do so in order that others may benefit in future school years. Berkshire Music Center students will work during the six summer weeks at Tanglewood.

In addition, special scholarships available in 1954 to Tanglewood students include the following:

The Jascha Heifetz Prize, $250, established in 1949 by the eminent violinist, awarded to the outstanding student violinist of the summer;

The Gregor Piatigorsky Prize, $250, established in 1950, awarded by the noted cellist to the year's best student in that field;

A prize of $250 established this year by the Koussevitzky Music Foundation, to be awarded for a work written at Tanglewood by a student composer;

The Margaret Lee Crofts Scholarships, two gifts of $250 each, to students of composition;

The Samuel Wechsler Commission, established in 1952 $300 to a Tanglewood composer;

Koussevitzky Memorial Scholarship, for an outstanding student of conducting;

The Selly A. Eiseman Scholarship, a tuition award;

The Carlotta M. Dreyfus Scholarship, a tuition award established in 1953.

In many other ways the Berkshire Music Center is assisted in its scholarship projects. For the third year, the Koussevitzky Music Foundation has granted $1,000 to help students take advantage of their tuition scholarships. The Anne M. Gannett Fund of the National Federation of Music Clubs annually provides a $400 scholarship to a student. The Music Study Club of Newark and the Oranges, N. J., contributes $225 each year to a like purpose. The Louisville Philharmonic Chorus annually raises money to send a student to Tanglewood, as in the past have Grinnell College, Grinnell, Iowa, and Adelphi College, Long Island City. The Women's Committee of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra since 1950 has contributed $300 to the expenses of a string player in the student orchestra: in 1953 Mary Dodge, violist, has won the competition. Through the Wyomissing Institute of Fine Arts, Pennsylvania, Mrs. Bruce Harden of Honolulu, a Tanglewood student in 1940, annually selects a Berkshire summer student.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES

MAY 29 195

TANGLEWOOD LISTS SCHOLARSHIP PRIZES

A "revolving scholarship fund" and special scholarships will be available to students at the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, Mass., when the school opens its six-week summer session on July 5.

The scholarship fund, established in 1947 by R. C. A. Victor Records and since augmented by other contributions, is drawn upon by students for tuition and living expenses while in Tanglewood. The students reimburse the fund when they are able to do so.

In addition, special scholarships available this summer will include: The Jascha Heifetz Prize, $250, awarded to the outstanding student violinist of the summer; the Gregor Piatigorsky Prize, $250, awarded to the outstanding student 'cellist, and a $250 prize established by the Koussevitsky Music Foundation, to be awarded for a work written at Tanglewood by a student composer.

Also two Margaret Lee Crofts Scholarships of $250 each, to be awarded to student composers; the Samuel Wechsler Commission, $300, to a Tanglewood composer; the Koussevitsky Memorial Scholarship, to an outstanding student of conducting; the Selly A. Eiseman Scholarship, a tuition award, and the Carlotta M. Dreyfus Scholarship, a tuition award.

PAWTUCKET, R. I.
TIMES

Aid Programs Announced For Berkshire Music Center

The Boston Symphony Orchestra announced today the music scholarships and students' aid programs offered by the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. this summer.

More than a dozen special scholarships and tuition aids to summer music students are being offered by the Berkshire Music Center, the school of music operated by the Boston Symphony Orchestra from July 5 to Aug. 15, in connection with its annual Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood.

Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony, is the school's director. Composer Aaron Copland is assistant director.

The principal aid to the 400 students selected annually from applicants all over the United States and Canada and from abroad is the Tanglewood revolving scholarship fund, which in 1953 awarded grants for the tuition of 210 students. Established in 1947 by RCA-Victor and since augmented from other sources, the fund is drawn upon each year for students selected as instrumentalists, conductors, singers and composers.

It is reimbursed by students when they are able to do so in order that others may benefit in future school years.

Faculty Members

Berkshire Music Center students will work during the six summer weeks at Tanglewood with such eminent faculty members as Jean Morel, head of the orchestra and conducting departments; Ernst Toch, teacher of composition; Frederic Cohen, head of the opera department; Hugh Ross, in the choral department; Lukas Foss, in a special section for amateurs.

In addition, special scholarships available in 1954 include:

The Jascha Heifetz Prize, $250, established in 1949 by the eminent violinist, awarded to the outstanding student violinist of the summer;

The Gregor Piatigorsky Prize, $250, established in 1950, awarded by the noted cellist to the year's best student in that field;

A prize of $250 established this year by the Koussevitzky Music Foundation, to be awarded for a work written at Tanglewood by a student composer;

The Margaret Lee Crofts Scholarships, two gifts of $250 each, to students of composition;

The Samuel Wechsler Commission, established in 1952, $300 to a Tanglewood composer;

The Koussevitzky Memorial Scholarship, for an outstanding student of conducting;

The Selly A. Eiseman Scholarship, a tuition award;

The Carlotta M. Dreyfus Scholarship, a tuition award established in 1953.

In many other ways the Berkshire Music Center is assisted in its scholarship projects. For the third year, the Koussevitzky Music Foundation has granted $1,000 to help students take advantage of their tuition scholarships.

Federation Scholarships

The Anne M. Gannett Fund of the National Federation of Music Clubs annually provides a $400 scholarship to a student. Music organizations in many localities also aid this program. Tanglewood students who can afford to do so co-operate through the Student Council Fund to contribute toward the living expenses of other students.

In 1954's enlarged Berkshire Festival, six Wednesday evening concerts of chamber music will benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund. Contributing their services to these concerts are such noted artists as Claudio Arrau, William Kroll, the Bel Arte Trio and Zino Francescatti.

Further information about the school can be obtained from the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

ERIE, PA.
TIMES

MAY 30 1954

Offer 12 Scholarships

MORE THAN a dozen special scholarships and tuition aids to summer music students are being offered by the Berkshire Music Center, the school of music operated by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, July 5-August 15, in connection with its annual Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony, is the school's director, and composer Aaron Copland is assistant director.

The principal aid to the 400 students selected annually from applicants all over the U. S., Canada and abroad, is the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund, which in 1953 awarded grants for the tuition of 210 students. Established in 1947 by RCA Victor and since augmented from other sources, the fund is drawn upon each year for students selected as instrumentalists, conductors, singers and composers, and is reimbursed by students when they are able to do so in order that others may benefit in future school years.

Berkshire Music Center students will work during the six summer weeks at Tanglewood with such eminent faculty members as Jean Morel, head of the orchestra and conducting departments; Ernst Toch, teacher of composition; Frederic Cohen, head of the opera department; Hugh Ross, in the choral department; Lukas Foss, in a special section available to amateurs.

In addition, special scholarships available in 1954 to Tanglewood students include the following:

The Jascha Heifetz Prize, $250, established in 1949 by the eminent violinist, awarded to the outstanding student violinist of the summer;

The Gregor Piatigorsky Prize, $250, established in 1950, awarded by the noted cellist to the year's best student in that field;

A prize of $250 established this year by the Koussevitzky Music Foundation, to be awarded for a work written at Tanglewood by a student composer;

The Margaret Lee Crofts Scholarships, two gifts of $250 each, to students of composition;

The Samuel Weschler Commission, established in 1952, $300 to a Tanglewood composer.

The Koussevitzky Memorial Scholarship, for an outstanding student of conducting.

The Selly A. Eiseman Scholarship, a tuition award.

The Carlotta M. Dreyfus Scholarship, a tuition award established in 1953.

In many other ways the Berkshire Music Center is assisted in its scholarship projects. For the third year, the Koussevitzky Music Foundation has granted $1,000 to help students take advantage of their tuition scholarships.

The Anne M. Gannett Fund of the National Federation of Music Clubs annually provides a $400 scholarship to a student. The Music Study Club of Newark and the Oranges, N. Y., contributes $225 each year to a like purpose. Many other groups affiliated with colleges and symphony orchestras, contribute their share.

Even the Tanglewood students who can afford to do so cooperate through the Student Council Fund to contribute toward the living expenses of needy students.

In 1954's enlarged Berkshire Festival, six Wednesday evening concerts of chamber music will benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund. Contributing their services to these concerts are such noted artists as Claudio Arrau, William Kroll, the Bel Arte Trio and Zino Francescatti.

Further information about the school can be secured from the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

BOSTON, MASS.
MORNING GLOBE

MAY 30 1954

Scholarships and Special Aids Available for Berkshire Music Center Students

More than a dozen special scholarships and tuition aids are being offered by the Berkshire Music Center, the school of music operated by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, July 5-Aug. 15, in connection with its annual Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony, is the school's director, and composer Aaron Copland is assistant director.

The principal aid to the 400 students selected annually from applicants all over the United States, Canada and abroad is the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund, which in 1953 awarded grants for the tuition of 210 students. Established in 1947 by RCA-Victor, and since augmented from other sources, the fund is drawn upon each year for students selected as instrumentalists, conductors, singers and composers, and is reimbursed by students when they are able to do so in order that others may benefit in future school years.

Berkshire Music Center students will work during the six Summer weeks at Tanglewood with such eminent faculty members as Jean Morel, head of the orchestra and conducting departments; Ernst Toch, teacher of composition; Frederic Cohen, head of the opera department; Hugh Ross, in the choral department; Lukas Foss, in the Tanglewood Study Group, a special section available to amateurs.

Special Scholarships

In addition, special scholarships available in 1954 to Tanglewood students include the following:

The Jascha Heifetz Prize, $250, established in 1949 by the eminent violinist, awarded to the outstanding student violinist of the Summer.

The Gregor Piatigorsky Prize, $250, established in 1950, awarded by the noted 'cellist to the year's best student in that field.

A prize of $250 established this year by the Koussevitzky Music Foundation, to be awarded for a work written at Tanglewood by a student composer.

The Margaret Lee Crofts Scholarships, two gifts of $250 each, to students of composition.

The Samuel Wechsler Commission, established in 1952, $300 to a Tanglewood composer.

The Koussevitzky Memorial Scholarship, for an outstanding student of conducting.

The Selly A. Eiseman Scholarship, a tuition award.

The Carlotta M. Dreyfus Scholarship, a tuition award established in 1953.

For the third year, the Koussevitzky Music Foundation has granted $1000 to help students take advantage of their tuition scholarships. The Anne M. Gannett Fund of the National Federation of Music Clubs annually provides a $400 scholarship to a student. The Music Study Club of Newark and the Oranges, N. J., contributes $225 each year. The Louisville Philharmonic Chorus annually raises money to send a student to Tanglewood, as in the past have Grinnell College, Grinnell, Ia., and Adelphi College, Long Island City. The Women's Committee of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra since 1950 has contributed $300 to the expenses of a string player for the student orchestra. Through the Wyomissing Institute of Fine Arts, Pennsylvania, Mrs. Bruce Harden of Honolulu, a Tanglewood student in 1940, annually selects a Berkshire Summer student.

Even the Tanglewood students who can afford to do so cooperate through the Student Council Fund to contribute toward the living expenses of needy students.

Further information about the school can be secured from the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

TANGLEWOOD LISTS SCHOLARSHIP PRIZES

A "revolving scholarship fund" and special scholarships will be available to students at the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, Mass., when the school opens its six-week summer session on July 5.

The scholarship fund, established in 1947 by R. C. A. Victor Records and since augmented by other contributions, is drawn upon by students for tuition and living expenses while in Tanglewood. The students reimburse the fund when they are able to do so.

In addition, special scholarships available this summer will include: The Jascha Heifetz Prize, $250, awarded to the outstanding student violinist of the summer; the Gregor Piatigorsky Prize, $250, awarded to the outstanding student 'cellist, and a $250 prize established by the Koussevitsky Music Foundation, to be awarded for a work written at Tanglewood by a student composer.

Also two Margaret Lee Crofts Scholarships of $250 each, to be awarded to student composers; the Samuel Wechsler Commission, $300, to a Tanglewood composer; the Koussevitsky Memorial Scholarship, to an outstanding student of conducting; the Selly A. Eiseman Scholarship, a tuition award, and the Carlotta M. Dreyfus Scholarship, a tuition award. N.Y. Times

BOSTON, MASS.
HERALD

MAY 30 1954

Munch's "Juliet" Wins Grand Prix

The recording of Berlioz' "Romeo and Juliet" as made by the Boston Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Charles Munch for RCA Victor has been awarded the "Grand Prix for vocal ensemble with orchestra" by the Academie Charles Cros of France. Assisting the Orchestra were the Harvard and Radcliffe choruses, and the soloists were Margart Roggiero, contralto, Leslie Chabay, tenor, and Yi Kwei-Sze, bass. This recording and likewise the performances of the work by Boston's Orchestra have been a feature of the past season, celebrating the 150th anniversary of the composer's birth. These performances were given in New York, Washington, D. C., and Lenox (Tanglewood), as well as Boston. Berlioz' "Damnation of Faust," another feature of the past season, has likewise been recorded by this Orchestra. Both scores will be featured in a Berlioz anniversary season at the Berkshire Festival next July and August.

TOLEDO, OHIO
BLADE

MAY 30 1954

NOT ONLY the Tanglewood activity of the Boston Symphony Orchestra but also the winter scene in Symphony Hall and the points visited on tour will be missing a familiar face with the retirement of George Judd, long-time manager of the Boston orchestra.

Mr. Judd, who began his association with the famous ensemble after graduation from Harvard some 40 years ago, had the distinction of serving as secretary to Colonel Higginson, the orchestra's founder, as well as manager during the long tenure of Serge Koussevitzky. His successor will be Thomas Perry, who came to Boston from Philadelphia several years ago.

Jean Morel, a Frenchman who came to this country in the early days of the war from South America with nothing more than his talent to speak for him, has attained a new recognition in being chosen to head the orchestra and conducting departments at the summer school in Tanglewood, Mass. He succeeds Leonard Bernstein.

BUFFALO, N. Y.
NEWS

MAY 29 1954

Berkshire Festival Dra

By THEODOLINDA C. BORIS

THE Berkshire Music Festival, enlarged in scope for the 1954 season, lists six Wednesday evening chamber music concerts, six Friday evening concerts by a chamber orchestra, and six Saturday evening and six Sunday afternoon concerts by the full Boston Symphony Orchestra.

In addition, there will be approximately 40 concerts by students of the Berkshire Music Center, roughly following this schedule: Tuesday evenings, opera or choral works; Thursday evenings, student orchestra; Sunday mornings, chamber music; Sunday evenings, composers' forums.

Other major events of the festival season on the Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., grounds will be the Saturday morning rehearsals of the orchestra, Saturday afternoon organ recitals by E. Power Biggs, Saturday afternoon demonstrations by Department V (Tanglewood Study Group); an evening of one-act operas by Department IV, Tuesday, July 27; a full-length opera by Department V on Monday and Tuesday, Aug. 2 and 3; the annual "Tanglewood On Parade" benefit for the center on Aug. 13, and lectures and round-table discussions.

The festival attracts thousands of music-lovers, and each year more Western New Yorkers discover for themselves how wonderfully it combines music and beautiful natural surroundings.

This year's festival will do special honor to the 150th anniversary of the birth of Hector Berlioz.

The Boston Symphony programs will be as follows:

Saturday, July 10, Berlioz's "Damnation of Faust" with Harvard Glee Club, Radcliffe Choral Society and soloists, Charles Munch conducting; Sunday, July 11, Beethoven's Leonore No. 3 and Symphony No. 5 and Piano Concerto No. 5 (Claudio Arrau, soloist), Pierre Monteux conducting.

Saturday, July 17, all-Franck program ("Le Chasseur Maudit" and "Les Eolides" and Les Djinns" (Vera Franceschi, soloist) and Symphony in D minor, Monteux conducting; Sunday, July 18, Debussy's "Iberia," Copland's Piano Concerto (Leo Smit, soloist), Berlioz's Fantastic Symphony, Munch conducting.

Saturday, July 24, Weber's "Der Freischuetz" Overture, Prokofieff's Sixth Symphony, Strauss' "Don Juan," and Elgar's Enigma Variations, Jean Morel conducting.

Sunday, July 25, Berlioz's Overture to to "Beatrice and Benedict," and his "Harold in Italy" Symphony (William Primrose, viola, soloist), Toch's Second Symphony, Munch conducting.

Saturday, July 31, Berlioz's "Romeo and Juliet," dramatic symphony with festival chorus and soloists, Munch conducting.

Sunday, Aug. 1, Prokofieff's "Chout" ballet, Dvorak's Violin Concerto (Ruth Posselt, soloist), Sibelius' Second Symphony, Richard Burgin conducting.

Saturday, Aug. 7, all-Berlioz program with Overture to "Benevenuto Cellini," "Royal Hunt and Storm" from "The Trojans," "Summer Nights," (Eleanor Steber, soprano, soloist) and "Te Deum," with festival chorus and soloists, Munch conducting.

Saturday, Aug. 14, Wagner's Faust Overture, Piston's Symphony No. 4, Ravel's Piano Concerto (Nicole Henriot, soloist) Saint-Saens' Symphony No. 3 (with organ), Munch conducting.

Sunday, Aug. 15, Berlioz's Requiem with chorus and soloists, Munch conducting.

Music by Bach, Handel, Haydn, Roussel, Ibert, Mozart, Stravinsky, Rossini and Ravel will be heard on the Friday evening programs.

[122]

TIGHT BINDING

Head for the Woods—Festivals Are There

N.Y. Herald Tribune Dec 26, 1954

By JAY S. HARRISON

(The scene: A large, crowded metropolitan travel agency. A brightly colored sign reading "Information" hangs above the central desk. The characters: A music-loving traveler who knows nothing and a music-loving clerk who knows everything. The time: Noon of any day.)

CLERK: Good afternoon. Can I help you?

TRAVELER: I think you can. Anyway, I hope so.

C: Since you're here I imagine that you're interested in arranging a summer vacation. Are you?

T: Yes, but of a very special kind. You see, I'm an amateur musician. I mean I love it, and I'd like to strike some festivals on my travels. Do you know anything about music festivals in America?

C: Yes, indeedee. Off the record, I'm a great lover of the classics, especially Sousa. But my employer must never know. He's suspicious of the better things. (Rummages through an austere and overbrimming file.) Ha! you any special preferences—Bach, Beethoven, Debussy, the moderns?

T: No—they're all music, and that's what I'm interested in.

In the Berkshires

C: (Searches some more.) Well, let's see. The big event, of course, is Tanglewood, in the Berkshires. Up in Lenox, Mass., they're running a six-week season this summer, beginning July 7. There will be orchestral concerts every Friday and Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons, and on other days all kinds of chamber music.

T: Any operas?

C: Yes. On July 27 there's a double bill of Ernest Toch's "The Princess and the Pea" and Orazio Vecchi's "L'Amfiparnasso." Also on Aug. 2 the opera department is presenting Aaron Copland's "The Tender Land." And on Aug. 18 the New York Pro Musica Antiqua will take over in Lenox and begin a six-concert series of terribly old music.

T: What's fun. Where else can I go?

C: Let's see—here's a real one. Not far from Lenox there's Indian Hill which will present an opera by Henry Leland Clarke late in July; and there's Falls Village in Connecticut where you can hear string quartets on Sunday afternoons during July and August. By the way, how do you feel about pop concerts?

T: Not strongly. But I might as well pick up some of them while I'm at it. Where?

C: In Boston, up to July 2. And even though they're not really pops, you can hear outdoor music if you find yourself in Philadelphia after June 21. In Chicago there's a double choice—Grant Park after June 23 and Ravinia, on the outskirts of the windy city—that's what they call it in jest, you know—on June 28.

T: But surely there must be other events on the East Coast. I'm not sure that I'm going to leave it.

More in the East

C: Even if you don't, you've still got a big choice. If you like, there's Chautauqua near the western end of New York State, where symphonies and operas and all kinds of things are presented every year. That begins on July 4. And you can also count on the Bennington, Vt., conference in late August to round out your summer schedule. Then, too, the Tamiment Institute in Tamiment, Pa., features a series of chamber music concerts from June 24 through 27. I understand that a prize-winning quartet, not chosen as yet, will be performed during the three-day period. And this year in Newport there will be a jazz festival on July 17 and 18 and a series of four symphonic concerts beginning on Aug. 20.

T: That's quite a list. But suppose I decide to extend my vacation and go West—will I find anything worth while? You know, I don't hear much music in the winter. What with my job during the day and my television set during the night my time is pretty well taken up. How does the West and Midwest look to you?

C: (Returning to papers.) Smashing, just smashing. On your way out you might stop at the Cincinnati Zoo Opera, which opens on June 26 with "Lucia di Lammermoor." And when you finally hit Denver you'll be right in the middle of a batch of festivals. In Aspen, there are concerts almost every day—and the Institute, opening on June 28, runs until early September. That ought to be enough music to last a lifetime. And Central City, beginning on June 26, will alternate Goumod's "Faust" and Strauss' "Ariadne auf Naxos" until it closes on July 24. Then there is also Red Rocks Park, where the Denver Symphony gives concerts in August under the direction of Saul Caston.

T: Perfect. Plenty to keep me busy. What's California, Too

C: Yes, indeedee. And if you do manage to get out to California there's always the Hollywood Bowl series, the Pacific Coast Festival in Santa Barbara in June, the Redlands Bowl events and the San Diego Symphony under Robert Shaw.

T: Any more?

C: Oh, others here and there, but I really haven't time—

T: I understand. You've been very kind already. One thing more—where can I get some information on German music festivals?

C: That's across the hall. The gentleman behind desk six will take care of you.

T: Will I recognize him?

C: Very simply. Listen carefully. He's always humming Wagner.

TANGLEWOOD—Lenox, Mass.
SINGLE TICKETS NOW!
Berkshire Festival
BY THE
BOSTON SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA
CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director
JULY 7 to AUG. 15
WED. EVE. CHAMBER CONCERTS—$2, $3
FRI. EVE. THEATRE CONCERTS—$4, $5
Sat. Eve. and Sun. Aft. Shed Concert:
$2.50, $3, $3.50, $4, $5.50, $6.50 (Box Seats
Address TICKET OFFICE, TANGLEWOOD
LENOX, MASS. Phone Lenox 600

HOLYOKE, MASS.
TRANSCRIPT-TELEGRAM
MAY 28 1954

A Long And Varied Music Feast

The Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood is nearly upon us. It starts early this year and lasts a long time. The scheduling is quite different, so that people vaguely thinking of attending concerts the way they have in the past should check the new listing. Under the new plan the big concerts will be held on Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons only, and there will be string quartets on Wednesday nights and chamber orchestra concerts on Friday nights in the smaller concert hall. The season starts July 7 and ends August 15. In between, of course, are scores of student concerts of many kinds.

The Berkshire Festival has become one of the big musical events of the world and one of the major summer events of New England. It has now reached the point where it virtually takes over the Berkshires during the summer months. From a provincial point of view it has been a marvelous thing to bring glory back to the once-fabulous Lenox-Stockbridge area, and to restore prosperity to the whole county. That it has presented remarkable opportunities for musicians in this section is obvious.

The Festival and the Berkshire Music Center, which is the school at Tanglewood, go hand in hand in a very happy partnership. The combination makes for a dynamic and forward looking musical organization. The variety now presented at Tanglewood is now dazzling. One can hear the work of the great masters performed in a huge new shed by the Boston Symphony, one of the world's finest orchestras, conducted by Charles Munch or one of the other top ranking conductors, with famous soloists. One may also hear the modern music, and stars just rising in the musical world. Or the connoisseur may linger in the 18th century with the many excellent string programs, either quartet or orchestra, which have drawn such crowds to Tanglewood that they have taken over half the Festival program.

There are also many choral programs, especially this year when Berlioz is being honored. The students at the Center do fine choral work and under the direction of Hugh Ross present many of their own programs. The quality of student work here is very high, of course, for these students are professionals carefully chosen from among hundreds of applicants for the opportunity to study under some of the best musicians there are.

Indeed you can find music at every level. One of the most interesting offerings at Tanglewood is the course at the school open to amateurs who wish to deepen their musical experience. Tanglewood pulls you into the musical world in every way you can imagine.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.
CHRONICLE
MAR 5

Lively Arts

Berlioz Rediscovered—A New Musical Society

By R. H. HAGAN

AMERICA, as someone once pointed out, is a nation of joiners. And American music lovers, to a certain reality, a bit, are also a very specialized set of joiners. There is a Haydn Society, a Hugo Wolf Society, a MacDowell Society, a Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barbershop Quartet Singing in America, Inc.; and—for all I know—an Amalgamated Society for the Preservation of Louis Moreau Gottschalk's "The Last Hope" and E. T. Paull's "Burning of Rome" March (Ltd.).

There is even a Bruckner Society of America which publishes a scholarly periodical filled with learned articles about that composer and also awards gold medals to conductors who program his works.

Something new in musical societies has been the list quite recently and this department [was] aware of it when Vol. 1, No. 1 of The Berlioz Society letter came in the mail a few days ago.

☆ ☆ ☆

THE BERLIOZ SOCIETY OF AMERICA began ago in Boston (according to the society's when four of the founders, "meeting by chance quest for loose tickets to the Boston Symphony and Juliet, determined to work to found a Berlioz

The idea grew prodigiously. With the assis Jacques Barzun, author of "Berlioz and the Roma tury," a distinguished two-volume study of the and his times, Berlioz enthusiasts from all parts world-rallied to the cause. The eminent French co the Boston Symphony, Charles Munch, accepted dency of the group and 19 founding members were (including L. M. Symmes, a Bay Area music lover in Mill Valley.) The director of the Harvard Glee C addressed a Cambridge audience on the subject: "Be discovered in Boston."

☆ ☆ ☆

WHEN BERLIOZ is rediscovered in Boston by a of the faculty of Harvard College, brother, obviously been rediscovered unequivocally for the these continental United States. The Berlioz Society a going concern.

The only thing that troubles me about this w fair is that I wonder what was wrong in San Fr several years ago when we were all looking for know to Pierre Monteux's performances of such Berlio the complete "Romeo and Juliet" and the complete nation of Faust," not to mention I-don't-know-ho performances of the Symphonie Fantastique and in Italy"?

In explanation of this local dereliction of duty intend to write an article in the near future wh Case for the Berlioz Society, or How We Discovered in San Francisco Before They Found Out About Boston."

Meanwhile, if you want to bore from within Eastern abduction of a composer whom San Fra know almost better than any other, you can exc check for $2 (or $1, if you're a music student) wi application for membership. It should be addressed Gillespie, Secretary-Treasurer, Berlioz Society of A Exeter, New Hampshire.

MAESTRO IN THE ROUND: Pierre Monteux will make his only appearance of the season here when he leads the Boston Symphony Thursday at 8:30 p.m. thru works of Cowell, Beethoven, and others. The concert will be presented in Constitution Hall.

BRONXVILLE, N.Y
REVIEW PRESS
6/24/54

Village Vagabonds To Visit Tanglewood

Cinda Hoysradt and Donald West are chairmen of arrangements for the weekend the Village Vagabonds plan to spend at Lenox, Mass., when they attend the Boston Symphony Concert at Tanglewood.

They were appointed last Thursday when the club met at the Brookfield House to make plans for the Summer. Donald Tredwell, president, presided. The married couples of the club are planning a day's outing at James Baird State Park, and a moonlight cruise up the Hudson River on "The Islander" which the club has chartered, is also scheduled by the group.

[123]

TIGHT BINDING

Head for the Woods— Festivals Are There

By JAY S. HARRISON

(The scene: A large, crowded metropolitan travel agency. A brightly colored sign reading "Information" hangs above the central desk. The characters: A music-loving traveler who knows nothing and a music-loving clerk who knows everything. The time: Noon of any day.)

CLERK: Good afternoon. Can I help you?

TRAVELER: I think you can. Anyway, I hope so.

C: Since you're here I imagine that you're interested in arranging a summer vacation. Are you?

T: Yes, but of a very special kind. You see, I'm an amateur musician. I mean I love it, and I'd like to strike some festivals on my travels. Do you know anything about music festivals in America?

C: Yes, indeedee. Off the record, I'm a great lover of the classics, especially Sousa. But my employer must never know. He's suspicious of the better things. (Rummages through an austere and overbrimming file.) Have you any special preferences—Bach, Beethoven, Debussy, the moderns?

T: No—they're all music; and that's what I'm interested in.

In the Berkshires

C: (Searches some more.) Well, let's see. The big event, of course, is Tanglewood, in the Berkshires. Up in Lenox, Mass., they're running a six-week season this summer, beginning July 7. There will be orchestral concerts every Friday and Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons, and on other days all kinds of chamber music.

T: Any operas?

C: Yes. On July 27 there's a double bill of Ernest Toch's "The Princess and the Pea" and Orazio Vecchi's "L'Amfiparnasso." Also on Aug. 2 the opera department is presenting Aaron Copland's "The Tender Land." And on Aug. 18 the New York Pro Musica Antiqua will take over in Lenox and begin a six-concert series of terribly old music.

T: That's fine. Where else can I go?

C: Let's see — here's a road map. Not far from Lenox there's Indian Hill, which will present an opera by Henry Leland Clarke late in July; and there's Falls Village in Connecticut where you can hear string quartets on Sunday afternoons during July and August. By the way, how do you feel about pop concerts?

T: Not strongly. But I might as well pick up some of them while I'm at it. Where?

C: In Boston, up to July 2. And even though they're not really pops, you can hear outdoor music if you find yourself in Philadelphia after June 21. In Chicago there's a double choice—Grant Park after June 23 and Ravinia, on the outskirts of the windy city—that's what they call it in jest, you know—on June 28.

T: But surely there must be other events on the East Coast. I'm not sure that I'm going to leave it.

More in the East

C: Even if you don't, you've still got a big choice. If you like, there's Chautauqua near the western end of New York State, where symphonies and operas and all kinds of things are presented every year. That begins on July 4. And you can also count on the Bennington, Vt., conference in late August to round out your summer schedule. Then, too, the Tamiment Institute in Tamiment, Pa., features a series of chamber music concerts from June 24 through 27. I understand that a prize-winning quartet, not chosen as yet, will be performed during the three-day period. And this year in Newport there will be a jazz festival on July 17 and 18 and a series of four symphonic concerts beginning on Aug. 20.

T: That's quite a list. But suppose I decide to extend my vacation and go West—will I find anything worth while? You know, I don't hear much music in the winter. What with my job during the day and my television set during the night my time is pretty well taken up. How does the West and Mid-West look to you?

C: (Returning to papers.) Smashing, just smashing. On your way out you might stop at the Cincinnati Zoo Opera, which opens on June 26 with "Lucia di Lammermoor." And when you finally hit Denver you'll be right in the middle of a batch of festivals. In Aspen, there are concerts almost every day—and the Institute, opening on June 28, runs until early September. That ought to be enough music to last a lifetime. And Central City, beginning on June 26, will alternate Gounod's "Faust" and Strauss' "Ariadne auf Naxos" until it closes on July 24. Then there is also Red Rocks Park, where the Denver Symphony gives concerts in August under the direction of Saul Caston.

T: Perfect. Plenty to keep me busy.

California, Too

C: Yes, indeedee. And if you do manage to get out to California there's always the Hollywood Bowl series, the Pacific Coast Festival in Santa Barbara in June, the Redlands Bowl events and the San Diego Symphony under Robert Shaw.

T: Any more?

C: Oh, others here and there, but I really haven't time—

T: I understand. You've been very kind already. One thing more—where can I get some information on German music festivals?

C: That's across the hall. The gentleman behind desk six will take care of you.

T: Will I recognize him?

C: Very simply. Listen carefully. He's always humming Wagner.

TANGLEWOOD—Lenox, Mass.
SINGLE TICKETS NOW!
Berkshire Festival
BY THE
BOSTON SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA
CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director
JULY 7 to AUG. 15
WED. EVE. CHAMBER CONCERTS—$2, $3
FRI. EVE. THEATRE CONCERTS—$4, $5
Sat. Eve. and Sun. Aft. Shed Concert
$2.50, $3, $3.50, $4, $5.50, $6.50 (Box Seats
Address TICKET OFFICE, TANGLEWOOD
—LENOX, MASS. Phone Lenox 600—

HOLYOKE, MASS.
TRANSCRIPT-TELEGRAM
MAY 28 1954

A Long And Varied Music Feast

The Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood is nearly upon us. It starts early this year and lasts a long time. The scheduling is quite different, so that people vaguely thinking of attending concerts the way they have in the past should check the new listing. Under the new plan the big concerts will be held on Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons only, and there will be string quartets on Wednesday nights and chamber orchestra concerts on Friday nights in the smaller concert hall. The season starts July 7 and ends August 15. In between, of course, are scores of student concerts of many kinds.

The Berkshire Festival has become one of the big musical events of the world and one of the major summer events of New England. It has now reached the point where it virtually takes over the Berkshires during the summer months. From a provincial point of view it has been a marvelous thing to bring glory back to the once-fabulous Lenox-Stockbridge area, and to restore prosperity to the whole county. That it has presented remarkable opportunities for musicians in this section is obvious.

The Festival and the Berkshire Music Center, which is the school at Tanglewood, go hand in hand in a very happy partnership. The combination makes for a dynamic and forward looking musical organization. The variety now presented at Tanglewood is now dazzling. One may hear the work of the great masters performed in a huge music shed by the Boston Symphony, one of the world's finest orchestras, conducted by Charles Munch or one of the other top ranking conductors, with famous soloists. One may also hear the modern music, and stars just rising in the musical world. Or the connoisseur may linger in the 18th century with the many excellent string programs, either quartet or orchestra, which have drawn such crowds to Tanglewood that they have taken over half the Festival program.

There are also many choral programs, especially this year when Berlioz is being honored. The students at the Center do fine choral work and under the direction of Hugh Ross present many of their own programs. The quality of student work here is very high, of course, for these students are professionals carefully chosen from among hundreds of applicants for the opportunity to study under some of the best musicians there are.

Indeed you can find music at every level. One of the most interesting offerings at Tanglewood is the course at the school open to amateurs who wish to deepen their musical experience. Tanglewood pulls you into the musical world in every way you can imagine.

BRONXVILLE, N.Y.
REVIEW PRESS
6/24/54

Village Vagabonds To Visit Tanglewood

Cinda Hoysradt and Donald West are chairmen of arrangements for the weekend the Village Vagabonds plan to spend at Lenox, Mass., when they attend the Boston Symphony Concert at Tanglewood.

They were appointed last Thursday when the club met at the Pondfield House to make plans for the Summer. Donald Tredwell, president, presided. The married couples of the club are planning a day's outing at James Baird State Park, and a moonlight cruise up the Hudson River on "The Islander" which the club has chartered, is also scheduled by the group.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.
CHRONICLE
MAR 5

Lively Arts

Berlioz Rediscovered A New Musical Soc

By R. H. HAGAN

AMERICA, as someone once pointed out, is a nation of joiners. And American music lovers, to quote Mrs. Grundy, are also a very specialized set of joiners.

There is a Haydn Society, a Hugo Wolf Society, a MacDowell Society, a Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barbershop Quartet Singing in America, Inc.; and—for all I know—an Amalgamated Society for the Preservation of Louis Moreau Gottschalk's "The Last Hope" and E. T. Paull's "Burning of Rome" March (Ltd.).

There is even a Bruckner Society of America which publishes a scholarly periodical filled with learned articles about that composer and also awards gold medals to conductors who program his works.

Something new in musical societies has been the list quite recently and this department first aware of it when Vol. 1, No. 1 of The Berlioz Society letter came in the mail a few days ago.

☆ ☆ ☆

THE BERLIOZ SOCIETY OF AMERICA began ago in Boston (according to the society's new when four of the founders, "meeting by chance quest for loose tickets to the Boston Symphony and Juliet, determined to work to found a Berlioz

The idea grew prodigiously. With the assis Jacques Barzun, author of "Berlioz and the Roman tury," a distinguished two-volume study of the and his times, Berlioz enthusiasts from all parts world rallied to the cause. The eminent French cond the Boston Symphony, Charles Munch, accepted the dency of the group and 19 founding members were (including L. M. Symmes, a Bay Area music lover in Mill Valley.) The director of the Harvard Glee C addressed a Cambridge audience on the subject: "Be discovered in Boston."

☆ ☆ ☆

WHEN BERLIOZ is rediscovered in Boston by a of the faculty of Harvard College, brother, obviously been rediscovered unequivocally for the these continental United States. The Berlioz Society a going concern.

The only thing that troubles me about this fair is that I wonder what was wrong in San several years ago when we were all looking for to Pierre Monteux's performances of such Berlioz the complete "Romeo and Juliet" and the complete nation of Faust," not to mention I-don't-know-how performances of the Symphonie Fantastique and in Italy"?

In explanation of this local dereliction of duty intend to write an article in the near future with Case for the Berlioz Society, or How We Discovered in San Francisco Before They Found Out About Boston."

Meanwhile, if you want to bore from within Eastern abduction of a composer whom San Fra know almost better than any other, you can enclo check for $2 (or $1, if you're a music student) w application for membership. It should be addressed Gillespie, Secretary-Treasurer, Berlioz Society of A Exeter, New Hampshire.

MAESTRO IN THE ROUND: Pianist Artur Rubinstein, who will appear as one of the 83 [illegible] in Constitution Hall, Washington, D. C., on February 14, will be [illegible] Coerll, Boccherini and others [illegible] will be recorded in the round.

TIGHT BINDING

SCO, CALIF.
NICLE
5 1954

ively Arts oz Rediscovered b

ew Musical Society

AGAN

as someone once pointed out, is a Nation
And American music lovers, to qualify the ge are also a very specialized set of joine
a Haydn Society, a Hugo Wolf Society, ciety, a Society for the Preser-Encouragement of Barbershop ing in America, Inc.; and——an Amalgamated Society for tion of Louis Moreau Gott-
Last Hope" and E. T. Paull's Rome" March (Ltd.).
even a Bruckner Society of h publishes a scholarly period-h learned articles about that also awards gold medals to o program his works.

Hector Berlio

new in musical societies has been added recently and this department first becam en Vol. 1, No. 1 of The Berlioz Society New the mail a few days ago.

☆ ☆ ☆

IOZ SOCIETY OF AMERICA began a ye ston (according to the society's newslette the founders, "meeting by chance in the e tickets to the Boston Symphony's Rom ermined to work to found a Berlioz Society grew prodigiously. With the assistance n, author of "Berlioz and the Romantic Ce guished two-volume study of the compos Berlioz enthusiasts from all parts of t the cause. The eminent French conductor mphony, Charles Munch, accepted the pre roup and 19 founding members were enroll
M. Symmes, a Bay Area music lover who liv
The director of the Harvard Glee Club ev mbridge audience on the subject: "Berlioz oston."

☆ ☆ ☆

RLIOZ is rediscovered in Boston by a memb aculty of Harvard College, brother, he h rediscovered unequivocally for the whole al United States. The Berlioz Society is no n.
hing that troubles me about this whole wonder what was wrong in San Francis go when we were all looking for loose ticke eux's performances of such Berlioz works
Romeo and Juliet" and the complete "Dan t," not to mention I-don't-know-how-ma f the Symphonie Fantastique and "Haro

tion of this local dereliction of duty I ful an article in the near future titled "T
rlioz Society, or How We Discovered Berli
co Before They Found Out About Him

If you want to bore from within on th ion of a composer whom San Francisca tter than any other, you can enclose yo r $1, if you're a music student) with yo membership. It should be addressed: W.
tary-Treasurer, Berlioz Society of Americ mpshire.

FIDDLING WITH THE DIAL

Dear Bernie:

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y.
REPORTER-DISPATCH

Applications Due
For Summer School

...ester music students ... to attend the Berk... Music Center, the six week ... school of music main... by the Boston Symphony ... to provide and oppor... ...sic study at Tan... ...d in connection with the ...shire Festival concerts. ...d apply immediately. The ...is directed by Charles ...r, is assisted by Aaron Cop... ...land, and enrolls 400 students in ...sic study group, orchestra, chorus, ...and the departments of compo... ...sition, conducting, opera, and ...chamber music.

The study group is intended ...for all who wish to study music ...simply for its enjoyment. Those ...who wish to become professional ...performers are enrolled in the ...other departments.

Three eminent musicians will ...be added to the faculty this ...Summer. They are Jean Morel, ...as head of the orchestra and ...conducting departments; Ernst ...Toch as teacher of composition; ...and Frederic Cohen as head of ...the opera department.

Mr. Moral, the French con... ...ductor who is at present th... ...head of the orchestra at th... ...Juilliard School of Music, has ...conducted at the Opera Comiqu... ...in Paris, and served as con... ...ductor of the Orchestre Sym... ...phonique de Paris, the Opera ...Rio de Janeiro, Opera Mexico ...and the New York City Cente... ...Opera. He will take the plac... ...of Leonard Bernstein, who wi... ...be on leave of absence thi... ...Summer.

Mr. Toch, who has taught a... ...the University of Southern Cal... ...fornia, will join Aaron Copland... ...as guest teacher in the compos... ...ition department.

NORTHAMPTON, MASS.
HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE

Tanglewood Lists Chamber Concerts

The programs of the six cham... ...ber music concerts at Tangle... ...wood are announced. These con... ...certs are now a part of the en... ...larged Berkshire Festival by the ...Boston Symphony Orchestra, ...Charles Munch, conductor. They ...will be given on six Wednesday ...evenings in the intimate Theatre-...Concert Hall.

The chamber music concerts at ...Tanglewood were initiated by the ...late Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague ...Coolidge, who for several years ...generously donated concerts to ...which Friends of the Berkshire ...Music Center, contributors to ...the support of the school, were ...invited. This custom of chamber ...music at Tanglewood is con... ...tinued as a part of the Berkshire ...Festival concerts, and the pro... ...ceeds of the ticket sale will be ...used to benefit the Tanglewood ...Revolving Scholarship Fund. Sev... ...eral of the artists participating ...will add to this benefit by contri... ...buting their services.

The following programs are ...announced, subject to change ...and addition:

July 7—Claudio Arrau, piano; ...the Bel Arte Trio (Ruth Posselt, ...violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola; ...Martin Hoherman, cello) in a ...Beethoven program: String Trio, ...G Major, Bel Arte Trio; Sonatas, ...Op. 110, 79, 57 ("Appassionata"), ...Mr. Arrau.

July 14—The Albeneri Trio ...(Erich Itor Kahn, piano; Giorgio ...Ciompi, violin; Benar Heifetz, ...cello); Trios, Brahms, B flat ...Martinu, D Minor; Beet... ...flat ("Archduke").

July 21—The Zimbler Sinfo... ...etta, under the direction of Jose... ...Zimbler (George Zazofsk... ...concertmaster; Emil Kornsatt, ...violin; Vladimir B. Resnikoff, ...violin; Harry Ellis Dickson, v. dir... ...Norbert Lauga, violin; Marc ...Zung, violin; Herman Silberm... ...violin; Stanley Benson, vi... ...Joseph de Pasquale, viola; ...Carthage viola; Albert Berm... ...viola; Samuel Mayes, cello; Jos... ...of Zimbler, cello; Martin Hoe... ...man, cello; Henry Portnoi, ...cello; Vivaldi, Four Seasons; ...Stravinsky, Apollon Musagete; ...Rossini, Baroque Concerto.

July 28—The Griller St... ...Quartet (Sidney Griller and J... ...Gabor, violins; Phillip Bur... ...viola; Colin Hampton, ...cello); Mozart, E flat Quartet (K ...); Bloch, Quartet No. 4 (World ...Premiere); Beethoven, Quarte... ...(B flat, Op. 130).

Aug. 4—The Kroll String Qu... ...(William Kroll and Lo... ...Gross, violins; Nathan Gordo... ...viola; Aaron Twerdowsky, cello); ...Haydn, Quartet, Op. 64, No. ...5 ("The Lark"); Hindemith, Quar... ...tet No. 3; Ravel, Quartet.

Aug. 11—Zino Francescatti, vi... ...olin; Artur Balsam, piano Sonata ...Recital: Brahms, Violin Sonata ...in A Major; Bach, Suite in C ...Major (unaccompanied); Brahms, ...Violin Sonata in D Minor.

PATERSON, N. J.
NEWS
JUN 1 - 195

Scholarships Aid Music Students At Tanglewood

More than a dozen special scholarships and tuition aids to summer music students are being offered by the Berkshire Music Center, the school of music operated by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, July 5-August 15, in connection with its annual Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony, is the school's director, and composer Aaron Copland is assistant director.

The principal aid to the 400 students annually from applicants all over the U. S., Canada and abroad, is the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund, which in 1953 awarded grants for the tuition of 210 students. Established in 1947 by RCA-Victor, and since augmented from other sources, the fund is drawn upon each year for students as instrumentalists, conductors, singers, and composers, and is reimbursed by students when they are able to do so in order that others may benefit in future school years. Berkshire Music Center students will work during the six Summer weeks at Tanglewood with such eminent faculty members as Jean Morel, head of the orchestra and conducting departments; Ernst Toch, teacher of composition; Frederic Cohen, head of the opera department; Hugh Ross, in the choral department; Lukas Foss, in the Tanglewood Study Group, a special section available in 1954 to Tanglewood students include, the following:

The Jascha Heifetz Prize, $250, established in 1949 by the eminent violinist, awarded to the outstanding student violinist of the Summer;

The Gregor Piatigorsky Prize $250, established in 1950, awarded by the noted cellist to the year's best student in that field;

A prize of $250 established this year by the Koussevitzky Music Foundation, to be awarded for a work written at Tanglewood by a student composer;

The Margaret Lee Crofts Scholarships, two gifts of $250 each, to students of composition;

The Samuel Wechsler Commission, established in 1952, $300 to a Tanglewood composer;

The Koussevitzky Memorial Scholarship, a tuition award estudent of conducting;

The Selly A. Eiseman Scholarship, a tuition award;

The Carlotta M. Dreyfus Scholarship, a tution award established in 1953.

In many other ways the Berkshire Music Center is assisted in its scholarship projects. For the third year, the Koussevitzky Music Foundation has granted $1,000 to help students take advantage of their tuition scholarships. The Anne M. Gannett Fund of the National Federation of Music Clubs annually provides a $400 scholarship to a student. The Music Study Club of Newark and the Oranges contributes $225 each year to a like purpose. The Louisville Philharmonic Chorus annually raises money to send a student to Tanglewood, as in the past have Grinnell College, Grinnell, Iowa, and Adelphi College, Long Island City. The Woman's Committee of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra since 1950 has contributed $300 to the expenses of a string player for the student orchestra; in 1954, Mary Dodge, violist, has won the competition. Through the Wyomissing Institute of Fine Arts, Pa., Mrs. Bruce Harden of Honolulu, a Tanglewood student in 1940, annually selects a Berkshire Summer student.

Even the Tanglewood students who can afford to do so cooperate through the Student Council Fund to contribute toward the living expenses of needy students.

In 1954's enlarged Berkshire Festival, six Wednesday evening concerts of chamber music will benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund. Contributing their services to these conserts are such noted artists as Claudio Arrau, William Kroll, the Bel Arte Trio and Zino Francescatti.

Futher information about the school can be secured from the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
VILLAGER
JUN 24 1954

Miss Marcelle Hammond, W. ...0th St., will sing with the Opera ...Department of the Berkshire Mu... ...sic Festival at Lenox, Mass., in ...July and August. Miss Hammond, ...her mother, Mrs. Charles Ham... ...mond, and her sister, Mrs. Sally ...Hammond Trope are at Watch ...Hill, Westerly, R. I., where they ...conduct the "Seaside News," a ...summer society paper.

MERIDEN, CONN.
RECORD
JUN 4 - 1954

SOCIETY

Berkshire Festival Programs To Open At Tanglewood On July 7

The 1954 schedule of Berkshire Music Festival programs, which are held each summer at Tangelwood in Lenox, Mass., has been announced as follows:

July 7 — Chamber music; Claudio Arrau, piano, and the Bel Arte Trio in Beethoven program.

July 9 — Chamber orchestra: Bach program with Lukas Foss as piano soloist and Charles Munch conducting.

July 10 — Boston Symphony: Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust" with Harvard Glee Club Radcliffe Choral Society and soloists, conducted by Charles Munch.

July 11 — Boston Symphony: Beethoven program with Claudio Arrau as piano soloist and Pierre Monteux conducting.

July 14 — Chamber music: The Albeneri Trio in program including Brahms, Martinu and Beethoven.

July 16 — Chamber orchestra: Bach program with Hugh Ross and Charles Munch conducting.

July 17 — Boston Symphony: Debussy and Franck program with Vera Franceschi as piano soloist and Pierre Monteux conducting.

July 18 — Boston Symphony: Debussy, Copland and Berlioz program with Leo Smith as piano soloist and Charles Munch as conductor.

July 21 — Chamber music: The Zimbler Sinfonietta in program including Vivaldi, Stravinsky and Rossini.

July 23 — Chamber orchestra: Handel and Haydn program with Hugh Ross and Charles Munch conducting.

July 24 — Boston Symphony: Program including Weber, Prokofieff, Strauss and Elgar with Jean Morel conducting.

July 25 — Boston Symphony: Berlioz and Toch program with William Primrose as violin soloist and Charles Munch conducting.

July 28 — Chamber music: The Griller String Quartet in a program including Mozart, Bloch and Beethoven. This will mark the first performance of Bloch's Quartet No. 4.

July 30 — Chamber orchestra: Program including Roussel, Ibert and Mozart with Doriot Anthony as flute soloist and Charles Munch conducting.

July 31 — Boston Symphony: Berlioz' "Romeo and Juliet," a dramatic symphony with festiva chorus and soloists and Charles Munch conducting.

August 1 — Boston Symphony Program including Prokofieff Dvorak and Sibelius with Ruth Posselt as violin soloist and Richard Burgin conducting.

August 4 — Chamber music: The Kroll String Quartet in program including Haydn, Hindemith and Ravel.

August 6 — Chamber orchestra Program including Stravinsky and Mozart with Seymour Lipkin as piano soloist, the chorus and soloists. Lukas Foss conducting.

August 7 Boston Symphony Berlioz program with Eleanor Steber as soprano soloist and the festival chorus with Charles Munch conducting.

August 8 — Boston Symphony Program including Gluck, Beethoven and Brahms with Zino Francescatti as violin soloist and Charles Munch as conductor.

August 11 — Chamber music Zino Francescatti, violin, and Artur Balsam, pianist, in Brahms and Bach program.

August 12 — Chamber orchestra: Program of Rossini, Mozart, Ravel and Strauss with Jean Morel conducting.

August 13 — Annual Tanglewood on Parade program.

August 14 — Boston Symphony: Program of Brahms, Piston, Ravel and Saint - Saens with Nicole Henriot as piano soloist and Charles Munch conducting.

August 15 — Boston Symphony: Berlioz' "Requiem" with festival chorus and soloist in memory of Serge Koussevitzky with Charles Munch conducting.

All chamber music and chamber orchestra concerts are held in the Theater Concert Hall and start at 8:30 p.m. Saturday and Sunday Boston Symphony concerts are given in the Music Shed on Saturday's at 8:30 p.m. and on Sundays at 2:30 p.m.

* * *

This Clipping From
ALBANY, N. Y.
KNICKERBOCKER NEWS
JUN 3 - 1954

Tanglewood Opens Concert Series July 7

The first of six Wednesday night chamber music concerts to be offered as a part of the Berkshire Music Festival this summer at Tanglewood will be presented July 7.

Music by Beethoven will comprise the program for the opening concert by Claudio Arrau, pianist, and the Bel Arte Trio. The chamber music programs will be offered in the Theater-Concert Hall on successive Wednesday nights through Aug. 11.

Proceeds of the chamber music programs will go to the Tanglewood revolving scholarship fund.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
JUN 5 - 1954

BERKSHIRE MUSIC SERIES

Beethoven Recital July 6 to Start 6 Chamber Concerts

An all-Beethoven recital July 6 by Claudio Arrau, pianist, and the Bel Arte Trio will open a series of six chamber music events at the Berkshire Music Festival, Tanglewood, Mass.

The concerts, to be given on successive Wednesday evenings in the Theatre-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, will also present the Albeneri Trio, the Zimbler Sinfonietta, the Griller and Kroll Quartets and a sonata recital by Zino Francescatti, violinist, and Artur Balsam, pianist.

DALLAS, TEX.
TIMES-HERALD
JUN 4 1954

Berkshire Chamber Concerts Announced

Special to The Times Herald

Boston, June 4.—The programs of the six chamber music concerts at Tanglewood have been announced. These concerts are now a part of the enlarged Berkshire Festival by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, conductor. They will be given on six Wednesday evenings in the intimate Theater-Concert Hall.

Announce Soloists Of Berkshire Festival

Six-Week Concert Series To Open July 7

Martial Singher, baritone; David Poleri, tenor; Donald Gramm, bass-baritone; John McCollum, tenor; Niccola Moscona, bass-baritone of the Metropolitan Opera, and E. Power Biggs, organist, will be among the soloists for the Berkshire Festival by the Boston Symphony Orchetra at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. this summer.

The six week-ends of summer concerts in the hills of western Massachusetts will commence with a chamber music concert by Claudio Arrau, pianist, and the Bel Arte Trio, Ruth Poselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola, and Martin Hoherman, 'cello, in an all-Beethoven program in the Theatre-Concert Hall on Wednesday evening, July 7.

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will conduct a chamber orchestra in a program of Bach's Brandenburk Concerto No. 5 Friday evening, July 9; Claudio Arrau, in Franck's "Les Djinns", which Mr Monteux will conduct on Saturday evening, July 17.

Also, Leo Smit, pianist, in Aaron Copland's Piano Concerto, Sunday afternoon, July 18; William Primrose, violist, in Berlioz' "Harold in Italy" Symphony, Sunday afternoon, July 25; Doriot Anthony, first flutist of the Boston Symphony, in Jacques Ibert's Flute Concerto, Friday evening, July 30; Ruth Posselt, violinist, in Dvorak's Violin Concerto, Sunday afternoon, August 11; Seymur Lipkin, pianist, in a Mozart Piano Concerto, Friday evening, August 6; Zino Francescatti in Beethoven's Violin Concerto, Sunday afternoon, August 8, and Nicole Henriot, pianist, in Ravel's Piano Concerto, Saturday evening, August 14.

Applications for single concert tickets may be sent to the box office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., telephone Lenox 600.

Mr Singher, Mr Poleri, Mr Gramm and Eleanor Steber, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, will be soloists in Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust", to be given for the first time at a Berkshire Festival, on Saturday evening, July 10, in the huge Music Shed at Tanglewood. The full 104-piece Boston Symphony conducted by Mr Munch, assisted by the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society under the direction fo G. Wallace Woodworth, will perform in the opera. The choruses from Cambridge, returning from their first transcontinental tour, will make their first visit to Tanglewood for this occasion.

Mr Poleri will also be the soloist in Berlioz' "Te Deum", which Mr Munch will conduct at the Shed Concert of Saturday evening, August 7, with the assistance of the Berkshire Festival Chorus of students of the Berkshire Music Center, the summer school of music maintained by the orchestra. Mr Poleri will sing the single solo part in Berlioz' "Requiem", with which Mr Munch will close the Festival on Sunday afternoon, August 15. The final concert will be a memorial to Serge Koussevitzky, for 25 years music director of the Boston Symphony and pioneer of the Tanglewood development.

John McCollum and Nicola Moscona, who were two of the three soloists in the 1953 Festival performance of Berlioz' dramatic symphony "Romeo and Juliet", will repeat their roles in the performance of Saturday evening, July 31. Mr Biggs will give two Saturday afternoon organ recitals in the Music Shed during the latter part of the Berkshire Festival.

Other of the summer soloists are Miss Steber in Berlioz' "Summer Nights", on Saturday evening, August 7; Lukas Foss in the Bach Brandenburk Concerto No. 5 Friday evening, July 9; Claudio Arrau, in Franck's "Les Djinns", which Mr Monteux will conduct on Saturday evening, July 17.

Also, Leo Smit, pianist, in Aaron Copland's Piano Concerto, Sunday afternoon, July 18; William Primrose, violist, in Berlioz' "Harold in Italy" Symphony, Sunday afternoon, July 25; Doriot Anthony, first flutist of the Boston Symphony, in Jacques Ibert's Flute Concerto, Friday evening, July 30; Ruth Posselt, violinist, in Dvorak's Violin Concerto, Sunday afternoon, August 11; Seymur Lipkin, pianist, in a Mozart Piano Concerto, Friday evening, August 6; Zino Francescatti in Beethoven's Violin Concerto, Sunday afternoon, August 8, and Nicole Henriot, pianist, in Ravel's Piano Concerto, Saturday evening, August 14.

Applications for single concert tickets may be sent to the box office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., telephone Lenox 600.

[154]

TIGHT BINDING

ST. PAUL, MINN.
PIONEER PRESS
JUN 6 - 1954

Aliferis Again Will Teach At Berkshire Music Center

Dr. James Aliferis, associate professor of music at the University of Minnesota and conductor of the University Chorus and Chamber Singers, will be a faculty member of the Berkshire Music center, Lenox, Mass., for the third summer.

The center is a school of music operated by the Boston Symphony orchestra July 5 to August 15 in connection with its annual Berkshire festival.

Aliferis again will work with Hugh Ross, director of the Schola Cantorum of New York City, in preparation of two choruses for performances with the Boston Symphony during the festival.

Aliferis also will prepare the festival chorus in Berlioz' "Romeo and Juliet" for performance with the orchestra under direction of Charles Munch. Aliferis will conduct a performance of "Romeo and Juliet" by the University chorus with the Minneapolis Symphony here next February.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
MIRROR
JUN 5 - 1954

Summer Music Students Can Rate Scholarships

More than a dozen special scholarships and tuition aids to summer music students are being offered by the Berkshire Music center, the school of music operated by the Boston Symphony orchestra, July 5-Aug. 15, in connection with its annual Berkshire festival, at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony, is the school's director, and composer Aaron Copland is assistant director.

The principal aid to the 400 students selected annually from applicants all over the U. S., Canada and abroad, is the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship fund, which in 1953 awarded grants for the tuition of 210 students.

Established in 1947 by RCA-Victor, and since augmented from other sources, the fund is drawn upon each year for students selected as instrumentalists, conductors, singers and composers and is reimbursed by students when they are able to do so in order that others may benefit in future school years.

Berkshire Music center students will work during the six summer weeks at Tanglewood with such eminent faculty members as Jean Morel, head of the orchestra and conducting departments; Ernst Toch, teacher of composition; Frederic Cohen, head of the opera department; Hugh Ross, in the choral department; Lukas Foss, in the Tanglewood study group, a special section available teurs.

In addition, special sc available in 1954 to students include the The Jascha Heifetz prize the outstanding student the Gregor Piatigorsky p best student cellist; a $250 established this year Koussevitzky Music found be awarded for a work Tanglewood by a student er.

Also the Margaret Lee scholarships, two gifts each, to students of compe the Samuel Wechsler comm established in 1952, $300 to glewood composer; the Kous ky Memorial scholarship, outstanding student of c ing; the Selly A. Eiseman arship, tuition award; a Carlotta M. Dreyfus schol a tuition award establish 1953.

In many other ways the shire Music center is assis its scholarship projects by ing social, civic and ed groups.

Even the Tanglewood st who can afford to do so co through the Student Council to contribute toward the liv penses of needy students.

In 1954's enlarged Berkshir tival, six Wednesday evenin certs of chamber music will fit the Tanglewood Rev Scholarship Fund. Contri their services to these concer such noted artists as Claudi rau, William Kroll, the Bel Trio and Zino Francescatti.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN
JUN 6 - 1954

Chamber Music Programs At Tanglewood Announced

Claudio Arrau and Bel Arte Trio in First Concert of Theater-Concert Hall Series to Be Held This Year On Six Wednesday Nights

Boston, June 3—The programs of the six chamber music concerts at Tanglewood have been announced. These concerts are now a part of the enlarged Berkshire Festival by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, conductor. They will be given on six Wednesday evenings in the intimate Theater-Concert Hall.

The chamber music concerts at Tanglewood were initiated by the late Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge, who for several years generously donated concerts to which Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, contributors to the support of the school, were invited. This custom of chamber music at Tanglewood is continued as a part of the Berkshire Festival concerts, and the proceeds of the ticket sale will be used to benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund. Several of the artists participating will add to this benefit by contributing their services.

Arrau to Open

These concerts will be open to the public and ticket orders are now being taken. The following programs are announced, subject to change and addition:

July 7, Claudio Arrau, piano; the Bel Arte Trio (Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola; Martin Hoberman, cello) in a Beethoven program:

Bel Arte
Trio ..... String Trio, G Major
Mr. Arrau ..... Sonatas, Op. 110, 79, 57 ("Appassionata")

July 14, The Albeneri Trio (Erich Itor Kahn, piano; Giorgio Ciompi, violin; Benar Heifetz, cello).. Trios, Brahms, B Major; Martinu, D Minor, Beethoven, B flat ("Archduke").

July 21, The Zimbler Sinfonietta, under the direction of Josef Zimbler (George Zazofsky, concertmaster; Emil Kornsand, violin; Vladimir B. Resnikoff, violin; Harry Ellis Dickson, violin; Norbert Lauga, violin; Manuel Zung, violin; Herman Silberman, violin; Stanley Benson, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola; Jean Cauhape, viola; Albert Bernard, viola; Samuel Mayes, cello; Josef Zimbler, cello; Martin Hoherman, cello; Henry Portnoi, doublebass).
Four Seasons ..... Vivaldi
Apollon Musagete .... Stravinsky
Baroque Concerto ..... Rossini

July 28, The Griller String Quartet (Sidney Griller and Jack O'Brien, violins; Phillip Burton, viola; Colin Hampton, cello).
E flat Quartet (K. 428)....Mozart
Quartet No. 4 (world premiere) ..... Bloch
Quartet Op. 18, No. 2...Beethoven

Aug. 4, The Kroll String Quartet (William Kroll and Louis Graeler, violins; Nathan Gordon, viola; Avron Twerdowsky, cello).
Quartet, Op. 64, No. 4 ("The Lark") ..... Haydn
Quartet No. 3 ..... Hindemith
Quartet ..... Ravel

Aug. 11, Zino Francescatti, violin; Arthur Balsam, piano, Sonata Recital.
Violin Sonata in A Major...Brahms
Suite in C Major (unaccompanied) ..... Bach
Violin Sonata in D Minor...Brahms

NEW YORK, N. Y.
POST
JUN 6 - 1954

WORDS and MUSIC

By Harriett Johnson

Berkshire Festival to Run 6 Weeks

The Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., for the first time in its 17-year history, will run six weeks this season, opening Wednesday night, July 7, with a chamber music concert. The enlarged program is due to the overwhelming success of last year's festival which played to a record audience of almost 118,000 and grossed many more thousands of dollars than ever before.

Concerts in the big music shed which seats over 6,000 people will take place each Saturday night and Sunday afternoon, beginning July 10, and ending Aug. 15. Each Wednesday and Friday nights there will be special concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall, seating approximately 1,200.

Charles Munch, musical director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will again conduct the ensemble in the majority of the festival programs, but there will be several guest conductors as well. In commemoration of the 150th anniversary of the birth of Hector Berlioz, the festival features works by this composer.

The composer's choral symphony, "The Damnation of Faust," will open the shed concerts Saturday, July 10, with Munch on the podium. Assisting will be the Harvard Glee Club, the Radcliffe Choral Society and the following soloists: Martial Singher, David Poleri, Donald Gramm and Eleanor Steber.

Munch also conducts a concert of five Bach Brandenburg concerti with Lukas Foss as piano soloist, Friday, July 9, in the Theater-Concert Hall.

Pierre Monteau leads the Bostonians at the shed concert, Sunday, July 11, at 2:30, in an all-Beethoven program. Claudio Arrau is soloist on this occasion in the "Emperor" concerto of Beethoven. The Fifth Symphony and overture to "Leonore" No. 3, complete the program. Arrau and the Bel Arte Trio open the Chamber Music concerts Wednesday, July 7, with another all-Beethoven concert.

Boss to Lead Mass

Other featured works during the season which closes Aug. 15, will be the "Nelson" mass of Haydn, July 23, to be conducted by Hugh Ross, currently represented on Broadway as conductor of "The Golden Apple." Ross also leads a Bach cantata on a second all-Bach program July 16, with Munch directing the second half of the concert comprising two orchestral suites.

For single tickets address or telephone the festival office at Tanglewood.

BOSTON, MASS.
MORNING GLOBE
JUN 6 - 1954

Chamber Music Concerts at Berkshire Festival

Six chamber music concerts in the enlarged Berkshire Festival will be given on successive Wednesday evenings beginning July 7. They will be held in the Theatre-Concert Hall at Tanglewood.

The chamber music concerts at Tanglewood were initiated by the late Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge, who for several years generously donated concerts to which Friends of the Berkshire Music Center were invited. This custom of chamber music at Tanglewood is continued as a part of the Berkshire Festival concerts, and the proceeds of the ticket sale will be used to benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund. Several of the artists participating will add to this benefit by contributing their services.

These concerts will be open to the public at a single ticket rate of $3 and $2, and orders are now being taken.

The following programs are announced, subject to change and addition:

July 7—Claudio Arrau, piano; the Bel Arte Trio (Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola; Martin Hoherman, cello) in a Beethoven program: String Trio, G Major; Sonatas, Op. 110, 79, 57.

July 14—The Albeneri Trio (Erich Itor Kahn, piano; Giorgio Ciompi, violin; Benar Heifetz, cello); Trios: Brahms, B Major; Martinu, D Minor; Beethoven, B flat.

July 21—The Zimbler Sinfonietta, under the direction of Josef Zimbler; Vivaldi, Four Seasons; Stravinsky, Apollon Musagete; Rossini, Baroque Concerto.

July 28—The Griller String Quartet; Mozart, E flat Quartet (K. 428); Bloch, Quartet No. 4 (world premiere); Beethoven, Quartet Op. 18, No. 2.

Aug. 4—The Kroll String Quartet; Haydn, Quartet, Op. 64, No. 5; Hindemith, Quartet No. 3; Ravel, Quartet.

Aug. 11—Zino Francescatti, violin;

NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE
JUN 5 - 1954

Chamber Music At Tanglewood

Programs were announced yesterday for the six chamber music concerts on Wednesday evenings which will be a part of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's Berkshire Music Festival this summer at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

On July 7, Claudio Arrau will play three Beethoven sonatas, and the Bel Arte Trio (Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola, and Martin Hoherman, cello) will play Beethoven's string trio in G major. On July 14 the Albeneri Trio (Erich Itor Kahn, piano; Giorgio Ciompi, violin, and Benar Heifitz, cello) will play trios by Brahms and Beethoven and Bohuslav Martinu's trio in D minor. Works by Vivaldi, Stravinsky and Rossini will be played by the Zimbler Sinfonietta July 21.

Ernest Bloch's Quartet No. 4 will have its first performance July 28, when the Griller Quartet will also play works of Mozart and Beethoven. The Kroll Quartet plays works of Haydn, Hindemith and Ravel Aug. 4, and Zino Francescatti closes the series Aug. 11, playing violin sonatas by Brahms and Bach.

PASADENA, CALIF.
STAR NEWS
JUN 1 8 1954

UP AND DOWN THE SCALE

The opera department of the Berkshire Musical Center plans three productions for this summer's festival in the Massachusetts hills. They will be of Aaron Copland's "The Tender Land," Ernst Toch's "The Princess and the Pea," and the madrigal opera, "L'Amfiparnaso," by the 16th century's Orazio Vecchi. The Copland opera, which had its world premiere by the New York Opera Company, will be given two performances—on the evenings of August 2 and 3. The other two will be a double bill. July 27, Toch's new string quartet was featured at the season's last concert of the League of Composers in New York.

ERNST TOCH
"Princess and Pea"

* * *

New York's summer open-air concerts in the Lewisohn Stadium of the College of the City of New York, will have an "All-American night" this year, featuring contemporary American music, with Virgil Thomson conducting.

* * *

WORCESTER, MASS.
TELEGRAM
JUN 6 - 1954

Music

Tanglewood to Have Six Public Concerts

By RAYMOND MORIN, Telegram Music Critic

The specialized art of chamber music is really coming into its own this Summer at Tanglewood. Six programs are announced for Wednesday evenings, beginning July 7, to be part of the enlarged Berkshire Festival by the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Heretofore, there have been plenty of chamber music attractions at Tanglewood but they were part of the Berkshire Music Center activities and available only to friends of the center.

Open to Public

Big names are associated with this new series to be held in the Theater-Concert Hall. These concerts will be open to the public at a single ticket rate $3 and $2, and orders are now being taken.

The schedule: July 7—Claudio Arrau, piano; the Bel Arte Trio (Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola; Martin Hoherman, cello) in a Beethoven program.

July 14—The Albeneri Tio (Erich Itor Kahn, piano; Giorgio Ciompi, violin; Benar Heifetz, cello) in trios by Brahms, Martinu, and Bethoven ("Archduke").

July 21—The Zimbler Sinfonietta, Josef Zimbler, director, in Vivaldi's "Four Season," Stravinsky's "Apollon Musigate," and Rossini's "Baroque Concerto."

July 28—The Griller Quartet (Sidney Grillier and Jack O'Brien, violins; Phillip Burton, viola; Colin Hampton, cello) in the world premiere of Bloch's "Quartet No. 4," also Mozart's E flat (K.428) and Beethoven's Opus 18, No. 2.

Aug. 4—The Kroll String Quartet (William Kroll and Louis Graeler, violins; Nathan Gordon, viola; Avon Twerdowsky, cello) in Haydn's Quartet, "The Lark," Hindemith third quartet, and the Ravel.

Aug. 11—Zino Francescatti, violin; Arthur Balsam, piano, in a piano recital, including Brahms' A major Violin Sonata and the one in D minor, also Bach's Suite in C major for unaccompanied violin.

ALBANY, N. Y.
KNICKERBOCKER NEWS
JUN 19 1954

2 Changes Made At Tanglewood

Two changes in the Berkshire Festival programs to be presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood have been announced by Charles Munch, music director.

Instead of an all-Cesar Franck program July 17 in the Shed, guest conductor Pierre Monteux will substitute two orchestral selections by Claude Debussy. Excerpts from "St. Sebastian" and the tone poem "La Mer" will replace the previously scheduled "Le Chausseur Maudit" and "Les Eolides" by Franck.

Mr. Munch's program Aug. 14 in the Shed will offer Brahms' "Tragic Overture" in place of Wagner's "A Faust Overture."

[125]

TIGHT BINDING

ST. PAUL, MINN.
PIONEER PRESS
JUN 6 - 1954

Aliferis Again Will Teach At Berkshire Music Center

Dr. James Aliferis, associate professor of music at the University of Minnesota and conductor of the University Chorus and Chamber Singers, will be a faculty member of the Berkshire Music center, Lenox, Mass., for the third summer.

The center is a school of music operated by the Boston Symphony orchestra July 5 to August 15 in connection with its annual Berkshire festival.

Aliferis again will work with Hugh Ross, director of the Schola Cantorum of New York City, in preparation of two choruses for performances with the Boston Symphony during the festival.

Aliferis also will prepare the festival chorus in Berlioz' "Romeo and Juliet" for performance with the orchestra under direction of Charles Munch. Aliferis will conduct a performance of "Romeo and Juliet" by the University chorus with the Minneapolis Symphony here next February.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN
JUN 6 - 1954

Chamber Music Programs At Tanglewood Announced

Claudio Arrau and Bel Arte Trio in First Concert of Theater-Concert Hall Series to Be Held This Year On Six Wednesday Nights

Boston, June 5—The programs of the six chamber music concerts at Tanglewood have been announced. These concerts are now a part of the enlarged Berkshire Festival by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, conductor. They will be given on six Wednesday evenings in the intimate Theater-Concert Hall.

The chamber music concerts at Tanglewood were initiated by the late Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge, who for several years generously donated concerts to which Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, contributors to the support of the school, were invited. This custom of chamber music at Tanglewood is continued as a part of the Berkshire Festival concerts, and the proceeds of the ticket sale will be used to benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund. Several of the artists participating will add to this benefit by contributing their services.

Arrau in Opener

These concerts will be open to the public and ticket orders are now being taken. The following programs are announced, subject to change and addition:

July 7, Claudio Arrau, piano; the Bel Arte Trio (Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola; Martin Hoherman, cello) in a Beethoven program:
Bel Arte
Trio ..... String Trio, G Major
Mr. Arrau .... Sonatas, Op. 110, 79, 57 ("Appassionata")

July 14, The Albeneri Trio (Erich Itor Kahn, piano; Giorgio Ciompi, violin; Benar Heifetz, cello).. Trios, Brahms, B Major; Martinu, D Minor, Beethoven, B flat ("Archduke").

July 21, The Zimbler Sinfonietta, under the direction of Josef Zimbler (George Zazofsky, concertmaster; Emil Kornsand, violin; Vladimir B. Resnikoff, violin; Harry Ellis Dickson, violin; Norbert Lauga, violin; Manuel Zung, violin; Herman Silberman, violin; Stanley Benson, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola; Jean Cauhape, viola: Albert Bernard, viola; Samuel Mayes, cello; Josef Zimbler, cello; Martin Hoherman, cello; Henry Portnoi, doublebass).
Four Seasons ..... Vivaldi
Apollon Musagete .... Stravinsky
Baroque Concerto ..... Rossini

July 28, The Griller String Quartet (Sidney Griller and Jack O'Brien, violins; Phillip Burton, viola; Colin Hampton, cello).
E flat Quartet (K. 428)....Mozart
Quartet No. 4 (world premiere) ..... Bloch
Quartet Op. 18, No. 2...Beethoven

Aug. 4, The Kroll String Quartet (William Kroll and Louis Graeler, violins; Nathan Gordon, viola; Avron Twerdowsky, cello).
Quartet, Op. 64, No. 4 ("The Lark") ..... Haydn
Quartet No. 3 ..... Hindemith
Quartet ..... Ravel

Aug. 11, Zino Francescatti, violin; Arthur Balsam, piano, Sonata Recital.
Violin Sonata in A Major...Brahms
Suite in C Major (unaccompanied) ..... Bach
Violin Sonata in D Minor..Brahms

NEW YORK AGE
NEW YORK, N. Y.
JUN 5 - 1954

Summer Music Students Can Rate Scholarships

More than a dozen special scholarships and tuition aids to summer music students are being offered by the Berkshire Music center, the school of music operated by the Boston Symphony orchestra, July 5-Aug. 15, in connection with its annual Berkshire festival, at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony, is the school's director, and composer Aaron Copland is assistant director.

The principal aid to the 400 students selected annually from applicants all over the U. S., Canada and abroad, is the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship fund, which in 1953 awarded grants for the tuition of 210 students.

Established in 1947 by RCA-Victor, and since augmented from other sources, the fund is drawn upon each year for students selected as instrumentalists, conductors, singers and composers and is reimbursed by students when they are able to do so in order that others may benefit in future school years.

Berkshire Music center students will work during the six summer weeks at Tanglewood with such eminent faculty members as Jean Morel, head of the orchestra and conducting departments; Ernst Toch, teacher of composition; Frederic Cohen, head of the opera department; Hugh Ross, in the choral department; Lukas Foss, in the Tanglewood study group, a special section available [illegible] teurs.

In addition, special schol[illegible] available in 1954 to Tan[illegible] students include the [illegible] The Jascha Heifetz prize, [illegible] the outstanding student w[illegible] the Gregor Piatigorsky prize [illegible] best student cellist; a p[illegible] $250 established this year [illegible] Koussevitzky Music foundat[illegible] be awarded for a work w[illegible] Tanglewood by a student c[illegible] er.

Also the Margaret Lee [illegible] scholarships, two gifts of [illegible] each, to students of compos[illegible] the Samuel Wechsler commi[illegible] established in 1952, $300 to a [illegible] glewood composer; the Kouss[illegible] ky Memorial scholarship, f[illegible] outstanding student of co[illegible] ing; the Selby A. Eiseman [illegible] arship, tuition award; and [illegible] Carlotta M. Dreyfus schola[illegible] a tuition award establishe[illegible] 1953.

In many other ways the [illegible] shire Music center is assis[illegible] its scholarship projects by [illegible] ing social, civic and edu[illegible] groups.

Even the Tanglewood stu[illegible] who can afford to do so coop[illegible] through the Student Council [illegible] to contribute toward the living [illegible] penses of needy students.

In 1954's enlarged Berkshire [illegible] tival, six Wednesday evening [illegible] certs of chamber music will b[illegible] fit the Tanglewood Revo[illegible] Scholarship Fund. Contrib[illegible] their services to these concerts [illegible] such noted artists as Claudio [illegible] rau, William Kroll, the Bel [illegible] Trio and Zino Francescatti.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
POST
JUN 6 - 1954

WORDS and MUSIC
By Harriett Johnson

Berkshire Festival to Run 6 Weeks

The Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., for the first time in its 17-year history, will run six weeks this season, opening Wednesday night, July 7, with a chamber music concert. The enlarged program is due to the overwhelming success of last year's festival which played to a record audience of almost 118,000 and grossed many more thousands of dollars than ever before.

Concerts in the big music shed which seats over 6,000 people will take place each Saturday night and Sunday afternoon, beginning July 10, and ending Aug. 15 Each Wednesday and Friday nights, there will be special concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall, seating approximately 1,200.

Charles Munch, musical director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will again conduct the ensemble in the majority of the festival programs, but there will be several guest conductors as well. In commemoration of the 150th anniversary of the birth of Hector Berlioz, the festival features works by this composer.

The composer's choral symphony, "The Damnation of Faust," will open the shed concerts Saturday, July 10, with Munch on the fodium Assisting will be the Harvard Glee Club, the Radcliffe Choral Society and the following soloists: Martial Singher, David Poleri, Donald Gramm and Eleanor Steber.

Munch also conducts a concert of five Bach Brandenburg concerti with Lukas Foss as piano soloist, Friday, July 9, in the Theater-Concert Hall.

Pierre Monteau leads the Bostonians at the shed concert, Sunday, July 11, at 2:30, in an all-Beethoven program. Claudio Arrau is soloist on this occasion in the "Emperor" concerto of Beethoven. The Fifth Symphony and overture to "Leonore" No. 3, complete the program. Arrau and the Bel Arte Trio open the Chamber Music concerts Wednesday, July 7, with another all-Beethoven concert.

Ross to Lead Mass

Other featured works during the season which closes Aug. 15, will be the "Nelson" mass of Haydn, July 23, to be conducted by Hugh Ross, currently represented on Broadway as conductor of "The Golden Apple." Ross also leads a Bach cantata on a second all-Bach program July 16, with Munch directing the second half of the concert comprising two orchestral suites.

For single tickets address or telephone the festival office at Tanglewood.

BOSTON, MASS.
MORNING GLOBE
JUN 6 - 1954

Chamber Music Concerts at Berkshire Festival

Six chamber music concerts in the enlarged Berkshire Festival will be given on successive Wednesday evenings beginning July 7. They will be held in the Theatre-Concert Hall at Tanglewood.

The chamber music concerts at Tanglewood were initiated by the late Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge, who for several years generously donated concerts to which Friends of the Berkshire Music Center were invited. This custom of chamber music at Tanglewood is continued as a part of the Berkshire Festival concerts, and the proceeds of the ticket sale will be used to benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund. Several of the artists participating will add to this benefit by contributing their services.

These concerts will be open to the public at a single ticket rate of $3 and $2, and orders are now being taken.

The following programs are announced, subject to change and addition:

July 7—Claudio Arrau, piano; the Bel Arte Trio (Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola; Martin Hoherman, cello) in a Beethoven program; String Trio, G Major; Sonatas, Op. 110, 79, 57.

July 14—The Albeneri Trio (Erich Itor Kahn, piano; Giorgio Ciompi, violin; Benar Heifetz, cello); Trios, Brahms, B Major; Martinu, D Minor; Beethoven, B flat.

July 21—The Zimbler Sinfonietta, under the direction of Josef Zimbler; Vivaldi, Four Seasons; Stravinsky, Apollon Musagete; Rossini, Baroque Concerto.

July 28—The Griller String Quartet; Mozart, E flat Quartet (K. 428); Bloch, Quartet No. 4 (world premiere); Beethoven, Quartet Op. 18, No. 2.

Aug. 4—The Kroll String Quartet; Haydn, Quartet, Op. 64, No. 5; Hindemith, Quartet No. 3; Ravel, Quartet.

Aug. 11—Zino Francescatti, violin;

NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE
JUN 5 - 1954

Chamber Music At Tanglewood

Programs were announced yesterday for the six chamber music concerts on Wednesday evenings which will be a part of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's Berkshire Music Festival this summer at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

On July 7, Claudio Arrau will play three Beethoven sonatas, and the Bel Arte Trio (Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola, and Martin Hoherman, cello) will play Beethoven's string trio in G major. On July 14 the Albeneri Trio (Erich Itor Kahn, piano; Giorgio Ciompi, violin, and Benar Heifitz, cello) will play trios by Brahms and Beethoven and Bohuslav Martinu's trio in D minor. Works by Vivaldi, Stravinsky and Rossini will be played by the Zimbler Sinfonietta July 21.

Ernest Bloch's Quartet No. 4 will have its first performance July 28, when the Griller Quartet will also play works of Mozart and Beethoven. The Kroll Quartet plays works of Haydn, Hindemith and Ravel Aug. 4, and Zino Francescatti closes the series Aug. 11, playing violin sonatas by Brahms and Bach.

PASADENA, CALIF.
STAR NEWS
JUN 1 8 1954

UP AND DOWN THE SCALE

The opera department of the Berkshire Musical Center plans three productions for this summer's festival in the Massachusetts hills. They will be of Aaron Copland's "The Tender Land," Ernst Toch's "The Princess and the Pea," and the madrigal opera, "L'Amfiparnasso," by the 16th century's Orazio Vecchi. The Copland opera, which had its world premiere by the New York Opera Company, will be given two performances—on the evenings of August 2 and 3. The other two will be a double bill, July 17. Toch's new string quartet was featured at the season's first concert of the League of Composers in New York.

ERNST TOCH
"Princess and Pea"

* * *

New York's summer opera season in the Lewisohn Stadium of the College of the City of New York, will have an all American night [illegible] contemporary American composers with Virgil Thomson conducting.

* * *

WORCESTER, MASS.
TELEGRAM
JUN 6 - 1954

Music

Tanglewood to Have Six Public Concerts

By RAYMOND MORIN, Telegram Music Critic

The specialized art of chamber music is really coming into its own this Summer at Tanglewood. Six programs are announced for Wednesday evenings, beginning July 7, to be part of the enlarged Berkshire Festival by the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Heretofore, there have been plenty of chamber music attractions at Tanglewood but they were part of the Berkshire Music Center activities and available only to friends of the center.

Open to Public

Big names are associated with this new series to be held in the Theater-Concert Hall. These concerts will be open to the public at a single ticket rate $3 and $2, and orders are now being taken.

The schedule: July 7—Claudio Arrau, piano; the Bel Arte Trio (Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola; Martin Hoherman, cello) in a Beethoven program.

July 14—The Albeneri Tio (Erich Itor Kahn, piano; Giorgio Ciompi, violin; Benar Heifetz, cello) in trios by Brahms, Martinu, and Bethoven ("Archduke").

July 21—The Zimbler Sinfonietta, Josef Zimbler, director, in Vivaldi's "Four Season," Stravinsky's "Apollon Musigate," and Rossini's "Baroque Concerto."

July 28—The Griller Quartet (Sidney Griller and Jack O'Brien, violins; Phillip Burton, viola; Colin Hampton, cello) in the world premiere of Bloch's "Quartet No. 4," also Mozart's E flat (K.428) and Beethoven's Opus 18, No. 2.

Aug. 4—The Kroll String Quartet (William Kroll and Louis Graeler, violins; Nathan Gordon, viola; Avon Twerdowsky, cello) in Haydn's Quartet, "The Lark," Hindemith third quartet, and the Ravel.

Aug. 11—Zino Francescatti, violin; Arthur Balsam, piano, in a piano recital, including Brahms' A major Violin Sonata and the one in D minor, also Bach's Suite in C major for unaccompanied violin.

[125]

ALBANY, N. Y.
KNICKERBOCKER NEWS
JUN 19 1954

2 Changes Made At Tanglewood

Two changes in the Berkshire Festival programs to be presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood have been announced by Charles Munch, music director.

Instead of an all-Cesar Franck program July 17 in the Shed, guest conductor Pierre Monteux will substitute two orchestral selections by Claude Debussy. Excerpts from "St. Sebastian" and the tone poem "La Mer" will replace the previously scheduled "Le Chausseur Maudit" and "Les Eolides" by Franck.

Mr. Munch's program Aug. 14 in the Shed will offer Brahms' "Tragic Overture" in place of Wagner's "A Faust Overture."

ST. PAUL, MINN.
PIONEER PRESS
JUN 6 - 1954

Aliferis Again Will Teach At Berkshire Music Center

Dr. James Aliferis, associate professor of music at the University of Minnesota and conductor of the University Chorus and Chamber Singers, will be a faculty member of the Berkshire Music center, Lenox, Mass., for the third summer.

The center is a school of music operated by the Boston Symphony orchestra July 5 to August 15 in connection with its annual Berkshire festival.

Aliferis again will work with Hugh Ross, director of the Schola Cantorum of New York City, in preparation of two choruses for performances with the Boston Symphony during the festival.

Aliferis also will prepare the festival chorus in Berlioz' "Romeo and Juliet" for performance with the orchestra under direction of Charles Munch. Aliferis will conduct a performance of "Romeo and Juliet" by the University chorus with the Minneapolis Symphony here next February.

NEW YORK AGE
NEW YORK, N. Y.
JUN 5 - 1954

Summer Music Studen Can Rate Scholarships

More than a dozen special scholarships and tuition aids to summer music students are being offered by the Berkshire Music center, the school of music operated by the Boston Symphony orchestra, July 5-Aug. 15, in connection with its annual Berkshire festival, at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony, is the school's director, and composer Aaron Copland is assistant director.

The principal aid to the 400 students selected annually from applicants all over the U. S., Canada and abroad, is the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship fund, which in 1953 awarded grants for the tuition of 210 students.

Established in 1947 by RCA-Victor, and since augmented from other sources, the fund is drawn upon each year for students selected as instrumentalists, conductors, singers and composers and is reimbursed by students when they are able to do so in order that others may benefit in future school years.

Berkshire Music center students will work during the six summer weeks at Tanglewood with such eminent faculty members as Jean Morel, head of the orchestra and conducting departments; Ernst Toch, teacher of composition; Frederic Cohen, head of the opera department; Hugh Ross, in the choral department; Lukas Foss, in the Tanglewood study group, a special section ar teurs.

In addition, spe available in 1954 students include The Jascha Heifet the outstanding the Gregor Piatig best student cell $250 established th Koussevitzky Mus be awarded for a Tanglewood by a er.

Also the Marg scholarships, two each, to students the Samuel Wechsl established in 1952, glewood composer; ky Memorial schol outstanding stude ing; the Selly A. arship, tuition aw Carlotta M. Dreyf a tuition award 1953.

In many other shire Music center its scholarship pro ing social, civic groups.

Even the Tangl who can afford to through the Student to contribute toward penses of needy st

In 1954's enlarged tival, six Wednesday certs of chamber mu fit the Tanglewo Scholarship Fund, their services to th such noted artists rau, William Kroll, Trio and Zino Fran

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN
JUN 6 - 1954

ic Programs od Announced

te Trio in First Concert of Series to Be Held This ay Nights

Boston, June 5—The programs of the six chamber music concerts at Tanglewood have been announced. These concerts are now a part of the enlarged Berkshire Festival by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, conductor. They will be given on six Wednesday evenings in the intimate Theater-Concert Hall.

The chamber music concerts at Tanglewood were initiated by the late Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge, who for several years generously donated concerts to which Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, contributors to the support of the school, were invited. This custom of chamber music at Tanglewood is continued as a part of the Berkshire Festival concerts, and the proceeds of the ticket sale will be used to benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund. Several of the artists participating will add to this benefit by contributing their services.

Arrau in Opener

These concerts will be open to the public and ticket orders are now being taken. The following programs are announced, subject to change and addition:

July 7, Claudio Arrau, piano; the Bel Arte Trio (Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola; Martin Hoherman, cello) in a Beethoven program:
Bel Arte
Trio ..... String Trio, G Major
Mr. Arrau .... Sonatas, Op. 110, 79, 57 ("Appassionata")

July 14, The Albeneri Trio (Erich Itor Kahn, piano; Giorgio Ciompi, violin; Benar Heifetz, cello).. Trios, Brahms, B Major; Martinu, D Minor, Beethoven, B flat ("Archduke").

July 21, The Zimbler Sinfonietta, under the direction of Josef Zimbler (George Zazofsky, concertmaster; Emil Kornsand, violin; Vladimir B. Resnikoff, violin; Harry Ellis Dickson, violin; Norbert Lauga, violin; Manuel Zung, violin; Herman Silberman, violin; Stanley Benson, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola; Jean Cauhape, viola; Albert Bernard, viola; Samuel Mayes, cello; Josef Zimbler, cello; Martin Hoherman, cello; Henry Portnoi, doublebass).
Four Seasons ..... Vivaldi
Apollon Musagete .... Stravinsky
Baroque Concerto ..... Rossini

July 28, The Griller String Quartet (Sidney Griller and Jack O'Brien, violins; Phillip Burton, viola; Colin Hampton, cello).
E flat Quartet (K. 428)....Mozart
Quartet No. 4 (world premiere) ..... Bloch
Quartet Op. 18, No. 2...Beethoven

Aug. 4, The Kroll String Quartet (William Kroll and Louis Graeler, violins; Nathan Gordon, viola; Avron Twerdowsky, cello).
Quartet, Op. 64, No. 4 ("The Lark") ..... Haydn
Quartet No. 3 ..... Hindemith
Quartet ..... Ravel

Aug. 11, Zino Francescatti, violin; Arthur Balsam, piano, Sonata Recital.
Violin Sonata in A Major...Brahms
Suite in C Major (unaccompanied) ..... Bach
Violin Sonata in D Minor..Brahms

NEW YORK, N. Y.
POST
JUN 6 - 1954

WORDS and MUSIC

By Harriett Johnson

Berkshire Festival to Run 6 Weeks

The Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., for the first time in its 17-year history, will run six weeks this season, opening Wednesday night, July 7, with a chamber music concert. The enlarged program is due to the overwhelming success of last year's festival which played to a record audience of almost 118,000 and grossed many more thousands of dollars than ever before.

Concerts in the big music shed which seats over 6,000 people will take place each Saturday night and Sunday afternoon, beginning July 10, and ending Aug. 15 Each Wednesday and Friday nights, there will be special concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall, seating approximately 1,200.

Charles Munch, musical director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will again conduct the ensemble in the majority of the festival programs, but there will be several guest conductors as well. In commemoration of the 150th anniversary of the birth of Hector Berlioz, the festival features works by this composer.

The composer's choral symphony, "The Damnation of Faust," will open the shed concerts Saturday, July 10, with Munch on the podium Assisting will be the Harvard Glee Club, the Radcliffe Choral Society and the following soloists: Martial Singher, David Poleri, Donald Gramm and Eleanor Steber.

Munch also conducts a concert of five Bach Brandenburg concerti with Lukas Foss as piano soloist, Friday, July 9, in the Theater-Concert Hall.

Pierre Monteau leads the Bostonians at the shed concert, Sunday, July 11, at 2:30, in an all-Beethoven program. Claudio Arrau is soloist on this occasion in the "Emperor" concerto of Beethoven. The Fifth Symphony and overture to "Leonore" No. 3, complete the program. Arrau and the Bel Arte Trio appear the following Wednesday, July 7, with another all-Beethoven concert.

Boss to Lead Mass

Other featured works during the season which closes Aug. 15, will be the "Nelson" mass of Haydn, July 23, to be conducted by Hugh Ross, currently represented on Broadway as conductor of "The Golden Apple." Ross also leads a Bach cantata on a second all-Bach program July 16, with Munch directing the second half of the concert comprising two orchestral suites.

For single tickets address or telephone the festival office at Tanglewood.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE
JUN 5 - 1954

Chamber Music At Tanglewood

Programs were announced yesterday for the six chamber music concerts on Wednesday evenings which will be a part of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's Berkshire Music Festival this summer at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

On July 7, Claudio Arrau will play three Beethoven sonatas, and the Bel Arte Trio (Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola, and Martin Hoherman, cello) will play Beethoven's string trio in G major. On July 14 the Albeneri Trio (Erich Itor Kahn, piano; Giorgio Ciompi, violin, and Benar Heifitz, cello) will play trios by Brahms and Beethoven and Bohuslav Martinu's trio in D minor. Works by Vivaldi, Stravinsky and Rossini will be played by the Zimbler Sinfonietta July 21.

Ernest Bloch's Quartet No. 4 will have its first performance July 28, when the Griller Quartet will also play works of Mozart and Beethoven. The Kroll Quartet plays works of Haydn, Hindemith and Ravel Aug. 4, and Zino Francescatti closes the series Aug. 11, playing violin sonatas by Brahms and Bach.

. BOSTON, MASS.
MORNING GLOBE
JUN 6 - 1954

Chamber Music Concerts at Berkshire Festival

Six chamber music concerts in the enlarged Berkshire Festival will be given on successive Wednesday evenings beginning July 7. They will be held in the Theatre-Concert Hall at Tanglewood.

The chamber music concerts at Tanglewood were initiated by the late Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge, who for several years generously donated concerts to which Friends of the Berkshire Music Center were invited. This custom of chamber music at Tanglewood is continued as a part of the Berkshire Festival concerts, and the proceeds of the ticket sale will be used to benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund. Several of the artists participating will add to this benefit by contributing their services.

These concerts will be open to the public at a single ticket rate of $3 and $2, and orders are now being taken.

The following programs are announced, subject to change and addition:

July 7—Claudio Arrau, piano; the Bel Arte Trio (Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola; Martin Hoherman, cello) in a Beethoven program: String Trio, G Major; Sonatas, Op. 110, 79, 57.

July 14—The Albeneri Trio (Erich Itor Kahn, piano; Giorgio Ciompi, violin; Benar Heifetz, cello); Trios: Brahms, B Major; Martinu, D Minor; Beethoven, B flat.

July 21—The Zimbler Sinfonietta, under the direction of Josef Zimbler: Vivaldi, Four Seasons; Stravinsky, Apollon Musagete; Rossini, Baroque Concerto.

July 28—The Griller String Quartet: Mozart, E flat Quartet (K. 428); Bloch, Quartet No. 4 (world premiere); Beethoven, Quartet Op. 18, No. 2.

Aug. 4—The Kroll String Quartet: Haydn, Quartet, Op. 64, No. 5; Hindemith, Quartet No. 3; Ravel, Quartet.

Aug. 11—Zino Francescatti, violin; Artur Balsam, piano: Brahms, Violin Sonata in A Major; Bach, Suite in C Major (unaccompanied); Brahms, Violin Sonata in D Minor.

d to Have Concerts

Telegram Music Critic

amber music is really coming Tanglewood. Six programs are enings, beginning July 7, to be e Festival by the Boston Sym-

Two changes in the Berkshire Festival programs to be presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood have been announced by Charles Munch, music director.

Instead of an all-Cesar Franck program July 17 in the Shed, guest conductor Pierre Monteux will substitute two orchestral selections by Claude Debussy. Excerpts from "St. Sebastian" and the tone poem "La Mer" will replace the previously scheduled "Le Chasseur Maudit" and "Les Eolides" by Franck.

Mr. Munch's program Aug. 14 in the Shed will offer Brahms' "Tragic Overture" in place of Wagner's "A Faust Overture."

[125]

TIGHT BINDING

NORTHAMPTON, MASS.
HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE

JU...

25 Student Concerts Listed For Tanglewood

About 25 concerts by students of the Berkshire Music Center will be given during the course of this summer's Berkshire Festival by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood, Lenox.

The Berkshire Music Center is directed by Charles Munch, Music Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, according to the plan and in the spirit of its creator, Serge Koussevitzky. Now preparing for its 12th year, which will commence with the arrival of some 400 students from all parts of the U.S., Canada and foreign countries on Sunday, July 4, the Berkshire Music Center has Aaron Copland as assistant director, and such eminent musicians as Jean Morel, Hugh Ross, Frederic Cohen, Ernst Toch, Lukas Foss, Gregor Piatigorsky and First Chair members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra as teachers.

Young musicians of high skill—players, conductors, singers, many on the threshold of distinguished careers, at Tanglewood have the valuable experience of group performance. As in the past, their concerts are open to members of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center according to seating capacity. A voluntary contribution constitutes membership in the Friends, whose enrollment at the end of 1953 was 5472, an increase of more than 1500 from the previous year. Contributions from the Society of Friends in 1953 totaled $27,637, and total attendance at the student concerts last summer was 43,825, an increase of nearly 10,000 over the year before. Thirty-five per cent of the Friends are from Berkshire County, Massachusetts, which means that Tanglewood's summer neighbors have found increasing enjoyment in observing the work of its students.

With the announcement of the concerts by students of the Berkshire Music Center, events at Tanglewood this summer now total 49, a full calendar for 42 days of six-week season. Twenty-four are Berkshire Festival concerts, six are Saturday morning rehearsals of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, proceeds benefiting the orchestra's pension fund. In addition are two organ recitals by E. Power Biggs, on Saturday afternoons July 24 and August 7.

The complete schedule follows:

Department I (Orchestra): Music Shed, 8:30 p.m., July 8, 15, 22, 29, August 5; August 14 at 3 p.m.

Department I (Chamber Music): Chamber Music Hall, 10 a.m., July 11, 18, 25, August 1, 8, 15.

Department II (Composition): Chamber Music Hall, 8:30 p.m., July 11, 18, 25, August 1, 8.

Department II (Chorus) and IV (Opera): reserved seats: Two 1-act operas, Theatre - Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m., July 27.

Department IV (Opera) — reserved seats: Full-length opera, Theatre-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m., August 2, 3.

Department ...

Extra concerts: E. Power Biggs, organist, Music Shed, 3:00 p.m., July 24, August 7.

Pension Fund Benefit rehearsals by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Music Shed, 10 a.m., July 10, 17, 24, 31, August 7, 14.

MERIDEN, CONN.
JOURNAL

JUN 8 - 1954

Berkshire Festival To Open July 7 For Two Month Season At Tanglewood

The 1954 Schedule of Berkshire Music Festival programs, which are held each summer at Tanglewood in Lenox, Mass., has been announced as follows:

July 7 — Chamber music; Claudio Arrau, piano, and the Bel Arte Trio in Beethoven program.

July 9 — Chamber orchestra: Bach program with Lukas Foss as piano soloist and Charles Munch conducting.

July 10 — Boston Symphony: Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust" with Harvard Glee Club Radcliffe Choral Society and soloists, conducted by Charles Munch.

July 11 — Boston Symphony: Beethoven program with Claudio Arrau as piano soloist and Pierre Monteux conducting.

July 14 — Chamber music: The Albeneri Trio in program including Brahms, Martinu and Beethoven.

July 16 — Chamber orchestra: Bach program with Hugh Ross and Charles Munch conducting.

July 17 — Boston Symphony: Debussy and Franck program with Vera Franceschi as piano soloist and Pierre Monteux conducting.

July 18 — Boston Symphony: Debussy, Copland and Berlioz program with Leo Smith as piano soloist and Charles Munch as conductor.

July 21 — Chamber music: The Zimbler Sinfonietta in program including Vivaldi, Stravinsky and Rossini.

July 23 — Chamber orchestra: Handel and Haydn program with Hugh Ross and Charles Munch conducting.

July 24 — Boston Symphony: Program including Weber, Prokofieff, Strauss and Elgar with Jean Morel conducting.

July 25 — Boston Symphony: Berlioz and Toch program with William Primrose as violin soloist and Charles Munch conducting.

July 28 — Chamber music: The Griller String Quartet in a program including Mozart, Bloch and Beethoven. This will mark the first performance of Bloch's Quartet No. 4.

July 30 — Chamber orchestra: Program including Roussel, Ibert and Mozart with Doriot Anthony as flute soloist and Charles Munch conducting.

The 1954 schedule of Berkshire

July 31 — Boston Symphony: Berlioz' "Romeo and Juliet," a dramatic symphony with festival chorus and soloists and Charles Munch conducting.

August 1 — Boston Symphony: Program including Prokofieff, Dvorak and Sibelius with Ruth Posselt as violin soloist and Richard Burgin conducting.

August 4 — Chamber music: The Kroll String Quartet in program including Haydn, Hindemith and Ravel.

August 6 — Chamber orchestra: Program including Stravinsky and Mozart with Seymour Lipkin as piano soloist, the chorus and soloists. Lukas Foss conducting.

August 7 — Boston Symphony: Berlioz program with Eleanor Steber as soprano soloist and the festival chorus with Charles Munch conducting.

August 8 — Boston Symphony: Program including Gluck, Beethoven and Brahms with Zino Francescatti as violin soloist and Charles Munch as conductor.

August 11 — Chamber music: Zino Francescatti, violin, and Artur Balsam, pianist, in Brahms and Bach program.

August 12 — Chamber orchestra: Program of Rossini, Mozart Ravel and Strauss with Jean Morel conducting.

August 13 — Annual Tanglewood on Parade program.

August 14 — Boston Symphony Program of Brahms, Piston, Ravel and Saint - Saens with Nicole Henriot as piano soloist and Charles Munch conducting.

August 15 — Boston Symphony: Berlioz' "Requiem" with festival chorus and soloist in memory of Serge Koussevitzky with Charles Munch conducting.

All chamber music and chamber orchestra concerts are held in the Theater Concert Hall and start at 8:30 p.m. Saturday and Sunday Bos... are given ... Saturday's ... Sundays at ...

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN

JUN 13 1954

Student Concert Series Planned at Tanglewood

Berkshire Music Center Summer School Schedule Announced; Activities Due to Start July 4; Six Symphony Concerts by Scholarship Students

Boston, June 12—About 25 concerts by students of the Berkshire Music Center will be given during the course of this summer's Berkshire Festival by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood, in Lenox. The Berkshire Music Center is now preparing for its 12th year, which wil commence with the arrival of some 400 students from all parts of the U. S., Canada and foreign countries on Sunday, July 4.

Young musicians of high skill—players, conductors, singers—many on the threshold of distinguished careers, at Tanglewood have the valuable experience of group performance. As in the past, their concerts are open to members of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, according to seating capacity. A voluntary contribution constitutes membership in the Friends, whose enrollment at the end of the summer of 1953 was 5472, an increase of more than 1500 from the previous year.

Attendance Grows

Contributions from the Society of Friends in 1953 totaled $27,637, and total attendance at the student concerts last summer was 43,825, an increase of nearly 10,00 over the year before. Thirty-five per cent of the Friends are from Berkshire County, which means that Tanglewood's summer neighbors have found increasing enjoyment in observing the work of its students.

With the announcement of the concerts by students of the Berkshire Music Center, events at Tanglewood this summer now total 49, a full calendar for the 42 days of the six-week season. Twenty-four are Berkshire Festival concerts, six are Saturday morning rehearsals of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, admission $1 each, proceeds benefiting the Orchestra's Pension Fund. In addition are two organ recitals by E. Power Biggs, on Saturday afternoons July 24 and Aug. 7.

The schedule calls for six concerts of symphony music by the orchestra composed of 100 scholarship students. These will be held on Thursday evenings in the Music Shed at 8.30 p. m., commencing July 8, with the exception of the final one, announced for Saturday afternoon, Aug. 14.

Six concerts of chamber music wil be held in the Chamber Music Hall at 10 a. m. on Sunday mornings, July 11 through Aug. 15.

Composers' Forums

Five forums wherein young composers accepted for study at Tanglewood argue their own and fellow students' works, are held Sunday evenings at 8.30 p. m. in the Chamber Music Hal, July 11 to Aug. 15.

Three evenings of opera will be given in the Theater-Concert Hall, which require reserved seat tickets procurable in advance. Vecchi's "L'Amfiparnasso" and Toch's "The Princess and the Pea" are the attraction on Tuesday, July 27; Aaron Copland's full-length opera, "The Tender Land," new to New England, on Monday and Tuesday evenings, Aug. 2 and 3. Two evenings devoted to performance of opera scenes and choral works are planned in the Theater-Concert Hall on Tuesdays, July 11 and Aug. 10.

Unscheduled demonstrations by students of the new Dept. 5, organized two years ago for the pure enjoyment of music by amateurs, will be given, as in the past, on Sturday afternoons, in the Barn, and also planned are Monday evening forums, Aaron Copland moderating, in Sedgwick Hall, Lenox.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE

JUN 20 1954

Tanglewood Alters Programs

Special to the Herald Tribune

LENOX, Mass., June 19.—Two changes were announced today for programs by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the Berkshire Festival in the Music Shed at Tanglewood. On Saturday night, July 17, Pierre Monteux has substituted excerpts from Debussy's "Le Martyre de Saint Sebastien" and "La Mer" for Franck's "Le Chasseur Maudit" and "Les Eolides."

Charles Munch will conduct Brahms's "Tragic" Overture instead of Wagner's "A Faust Overture" on Saturday, Aug. 14. As usual, the Boston Symphony will give public rehearsals at 10 a. m. on the festival's six Saturdays, beginning July 10. There will be an admission charge of $1 for the orchestra's pension fund.

Tickets for the concerts on Wednesday, Friday and Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons from July 7 through Aug. 15, are on sale at the Tanglewood box office. Reservations may be made by telephone, Lenox 600.

NEWARK, N. J.
STAR-LEDGER

JUN 13 1954

VACATION WITH CULTURE

Various art centers plan for summer

By ELENORE LESTER

Back in the Middle Ages, the difficulties of travel were mainly responsible for the earliest gatherings of musicians, artists, dancers and actors who met periodically to concentrate their activities at some center.

Today, the ease of travel brings success to the big summertime festivals of the arts. Vacationers who wish to supplement their swimming, sunning, golfing or fishing with liberal doses of music, drama, dance or art will have a good selection of culture-crammed vacation spots. All the festival centers are set in scenic territory, which usually offer an abundance of the customary summer activities.

The Berkshire Festival, staged from July 7 through Aug. 15 in the little town of Lenox, in western Massachusetts, is one of the outstanding summer series in the country. The Boston Symphony Orchestra will participate; and a brilliant array of soloists are scheduled. The series this year pays special tribute to the 150th anniversary of Hector Berlioz. The Berkshire Festival is held in conjunction with a six-week summer school of music. In addition to concerts scheduled in the huge shed at Tanglewood there are numerous other instrumental, choral and operatic performances which make music pervade the atmosphere throughout the season. Nearby at Jacob's Pillow, some of the world's most renowned dancers are featured weekly during the six-week season.

ASPEN INSTITUTE ...

PASADENA, CAL...
STAR NEWS
JUN 1 8 19...

UP AND DOWN THE SCALE

The opera departme... Berkshire Musical Cen... three productions for ... mer's festival in the ... setts hills. They wi... Aaron Copland's "Th... Land," Ernst Toch's "... cess and the Pea." ... madrigal opera, "L... lasso, by the 16th ... Orazio Vecchi. The ... opera, which had its ... miere by the New Y... Company, will be ...

ERNST TOC...
"Princess and P...

performances—on the... of August 2 and 3. T... two will be a doub... 27. Toch's new ... was featured at the ... last concert of the ... Composers in New Y...

New York's summer ... concerts in the Lewi... dium of the ... of New York, wi... American ... turing contemporary ... music, with Virgil ... conducting ...

ALBANY, N. Y.
KNICKERBOCKER NEWS

Tanglewood Center Sets 25 Concerts

Students of the Berkshire Music Center will present 25 concerts at the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood during July and the first two weeks in August.

The Music Center, directed by Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will commence its 12th year with the arrival July 4 of 400 students from all parts of the country.

The student program will include six concerts of symphony music by an orchestra of 100, which will be presented Thursday nights, starting July 8.

Six concerts of chamber music also will be presented by students Sunday mornings from July 11 through Aug. 15. Programs of opera are scheduled July 27 and Aug 2 and 3.

The student concerts will be open to members of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center. A voluntary contribution constitutes membership in the Friends of the Music Center.

BUFFALO, N. Y.
COURIER-EXPRESS

JUN 9 - 1954

Symphony Group Honors Manager

George E. Judd, retiring manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, was honored yesterday by members of the Major Symphony Orchestras Managers' Conference meeting in Hotel Sheraton.

Judd, honored in a resolution noting "the splendid contribution he has made to the cultural life of America, will retire this summer. The resolution was offered ...

BUFFALO, N. Y.
NEWS

JN 9 - 195...

CONVENTION CITES RETIRING HEAD OF BOSTON SYMPHONY

George E. Judd, Boston Symphony Orchestra manager since 1915, who is retiring, was honored Tuesday at the Major Symphony Orchestra Managers Conference in Hotel Sheraton.

Mr. Judd, who has accompanied the orchestra here on almost annual visits for the past 25 years, was cited in a testimonial scroll signed by 26 managers for his "splendid contribution to the cultural life of America." He will be succeeded by Thomas D. Perry, who also is attending the conference.

The managers compared notes on pops concerts at the opening session, concluding that they ... the "best means of attracting" persons to hear symphonies for the first time." Ralph Black, manager of the Buffalo Philharmonic Orchestra, presided, and Craig Hutchinson, a Buffalo native who now is manager of the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra, described a series of free concerts in that city, brought to the public by private subscription.

The conference appointed George A. Kuyper of Chicago, William McK. Martin of Pittsburgh and John S. Edwards of Washington to draw up proposals for the initiation of a National Symphony Week. The proposals, providing for a concerted effort to bring to the public an awareness of great symphony music, will be voted on later this year.

[126]

TIGHT BINDING

Student
larships

benefit in future school special section available

Music center students
uring the six summer
anglewood with such ulty members as Jean of the orchestra and
departments; Ernst
her of composition;
en, head of the opera
Hugh Ross, in the
rtment; Lukas Foss, ewood study group, a

teurs.

In addition, special sc
available in 1954 to T
students include the
The Jascha Heifetz priz
the outstanding student
the Gregor Piatigorsky
best student cellist; a
$250 established this ye
Koussevitzky Music fou
be awarded for a work
Tanglewood by a studen
er.

Also the Margaret L
scholarships, two gifts
each, to students of co
the Samuel Wechsler co
established in 1952, $300
glewood composer; the K
ky Memorial scholarshi
outstanding student of
ing; the Selly A. Eisem
arship, tuition award;
Carlotta M. Dreyfus sc
a tuition award estab
1953.

In many other ways
shire Music center is a
its scholarship projects
ing social, civic and
groups.

Even the Tanglewood
who can afford to do so
through the Student Cou
to contribute toward the penses of needy students

In 1954's enlarged Berksh
tival, six Wednesday even certs of chamber music w fit the Tanglewood
Scholarship Fund, Co
their services to these co
such noted artists as Cl
rau, William Kroll, the
Trio and Zino Francesca

n Apple." Ross also cantata on a second ram July 16, with ng the second half rt comprising two tes.

tickets address or festival office at

TON, MASS.
NING GLOBE
6 - 1954
Music Concerts
e Festival
music concerts in
Berkshire Festival
n successive Wed
s beginning July eld in the Theatre
t Tanglewood.
music concerts
re initiated by th
eth Sprague Coo
several years ge
d concerts to whic
Berkshire Musi
vited. This custo sic at Tanglewoo
a part of the Berk concerts, and, the ticket sale will be t the Tanglewood
larship Fund. Sev
rtists participating is benefit by con
services.
will be open to single ticket rate
nd orders are now

programs are an ct to change an

Arrau, piano; the Bal
Posselt, violin; Josep
: Martin Hohermah
oven program: Strin
natas, Op. 110, 78, 9
Albeneri Trio (Erio
o: Giorgio Ciompi
eifetz, cello); Trio
; Martinu, D Mino
Zimbler Sinfonietta
on of Josef Zimbl
ons: Stravinsky, Apo
ssini, Baroque Co
iller String Quart
rtet (K. 428); Bich
orld premiere); E
p. 18, No. 2.
oll String Quartet
, 64, No. 5; Hinde
3; Ravel, Quartet.
Francescatti, violi

NY, N. Y.
OCKER NEWS
19 1954
es Made lewood
in the Berkshire
ms to be preoston Symphony anglewood have ed by Charles irector.
an all-Cesa
n July 17 in th
onductor Pierr substitute tw
tions by Claud
erpts from "St.
the tone poem
replace the pre led "Le Chaus
nd 'Les Eolides" program Aug. 14 ill offer Brahms

ure" in place o aust Overture."

PASADENA, CAL
STAR NEWS
JUN 1 8 19

UP AND DOWN
THE SCALE

The opera departme
Berkshire Musical Cen
three productions for mer's festival in the N
setts hills. They wi
Aaron Copland's "Th
Land," Ernst Toch's "
cess and the Pea."
madrigal opera. "L
nasso by the 16th
Orazio Vecchi. The
opera, which had its w
miere by the New Yo
Company, will be g

NORTHAMPTON, MASS.
HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE
JUN

25 Student Concerts Listed For Tanglewood

About 25 concerts by students of the Berkshire Music Center will be given during the course of this summer's Berkshire Festival by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood, Lenox.

The Berkshire Music Center is directed by Charles Munch, Music Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, according to the plan and in the spirit of its creator, Serge Koussevitzky. Now preparing for its 12th year, which will commence with the arrival of some 400 students from all parts of the U.S., Canada and foreign countries on Sunday, July 4, the Berkshire Music Center has Aaron Copland as assistant director, and such eminent musicians as Jean Morel, Hugh Ross, Frederic Cohen, Ernst Toch, Lukas Foss, Gregor Piatigorsky and First Chair members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra as teachers.

Young musicians of high skill—players, conductors, singers, many on the threshold of distinguished careers, at Tanglewood have the valuable experience of group performance. As in the past, their concerts are open to members of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center according to seating capacity. A voluntary contribution constitutes membership in the Friends, whose enrollment at the end of 1953 was 5472, an increase of more than 1500 from the previous year. Contributions from the Society of Friends in 1953 totaled $27,637, and total attendance at the student concerts last summer was 43,825, an increase of nearly 10,000 over the year before. Thirty-five per cent of the Friends are from Berkshire County, Massachusetts, which means that Tanglewood's summer neighbors have found increasing enjoyment in observing the work of its students.

With the announcement of the concerts by students of the Berkshire Music Center, events at Tanglewood this summer now total 49, a full calendar for 42 days of six-week season. Twenty-four are Berkshire Festival concerts, six are Saturday morning rehearsals of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, proceeds benefiting the orchestra's pension fund. In addition are two organ recitals by E. Power Biggs, on Saturday afternoons July 24 and August 7.

The complete schedule follows:

Department I (Orchestra): Music Shed, 8:30 p.m., July 8, 15, 22, 29, August 5; August 14 at 3 p.m.

Department I (Chamber Music): Chamber Music Hall, 10 a.m., July 11, 18, 25, August 1, 8, 15.

Department III (Composition): Chamber Music Hall, 8:30 p.m., July 11, 18, 25, August 1, 8.

Department II (Chorus) and IV (Opera) — reserved seats: Two 1-act operas, Theatre - Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m., July 27.

Department IV (Opera) — reserved seats: Full-length opera, Theatre-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m., August 2, 3.

Department II (Chorus) and IV (Opera) — Theatre-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m., [illegible] 20, Aug. 10.

Extra concerts: E. Power Biggs, organist, Music Shed, 3:00 p.m., July 24, August 7.

Pension Fund Benefit rehearsals by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Music Shed, 10 a.m., July 10, 17, 24, 31, August 7, 14.

MERIDEN, CONN.
JOURNAL
JUN 8 - 1954

Berkshire Festival To Open July 7 For Two Month Season At Tanglewood

The 1954 Schedule of Berkshire Music Festival programs, which are held each summer at Tangelwood in Lenox, Mass., has been announced as follows:

July 7 — Chamber music; Claudio Arrau, piano, and the Bel Arte Trio in Beethoven program.

July 9 — Chamber orchestra: Bach program with Lukas Foss as piano soloist and Charles Munch conducting.

July 10 — Boston Symphony: Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust" with Harvard Glee Club Radcliffe Choral Society and soloists, conducted by Charles Munch.

July 11 — Boston Symphony: Beethoven program with Claudio Arrau as piano soloist and Pierre Monteux conducting.

July 14 — Chamber music: The Albeneri Trio in program including Brahms, Martinu and Beethoven.

July 16 — Chamber orchestra: Bach program with Hugh Ross and Charles Munch conducting.

July 17 — Boston Symphony: Debussy and Franck program with Vera Franceschi as piano soloist and Pierre Monteux conducting.

July 18 — Boston Symphony: Debussy, Copland and Berlioz program with Leo Smith as piano soloist and Charles Munch as conductor.

July 21 — Chamber music: The Zimbler Sinfonietta in program including Vivaldi, Stravinsky and Rossini.

July 23 — Chamber orchestra: Handel and Haydn program with Hugh Ross and Charles Munch conducting.

July 24 — Boston Symphony: Program including Weber, Prokofieff, Strauss and Elgar with Jean Morel conducting.

July 25 — Boston Symphony: Berlioz and Toch program with William Primrose as violin soloist and Charles Munch conducting.

July 28 — Chamber music: The Griller String Quartet in a program including Mozart, Bloch and Beethoven. This will mark the first performance of Bloch's Quartet No. 4.

July 30 — Chamber orchestra: Program including Roussel, Ibert and Mozart with Doriot Anthony as flute soloist and Charles Munch conducting.

The 1954 schedule of Berkshire

July 31 — Boston Symphony: Berlioz' "Romeo and Juliet," a dramatic symphony with festival chorus and soloists and Charles Munch conducting.

August 1 — Boston Symphony: Program including Prokofieff, Dvorak and Sibelius with Ruth Posselt as violin soloist and Richard Burgin conducting.

August 4 — Chamber music: The Kroll String Quartet in program including Haydn, Hindemith and Ravel.

August 6 — Chamber orchestra; Program including Stravinsky and Mozart with Seymour Lipkin as piano soloist, the chorus and soloists. Lukas Foss conducting.

August 7 — Boston Symphony: Berlioz program with Eleanor Steber as soprano soloist and the festival chorus with Charles Munch conducting.

August 8 — Boston Symphony: Program including Gluck, Beethoven and Brahms with Zino Francescatti as violin soloist and Charles Munch as conductor.

August 11 — Chamber music: Zino Francescatti, violin, and Artur Balsam, pianist, in Brahms and Bach program.

August 12 — Chamber orchestra: Program of Rossini, Mozart Ravel and Strauss with Jean Morel conducting.

August 13 — Annual Tanglewood on Parade program.

August 14 — Boston Symphony Program of Brahms, Piston, Ravel and Saint - Saens with Nicole Henriot as piano soloist and Charles Munch conducting.

August 15 — Boston Symphony: Berlioz' "Requiem" with festival chorus and soloist in memory of Serge Koussevitzky with Charles Munch conducting.

All chamber music and chamber orchestra concerts are held in the Theater Concert Hall and start at 8:30 p.m. Saturday and Sunday Boston Symphony concerts are given in the Music Shed, on Saturday's at 8:30 p.m. and on Sundays at 2:30 p.m.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN
JUN 13 1954

Student Concert Series Planned at Tanglewood

Berkshire Music Center Summer School Schedule Announced; Activities Due to Start July 4; Six Symphony Concerts by Scholarship Students

Boston, June 12—About 25 concerts by students of the Berkshire Music Center will be given during the course of this summer's Berkshire Festival by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood, in Lenox. The Berkshire Music Center is now preparing for its 12th year, which wil commence with the arrival of some 400 students from all parts of the U. S., Canada and foreign countries on Sunday, July 4.

Young musicians of high skill—players, conductors, singers—many on the threshold of distinguished careers, at Tanglewood have the valuable experience of group performance. As in the past, their concerts are open to members of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, according to seating capacity. A voluntary contribution constitutes membership in the Friends, whose enrollment at the end of the summer of 1953 was 5472, an increase of more than 1500 from the previous year.

Attendance Grows

Contributions from the Society of Friends in 1953 totaled $27,637, and total attendance at the student concerts last summer was 43,825, an increase of nearly 10,00 over the year before. Thirty-five per cent of the Friends are from Berkshire County, which means that Tanglewood's summer neighbors have found increasing enjoyment in observing the work of its students.

With the announcement of the concerts by students of the Berkshire Music Center, events at Tanglewood this summer now total 49, a full calendar for the 42 days of the six-week season. Twenty-four are Berkshire Festival concerts, six are Saturday morning rehearsals of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, admission $1 each, proceeds benefiting the Orchestra's Pension Fund. In addition are two organ recitals by E. Power Biggs, on Saturday afternoons July 24 and Aug. 7.

The schedule calls for six concerts of symphony music by the orchestra composed of 100 scholarship students. These will be held on Thursday evenings in the Music Shed at 8.30 p. m., commencing July 8, with the exception of the final one, announced for Saturday afternoon, Aug. 14.

Six concerts of chamber music will be held in the Chamber Music Hall at 10 a. m. on Sunday mornings, July 11 through Aug. 15.

Composers' Forums

Five forums wherein young composers accepted for study at Tanglewood argue their own and fellow students' works, are held Sunday evenings at 8.30 p. m. in the Chamber Music Hal, July 11 to Aug. 15.

Three evenings of opera will be given in the Theater-Concert Hall, which require reserved seat tickets procurable in advance. Vecchi's "L'Amfiparnasso" and Toch's "The Princess and the Pea" are the attraction on Tuesday, July 27; Aaron Copland's full-length opera, "The Tender Land," new to New England, on Monday and Tuesday evenings, Aug. 2 and 3. Two evenings devoted to performance of opera scenes and choral works are planned in the Theater-Concert Hall on Tuesdays, July 11 and Aug. 10.

Unscheduled demonstrations by students of the new Dept. 5, organized two years ago for the pure enjoyment of music by amateurs, will be given, as in the past, on Sturday afternoons, in the Barn, and also planned are Monday evening forums, Aaron Copland moderating, in Sedgwick Hall, Lenox.

LENOX, Mass., June 19.—Two changes were announced today for programs by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the Berkshire Festival in the Music Shed at Tanglewood. On Saturday night, July 17, Pierre Monteux has substituted excerpts from Debussy's "Le Martyre de Saint Sebastien" and "La Mer" for Franck's "Le Chasseur Maudit" and "Les Eolides."

Charles Munch will conduct Brahms's "Tragic" Overture instead of Wagner's "A Faust Overture" on Saturday, Aug. 14. As usual, the Boston Symphony will give public rehearsals at 10 a. m. on the festival's six Saturdays, beginning July 10. There will be an admission charge of $1 for the orchestra's pension fund.

Tickets for the concerts on Wednesday, Friday and Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons from July 7 through Aug. 15, are on sale at the Tanglewood box office. Reservations may be made by telephone, Lenox 600.

NEWARK, N. J.
STAR-LEDGER
JUN 13 1954

VACATION WITH CULTURE

Various art centers plan for summer

By ELENORE LESTER

Back in the Middle Ages, the difficulties of travel were mainly responsible for the earliest gatherings of musicians, artists, dancers and actors who met periodically to concentrate their activities at some center.

Today, the ease of travel brings success to the big summertime festivals of the arts. Vacationers who wish to supplement their swimming, sunning, golfing or fishing with liberal doses of music, drama, dance or art will have a good selection of culture-crammed vacation spots. All the festival centers are set in scenic territory, which usually offer an abundance of the customary summer activities.

The Berkshire Festival, staged from July 7 through Aug. 15 in the little town of Lenox, in western Massachusetts, is one of the outstanding summer series in the country. The Boston Symphony Orchestra will participate; and a brilliant array of soloists are scheduled. The series this year pays special tribute to the 150th anniversary of Hector Berlioz. The Berkshire Festival is held in conjunction with a six-week summer school of music. In addition to concerts scheduled in the huge shed at Tanglewood there are numerous other instrumental, choral and operatic performances which make music pervade the atmosphere throughout the season. Nearby at Jacob's Pillow, some of the world's most renowned dancers are featured weekly during the six-week season.

ASPEN INSTITUTE

BUFFALO, N. Y.
COURIER-EXPRESS
JUN 9 - 1954

Symphony Group Honors Manager

George E. Judd, retiring manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, was honored yesterday by members of the Major Symphony Orchestras Managers' Conference meeting in Hotel Sheraton.

Judd, honored in a resolution noting "the splendid contribution he has made to the cultural life of America, will retire this summer. The resolution was offered by

BUFFALO, N. Y.
NEWS
JUN 9 - 1954

CONVENTION CITES RETIRING HEAD OF BOSTON SYMPHONY

George E. Judd, Boston Symphony Orchestra manager since 1915, who is retiring, was honored Tuesday at the Major Symphony Orchestra Managers Conference in Hotel Sheraton.

Mr. Judd, who has accompanied the orchestra here on almost annual visits for the past 25 years, was cited in a testimonial scroll signed by 26 managers for his "splendid contribution to the cultural life of America." He will be succeeded by Thomas D. Perry, who also is attending the conference.

The managers compared notes on pops concerts at the opening session, concluding that they are the "best means of attracting" persons to hear symphonies for the first time." Ralph Black, manager of the Buffalo Philharmonic Orchestra, presided, and Craig Hutchinson, a Buffalo native who now is manager of the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra, described a series of free concerts in that city, brought to the public by private subscription.

The conference appointed George A. Kuyper of Chicago, William McK. Martin of Pittsburgh and John S. Edwards of Washington to draw up proposals for the initiation of a National Symphony Week. The proposals, providing for a concerted effort to bring to the public an awareness of great symphony music, will be voted on later this year.

ERNST T
"Princess performances—of August 2 an

two will be a d
27. Toch's new was featured last concert of Composers in

New York's s concerts in the dium of the Col
of New York, w
American night
turing contemp music, with conducting.

[126]

TIGHT BINDING

Student
larships

benefit in future school

Music center students
turing the six summer
Tanglewood with such culty members as Jean
of the orchestra and
departments; Ernst
cher of composition;
ohen, head of the opera
; Hugh Ross, in the
partment; Lukas Foss, glewood study group, a special section available

teurs.

In addition, special s available in 1954 to T
students include the
The Jascha Heifetz priz
the outstanding studen
the Gregor Piatigorsky
best student cellist; a
$250 established this ye
Koussevitzky Music fou
be awarded for a work
Tanglewood by a stude
er.

Also the Margaret scholarships, two gifts
each, to students of co
the Samuel Wechsler co
established in 1952, $300
glewood composer; the K
ky Memorial scholarshi
outstanding student of
ing; the Selly A. Eisem
arship, tuition award;
Carlotta M. Dreyfus sc
a tuition award estab
1953.

In many other ways
shire Music center is a
its scholarship projects
ing social, civic and
groups.

Even the Tanglewood
who can afford to do so
through the Student Cou
to contribute toward the penses of needy students

In 1954's enlarged Berksh
tival, six Wednesday even certs of chamber music
fit the Tanglewood
Scholarship Fund, Co
their services to these co
such noted artists as Cl
rau, William Kroll, the
Trio and Zino Francesca

den Apple." Ross also n cantata on a second ogram July 16, with cting the second half cert comprising two suites.

le tickets address or he festival office at

OSTON, MASS.
ORNING GLOBE

6 - 1954

Music Concerts
ire Festival

ber music concerts in d Berkshire Festival
n on successive Wed
ings beginning July 7
e held in the Theatre
l at Tanglewood.
ber music concerts a were initiated by th zabeth Sprague Coo or several years ge ted concerts to whic
the Berkshire Mus invited. This custo music at Tanglewoo
as a part of the Berk al concerts, and the he ticket sale will be nefit the Tanglewood
cholarship Fund. Sev artists participating this benefit by con
eir services.
certs will be open to t a single ticket rate
, and orders are now

ying programs are an bject to change and

dio Arrau, piano; the Bel
th Posselt, violin; Joseph iola; Martin Hoherman
ethoven program; Strin
; Sonatas, Op. 110, 79, 57
e Albeneri Trio (Eric
iano; Giorgio Ciompi Heifetz, cello); Trio
ajor; Martinu, D Minor flat.
he Zimbler Sinfonietta
ection of Josef Zimbler
easons: Stravinsky, Apol
Rossini, Baroque Con
e Griller String Quarte
Quartet (K. 428); Bloc (world premiere); Be t Op. 18, No. 2
Kroll String Quartet;
. Op. 64, No. 5; Hinde
No. 3; Ravel, Quartet.
no Francescatti, violin;

BANY, N. Y.
RBOCKER NEWS

N 19 1954

ges Made
glewood

ges in the Berkshire grams to be pree Boston Symphony
t Tanglewood have unced by Charles
ic director.
of an all-Cesar ram July 17 in the t conductor Pierre will substitute two elections by Claude Excerpts from "St.
nd the tone poem
will replace the pre-eduled "Le Chaus-
t" and "Les Eolides"

h's program Aug. 14
will offer Brahms'
verture" in place of
A Faust Overture."

PASADENA, CAL
STAR NEWS
JUN 1 8 1

UP AND DOWN THE SCALE

The opera departme
Berkshire Musical Ce
three productions for mer's festival in the setts hills. They w
Aaron Copland's "T
Land," Ernst Toch's
cess and the Pea."
madrigal opera. "I
nasso," by the 16th
Orazio Vecchi. The
opera, which had its
miere by the New Yo
Company, will be g

ERNST TO
"Princess an performances—on of August 2 and

two will be a dou
27. Toch's new st was featured at last concert of the Composers in New

* *

New York's summ concerts in the Le dium of the College of New York, will ha American night" thi
during contemporary music, with Virgi
conducting.

* *

NORTHAMPTON, MASS.
HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE

JU

25 Student Concerts Listed For Tanglewood

About 25 concerts by students of e Berkshire Music Center will be ven during the course of this mmer's Berkshire Festival by e Boston Symphony Orchestra at nglewood, Lenox.

The Berkshire Music Center is dicted by Charles Munch, Music Dictor of the Boston Symphony rchestra, according to the plan
d in the spirit of its creator, rge Koussevitzky. Now preparing r its 12th year, which will com-ence with the arrival of some 400
udents from all parts of the U.S., nada and foreign countries on nday, July 4, the Berkshire Mu-Center has Aaron Copland as sistant director, and such emint musicians as Jean Morel, Hugh oss, Frederic Cohen, Ernst Toch, ukas Foss, Gregor Piatigorsky
d First Chair members of the oston Symphony Orchestra as achers.

Young musicians of high skill—layers, conductors, singers, many the threshold of distinguished reers, at Tanglewood have the luable experience of group perrmance. As in the past, their conrts are open to members of the iends of the Berkshire Music nter according to seating capac-
. A voluntary contribution contutes membership in the Friends, hose enrollment at the end of 53 was 5472, an increase of more an 1500 from the previous year.
ontributions from the Society of iends in 1953 totaled $27,637, and tal attendance at the student ncerts last summer was 43,825, increase of nearly 10,000 over e year before. Thirty-five per nt of the Friends are from Berk-ire County, Massachusetts, which eans that Tanglewood's summer ighbors have found increasing enyment in observing the work of students.

With the announcement of the ncerts by students of the Berk-ire Music Center, events at Tanlewood this summer now total 49, a full calendar for 42 days of six-week season. Twenty-four are Berkshire Festival concerts, six are Saturday morning rehearsals of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, proceeds benefiting the orchestra's pension fund. In addition are two organ recitals by E. Power Biggs, on Saturday afternoons July 24 and August 7.

The complete schedule follows:

Department I (Orchestra):
Music Shed, 8:30 p.m., July 8, 15,
22, 29, August 5; August 14 at
3 p.m.

Department I (Chamber Music): Chamber Music Hall, 10
a.m., July 25, August 1, 8, 15.

Department III (Composition):
Chamber Music Hall, 8:30 p.m.,
July 11, 18, 25, August 1, 8.

Department II (Chorus) and
IV (Opera): reserved seats: Two
1-act operas, Theatre - Concert
Hall, 8:30 p.m., July 27.

Department IV (Opera) — reserved seats: Full-length opera,
Theatre-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m.,
August 2, 3.

Department [illegible] and
IV (Opera): [illegible]-Concert
Hall, 8:30 p.m., [illegible] 30, Aug. 10.

Extra concerts: E. Power Biggs, organist, Music Shed, 3:00 p.m., July 24, August 7.

Pension Fund Benefit rehearsals by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Music Shed, 10 a.m., July 10, 17, 24, 31, August 7, 14.

MERIDEN, CONN.
JOURNAL

JUN 8 - 1954

Berkshire Festival To Open July 7 For Two Month Season At Tanglewood

The 1954 Schedule of Berkshire Music Festival programs, which are held each summer at Tangelwood in Lenox, Mass., has been announced as follows:

July 7 — Chamber music; Claudio Arrau, piano, and the Bel Arte Trio in Beethoven program.

July 9 — Chamber orchestra: Bach program with Lukas Foss as piano soloist and Charles Munch conducting.

July 10 — Boston Symphony: Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust" with Harvard Glee Club Radcliffe Choral Society and soloists, conducted by Charles Munch.

July 11 — Boston Symphony: Beethoven program with Claudio Arrau as piano soloist and Pierre Monteux conducting.

July 14 — Chamber music: The Albeneri Trio in program including Brahms, Martinu and Beethoven.

July 16 — Chamber orchestra: Bach program with Hugh Ross and Charles Munch conducting.

July 17 — Boston Symphony: Debussy and Franck program with Vera Franceschi as piano soloist and Pierre Monteux conducting.

July 18 — Boston Symphony: Debussy, Copland and Berlioz program with Leo Smith as piano soloist and Charles Munch as conductor.

July 21 — Chamber music: The Zimbler Sinfonietta in program including Vivaldi, Stravinsky and Rossini.

July 23 — Chamber orchestra: Handel and Haydn program with Hugh Ross and Charles Munch conducting.

July 24 — Boston Symphony: Program including Weber, Prokofieff, Strauss and Elgar with Jean Morel conducting.

July 25 — Boston Symphony: Berlioz and Toch program with William Primrose as violin soloist and Charles Munch conducting.

July 28 — Chamber music: The Griller String Quartet in a program including Mozart, Bloch and Beethoven. This will mark the first performance of Bloch's Quartet No. 4.

July 30 — Chamber orchestra: Program including Roussel, Ibert and Mozart with Doriot Anthony as flute soloist and Charles Munch conducting.

The 1954 schedule of Berkshire

July 31 — Boston Symphony: Berlioz' "Romeo and Juliet," a dramatic symphony with festival chorus and soloists and Charles Munch conducting.

August 1 — Boston Symphony: Program including Prokofieff, Dvorak and Sibelius with Ruth Posselt as violin soloist and Richard Burgin conducting.

August 4 — Chamber music: The Kroll String Quartet in program including Haydn, Hindemith and Ravel.

August 6 — Chamber orchestra; Program including Stravinsky and Mozart with Seymour Lipkin as piano soloist, the chorus and soloists. Lukas Foss conducting.

August 7 - Boston Symphony: Berlioz program with Eleanor Steber as soprano soloist and the festival chorus with Charles Munch conducting.

August 8 — Boston Symphony: Program including Gluck, Beethoven and Brahms with Zino Francescatti as violin soloist and Charles Munch as conductor.

August 11 — Chamber music: Zino Francescatti, violin, and Artur Balsam, pianist, in Brahms and Bach program.

August 12 — Chamber orchestra: Program of Rossini, Mozart Ravel and Strauss with Jean Morel conducting.

August 13 — Annual Tanglewood on Parade program.

August 14 — Boston Symphony Program of Brahms, Piston, Ravel and Saint - Saens with Nicole Henriot as piano soloist and Charles Munch conducting.

August 15 — Boston Symphony: Berlioz "Requiem" with festival chorus and soloist in memory of Serge Koussevitzky with Charles Munch conducting.

All chamber music and chamber orchestra concerts are held in the Theater Concert Hall and start at 8:30 p.m. Saturday and Sunday Boston Symphony concerts are given in the Music Shed, on Saturday's at 8:30 p.m. and on Sundays at 2:30 p.m.

LENOX, Mass., June 19,—Two changes were announced today for programs by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the Berkshire Festival in the Music Shed at Tanglewood. On Saturday night, July 17, Pierre Monteux has substituted excerpts from Debussy's "Le Martyre de Saint Sebastien" and "La Mer" for Franck's "Le Chasseur Maudit" and "Les Eolides."

Charles Munch will conduct Brahms's "Tragic" Overture instead of Wagner's "A Faust Overture" on Saturday, Aug. 14. As usual, the Boston Symphony will give public rehearsals at 10 a. m. on the festival's six Saturdays, beginning July 10. There will be an admission charge of $1 for the orchestra's pension fund.

Tickets for the concerts on Wednesday, Friday and Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons from July 7 through Aug. 15, are on sale at the Tanglewood box office. Reservations may be made by telephone, Lenox 600.

NEWARK, N. J.
STAR-LEDGER

JUN 13 1954

VACATION WITH CULTURE

Various art centers plan for summer

By ELENORE LESTER

Back in the Middle Ages, the difficulties of travel were mainly responsible for the earliest gatherings of musicians, artists, dancers and actors who met periodically to concentrate their activities at some center.

Today, the ease of travel brings success to the big summertime festivals of the arts. Vacationers who wish to supplement their swimming, sunning, golfing or fishing with liberal doses of music, drama, dance or art will have a good selection of culture crammed vacation spots. All the festival centers are set in scenic territory, which usually offer an abundance of the customary summer activities.

The Berkshire Festival, staged from July 7 through Aug. 15 in the little town of Lenox, in western Massachusetts, is one of the outstanding summer series in the country. The Boston Symphony Orchestra will participate; and a brilliant array of soloists are scheduled. The series this year pays special tribute to the 150th anniversary of Hector Berlioz. The Berkshire Festival is held in conjunction with a six-week summer school of music. In addition to concerts scheduled in the huge shed at Tanglewood there are numerous other instrumental, choral and operatic performances which make music pervade the atmosphere throughout the season. Nearby at Jacob's Pillow, some of the world's most renowned dancers are featured weekly during the six-week season.

ASPEN INSTITUTE

BUFFALO, N. Y.
COURIER-EXPRESS

JUN 9 - 1954

Symphony Group Honors Manager

George E. Judd, retiring manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, was honored yesterday by members of the Major Symphony Orchestras Managers' Conference meeting in Hotel Sheraton.

Judd, honored in a resolution noting "the splendid contribution he has made to the cultural life of America, will retire this summer. The resolution was offered by Arthur Judson, manager of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra.

BOSTON/[illegible]

George E. Judd, Boston Symphony Orchestra manager since 1915, who is retiring, was honored Tuesday at the Major Symphony Orchestra Managers Conference in Hotel Sheraton.

Mr. Judd, who has accompanied the orchestra here on almost annual visits for the past 25 years, was cited in a testimonial scroll signed by 26 managers for his "splendid contribution to the cultural life of America." He will be succeeded by Thomas D. Perry, who also is attending the conference.

The managers compared notes on pops concerts at the opening [illegible]n, concluding that they [illegible] best means of attracting [illegible]s to hear symphonies for [illegible]rst time." Ralph Black, manager of the Buffalo Philharmonic Orchestra, presided, and Craig Hutchinson, a Buffalo native who now is manager of the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra, described a series of free concerts in that city, brought to the public by private subscription.

The conference appointed George A. Kuyper of Chicago, William McK. Martin of Pittsburgh and John S. Edwards of Washington to draw up proposals for the initiation of a National Symphony Week. The proposals, providing for a concerted effort to bring to the public an awareness of great symphony music, will be voted on later this year.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN

JUN 13 1954

Student Concert Series Planned at Tanglewood

Berkshire Music Center Summer School Schedule Announced; Activities Due to Start July 4; Six Symphony Concerts by Scholarship Students

Boston, June 12—About 25 concerts by students of the Berkshire Music Center will be given during the course of this summer's Berkshire Festival by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood, in Lenox. The Berkshire Music Center is now preparing for its 12th year, which wil commence with the arrival of some 400 students from all parts of the U. S., Canada and foreign countries on Sunday, July 4.

Young musicians of high skill—players, conductors, singers—many on the threshold of distinguished careers, at Tanglewood have the valuable experience of group performance. As in the past, their concerts are open to members of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, according to seating capacity. A voluntary contribution constitutes membership in the Friends, whose enrollment at the end of the summer of 1953 was 5472, an increase of more than 1500 from the previous year.

Attendance Grows

Contributions from the Society of Friends in 1953 totaled $27,637, and total attendance at the student concerts last summer was 43,825, an increase of nearly 10,00 over the year before. Thirty-five per cent of the Friends are from Berkshire County, which means that Tanglewood's summer neighbors have found increasing enjoyment in observing the work of its students.

With the announcement of the concerts by students of the Berkshire Music Center, events at Tanglewood this summer now total 49, a full calendar for the 42 days of the six-week season. Twenty-four are Berkshire Festival concerts, six are Saturday morning rehearsals of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, admission $1 each, proceeds benefiting the Orchestra's Pension Fund. In addition are two organ recitals by E. Power Biggs, on Saturday aftenoons July 24 and Aug. 7.

The schedule calls for six concerts of symphony music by the orchestra composed of 100 scholarship students. These will be held on Thursday evenings in the Music Shed at 8.30 p. m., commencing July 8, with the exception of the final one, announced for Saturday afternoon, Aug. 14.

Six concerts of chamber music will be held in the Chamber Music Hall at 10 a. m. on Sunday mornings, July 11 through Aug. 15.

Composers' Forums

Five forums wherein young composers accepted for study at Tanglewood argue their own and fellow students' works, are held Sunday evenings at 8.30 p. m. in the Chamber Music Hal, July 11 to Aug. 15.

Three evenings of opera will be given in the Theater-Concert Hall, which require reserved seat tickets procurable in advance. Vecchi's "L'Amfiparnasso" and Toch's "The Princess and the Pea" are the attraction on Tuesday, July 27; Aaron Copland's full-length opera, "The Tender Land," new to New England, on Monday and Tuesday evenings, Aug. 2 and 3. Two evenings devoted to performance of opera scenes and choral works are planned in the Theater-Concert Hall on Tuesdays, July 11 and Aug. 10.

Unscheduled demonstrations by students of the new Dept. 5, organized two years ago for the pure enjoyment of music by amateurs, will be given, as in the past, on Sturday afternoons, in the Barn, and also planned are Monday evening forums, Aaron Copland moderating, in Sedgwick Hall, Lenox.

[126]

NEW HAVEN, CONN.
REGISTER
JUN 13 1954

MUSIC

Berkshire Music Festival To Open Season July 7

By GORDON E. ARMSTRONG

It is but three short weeks to July 7, on which date the great Berkshire Music Festival will get under way at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. The coming series of concerts in the Berkshires will mark the 15th summer in which the Boston Symphony Orchestra has participated. Since 1938 when the huge Music Shed was erected on the plateau-like estate where Nathaniel Hawthorne walked a century ago, the Festival has grown to the point where it is now a Mecca for music lovers from all parts of this country and Canada.

Last year, all attendance records at the Festival concerts were broken. In the six weeks from early July to mid-August, the Festival concert attendance totaled 117,950 and total paid admissions were $311,600. Average attendance at three preliminary weekends of intimate music by the chamber group of the Boston Orchestra in the Theater-Concert Hall was 4,360. Average attendance for the nine Shed concerts by the full orchestra was 10,200, representing an "overflow" at each concert of some 4,000 listeners who dispersed themselves on the surrounding lawns (The Shed has a 6,000 seat capacity).

In addition, 43,835 persons attended the 50-odd concerts and demonstrations by students of the Berkshire Music Center, the music school maintained by the Boston Symphony in connection with the Festival. "Tanglewood on Parade," given annually for the benefit of the school, drew 8,400 last year despite unfavorable weather.

As previously announced, this year's Festival has been enlarged in scope. Chamber music programs are to be given on Wednesday and Friday evenings each week with the full orchestra performing in the weekend concerts each Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon during the Festival. The first concert on Wednesday evening, July 7, will be a chamber music event with the Bel Arte Trio (Ruth Posselt, Joseph de Pasquale, Martin Hoherman) and pianist Claudio Arrau as the artists in an all Beethoven program. The occasion will mark the 30th anniversary of the celebrated French pianist's first engagement with the Boston Orchestra. The concluding concert on Sunday afternoon, August 15, will wind up this year's Festival in a blaze of choral and instrumental colors, with Charles Munch conducting the massive Berlioz' "Requiem."

Other artists to be heard in the Wednesday evening chamber concerts include The Alberneri Trio, the Zimbler Sinfonietta, the Griller String Quartet, the Kroll String Quartet, and violinist Zino Francescatti. All of these artists are donating their services for the benefit of the Music Center. The six Friday evening programs, to be given by the chamber section of the Boston Symphony, were formerly concentrated in the first three weekends of the Festival. Popularly known as "the Bach-Mozart series," the programs this year will include works by other composers of both the past and present. Due to the fact that this season's "Tanglewood on Parade" will occur on Friday, August 13, the final program of this group will be given on the previous evening.

The 12 main concerts, three more than last year's schedule, by the full orchestra will prominently feature the principal works of Hector Berlioz, in honor of the 150th anniversary of the composer's birth. The opening program of the Shed concerts on Saturday evening, July 10, will be devoted to his great choral work, "The Damnation of Faust," with the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society participating. Munch will conduct the composer's Fantastic Symphony on Sunday afternoon, July 18, and his "Beatrice and Benedick" Overture and the Symphony, "Harold in Italy," on the following Sunday, July 25. The concerts on the two Saturday evenings, July 31 and August 7, will be devoted entirely to Berlioz music. In the former, the Festival chorus and soloists will be heard in "Romeo and Juliet" with the orchestra and the singers will also participate in the principal offering of the latter program, "Te Deum." As previously mentioned, the "Requiem" is to be presented in the concluding Festival concert on August 15.

Mr. Munch will conduct the majority of the Shed concerts though three guest conductors are listed for podium duties in these programs. Pierre Monteux will conduct two concerts with Jean Morel (who heads the orchestra department of the Berkshire Music Center) and concertmaster Richard Burgin scheduled to conduct one each.

The Berkshire Music Center, established by the late Serge Koussevitsky in 1940, marks its 12th season this summer. Annually a student body of some 400 is chosen from some 1,500 applicants. Last year the enrollment was composed of 292 full-time students from 41 states and seven foreign countries, 86 of whom were former students. The Tanglewood Study Group, which permits those who are not professional musicians but who wish to spend their vacations in an atmosphere of music, enrolled 105 students last year. Included were housewives, social workers, foremen, clerks, teachers, attorneys, architects, bookkeepers, chemists, stenographers, and such varied occupations as bookstore manager, organ builder, photo finisher, public health nurse, animated cartoon artist, and research engineer.

The students of the Center provide many concerts each season. Last year there were 54 student programs to which Friends of the Berkshire Festival were admitted free of charge. Anyone may become a member of this organization by a contribution of even the smallest amount. Some $27,637 was received from this source for the work of the school last year.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y.
GAZETTE
MAR 7 1954

Music Notes

By D. F. RITZ

THE LOCAL MUSIC CALENDAR for March includes a program tonight at Proctor's theater by Friedrich Gulda, pianist; and a string quartet program Friday evening by the Berkshire Quartet at Union College Memorial Chapel.

The city schools will unite in a Festival of Instrumental Music March 10 at Mont Pleasant high school with Donald Mairs of Teaneck, NJ, as the guest conductor.

The Schenectady Civic Music Association will bring the Ana Maria Spanish Ballet to Proctor's on March 23 and the Federation of Women's Organizations will hold its music festival scholarship contest March 25 at the Hotel Van Curler.

The Thursday Musical Club's spring program is scheduled for March 26 and the Octavo Singers will present the Bach "St. Matthew Passion" at Union College Memorial Chapel on March 30.

And as though that were not enough we hear that the Pittsburgh Orchestra will play at the RPI Field House in Troy on March 31 under the direction of William Steinberg.

* * *

THE MUSICAL ACADEMY OF THE WEST at Santa Barbara, Calif., will open for an eight week summer session July 1. Alexander Hilsberg and Fritz Zweig will share the musical directorship with Gregor Piatigorsky as musical advisor.

Lotte Lehmann will direct the vocal department and conduct master classes in "The Art of Song Interpretation" and "Operatic Roles." Gyorgy Sandor will head the piano department and Emanuel Bay will teach piano and piano chamber music. Sascha Jacobsen will teach violin and head the string department. Simon Kovar will head the woodwind department and Fred Fox the brass section. The school will have a complete faculty of 19 artist teachers.

* * *

PROGRAM FOR THE 12 SHED CONCERTS of the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood have been announced by Charles Munch, musical director of the symphony.

The full orchestra programs will open July 10 with a performance of Berlioz' "Damnation of Faust" with the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society assisting. All of the Shed programs have been scheduled for Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons and a series of six concerts by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players will be held on Friday evenings in the Theatre-Concert hall.

The July 11 all-Beethoven program will be conducted by Pierre Monteux and will include the "Overture to Leonore, number 3," the "Emperor Concerto" with Claudio Arrau as soloist and the "Fifth Symphony."

Monteux will conduct a Cesar Franck program on July 17 including "Le Chasseur Maudit," "Les Eolides," "Les Djinns" with Vera Franceschi as piano soloist and the "Symphony in D minor."

Munch will conduct the July 18 program including "Iberia," Debussy; the "Piano Concerto," Copland with Leo Smit as soloist; and Berlioz' "Fantastic Symphony."

Jean Morel will conduct the July 24 program of Dr. Freischutz Overture, Weber; "Sixth Symphony," Prokofieff; "Don Juan," Strauss; and "Enigma Variations," Elgar.

Munch will direct the July 25 program including the "Beatrice and Benedict Overture" and "Harold in Italy," Berlioz; and the Ernst Toch "Symphony number 2." William Primrose will be the viola soloist for "Harold in Italy."

Munch will conduct the July 31 program which will be given over to a performance of Berlioz "Romeo and Juliet" with the aid of the Festival Chorus and soloists.

Richard Burgin will direct the Aug. 1 program including "Chout," Prokofieff; "Violin Concerto," Dvorak, with Ruth Posselt as soloist; and the Sibelius "Symphony number 2."

Munch will direct the Aug. 7 program, "Alceste Overture," Gluck; "Violin Concerto," Beethoven, Zino Francescatti, soloist; and the Brahms "Symphony number 2." He will also conduct the Aug. 8 all-Berlioz program made up of the "Benvenuto Cellini Overture," "The Royal Hunt and Storm" from "The Trojans," "Summer Nights" for soprano and orchestra with Eleanor Steber as soloist and "Te Deum."

Munch will conduct both the Aug. 14 and 15 programs. The Aug. 14 program will include the "Lohengrin Prelude," Wagner; Piston's "Fourth Symphony;" the "Piano Concerto," Ravel, with Nicole Henriot as soloist; and the "Organ Symphony," Saint-Saens. The concluding program in the festival, Aug. 15, will feature the Berlioz "Requiem" with Festival Chorus and four auxiliary orchestras.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN
JUN 13 1954

Second Thoughts in Music

Compositions of Berlioz Available in Recordings

'Damnation of Faust,' 'Romeo and Juliet,' 'Summer Nights,' 'Requiem' and Overtures All to Be Heard On Tanglewood Programs

By WILLARD M. CLARK

Anticipation of a concert can sometimes be more pleasurable than the concert itself. It occurred to us that with the Tanglewood concerts so near that added pleasure in them might be derived from listening to some of the splendid recordings of the works to be played. The focal point of the Shed concerts will be works of Hector Berlioz and of the works to be played all have been recorded, some of them superbly.

Berlioz Recordings

We note that the opening Shed concert on July 10 will be devoted to "The Damnation of Faust," performed by the Harvard Glee Club, Radcliffe Choral Society and soloists. Columbia has issued a stunning recording of this work, two records, SL-110. It is a typically French performance recorded in Paris by the Emil Passani Chorus and orchestra under the direction of Jean Fournet. The soloists, some of the best in France, are splendid.

On July 31, Mr. Munch will direct a concert performance of the Berlioz conception of "Romeo and Juliet," typed as a dramatic symphony. It will be performed by the Festival chorus and soloists. A remarkable and complete recording of this work has been issued by RCA Victor.

It is performed by the Boston Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Mr. Munch. Again the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society are the performing groups. The soloists are Margaret Roggero, contralto; Leslie Chabay, tenor and Yi-Kwei Sze, bass. This recording was awarded the French Grand Prix. L. M. 6011.

Eleanor Steber Soloist

On Aug. 7, Eleanor Steber will sing Berlioz's "Summer Nights" with orchestra accompaniment. We have reason to believe that a recording of this work by Miss Steber will soon be available. In the meantime, Susan Danco has made a good recording, London 407. On the same program we find other Berlioz works, such as the Overture to "Benvenute Cellini," Mr. Munch and the Paris Conservatoire orchestra record this overture on London record LD 9019. Mr. Munch and the same orchestra hae made a fine recording of the Royal Hunt and Storem from "The Trojans" for London, LL-3. This work is on the same program.

More Berlioz will be heard on July 25 when the orchestra will play the overture to "Beatrice and Benedick" and "Harold in Italy," with the viola solo played by William Primrose. The old Koussevitzky version of this work, with Primrose. This is issued by Columbia and is a definitive recording. ML 4542.

The final concert of the season on Aug. 15 will be given over to a performance of the Berlioz "Requiem" in memory of Serge Koussevitzky. It will be sung by the Festival chorus and tenor soloist. Few recordings have made a greater impact than Columbia's two-disc set of this work, Columbia SL-159. It is sung by the Passani Choir directed by Fournet.

"Fantastic" Symphony

We almost forgot the "Fantastic" Symphony which will be performed July 18. There are some half dozen recordings of this giant symphony available. We happen to have and to like the RCA Victor recording by Pierre Monteux and the San Francisco orchestra. LM-1131.

We have not heard the recording of the Berlioz "Te Deum" or which will be performed on Aug. 7 by the Festival chorus and soloist.

We feel that listeing to these recordings before going to Tanglewood will greatly intensify the pleasure of hearing them "live." Charles Munch has a peculiar affinity for the work of Hector Berlioz as revealed through these recordings and the several "live" performances we have heard under his direcion.

HARTFORD, CONN.
COURANT
JUN 13 1954

The Lively Arts—

Tanglewood and Pillow

By T. H. Parker

In the hope of being mother's little helper, we publish here today the programs for the main concerts of the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts, and the Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival Lee, Massachusetts.

Experience has shown that these are the two summer carnivals in which the serried ranks of culture-lovers who naturally comprise The Courant readership are most interested.

Please be so kindly as to cut out these listings and paste them in your hat. The Courant library and telephone operators are always glad to answer questions, but there are so many people who want to know, "How high is up?" or "Isabelle necessary?" that things sometimes get rather rushed.

So, equipped with paste-pot and scissors as well as spectacles, begin here:

★

Tanglewood main concerts are on Friday and Saturday evening at 8:30 and Sunday afternoon at 2:30. Charles Munch will conduct unless otherwise noted.

Friday, July 9, Brandenburg concerti nos. 1, 2, 3, 5, 6, Bach; Saturday, July 10, "Damnation of Faust," Berlioz; Sunday, July 11, Overture No. 3, "Leonore," Piano Concerto No. 5 (Claudio Arrau), Symphony No. 5, all Beethoven, Pierre Monteux conducting.

Friday, July 16, Cantata No. 93, Bach (Hugh Ross); Suites nos. 1, 4, Bach: Saturday, July 17, excerpts, "St. Sebastian" and "La Mer," Debussy, "Les Djinns" (Vera Franceschi, Piano) and Symphony in D Minor, Franck, conductor Mr. Monteux; Sunday, July 18, "Iberia," Debussy, Piano Concerto, Copland (Leo Smit), "Fantastic" Symphony, Berlioz.

Friday, July 23, Concerto Grosso for Strings, Op. 6, no. 4, Handel, "Military" Symphony, Haydn, "Nelson" Mass, Haydn (Mr. Ross); Saturday, July 24, Overture, "Der Freischuetz," Weber, Symphony No. 6, Prokofiev, "Don Juan," Strauss, "Enigma" Variations, Elgar, conductor Jean Morel; Sunday July 25, Overture, "Beatrice and Benedick" and "Harold in Italy" Symphony, Berlioz (William Primrose, viola), Symphony No. 2, Toch.

Friday, July 30, "The Spider's Feast," Roussel, Flute Concerto, Ibert (Doriot Anthony), Serenade for Strings (K388), and "Paris" Symphony, Mozart; Saturday, July 31, "Romeo and Juliet," Berlioz. Sunday, August 1, "Chout," Prokofiev, Violin Concerto, Dvorak (Ruth Posselt), Symphony No. 2, Sibelius, conductor Richard Burgin.

Friday, August 6, "Pulcinella," Stravinsky, Piano Concerto (K450) (Seymour Lipkin) and "Idomeneo" excerpts, Mozart, conductor Lukas Foss; Saturday, August 7, Overture, "Benvenuto Cellini," "Royal Hunt and Storm" from "The Trojans," "Summer Nights" (Eleanor Steber, soprano), and "Te Deum," all by Berlioz; Sunday, August 8, Overture. "Alceste," Glueck, Violin Concerto, Beethoven (Zito Francescati), Symphony No. 2, Brahms.

Thursday (note, Thursday!), August 12, Overture, "Scala di Seta," Rossini, Symphony in B Flat (K319), Mozart, "Mother Goose" Suite, Ravel, "Der Burger als Edelman," Strauss, conductor, Mr. Morel; Saturday, August 14, "Tragic" Overture, Brahms, Symphony No. 4, Piston, Piano Concerto, Ravel (Nicole Henriot), Symphony No. 3, Saint-Saens; Sunday, August 15, Requiem, Berlioz.

And the telephone at Tanglewood is Lenox 600. Now, Jacob's Pillow:

Friday, July 2, matinee and Saturday, July 3, matinee and night, Marlene Dell, Don Farnsworth in ballet; Pearl Lang in modern dance; Inesita, Spanish dance.

Thursday, July 8, matinee, Friday, July 9, matinee and night, Saturday, July 10, matinee and night, Michael Maule and Mary Ellen Moylan in classic pas de deux; John Butler Dance Theater with Glen Tetley, Felisa Conde and company; and the Ernestis in American Indian dance from the Pacific Northwest.

Thursday, July 15, matinee, Friday, July 16, matinee and night, Saturday, July 17, matinee and night, Alexandra Danilova and partners in classic ballet; Charles Weidman Theater Dance Company, and Geoffrey Holder and company dancers from Trinidad.

Thursday, July 22, matinee, Friday, July 23, matinee and night, Saturday, July 24, matinee and night, Alicia Markova with Milorad Miskovich in classic ballet; the Lester Horton Dance Theater of California, with Carmen de Lavallade, James Truitte and Company.

Wednesday, July 28, night, Thursday, July 29, matinee, Friday, July 30, matinee and night, Saturday, July 31, matinee and night, American debut of the Celtic Ballet of Scotland, Margaret Morris, artistic director, with singer and piper, in "The Deil's Awa" and "Barley Bree"; Emerson and Jayne, dance satirists of London in American debut.

Wednesday, August 4, night, Thursday, August 5, matinee, Friday, August 6, matinee and night, Saturday, August 7, matinee and night, Celtic Ballet in "The Continental Cousin"; Pearl Lang and her group; Hadassah and her dance company in dances of the Ancient East.

Wednesday, August 11, night, Thursday, August 12, matinee, Friday, August 13, matinee and night, Saturday, August 14, matinee and night, Celtic Ballet in "The Hoodie Craw" and "The Road to the Isles", Ram Gopal in Hindu dances.

Friday, August 20, matinee and night, Saturday, August 21, matinee and night, Negro Dance Theater, Aubrey Hitchins, choreographer; Kurt and Grace Graff; Ram Gopal.

Friday, August 27, matinee and night, Saturday, August 28, matinee and night, Yurek Lazowski, noted ballet character star; Pearl Lang and company; Lotte Goslar, European mime.

Friday, September 3, matinee and evening, Saturday, September 4, matinee and night, Andre Eglevsky and partner in classic ballet; Harriette Ann Gray and company in modern dance; the American Mime Theater, Paul J. Curtis, director.

Jacob's Pillow matinees begin at 4 o'clock, evening performances at 9. The phone at the Pillow is Lee 745.

NEW HAVEN, CONN.
REGISTER
JUN 13 1954

MUSIC

Berkshire Music Festival To Open Season July 7

By GORDON E. ARMSTRONG

It is but three short weeks to July 7, on which date the great Berkshire Music Festival will get under way at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. The coming series of concerts in the Berkshires will mark the 15th summer in which the Boston Symphony Orchestra has participated. Since 1938 when the huge Music Shed was erected on the plateau-like estate where Nathaniel Hawthorne walked a century ago, the Festival has grown to the point where it is now a Mecca for music lovers from all parts of this country and Canada.

Last year, all attendance records at the Festival concerts were broken. In the six weeks from early July to mid-August, the Festival concert attendance totaled 117,950 and total paid admissions were $311,600. Average attendance at three preliminary weekends of intimate music by the chamber group of the Boston Orchestra in the Theater-Concert Hall was 4,360. Average attendance for the nine Shed concerts by the full orchestra was 10,200, representing an "overflow" at each concert of some 4,000 listeners who dispersed themselves on the surrounding lawns (The Shed has a 6,000 seat capacity).

In addition, 43,835 persons attended the 50-odd concerts and demonstrations by students of the Berkshire Music Center, the music school maintained by the Boston Symphony in connection with the Festival. "Tanglewood on Parade," given annually for the benefit of the school, drew 8,400 last year despite unfavorable weather.

As previously announced, this year's Festival has been enlarged in scope. Chamber music programs are to be given on Wednesday and Friday evenings each week with the full orchestra performing in the weekend concerts each Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon during the Festival. The first concert on Wednesday evening, July 7, will be a chamber music event with the Bel Arte Trio (Ruth Posselt, Joseph de Pasquale, Martin Hoherman) and pianist Claudio Arrau as the artists in an all Beethoven program. The occasion will mark the 30th anniversary of the celebrated French pianist's first engagement with the Boston Orchestra. The concluding concert on Sunday afternoon, August 15, will wind up this year's Festival in a blaze of choral and instrumental colors, with Charles Munch conducting the massive Berlioz' "Requiem."

Other artists to be heard in the Wednesday evening chamber concerts include The Alberneri Trio, the Zimbler Sinfonietta, the Griller String Quartet, the Kroll String Quartet, and violinist Zino Francescatti. All of these artists are donating their services for the benefit of the Music Center. The six Friday evening programs, to be given by the chamber section of the Boston Symphony, were formerly concentrated in the first three weekends of the Festival. Popularly known as "the Bach-Mozart series," the programs this year will include works by other composers of both the past and present. Due to the fact that this season's "Tanglewood on Parade" will occur on Friday, August 13, the final program of this group will be given on the previous evening.

The 12 main concerts, three more than last year's schedule, by the full orchestra will prominently feature the principal works of Hector Berlioz, in honor of the 150th anniversary of the composer's birth. The opening program of the Shed concerts on Saturday evening, July 10, will be devoted to his great choral work, "The Damnation of Faust," with the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society participating. Munch will conduct the composer's Fantastic Symphony on Sunday afternoon, July 18, and his "Beatrice and Benedick" Overture and the Symphony, "Harold in Italy," on the following Sunday, July 25. The concerts on the two Saturday evenings, July 31 and August 7, will be devoted entirely to Berlioz music. In the former, the Festival chorus and soloists will be heard in "Romeo and Juliet" with the orchestra and the singers will also participate in the principal offering of the latter program, "Te Deum." As previously mentioned, the "Requiem" is to be presented in the concluding Festival concert on August 15.

Mr. Munch will conduct the majority of the Shed concerts though three guest conductors are listed for podium duties in these programs. Pierre Monteux will conduct two concerts with Jean Morel (who heads the orchestra department of the Berkshire Music Center) and concertmaster Richard Burgin scheduled to conduct one each.

The Berkshire Music Center, established by the late Serge Koussevitsky in 1940, marks its 12th season this summer. Annually a student body of some 400 is chosen from some 1,500 applicants. Last year the enrollment was composed of 292 full-time students from 41 states and seven foreign countries, 86 of whom were former students. The Tanglewood Study Group, which permits those who are not professional musicians but who wish to spend their vacations in an atmosphere of music, enrolled 105 students last year. Included were housewives, social workers, foremen, clerks, teachers, attorneys, architects, bookkeepers, chemists, stenographers, and such varied occupations as bookstore manager, organ builder, photo finisher, public health nurse, animated cartoon artist, and research engineer.

The students of the Center provide many concerts each season. Last year there were 54 student programs to which Friends of the Berkshire Festival were admitted free of charge. Anyone may become a member of this organization by a contribution of even the smallest amount. Some $27,637 was received from this source for the work of the school last year.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y.
GAZETTE
MAR - 1954

Music Notes

By D. E. RITZ

THE LOCAL MUSIC CALENDAR for March includes a program tonight at Proctor's theater by Friedrich Gulda, pianist; and a string quartet program Friday evening by the Berkshire Quartet at Union College Memorial Chapel.

The city schools will unite in a Festival of Instrumental Music March 10 at Mont Pleasant high school with Donald Mairs of Teaneck, NJ, as the guest conductor.

The Schenectady Civic Music Association will bring the Ana Maria Spanish Ballet to Proctor's on March 23 and the Federation of Women's Organizations will hold its music festival scholarship contest March 25 at the Hotel Van Curler.

The Thursday Musical Club's spring program is scheduled for March 26 and the Octavo Singers will present the Bach "St. Matthew Passion" at Union College Memorial Chapel on March 30.

And as though that were not enough we hear that the Pittsburgh Orchestra will play in Troy's RPI Field House in Troy on March 31 under the direction of Steinberg.

* * *

THE MUSICAL ACTIVITIES OF THE WEST at Santa Barbara, Calif., will open for an eight-week summer session July 7 with Hilsberg and Fritz Zweig in the musical direction and Gregor Piatigorsky as advisor.

Lotte Lehmann will head the vocal department and conduct master classes in "The Art of Interpretation" and "Operatic Roles." Gyorgy Sandor will head the piano department and Emanuel Ray will teach piano and piano chamber music. Sascha Jacobsen will teach violin and head the string department. Simon Kovar will head the woodwind department and Fred Fox the brass section. The school will have a complete faculty of 19 artist teachers.

* * *

PROGRAM FOR THE 12 SHED CONCERTS of the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood have been announced by Charles Munch, musical director of the symphony.

The full orchestra programs will open July 10 with a performance of Berlioz' "Damnation of Faust" with the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society assisting. All of the Shed programs have been scheduled for Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons and a series of six concerts by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players will be held on Friday evenings in the Theatre-Concert hall.

The July 11 all-Beethoven program will be conducted by Pierre Monteux and will include the "Overture to Leonore, number 3," the "Emperor Concerto" with Claudio Arrau as soloist and the "Fifth Symphony."

Monteux will conduct a Cesar Franck program on July 17 including "Le Chasseur Maudit," "Les Eolides," "Les Djinns" with Vera Franceschi as piano soloist and the "Symphony in D minor."

Munch will conduct the July 18 program including "Iberia," Debussy; the "Piano Concerto," Copland with Leo Smit as soloist; and Berlioz' "Fantastic Symphony." Jean Morel will conduct the July 24 program of "Don Freischutz Overture," Weber; "Sixth Symphony," Prokofieff; "Don Juan," Strauss; and "Enigma Variations," Elgar.

Munch will direct the July 25 program including the "Beatrice and Benedict Overture" and "Harold in Italy," Berlioz; and the Ernst Toch "Symphony number 2." William Primrose will be the viola soloist for "Harold in Italy."

Munch will conduct the July 31 program which will be given over to a performance of Berlioz "Romeo and Juliet" with the aid of the Festival Chorus and soloists.

Richard Burgin will direct the Aug. 1 program including "Chout," Prokofieff; "Violin Concerto," Dvorak, with Ruth Posselt as soloist; and the Sibelius "Symphony number 2."

Munch will direct the Aug. 7 program, "Alceste Overture," Gluck; "Violin Concerto," Beethoven, Zino Francescatti, soloist; and the Brahms "Symphony number 2." He will also conduct the Aug. 8 all-Berlioz program made up of the "Benvenuto Cellini Overture," "The Royal Hunt and Storm" from "The Trojans," "Summer Nights" for soprano and orchestra with Eleanor Steber as soloist and "Te Deum."

Munch will conduct both the Aug. 14 and 15 programs. The Aug. 14 program will include the "Lohengrin Prelude," Wagner; Piston's "Fourth Symphony;" the "Piano Concerto," Ravel, with Nicole Henriot as soloist; and the "Organ Symphony," Saint-Saens. The concluding program in the festival, Aug. 15, will feature the Berlioz "Requiem" with Festival Chorus and four auxiliary orchestras.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN
JUN 13 1954

Second Thoughts in Music

Compositions of Berlioz Available in Recordings

'Damnation of Faust,' 'Romeo and Juliet,' 'Summer Nights,' 'Requiem' and Overtures All to Be Heard On Tanglewood Programs

By WILLARD M. CLARK

Anticipation of a concert can sometimes be more pleasurable than the concert itself. It occurred to us that with the Tanglewood concerts so near that added pleasure in them might be derived from listening to some of the splendid recordings of the works to be played. The focal point of the Shed concerts will be works of Hector Berlioz and of the works to be played all have been recorded, some of them superbly.

Berlioz Recordings

We note that the opening Shed concert on July 10 will be devoted to "The Damnation of Faust," performed by the Harvard Glee Club, Radcliffe Choral Society and soloists. Columbia has issued a stunning recording of this work, two records, SL-110. It is a typically French performance recorded in Paris by the Emil Passani Chorus and orchestra under the direction of Jean Fournet. The soloists, some of the best in France, are splendid.

On July 31, Mr. Munch will direct a concert performance of the Berlioz conception of "Romeo and Juliet," typed as a dramatic symphony. It will be performed by the Festival chorus and soloists. A remarkable and complete recording of this work has been issued by RCA Victor.

It is performed by the Boston Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Mr. Munch. Again the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society are the performing groups. The soloists are Margaret Roggero, contralto; Leslie Chabay, tenor and Yi-Kwei Sze, bass. This recording was awarded the French Grand Prix. L. M. 6011.

Eleanor Steber Soloist

On Aug. 7, Eleanor Steber will sing Berlioz's "Summer Nights" with orchestra accompaniment. We have reason to believe that a recording of this work by Miss Steber will soon be available. In the meantime, Susan Danco has made a good recording, London 407. On the same program we find other Berlioz works, such as the Overture to "Benvenute Cellini," Mr. Munch and the Paris Conservatoire orchestra record this overture on London record LD 9018. Mr. Munch and the same orchestra hae made a fine recording of the Royal Hunt and Storem from "The Trojans" for London, LL-3. This work is on the same program.

More Berlioz will be heard on July 25 when the orchestra will play the overture to "Beatrice and Benedick" and "Harold in Italy," with the viola solo played by William Primrose. The old Koussevitzky version of this work, with Primrose. This is issued by Columbia and is a definitive recording. ML 4542.

The final concert of the season on Aug. 15 will be given over to a performance of the Berlioz "Requiem" in memory of Serge Koussevitzky. It will be sung by the Festival chorus and tenor soloist. Few recordings have made a greater impact than Columbia's two-disc set of this work. Columbia SL-159. It is sung by the Passani Choir directed by Fournet.

"Fantastic" Symphony

We almost forgot the "Fantastic" Symphony which will be performed July 18. There are some half dozen recordings of this giant symphony available. We happen to have and to like the RCA Victor recording by Pierre Monteux and the San Francisco orchestra. LM-1131.

We have not heard the recording of the Berlioz "Te Deum" on which will be performed on Aug. 7 by the Festival chorus and soloist.

We feel that listeing to these recordings before going to Tanglewood will greatly intensify the pleasure of hearing them "live." Charles Munch has a peculiar affinity for the work of Hector Berlioz as revealed through these recordings and the several "live" performances we have heard under his directon.

At a later date, we hope to bring you recordings of other works to be played by the Music Festival works which will include chamber music and works for small ensembles.

HARTFORD, CONN.
COURANT
JUN 13 1954

The Lively Arts—

Tanglewood and Pillow

By T. H. Parker

In the hope of being mother's little helper, we publish here today the programs for the main concerts of the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts, and the Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival Lee, Massachusetts.

Experience has shown that these are the two summer carnivals in which the serried ranks of culture-lovers who naturally comprise The Courant readership are most interested.

Please be so kindly as to cut out these listings and paste them in your hat. The Courant library and telephone operators are always glad to answer questions, but there are so many people who want to know, "How high is up?" or "Isabelle necessary?" that things sometimes get rather rushed.

So, equipped with paste-pot and scissors as well as spectacles, begin here:

★

Tanglewood main concerts are on Friday and Saturday evening at 8:30 and Sunday afternoon at 2:30. Charles Munch will conduct unless otherwise noted.

Friday, July 9, Brandenburg concerti nos. 1, 2, 3, 5, 6, Bach; Saturday, July 10, "Damnation of Faust," Berlioz; Sunday, July 11, Overture No. 3, "Leonore," Piano Concerto No. 5 (Claudio Arrau), Symphony No. 5, all Beethoven, Pierre Monteux conducting.

Friday, July 16, Cantata No. 93, Bach (Hugh Ross); Suites nos. 1, 4, Bach; Saturday, July 17, excerpts, "St. Sebastian" and "La Mer," Debussy, "Les Djinns" (Vera Franceschi, Piano) and Symphony in D Minor, Franck, conductor Mr. Monteux; Sunday, July 18, "Iberia," Debussy, Piano Concerto, Copland (Leo Smit), "Fantastic" Symphony, Berlioz.

Friday, July 23, Concerto Grosso for Strings, Op. 6, no. 4, Handel, "Military" Symphony, Haydn, "Nelson" Mass, Haydn (Mr. Ross); Saturday, July 24, Overture, "Der Freischuetz," Weber, Symphony No. 6, Prokofiev, "Don Juan," Strauss, "Enigma" Variations, Elgar, conductor Jean Morel; Sunday July 25, Overture, "Beatrice and Benedick" and "Harold in Italy" Symphony, Berlioz (William Primrose, viola), Symphony No. 2, Toch.

Friday, July 30, "The Spider's Feast," Roussel, Flute Concerto, Ibert (Doriot Anthony), Serenade for Strings (K388), and "Paris" Symphony, Mozart; Saturday, July 31, "Romeo and Juliet," Berlioz. Sunday, August 1, "Chout," Prokofiev, Violin Concerto, Dvorak (Ruth Posselt), Symphony No. 2, Sibelius, conductor Richard Burgin.

Friday, August 6, "Pulcinella," Stravinsky, Piano Concerto (K450) (Seymour Lipkin) and "Idomeneo" excerpts, Mozart, conductor Lukas Foss; Saturday, August 7, Overture, "Benvenuto Cellini," "Royal Hunt and Storm" from "The Trojans," "Summer Nights" (Eleanor Steber, soprano), and "Te Deum," all by Berlioz; Sunday, August 8, Overture. "Alceste," Glueck, Violin Concerto, Beethoven (Zito Francescati), Symphony No. 2, Brahms.

Thursday (note, Thursday!), August 12, Overture, "Scala di Seta," Rossini, Symphony in B Flat (K319), Mozart, "Mother Goose" Suite, Ravel, "Der Burger als Edelman," Strauss, conductor, Mr. Morel; Saturday, August 14, "Tragic" Overture, Brahms, Symphony No. 4, Piston, Piano Concerto, Ravel (Nicole Henriot), Symphony No. 3, Saint-Saens; Sunday, August 15, Requiem, Berlioz.

And the telephone at Tanglewood is Lenox 600. Now, Jacob's Pillow:

Friday, July 2, matinee and Saturday, July 3, matinee and night, Marlene Dell, Don Farnsworth in ballet; Pearl Lang in modern dance; Inesita, Spanish dance.

Thursday, July 8, matinee, Friday, July 9, matinee and night, Saturday, July 10, matinee and night, Michael Maule and Mary Ellen Moylan in classic pas de deux; John Butler Dance Theater with Glen Tetley, Felisa Conde and company; and the Ernestis in American Indian dance from the Pacific Northwest.

Thursday, July 15, matinee, Friday, July 16, matinee and night, Saturday, July 17, matinee and night, Alexandra Danilova and partners in classic ballet; Charles Weidman Theater Dance Company, and Geoffrey Holder and company dancers from Trinidad.

Thursday, July 22, matinee, Friday, July 23, matinee and night, Saturday, July 24, matinee and night, Alicia Markova with Milorad Miskovich in classic ballet; the Lester Horton Dance Theater of California, with Carmen de Lavallade, James Truitte and Company.

Wednesday, July 28, night, Thursday, July 29, matinee, Friday, July 30, matinee and night, Saturday, July 31, matinee and night, American debut of the Celtic Ballet of Scotland, Margaret Morris, artistic director, with singer and piper, in "The Dell's Awa" and "Barley Bree"; Emerson and Jayne, dance satirists of London, in American debut.

Wednesday, August 4, night, Thursday, August 5, matinee, Friday, August 6, matinee and night, Saturday, August 7, matinee and night, Celtic Ballet in "The Continental Cousin"; Pearl Lang and her group; Hadassah and her dance company in dances of the Ancient East.

Wednesday, August 11, night, Thursday, August 12, matinee, Friday, August 13, matinee and night, Saturday, August 14, matinee and night, Celtic Ballet in "The Hoedie Craw" and "The Road to the Isles", Ram Gopal in Hindu dances.

Friday, August 20, matinee and night, Saturday, August 21, matinee and night, Negro Dance Theater, Aubrey Hitchins, choreographer; Kurt and Grace Graff; Ram Gopal.

Friday, August 27, matinee and night, Saturday, August 28, matinee and night, Yurek Lazowski, noted ballet character star; Pearl Lang and company; Lotte Goslar, European mime.

Friday, September 3, matinee and evening, Saturday, September 4, matinee and night, Andre Eglevsky and partner in classic ballet; Harriette Ann Gray and company in modern dance; the American Mime Theater, Paul J. Curtis, director.

Jacob's Pillow matinees begin at 4 o'clock, evening performances at 9. The phone at the Pillow is Lee 745.

TIGHT BINDING

ROANOKE, VA.
TIMES
JUN 13 1954

Music, Drama, Art Festivals Abound in Summer Months

Delightful Vacation Experiences Available for Family These Days

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Culture can be fun.

This summer's vacation traveler may take it in doses exactly suited to his liking, according to the National Association of Travel Organizations. An abundance of music, drama and art festivals throughout the United States, during June, July and August offer variety and schedules for every taste, pocketbook and period of time that can be devoted to such pursuits.

DIFFICULTIES of travel in the middle ages were mainly responsible for earliest gatherings of musicians, aritsts, dancers and actors who met periodically to concentrate their activities at some convenient center.

Ease of travel has brought success and widespread fame to all manner of modern artistic conventions, many of which are admittedly calculated to lure the tourist. Even at the turn of this century the musical festival idea had led to numerous clusters of annual choral and instrumental concerts around the country. But until the thirties the "great" events took place in Europe.

Within recent years, however, and despite the increasing cost of maintaining symphony orchestras, opera and other musical ensembles, America has steadily pushed forward in maturity and stature in "festivals of the arts."

There are worthy summertime seminars for the serious students; satisfactory diversions for the amateur music or theater lover; and easy-to-absorb entertainment for those a little suspicious of the better things.

Many of these events will afford a delightful vacation experience for the entire family. Not a few who reside in localities where these events occur, consider their enjoyment a "vacation at home."

The Berkshire Festival, staged from July 7 through Aug. 15, in the little town of Lenox, in western Massachusetts, is one of the outstanding summer series in the country. The Boston Symphony Orchestra will participate; and a brilliant array of soloists are scheduled. The series this year pays special tribute to the 150th anniversary of Hector Berlioz. The Berkshire Festival is held in conjunction with a six-week summer school of music. In addition to concerts scheduled in the huge shed at Tanglewood there are numerous other instrumental, choral and operatic performances which make music pervade the atmosphere throughout the season.

In the West at Aspen, Colo. [illegible]

SYRACUSE, N. Y.
HERALD-AMERICAN
JUN 13 1954

Tanglewood Season Has '49 Concerts for Festival; Copland's New Opera

This date in music: 1855, world premiere, in Paris, of Verdi's "Sicilian Vespers"; 1911, in Paris, Pierre Monteux conducts the Ballet Russe in the world premiere of Stravinsky's "Petroucha" with Nijinsky and Karsavina.

By E. V. W.

TWENTY-FIVE CONCERTS will be given by students of Berkshire Music Center during the 1954 Berkshire Festival of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in "Tanglewood," Lenox, Mass., during the six weeks starting July 6. In all, 49 music events are announced by Charles Munch, Symphony conductor and director of the Music Center.

NOW PREPARING for its twelfth year, starting with arrival of some 400 students from all parts of the United States and Canada and foreign countries, Berkshire Music Center is in accord with the plan and the spirit of its creator, the late Dr. Serge Koussevitzky. Assistant director of the Center is Aaron Copland with such eminent musicians as Jean Morel, Hugh Ross, Frederic Cohen, Ernst Toch, Lukas Foss, Gregor Piatigorsky and First Chair members of the Boston Symphony as teachers.

THE VALUABLE experience of group performance in "Tanglewood," is the lot of young musicians of high skill—players, conductors, singers—many on the threshold of distinguished careers. As in the past, their concerts are open to members of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, according to seating capacity of the Theater Concert Hall. Boston Symphony Concerts are included in the 24 Berkshire Festival programs, with six Saturday morning rehearsals of the Symphony. For these rehearsals there is a moderate admission fee, proceeds benefiting the Orchestra's Pension Fund. Two organ recitals by E. Power Biggs also are announced.

"THE TENDER LAND," a new opera by Aaron Copland on an American theme will give its second production here and its New England premiere on Monday and Tuesday nights, Aug. 2-3 in the Theater-Concert Hall. Also scheduled: a single performance on July 27 of a double bill, Ernst Toch's one-act opera, "The Princess and the Pea" and the 16th century opera "L'Amfiparnaso" by Grazio Vecchi (its first staged presentation in this country).

CONCERTS BY THE Boston Symphony in the Music Shed include those on July 10, 17, 24, Aug. 7, 14, at night and on July 11, 18, 25, Aug. 1, 8, 15, afternoon. The opening night concert will present the Berlioz "Damnation of Faust" with the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society and soloists. For the closing concert of the Festival on Aug. 15, Director Munch has chosen the Berlioz "Requiem" with Festival Concert and Soloist and the orchestra, in memory of Dr. Koussevitzky. In addition to Director Munch, concert conductors in the Shed on occasion will include Pierre Monteux, Jean Morel and Richard Burgin. Soloists with the orchestra: Vera Franceschi, Nicole Henriot, Claudio Arrau and Leon Smit, pianists; Eleanor Steber, soprano; William Primrose, violist; Ruth Posselt and Zino Francescatti, violinists.

NEW YORK, N.Y.
JUN 16 1954

Berkshire Fest Readies for Its Biggest Season

Lenox, Mass., June 15.

The Berkshire Festival—variously referred to as the summer music mecca of America, its Salzburg or Bayreuth—is readying for its 17th, and what appears as its biggest season at Tanglewood here. Due to the success of last year's fest, when 118,000 persons were attracted to break all attendance records, with a $311,600 take, event has been extended. Season will run a full six weeks instead of three, for the first time, with full symphony concerts Saturdays-Sundays and chamber concerts Wednesdays-Fridays.

Fest will tee off July 7 in the Theatre-Concert Hall with Claudio Arrau and Bel Arte Trio in a Beethoven program, with another chamber concert Friday night (9) with a small orch playing the Bach Brandenburg Concertos. First Music Shed concert, July 10, will have Charles Munch leading the Boston Symphony Orchestra in Berlioz's "Damnation of Faust" with soloists, the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society. Pierre Monteux will conduct Sunday's (11) all-Beethoven symph program.

Honoring the 150th anni season of Hector Berlioz, the fest will offer various works of the Frenchman, during the six-week run, such as "Romeo and Juliet," "Requiem," "Fantastic Symphony," "Te Deum" "Harold in Italy." Soloists will include Eleanor Steber, Nicole Henriot, Zino Francescatti, William Primrose, Vera Franceschi, Ruth Posselt and Leo Smit. Munch will conduct most of the Shed concerts, with Richard Burgin, Jean Morel and Monteux taking one each. Season will end Aug. 15, when the Berlioz "Requiem" will be done with a soloist and chorus in memory of Serge Koussevitzky, late conductor of the BSO.

Recorder-Examiner
(Catskill)
March 4, 1957

Players and Pipers . . .

Music Festival

Berkshire Music Festival programs for twenty-four concerts, to be given during a six-week period this year, from July 7 to August 15, have just been released. Shed programs, with the full orchestra participating, are scheduled for each Saturday night and Sunday afternoon during the festival. The Bach-Mozart series, to be given in the Theatre-Concert Hall, is to be split up this year, with five programs listed for Friday nights and the sixth on Thursday night.

Each Wednesday evening during the series, there will be a chamber music concert in the Theatre-Concert Hall.

Seats at subscription rates are now available for all concerts. Full programs, together with ticket information, will be mailed promptly upon request to the Berkshire Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass. The program follows:

Shed Programs

July 10, Saturday — Berlioz' "Damnation of Faust" with Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, Mr. Munch conducting.

July 11, Sunday — Beethoven program including Overture to "Leonore" No. 3, "Empehor" piano Concerto with Cludio Arrau as soloist and the Fifth Symphony, Pierre Monteux conducting.

July 17 — Saturday — Franck program, "Le Chasseur Maudit", "Les Eolides," "Les Djinns" (piano soloist, Vera Franceschi), and Symphony in D minor, Pierre Monteux conducting.

July 18 — Sunday — Debussy "Iberia", Copland Piano Concerto (soloist Leo Smit). Berlioz "Fantastic Symphony", Charles Munch conducting.

July 24—Saturday—Weber Overture, "Der Freischutz", Prokofieff Sixth Symphony, Strauss "Don Juan", Elgar "Enigma Variations," Jean Morel conducting.

July 25—Sunday—Berlioz "Beatriceand Benedict" overture and "Harold in Italy" (viola soloist, William Primrose). Ernst Toch, Symphony No. 2, Charles Munch conducting.

July 31—Saturday — Berlioux, "Romeo and Juliet" with Festival Chorus and soloists, Charles Munch, conducting.

Aug. 1 — Sunday — Prokofieff "Chout", Dvorak violin concerto, Symphony No. 2, Richard Burgin conducting.

Aug. 7 — Saturday — Gluck "Alceste" overture, Beethoven, violin concerto (soloist, Zino Francescatti), Brahms, symphony No. 2, Charles Munch, conducting.

Aug. 8 — Sunday — Berlioz program, "Benvenuto Cellini" overture, "The Royal Hunt and Storm", "Summer Nights" for soprano and orchestra with Eleanor Steber, soloist, and the "Te Deum", Charles Munch conducting.

Aug. 14—Saturday — Wagner "Lohengrin" prelude, Piston fourth symphony, Ravel, piano concerto, (soloist Nicole Henriot), Saint-Saens organ symphony, Charles Munch conducting.

Bach-Mozart Concerts

July 9 and 16—first two Friday evenings, Charles Munch will conduct music by Bach, including in the first concert Brandenburg Concertos Nos. 1, 2, 3, 6, and in the second concert Contata No. 93 and Suites Nos. 1 and 4.

July 23 — Charles Munch will conduct Handel's Concerto Grosso, Op. 6 No. 4, Haydn's "Military" symphony No. 100 and Hugh Ross will conduct Haydn's "Nelson" Mass.

July 30 — Mr. Munch will conduct Roussel's "The Spider's Feast", the Ibert Flute Concerto with Doriot Anthony as soloist, and Mozart's Serenade for 8 Winds in C minor, K. 388 and his Paris Symphony, K. 297.

Aug. 6—Lukas Foss will conduct the complete Stravinsky ballet, "Pulcinella", a Piano Concerto by Mozart with Seymour Lipkin as soloist, and excerpts from Mozart's "Idomeneo" with chorus and soloists.

Aug. 12—Jean Morel will conduct Rossini's overture to "The Silk Ladder", Mozart's Symphony in B flat, K. 319, and Strauss' "Der Burger als Edelmann."

Chamber Concerts

July 7—the program will be shared by Claudio Arrau, Piano, and the Bel Arte String Trio.

July 14—the Albeneri Trio.

July 21—the Zimbler Sinfonietta.

July 28 — the Griller String Quartet.

Aug. 5—the Boston Woodwind Quintet.

Aug. 11—the Kroll Quartet.

THE ORIGINAL
ROMEIKE
PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (20,000)
This Clipping From
METROPOLITAN HOST
NEW YORK, N. Y.
JUN 19 1954

The Sesquicentennial season of Berlioz will be observed this summer at the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood in Lenox, Mass. with a performance of some of the great works of the famous composer.

"Berkshire Observer" 4/59

The programs for the enlarged Berkshire Festival of July and August 1954 are under the supervision of Charles Munch, the Music Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Some twenty four concerts are to be presented in the new concert Tanglewood scheme. Music teachers and students interested in more information may write Boston Symphony Orchestra to Mr. Munch, Symphony Hall, Boston for listings and recitals to be held in the Shed as the Massachusetts Music Center. The 150th anniversary season of the birth of Berlioz is to be held.

WITH TRIO—Ruth Posselt is violinist in the Bel Arte Trio which will open the Tanglewood season at Lenox, Mass., Wednesday with an all-Beethoven chamber music concert. Claudio Arrau will conclude the concert with two piano sonatas.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN
JUN 13 1954

MANY CULTURAL EVENTS PLANNED IN BERKSHIRES

Music, Drama, Dance Programs Vie with Other Forms of Recreation

By JOHN F. DOWNING

Pittsfield.—The Berkshire Hills a summer resort can meet very mood and wish of the aveler. Whether the visitor seeks relaxation amid the repose of the area's colonial town and villages, vacation majoring in the cultural aspects, a mixture of the two with an accent on sports, it is available in Berkshire County's 32 communities.

Scenic Beauty

No other recreational area within so short a distance contains a greater variety of natural scenic beauty at all seasons of the year. This mountainous region contains 90 woodland lakes and ponds and 274 trout streams. Scattered through the county are 30,000 acres of state forest preserves, where hunting, fishing, picnicking, bathing, camping, hiking and other sports can be enjoyed in season.

Highlight of Berkshire County's 1954 cultural attractions will again be the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox. There is an expanded concert schedule this year of 24 programs, running from July 7 through Aug. 15. Six concerts will be devoted to the complete works of the 19th century French master Hector Berlioz "The Damnation of Faust," "The [128]

TIGHT BINDING

and Pillow

...ker

...ductor, Mr. Morel; Saturday, Au... 14, "Tragic" Overture, Brahms, ...phony No. 4, Piston, Piano Con... ...o, Ravel (Nicole Henriot), Sym... ...y No. 3, Saint-Saens; Sunday, ...ust 15, Requiem, Berlioz.

...d the telephone at Tanglewood is ...x 600. Now, Jacob's Pillow: ...day, July 2, matinee and Satur... July 3, matinee and night, Mar... Dell, Don Farnsworth in ballet; ... Lang in modern dance; Inesita, ...sh dance.

...rsday, July 8, matinee, Friday, ..., matinee and night, Saturday, ...0, matinee and night, Michael ... and Mary Ellen Moylan in ... pas de deux; John Butler ... Theater ...en Tetley, ...Conde and ...y; and ...nestis in ...an Indian ...from the ...North-

...day, July ...nee, Fri... ...y 16, ma... ...d night, ..., July ...nee and ...lexandra Danilova and part... ...classic ballet; Charles Weid... ...eater Dance Company, and ... Holder and company dancers ...inidad.

...ay, July 22, matinee, Friday, ... matinee and night, Saturday, ... matinee and night, Alicia ... with Milorad Miskovich in ...ballet; the Lester Horton ...Theater of California, with ...de Lavallade, James Truitte ...pany.

...day, July 28, night, Thurs... ... 29, matinee, Friday, July ...ee and night, Saturday, July ...nee and night, American ...he Celtic Ballet of Scotland, ... Morris, artistic director, ...r and piper, in "The Deil's ... "Barley Bree"; Emerson ..., dance satirists of London ...an debut.

...ay, August 4, night, Thurs... ...st 5, matinee, Friday, Au... ...tinee and night, Saturday, ... matinee and night, Celtic ..."The Continental Cousin"; ... and her group; Hadassah ...nce company in dances of ...t East.

...ay, August 11, night, Thurs... ...st 12, matinee, Friday, Au... ...tinee and night, Saturday, ... matinee and night, Celtic ..."The Hoodie Craw" and ...d to the Isles". Ram ...indu dances.

...August 20, matinee and ...rday, August 21, matinee ... Negro Dance Theater, ...chins, choreographer; Kurt ... Graff; Ram Gopal.

...August 27, matinee and ...rday, August 28, matinee ... Yurek Lazowski, noted ...cter star; Pearl Lang and ... Lotte Goslar, European

...September 3, matinee and ...turday, September 4, mati... ...ght, Andre Eglevsky and ... classic ballet; Harriette ... and company in modern ... American Mime Theater, ...tis, director.

...Pillow matinees begin at ...vening performances at 9. ...at the Pillow is Lee 745.

ROANOKE, VA.
TIMES

Music, Drama, Art Festivals Abound in Summer Months

Delightful Vacation Experiences Available for Family These Days

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Culture can be fun.

This summer's vacation traveler may take it in doses exactly suited to his liking, according to the National Association of Travel Organizations. An abundance of music, drama and art festivals throughout the United States during June, July and August offer variety and schedules for every taste, pocketbook and period of time that can be devoted to such pursuits.

DIFFICULTIES of travel in the middle ages were mainly responsible for earliest gatherings of musicians, artists, dancers and actors who met periodically to concentrate their activities at some convenient center.

Ease of travel has brought success and widespread fame to all manner of modern artistic conventions, many of which are admittedly calculated to lure the tourist. Even at the turn of this century the musical festival idea had led to numerous clusters of annual choral and instrumental concerts around the country. But until the thirties the "great" events took place in Europe.

Within recent years, however, and despite the increasing cost of maintaining symphony orchestras, opera and other musical ensembles, America has steadily pushed forward in maturity and stature in "festivals of the arts."

There are worthy summertime seminars for the serious students; satisfactory diversions for the amateur music or theater lovers and easy-to-absorb entertainment for those a little suspicious of the better things.

Many of these events will afford a delightful vacation experience for the entire family. Not a few who reside in localities where these events occur, consider their enjoyment a "vacation at home."

The Berkshire Festival, staged from July 7 through Aug. 15, in the little town of Lenox, in western Massachusetts, is one of the outstanding summer series in the country. The Boston Symphony Orchestra will participate; and a brilliant array of soloists are scheduled. The series this year pays special tribute to the 150th anniversary of Hector Berlioz. The Berkshire Festival is held in conjunction with a six-week summer school of music. In addition to concerts scheduled in the huge shed at Tanglewood there are numerous other instrumental, choral and operatic performances which make music pervade the atmosphere throughout the season.

In the West 21 Aspen Colo...

SYRACUSE, N. Y.
HERALD-AMERICAN

JUN 13 1954

Tanglewood Season Has 49 Concerts for Festival; Copland's New Opera

This date in music: 1855, world premiere, in Paris, of Verdi's "Sicilian Vespers"; 1911, in Paris, Pierre Monteux conducts the Ballet Russe in the world premiere of Stravinsky's "Petroucha" with Nijinsky and Karsavina.

By E. V. W.

TWENTY-FIVE CONCERTS will be given by students of Berkshire Music Center during the 1954 Berkshire Festival of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in "Tanglewood," Lenox, Mass., during the six weeks starting July 4. In all, 49 music events are announced by Charles Munch, Symphony conductor and director of the Music Center.

NOW PREPARING for its twelfth year, starting with arrival of some 400 students from all parts of the United States and Canada and foreign countries, Berkshire Music Center is in accord with the plan and the spirit of its creator, the late Dr. Serge Koussevitzky. Assistant director of the Center is Aaron Copland with such eminent musicians as Jean Morel, Hugh Ross, Frederic Cohen, Ernst Toch, Lukas Foss, Gregor Piatigorsky and First Chair members of the Boston Symphony as teachers.

THE VALUABLE experience of group performance in "Tanglewood," is the lot of young musicians of high skill — players, conductors, singers—many on the threshold of distinguished careers. As in the past, their concerts are open to members of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, according to seating capacity of the Theater Concert Hall. Boston Symphony Concerts are included in the 24 Berkshire Festival programs, with six Saturday morning rehearsals of the Symphony. For these rehearsals there is a moderate admission fee, proceeds benefiting the Orchestra's Pension Fund. Two organ recitals by E. Power Biggs also are announced.

"THE TENDER LAND," a new opera by Aaron Copland on an American theme will give its second production here and its New England premiere on Monday and Tuesday nights, Aug. 2-3 in the Theater-Concert Hall. Also scheduled: a single performance on July 27 of a double bill, Ernst Toch's one-act opera, "The Princess and the Pea" and the 16th century opera "L'Amfiparnaso" by Grazio Vecchi (its first staged presentation in this country).

CONCERTS BY THE Boston Symphony in the Music Shed include those on July 10, 17, 24, Aug. 7, 14, at night and on July 11, 18, 25, Aug. 1, 8, 15, afternoon. The opening night concert will present the Berlioz "Damnation of Faust" with the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society and soloists. For the closing concert of the Festival on Aug. 15, Director Munch has chosen the Berlioz "Requiem" with Festival Concert and Soloist and the orchestra, in memory of Dr. Koussevitzky. In addition to Director Munch, concert conductors in the Shed on occasion will include Pierre Monteux, Jean Morel and Richard Burgin. Soloists with the orchestra: Vera Franceschi, Nicole Henriot, Claudio Arrau and Leon Smit, pianists; Eleanor Steber, soprano; William Primrose, violist; Ruth Posselt and Zino Francescatti, violinists.

THE ORIGINAL
ROMEIKE
PRESS CLIPPINGS
220 W. 19th St., NEW YORK 11, N.Y.
Tel. CHelsea 3-8860
Cir. (20,000)
This Clipping From
METROPOLITAN HOST
NEW YORK, N. Y.
JUN 19 1954

The Sesquicentennial season of Berlioz will be observed this summer at the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood in Lenox, Mass. with a performance of some of the great works of the famous composer.

Music Sec.
Knoxville Observer 6/59

The programs for the enlarged Berkshire Festival of July and August 1954 are under the supervision of Charles Munch, the Music Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Some twenty four concerts are to be presented in the new concert Tanglewood scheme. Music teachers and students interested in more information may write Boston Symphony Orchestra to Mr. Munch, Symphony Hall, Boston for listings and recitals to be held in the Shed as the Massachusetts Music Center. The 150th anniversary season of the birth of Berlioz is to be held.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN

JUN 6 1954

MANY CULTURAL EVENTS PLANNED IN BERKSHIRES

Music, Drama, Dance Programs Vie with Other Forms of Recreation

By JOHN F. DOWNING

Pittsfield, The Berkshire Hills as a summer resort can meet every mood and wish of the traveler. Whether the visitor seeks relaxation amid the repose of the area's colonial town and villages, a vacation majoring in the cultural aspects, a mixture of the two with an accent on sports, it is available in Berkshire County's 32 communities.

Scenic Beauty

No other recreational area within so short a distance contains a greater variety of natural scenic beauty at all seasons of the year. This mountainous region contains 90 woodland lakes and ponds and 274 trout streams. Scattered throughout the county are 80,000 acres of state forest preserves, where hunting, fishing, picnicking, bathing, camping, hiking and other sports can be enjoyed in season.

Highlight of Berkshire County's 1954 cultural attractions will again be the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox. There is an expanded concert schedule this year of 24 programs, running from July 7 through Aug. 15. Six concerts will be devoted to the complete works of the 19th century French master Hector Berlioz "The Damnation of Faust," "The

VARIETY
NEW YORK, N. Y.

JUN 16 1954

Berkshire Fest Readies for Its Biggest Season

Lenox, Mass., June 15.

The Berkshire Festival—variously referred to as the summer music mecca of America, its Salzburg or Bayreuth—is readying for its 17th, and what appears as its biggest season at Tanglewood here. Due to the success of last year's fest, when 118,000 persons were attracted to break all attendance records, with a $311,600 take, event has been extended. Season will run a full six weeks instead of three, for the first time, with full symphony concerts Saturdays-Sundays and chamber concerts Wednesdays-Fridays.

Fest will tee off July 7 in the Theatre-Concert Hall with Claudio Arrau and Bel Arte Trio in a Beethoven program, with another chamber concert Friday night (9) with a small orch playing the Bach Brandenburg concertos. First Music Shed concert, July 10, will have Charles Munch leading the Boston Symphony Orchestra in Berlioz's "Damnation of Faust" with soloists, the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society. Pierre Monteux will concert Sunday's (11) all-Beethoven symph program.

Honoring the 150th anni season of Hector Berlioz, the fest will offer various works of the Frenchman, during the six-week run, such as "Romeo and Juliet," "Requiem," "Fantastic Symphony," "Te Deum" "Harold in Italy." Season soloists will include Eleanor Steber, Nicole Henriot, Zino Francescatti, William Primrose, Vera Franceschi, Ruth Posselt and Leo Smit. Munch will conduct most of the Shed concerts, with Richard Burgin, Jean Morel and Monteux taking one each. Season will end Aug. 15, when the Berlioz "Requiem" will be done with a soloist and chorus in memory of Serge Koussevitky, late conductor of the BSO.

in C minor, K. 388 and his Paris Symphony, K. 297.

Aug. 6—Lukas Foss will conduct the complete Stravinsky ballet, "Pulcinella", a Piano Concerto by Mozart with Seymour Lipkin as soloist, and excerpts from Mozart's "Idomeneo" with chorus and soloists.

Aug. 12—Jean Morel will conduct Rossini's overture to "The Silk Ladder", Mozart's Symphony in B flat, K. 319, and Strauss' "Der Burger als Edelmann."

Chamber Concerts

July 7—the program will be shared by Claudio Arrau, Piano, and the Bel Arte String Trio.

July 14—the Albeneri Trio.

July 21—the Zimbler Sinfonietta.

July 28 — the Griller String Quartet.

Aug. 5—the Boston Woodwind Quintet.

Aug. 11—the Kroll Quartet.

WITH TRIO—Ruth Posselt is violinist in the Bel Arte Trio which will open the Tanglewood season at Lenox, Mass., Wednesday with an all-Beethoven chamber music concert. Claudio Arrau will conclude the concert with two piano sonatas.

Recorder-Examiner
(Catskill)
March 4, 1954

Players and Pipers . . .

Music Festival

Berkshire Music Festival programs for twenty-four concerts, to be given during a six-week period this year, from July 7 to August 15, have just been released. Shed programs, with the full orchestra participating, are scheduled for each Saturday night and Sunday afternoon during the festival. The Bach-Mozart series, to be given in the Theatre-Concert Hall, is to be split up this year, with five programs listed for Friday nights and the sixth on Thursday night.

Each Wednesday evening during the series, there will be a chamber music concert in the Theatre-Concert Hall.

Seats at subscription rates are now available for all concerts. Full programs, together with ticket information, will be mailed promptly upon request to the Berkshire Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass. The program follows:

Shed Programs

July 10, Saturday — Berlioz' "Damnation of Faust" with Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, Mr. Munch conducting.

July 11, Sunday — Beethoven program including Overture to "Leonore" No. 3, "Empehor" piano Concerto with Cludio Arrau as soloist and the Fifth Symphony, Pierre Monteux conducting.

July 17 — Saturday — Franck program, "Le Chasseur Maudit", "Les Eolides," "Les Djinns" (piano soloist, Vera Franceschi), and Symphony in D minor, Pierre Monteux conducting.

July 18 — Sunday — Debussy "Iberia", Copland Piano Concerto (soloist Leo Smit). Berlioz "Fantastic Symphony", Charles Munch conducting.

July 24—Saturday—Weber Overture, "Der Freischutz", Prokofieff Sixth Symphony, Strauss "Don Juan", Elgar "Enigma Variations," Jean Morel conducting.

July 25—Sunday—Berlioz "Beatriceand Benedict" overture and "Harold in Italy" (viola soloist, William Primrose). Ernst Toch, Symphony No. 2, Charles Munch conducting.

July 31—Saturday — Berlioux, "Romeo and Juliet" with Festival Chorus and soloists, Charles Munch, conducting.

Aug. 1 — Sunday — Prokofieff "Chout", Dvorak violin concerto, Symphony No. 2, Richard Burgin conducting.

Aug. 7 — Saturday — Cluck "Alceste" overture, Beethoven, violin concerto (soloist, Zino Francescatti), Brahms, symphony No. 2, Charles Munch, conducting.

Aug. 8 — Sunday — Berlioz program, "Benvenuto Cellini" overture, "The Royal Hunt and Storm", "Summer Nights" for soprano and orchestra with Eleanor Steber, soloist, and the "Te Deum", Charles Munch conducting.

Aug. 14—Saturday — Wagner "Lohengrin" prelude, Piston fourth symphony, Ravel, piano concerto, (soloist Nicole Henriot), Saint-Saens organ symphony, Charles Munch conducting.

Bach-Mozart Concerts

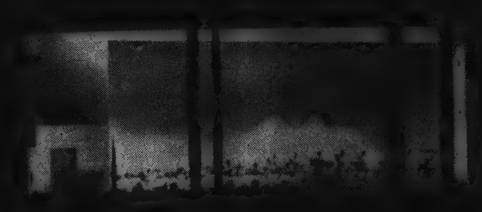
July 9 and 16—first two Friday evenings, Charles Munch will conduct music by Bach, including in the first concert Brandenburg Concertos Nos. 1, 2, 3, 6, and in the second concert Contata No. 93 and Suites Nos. 1 and 4.

July 23 — Charles Munch will conduct Handel's Concerto Grosso, Op. 6 No. 4, Haydn's "Military" symphony No. 100 and Hugh Ross will conduct Haydn's "Nelson" Mass.

July 30 — Mr. Munch will conduct Roussel's "The Spider's Feast", the Ibert Flute Concerto with Doriot Anthony as soloist, and Mozart's Serenade for 8 Winds

Summer Music in the Americas—1954

A ROUND-UP BY JAMES HINTON, JR.



ANYONE WHO IS WILLING to believe that Americans and only Americans are promotion-minded need only look at the differences between music festivals in this country and music festivals in Europe to be at once and completely disabused of that idea. Readers well-heeled enough—or dreamy enough—to have read attentively the listing of summer transatlantic musical events published in the April issue cannot but have been impressed by the quantity, richness and variety of the possibilities. In fact, the ear-weary tourist in Europe would have to plan his itinerary cannily to avoid falling foul of some music festival or other, and would need to immobilize himself completely in the Hebrides to avoid crossing the spoors left by conductors, soloists, and whole packs of orchestral players as they shuttle busily from occasion to occasion. This is no accident. As every audio child knows, music is a commodity as well as an art. There is no import duty on music heard, and tourist dollars are dollars no less than dollars collected for Swiss watches, French perfumes, German cameras, British woolens—or speculative tapes from which LP records can be transmuted.

In this hemisphere—longitudinally considered—the summer music situation is somewhat different. Not that there is no music to be heard; there is. There are even a fair number of festivals, some of them very old, some of them offering performances of excellent quality. But no one has yet really begun to cater to the known appetite of tourists for serious music during the hot months. Summer music in this country is often light and almost all

Tanglewood—Clemens Kalischer

HIGH FIDELITY, JUNE 1954.

Berkshire Festival

(Tanglewood, Mass.) July 5-August 15.

Twelve concerts, on Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons, by the Boston Symphony, conducted by Charles Munch; programs center around Berlioz sesquicentennial, with performances of La Damnation de Faust, Romeo et Juliet, the Requiem, and the song cycle Nuits d'Ete. Chamber-orchestra concerts on Friday evenings, devoted to music by Mozart and Bach; chamber-music programs on Wednesday evenings; performances by students at the Berkshire Music Center of opera scenes and chamber music, with student opera productions on the stage of the theatre.

BOSTON, MASS.
HERALD

JUL 1 - 1954

Berkshire Fete Changes Announced

Changes involving two Saturday evening programs by the Boston Symphony Orchestra during the Berkshire Festival, in the Music Shed, at Tanglewood, Lenox, have been announced by Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony.

Pianist Nicole Henriot will appear with the orchestra as soloist three weeks earlier than scheduled on Saturday evening, July 24, at the concert to be conducted by Jean Morel, performing the Liszt E flat Piano Concerto, which will replace the Strauss "Don Juan" previously listed. On the concert of Aug. 14, replacing the Ravel Piano Concerto, Mr. Munch will conduct Ravel's "Le Tombeau de Couperin."

[129]

indigenous, calculated to keep the home folks amused and the local musicians eating rather than to attract visitors from the ends of the gold-bearing earth.

Without question, the best place to go in the summer for serious music expertly performed — assuming that you either don't want to or can't go to Europe — is South America. The reason is simple: Summer here is winter there. This may not seem good-neighborly, but it cannot be helped. Geography.

At any rate, the principal cities of South America maintain symphony orchestras of excellent quality, and their recital halls are booked solid during the summer by the best European and North and South American artists. The seasons in Brazil and Argentina are especially active, and Rio de Janeiro, Buenos Aires, and Sao Paulo have opera seasons in which the productions are both lavish and carefully prepared and the singers and conductors of international stature. But these are no more festivals than are the corresponding winter seasons in New York, Chicago or Boston, and they cannot be treated as such. If you are going to South America this summer and are interested in music, the best procedure is to get in touch with the cultural attachés of the countries you plan to visit and ask for details. And, especially for the major opera seasons, request seats as far in advance as possible.

No festivals in this country have the size of the really big European agglomerations, and certainly none has the air of tradition. Even if, say, New York were to have a festival similar to that of, say, Vienna, the effect could not be the same, for historic associations have a good deal to do with the successful creation of a festival atmosphere. Where is there an American counterpart for the Schoenbrunn Palace — or for the Drottningholm Palace at Stockholm, for that matter? What possible American counterpart is there for Bayreuth?

In general, music festivals that are called festivals in this country are connected with either educational institutions (like that at Ann Arbor) or orchestras (like that at Ravinia) or both (like that at Tanglewood). There are exceptions, but this is the rule, and for the rest the summer traveler in the United States must rely for live musical performances on municipally sponsored, or condoned, concert series that have the advantage of open-air informality if not of the opportunity to commune with the ghosts of great composers or bask in the aura of eighteenth-century court life.

The following paragraphs constitute an outline, arranged in rough chronology according to opening dates, of the principal festivals and concert series scheduled still to take place this summer north of the Panama Canal and on this side of the Atlantic, with an occasional flyer into non-musical events of related interest. Certain spring and early summer events will be in progress or already finished by printing time. Among these: the Ann Arbor festival (April 29-May 2); the Festival of American Music (Eastman School) in Rochester, N. Y., the first week in May; the Bethlehem (Pa.) Bach Festival, May 13-22; the Southeastern Manitoba Music Festival, May 15; the Kings County (Nova Scotia) Music Festival, May 18; the Ojai Festivals, Ojai, Calif., which began May 20.

St. Louis Municipal Opera (St. Louis, Mo.) June to September.
Open-air light-opera performances in Forest Park.

New Orleans Summer Pops (New Orleans, La.) June and July.
Three free orchestral concerts weekly in Beauregard Square.

Music Under The Stars (Milwaukee, Wis.) June to August
County-sponsored orchestral concerts in the Emil Blatz Temple of Music; guest conductors and soloists.

Tamiment Festival (Tamiment Institute, Tamiment, Pa.) June 24-27.
Chamber-music concerts by the Curtis String Quartet, including the premiere of the prize-winning work in a contest now being judged; other concerts and recitals on Thursday evenings all summer long.

Naumburg Concerts (The Mall, Central Park, New York, N. Y.) Opening concert was May 30; other dates to be announced.
Four free orchestral concerts sponsored by the Walter W. Naumburg Foundation.

Ashland Folk Song Festival (Ashland, Ky.) June 13.
Folk-singing.

Goldman Band Concerts (The Mall, Central Park, New York, N. Y., and Prospect Park, Brooklyn, N. Y.) June 18.
Free concerts of band music throughout the summer — on Sundays, Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays in Central Park; on Thursdays and Saturdays in Prospect Park.

Lewisohn Stadium Concerts (New York, N. Y.) June 21-July 31.
Concerts five nights a week by an orchestra composed largely of New York Philharmonic-Symphony players. Conductors: Pierre Monteux, Alexander Smallens, Sir Adrian Boult, André Kostelanetz, Thomas Scherman. Soloists include: Lily Pons, Eugene Conley, Dorothy Kirsten, Charles Kullman, Herva Nelli, Elena Nikolaidi, Jarmila Novotna, Jan Peerce, Regina Resnik, Hugh Thompson, William Warfield, Mischa Elman, Yehudi Menuhin, Jeanne Mitchell, Michael Rosenker (concertmaster), Claudio Arrau, Henri Deering, Ania Dorfmann, and Aldo Parisot. Special events include a Kern and Rodgers and Hammerstein program, Italian and French opera programs, a Viennese program, and a program by José Greco and his company of Spanish dancers.

Robin Hood Dell (Fairmount Park, Philadelphia, Pa.) June 21 to end of July.
Free concerts, sponsored municipally and by businesses, by an orchestra composed largely of Philadelphia Orchestra players, with soloists; programs generally follow the pattern of those offered in Lewisohn Stadium.

Continued on page 80

) July to end of

ıcerts weekly.

Red Rocks Festival
(Denver, Colo.) July and August.
Concerts by the Denver Symphony, conducted by Saul Caston, in the Red Rocks natural amphitheatre.

Music Under The Stars
(Seattle, Wash.) July and August.
Light-opera season in the Green Lake Aquatheatre, directed by Gustave Stern.

Music Mountain
(Falls Village, Conn.). July and

BOSTON, MASS.
HERALD

JUL 1 - 1954

Berkshire Fete Changes Announced

Changes involving two Saturday evening programs by the Boston Symphony Orchestra during the Berkshire Festival, in the Music shed, at Tanglewood, Lenox, have been announced by Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony.

Pianist Nicole Henriot will appear with the orchestra as soloist three weeks earlier than scheduled on Saturday evening, July 24, at the concert to be conducted by Jean Morel, performing the Liszt E flat Piano Concerto, which will replace the Strauss "Don Juan" previously listed. On the concert of Aug. 14, replacing the Ravel Piano Concerto, Mr. Munch will conduct Ravel's "Le Tombeau de Couperin."

[129]

Summer Music in the Americas—1954

A ROUND-UP BY JAMES HINTON, JR.

Tanglewood / Clemens Kalischer

ANYONE WHO IS WILLING to believe that Americans and only Americans are promotion-minded need only look at the differences between music festivals in this country and music festivals in Europe to be at once and completely disabused of that idea. Readers well-heeled enough—or dreamy enough—to have read attentively the listing of summer transatlantic musical events published in the April issue cannot but have been impressed by the quantity, richness and variety of the possibilities. In fact, the ear-weary tourist in Europe would have to plan his itinerary cannily to avoid falling foul of some music festival or other, and would need to immobilize himself completely in the Hebrides to avoid crossing the spoors left by conductors, soloists, and whole packs of orchestral players as they shuttle busily from occasion to occasion. This is no accident. As every audio child knows, music is a commodity as well as an art. There is no import duty on music heard, and tourist dollars are dollars no less than dollars collected for Swiss watches, French perfumes, German cameras, British woolens—or speculative tapes from which LP records can be transmuted.

In this hemisphere—longitudinally considered—the summer music situation is somewhat different. Not that there is no music to be heard; there is. There are even a fair number of festivals, some of them very old, some of them offering performances of excellent quality. But no one has yet really begun to cater to the proven appetite of tourists for serious music during the hot months. Summer music in this country is often light and almost all

Berkshire Festival
(Tanglewood, Mass.) July 5-August 15.

Twelve concerts, on Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons, by the Boston Symphony, conducted by Charles Munch; programs center around Berlioz sesquicentennial, with performances of La Damnation de Faust, Romeo et Juliet, the Requiem, and the song cycle Nuits d'Ete. Chamber-orchestra concerts on Friday evenings, devoted to music by Mozart and Bach; chamber-music programs on Wednesday evenings; performances by students at the Berkshire Music Center of opera scenes and chamber music, with student opera productions on the stage of the theatre.

BOSTON, MASS.
HERALD

JUL 1 - 1954

Berkshire Fete Changes Announced

Changes involving two Saturday evening programs by the Boston Symphony Orchestra during the Berkshire Festival, in the Music Shed, at Tanglewood, Lenox, have been announced by Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony.

Pianist Nicole Henriot will appear with the orchestra as soloist three weeks earlier than scheduled on Saturday evening, July 24, at the concert to be conducted by Jean Morel, performing the Liszt E flat Piano Concerto, which will replace the Strauss "Don Juan" previously listed. On the concert of Aug. 14, replacing the Ravel Piano Concerto, Mr. Munch will conduct Ravel's "Le Tombeau de Couperin."

[129]

MUSICAL LEADER JUNE 1954

Berkshire Festival Announcements

The Berkshire Festival will have an enlarged program in July and August, as a new plan has been devised by Charles Munch, to extend its scope. The plan, prompted by the record attendance in 1953, will include concerts throughout the six weeks by the full orchestra in the Music Shed. Twenty-four concerts are announced including six concerts by Chamber groups, six by a Chamber Orchestra of Boston Symphony players, and six by the full orchestra in the shed on Saturday evenings and six on Sunday afternoons. In addition to Charles Munch, the Shed concerts will include guest conductors, Pierre Monteux, Jean Morel, and Richard Burgin. Monteux will conduct a Beethoven program during the first week with Claudio Arrau as soloist. The first week will also include the first of the Berlioz Festival programs. In the second week, Monteux will conduct a Cesar Franck program with Vera Franceschi as soloist in "Les Djinns," and Munch will conduct Berlioz' Fantastic Symphony. Further Berlioz numbers will include "Beatrice and Benedict" Overture, "Harold in Italy," "Benvenuto Cellini" Overture, "The Royal Hunt and Storm" from "The Trojans," "Summer Nights" for soprano (Eleanor Steber) and orchestra, and the "Te Deum." The season will close with the "Requiem," with Festival Chorus and four auxiliary orchestras.

In the intimate Theatre-Concert Hall, an orchestra of chamber proportions will appear on six Friday evenings in programs by Bach and Mozart, with excursions into Handel, Haydn and others. On Aug. 6, Lukas Foss will conduct the complete Stravinsky ballet, "Pulcinella," a piano concerto by Mozart, with Seymour Lipkin as soloist, and excerpts from Mozart's opera "Idomeneo," with chorus and soloists.

Tanglewood School Plans

The summer school of music maintained at Tanglewood by the Boston Symphony Orchestra will carry a six-weeks session from July 5 to Aug. 15, directed by Charles Munch, with Aaron Copland, composer, as assistant director. A faculty of fifty offers courses in orchestral conducting, chamber music, choral music, composition and opera. Three musicians will be added to the faculty: Jean Morel, as head of the orchestra and conducting departments; Ernst Toch, of California, as teacher of composition with Copland and Lukas Foss; and Frederic Cohen as head of the opera department.

Copland's Opera to be Presented

Aaron Copland's new opera, "The Tender Land," will have two performances on Aug. 2 and 3 as the major projects this summer of the Berkshire Music Center Opera Department. In July, a double bill of Ernst Toch's one-act opera, "The Princess and the Pea," and the sixteenth century madrigal opera, "L'Amfiparnaso" by Orazio Vecchi will have its first stage performance in this country.

In Brief . . .

EAGLE 7/3/59

To the many Berkshire residents who have never really taken the time to get to know their home territory, we heartily commend today's first installment of the six-week series by Bartlett C. Hendricks on off-the-beaten track tours around the county. We've never heard of anyone who successfully contested "Back-road" Bill's standing as the county's foremost authority on the subject . . . We'd also like to make note of our publication today of the Berkshire Musical Calendar, a new feature that we hope will save readers a lot of last minute scrambling to find out what's on the entertainment docket during the coming weeks . . . That list of major improvements made at the Girl Scouts' Marion White Day Camp on Richmond Pond in anticipation of next week's opening is a heart-warming testimonial to the community conscience of Arthur Koerber and his corps of 75 volunteer workers . . .

The Senate's confirmation of Donald R. Biron as postmaster brings to a formal ending a four-year hassle over the establishment of a successor to the late Dennis P. Sweeney. Most persons who have seen Mr. Biron in action, even including a lot of Democrats, are inclined to consider the ending a happy one . . . We trust that the airlines will give serious attention to Frank Prinz's suggestion that they worry less about outgoing traffic at the Pittsfield Airport and more about helping to promote incoming tourist traffic. As proprietor of Oak 'N Spruce in South Lee, Mr. Prinz is pretty well qualified to testify as to how much smart promotion can accomplish . . .

Berkshire Evening Eagle
July 3, 1959.

EARLY SPRING is a summer-long visitor at Tanglewood this year in the person of this expressionistic sculpture by Homer Gunn of West Stockbridge. The seven-foot piece, done in California redwood, symbolizes a plant unfolding. It is one of three Gunns stationed in the gardens and reception hall.

Painting, Sculpture Exhibits Shown Weekly at Tanglewood

TANGLEWOOD — A weekly exhibit of paintings, sculpture and photographs again will be a feature of the Berkshire Festival season, housed in the reception hall at Tanglewood and arranged through the courtesy of the Berkshire Museum, Pittsfield, and its director, Stuart C. Henry.

Summer Displays

Three large wooden sculptures in California redwood, by Homer Gunn, of West Stockbridge, will be on outdoor exhibition through the summer in the formal gardens at Tanglewood and at the reception hall. They are "Early Spring," a seven-foot study symbolizing a plant unfolding, done last winter at the artist's studio in Glen Head, L.I.; "School of Fish," a laminated work, 60 inches long, mounted on wooden base, created in 1953; and "Horses," a panel two feet by five feet, finished this year.

A native of Uxbridge, and a graduate of the Rhode Island School of Design, Providence, Mr. Gunn studied at the Art Students' League, New York City, and is head of the arts department at Green Vale, a private preparatory school, in Glen Head, L.I. He has won first prizes in painting at Nantucket in 1946, at Hofstra College, Hempstead, L.I., in 1952, and at the Berkshire Art Assn. in 1953.

He has had a one-man show of painting and sculpture at the Creative Gallery, New York City, in 1951, another at the Berkshire Museum, Pittsfield, in 1952, and exhibited sculpture last summer at the Lenox Library and at Tanglewood. He has made his home summers since 1950 in West Stockbridge, with his wife and two children.

Photo Exhibit

The first art exhibit at Tanglewood, commencing today, will be of photographs of music and musicians, entitled "Music in the Berkshires," by Clement Kalischer, Stockbridge Road, which was recently housed in Carnegie Hall, New York City.

The week commencing July 12 will feature an exhibit of sculpture by Miss Franc Epping, of Lenox, director of the Sculpture Workshop and the annual outdoor exhibit at the Lenox Library gardens. Ture Bengtz, head of the Bengtz School of Art at the Lenox School, will exhibit paintings during the week commencing July 19. Additional sculpture and paintings of Homer Gunn will be on display the week of July 26. Miss Carol Cleworth, of Stockbridge, will show modern paintings the week beginning August 2. From August 9 to 15, paintings will be on view by Lawrence R. McCoy, vice-president of the Southern Vermont Art Center, Manchester, Vt.

During the summer, at the Berkshire Museum, Pittsfield, the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is co-operating with the Childs Gallery, Boston, in exhibiting the Wilsson Collection of etchings, engravings and lithographs of famous composers.

EAGLE, JULY 3, 1959

Tanglewood Tales

110 in Chorus Here Next Week

When the Boston Symphony Orchestra gives its first concert in the Music Shed at Tanglewood next Saturday with Charles Munch conducting, for the first time at a Berkshire Festival Hector Berlioz' 2½-hour "The Damnation of Faust," the chorus will be composed of 110 members of the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society. At present a group of both choral groups, trained by G. Wallace Woodworth, are on a transcontinental tour to the West Coast, which ends with their appearance in Tanglewood.

A second group is traveling to Tanglewood by bus from New York and environs; a third group will come from Boston by bus, for rehearsal Friday at 10 a.m. Three Harvard choristers are now on the Tanglewood staff: Guide Timothy Cogan, registrar's assistant Peter Neumann, and switchboard assistant Robert L. Loud. Two others will join the summer staff next week, after their West Coast travels: Harry Kraut, who is the Harvard Glee Club's business manager, returning as a guide, and Frederick Scriver Jr., also as guide.

Student Photographer

Tanglewood has a resident photographer this season, Gus Mance, a junior at the University of South Carolina, Columbia, S.C., who photographed the Transylvania Music Camp at Brevard, N.C., last summer and plays the flute in the Columbia Charleston Symphony [illegible], has started work here. Jackson, a native of [illegible], is a cousin of M. Leo Bruton Blair of Pittsfield, son of Louis S. Gu[illegible], superintendent of personnel at the Pittsfield GE plant. Both are living at Wheatleigh, the male students' dormitory.

Judd Honored By BSO Trustees

Three trustees of the Boston Symphony Orchestra are expected for opening exercises of the 12th session of the Berkshire Music Center, in the theatre-concert hall at Tanglewood tomorrow. Dr. Lewis D. Perry of [illegible], honorary chairman of the [illegible] School, is at the [illegible] Lenox. Expected [illegible] Edward A. Taft and Francis Hatch. In Boston yesterday the trustees honored retiring Manager George E. Judd with a dinner, which Music Director Charles Munch also attended.

Doriot Anthony, Flutist, Marries

Doriot Anthony, the attractive New Englander who made her Tanglewood debut last summer, as first flutist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will arrive in the Berkshires this weekend with her new husband, Dr. Thomas Dwyer, of Boston, a psychiatrist. The Dwyers were married in Vermont in mid-May.

Sir Adrian Boult, distinguished British symphony conductor of the London Philharmonia, who was a Tanglewood guest this week, was accompanied by Lady Boult. Sir Adrian conducted summer concerts at New York City's Lewisohn Stadium last week.

A staff breakfast was held at Tanglewood's Wheatleigh Residence yesterday, when newcomers were introduced by manager-elect Thomas D. Perry Jr., of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

The 350 students arriving at Tanglewood tomorrow for opening exercises of the Music Center's 12th summer session, will be guests of the music school at an informal party tomorrow evening at Wheatleigh.

First Student Concert Opens Next Thursday

The first of some 25 student programs by summer music scholars of the Berkshire Music Center, open to all those who contribute voluntarily to the Friends of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's music school, will be given next Thursday at 8:30 p.m. in the Tanglewood Music Shed. Jean Morel, of the Juilliard School of Music in New York, who heads Department I this year, while Leonard Bernstein is on leave of absence, will share the podium with student conductors Paul Vermel, of New York City, and Samuel Krachmalnik, formerly of St. Louis, and now living in New York. "Krach" is a younger brother of Jacob Krachmalnik, concertmaster of the Philadelphia Orchestra, and is returning to Tanglewood for a second summer. The program is Mozart's "Mattner" Symphony, Liszt's "Les Preludes," and the Symphony No. 4 by Schuman.

Burk Authors Essay on Berlioz

John N. Burk, program annotator of the Boston Symphony Orchestra since 1935, is the author of an informative essay on Hector Berlioz in the July issue of High Fidelity magazine. Berlioz will be honored by performances of a number of his works in their complete form at this summer's Berkshire Festival, in commemoration of the 150th anniversary season of his birth. Mr. Burk arrives at Tanglewood this weekend, with his daughter, Margaret, secretary to orchestra personnel manager, Boris to Mazzeo.

Foss Commissioned To Compose TV Opera

Lukas Foss, [illegible] popular composer-conductor [illegible] who teaches courses [illegible] at Tanglewood and this year [illegible] the Berkshire Music Center Department V (Tanglewood [illegible] group) has been commissioned [illegible] National Broadcasting Co. [illegible] television Opera Theatre [illegible] to compose a full-length opera for [illegible] on television in the [illegible] season. As yet untitled, it will [illegible] libretto by Arnold Weinstein, [illegible] based on a German folk legend. It tells the story of a devil who loses his devilishness by doing a good deed, thus becoming a human being. As a small boy in Germany, Mr. Foss heard this tale from his mother, and later suggested it to [illegible] as a subject. Lukas Foss [illegible] graduate of the Curtis Institute of Music, where he studied with [illegible] Scalero and later with Paul Hindemith. An earlier opera, "The Jumping Frog of Calaveras County," based on A Mark Twain short story, has received a number of performances in this country. Last season at Tanglewood, the Boston Symphony Orchestra performed his Cantata, "A Parable of Death," with Vera Zorina as narrator, and Columbia Records has just issued a recording of it.

ROCHESTER, N.Y.
DEMOCRAT & CHRONICLE
JUN 15 1954

Anna Russell To Return

ANNA RUSSELL, international concert comedienne who was acclaimed by a Pops Concert audience at the Eastman a few months ago, has been booked for a return engagement on Saturday, Jan. 22, 1955, according to Jack F. Dailey, executive secretary of the Rochester Civic Music Association.

Miss Russell will perform this summer at music festivals throughout the United States before she embarks on a European concert tour. At the Berkshire Playhouse, Stockbridge, Mass., she will appear in "Travelers' Joy," a drawing room comedy to be presented in conjunction with the Berkshire Festival.

Miss Russell's spoofing of musical stereotypes and parodies on opera numbers so amused the Rochester audience that there were many requests for another booking.

Berkshire Festival Announcements

The Berkshire Festival will have an enlarged program in July and August, as a new plan has been devised by Charles Munch, to extend its scope. The plan, prompted by the record attendance in 1953, will include concerts throughout the six weeks by the full orchestra in the Music Shed. Twenty-four concerts are announced including six concerts by Chamber groups, six by a Chamber Orchestra of Boston Symphony players, and six by the full orchestra in the shed on Saturday evenings and six on Sunday afternoons. In addition to Charles Munch, the Shed concerts will include guest conductors, Pierre Monteux, Jean Morel, and Richard Burgin. Monteux will conduct a Beethoven program during the first week with Claudio Arrau as soloist. The first week will also include the first of the Berlioz Festival programs. In the second week, Monteux will conduct a Cesar Franck program with Vera Franceschi as soloist in "Les Djinns," and Munch will conduct Berlioz' Fantastic Symphony. Further Berlioz numbers will include "Beatrice and Benedict" Overture, "Harold in Italy," "Benvenuto Cellini" Overture, "The Royal Hunt and Storm" from "The Trojans," "Summer Nights" for soprano (Eleanor Steber) and orchestra, and the "Te Deum." The season will close with the "Requiem," with Festival Chorus and four auxiliary orchestras.

In the intimate Theatre-Concert Hall, an orchestra of chamber proportions will appear on six Friday evenings in programs by Bach and Mozart, with excursions into Handel, Haydn and others. On Aug. 6, Lukas Foss will conduct the complete Stravinsky ballet, "Pulcinella," a piano concerto by Mozart, with Seymour Lipkin as soloist, and excerpts from Mozart's opera "Idomeneo," with chorus and soloists.

Tanglewood School Plans

The summer school of music maintained at Tanglewood by the Boston Symphony Orchestra will carry a six-weeks session from July 5 to Aug. 15, directed by Charles Munch, with Aaron Copland, composer, as assistant director. A faculty of fifty offers courses in orchestral conducting, chamber music, choral music, composition and opera. Three musicians will be added to the faculty: Jean Morel, as head of the orchestra and conducting departments; Ernst Toch, of California, as teacher of composition with Copland and Lukas Foss; and Frederic Cohen as head of the opera department.

Copland's Opera to be Presented

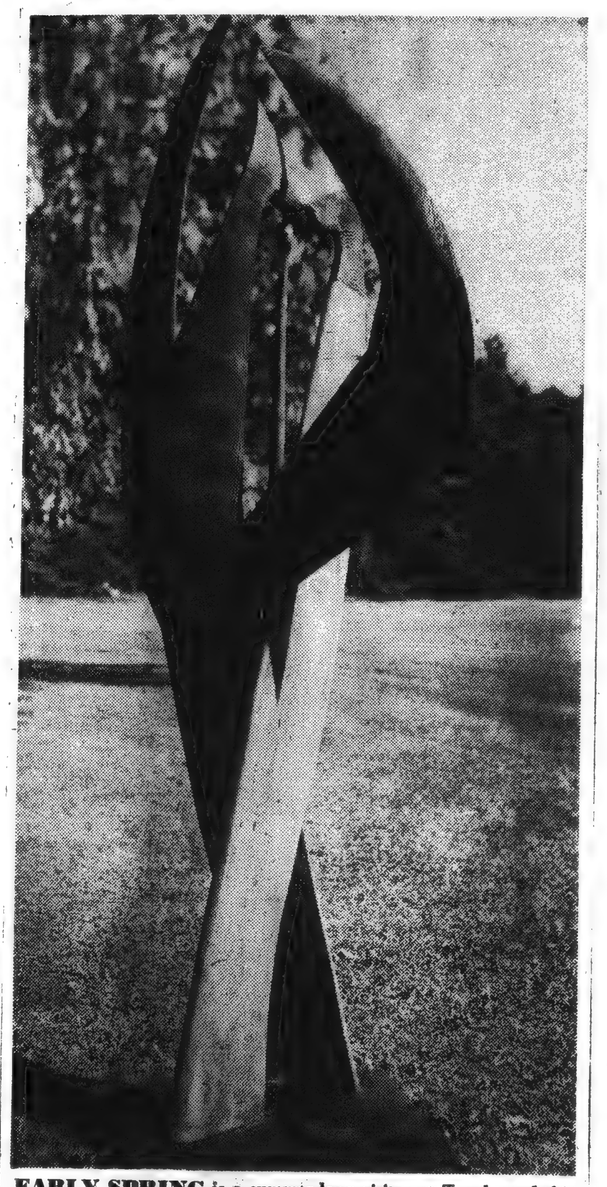
Aaron Copland's new opera, "The Tender Land," will have two performances on Aug. 2 and 3 as the major projects this summer of the Berkshire Music Center Opera Department. In July, a double bill of Ernst Toch's one-act opera, "The Princess and the Pea," and the sixteenth century madrigal opera, "L'Amfiparnaso" by Orazio Vecchi will have its first stage performance in this country.

In Brief . . .

To the many Berkshire residents who have never really taken the time to get to know their home territory, we heartily commend today's first installment of the six-week series by Bartlett C. Hendricks on off-the-beaten track tours around the county. We've never heard of anyone who successfully contested "Back-road" Bart's standing as the county's foremost authority on the subject . . . We'd also like to make note of our publication today of the Berkshire Musical Calendar, a new feature that we hope will save readers a lot of last minute scrambling to find out what's on the entertainment docket during the coming weeks . . . That list of major improvements made at the Girl Scouts' Marion White Day Camp on Richmond Pond in anticipation of next week's opening is a heart-warming testimonial to the community conscience of Arthur Koerber and his corps of 75 volunteer workers . . .

The Senate's confirmation of Donald R. Biron as postmaster brings to a formal ending a four-year hassle over the establishment of a successor to the late Dennis P. Sweeney. Most persons who have seen Mr. Biron in action, even including a lot of Democrats, are inclined to consider the ending a happy one . . . We trust that the airlines will give serious attention to Frank Prinz's suggestion that they worry less about outgoing traffic at the Pittsfield Airport and more about helping to promote incoming tourist traffic. As proprietor of Oak 'N Spruce in South Lee, Mr. Prinz is pretty well qualified to testify as to how much smart promotion can accomplish . . .

Berkshire Evening Eagle
July 3, 1954.



EARLY SPRING is a summer-long visitor at Tanglewood this year in the person of this expressionistic sculpture by Homer Gunn of West Stockbridge. The seven-foot piece, done in California redwood, symbolizes a plant unfolding. It is one of three Gunns stationed in the gardens and reception hall.

Painting, Sculpture Exhibits Shown Weekly at Tanglewood

TANGLEWOOD — A weekly exhibit of paintings, sculpture and photographs again will be a feature of the Berkshire Festival season, housed in the reception hall at Tanglewood and arranged through the courtesy of the Berkshire Museum, Pittsfield, and its director, Stuart C. Henry.

Summer Displays

Three large wooden sculptures in California redwood, by Homer Gunn, of West Stockbridge, will be on outdoor exhibition through the summer in the formal gardens at Tanglewood and at the reception hall. They are "Early Spring," a seven-foot study symbolizing a plant unfolding, done last winter at the artist's studio in Glen Head, L.I.; "School of Fish," a laminated work, 60 inches long, mounted on wooden base, created in 1953; and "Horses," a panel two feet by five feet, finished this year.

A native of Uxbridge, and a graduate of the Rhode Island School of Design, Providence, Mr. Gunn studied at the Art Students' League, New York City, and is head of the arts department at Green Vale, a private preparatory school, in Glen Head, L.I. He has won first prizes in painting at Nantucket in 1946, at Hofstra College, Hempstead, L.I., in 1952, and at the Berkshire Art Assn. in 1953.

He has had a one-man show of painting and sculpture at the Creative Gallery, New York City, in 1951, another at the Berkshire Museum, Pittsfield, in 1953, and exhibited sculpture last summer at the Lenox Library and at Tanglewood. He has made his home summers since 1950 in West Stockbridge, with his wife and two children.

Photo Exhibit

The first art exhibit at Tanglewood, commencing today, will be of photographs of music and musicians, entitled "Music in the Berkshires," by Clemens Kalischer, Stockbridge Road, which was recently housed in Carnegie Hall, New York City.

The week commencing July 12, will feature an exhibit of sculpture by Miss Franc Epping, of Lenox, director of the Sculpture Workshop and the annual outdoor exhibit at the Lenox Library gardens. Ture Bengtz, head of the Bengtz School of Art at the Lenox School, will exhibit paintings during the week commencing July 19. Additional sculpture and paintings of Homer Gunn will be on display the week of July 26. Miss Carol Cleworth, of Stockbridge, will show modern paintings the week beginning August 2. From August 9 to 15, paintings will be on view by Lawrence R. McCoy, vice-president of the Southern Vermont Art Center, Manchester, Vt.

During the summer, at the Berkshire Museum, Pittsfield, the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is co-operating with the Childs Gallery, Boston, in exhibiting the Wilsson Collection of etchings, engravings and lithographs of famous composers.

EAGLE, JULY 3, 1954

Tanglewood Tales

110 in Chorus
Here Next Week

When the Boston Symphony Orchestra gives its first concert in the Music Shed at Tanglewood next Saturday with Charles Munch conducting, for the first time at a Berkshire Festival Hector Berlioz' 2½-hour "The Damnation of Faust," the chorus will be composed of 110 members of the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society. At present a group of both choral groups, trained by G. Wallace Woodworth, are on a transcontinental tour to the West Coast, which ends with their appearance in Tanglewood.

A second group is traveling to Tanglewood by bus from New York and environs, a third group will come from Boston by bus, for rehearsal Friday at 10 a.m. Three Harvard choristers are now on the Tanglewood staff: Guide Timothy Cogan, registrar's assistant Peter Neumann, and switchboard assistant Robert L. Loud. Two others will join the summer staff next week, after their West Coast travels: Harry Kraut, who is the Harvard Glee Club's business manager, returning as a guide, and Frederick Shriver Jr., also as guide.

* * *

Resident Photographer

Tanglewood has a resident photographer this season. Gus Manos, a junior at the University of South Carolina, Columbia, S.C., who photographed the Transylvania Music Camp at Brevard, N.C., last summer, and plays the flute in the Columbia and Charleston Symphony Orchestras, has started work here. His darkroom assistant is James L. Cusato of 36 Lexington Pkwy., Pittsfield, son of Louis S. Cusato, supervisor of personnel at the Pittsfield GE plant. Both are living at Wheatleigh, the male students' dormitory.

* * *

Judd Honored
By BSO Trustees

Three trustees of the Boston Symphony Orchestra are expected for opening exercises of the 12th session of the Berkshire Music Center, in the theater-concert hall at Tanglewood tomorrow. Dr. Lewis D. Perry of Boston, honorary chairman of the Friends of the School, is at the Curtis Hotel, Lenox. Expected from Boston are Edward A. Taft and Francis Hatch. In Boston yesterday the trustees honored retiring Manager George E. Judd with a dinner, which Music Director Charles Munch also attended.

* * *

Doriot Anthony,
Flutist, Marries

Doriot Anthony, the attractive New Englander who made her Tanglewood debut last summer, as first flutist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will arrive in the Berkshires this weekend with her new husband, Dr. Thomas Dwyer, of Boston, a psychiatrist. The Dwyers were married in Vermont in mid-May.

* * *

Sir Adrian Boult, distinguished British symphony conductor of the London Philharmonia, who was a Tanglewood guest this week, was accompanied by Lady Boult. Sir Adrian conducted summer concerts at New York City's Lewisohn Stadium last week.

* * *

A staff breakfast was held at Tanglewood's Wheatleigh Residence yesterday, when newcomers were introduced by manager-elect Thomas D. Perry Jr., of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

* * *

The 350 students arriving at Tanglewood tomorrow for opening exercises of the Music Center's 12th summer session, will be guests of the music school at an informal party tomorrow evening at Wheatleigh.

* * *

First Student Concert
Opens Next Thursday

The first of some 25 student programs by summer music scholars of the Berkshire Music Center, open to all those who contribute voluntarily to the Friends of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's music school, will be given next Thursday at 8:30 p.m. in the Tanglewood Music Shed. Jean Morel, of the Juilliard School of Music in New York, who heads Department I this year, while Leonard Bernstein is on leave of absence, will share the podium with student conductors Paul Vermel, of New York City, and Samuel Krachmalnik, formerly of St. Louis, and now living in New York. "Krach" is a younger brother of Jacob Krachmalnik, concertmaster of the Philadelphia Orchestra, and is returning to Tanglewood for a second summer. The program is: Mozart's "Maffner" Symphony; Liszt's "Les Preludes," and the Symphony No. 4 by Schuman.

* * *

Burk Authors
Essay on Berlioz

John N. Burk, program annotator of the Boston Symphony Orchestra since 1935, is the author of an informative essay on Hector Berlioz in the July issue of High Fidelity magazine. Berlioz will be honored by performances of a number of his works in their complete form at this summer's Berkshire Festival, in commemoration of the 150th anniversary season of his birth. Mr. Burk arrives at Tanglewood this weekend, with his daughter, Margaret, secretary to orchestra personnel manager, Rosario Mazzeo.

* * *

Foss Commissioned
To Compose TV Opera

Lukas Foss, the popular composer-conductor-pianist, who teaches composition at Tanglewood and this year heads the Berkshire Music Center's Department V (Tanglewood Study Group), has been commissioned by the National Broadcasting Co.'s Television Opera Theater to compose a three-act opera for presentation on television in the 1954-55 season. As yet untitled, it will have a libretto by Alastair Reid, and is based on a German folk legend. It tells the story of a devil who loses his devilishness by doing a good deed, thus becoming a human being. As a small boy in Germany, Mr. Foss heard this tale from his mother, and later suggested it to Mr. Reid as a subject. Lukas Foss is a graduate of the Curtis Institute of Music, where he studied with Rosario Scalero and later with Paul Hindemith. An earlier opera, "The Jumping Frog of Calaveras County," based on a Mark Twain short story, has received a number of performances in this country. Last season at Tanglewood, the Boston Symphony Orchestra performed his Cantata, "A Parable of Death," with Vera Zorina as narrator, and Columbia Records has just issued a recording of it.

ROCHESTER, N.Y.
DEMOCRAT & CHRONICLE
JUN 15 1954

Anna Russell To Return

ANNA RUSSELL, international concert comedienne who was acclaimed by a Pops Concert audience at the Eastman a few months ago, has been booked for a return engagement on Saturday, Jan. 22, 1955, according to Jack F. Dailey, executive secretary of the Rochester Civic Music Association.

Miss Russell will perform this summer at music festivals throughout the United States before she embarks on a European concert tour. At the Berkshire Playhouse, Stockbridge, Mass., she will appear in "Travelers' Joy," a drawing room comedy to be presented in conjunction with the Berkshire Festival.

Miss Russell's spoofing of musical stereotypes and parodies on opera numbers so amused the Rochester audience that there were many requests for another booking.

[130]

MUSIC DIRECTOR of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Dr. Charles Munch, will headline the opening exercises at the beginning of the 1954 season at Tanglewood when the Berkshire Music Center opens tomorrow afternoon. This striking study of Dr. Munch was made by Karsh of Ottawa.

Music Center Opens Tomorrow; W. J. Cox New Head of Friends

Dr. Lewis Perry, BSO Trustee, To Preside at Afternoon Exercises— Dr. Munch and Copland To Speak

TANGLEWOOD — William C. Cox, secretary of The Phillips Academy, Exeter, N.H., has assumed chairmanship of the Society of Friends of the Berkshire Music Center. The summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in connection with its Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., opens its 12th session tomorrow, preceded by three days of registration of the 400 students who assemble for its six weeks of instruction in opera, composition, chamber music, orchestra performance and chorus from all over the U.S., and from Canada and foreign countries.

Dr. Lewis D. Perry, honorary chairman of the Friends of the School and a trustee of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will preside at opening exercises in Tanglewood's theatre-concert hall at 3:30 p.m.

Membership Increasing

The Society of Friends of the Berkshire Music Center comprise those interested and generous people who, believing in the work and ideals of the music school, support it with voluntary contributions. Membership in the Friends jumped to 5,472 in 1953, with receipts from contributions totaling $27,637. Thirty-five per cent of the Friends are from Berkshire County.

Mr. Cox, new head of the Friends, is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania. He taught school for two years, worked for John Price Jones & Co., New York, during which time he raised a $5,000,000 fund for Exeter. Following service as a commander in the Navy in the South Pacific during the war, he went to Exeter four years ago as secretary of the academy and assistant to principal William G. Saltonstall. He makes his home in Exeter, with his wife, Emily, daughter of Dr. Lewis Perry, who was principal of the academy for 32 years from 1914 to 1946, and their three children, Margaret, William J. Jr., and Peter.

Staff Members

On Mr. Cox's staff in the Friends' office at Tanglewood are Roger Hinman, Mrs. Gertrude Moore, and Edward W. Mills, of Lenox; Mrs. Lucy Putnam and Miss Lillian MacDougall, of Boston; and Miss Margo Miller, of Pittsfield.

At tomorrow's opening exercises, addresses will be given by Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and director of the Berkshire Music Center; Dr. Perry, and composer Aaron Copland, assistant director of the school. Randall Thompson's "Alleluia," composed for the opening of the school in 1940, will be sung by students, Hugh Ross, head of the choral department, conducting. Tea will be served in the formal gardens. Two other trustees of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Edward A. Taft and Francis Hatch, of Boston, will be present.

The first student performance will be held Thursday at 8:30 p.m. in the Music Shed, when the symphony orchestra of 100 students of Department I will perform Mozart's "Haffner" Symphony; Liszt's "Les Preludes"; Schumann's Symphony No. 4, with the podium shared by Jean Morel, head this year of Department I during Ieonard Bernstein's leave of absence; and student conductors Paul Vermel and Samuel Krachmalnick. The first student chamber music concert will be held in the Chamber Music Hall Sunday, July 11 at 10 a.m.; that evening will bring the first composers' forum by students of Aaron Copland, Lukas Foss, and Ernst Toch. Some 25 student concerts are listed this summer.

TANGLEWOOD OPENS

SPRINGFIELD UNION July 5, 1954

Lenox, July 4 — On this, the 150th anniversary of the birth of Nathaniel Hawthorne who wrote Tanglewood Tales the opening exercises of the 12th season of the Berkshire Music Center were held in the theater-concert hall beneath the stately pines of Tanglewood — internationally-famous home of the Berkshire Festival.

Dr. Perry Presides

Introducing the galaxy of noted musicians and faculty members to the gathering of students and distinguished guests, Dr. Lewis D. Perry, native of neighboring Williamstown and a trustee of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, recognized the honored presence of Gertrude Robinson Smith, godmother of the Berkshire Music Festival. She was one of the originators of this gigantic enterprise in the musical world which she saw launched at the Dan Hanna Farm under a huge tent, later moved to the grounds of the old Vanderbilt Estate now known as Foxhollow School and later onto the grounds of Tanglewood. Interesting is the fact that the theater-concert hall in which she sat today was the site where the first concert at Tanglewood was likewise staged under a circus tent.

Only recently returning from Paris where she has made her residence, Mrs. Smith renewed acquaintances with Mrs. Serge Koussevitzky, Hugh Ross and the popular George Judd, manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, who is to retire following this year's Berkshire Festival season. Another distinguished guest in attendance this afternoon was Charles-Roux, the French consul-general.

As the retiring chairman of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, Dr. Perry announced $30,000 gifts from Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr. The center is to receive from the Rockefeller Foundation $15,000 this year, $10,000 next year and $5000 three years from now in order to maintain this world renowned school—the only such conducted by an orchestra anywhere.

Introducing Charles Munch, director of the Berkshire Music Center and conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Dr. Perry lauded the tremendous qualities of leadership and great belief in youth as displayed by Munch and acknowledged him as the greatest conductor in the world today.

Welcoming the student body—400 strong—with representation from such foreign countries as Cuba, Japan, Korea, Holland, Greece, South Africa, Venezuela, France and Israel—Dr. Munch said in part:

"Music, more than any other art, contributes directly to the happiness of human beings. Its power lies in the fact that it reveals to us beauties that we cannot find in any other sphere.

"In the history of humanity, spiritual values are the most precious gift that is passed on from generation to generation. It is only by protecting and supporting spiritual values that we can find the road to salvation. What does it profit a man, to gain the whole world and forfeit his soul?

Aim of Music

"Never forget that the aim of music is above all to elevate us beyond our miserable human conditions. Music will reward us a hundredfold if we try to hear its message with all our hearts and to listen to it with a kind of wonder reflected in the clear and innocent eyes of a child dazzled by the lights of a Christmas tree."

Concluding the program was the singing of Randall Thompson's Alleluiah by the chorus made up of the student body of the Music Center under the direction of Hugh Ross. Following was a reception and tea for guests, faculty members and students in the formal gardens adjacent to the theater-concert hall.

Berkshire Festival Opens This Week

BOSTON HERALD July 4, 1954

The 17th Berkshire Festival since concerts were inaugurated in the hills of Western Massachusetts in 1934, the fifteenth since the Boston Symphony Orchestra first participated, will commence six weeks of 24 concerts on Wednesday evening at 8:30 P. M. in the Theatre-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., with an all-Beethoven program of chamber music, featuring Claudio Arrau, pianist, and the Bel Arte string Trio. On Friday also at 8:30 P. M. in the Theatre-Concert Hall, Charles Munch, Music Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will conduct a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players in an all-Bach program, with Lukas Foss as piano soloist.

BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL
Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

WEDNESDAY, 8:30 P. M., Theatre-Concert Hall. Claudio Arrau, pianist; Bel Arte Trio.
Beethoven program: String Trio in G, Op. 9, No. 1; Piano Sonatas, Op. 79, 110, 57.

FRIDAY, 8:30 P. M., Theatre-Concert Hall. Chamber orchestra conducted by Charles Munch; Lukas Foss, pianist.
Bach program: Brandenburg Concertos Nos. 1, 2, 3, 5, 6.

SATURDAY, 8:30 P. M., Music Shed. Boston Symphony Orchestra conducted by Charles Munch; Harvard Glee Club, Radcliffe Choral Society and soloists.
Berlioz' The Damnation of Faust.

NEXT SUNDAY, 3:30 P. M., Music Shed. Boston Symphony Orchestra conducted by Pierre Monteux; Claudio Arrau, pianist.
Beethoven program: Overture to Leonore, No. 3; Piano Concerto No. 5; Symphony No. 5.

NY TIMES 7/4/54

SPRINGFIELD REPUBLICAN 7/4/54

ART EXHIBITIONS FOR COMING WEEK

BERKSHIRE MUSEUM, PITTSFIELD: Exhibitions of paintings by Lawrence R. McCoy; photographs by Clemens Kalischer; miniature rooms by Andrew Zenorini; photographs from Holland; recent sculpture by Franc Epping; "Massachusetts Crafts of Today" and the Willson Collection of Etchings, engravings and lithographs of famous composers in co-operation with the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

[131]

EAGLE (BERKSHIRE) July 3, 1954

Area Residents Reserve Boxes At Tanglewood

Concerts Begin Wednesday With Chamber Music

Many area residents will be among boxholders for this season's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood. Eighty-three boxes have been reserved so far.

The 1954 series will begin next Wednesday evening at 8:30 with a chamber music concert in the theater-concert hall. Concerts in the Music Shed will open Saturday evening.

The Boxholders

Boxholders include: Mrs. Robert Arms of Blandford, Mrs. William F. Barrett of Great Barrington, James Phinney Baxter III of Williamstown, Alan J. Blau of 193 Bartlett Ave., Miss Mabel Choate of New York and Stockbridge, Mrs. Bruce Crane and Mrs. Winthrop M. Crane Jr. of Dalton, and Mrs. Davis Dunbar of Stockbridge.

Also, Mrs. Charles C. Griswold of New York and Stockbridge, Mrs. Milton J. Heller of New York and Lenox, Walter Hoving of New York and Stockbridge, Mrs. David B. Karrick of Washington and Stockbridge, and Mrs. Serge Koussevitzky of Lenox.

Others are Mrs. James B. Manning of Great Barrington, Mrs. Rodney Procter of Palm Beach and Stockbridge, Mrs. George Otis Rockwood of Stockbridge, McA. Donald Ryan of New York and Stockbridge, Mrs. Bruce W. Sanburn of St. Paul, Minn., and Lenox, Miss Edith Scoville of New York and Salisbury, Conn., Mrs. John L. Senior of New York and Lenox, Miss Gertrude Robinson Smith of Glendale, George E. Sokolsky of New York and Otis, Martin L. Straus II of New York and Great Barrington, Mrs. Lowell Thomas of Pawling, N.Y., Dr. Walter Von Horst of Housatonic, Mrs. Donald J. Warner of Salisbury, Conn., and Robert K. Wheeler of Great Barrington.

Boston Herald

Changes Announced In Berkshire Fete

Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, announces changes in the Tanglewood festival program to be played by the orchestra in the Music Shed at 2:30 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 1.

Richard Burgin, concertmaster of the Symphony, who will conduct the orchestra that afternoon, with his wife, Ruth Posselt, as violin soloist, has scheduled the program to open with William Schuman's "An American Festival Tallis", then by the Khatchaturian Violin Concerto, in which Miss Posselt will be soloist. These selections replace the previously scheduled "Chout" ballet suite of Prokofieff and the Dvorak Violin Concerto. 7/8/54

Mr. and Mrs. Martin L. Straus II of Great Barrington will entertain at cocktails tomorrow afternoon at their home in honor of Claudio Arrau, pianist, who will be soloist at the opening Tanglewood concert Wednesday evening. Pierre Monteaux also is expected to attend. House guests of the Strausses will be Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Barnes of Scarsdale, N.Y., and Wilfred May of New York, who was one of a group of economists invited to go to Moscow.

MUSIC DIRECTOR of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Dr. Charles Munch, will headline the opening exercises at the beginning of the 1954 season at Tanglewood when the Berkshire Music Center opens tomorrow afternoon. This striking study of Dr. Munch was made by Karsh of Ottawa.

Music Center Opens Tomorrow; W. J. Cox New Head of Friends

Dr. Lewis Perry, BSO Trustee, To Preside at Afternoon Exercises— Dr. Munch and Copland To Speak

TANGLEWOOD — William C. Cox, secretary of The Phillips Academy, Exeter, N.H., has assumed chairmanship of the Society of Friends of the Berkshire Music Center. The summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in connection with its Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., opens its 12th session tomorrow, preceded by three days of registration of the 400 students who assemble for its six weeks of instruction in opera, composition, chamber music, orchestra performance and chorus from all over the U.S., and from Canada and foreign countries.

Dr. Lewis D. Perry, honorary chairman of the Friends of the School and a trustee of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will preside at opening exercises in Tanglewood's theatre-concert hall at 3:30 p.m.

Membership Increasing

The Society of Friends of the Berkshire Music Center comprise those interested and generous people who, believing in the work and ideals of the music school, support it with voluntary contributions. Membership in the Friends jumped to 5,472 in 1953, with receipts from contributions totaling $27,637. Thirty-five per cent of the Friends are from Berkshire County.

Mr. Cox, new head of the Friends, is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania. He taught school for two years, worked for John Price Jones & Co., New York, during which time he raised a $5,000,000 fund for Exeter. Following service as a commander in the Navy in the South Pacific during the war, he went to Exeter four years ago as secretary of the academy and assistant to principal William G. Santonstall. He makes his home in Exeter, with his wife, Emily, daughter of Dr. Lewis Perry, who was principal of the academy for 32 years from 1914 to 1946, and their three children, Margaret, William J. Jr., and Peter.

Staff Members

On Mr. Cox's staff in the Friends' office at Tanglewood are Roger Hinman, Mrs. Gertrude Moore, and Edward W. Mills, of Lenox; Mrs. Lucy Putnam and Miss Lillian MacDougall, of Boston; and Miss Margo Miller, of Pittsfield.

At tomorrow's opening exercises, addresses will be given by Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and director of the Berkshire Music Center; Dr. Perry, and composer Aaron Copland, assistant director of the school. Randall Thompson's "Alleluia," composed for the opening of the school in 1940, will be sung by students, Hugh Ross, head of the choral department, conducting. Tea will be served in the formal gardens. Two other trustees of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Edward A. Taft and Francis Hatch, of Boston, will be present.

The first student performance will be held Thursday at 8:30 p.m. in the Music Shed, when the symphony orchestra of 100 students of Department I will perform Mozart's "Haffner" Symphony; Liszt's "Les Preludes"; Schumann's Symphony No. 4, with the podium shared by Jean Morel, head this year of Department I during Ieonard Bernstein's leave of absence; and student conductors Paul Vermel and Samuel Krachmalnick. The first student chamber music concert will be held in the Chamber Music Hall Sunday, July 11 at 10 a.m.; that evening will bring the first composers' forum by students of Aaron Copland, Lukas Foss, and Ernst Toch. Some 25 student concerts are listed this summer.

TANGLEWOOD OPENS

SPRINGFIELD UNION JULY 5, 1954

Lenox, July 4 — On this, the 150th anniversary of the birth of Nathaniel Hawthorne who wrote Tanglewood Tales the opening exercises of the 12th season of the Berkshire Music Center were held in the theater-concert hall beneath the stately pines of Tanglewood — internationally famous home of the Berkshire Festival.

Dr. Perry Presides

Introducing the galaxy of noted musicians and faculty members to the gathering of students and distinguished guests, Dr. Lewis D. Perry, native of neighboring Williamstown and a trustee of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, recognized the honored presence of Gertrude Robinson Smith, godmother of the Berkshire Music Festival. She was one of the originators of this gigantic enterprise in the musical world which she saw launched at the Dan Hanna Farm under a huge tent, later moved to the grounds of the old Vanderbilt Estate now known as Foxhollow School and later onto the grounds of Tanglewood. Interesting is the fact that the theater-concert hall in which she sat today was the site where the first concert at Tanglewood was likewise staged under a circus tent.

Only recently returning from Paris where she has made her residence, Mrs. Smith renewed acquaintances with Mrs. Serge Koussevitzky, Hugh Ross and the popular George Judd, manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, who is to retire following this year's Berkshire Festival season. Another distinguished guest in attendance this afternoon was Charles-Roux, the French consul-general.

As the retiring chairman of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, Dr. Perry announced $30,000 gifts from Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr. The center is to receive from the Rockefeller Foundation $15,000 this year, $10,000 next year and $5000 three years from now in order to maintain this world renowned school—the only such conducted by an orchestra anywhere.

Introducing Charles Munch, director of the Berkshire Music Center and conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Dr. Perry lauded the tremendous qualities of leadership and great belief in youth as displayed by Munch and acknowledged him as the greatest conductor in the world today.

Welcoming the student body—400 strong—with representation from such foreign countries as Cuba, Japan, Korea, Holland, Greece, South Africa, Venezuela, France and Israel—Dr. Munch said in part:

"Music, more than any other art, contributes directly to the happiness of human beings. Its power lies in the fact that it reveals to us beauties that we cannot find in any other sphere.

"In the history of humanity, spiritual values are the most precious gift that is passed on from generation to generation. It is only by protecting and supporting spiritual values that we can find the road to salvation. What does it profit a man, to gain the whole world and forfeit his soul?

Aim of Music

"Never forget that the aim of music is above all to elevate us beyond our miserable human conditions. Music will reward us a hundredfold if we try to hear its message with all our hearts and to listen to it with a kind of wonder reflected in the clear and innocent eyes of a child dazzled by the lights of a Christmas tree."

Concluding the program was the singing of Randall Thompson's Alleluiah by the chorus made up of the student body of the Music Center under the direction of Hugh Ross. Following was a reception and tea for guests, faculty members and students in the formal gardens adjacent to the theater-concert hall.

Berkshire Festival Opens This Week

The 17th Berkshire Festival since concerts were inaugurated in the hills of Western Massachusetts in 1934, the fifteenth since the Boston Symphony Orchestra first participated, will commence six weeks of 24 concerts on Wednesday evening at 8:30 P. M. in the Theatre-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., with an all-Beethoven program of chamber music, featuring Claudio Arrau, pianist, and the Bel Arte string Trio. On Friday also at 8:30 P. M. in the Theatre-Concert Hall, Charles Munch, Music Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will conduct a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players in an all-Bach program, with Lukas Foss as piano soloist.

BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL
Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

WEDNESDAY, 8:30 P. M., Theatre-Concert Hall. Claudio Arrau, pianist; Bel Arte Trio.
Beethoven program: String Trio in G, Op. 9, No. 1; Piano Sonatas, Op. 79, 110, 57.

FRIDAY, 8:30 P. M., Theatre-Concert Hall. Chamber orchestra conducted by Charles Munch; Lukas Foss, pianist.
Bach program: Brandenburg Concertos Nos. 1, 2, 3, 5, 6.

SATURDAY, 8:30 P. M., Music Shed. Boston Symphony Orchestra conducted by Charles Munch; Harvard Glee Club, Radcliffe Choral Society, and soloists.
Berlioz' The Damnation of Faust.

NEXT SUNDAY, 2:30 P. M., Music Shed. Boston Symphony Orchestra conducted by Pierre Monteux; Claudio Arrau, pianist.
Beethoven program: Overture to Leonore, No. 3; Piano Concerto No. 5; Symphony No. 5.

ART EXHIBITIONS FOR COMING WEEK

BERKSHIRE MUSEUM, PITTSFIELD: Exhibitions of paintings by Lawrence R. McCoy; photographs by Clemens Kalischer; miniature rooms by Andrew Zeno-rini; photographs from Holland; recent sculpture by Franc Epping; "Massachusetts Crafts of Today" and the Willson Collection of Etchings, engravings and lithographs of famous composers in co-operation with the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

EAGLE (BERKSHIRE) July 3, 1954

Area Residents Reserve Boxes At Tanglewood

Concerts Begin Wednesday With Chamber Music

Many area residents will be among boxholders for this season's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood. Eighty-three boxes have been reserved so far.

The 1954 series will begin next Wednesday evening at 8:30 with a chamber music concert in the theater-concert hall. Concerts in the Music Shed will open Saturday evening.

The Boxholders

Boxholders include: Mrs. Robert Arms of Blandford, Mrs. William F. Barrett of Great Barrington, James Phinney Baxter III of Williamstown, Alan J. Blau of 193 Bartlett Ave., Miss Mabel Choate of New York and Stockbridge, Mrs. Bruce Crane and Mrs. Winthrop M. Crane Jr. of Dalton, and Mrs. Davis Dunbar of Stockbridge.

Also, Mrs. Charles C. Griswold of New York and Stockbridge, Mrs. Milton J. Heller of New York and Lenox, Walter Hoving of New York and Stockbridge, Mrs. David B. Karrick of Washington and Stockbridge, and Mrs. Serge Koussevitzky of Lenox.

Others are Mrs. James B. Manning of Great Barrington, Mrs. Rodney Procter of Palm Beach and Stockbridge, Mrs. George Otis Rockwood of Stockbridge, McA. Donald Ryan of New York and Stockbridge, Mrs. Bruce W. Sanburn of St. Paul, Minn., and Lenox, Miss Edith Scoville of New York and Salisbury, Conn., Mrs. John L. Senior of New York and Lenox, Miss Gertrude Robinson Smith of Glendale, George E. Sokolsky of New York and Otis, Martin L. Straus II of New York and Great Barrington, Mrs. Lowell Thomas of Pawling, N.Y., Dr. Walter Von Horst of Housatonic, Mrs. Donald J. Warner of Salisbury, Conn., and Robert K. Wheeler of Great Barrington.

Boston Herald

Changes Announced In Berkshire Fete

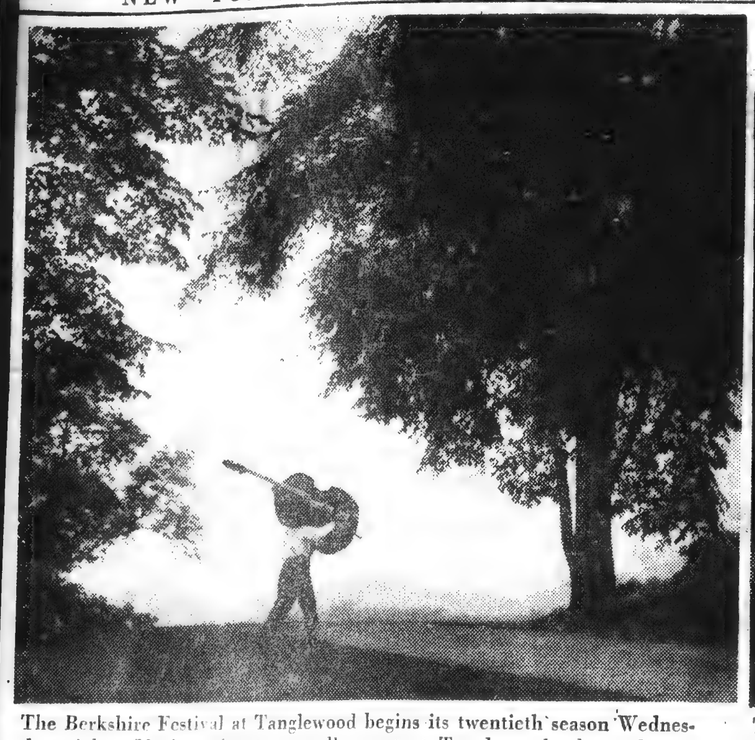
Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, announces changes in the Tanglewood festival program to be played by the orchestra in the Music Shed at 2:30 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 1.

Richard Burgin, concertmaster of the Symphony, who will conduct the orchestra that afternoon, with his wife, Ruth Posselt, as violin soloist, has scheduled the program to open with William Schuman's "An American Festival Tallis", then by the Khatchaturian Violin Concerto, in which Miss Posselt will be soloist. These selections replace the previously scheduled "Chout" ballet suite of Prokofieff and the Dvorak Violin Concerto. 7/8/54

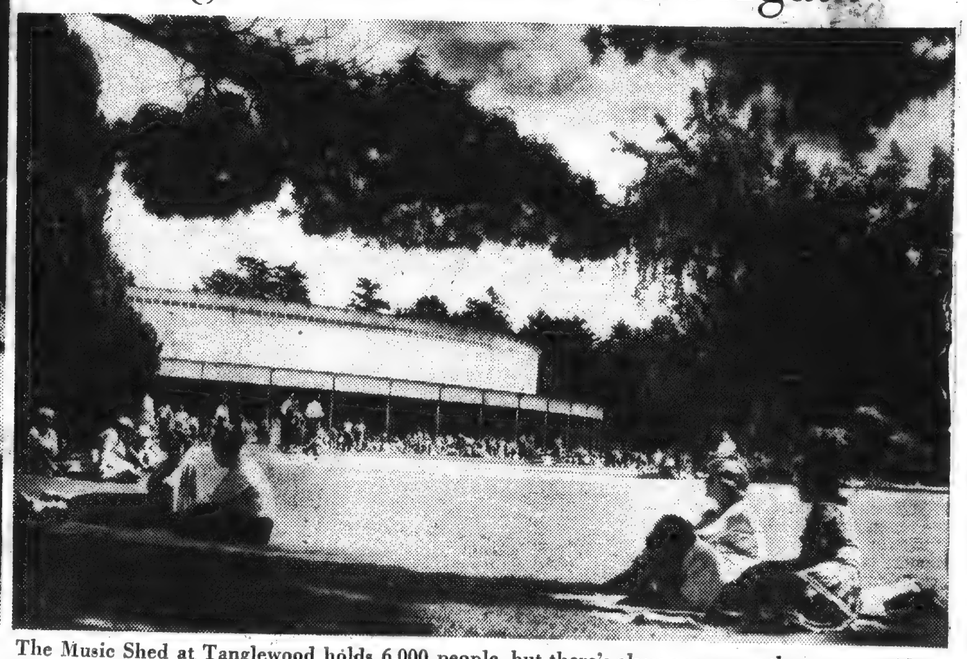
Mr. and Mrs. Martin L. Straus II of Great Barrington will entertain at cocktails tomorrow afternoon at their home in honor of Claudio Arrau, pianist, who will be soloist at the opening Tanglewood concert Wednesday evening. Pierre Monteaux also is expected to attend. House guests of the Strausses will be Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Barnes of Scarsdale, N.Y., and Wilfred May of New York, who was one of a group of economists invited to go to Moscow.

[13]

Tanglewood Time Is Here Again



The Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood begins its twentieth season Wednesday night. Music and nature really meet at Tanglewood—the orchestra member above is carrying his double bass over the fields to rehearsal.



The Music Shed at Tanglewood holds 6,000 people, but there's always room on the grass outside for people who can't squeeze in. This year the Festival has lengthened its season to six weeks. Since it was founded in 1934 it has become one of the major music events in the world.

Tanglewood Time

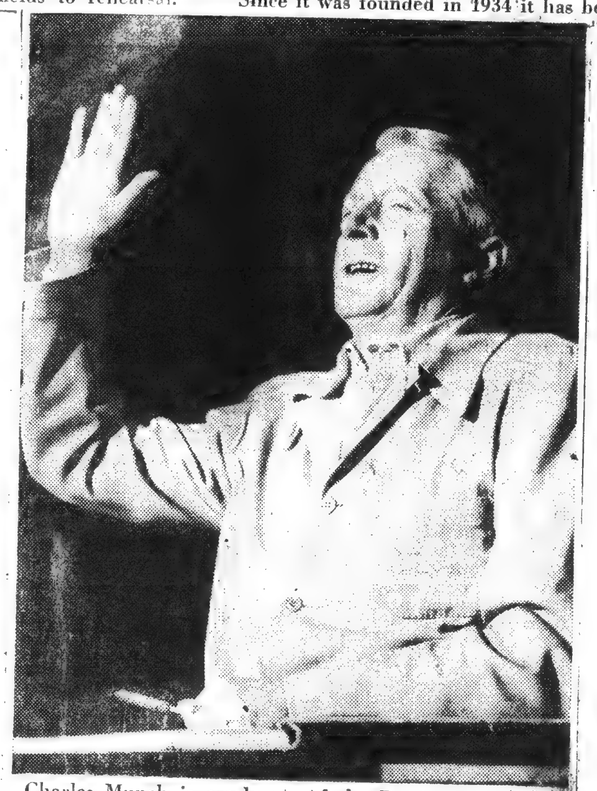
It will be 20 years in August since the late Henry Hadley conducted the first concert of the first Berkshire Symphonic Festival, forerunner of the present vast series of musical productions at Tanglewood. Some 65 musicians from the New York Philharmonic Symphony performed in a comparatively crude setting on the Dan Hanna farm in Stockbridge that moonlit summer night in 1934.

Two years later Serge Koussevitzky and the Boston Symphony Orchestra took over, though not until 1938 was the Music Shed, originally called the Pavilion of Music, dedicated. Now, among all the other summer music centers in America, none is quite like Tanglewood. Though both Dr. Hadley and Dr. Koussevitzky are gone, the educational edifice they helped erect lives on, and continues to expand.

The Tanglewood concerts start this week, with welcoming ceremonies today and the first of the chamber music programs Wednesday evening. This year for the first time there will be 12 major concerts, instead of nine, in the big wedge-shaped Shed, open on three sides; six will take place on Saturday nights, starting this week, and six on Sunday afternoons.

This year's festival is to feature the works of the noted French composer, Hector Berlioz, by way of celebrating the 150th anniversary of his birth, which occurred, incidentally, Dec. 11, 1803. In addition to "The Damnation of Faust," the "Romeo and Juliet" dramatic symphony and the "Requiem," a variety of Berlioz' shorter works "Harold in Italy," the "Fantastic Symphony" and others—will be presented, all conducted by Charles Munch. Some of these compositions are orchestral, others require soloists and choral groups.

Tanglewood has many facets, not least important of which are the student activities of the Berkshire Music Center summer school. Throngs even surpassing those of last season are expected to enjoy the pastoral environment and listen to such artists as Claudio Arrau, Zino Francescatti, William Primrose, Ruth Posselt and Eleanor Steber. But, after all, the main attraction is the music of the masters, and there the spirit of Bach and Mozart, Brahms and Beethoven, Dvorak and Debussy as well as Berlioz, will be exalted.



Charles Munch is conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, which plays at Tanglewood.

Berkshire Festival Opens Wednesday

Forty-nine public musical events will be given at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., from next Wednesday through Sunday, Aug. 15, the twentieth Berkshire Festival offers six chamber music concerts on Wednesday nights, six chamber orchestra concerts by Boston Symphony musicians on Friday nights (except for the last, on Thursday, Aug. 12) and twelve concerts by the complete Boston Symphony under Charles Munch, Pierre Monteux, Jean Morel and Richard Burgin on Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons, with a pronounced, but not exclusive accent on Berlioz. The other twenty-five events, beginning Thursday will be given by students at the Center, which holds its opening exercises this afternoon. Only five days are unoccupied on the announced schedule, and it seems likely that one of them, Friday, Aug. 13, will be devoted to the annual "Tanglewood on Parade" program.

Berkshire Festival

Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

Wednesday, 8:30, soloists, Claudio Arrau, pianist, and the Bel Arte Trio, String Trio in G, Op. 9, No. 1; Piano Sonatas, Op. 79, 110, 57 ("Appassionata"), Beethoven.

Friday, 8:30, Boston Symphony Orchestra (Chamber Orchestra), Conductor, Charles Munch; soloist, Lukas Foss, pianist. Brandenburg Concertos, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 5, 6, Bach.

Saturday, 8:30, Boston Symphony Orchestra, conductor, Charles Munch. Berlioz's "The Damnation of Faust," with Harvard Glee Club, Radcliffe Choral Society and Soloists.

Sunday, July 11, 2:30, Boston Symphony Orchestra, Pierre Monteux, conducting; soloist, Claudio Arrau, pianist. Overture to "Leonore," No. 3; Piano Concerto No. 5 ("Emperor"); Symphony No. 5, Beethoven.

SYMPHONY CHOICE
SPRINGF'D UNION

THOMAS D. PERRY, JR.

Thomas D. Perry, Jr., executive secretary of the Berkshire Music Center, the summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood, is manager-elect of the orchestra and will assume the post in October, at the start of the orchestra's 74th season.

7/8/54

SPRINGFIELD
ASS., JULY 4, 1954

WEEKLY EXHIBITS AT TANGLEWOOD

Paintings, Sculpture, Photos to Be Shown

Lenox, July 3—A weekly exhibit of paintings, sculpture and photographs again will be a feature of the Berkshire Festival season, housed in the reception hall at Tanglewood, here, and arranged through the courtesy of the Berkshire Museum, Pittsfield and its director, Stuart C. Henry.

Three large wooden sculptures in California redwood, by Homer Gunn, of West Stockbridge, will be on outdoor exhibition through the summer, in the formal gardens at Tanglewood and at the reception hall. They are "Early Spring," a seven-foot study symbolizing a plant unfolding, done last winter at the artist's studio in Glen Head, L. I.; "School of Fish," a laminated work, 60 inches long, mounted on wooden base, created in 1953; and "Horses," a panel two feet by five feet, finished this year.

The first art exhibit at Tanglewood, starting Saturday, July 3, will be of photographs of music and musicians, entitled "Music in the Berkshires," by Clemens Kalischer, Stockbridge Rd., which was recently housed in Carnegie Hall, New York City.

Week of July 12, will feature an exhibit of sculpture by Miss Franc Epping of Lenox, director of the Sculpture Workshop and the annual outdoor exhibit at the Lenox Library gardens. Ture Bengtz, head of the Bengtz School of Art at the Lenox School, will exhibit paintings week commencing July 19. Additional sculpture and paintings of Homer Gunn will be on display week of July 26. Miss Carol Cleworth, of Stockbridge, will show modern paintings week beginning August 2. From August 9 to 15, paintings will be on view by Lawrence R. McCoy, vice-president of the Southern Vermont Art Center, Manchester, Vt.

During the summer, at the Berkshire Museum, Pittsfield, the Boston Symphony Orchestra is cooperating with the Childs Gallery of Boston, in exhibiting the Wilson Collection of etchings, engravings and lithographs of famous composers.

...n Herald
...es Announced
...kshire Fete

...Munch, conductor of the ...ymphony Orchestra, an...changes in the Tangle...ival program to be played ...rchestra in the Music ...2:30 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 1. ... Burgin, concertmaster ...ymphony, who will con... orchestra that afternoon, ... wife, Ruth Posselt, as ...loist, has scheduled the ... to open with William ...'s "An American Festival ... then by the Khatchaturi... Concerto, in which Miss ...ill be soloist. These selec...lace the previously sched...hout" ballet suite of Pro...nd the Dvorak Violin Con...

7/8/54

...d Mrs. Martin L. Strauss ...eat Barrington will enter... ...ocktails tomorrow after... ...their home in honor of ... Arrau, pianist, who will ...t at the opening Tangle... ...ncert Wednesday evening. ...Monteaux also is expected ... House guests of the ... will be Mr. and Mrs. ...arnes of Scarsdale, N.Y., ...fred May of New York, ... one of a group of econo... ...vited to go to Moscow.

[132]

Tanglewood Time Is Here Again

The Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood begins its twentieth season Wednesday night. Music and nature really meet at Tanglewood—the orchestra member above is carrying his double bass over the fields to rehearsal.

The Music Shed at Tanglewood holds 6,000 people, but there's always room on the grass outside for people who can't squeeze in. This year the Festival has lengthened its season to six weeks. Since it was founded in 1934 it has become one of the major music events in the world.

Tanglewood Time

It will be 20 years in August since the late Henry Hadley conducted the first concert of the first Berkshire Symphonic Festival, forerunner of the present vast series of musical productions at Tanglewood. Some 65 musicians from the New York Philharmonic Symphony performed in a comparatively crude ing on the Stock dge 34.

Overlapping Research

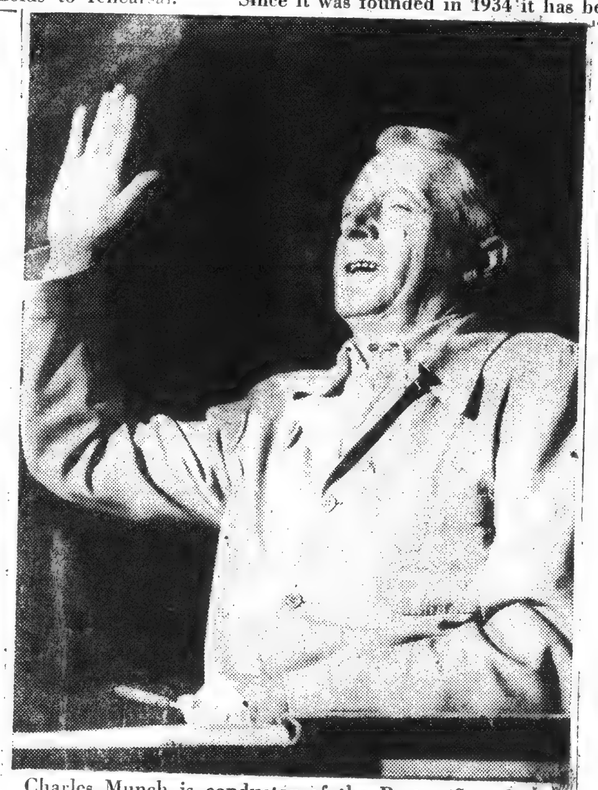
...realistic prices.

...last fall made much of the phrase ...vertisements featuring the catalog ...higher than the market. The ad- ...per of prices too high, or much ...charitably, with the greater num- ...however, was weird to put it ...The pricing of the Minkus book ...were an improvement on Scott. ...graphs with each commemorative ...ing collector. The short para- ...mend it particularly for the begin- ...year had many features to recom- ...The first Minkus catalog last ...plans in this respect. ...announcement by Minkus of his ...ion. As yet there has been no ...if there is to be a this year's edi- ...may make in this year's edition— ...s as to improvements that Minkus ...A more or less parallel curiosity ...monopoly a year ago. ...takes Minkus barring him ...few changes as the result of sec- ...quotations, with [illegible]

Hector Berlioz was a brilliant and eccentric character, temperamentally akin to Poe and Byron, Liszt and Richard Wagner. Experts are generally agreed that his prime service to musical art was in perfecting the science of orchestration; his themes may lack inspiration and his limited technical knowledge may have resulted in an absence of coherent construction, but his music contains highly colorful description and portrayal.

Berlioz was a man of imagination, a subjectivist, a visionary whose fantasy often jumped its bounds. He wrote bold, romantic music and has been called the greatest of all those pathological composers who never succeeded in fully subjugating their creative powers.

Tanglewood has many facets, not least important of which are the student activities of the Berkshire Music Center summer school. Throngs even surpassing those of last season are expected to enjoy the pastoral environment and listen to such artists as Claudio Arrau, Zino Francescatti, William Primrose, Ruth Posselt and Eleanor Steber. But, after all, the main attraction is the music of the masters, and there the spirit of Bach and Mozart, Brahms and Beethoven, Dvorak and Debussy, as well as Berlioz, will be exalted.



Charles Munch is conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, which plays at Tanglewood.

Berkshire Festival Opens Wednesday

Forty-nine public musical events will be given at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., from next Wednesday through Sunday, Aug. 15, the twentieth Berkshire Festival offers six chamber music concerts on Wednesday nights, six chamber orchestra concerts by Boston Symphony musicians on Friday nights (except for the last, on Thursday, Aug. 12) and twelve concerts by the complete Boston Symphony under Charles Munch, Pierre Monteux, Jean Morel and Richard Burgin on Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons, with a pronounced, but not exclusive accent on Berlioz. The other twenty-five events, beginning Thursday will be given by students at the Center, which holds its opening exercises this afternoon. Only five days are unoccupied on the announced schedule, and it seems likely that one of them, Friday, Aug. 13, will be devoted to the annual "Tanglewood on Parade" program.

Berkshire Festival

Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

Wednesday, 8:30, soloists, Claudio Arrau, pianist, and the Bel Arte Trio, String Trio in G, Op. 9, No. 1; Piano Sonatas, Op. 79, 110, 57 ("Appassionata"), Beethoven.

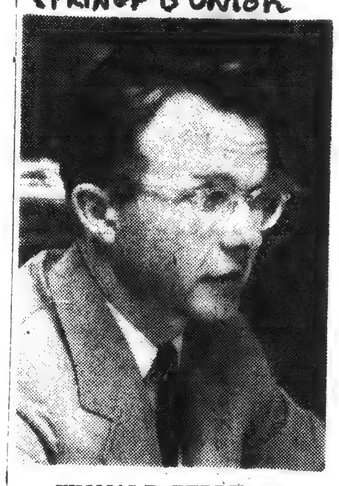
Friday, 8:30, Boston Symphony Orchestra (Chamber Orchestra), Conductor, Charles Munch; soloist, Lukas Foss, pianist. Brandenburg Concertos, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 5, 6, Bach.

Saturday, 8:30, Boston Symphony Orchestra, conductor, Charles Munch. Berlioz's "The Damnation of Faust," with Harvard Glee Club, Radcliffe Choral Society and Soloists.

Sunday, July 11, 2:30, Boston Symphony Orchestra, Pierre Monteux, conducting; soloist, Claudio Arrau, pianist. Overture to "Leonore," No. 3; Piano Concerto No. 5 ("Emperor"); Symphony No. 6, Beethoven.

SYMPHONY CHOICE

SPRINGF'D UNION



THOMAS D. PERRY, JR.

Thomas D. Perry, Jr., executive secretary of the Berkshire Music Center, the summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood, is manager-elect of the orchestra and will assume the post in October, at the start of the orchestra's 74th season.

7/8/54

SPRINGFIELD
ASS., JULY 4, 1954

WEEKLY EXHIBITS AT TANGLEWOOD

Paintings, Sculpture, Photos to Be Shown

Lenox, July 3—A weekly exhibit of paintings, sculpture and photographs again will be a feature of the Berkshire Festival season, housed in the reception hall at Tanglewood, here, and arranged through the courtesy of the Berkshire Museum, Pittsfield and its director, Stuart C. Henry.

Three large wooden sculptures in California redwood, by Homer Gunn, of West Stockbridge, will be on outdoor exhibition through the summer, in the formal gardens at Tanglewood and at the reception hall. They are "Early Spring," a seven-foot study symbolizing a plant unfolding, done last winter at the artist's studio in Glen Head, L. I.; "School of Fish," a laminated work, 60 inches long, mounted on wooden base, created in 1953; and "Horses," a panel two feet by five feet, finished this year.

The first art exhibit at Tanglewood, starting Saturday, July 3, will be of photographs of music and musicians, entitled "Music in the Berkshires," by Clemens Kalischer, Stockbridge Rd., which was recently housed in Carnegie Hall, New York City.

Week of July 12, will feature an exhibit of sculpture by Miss Franc Epping of Lenox, director of the Sculpture Workshop and the annual outdoor exhibit at the Lenox Library gardens. Ture Bengtz, head of the Bengtz School of Art at the Lenox School, will exhibit paintings week commencing July 19. Additional sculpture and paintings of Homer Gunn will be on display week of July 26. Miss Carol Cleworth, of Stockbridge, will show modern paintings week beginning August 2. From August 9 to 15, paintings will be on view by Lawrence R. McCoy, vice-president of the Southern Vermont Art Center, Manchester, Vt.

During the summer, at the Berkshire Museum, Pittsfield, the Boston Symphony Orchestra is cooperating with the Childs Gallery of Boston, in exhibiting the Wilson Collection of etchings, engravings and lithographs of famous composers.

...Munch, cond... ...ymphony Or... ...changes in ... ...tival program ... ...orchestra in ... ...2:30 p.m. Sunda... ... Burgin, conce... ...ymphony, who ... ...orchestra that a... ...wife, Ruth Posse... ...loist, has schedule... ...to open with Wi... ...'s "An American Fes... ...then by the Khatchat... ...n Concerto, in which Mi... ...will be soloist. These selec... ...lace the previously sched... ...thout" ballet suite of Pro... ...nd the Dvorak Violin Con...

7/8/54

...d Mrs. Martin L. Strauss ...eat Barrington will enter... ...ocktails tomorrow after... ...their home in honor of ... ...Arrau, pianist, who will ... ...t at the opening Tangle... ...ncert Wednesday evening. ...Monteaux also is expected ...d. House guests of the ... ...will be Mr. and Mrs. ...Barnes of Scarsdale, N.Y., ...fred May of New York, ... one of a group of econo... ...vited to go to Moscow.

[132]

Berkshire Music Center Opens 12th Season

SPRINGFIELD UNION

THE WEATHER
By the U. S. Weather Bureau
Fair, Warmer Today
Fair Tomorrow

24 PAGES

$15.00 A YEAR

THE SPRINGFIELD SUNDAY UNION

SPRINGFIELD, MASS., MONDAY MORNING, JULY 5, 1954

FIVE CENTS EVERYWHERE

VOL. 91, NO. 157

Entered as second-class matter at Post Office at Springfield, Mass., under the act of March 2, 1879

SPRINGFIELD REPUBLICAN 7/2/54

Tanglewood Downbeats

Jazz pianist Joe Bushkin, known for his popular recordings, for his 12 popular weeks at the New York night club, The Embers, last winter, has taken summer residence with his wife, Frances, and 5-year-old daughter, Nina, at Donald B. Miller's guest house in Richmond. Mr. Bushkin is a Department V—Tanglewood Study Group—student of Lukas Foss this summer. For its wartime tour of the U. S. and overseas bases, the USAAF musical show, "Winged Victory," by Moss Hart, had Mr. Bushkin as its conductor. He played the trumpet in Garson Kanin's play "The Rat Race" on Broadway, and has toured with many jazz bands, recently with the Benny Goodman-Louis Armstrong combo. Latterly, a project instituted while on vacation a year ago in Paris, with playwright Kanin, he composed music for 22 popular songs, with lyrics by Kanin, one of which, "Boy Lost," was sung by Rosemary Clooney on Ed Sullivan's "Toast of the Town" TV program.

* * *

The first of some 25 student programs by summer music scholars of the Berkshire Music Center, open to all those who contribute voluntarily to the Friends of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's music school, will be given next Thursday (July 8) at 8.30 p. m. in the Tanglewood Music Shed. Jean Morel, of the Juilliard School of Music in New York, who heads Department 1 this year, while Leonard Bernstein is on leave of absence, will share the podium with student conductors Paul Vermel, of New York City, and Samuel Krachmalnik, formerly of St. Louis, and now living in New York. "Krach" is a younger brother of Jacob Krachmalnik, concertmaster of the Philadelphia Orchestra, and is returning to Tanglewood for a second summer. The program is: Mozart's "Maffner" Symphony; Liszt's "Les Preludes," and the Symphony No. 4 by Schumann.

* * *

Four trustees of the Boston Symphony Orchestra are expected for Opening Exercises of the 12th session of the Berkshire Music Center, the summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, in the Theatre-Concert Hall at Tanglewood on Sunday (July 4). Dr. Lewis D. Perry, of Boston, Honorary Chairman of the Friends of the school, is at the Curtis Hotel, Lenox. Expected from Boston are Edward A. Taft, Francis Hatch and Henry B. Cabot. In Boston on Friday (July 1) the Trustees honored retiring manager George E. Judd with a dinner, which music director Charles Munch also attended.

* * *

Doriot Anthony, the attractive New Englander who made her Tanglewood debut last summer, as first flutist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will arrive in the Berkshires this weekend with a brand-new husband, Dr. Thomas Dwyer, of Boston, a psychiatrist. The Dwyers were married in Vermont in mid-May.

* * *

Sir Adrian Boult, distinguished British symphony conductor of the London Philharmonia, was a Tanglewood guest this week, accompanied by Lady Boult. Sir Adrian conducted summer concerts at New York City's Lewisohn Stadium last week.

* * *

Lukas Foss, the popular composer-conductor-pianist, who teaches composition at Tanglewood and this year heads the Berkshire Music Center's Department V (Tanglewood Study Group), has been commissioned by the National Broadcasting Company's Television Opera Theatre to compose a three-act opera for presentation on television in the 1954-55 season. As yet untitled, it will have a libretto by Alastair Reid, and is based on a German folk legend. It tells the story of a devil who loses his devilishness by doing a good deed, thus becoming a human being. As a small boy in Germany, Mr. Fss heard this tale from his mother and later suggested it to Mr. Reid as a subject. Lukas Foss is a graduate of the Curtis Institute of Music, where he studied with Rosario Scalero and later with Paul Hindemith. An earlier opera, "The Jumping Frog of Calaveras County," based on a Mart Twain short story has received a number of performances in this country. Last season at Tanglewood, the Boston Symphony Orchestra performed his Cantata, "A Parable of Death, with Vera Zorina as narrator, and Columbia Records has just issued a recording of it.

* * *

When the Boston Symphony Orchestra gives its first concert in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. next Saturday (July 10), with Charles Munch conducting, for the first time at a Berkshire Festival Hector Berlioz' two-and-a-half hour "The Damnation of Faulst," the chorus will be composed of 110 members of the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society. At present a group of both choral groups, trained by G. Wallace Woodworth, are on a trans-continental tour to the West Coast, which ends with their appearance in Tanglewood. A second group is traveling to Tanglewood by bus from New York and environs, a third group will come from Boston by bus, for rehearsal Friday morning at 10 a. m. Three Harvard choristers are now on the Tanglewood staff, guide Timothy Cogan, registrar's assistant Peter Neumann, and switchboard assistant Robert L. Loud. Two others will join the summer staff next week, after their West Coast travels, Harry Kraut, who is the Harvard Glee Club's business manager, returning as a guide, and Frederick Shriver, Jr., also as guide.

BOSTON HERALD 7/4/54

ELEANOR STEBER, soprano soloist in the Saturday evening performance of Berliozs "The Damnation of Faust," which will be given in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, with three other soloists plus the Harvard Glee Club, and the Radcliffe Choral Society, and with Charles Munch conducting.

BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL

NY TIMES 7/4/54

Twentieth Season Marks Extension of Plan

By OLIN DOWNES

THE 1954 Berkshire Festiva given by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch conductor, at Tanglewood in Lenox, Mass., will also be the twentieth anniversary of the founding of the Berkshire Symphonic Festival in 1934. In those twenty years the Berkshire Festival has developed from a beginning which was the creation of the Berkshire community of towns and cities within a fifty mile radius of Stockbridge and Lenox to what has become one of the most important and artistically influential music festivals in the world.

In this year of 1954, also, the Berkshire Festival enters upon a new period in its history. In the lengthening of its season from three to six weeks; and in the multiplication of its musical events, which include performances of chamber and choral music and opera, as well as the concerts of the Boston Symphony Orchestra which are the core of its repertory, the festival offers programs of a variety and richness of material unprecedented in its history, and makes these programs more accessible to a greater number of people than ever before.

merged in such a way that the six Bach-Mozart concerts will take place on six Friday nights, and the concerts of the full orchestra, now twelve in number, will be given on six Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons. Hence there will be six week-ends of music for chamber orchestra and full orchestra, from Friday night to Sunday afternoon inclusive, with no orchestral feature of the festival lost to those who attend any week of the festival's season.

Long Way

The Berkshire Festival has come a long way since the day when Henry Hadley approached Miss Gertrude Robinson Smith in May of 1934, with the proposal to give symphonic concerts out of doors in the Berkshires. A committee was quickly formed, of which Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge was honorary president, Miss Robinson Smith president, and which included among its officers Mrs. Carlos de Heredia, Mrs. Owen Johnson, Miss Mable Choate and Norval H. Busey. They functioned to such good purpose that on Aug. 23, 1934, Dr. Hadley conducted sixty-five members of the New York Philharmonic-Symphony in the first concert of, as it was then entitled, the First Berkshire Annual Symphonic Festival. That concert took place in the horse-show ring of the Dan Hanna farm in Stockbridge.

Following the second festival of 1935 Mr. Hadley retired because of illness. After consultation with the committee there took place the momentous conversation between Miss Robinson Smith and Serge Koussevitzky, with the result that the Boston Symphony Orchestra became the orchestra of the festival, under the leadership of the conductor whose international pre-eminence in his field, breadth of vision, and enthusiasm for a great constructive undertaking speedily placed the Berkshire Festival on the plane of artistic eminence that it now occupies.

Given in Tent

The third annual festival, under Koussevitzky's leadership, was given in a tent sheltering five thousand on the estate of Mrs. Margaret Emerson. Later, in the same year of 1936, Mrs. Gorham Brooks gave Koussevitzky her 200-acre estate at Tanglewood, famous for its associations with the life and works of Nathaniel Hawthorne of the "Tanglewood Tales." This gift Dr. Koussevitzky quickly transferred to the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Fortune seemed to favor the festival at every step. In 1937 occurred what has been called the $100,000 thunderstorm, during a concert at which the noise of the elements and the pounding of heavy rain on the tent outroared the sound of the Boston Symphony playing Wagner's "Flying Dutchman" Overture. Then and there the machinery set in motion by Miss Robinson Smith and her coadjutors, to raise $100,000 for the erection of the Music Shed—which is one of the largest structures of its kind, if not the largest, now in existence — made for performances of symphonic music. Over 82 per cent of the sum needed for this project was secured from people living within fifty miles of Stockbridge.

In 1940 Dr. Koussevitzky, who had only accepted the Stockbridge invitation with the understanding that later there would be established with it a music school of the kind he had dreamed of all his life, succeeded in this undertaking, and opened the institution that year. In this project he was strongly supported by Ernest Dane, then president of the Boston Symphony board.

The school, the Berkshire Music Center, with twenty-four members of the Boston Symphony among its instructors, has flourished and become not only an exceptionally valuable adjunct of the festival, but an artistic training school for gifted young musicians.

Valuable Agency

In 1946 the directors of the Berkshire Festival gave the Music Shed, which had been built mainly through their devoted efforts and contributions, to the Boston Symphony Orchestra, thus generously eliminating any problem which might have arisen owing to divided ownership. In full possession today of the property that includes the Music Shed, the theatre and all the other appurtenances necessary for its operation, the Boston Symphony under Mr. Munch's leadership has the means of further developing in the years before us the festival and the music school which in the sum of their efforts represent one of the most constructive and valuable agencies for the development of the art of music that this country has known.

[133]

Berkshire Music Center Opens 12th Season

THE SPRINGFIELD UNION

FIVE CENTS EVERYWHERE

THE WEATHER
By the U. S. Weather Bureau
Fair, Warmer Today
Fair Tomorrow

$15.00 A YEAR

24 PAGES

VOL. 91, NO. 157 — SPRINGFIELD, MASS., MONDAY MORNING, JULY 5, 1954

Entered as second-class matter at Post Office at Springfield, Mass., under the act of March 3, 1879

SPRINGFIELD REPUBLICAN 7/4/54

Tanglewood Downbeats

Jazz pianist Joe Bushkin, known for his popular recordings, for his 12 popular weeks at the New York night club, The Embers, last winter, has taken summer residence with his wife, Frances, and 5-year-old daughter, Nina, at Donald B. Miller's guest house in Richmond. Mr. Bushkin is a Department V—Tanglewood Study Group—student of Lukas Foss this summer. For its wartime tour of the U. S. and overseas bases, the USAAF musical show, "Winged Victory," by Moss Hart, had Mr. Bushkin as its conductor. He played the trumpet in Garson Kanin's play "The Rat Race" on Broadway, and has toured with many jazz bands, recently with the Benny Goodman-Louis Armstrong combo. Latterly, a project instituted while on vacation a year ago in Paris, with playwright Kanin, he composed music for 22 popular songs, with lyrics by Kanin, one of which, "Boy Lost," was sung by Rosemary Clooney on Ed Sullivan's "Toast of the Town" TV program.

* * *

The first of some 25 student programs by summer music scholars of the Berkshire Music Center, open to all those who contribute voluntarily to the Friends of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's music school, will be given next Thursday (July 8) at 8.30 p. m. in the Tanglewood Music Shed. Jean Morel, of the Juilliard School of Music in New York, who heads Department 1 this year, while Leonard Bernstein is on leave of absence, will share the podium with student conductors Paul Vermel, of New York City, and Samuel Krachmalnik, formerly of St. Louis, and now living in New York. "Krach" is a younger brother of Jacob Krachmalnik, concertmaster of the Philadelphia Orchestra, and is returning to Tanglewood for a second summer. The program is: Mozart's "Maffner" Symphony; Liszt's "Les Preludes," and the Symphony No. 4 by Schumann.

* * *

Four trustees of the Boston Symphony Orchestra are expected for Opening Exercises of the 12th session of the Berkshire Music Center, the summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, in the Theatre-Concert Hall at Tanglewood on Sunday (July 4). Dr. Lewis D. Perry, of Boston, Honorary Chairman of the Friends of the school, is at the Curtis Hotel, Lenox. Expected from Boston are Edward A. Taft, Francis Hatch and Henry B. Cabot. In Boston on Friday (July 1) the Trustees honored retiring manager George E. Judd with a dinner, which music director Charles Munch also attended.

* * *

Doriot Anthony, the attractive New Englander who made her Tanglewood debut last summer, as first flutist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will arrive in the Berkshires this weekend with a brand-new husband, Dr. Thomas Dwyer, of Boston, a psychiatrist. The Dwyers were married in Vermont in mid-May.

* * *

Sir Adrian Boult, distinguished British symphony conductor of the London Philharmonia, was a Tanglewood guest this week, accompanied by Lady Boult. Sir Adrian conducted summer concerts at New York City's Lewisohn Stadium last week.

* * *

Lukas Foss, the popular composer-conductor-pianist, who teaches composition at Tanglewood and this year heads the Berkshire Music Center's Department V (Tanglewood Study Group), has been commissioned by the National Broadcasting Company's Television Opera Theatre to compose a three-act opera for presentation on television in the 1954-55 season. As yet untitled, it will have a libretto by Alastair Reid, and is based on a German folk legend. It tells the story of a devil who loses his devilishness by doing a good deed, thus becoming a human being. As a small boy in Germany, Mr. Fss heard this tale from his mother and later suggested it to Mr. Reid as a subject. Lukas Foss is a graduate of the Curtis Institute of Music, where he studied with Rosario Scalero and later with PaulHindemith. An earlier opera, "The Jumping Frog of Calaveras County," based on a Mart Twain short story has received a number of performances in this country. Last season at Tanglewood, the Boston Symphony Orchestra performed his Cantata, "A Parable of Death, with Vera Zorina as narrator, and Columbia Records has just issued a recording of it.

* * *

When the Boston Symphony Orchestra gives its first concert in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. next Saturday (July 10), with Charles Munch conducting, for the first time at a Berkshire Festival Hector Berlioz' two-and-a-half hour "The Damnation of Faulst," the chorus will be composed of 110 members of the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society. At present a group of both choral groups, trained by G. Wallace Woodworth, are on a trans-continental tour to the West Coast, which ends with their appearance in Tanglewood. A second group is traveling to Tanglewood by bus from New York and environs, a th from Boston
Friday mor
Harvard cho
Tanglewood
Cogan, regis
Neumann, a ant Robert will join th week, after els, Harry Harvard Gl ager, retur
Frederick guide.

MONDAY, JULY 3

10:45-WABC—Travel Talk
11:00-WNBC, WOR, WABC, WCBS—
News Reports
WQXR—News; Orchestra Music
11:15-WNBC—Joe Hasel, Sports
WOR—Ruby Mercer
WABC—Mellow Moods
WCBS—Dwight Cooke's Guests
11:20-WNBC—Tex and Jinx Show
11:30-WOR—News; Reporters Round-Up
WCBS—Galen Drake
11:45-WCBS—Sammy Kaye Music
12:00-WNBC—News Reports
WABC—Music (To 6)
WCBS—Music 'Til Dawn
WQXR—New York Times
10:45-WCBS—Sports—John Derr
10:55-WNYC—News (FM to 3)
11:00-WNBC, WOR, WABC, WCBS—
News Reports
WQXR—New York Times News
11:05-WABC—Moods in Melody
11:07-WQXR—Music for the Orchestra
11:15-WNBC—UN Story
WOR—Weather; Winnipeg
Sunday Concert
WCBS—Flanagan Orchestra
11:25-WABC—News Reports
11:30-WNBC—Howard University Concert (Recorded)
WABC—Dr. Billy Graham
WCBS—Galen Drake
11:45-WCBS—Glasser Orchestra
WNBC—Music You Want
12:00-WNBC, WOR, WCBS—News
WCBS—Dance Music
WQXR—New York Times News
12:05-WTBC—Music You Want
WOR—Weather; Dance Music
WABC—Music (To 6)
WOR—Dance Music
WQXR—World of Music
12:55-WNBC—News Reports
1:00-WOR—Jack O'Reilly Show
WCBS—News Reports

Extension

In addition to the extension of the season, there will be a new grouping of the week-end chamber and symphonic concerts, a grouping that is so much an improvement over the arrangement of previous seasons that one wonders why this innovation was not thought of before.

In the past there were two series of these concerts, each three weeks in length, in succession. Six concerts of music for chamber orchestra, principally by Bach and Mozart, were given in the first three-week period in the small Theatre-Concert Hall of the festival, with a capacity of 1,200, prior to the three weeks, of three concerts each week, by the Boston Symphony in the Music Shed with its capacity of 6,000.

The programs of the full orchestra given in the Shed attracted the larger audiences, but for some the cream of the festival was the Bach-Mozart series, heard in the intimate auditorium of the little theatre. These two concert series have now been merged in such a way that the six Bach-Mozart concerts will take place on six Friday nights, and the concerts of the full orchestra, now twelve in number, will be given on six Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons. Hence there will be six week-ends of music for chamber orchestra and full orchestra, from Friday night to Sunday afternoon inclusive, with no orchestral feature of the festival lost to those who attend any week of the festival's season.

Long Way

The Berkshire Festival has come a long way since the day when Henry Hadley approached Miss Gertrude Robinson Smith in May of 1934, with the proposal to give symphonic concerts out of doors in the Berkshires. A committee was quickly formed, of which Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge was honorary president, Miss Robinson Smith president, and which included among its officers Mrs. Carlos de Heredia, Mrs. Owen Johnson, Miss Mable Choate and Norval H. Busey. They functioned to such good purpose that on Aug. 23, 1934, Dr. Hadley conducted sixty-five members of the New York Philharmonic-Symphony in the first concert of, as it was then entitled, the First Berkshire Annual Symphonic Festival. That concert took place in the horse-show ring of the Dan Hanna farm in Stockbridge.

Following the second festival of 1935 Mr. Hadley retired because of illness. After consultation with the committee there took place the momentous conversation between Miss Robinson Smith and Serge Koussevitzky, with the result that the Boston Symphony Orchestra became the orchestra of the festival, under the leadership of the conductor whose international pre-eminence in his field, breadth of vision, and enthusiasm for a great constructive undertaking speedily placed the Berkshire Festival on the plane of artistic eminence that it now occupies.

Given in Tent

The third annual festival, under Koussevitzky's leadership, was given in a tent sheltering five thousand on the estate of Mrs. Margaret Emerson. Later, in the same year of 1936, Mrs. Gorham Brooks gave Koussevitzky her 200-acre estate at Tanglewood, famous for its associations with the life and works of Nathaniel Hawthorne of the "Tanglewood Tales." This gift Dr. Koussevitzky quickly transferred to the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Fortune seemed to favor the festival at every step. In 1937 occurred what has been called the $100,000 thunderstorm, during a concert at which the noise of the elements and the pounding of heavy rain on the tent outroared the sound of the Boston Symphony playing Wagner's "Flying Dutchman" Overture. Then and there the machinery set in motion by Miss Robinson Smith and her coadjutors, to raise $100,000 for the erection of the Music Shed—which is one of the largest structures of its kind, if not the largest, now in existence — made for performances of symphonic music. Over 82 per cent of the sum needed for this project was secured from people living within fifty miles of Stockbridge.

In 1940 Dr. Koussevitzky, who had only accepted the Stockbridge invitation with the understanding that later there would be established with it a music school of the kind he had dreamed of all his life, succeeded in this undertaking, and opened the institution that year. In this project he was strongly supported by Ernest Dane, then president of the Boston Symphony board.

The school, the Berkshire Music Center, with twenty-four members of the Boston Symphony among its instructors, has flourished and become not only an exceptionally valuable adjunct of the festival, but an artistic training school for gifted young musicians.

Valuable Agency

In 1946 the directors of the Berkshire Festival gave the Music Shed, which had been built mainly through their devoted efforts and contributions, to the Boston Symphony Orchestra, thus generously eliminating any problem which might have arisen owing to divided ownership. In full possession today of the property that includes the Music Shed, the theatre and all the other appurtenances necessary for its operation, the Boston Symphony under Mr. Munch's leadership has the means of further developing in the years before us the festival and the music school which in the sum of their efforts represent one of the most constructive and valuable agencies for the development of the art of music that this country has known.

BOSTON HERALD 7/4/54

ELEANOR STEBER, soprano soloist in the Saturday evening performance of Berliozs "The Damnation of Faust," which will be given in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, with three other soloists plus the Harvard Glee Club, and the Radcliffe Choral Society, and with Charles Munch conducting.

[133]

Second Thoughts in Music

Appeal of Chamber Music Recognized at Tanglewood

Berkshire Festival Wednesday Night Series Added to Those of Friday; Music of Hector Berlioz to Provide Focal Point of Concerts in Music Shed

By WILLARD M. CLARK

Thousands of people will be making the trek to Tanglewood this week, for the 17th Berkshire Festival opens Wednesday night. This is the 17th season of the festival and the 15th since the Boston Symphony orchestra first participated. Under the leadership of the late Serge Koussevitzky, the festival assumed international importance and the present Boston Symphony orchestra conductor, Charles Munch is carrying on the tradition.

More Chamber Music

There is one important change in the schedule this season. It will last six weeks and embrace a total of 24 concerts. Another new departure is a series of chamber music concerts to be given in the Theater-Concert Hall each Wednesday evening, commencing at 8.30 p. m. It will be most interesting to see the reaction and public support.

Here in Springfield there is a demand for chamber music concerts, but when one is given few attend. Ben Kalman tells us he is going to make every effort to provide chamber music for Springfield next season. We wish him luck, but are keeping our fingers crossed.

Turning back to the Berkshire Festival, it has already been noted that the music of Hector Berlioz will provide the focal part of the Shed concerts. Charles Munch has an affinity for this music and we may be certain that some memorable performances will be heard of such works as "The Damnation of Faust," "Romeo and Juliet," and several overtures, etc.

Soloists and Chorus

The first of the Shed concerts will be conducted by Mr. Munch on Saturday night, at 8.30. The work will be "The Damnation of Faust" by Berlioz. The participants will include Eleanor Steber as Marguerite; David Poleri as Faust; Martial Singher as Mephistopheles and Donald Gramm as Brander. The Har... cliffe Ch... chorus.

The v... Monteux ... afternoon ... at 2.30. ... Arrau, ... the 30th ... appearan... phony o... leadershi... will play ... This will ... gram wit... No. 3 an... cluded. ... have a wonderful time, for Pierre Monteux interprets Beethoven just as they would wish.

Wednesday and Friday Concerts

The first of the chamber music concerts will be given Wednesday night at 8.30 p. m. by Mr. Arrau, who will play three Beethoven sonatas including the "Appassionata" and the Bel Arte Trio composed of Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola and Martin Hoherman, cello. They will be heard in the String Trio in G, Op. 9, No. 1 by Beethoven.

On Friday night, Mr. Munch will conduct the chamber orchestra, from the Boston Symphony, in five of the Bach "Brandenburg" concerti. Lukas Foss will be the piano soloist. This concert will begin at 8.30 p. m. Other soloists will include Doriot Anthony, flute; Harold Gomberg, oboe; Roger Voisin, trumpet; Richard Burgin, violin.

by the Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge Foundation. Rarely heard trios for horn, violin and piano will be heard on July 31 performed by Mr. Schneider, Mr. Balsam and John Barrows. The Saturday series will close Aug. 14 with a concert by the Juilliard String Quartet.

As a special tribute to Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge, her son, Albert Sprague Coolidge, will give a festival of chamber music in her memory, Saturday, Aug. 21 at 11 a. m. and Sunday, Aug. 22 at 4 p. m. Among the artists participating will be Rudolf Serkin, the Kroll Quartet, a chamber orchestra from the Boston Symphony and Alexander Schneider.

We are looking forward to all the music the Berkshires will offer this summer. There seems to be something to satisfy ever taste as far as the classical repertory goes. At least there seems to be a sincere effort on the part of those directing these affairs to provide well balanced programs of fine music performed by one of the greatest orchestras and by as fine soloists as may be found these days.

Artists to Be Heard at Tanglewood This Week

1—Bel Arte Trio: left to right: Joseph de Pasquale, viola; Ruth Posselt, violin; Martin Hoherman, violincello, in opening chamber music concert Wednesday night. 2—Eleanor Steber, soprano, in Berlioz' "Damnation of Faust," Saturday night. 3—Martial Singher, baritone, Saturday night. 4—Donald Gramm, bass-baritone, Saturday night. 5—David Poleri, tenor, Saturday night. 6—Claudio Arrau, pianist, Wednesday night and Sunday, July 11. 7—G. Wallace Woodworth, director Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, Saturday night.

First Music Shed Concert At Tanglewood Saturday

Berlioz' 'Damnation of Faust,' With Soloists, Chorus And Orchestra Listed; Chamber Music of Beethoven Wednesday and Bach Friday

Lenox, July 3 The 17th Berkshire Festival since concerts were inaugurated in the hills of Western Massachusetts in 1934, the 15th since the Boston Symphony Orchestra first participated, will commence six weeks of 24 concerts Wednesday evening at 8.30 in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, with an all-Beethoven program of chamber music, featuring Claudio Arrau, pianist, and the Bel Arte String Trio.

On Friday also at 8.30 p. m. in the Theater-Concert Hall, Charles Munch, Music Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will conduct a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players in an all-Bach program, with Lukas Foss as piano soloist.

Shed Concert Saturday

For the first time in Berkshire history, Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon concerts will be given commencing the opening weekend, July 10 at 8.30 p. m. and July 11 at 2.30 p. m. in the Music Shed. Mr. Munch will lead the full 104-piece Boston Symphony Orchestra on Saturday evening in the first Tanglewood presentation of Hector Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust," with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society directed by G. Wallace Woodworth participating, and soloists Eleanor Steber (Marguerite), David Poleri (Faust), Martial Singher (Mephistopheles) and Donald Gramm (Brander).

Next Sunday afternoon guest conductor Pierre Monteux will conduct the full Boston Symphony in an all-Beethoven program, with Claudio Arrau as piano soloist, the occasion marking the 30th anniversary of Mr. Arrau's first appearance with the orchestra which was then under the baton of Mr. Monteux.

Scope Increased

Since 1938 when the 6000-seat Music Shed was erected on the Tanglewood estate where Nathaniel Hawthorne was a guest a century ago, open on three sides so the music might spill out to the thousands who listen to it on the grass under the stars, the Berkshire Festival has attracted increasingly large crowds from all over Eastern U. S. and Canada until last summer all attandance records were broken, with an average of 10,200 at each Shed concert.

To accomodate its growing crowds of music lovers, the 1954 Berkshire Festival has been increased in scope within its six-week framework — twelve Shed concerts instead of last year's nine, on Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons; the popular Bach-Mozart concerts which last summer were concentrated in the Festival's first three week ends this year are to be held each Friday evening; and a new series has been inaugurated of six Wednesday evening chamber music programs, a total of 24 concerts in all.

Honor to Berlioz

The Music Shed concerts in 1954 will honor the 150th anniversary season of the birth of Hector Berlioz by performing complete versions of this composer's principal works. In addition to the opening Shed concert's Tanglewood premiere of "The Damnation of Faust," a masterpiece, lasting two and a half hours and seldom heard in its entirety, Mr. Munch will conduct the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the "Fantastic Symphony" (July 18); the Overture to "Beatrice and Benedick" and the Symphony "Harold in Italy," with William Primrose as viola soloist (July 25).

Also the dramatic symphony "Romeo and Juliet" in its complete form with the Festival Chorus of the Berkshire Music Center, and John McCollum and Nicola Moscana as soloists (July 31); the Overture to "Benvenuto Cellini" "Royal Hunt and Storm" from "The Trojans," the song cycle "Summer Nights," with Eleanor Steber as soloist, and the "Te Deum," with the Festival Chorus and David Poleri, soloist (Aug. 7); concluding the Festival with the "Requiem" in memory of Serge Koussevitzky, again with the Festival Chorus and David Poleri, soloist (Aug. 15). The first week's Berkshire Festival programs:

Wednesday—8:30 p. m.
Theater-Concert Hall

Beethoven: String Trio in G, Op. 9 No. 1—The Bel Arte Trio (Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola; Martin Hoherman, violoncello); Piano Sonatas, Op. 79; Op. 110; Op. 57 (Appassionata")—Claudio Arrau.

Friday—8:30 p. m.
Theater-Concert Hall

Bach: Brandenburg Concertos No. 1, in F; No. 2, in F—with the following soloists from the Boston Symphony Orchestra: Doriot Anthony, flute, Harold Gomberg, oboe, Roger Voisin, trumpet, Richard Burgin, violin; No. 3, in G—strings; No. 5, in D—with th following soloists; Lukas Foss, piano, Miss Anthony, flute, Mr. Burgin, violin; No. 6, in B-flat—strings. Charles Munch, conductor.

Saturday—8:30 p. m.—Music Shed

Berlioz: "The Damnation of Faust"—with the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Chorale Society, directed by G. Wallace Woodworth, and soloists Eleanor Steber soprano (Marguerite) David Poleri, tenor (Faust), Martial Singher, baritone (Mephistopheles) and Donald Gramm, bass-baritone (Brander). Charles Munch, conductor.

Sunday—2:30 p. m.—Music Shed

Beethoven Overture to "Leonore," No. 3; Piano Concerto No. 5 ("Emperor")—with Claudio Arrau as soloist; Symphony No. 5, Pierre Monteux, conductor.

MUSIC CENTER AT TANGLEWOOD TO OPEN TODAY

Munch to Greet Students And Guests This Afternoon

Lenox, July 3—The Berkshire Music Center, the summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in connection with the Berkshire Festival, opens its 12th session, a six-week course of music studies for advanced students and professionals, at Tanglewood, tomorrow afternoon. Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and director of the Berkshire Music Center, will address students and guests at the opening exercises, at 3.30 p. m. in the Theater-Concert Hall.

Dr. Lewis Perry, honorary chairman of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, whose contributions help to support the school, and an orchestra trustee, will preside. Composer Aaron Copland, who is assistant director of the school, will introduce the faculty.

As at every opening of the school since its founding under the direction of the late Dr. Serge Koussevitsky in 1940, Randall Thompson's "Alleulia," composed for the first opening of the school, will be sung by the students. Hugh Ross, head of the choral department, will conduct. Tea will be served in the Tanglewood formal gardens following the exercises.

The first school performance will be given Thursday, at 8.30 p. in the Music Shed, when for the first time the symphony orchestra of 100 students in Dept. I will play together.

The first of six weekly chamber music concerts will be given by students of Department I in the Chamber Music Hall, will be the ing, July 11, at 10 a. m. That evening at 8.30 p. m., also in the Chamber Music Hall, will bring the first composers' forum by students of Department III studying with Aaron Copland, Lukas Foss and guest composer Ernst Toch. Their works will be performed by fellow students and commented upon.

Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, whose contributions help to support the school, are invited to all student concerts.

BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL PROGRAM CHANGES

Lenox, July 3—Changes involving two Saturday evening programs by the Boston Symphony Festival, in the Music Shed, at Orchestra during the Berkshire Tanglewood, are announced by Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony.

Pianist Nicole Henriot will appear with the orchestra as soloist three weeks earlier than scheduled, on Saturday evening, July 24, at the concert to be conducted by Jean Morel, performing the Liszt E-flat piano concerto, which will replace the Strauss "Don Juan" previously listed.

On the concert of Aug. 14, replacing the Ravel piano concerto, Mr. Munch will conduct Ravel's "Le Tombeau de Couperin."

MUSIC FESTIVAL CHANGES MADE AT TANGLEWOOD

All - Cesar Franck Program Gives Way to Debussy Selections

Boston, June 19—Two changes in the Berkshire Festival programs to be presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in its six-week season, July 7 to Aug. 15, at Tanglewood, were announced today by Charles Munch, Music Director.

Instead of an all-Cesar Franck program on Saturday evening, July 17 in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, guest conductor Pierre Monteux will substitute two orchestral selections by Claude Debussy, Excerpts from "St. Sebastian" and the tone poem "La Mer" will replace the previously programmed "Le Chausseur Maudit" and "Les Eolides" by Franck.

Mr. Munch's program of Saturday evening, Aug. 14 in the Shed will offer Brahms' "Tragic Overture" in place of Wagner's "A Faust Overture."

The Festival's closing program, Sunday afternoon, Aug. 15 in the Music Shed, has been designated as a memorial to Serge Koussevitsky, conductor of the Boston Symphony for 25 years, and under whose direction the Berkshire Festival grew to its present world renown and its summer school of music, the Berkshire Music Center was founded. For this program Charles Munch will present Hector Berlioz' massive "Requiem," with the Festival Chorus (composed of students of the Berkshire Music Center) and soloists.

The Berkshire Festival also announces the summer of 1954 will witness six Saturday morning rehearsals of the full 104-man Boston Symphony Orchestra, at 10 a. m. on July 10, 17, 24, 31, Aug. 7 and 14, to which the public is admitted, with the proceeds going to the benefit of the orchestra's pension fund.

Sale of Festival tickets is now proceeding at the Festival ticket office, Tanglewood, Lenox, telephone Lenox 600. Reservations may be made by telephone or by small order, checks accompanied by self-addressed stamped envelope made payable to Boston Symphony Orchestra, Inc.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
EVE. NEWS
JUN 19 1954

Second Thoughts in Music

Appeal of Chamber Music Recognized at Tanglewood

Berkshire Festival Wednesday Night Series Added to Those of Friday; Music of Hector Berlioz to Provide Focal Point of Concerts in Music Shed

By WILLARD M. CLARK

Thousands of people will be making the trek to Tanglewood this week, for the 17th Berkshire Festival opens Wednesday night. This is the 17th season of the festival and the 15th since the Boston Symphony orchestra first participated. Under the leadership of the late Serge Koussevitzky, the festival assumed international importance and the present Boston Symphony orchestra conductor, Charles Munch is carrying on the tradition.

More Chamber Music

There is one important change in the schedule this season. It will last six weeks and embrace a total of 24 concerts. Another new departure is a series of chamber music concerts to be given in the Theater-Concert Hall each Wednesday evening, commencing at 8.30 p. m. It will be most interesting to see the reaction and public support.

Here in Springfield there is a demand for chamber music concerts, but when one is given few attend. Ben Kalman tells us he is going to make every effort to provide chamber music for Springfield next season. We wish him luck, but are keeping our fingers crossed.

Turning back to the Berkshire Festival, it has already been noted that the music of Hector Berlioz will provide the focal part of the Shed concerts. Charles Munch has an affinity for this music and we may be certain that some memorable performances will be heard of such works as "The Damnation of Faust," "Romeo and Juliet," and several overtures, etc.

Soloists and Chorus

The first of the Shed concerts will be conducted by Mr. Munch on Saturday night, at 8.30. The work will be "The Damnation of Faust" by Berlioz. The participants will include Eleanor Steber as Marguerite; David Poleri as Faust; Martial Singher as Mephistopheles and Donald Gramm as Brander. The Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society will form the chorus.

The veteran conductor Pierre Monteux will direct the Sunday afternoon concert, July 11, to begin at 2.30. The soloist will be Claude Arrau, pianist, who is observing the 30th anniversary of his initial appearance with the Boston Symphony orchestra, then under the leadership of Mr. Monteux. Arrau will play Beethoven Concerto No. 5. This will be an all Beethoven program with the "Leonore" overture No. 3 and the fifth symphony included. The conservative should have a wonderful time, for Pierre Monteux interprets Beethoven just as they would wish.

Wednesday and Friday Concerts

The first of the chamber music concerts will be given Wednesday night at 8.30 p. m. by Mr. Arrau, who will play three Beethoven sonatas including the "Appassionata" and the Bel Arte Trio composed of Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola and Martin Hoherman, cello. They will be heard in the String Trio in G, Op. 9, No. 1 by Beethoven.

On Friday night, Mr. Munch will conduct the chamber orchestra, from the Boston Symphony, in five of the Bach "Brandenburg" concerti. Lukas Foss will be the piano soloist. This concert will begin at 8.30 p. m. Other soloists will include Doriot Anthony, flute; Harold Gomberg, oboe; Roger Voisin, trumpet; Richard Burgin, violin.

by the Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge Foundation. Rarely heard trios for horn, violin and piano will be heard on July 31 performed by Mr. Schneider Mr. Balsam and John Barrows. The Saturday series will close Aug. 14 with a concert by the Juilliard String Quartet.

As a special tribute to Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge, her son, Albert Sprague Coolidge, will give a festival of chamber music in her memory, Saturday, Aug. 21 at 11 a. m. and Sunday, Aug. 22 at 4 p. m. Among the artists participating will be Rudolf Serkin, the Kroll Quartet, a chamber orchestra from the Boston Symphony and Alexander Schneider.

We are looking forward to all the music the Berkshires will offer this summer. There seems to be something to satisfy ever taste as far as the classical repertory goes. At least there seems to be a sincere effort on the part of those directing these affairs to provide well balanced programs of fine music performed by one of the greatest orchestras and by as fine soloists as may be found these days.

Artists to Be Heard at Tanglewood This Week

1—Bel Arte Trio: left to right: Joseph de Pasquale, viola; Ruth Posselt, violin; Martin Hoherman, violincello, in opening chamber music concert Wednesday night. 2—Eleanor Steber, soprano, in Berlioz' "Damnation of Faust," Saturday night. 3—Martial Singher, baritone, Saturday night. 4—Donald Gramm, bass-baritone, Saturday night. 5—David Poleri, tenor, Saturday night. 6—Claudio Arrau, pianist, Wednesday night and Sunday, July 11. 7—G. Wallace Woodworth, director Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, Saturday night.

First Music Shed Concert At Tanglewood Saturday

Berlioz' 'Damnation of Faust,' With Soloists, Chorus And Orchestra Listed; Chamber Music of Beethoven Wednesday and Bach Friday

Lenox, July 3—The 17th Berkshire Festival since concerts were inaugurated in the hills of Western Massachusetts in 1934, the 15th since the Boston Symphony Orchestra first participated, will commence six weeks of 24 concerts Wednesday evening at 8.30 in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, with an all-Beethoven program of chamber music, featuring Claudio Arrau, pianist, and the Bel Arte String Trio.

On Friday also at 8.30 p. m. in the Theater-Concert Hall, Charles Munch, Music Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will conduct a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players in an all-Bach program, with Lukas Foss as piano soloist.

Shed Concert Saturday

For the first time in Berkshire history, Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon concerts will be given commencing the opening weekend, July 10 at 8.30 p. m. and July 11 at 2.30 p. m. in the Music Shed. Mr. Munch will lead the full 104-piece Boston Symphony Orchestra on Saturday evening in the first Tanglewood presentation of Hector Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust," with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society directed by G. Wallace Woodworth participating, and soloists Eleanor Steber (Marguerite), David Poleri (Faust), Martial Singher (Mephistopheles) and Donald Gramm (Brander).

Next Sunday afternoon guest conductor Pierre Monteux will conduct the full Boston Symphony in an all-Beethoven program, with Claudio Arrau as piano soloist, the occasion marking the 30th anniversary of Mr. Arrau's first appearance with the orchestra which was then under the baton of Mr. Monteux.

Scope Increased

Since 1938 when the 6000-seat Music Shed was erected on the Tanglewood estate where Nathaniel Hawthorne was a guest a century ago, open on three sides so the music might spill out to the thousands who listen to it on the grass under the stars, the Berkshire Festival has attracted increasingly large crowds from all over Eastern U. S. and Canada until last summer all attandance records were broken, with an average of 10,200 at each Shed concert.

To accomodate its growing crowds of music lovers, the 1954 Berkshire Festival has been increased in scope within its six-week framework — twelve Shed concerts instead of last year's nine, on Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons; the popular Bach-Mozart concerts which last summer were concentrated in the Festival's first three week ends this year are to be held each Friday evening; and a new series has been inaugurated of six Wednesday evening chamber music programs, a total of 24 concerts in all.

Honor to Berlioz

The Music Shed concerts in 1954 will honor the 150th anniversary season of the birth of Hector Berlioz by performing complete versions of this composer's principal works. In addition to the opening Shed concert's Tanglewood premiere of "The Damnation of Faust," a masterpiece lasting two and a half hours and seldom heard in its entirety, Mr. Munch will conduct the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the "Fantastic Symphony" (July 18); the Overture to "Beatrice and Benedick" and the Symphony "Harold in Italy," with William Primrose as viola soloist (July 25).

Also the dramatic symphony "Romeo and Juliet" in its complete form with the Festival Chorus of the Berkshire Music Center, and John McCollum and Nicola Moscana as soloists (July 31); the Overture to "Benvenuto Cellini" "Royal Hunt and Storm" from "The Trojans," the song cycle "Summer Nights," with Eleanor Steber as soloist, and the "Te Deum," with the Festival Chorus and David Poleri, soloist (Aug. 7); concluding the Festival with the "Requiem" in memory of Serge Koussevitzky, again with the Festival Chorus and David Poleri, soloist (Aug. 15). The first week's Berkshire Festival programs:

Wednesday—8:30 p. m.
Theater-Concert Hall

Beethoven: String Trio in G, Op. 9 No. 1—The Bel Arte Trio (Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola; Martin Hoherman, violoncello); Piano Sonatas, Op. 79; Op. 110; Op. 57 (Appassionata")—Claudio Arrau.

Friday—8:30 p. m.
Theater-Concert Hall

Bach: Brandenburg Concertos No. 1, in F; No. 2, in F—with the following soloists from the Boston Symphony Orchestra: Doriot Anthony, flute, Harold Gomberg, oboe, Roger Voisin, trumpet, Richard Burgin, violin; No 3, in G—strings; No. 5, in D—with th following soloits; Lukas Foss, piano, Miss Anthony, flute, Mr. Burgin, violin; No. 6, in B-flat—strings. Charles Munch, conductor.

Saturday—8:30 p. m.—Music Shed

Berlioz: "The Damnation of Faust"—with the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Chorale Society, directed by G. Wallace Woodworth, and soloists Eleanor Steber soprano (Marguerite) David Poleri, tenor (Faust), Martial Singher, baritone (Mephistopheles) and Donald Gramm, bass-baritone (Brander). Charles Munch, conductor.

Sunday—2:30 p. m.—Music Shed

Beethoven Overture to "Leonore," No. 3; Piano Concerto No. 5 ("Emporer")—with Claudio Arrau as soloist; Symphony No. 5. Pierre Monteux, conductor.

MUSIC CENTER AT TANGLEWOOD TO OPEN TODAY

Munch to Greet Students And Guests This Afternoon

Lenox, July 3—The Berkshire Music Center, the summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in connection with the Berkshire Festival, opens its 12th session, a six-week course of music studies for advanced students and professionals, at Tanglewood, tomorrow afternoon. Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and director of the Berkshire Music Center, will address students and guests at the opening exercises, at 3.30 p. m. in the Theater-Concert Hall.

Dr. Lewis Perry, honorary chairman of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, whose contributions help to support the school, and an orchestra trustee, will preside. Composer Aaron Copland, who is assistant director of the school, will introduce the faculty.

As at every opening of the school since its founding under the direction of the late Dr. Serge Koussevitsky in 1940, Randall Thompson's "Alleulia," composed for the first opening of the school, will be sung by the students. Hugh Ross, head of the choral department, will conduct. Tea will be served in the Tanglewood formal gardens following the exercises.

The first school performance will be given Thursday, at 8.30 p. in the Music Shed, when for the first time the symphony orchestra of 100 students in Dept. I will play together.

The first of six weekly chamber music concerts will be given by students of Department I in the Chamber Music Hall, will be the ing, July 11, at 10 a. m. That evening at 8.30 p. m., also in the Chamber Music Hall, will bring the first composers' forum by students of Department III studying with Aaron Copland, Lukas Foss and guest composer Ernst Toch. Their works will be performed by fellow students and commented upon.

Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, whose contributions help to support the school, are invited to all student concerts.

BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL PROGRAM CHANGES

Lenox, July 3—Changes involving two Saturday evening programs by the Boston Symphony Festival, in the Music Shed, at Orchestra during the Berkshire Tanglewood, are announced by Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony.

Pianist Nicole Henriot will appear with the orchestra as soloist three weeks earlier than scheduled, on Saturday evening, July 24, at the concert to be conducted by Jean Morel, performing the Liszt E-flat piano concerto, which will replace the Strauss "Don Juan" previously listed.

On the concert of Aug. 14, replacing the Ravel piano concerto, Mr. Munch will conduct Ravel's "Le Tombeau de Couperin."

MUSIC FESTIVAL CHANGES MADE AT TANGLEWOOD

All - Cesar Franck Program Gives Way to Debussy Selections

Boston, June 19—Two changes in the Berkshire Festival programs to be presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in its six-week season, July 7 to Aug. 15, at Tanglewood, were announced today by Charles Munch, Music Director.

Instead of an all-Cesar Franck program on Saturday evening, July 17 in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, guest conductor Pierre Monteux will substitute two orchestral selections by Claude Debussy. Excerpts from "St. Sebastian" and the tone poem "La Mer" will replace the previously programmed "Le Chasseur Maudit" and "Les Eolides" by Franck.

Mr. Munch's program of Saturday evening, Aug. 14 in the Shed will offer Brahms' "Tragic Overture" in place of Wagner's "A Faust Overture."

The Festival's closing program, Sunday afternoon, Aug. 15 in the Music Shed, has been designated as a memorial to Serge Koussevitsky, conductor of the Boston Symphony for 25 years, and under whose direction the Berkshire Festival grew to its present world renown and its summer school of music, the Berkshire Music Center was founded. For this program Charles Munch will present Hector Berlioz' massive "Requiem," with the Festival Chorus (composed of students of the Berkshire Music Center) and soloists.

The Berkshire Festival also announces the summer of 1954 will witness six Saturday morning rehearsals of the full 104-man Boston Symphony Orchestra, at 10 a. m. on July 10, 17, 24, 31, Aug. 7 and

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
EVE. NEWS
JUN 19 1954

TIGHT BINDING

A MOTHER and son are students enrolled in Berkshire Music Center. They are Mrs. Keith Rogers, president of the Island Radio Broadcasting Co. and her son, William Keith Rogers, musical director of Radio Station CFCY, both of Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, Canada. There are three husband-wife combinations, also three heads of music departments of various colleges in the student group. Lukas Foss heads the Tanglewood Study Group with a six-weeks course for students of music, professional or amateur. Others on the Music Center faculty: Jean Morel, orchestra playing and conducting: First Chair members of the Boston Symphony, chamber music; Hugh Ross, choral singing and conducting; Aaron Copland, Lukas Foss and Guest Composer Ernst Toch, composition; Frederic Cohen of the Juilliard School, opera.

MORE THAN 400 students have arrived in "Tanglewood," Lenox, Mass., for the opening of Berkshire Music Center today. The Music Center is a School of Music maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in connection with the annual Berkshire Festival concerts this month and next. This marks the twelfth season of the Center, with students from most of the 48 states, Canada and foreign countries. Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony is director of Berkshire Music Center; Composer Aaron Copland is assistant director; Ralph Berkowitz is dean. Boston Symphony Manager-elect Thomas D. Perry, Jr., is executive secretary with Gail Rector, assistant.

Charles Munch, left, is music director of the Berkshire Music Festival in "Tanglewood," Lenox, Mass. Pierre Monteux, right, is among guest conductors. Munch is conductor of the Boston Symphony which has its summer home in "Tanglewood" during July and August.

THE SIX weeks of 24 concerts of the Berkshire Festival will start Wednesday night at 8:30 o'clock in the Theater-Concert Hall in "Tanglewood"—an all-Beethoven program of chamber music, featuring Claudio Arrau, pianist and the Bel Arte String Trio. On Friday night, also in the Theater-Concert Hall, Charles Munch will conduct a Chamber Orchestra of Boston Symphony players in an all-Bach program with Lukas Foss, pianist.

THE WORLD OF MUSIC

Juilliard School Shuts Down Its Summer Session as Country Schools Take Over

By ROSS PARMENTER

FROM 1932 to 1952 the Juilliard Summer School was a regular feature of the city's musical life. Its annual enrollments went into the hundreds and most of its students were teachers coming to New York to take refresher courses during their vacations. But there was no session last year. The discovery that there would be none this year either led to a little investigation. It was learned that the Juilliard's board of directors had voted to abolish the summer school.

Clearly the hope was that it would be allowed to lapse quietly, for Juilliard spokesmen were reluctant to discuss the matter. Speculation is possible, though. Enrollment had been falling off, and though the summer school had not been losing money, it had not been making it either. Maintaining it, too, had become more difficult, as fewer regular members of the Juilliard faculty had been available to teach there through the summers.

What is understood to be the board's chief reason for closing the school was the belief that it was no longer artistically necessary to offer opportunities for high-level music studies during the summer. Such opportunities, it was felt, were being offered sufficiently in the increasing number of summer music centers that have been springing up in locations more sylvan than Claremont Avenue. Among such schools in rustic spots, one might mention the Berkshire Music Centre, the Aspen Institute, and the Summer School of Music of Mary Washington College in Fredericksburg, Va., to say nothing of numerous smaller centers. These centers, too, have been responsible for luring the teachers away in the summer.

An incidental loss to the city through the ending of the school is the series of public concerts that used to be given while the session was on. In 1948, for instance, there were eighteen such concerts, including two orchestral ones led by Fritz Reiner.

ROUND TRIP

For the six Sundays of the Berkshire Festival, the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company is running a special excursion train to Tanglewood.

The excursion train leaves Grand Central at 8:20 A. M. and arrives in Stockbridge at 12:15 P. M., where buses will take concert-goers to Tanglewood. After the concert, buses will pick up the excursionists and take them to Pittsfield in time to eat and catch the 7:30 train that gets them back to the city at 11:30. The first excursion will be next Sunday. Price: $6.75.

NEW LEBANON, N. Y. TUESDAY, JULY 6, 1954

Mr. Munch To Direct Boston Symphony

Charles Munch, Music Director for the past five years of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, who will direct its Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. in its 17th season, the 15th in which the orchestra has participated; July 5 - August 15.

Mr. Munch is also Director of the Berkshire Music Center, the summer school of music operated by the orchestra in connection with the Berkshire Festival.

Bel Arte Trio Will Open Concert Series

The 1954 concert series at the Berkshire Music Festival will open tomorrow night in the Theater-Concert Hall featuring the Bel Arte Trio, with pianist Claudio Arrau. In the trio are, left to right, Joseph de Pasquale, violist; Martin Hoherman, violoncellist, and Ruth Posselt, violinist. In the event of rain the concert will be held in the Music Shed.

Claudio Arrau To Be Heard in 3 Piano Sonatas

TANGLEWOOD — The Bel Arte string trio and pianist Claudio Arrau will open the 17th Berkshire Festival tomorrow evening at 8:30 in the theater-concert hall. This is the first of a series of six concerts of chamber music by noted ensembles and soloists which, for the first time in Berkshire Festival history, is available to the public at a nominal cost. In the past a number of similar programs were generously donated by the late Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge in aid of the Berkshire Music Center and were patronized in such growing numbers—last year's attendance at the three Coolidge concerts averaged 1,200 persons each — that Berkshire Festival Director Charles Munch conceived the idea this year of incorporating them into the framework of the Festival.

Tomorrow evening's all-Beethoven program of chamber music in the theater-Cconcert hall will mark the first Tanglewood performance of the trio, which consists of Ruth Posselt, violinist; Joseph de Pasquale, violist; and Martin Hoherman violoncellist. Although the ensemble was formed only a few years ago, each of the artists is intimately connected with the Berkshire Music Center.

Ruth Posselt

Miss Posselt, who is married to Richard Burgin, concertmaster of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is a popular recitalist throughout the country, and has made many appearances, not only with the Boston Symphony Orchestra under the late Serge Koussevitzky and under its present music director, Charles Munch, but also with the New York Philharmonic, and with Chicago, Detroit, Washington, Cincinnati, Cleveland and St. Louis symphonies.

Miss Posselt was winner over 165 other violinists of the Schubert Memorial Prize and was awarded the principal prize of the National Federation of Music Clubs in national competitions. She has toured Europe extensively, beginning at the age of 21 when she was the first American artist permitted to concertize in Soviet Russia. In addition to her busy concert tours, Miss Posselt is a chamber music department faculty member at the Berkshire Music Center.

Joseph de Pasquale

Joseph de Pasquale took his post as head of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's viola section in 1947 at the age of 27, at that time making him the youngest first violist of any major symphony orchestra in the United States. A native of Philadelphia, the star outfielder of the Germantown High School baseball team and graduate of Curtis Institute of Music, de Pasquale studied with Louis Bailly, Max Aronoff and William Primrose before his World War II service as a member of the President's Marine Band under William F. Santelmann. Before joining the Boston Symphony Orchestra and faculty of the Berkshire Music Center, he played in the American Broadcasting Co. Symphony Orchestra, often appearing as soloist with it and other major symphony groups.

Martin Hoherman

Martin Hoherman, cellist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, began his studies at seven at the Warsaw Conservatory of Music in his native Poland. He was with the Warsaw Radio Symphony Orchestra for many years, as first cellist, and later as conductor. During the war he was with the British Army in the Middle East, Tobruk, India and Ceylon. After military discharge, Mr. Hoherman accepted appointment as the musical controller of western-music for the government radio station in Colombo, Ceylon, until 1950 when he came to Canada to concertize and conduct for the Canadian Broadcasting Corp.

Donating Services

Mr. Arrau, who will play three Beethoven piano sonatas at this opening program, is donating his services to the Berkshire Music Center for the evening. He has appeared at Tanglewood in previous festivals as soloist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra and will perform again with the full 104-piece orchestra Sunday at 2:30 p.m. in the Music Shed, in the Beethoven "Emperor" piano concerto with Pierre Monteux as guest conductor of the orchestra.

A few seats remain for tomorrow evening's chamber music concert. Reservations are being accepted at the box office, Tanglewood. Admission tickets, entitling the holders to listen from the Tanglewood lawns, will be sold a few hours before the program begins. In case of rain, the concert will be held in the Music Shed.

Wed., July 7, 8:30 p. m. in the Theatre:
The Bel Arte Trio and Claudio Arrau, pianist.
Thurs., July 8, 8:30 p. m. in the Shed: Dept. 1 orchestra
Fri., July 9, 8:30 p. m. in the Theatre: Chamber Orchestra, conducted by Charles Munch in a Bach program.
Sat., July 10: 10 a. m. in the Music Shed. Public rehearsal of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.
8:30 p. m. in the Music Shed. Charles Munch, conducting the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society in Berlioz, "The Damnation of Faust". Soloists: Eleanor Steber, David Poleri, Martial Singher and Donald Gramm.
Sun., July 11: 10 a. m. in the Chamber Music Hall. Chamber Music by Dept 1 students.
2:30 p. m. in the Music Shed
Pierre Monteaux conducting the Boston Symphony in a Beethoven program.
8:30 p. m. in the Chamber Music Hall. Composers Forum

135

TIGHT BINDING

ncert Series
LE 7/6154

orrow night in the Theater-Cone trio are, left to right, Joseph , violinist. In the event of rain ed.

Orchestra's viola section in 1947 at he age of 27, at that time making im the youngest first violist of any major symphony orchestra in the United States. A native of Philadelphia, the star outfielder of the Germantown High School baseball
eam and graduate of Curtis Insti-ute of Music, de Pasquale studied ith Louis Bailly, Max Aronoff nd William Primrose before his orld War II service as a member the President's Marine Band unr William F. Santelmann. Before ining the Boston Symphony Orestra and faculty of the Berk-ire Music Center, he played in e American Broadcasting Co.
mphony Orchestra, often appearg as soloist with it and other ajor symphony groups.

Martin Hoherman

Martin Hoherman, cellist of the ston Symphony Orchestra, began s studies at seven at the Warsaw nservatory of Music in his native land. He was with the Warsaw dio Symphony Orchestra for ny years, as first cellist, and r as conductor. During the war was with the British Army in Middle East, Tobruk, India
Ceylon. After military disrge, Mr. Hoherman accepted intment as the musical con-er of western-music for the rnment radio station in Colom-Ceylon, until 1950 when he e to Canada to concertize and duct for the Canadian Broad-ing Corp.

ating Services

. Arrau, who will play three hoven piano sonatas at this ing program, is donating his ces to the Berkshire Music
r for the evening. He has apd at Tanglewood in previous als as soloist with the Bos-ymphony Orchestra and will rm again with the full 104-orchestra Sunday at 2:30 p.m.
Music Shed, in the Beethoven eror" piano concerto with Monteux as guest conductor orchestra.
w seats remain for tomorrow
g's chamber music concert.
vations are being accepted at ox office, Tanglewood. Ad-n tickets, entitling the hold-listen from the Tanglewood will be sold a few hours bee program begins. In case of he concert will be held in the Shed.

10—The Berkshire Evening Eagle, Tuesday, July 6, 1954

Harvard, Radcliffe Groups Sing Saturday at Tanglewood

TANGLEWOOD — When Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra planned a number of works of Hector Berlioz in their complete form, in observance of the 150th anniversary season of the birth of the French composer, for this summer's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, he was anxious to include "The Damnation of Faust," a 2½ hour work which demands a larged mixed chorus and four soloists.

Because it is scheduled for the opening of the Music Shed series on Saturday night there was no opportunity for the Festival Chorus, made up of students of the Berkshire Music Center who arrive this week, to learn and rehearse the massive work.

Trained By Munch

Mr. Munch then proposed using the services of the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, 110 young singers trained by G. Wallace Woodworth, who performed the work with him and the Boston Symphony in Boston last winter and recorded it. Considerable careful planning had to go into the operation, since the two choral groups, or part of them, 50 strong, embarked on a tour to the West Coast after the closing college year, and will be arriving in Tanglewood Thursday at the completion of their tour. They will be joined that day by 30 others, coming from New York and environs, and by another 30 from Boston, reporting for rehearsals with Mr. Munch, soloists Eleanor Steber, Martial Singher, David Poleri and Donald Gramm at 10 a.m. on Friday.

The housing of 110 extra young people in the already crowded Lenox area was an acute problem, solved through the generosity of Pittsfield and area residents opening their homes to the Harvard and Radcliffe students.

Housing Committee

The housing committee, headed by Dr. Daniel B. Dorman of Pittsfield, president of the Harvard Club of Berkshire County, included Roger Hinman of Lenox School, club vice president; D. Ross Edman, of the Tanglewood press staff, who enters Harvard in the autumn; Mrs. Edward H. Cumpston Jr. of Pittsfield, a Radcliffe alumna, and Mrs. William Crane of Richmond, who organized her area.

In addition to the above, the club was assisted by Simon England, Mrs. David Morrison and Mrs. Lawrence K. Miller of Pittsfield; Mrs. B. Holly Rose and Mrs. Hollis Wyman of Great Barrington; Mrs. Henry Dwight, of Stockbridge; Mrs. Harold B. Kelley Jr., of Richmond.

Other area residents with whom Harvard and Radcliffe choristers will be guests Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights during their stay in the Berkshires are: From Pittsfield, Mrs. Wendell G. Ahern, Mrs. Robert D. Bardwell, Dr. James E. Breslin, Mrs. Sheridan R. Cate, Dr. Nathan Finkelstein, Mrs. Morrison, Mrs. Brace Paddock, Mrs. Thurlow W. Pelton, Mrs. Walter Reilly, Mrs. Jay C. Rosenfeld, Mrs. Phillip Weston, Mrs. J. H. Hagenguth; from Stockbridge, Mrs. Robert Alsop, Mrs. Nesbitt Bangs, Mrs. Graham Blaine; from Richmond, Mrs. Cynthia Wolverton, Donald B. Miller.

Esplanade Premiere Rained Out For First Time in 26 Years

By FRED BRADY

For the first time in 26 light classical years the Esplanade concerts premiere was rained out last night because there just isn't any way of closing the skylight on Arthur Fiedler's Charles River music hall.

So the 1954 first night will actually be this morning with a children's concert at 10:15 and the regular concert at 8:30 p. m.

VALIANT GROUP

A valiant little group of Bostonians—in sou'westers or stoic under bright plaid umbrellas — surrendered reluctantly when Laning Humphrey, Boston Symphony publicist, announced the cancellation. Mr. Fiedler gave the word at 8:35 p. m. and some of the concertgoers had been there since before 8, rain or no.

In fact, one young couple in the front line had come really prepared for the worst. Their French poodle was guarded by a smart cellophane raincoat.

Backstage in the Hatch Memorial Shell Fiedler said it was the first actual cancellation of an opening night.

It rained, he remembered, on his 20th anniversary premiere, but the concert went on from Symphony Hall because there was an anniversary radio broadcast scheduled.

Asked how he felt about beginning his second 25 years of Esplanade concerts, Mr. Fiedler smiled and said: "Hadn't given it a thought."

GOLDEN WEDDING

Told that Boston expects him to lift a baton on his golden anniversary concert he said thoughtfully: "That would make me pretty old."

But suddenly he brightened and smiled: "But not as old as Toscanini."

This year the concerts will continue through Aug. 10 but will be given only on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights. For the second half of each week the orchestra will be at Tanglewood.

TANGLEWOOD—Lenox, Mass.
Opening Tom'w Eve—Chamber Music Series
CLAUDIO ARRAU & BEL ARTE TRIO
Fri., July 9—Bach Program (Theatre)
Sat. Eve., Sun. Aft., July 10-11—
Opening Shed Concerts
Berkshire Festival
BY THE
BOSTON SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA
CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director
JULY 7 to AUG. 15
WED. EVE. CHAMBER CONCERTS—$2, $3
FRI. EVE. THEATRE CONCERTS—$4, $5
Sat. Eve. and Sun. Aft. Shed Concerts
$2.50, $3, $3.50, $4, $5.50, $6.50 (Box Seats)
Address TICKET OFFICE, TANGLEWOOD,
LENOX, MASS. Phone Lenox 600

Zino Francescatti Will Play at Lenox

Monterey, July 6—Zino Francescatti, noted violinist, who maintains a home, "Fiddletop" in this town, will make two appearances at Tanglewood this summer. He will be heard during the Sunday afternoon, Aug. 8, concert and in the evening Wednesday, Aug. 11.

Mr. Francescatti also will be heard on the telephone hour on Monday, July 19, and he will give two concerts at Ravena, near Chicago, on July 22 and 24. At the Ravena program, he will play under the baton of Pierre Monteaux, who is a guest conductor at Tanglewood this summer.

4 Concerts Next Week To Open Berkshire Festival

Knickerbocker News, July 7

PIERRE MONTEUX CHARLES MUNCH CLAUDIO ARRAU

The Berkshire festival will open its 17th season at Tanglewood, near Lenox, Mass., next week with four concerts, two of them by the 104-piece Boston Symphony Orchestra.

The opening concert of the season will take place at 8:30 p. m. Wednesday when Claudio Arrau, Chilean pianist, will be solosit in an all-Beethoven program of chamber music with the Bel Arte string trio.

At the same hour on Friday night in the theater-concert hall, Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony, chestra in an all-Bach program. Lucas Foss will be the piano soloist in the Brandenburg Concertos.

Full Orchestra

The full orchestra will be heard for the first time this season next Saturday night in the music shed.

The presentation will be Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust." Appearing with the orchestra will be the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society and, as soloists, Eleanor Steber, David Poleri, Martial Singher and Donald Gramm.

The music shed concerts this year are being given in commemoration of the 150th anniversary of the birth of Berloiz. In the six weeks the shed concerts will continue numerous other works of the composer will be performed, including the dramatic symphony "Romeo and Juliet" and the well known "Fantastic Symphony."

Monteux to Conduct

Sunday afternoon, July 11, Pierre Monteux will conduct the full orchestra in an all Beethoven program. Works to be performed are the overture to "Leonore," the Piano Concerto No. 5 with Mr. Arrau as soloist and the Symphony No. 5.

During the six-week season the festival will follow a program of chamber music each Wednesday night, the chamber orchestra each Friday night, and symphony concerts each Saturday night and Sunday afternoon.

The annual "Tanglewood on Parade" program will take place Friday afternoon and night, Aug. 13.

12-B THE KNICKERBOCKER NEWS Albany, N.Y., Wed., June 9, 1954

Tanglewood Center Sets 25 Concerts

Students of the Berkshire Music Center will present 25 concerts at the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood during July and the first two weeks in August.

The Music Center, directed by Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will commence its 12th year with the arrival July 4 of 400 students from all parts of the country.

The student program will include six concerts of symphony music by an orchestra of 100, which will be presented Thursday nights, starting July 8.

Six concerts of chamber music also will be presented by students Sunday mornings from July 11 through Aug. 15. Programs of poera are scheduled July 27 and Aug 2 and 3.

The student concerts will be open to members of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center. A voluntary contribution constitutes membership in the Friends of the Music Center.

Scholarships Offered To Aid Music Students at Tanglewood

SHOWBUSINESS - MAY 31, 1954

More than a dozen special scholarships and tuition aids to summer music students are being offered by the Berkshire Music Center, the school of music operated by the Boston Symphony Orchestra July 5-August 15, in connection with its annual Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Charles Bunch, conductor of the Boston Symphony, is the school's director, and composer Aaron Copland is assistant director.

The principal aid to the 400 students selected annually from applicants all over the P. S., Canada and abroad, is the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund, which in 1953 awarded grants for the tuition of 210 students. Established in 1947 by RCA-Victor and since augmented from other sources, the fund is drawn upon each year for students selected as instrumentalists, conductors, singers, and composers, and is reimbursed by students when they are able to do so in order that others may benefit in future school years. Berkshire music Center students will work during the six summer weeks at Tanglewood.

In addition, special scholarships available in 1954 to Tanglewood students include the following:

The Jascha Heifetz Prize, $250, established in 1949 by the eminent violinist, awarded to the outstanding student violinist of the summer;

The Gregor Piatigorsky Prize, $250, established in 1950, awarded by the noted cellist to the year's best student in that field;

(Continued on page 3)

A prize of $250 established this year by the Koussevitzky Music Foundation, to be awarded for a work written at Tanglewood by a student composer;

The Margaret Lee Crofts Scholarships, two gifts of $250 each, to students of composition;

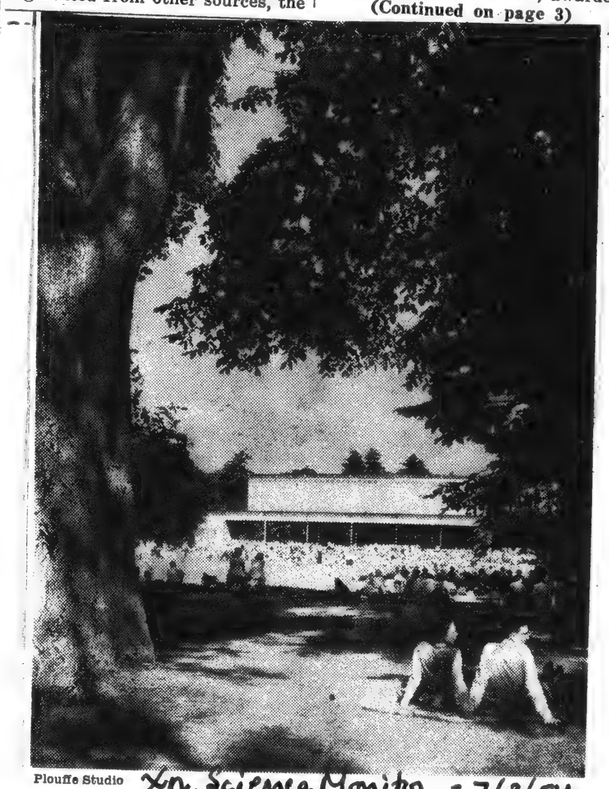
The Samuel Wechsler Commission, established in 1952 $300 to a Tanglewood composer;

Koussevitzky Memorial Scholarship, for an outstanding student of conducting;

The Selly A. Eiseman Scholarship, a tuition award;

The Carlotta M. Dreyfus Scholarship, a tuition award established in 1953.

In many other ways the Berkshire Music Center is assisted in its scholarship projects. For the third year, the Koussevitzky Music Foundation has granted $1,000 to help students take advantage of their tuition scholarships. The Anne M. Gannett Fund of the National Federation of Music Clubs annually provides a $400 scholarship to a student. The Music Study Club of Newark and the Oranges, N. J., contributes $225 each year to a like purpose. The Louisville Philharmonic Chorus annually raises money to send a student to Tanglewood, as in the past have Grinnell College, Grinnell, Iowa, and Adelphi College, Long Island City. The Women's Committee of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra since 1950 has contributed $300 to the expenses of a string player for the student orchestra: in 1954, Mary Dodge, violist, has won the competition. Through the Wyomissing Instiute of Fine Arts, Pa., Mrs. Bruce Harden of Honolulu, a Tanglewood student in 1940, annually selects a Berkshire summer student.



Plouffe Studio

Scene at the Berkshire Festival, which opens next week at Lenox, Mass.

Christian Science Monitor - 7/3/54

[136]

TIGHT BINDING

POST, THURSDAY, JULY 1, 1954

WORDS and MUSIC

By Harriett Johnson

Chamber Music at Tanglewood

The enlarged Berkshire Festival, due to run six weeks this season, beginning Wednesday night and closing Sunday afternoon, Aug. 15, is featuring among its special attractions six concerts of chamber music.

Any music-hungry New Yorker who can spare a week night away from the city will be able to enjoy one or more of these events on Wednesday evenings in Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., at a cost of $2 or $3 per ticket.

The series opens Wednesday with an all-Beethoven concert featuring Claudio Arrau, pianist, and the Bel Arte Trio. In addition to the String Trio in G Major, to be performed by Ruth Posselt, violinist; Joseph de Pasquale, violist, and Martin Hoherman, 'cellist, Arrau will play three sonatas by the composer.

Ensembles and soloists for the remaining events are as follows: July 14, the Albeneri Trio; July 21, the Zimbler Sinfonietta; July 8, the Griller String Quartet; Aug. 4, the Kroll String Quartet; Aug. 11, Zino Francescatti, violinist, and Artur Balsam, pianist, in a Sonata Recital.

Beatrice Krebs To Sing Sunday at First Church

Beatrice Krebs, concert artist currently appearing at Tanglewood, will sing at the 11 a.m. worship service in the First Church of Christ, Congregational, Sunday.

Miss Krebs is soloist at Riverside Church in New York City. She will sing: "Gens Duc Splendida" from "Hora Novissima" by Parker. Mrs. William S. Kent Jr., organist, will accompany Miss Krebs, and the Senior Choir will sing.

DALLAS, TEX.
NEWS
JUN 27 1954

Student Events

Special to The News

BOSTON, Mass.—About twenty-five concerts by students of the Berkshire Music Center will be given during the course of this summer's Berkshire Festival. Events at Tanglewood this summer now total forty-nine.

N. Y. Times
July 8, 1954
L+ 19

BERKSHIRE FETE BEGINS

Season Opens With a Chamber Concert—Rain Cuts Turnout

Special to The New York Times.

LENOX, Mass., July 7—Rain, an hour before concert-time tonight, kept down the attendance at the opening of the seventeenth annual Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood.

Every seat was taken in the theatre concert hall, with a capacity of 1,200, and an overflow crowd of 300 found shelter under the huge roof which extends from the edge of the concert hall. Normally, another 1,000 persons listen to the concert from the spacious lawns.

Claudio Arrau was the pianist tonight in the opening chamber music concert with the Bel Arte Trio, made up of Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph De Pasquale, viola, and Martin Hoherman, 'cello.

Making its first appearance at Tanglewood tonight, the trio presented an all-Beethoven program.

A Musical Prevue of Berkshire Festival Concerts

8:00 to 10:00 PM Mondays through Fridays.

(Monday programs will begin at 8:15 PM)

This program is being presented in cooperation with the Berkshre Festival and will feature all the music which is to be played at Tanglewood during the 1954 season. The only exceptions will be in cases where music played at Tanglewood has not been recorded. Appropriate substitutions will be made.

W. B. E. C.

The American Broadcasting Co.

1490 AM 49.3 FM

PEORIA, ILL.
STAR
MAY 20 1954

PARADE OF THE ARTS

By EVABETH MILLER

Illinois, New England Trade Operas

When this column first mentioned the rural Illinois setting of Aaron Copland's new opera, "The Tender Land," before its April 1 premiere in New York, there was, so far as we knew, no special reason for the choice of Illinois as the scene.

But now it turns out that there was apparently reason, indeed, for the composer's mother, Sarah Mittenthal Copland, came from Peoria.

Although she left here long ago, for Aaron Copland was born in Brooklyn in 1900, that link can still give Peorians special pride and special interest in her son's work and particularly in this new opera, which will be given again Aug. 2-3 at Tanglewood, home of the Berkshire Music Festival.

Copland's best known works are his ballet music, "Appalachian Spring," "Billy the Kid" and "Rodeo"; the popular orchestral work, "El Salon Mexico"; his piano concerto and his "Dance Symphony." Besides other orchestral compositions, film scores and the "Our Town" film suite, there is "Lincoln Portrait," written for speaker and orchestra and also returning to his Illinois heritage.

★ ★ ★

"The Tender Land" will be the major project of the Berkshire Music Center's opera department this summer, with students already planning to present it quite differently from the New York production.

Frederic Cohen of the Juilliard school's Opera Theater is to head the opera department while Boris Goldovsky (bringing his own Opera Theater here Nov. 26 to give "The Barber of Seville" in English in the Amateur Musical Club concert series) is on leave.

Illinois people will also have a hand in the Tanglewood production, for Dr. Ludwig Zirner of the University of Illinois music faculty and his wife, Laura, will be on the staff as heads of the associate division.

Dr. Zirner, whose opera survey course is broadcast at 2 p.m. each Tuesday and Thursday by station WILL, is directing the University's opera group in an 8 p.m. program this Sunday in Smith Music Hall at Champaign.

They will give an act from Monteverdi's early 17th century [illegible] the final act of Mozart's [illegible]riage of Figaro," [illegible]Prankster," written [illegible]owell Colony in [illegible]by Robert Wykes [illegible]of Illinois music [illegible]rankster" is a [illegible]era buffa style, [illegible]ngland folk tale [illegible]ngland setting, [illegible] New England opera in Illi[illegible]story to be [illegible] England!

[illegible]ics of [illegible]als. [illegible]re. [illegible]m.

HALINA NEUMAN

white Eagle - London

Festiwal muzyczny w Tanglewood

Nowy Jork, w październiku

SERGE KUSSEWICKI, jeden z najwybitniejszych dyrygentów, jeszcze w Rosji 50 lat temu, u progu swej kariery, marzył o stworzeniu centrum muzycznego, gdzie latem młodzież studiująca muzykę miała by możność dokształcania się pod kierunkiem najlepszych sił muzycznych. Nie przypuszczał wówczas, że marzenia jego urzeczywistnią się w dalekiej Ameryce.

Ojcem wszelkich festiwali muzycznych był festiwal w Salzburgu, stworzony z inicjatywy tytanów muzyki i sztuki jak Toscanini, Reinhardt itd. Po raz pierwszy w Salzburgu przekonano się jak wielki wpływ ma piękno otaczającej natury na odbiorczą wrażliwość słuchaczy. Za przykładem Salzburga, po „brunatnej" inwazji tego uroczego zakątka Austrii i odcięcia go od cywilizowanego świata, poszła Anglia, stwarzając wśród gór Szkocji festiwal w Edynburgu. W 1934 roku Ameryka Północna stworzyła centrum fesiwalowe wśród pięknych gór Berkshire (Mass.) Inicjatorem był Serge Kussewicki, dyrygent i przez 25 lat dyrektor najlepszej orkiestry w USA, Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Zimą 1936 dwie milionerki amerykańskie Mrs. Sorgam Brooks i Miss Mary Tapan oddały wspaniały 200 akrowy majątek ziemski „Tanglewood" do dyspozycji Kussewickiemu. Majątek ten należał już w r. 1850 do bankiera bostońskiego Williama Tapana, którego cała rodzina hołdowała sztuce. Wiele sław literackich przebywało pod gościnnym dachem Tanglewood — Nathaniel Hawthorne napisał tam swą znaną książkę: „The house of seven Sables".

W r. 1938 powstał plan wybudowania olbrzymiej muszli — właściwej sali koncertowej (koncerty do tego czasu odbywały się pod gołym niebem).

Architekt fiński Saazinen stworzył przepiękną w formie i idealną akustycznie muszlę koncertową mogącą pomieścić 6 tysięcy osób, o dachu nieprzepuszczającym przy największej ulewie odgłosu kropli deszczowych. Tak wśród jednego z najbardziej uroczych krajobrazów górskich nad jeziorem Mahkkeewac (nazwa pochodząca jeszcze z czasów indiańskich) powstało jedno z najpoważniejszych dziś centrów muzycznych. Latem 1940 r. Kussewicki urzeczywistnił swoje marzenia z czasów młodości stworzenia centrum dokształcającego dla młodych zdolnych dyrygentów i kompozytorów. Wybudowono szkołę, mieszczącą tego lata około 450 uczni z 26 krajów. W niej młodzi przyszli dyrygenci mieli możność pracy pod kierownictwem tak wybitnych dyrygentów jak Francuz Charles Munch, Amerykanin Leonard Bernstein, Szwajcar Pierre Monteux.

Wydział kompozycji posiadał także wybitne siły, jak Włoch Dallapiccola, Francuz Darius Milhaud, Amerykanin Aaron Copland. Wydziałem muzyki kameralnej kierował wiolonczelista Piatigorskij. Studenci to przeważnie stypendyści — o stypendium nie trudno. Trzeba mieć po prostu talent — to wszystko. Wśród różnorodnych narodowości brak było narodowości polskiej — za to wśród wykonawców największe laury zbierał wielki pianista Artur Rubinstein, człowiek przemiły, z którym spędziłam urocze przedpołudnie robiąc mały „wywiadzik" dla „Orła". Pytam dlaczego tak ostatnio omija w swoim tournee Anglię? „Zdegustowali mnie zupełnie tym uwielbieniem wszystkiego, co niemieckie i wprowadzaniem jako pierwsi wszystkich najzagorzalszych muzyków nazistów". Świat i tak duży dla Rubinsteina. We wrześniu tournee zawiezie go poprzez Belgię, Francję, Szwajcarię, Włochy i Portugalię do Afryki, w listopadzie z powrotem do USA. Do Tanglewood przyjechał z Ameryki Południowej. Wszędzie towarzyszy mu jego urocza żona (córka b. dyrektora opery warszawskiej Młynarskiego). To jeden z ostatnich ambasadorów naszej wielkiej tradycji pianistycznej w świecie.

Od czasu przedhitlerowskiego Salzburga nie spędziłam tak pięknych dwóch tygodni muzycznych na tle tak harmonijnie z muzyką zlewającej się natury.

Festiwal trwał 6 tygodni. Słuchając najlepszej dziś chyba orkiestry — bostońskiej orkiestry symfonicznej, natchnionych utworów jak podczas wojny stworzonych „Tańców śmierci" Honnegera, czy „Requiem" Berlioza plejady doskonałych solistów, patrząc na pełną entuzjazmu i oddania się muzyce międzynarodową młodzież, ciężko walczącą o byt, która, mimo wielkiej pokusy w tym kraju robienia dolarów, wybiera ciernistą drogę sztuki, człowiek mimo wszystko godzi się z tym światem.

Pod wygwieżdżonym tanglewoodzkim niebem głos narratora z „Tańców śmierci" wlał w nasze serca wiarę w trwałość rzeczy wiecznych, jak dobroć, miłość i piękno.

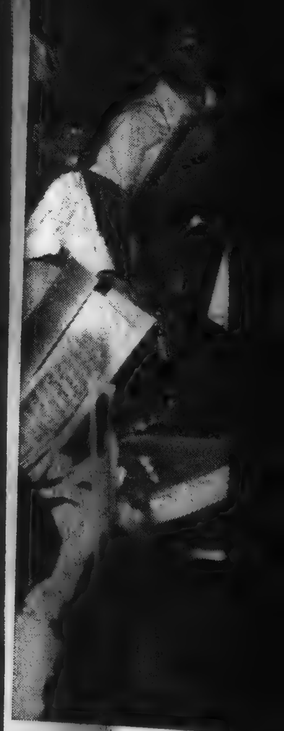
AMERYKA może być dumna z dzisiejszych osiągnięć na polu muzycznym. Wprawdzie nauczycielami młodego pokolenia byli muzycy europejscy, ale można powiedzieć, że już dziś „uczeń doścignął mistrza". Leonard Bernstein, 32 letni genialny uczeń Kussewickiego (pianista, dyrygent i kompozytor w jednej osobie) jest dziś duszą festiwalu i godnie zastępuje w roku 1951 zmarłego mistrza tak jako organizator, jak i kierownik wydziału orkiestry. Młodzi pianiści amerykańscy jak Lipkin czy Lucas Foss wykazali niezwykle wysoki poziom, a kompozytorzy jak Aaron Copland nic nie stoją niżej od swych kolegów zza Oceanu.

Centrum muzyczne w Tanglewood, jak reszta letnich festiwali rozsianych po całym terenie USA (od Kalifornii poprzez góry Skaliste do granicy Kanady), festiwali najróżniejszych tanecznych, teatralnych itd. powinna dać do myślenia ludziom o „wyrobionej" opinii na temat „niekulturalnej" „barbarzyńskiej" Ameryki, goniacej tylko za dolarami i stojącej o tak wiele niżej od naszej starej, kulturalnej, dobrej Europy.

Czy nie należałoby tej opinii nieco zrewidować?!

Halina Neuman

[137]



The Berkshire Festiv[illegible]tra has participated— Last year Festival co[illegible] an average of 10,200 Symphony, who will[illegible]

TIGHT BINDING

POST, THURSDAY, JULY 1, 1954

WORDS and MUSIC

By Harriett Johnson

Chamber Music at Tanglewood

The enlarged Berkshire Festival, due to run six weeks this season, beginning Wednesday night and closing Sunday afternoon, Aug. 15, is featuring among its special attractions six concerts of chamber music.

Any music-hungry New Yorker who can spare a week night away from the city will be able to enjoy one or more of these events on Wednesday evenings in Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., at a cost of $2 or $3 per ticket.

The series opens Wednesday with an all-Beethoven concert featuring Claudio Arrau, pianist, and the Bel Arte Trio. In addition to the String Trio in G Major, to be performed by Ruth Posselt, violinist; Joseph de Pasquale, violist, and Martin Hoherman, 'cellist, Arrau will play three sonatas by the composer.

Ensembles and soloists for the remaining events are as follows: July 14, the Albeneri Trio; July 21, the Zimbler Sinfonietta; July 8, the Griller String Quartet; Aug. 4, the Kroll String Quartet; Aug. 11, Zino Francescatti, violinist, and Artur Balsam, pianist, in a Sonata Recital.

Beatrice Krebs To Sing Sunday at First Church

Beatrice Krebs, concert artist currently appearing at Tanglewood, will sing at the 11 a.m. worship service in the First Church of Christ, Congregational, Sunday.

Miss Krebs is soloist at Riverside Church in New York City. She will sing: "Gens Duc Splendida" from "Hora Novissima" by Parker. Mrs. William S. Kent Jr., organist, will accompany Miss Krebs, and the Senior Choir will sing.

Sat. July 3, 1954

DALLAS, TEX.
NEWS
JUN 27 1954

Student Events

Special to The News

BOSTON, Mass.—About twenty-five concerts by students of the Berkshire Music Center will be given during the course of this summer's Berkshire Festival. Events at Tanglewood this summer now total forty-nine.

N.Y. Times
July 8, 1954
L+ 19

BERKSHIRE FETE BEGINS

Season Opens With a Chamber Concert—Rain Cuts Turnout

Special to The New York Times.

LENOX, Mass., July 7—Rain, an hour before concert-time tonight, kept down the attendance at the opening of the seventeenth annual Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood.

Every seat was taken in the theatre concert hall, with a capacity of 1,200, and an overflow crowd of 300 found shelter under the huge roof which extends from the edge of the concert hall. Normally, another 1,000 persons listen to the concert from the spacious lawns.

Claudio Arrau was the pianist tonight in the opening chamber music concert with the Bel Arte Trio, made up of Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph De Pasquale, viola, and Martin Hoherman, 'cello.

Making its first appearance at Tanglewood tonight, the trio presented an all-Beethoven program.

A Musical Prevue of Berkshire Festival Concerts

8:00 to 10:00 PM Mondays through Fridays.
(Monday programs will begin at 8:15 PM)

This program is being presented in cooperation with the Berkshre Festival and will feature all the music which is to be played at Tanglewood during the 1954 season. The only exceptions will be in cases where music played at Tanglewood has not been recorded. Appropriate substitutions will be made.

W. B. E. C.

The American Broadcasting Co.

1490 AM 49.3 FM

PEORIA, ILL.
STAR
MAY 20 1954

PARADE OF THE ARTS

By EVABETH MILLER

Illinois, New England Trade Operas

When this column first [illegible] of Aaron Copland's new opera, "The [illegible] April 1 premiere in New York, there [illegible] special reason for the choice of Illinois [illegible].

But now it turns out that there was apparently reason, indeed for the composer's mother, Sarah Mittenthal Copland, came from Peoria.

Although she left here long ago, for Aaron Copland was born in Brooklyn in 1900, that link can still give Peorians special pride and special interest in her son's work and particularly in this new opera, which will be given again Aug. 2-3 at Tanglewood, home of the Berkshire Music Festival.

Copland's best known works are his ballet music, "Appalachian Spring," "Billy the Kid" and "Rodeo"; the popular orchestral work, "El Salon Mexico"; his piano concerto and his "Dance Symphony." Besides other orchestral compositions, film scores and the "Our Town" film suite, there is "Lincoln Portrait," written for speaker and orchestra and also returning to his Illinois heritage.

★ ★ ★

"The Tender Land" will be the major project of the Berkshire Music Center's opera department this summer, with students already planning to present it quite differently from the New York production.

Frederic Cohen of the Juilliard school's Opera Theater is to head the opera department while Boris Goldovsky (bringing his own Opera Theater here Nov. 26 to give "The Barber of Seville" in English in the Amateur Musical Club concert series) is on leave.

Illinois people will also have a hand in the Tanglewood production, for Dr. Ludwig Zirner of the University of Illinois music faculty and his wife, Laura, will be on the staff as heads of the associate division.

Dr. Zirner, whose opera survey course is broadcast at 2 p.m. each Tuesday and Thursday by station WILL, is directing the University's opera group in an 8 p.m. program this Sunday in Smith Music Hall at Champaign.

They will give an act from Monteverdi's early 17th [illegible] the final act of Mozart's [illegible]Marriage of Figaro[illegible] "Prankster" [illegible] Powell Colon[illegible] by Robert W[illegible] of Illinois musi[illegible] "Prankster" [illegible] opera buffa [illegible] England folk [illegible] England [illegible] New [illegible] opera [illegible] stories [illegible] Eng[illegible]

HALINA NEUMAN

White Eagle - London

Festiwal muzyczny w Tanglewood

Nowy Jork, w październiku

SERGE KUSSEWICKI, jeden z najwybitniejszych dyrygentów, jeszcze w Rosji 50 lat temu, u progu swej kariery, marzył o stworzeniu centrum muzycznego, gdzie latem młodzież studiująca muzykę miała by możność dokształcania się pod kierunkiem najlepszych sił muzycznych. Nie przypuszczał wówczas, że marzenia jego urzeczywistnią się w dalekiej Ameryce.

Ojcem wszelkich festiwali muzycznych był festiwal w Salzburgu, stworzony z inicjatywy tytanów muzyki i sztuki jak Toscanini, Reinhardt itd. Po raz pierwszy w Salzburgu przekonano się jak wielki wpływ ma piękno otaczającej natury na odbiorczą wrażliwość słuchaczy. Za przykładem Salzburga, po „brunatnej" inwazji tego uroczego zakątka Austrii i odcieciа go od cywilizowanego świata, poszła Anglia, stwarzając wśród gór Szkocji festiwal w Edynburgu. W 1934 roku Ameryka Północna stworzyła centrum fesiwalowe wśród pięknych gór Berkshire (Mass.) Inicjatorem był Serge Kussewicki, dyrygent i przez 25 lat dyrektor najlepszej orkiestry w USA, Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Zimą 1936 dwie milionerki amerykańskie Mrs. Sorgam Brooks i Miss Mary Tapan oddały wspaniały 200 akrowy majątek ziemski „Tanglewood" do dyspozycji Kussewickiemu. Majątek ten należał już w r. 1850 do bankiera bostońskiego Williama Tapana, którego cała rodzina hołdowała sztuce. Wiele sław literackich przebywało pod gościnnym dachem Tanglewood — Nathaniel Hawthorne napisał tam swą znaną książkę: „The house of seven Sables".

W r. 1938 powstał plan wybudowania olbrzymiej muszli — właściwej sali koncertowej (koncerty do tego czasu odbywały się pod gołym niebem).

Architekt fiński Saazinen stworzył przepiękną w formie i idealną akustycznie muszlę koncertową mogącą pomieścić 6 tysięcy osób, o dachu nieprzepuszczającym przy największej ulewie odgłosu kropli deszczowych. Tak wśród jednego z najbardziej uroczych krajobrazów górskich nad jeziorem Mahkkeewac (nazwa pochodząca jeszcze z czasów indiańskich) powstało jedno z najpoważniejszych dziś centrów muzycznych. Latem 1940 r. Kussewicki urzeczywistnił swoje marzenia z czasów młodości stworzenia centrum dokształcającego dla młodych zdolnych dyrygentów i kompozytorów. Wybudowono szkołę, mieszczącą tego lata około 450 uczni z 26 krajów. W niej młodzi przyszli dyrygenci mieli możność pracy pod kierownictwem tak wybitnych dyrygentów jak Francuz Charles Munch, Amerykanin Leonard Bernstein, Szwajcar Pierre Monteux.

Wydział kompozycji posiadał także wybitne siły, jak Włoch Dallapiccola, Francuz Darius Milhaud, Amerykanin Aaron Copland. Wydziałem muzyki kameralnej kierował wiolonczelista Piatigorskij. Studenci to przeważnie stypendyści — o stypendium nie trudno. Trzeba mieć po prostu talent — to wszystko. Wśród różnorodnych narodowości brak było narodowości polskiej — za to wśród wykonawców największe laury zbierał wielki pianista Artur Rubinstein, człowiek przemiły, z którym spędziłam urocze przedpołudnie robiąc mały „wywiadzik" dla „Orła". Pytam dlaczego tak ostatnio omija w swoim tournee Anglię? „Zdegustowali mnie zupełnie tym uwielbieniem wszystkiego, co niemieckie i wprowadzaniem jako pierwsi wszystkich najzagorzalszych muzyków nazistów". Świat i tak duży dla Rubinsteina. We wrześniu tournee zawiezie go poprzez Belgię, Francję, Szwajcarię, Włochy i Portugalię do Afryki, w listopadzie z powrotem do USA. Do Tanglewood przyjechał z Ameryki Południowej. Wszędzie towarzyszy mu jego urocza żona (córka b. dyrektora opery warszawskiej Młynarskiego). To jeden z ostatnich ambasadorów naszej wielkiej tradycji pianistycznej w świecie.

Od czasu przedhitlerowskiego Salzburga nie spędziłam tak pięknych dwóch tygodni muzycznych na tle tak harmonijnie z muzyką zlewającej się natury.

Festiwal trwał 6 tygodni. Słuchając najlepszej dziś chyba orkiestry — bostońskiej orkiestry symfonicznej, natchnionych utworów jak podczas wojny stworzonych „Tańców śmierci" Honnegera, czy „Requiem" Berlioza piejady doskonałych solistów, patrząc na pełną entuzjazmu i oddania się muzyce międzynarodową młodzież, ciężko walczącą o byt, która, mimo wielkiej pokusy w tym kraju robienia dolarów, wybiera ciernistą drogę sztuki, człowiek mimo wszystko godzi się z tym światem.

Pod wygwiażdżonym tanglewoodzkim niebem głos narratora z „Tańców śmierci" wlał w nasze serca wiarę w trwałość rzeczy wiecznych, jak dobroć, miłość i piękno.

AMERYKA może być dumna z dzisiejszych osiągnięć na polu muzycznym. Wprawdzie nauczycielami młodego pokolenia byli muzycy europejscy, ale można powiedzieć, że już dziś „uczeń doścignął mistrza". Leonard Bernstein, 32 letni genialny uczeń Kussewickiego (pianista, dyrygent i kompozytor w jednej osobie) jest dziś duszą festiwalu i godnie zastępuje w roku 1951 zmarłego mistrza tak jako organizator jak i kierownik wydziału orkiestry. Młodzi pianiści amerykańscy jak Lipkin czy Lucas Foss wykazali niezwykle wysoki poziom, a kompozytorzy jak Aaron Copland nic nie stoją niżej od swych kolegów zza Oceanu.

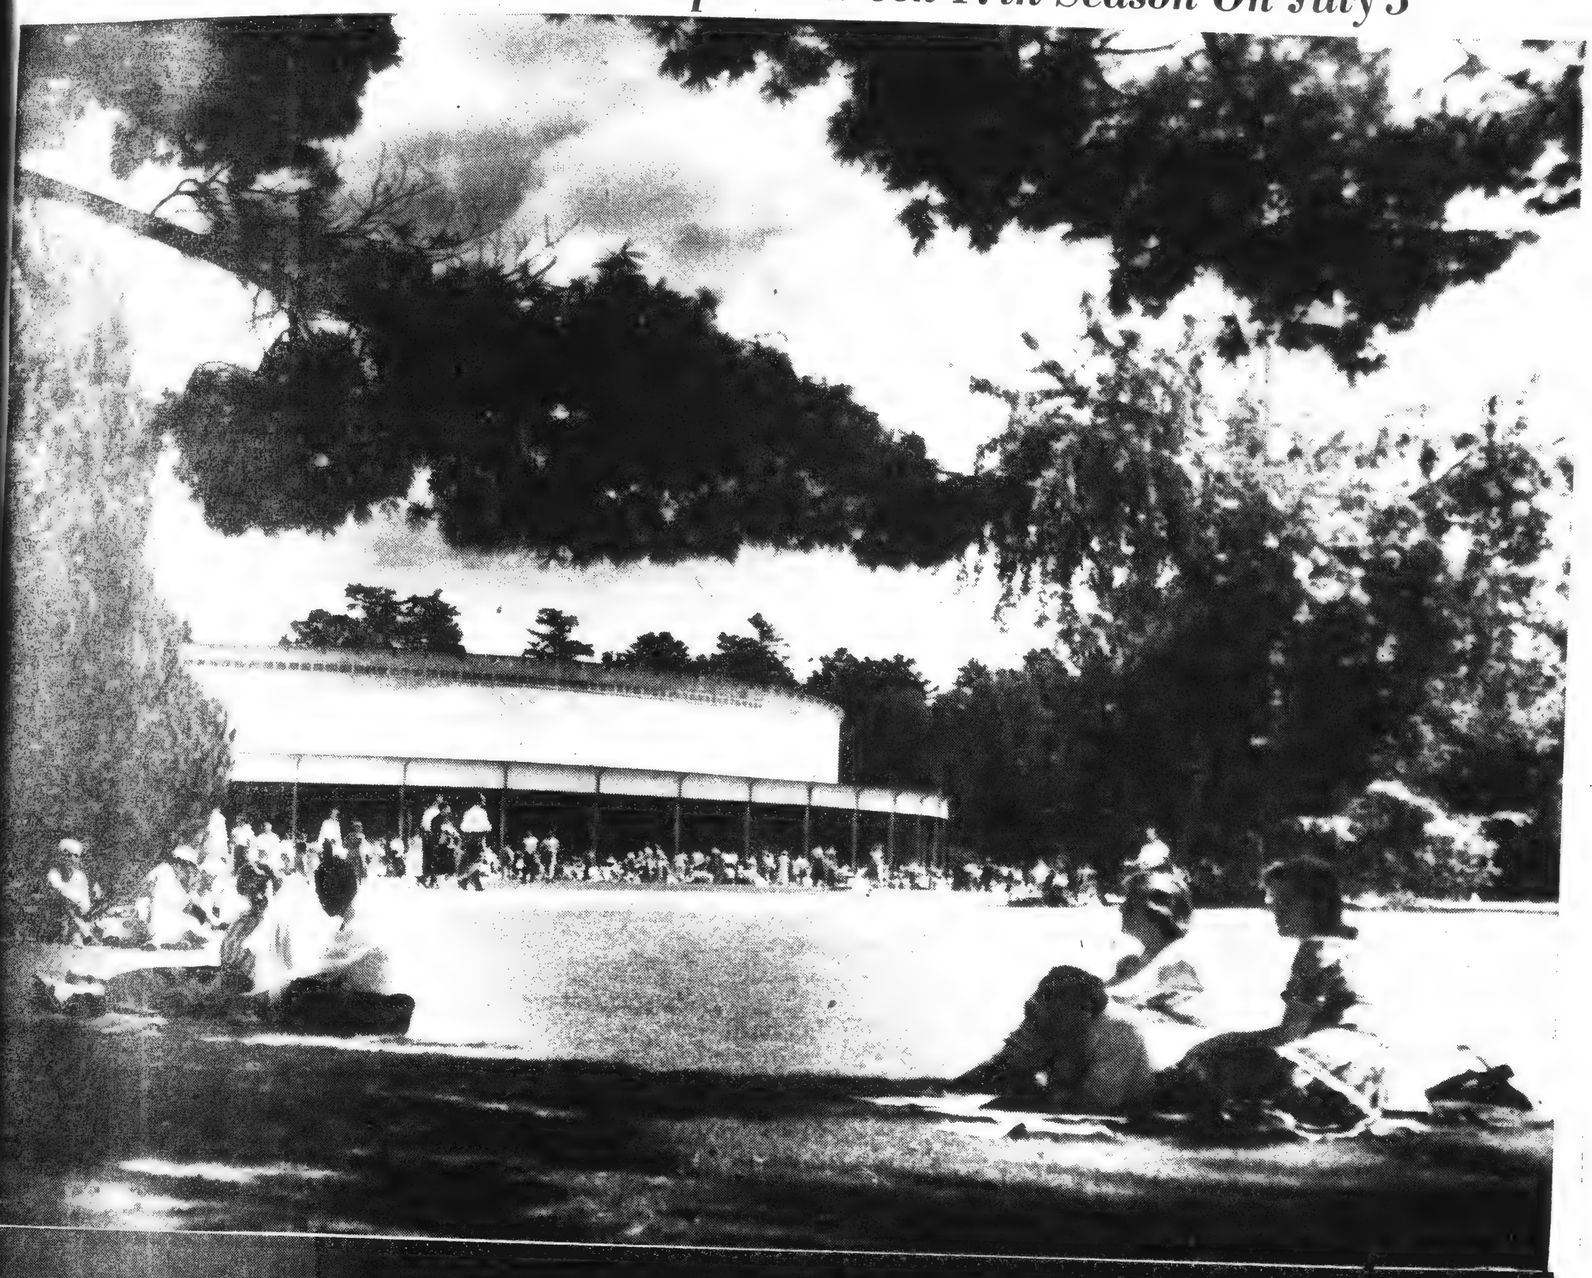
Centrum muzyczne w Tanglewood, jak reszta letnich festiwali rozsianych po całym terenie USA (od Kalifornii poprzez góry Skaliste do granicy Kanady), festiwali najróżniejszych tanecznych, teatralnych itd. powinna dać do myślenia ludziom o „wyrobionej" opinii na temat „niekulturalnej", „barbarzyńskiej" Ameryki, goniącej tylko za dolarami i stojącej o tak wiele niżej od naszej starej, kulturalnej, dobrej Europy.

Czy nie należałoby tej opinii nieco zrewidować?!

Halina Neuman

The Berkshire Festiv[illegible]tra has participated— Last year Festival co[illegible] an average of 10,200 Symphony, who will

Berkshire Festival To Open 6-Week 17th Season On July 5



The Berkshire Festivtal of the Boston Symphony Orchestra will open its 17th summer of music in the hills of Western Massachusetts—the 15th season in which the orchestra has participated—on Monday, July 5, a holiday by reason of the 4th of July falling on a Sunday. The festival, enlarged in scope this year, will last through Aug. 15. Last year Festival concerts attracted a record-breaking attendance of 117,950 music-lovers, an average of 1,100 in its chamber concerts in the Theatre Concert Hall and an average of 10,200 in its vast Music Shed, shown in background in top picture. In lower photo is Charles Munch, music director for the past five years of the Boston Symphony, who will direct the festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., as well as the summer school of music operated by the orchestra.

In the World of Music

Riverside California Press 6/7/54

Festival at Santa Barbara

NEW YORK — (AP) — Music at the swimming pool will be feature of the first Pacific Coast Festival and Institute at Santa Barbara, Calif., June 24 through July 4.

The 30-piece "little symphony" made up of members of the San Francisco Symphony will play in an open-air casino which has a large California-style swimming pool in its center.

There will be two weeks of orchestral concerts, made up principally of works of Bach and Mozart, with touches of Handel, Haydn, Beethoven, Wagner, Martinu, Richard Strauss, Vivaldi, Stravinsky, Barber and Milhaud.

Antal Dorati, conductor of the Minneapolis Symphony, will conduct the first week; Walter Hendl, conductor of the Dallas Symphony, the second. In addition there will be recitals of chamber music. The institute will offer lectures on musical and other esthetics.

The Berkshire Music Festival, the east coast's big summer music to-do in the Massachusetts hills, offered five scholarships to students enrolled for its music school which operates from July 5 to Aug. 15. In addition there were four prizes, three of $250 each for the outstanding student violinist, 'cellist, and composer of the summer; and a $300 commission for a student composition.

New York City's open air concerts in the stadium of the College of the City of New York, which begin June 21, have set aside "nights" for the composers who rated highest in the requests mailed in by patrons.

Beethoven and Tchaikovsky each will have two "nights" during the 30 scheduled concert nights. Bizet will have a "night," and so will Jerome Kern, George Gershwin, and Richard Rodgers. But Brahms and Wagner will have to share a "night" with the first half of the program devoted to one, the second half to the other.

Donald Scavarda, 26, Iron City, Mich., a University of Michigan student, is the winner of the $2000 first prize of the 1953 Student Composers Radio Awards of Broadcast Music, Inc. His prize-winning composition was a fantasy for violin and orchestra.

The $250 first prize for a composition by secondary school student went to Michael Kassler, Baltimore, who is a student of Henry Cowell at the Peabody Conservatory. His composition was a 'cello-piano sonata.

Other winners in the adult group were: second prize, $1500, Higo H. Harada, 26 Hanford, Calif.; third prize, $1000, Attilio Macero, 28, New York; fourth prize, $750, Donald Martino, 22, Trenton, N. J.; fifth prize, $750, Dominick Argento, 25, York, Pa.; sixth prize, $500, Ramiro Cortes, 19, Dallas, Tex.

The second and third prize winners among the secondary school contestants were David Ward-Steinman, 17, Alexandria, La. and William Eldon Bolcom, 15, Everett, Wash.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
POST
JUL 1 - 1954

"Eagle"
July 7, 1954

Public Events

Tonight

8:30—Opening performance of the 17th Berkshire Festival featuring the first in a series of six concerts of chamber music. The Bel Arte string trio and pianist, Claudio Arrau. Tanglewood theater-concert hall, Lenox.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN
JUN 27 1954

Tanglewood Subscriptions Exceed Those of Last Year

Chamber Music Concerts Start Wednesday, July 7, With Claudio Arrau as Soloist

Lenox, June 26—Subscriptions to the 1954 Berkshire Festival series by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood, for concerts held on six Saturday evenings, July 10 to Aug. 14, and on six Sunday afternoons, July 11 to Aug. 15, in the huge Music Shed, have surpassed those of the summer of 1953, manager George E. Judd announces.

Prices for the Shed concerts by the full 104-man Boston Symphony Orchestra, which music director Charles Munch conducts, with Pierre Monteux, Jean Morel and Richard Burgin as guest conductors, are one-third less this year, since the Friday night chamber orchestra concerts in the intimate Theater Concert Hall are being sold separately. Yet Festival patrons have 12, instead of nine, Shed concerts this summer. The subscription sale, officially over June 1, was extended 10 days for the convenience of Berkshire County residents.

Opening July 7

The 15th Berkshire Festival in which the Boston Symphony Orchestra has participated commences on Wednesday, July 7, at 8.30 p. m., with the first of six Wednesday chamber music concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall. Claudio Arrau, eminent Chilean concert pianist, will perform Sonatas Op. 79- 110, and 57 ("Appassionata"); and the Bel Trio (Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola; and Martin Hoberman, cello) will perform the String Trio in G, Op. 9 No. 1 on an all-Beethoven program.

Charles Munch will conduct a chamber section of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in an all-Bach program of Brandenburg Concerts, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 5, 6, with Lukas Foss as piano soloist, at the first of six Friday evening chamber orchestra programs, at 8.30 p. m., in the Theater-Concert Hall, Friday, July 9.

Among the season's noted soloists are Metropolitan Opera stars Eleanor Steber, soprano, and Nicola Moscona, bass-baritone; David Poleri and John McCollum, tenors; Martial Singher, baritone; Donald Gramm, bass baritone

WORDS and MUSIC

By Harriett Johnson

Chamber Music at Tanglewood

The enlarged Berkshire Festival, due to run six weeks this season, beginning Wednesday night and closing Sunday afternoon, Aug. 15, is featuring among its special attractions six concerts of chamber music.

Any music-hungry New Yorker who can spare a week night away from the city will be able to enjoy one or more of these events on Wednesday evenings in Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., at a cost of $2 or $3 a ticket.

The series opens Wednesday with an all-Beethoven concert featuring Claudio Arrau, pianist, and the Bel Arte Trio. In addition to the String Trio in G Major, to be performed by Ruth Posselt, violinist; Joseph de Pasquale, violist, and Martin Hoberman, 'cellist, Arrau will play three sonatas by the composer.

Ensembles and soloists for the remaining events are as follows: July 14, the Albeneri Trio; July 21, the Zimbler Sinfonietta; July 28, the Griller String Quartet; Aug. 4, the Kroll String Quartet; Aug. 11, Zino Francescatti, violinist, and Artur Balsam, pianist, in a Sonata Recital.

Lily Pons and Andre Kostelanetz, both Stadium favorites, return Saturday night to Lewisohn Stadium for a program that includes operatic arias for which Miss Pons is particularly well known: The "Caro Nome" from "Rigoletto" and the Bell Song from "Lakme."

As a special novelty, Kostelanetz will conduct the American premiere performance of "Marine Boys March" by Katherine Godlewski.

Shirley Booth is star in "By the Beautiful Sea," musical hit at the Majestic Theater. She's also starred in "About Mrs. Leslie" at the Victoria Theater.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE
JUN 27 1954

Music: The Case of the Vanishing Violinists

By FRANCIS D. PERKINS

Where are the violinists? Among the past season's Manhattan concerts for paying audiences which were brought to this department's attention, there were only thirty-five violin recitals, the lowest total in more than thirty years. The violinists were most productive here in the 1923-'24 season, when they gave 112 recitals; they nearly reached that mark in the record-breaking New York concert season of 1947-'48.

From then through 1952-'53, the trend in recitalism was downward, and the violinistic slump could be taken as apart of the general decline. But in 1953-'54 the tide has turned in two other recital fields; singers gave 168 recitals as compared with the previous season's 142; the pianists' total rose from 138 to 153. The general concert total also advanced from 808 events to 881. But the violinists gave five fewer recitals than in 1952-'53. They gave 9.8 per cent of the concerts in the three principal recital classifications (song, piano and violin) as compared with the record 26 per cent of 1923-'24.

Washington Square Plans

The Washington Square Association needs $1,800 to launch a second series of chamber music concerts in Washington Square Park, according to the current issue of "The Villager." If this sum can be raised for the first concert, Local 802 of the American Federation of Musicians will underwrite the cost of a second, and will match individual contributions for later performances. Alexander Schneider, who arranged and directed the two highly successful concerts given in the Square in August and September, 1953, will again be in charge. Mr. Schneider, who has just returned from Europe, is planning six concerts on consecutive Monday nights, beginning Aug. 2, but the number that can be given depends upon the funds that can be raised. Contributions can be sent to the Washington Square Association, 5 W. Eighth St., New York 11.

At the Stadium

Sir Adrian Boult returns to the Lewisohn Stadium next week to conduct on Wednesday and Thursday nights, July 7 and 8; Ania Dorfmann, in Chopin's Andante Spaniato and Polonaise and Grieg's Piano Concerto, and Mischa Elman, in Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto, are the respective soloists. Jose Greco and his company will offer a "Fiesta of Spanish Dance," Monday night, July 5, with Alfredo Antonini conducting, and Frederick Dvonch will conduct excerpts from the stage works of Jerome Kern and Oscar Hammerstein II on Saturday, July 10, when Virginia Haskins, Helena Bliss, William Tabbert and William Warfield will sing.

In the Berkshires

The number of subscribers for this summer's Berkshire Festival concerts by the Boston Symphony in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., on Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons, beginning July 10 and 11, has exceeded the 1953 figure. Remaining tickets for all festival concerts are on sale at the Tanglewood box office (telephone, Lenox 600). Pierre Monteux has substituted Debussy's "La Mer" and music from his "Le Martyre de Saint Sebastian" on July 17, and Charles Munch will conduct Brahms' "Tragic" Overture instead of Wagner's "A Faust Overture" on Aug. 14. As before, the orchestra will hold public rehearsals on the six festival Saturday mornings for the benefit of its pension fund; the admission charge is one dollar.

The Berkshire Quartet opens its Sunday afternoon series at Music Mountain, Falls Village, Conn., on July 4; the season runs until Labor Day, with programs featuring works of Mozart, Brahms and Beethoven.

Local Activities

Tuesday night, July 6, the opening date of Punch Opera's production of Erik Chisholm's trilogy, "Murder in Three Keys," at the Cherry Lane Theater, is also the opening date of a six week's series combining dinner and opera scheduled by the New York Community Opera Association at the Town Hall Club. The opening bill, Menotti's "The Old Maid and the Thief" and Humperdinck's "Hansel and Gretel," will be repeated on the next four evenings. The series will then run daily except Sundays for four weeks, with works by Humperdinck, Debussy, Bach, Mozart, Menotti and Pergolesi; one of the previous bills will be repeated for the sixth week.... Alfredo Salmaggi, disappointed at the small turnout for his production of "Carmen" at Randall's Island on June 19, has announced that he will give only one more performance there; "Aida"; Saturday, July 17, is the tentative date. . . . Everett Lee will conduct the second Naumberg Memorial orchestral concert in Central Park next Sunday night, July 4, with Gilda Muhlbauer, violinist, as soloist. Clarence Cameron White's "Elegy" will have its first New York performance. This concert and the others of the series on July 31 and Sept. 6 will be broadcast by WNYC. . . . Carlos Montoya, guitarist, will give the last of his four recitals at the Little Club, 70 E. 55th St., at 11:15 tonight.

Oddments

Roy Harris' setting of Vachel Lindsay's "Abraham Lincoln Walks at Midnight" will have its radio premiere in the CBS "Music Room" program next Sunday (9:15-9:30 a. m.) with the composer conducting. . . .

The Mastersingers, a choral group conducted by Joseph Liebling, will hold auditions at 8 p. m. tomorrow at 148 W. 56th St. for a Town Hall concert Nov. 7 featuring Poulenc's Mass in G.

2 Change Roles In Pop Concert

Boris Goldovsky, artistic director of the New England Opera Theater, and his uncle, Pierre Luboshutz, pianist, realized long repressed secret wishes in a recent Pop concert in the Cleveland Auditorium, where Mr. Luboshutz and his wife, Genia Nemenoff, were soloists in a Mozart duo-piano concerto with Mr. Goldovsky conducting. The finale was encored, but with a change of functions; Mr. Luboshutz conducting and Mr. Goldovsky as co-soloist with Mme. Nemenoff. Mr. Goldovsky has made many pianistic appearances, but long wished to be heard as a pianist with his relatives, and Mr. Luboshutz had studied conducting with the late Serge Koussevitzky.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN

375 ENROLLED AT TANGLEWOOD SUMMER SCHOOL

30 Foreign Students Already Registered at the Music Center

Lenox, June 26 — Student registration at the Berkshire Music Center, the six-week summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in connection with the annual Berkshire Festival concerts, has passed the 375 mark, Miss Edith A. Bossler, registrar, reports. Additional applications are being processed daily, and the full enrollment of 400-450 will be reached before the students begin arriving from most of the 48 states, Canada and foreign countries, for the opening of the 12th season on Sunday, July 4.

30 Foreign Students

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is director of the Berkshire Music Center; composer Aaron Copland is assistant director; Ralph Berkowitz is dean; and Boston Symphony manager-elect Thomas D. Perry, Jr., is executive secretary with Gail Rector as his assistant.

Enrollment is ahead of last year, when 345 students had registered at this time. The 375 students to date include 112 with the two-year-old Dept., 5, the Tanglewood Study Group, 35 of whom are spending the full six weeks at Tanglewood, 22 for four weeks, and 55 for two week terms. Dept. 5 offers advanced students of music, professional or amateur, an opportunity to spend their vacations in absorption of music. Lukas Foss heads the department this summer. Last year 92 students had registered in the study group by mid-June.

As against last summer's 14 foreign students, Miss Bossler reports 30 to date, 12 from Canada, four from Cuba, three each from France and Israel, one each from Japan, Korea, Holland, Hungary, Greece, South Africa, Venezuela and Haiti. The study group includes seven from Canada, one each from France and Haiti.

A mother and son are students enrolled at the Berkshire Music Center, Mrs. Keith Rogers, president of the Island Radio Broadcasting Co., and her son, [illegible] Keith Rogers, musical director of radio station CFCY, both of Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island. There are three husband-wife combinations, also three [illegible] sic departments of [illegible] leges.

Students of the Berkshire Music Center study orchestra playing and conducting under [illegible] the Juilliard School of Music, New York City; chamber music under first-chair members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; choral singing and conducting under Hugh Ross; composition under Aaron Copland, Lukas Foss and guest composer Ernst Toch; opera under Frederic Cohen, of the Juilliard School; or are enrolled in the Tanglewood Study Group under Mr. Foss.

In the World of Music

Riverside California Press 6/7/59

Festival at Santa Barbara

NEW YORK — (AP) — Music at the swimming pool will be feature of the first Pacific Coast Festival and Institute at Santa Barbara, Calif., June 24 through July 4.

The 30-piece "little symphony" made up of members of the San Francisco Symphony will play in an open-air casino which has a large California-style swimming pool in its center.

There will be two weeks of orchestral concerts, made up principally of works of Bach and Mozart, with touches of Handel, Haydn, Beethoven, Wagner, Martinu, Richard Strauss, Vivaldi, Stravinsky, Barber and Milhaud.

Antal Dorati, conductor of the Minneapolis Symphony, will conduct the first week; Walter Hendl, conductor of the Dallas Symphony, the second. In addition there will be recitals of chamber music. The institute will offer lectures on musical and other esthetics.

The Berkshire Music Festival, the east coast's big summer music to-do in the Massachusetts hills, offered five scholarships to students enrolled for its music school which operates from July 5 to Aug. 15. In addition there were four prizes, three of $250 each for the outstanding student violinist, 'cellist, and composer of the summer; and a $300 commission for a student composition.

New York City's open air concerts in the stadium of the College of the City of New York, which begin June 21, have set aside "nights" for the composers who rated highest in the requests mailed in by patrons.

Beethoven and Tchaikovsky each will have two "nights" during the 30 scheduled concert nights. Bizet will have a "night," and so will Jerome Kern, George Gershwin, and Richard Rodgers. But Brahms and Wagner will have to share a "night" with the first half of the program devoted to one, the second half to the other.

Donald Scavarda, 26, Iron City, Mich., a University of Michigan student, is the winner of the $2000 first prize of the 1953 Student Composers Radio Awards of Broadcast Music, Inc. His prize-winning composition was a fantasy for violin and orchestra.

The $250 first prize for a composition by secondary school student went to Michael Kassler, Baltimore, who is a student of Henry Cowell at the Peabody Conservatory. His composition was a 'cello-piano sonata.

Other winners in the adult group were: second prize, $1500, Higo H. Harada, 26 Hanford, Calif.; third prize, $1000, Attilio Macero, 28, New York; fourth prize, $750, Donald Martino, 22, Trenton, N. J.; fifth prize, $750, Dominick Argento, 25, York, Pa.; sixth prize, $500, Ramiro Cortes, 19, Dallas, Tex.

The second and third prize winners among the secondary school contestants were David Ward-Steinman, 17, Alexandria, La. and William Eldon Bolcom, 15, Everett, Wash.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
POST
JUL 1 - 1954

"Eagle"
July 7, 1954

Public Events

Tonight

8:30—Opening performance of the 17th Berkshire Festival featuring the first in a series of six concerts of chamber music. The Bel Arte string trio and pianist, Claudio Arrau. Tanglewood theater-concert hall, Lenox.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN
JUN 27 1954

Tanglewood Subscriptions Exceed Those of Last Year

Chamber Music Concerts Start Wednesday, July 7, With Claudio Arrau as Soloist

Lenox, June 26—Subscriptions to the 1954 Berkshire Festival series by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood, for concerts held on six Saturday evenings, July 10 to Aug. 14, and on six Sunday afternoons, July 11 to Aug. 15, in the huge Music Shed, have surpassed those of the summer of 1953, manager George E. Judd announces.

Prices for the Shed concerts by the full 104-man Boston Symphony Orchestra, which music director Charles Munch conducts, with Pierre Monteux, Jean Morel and Richard Burgin as guest conductors, are one-third less this year, since the Friday night chamber orchestra concerts in the intimate Theater Concert Hall are being sold separately. Yet Festival patrons have 12, instead of nine, Shed concerts this summer. The subscription sale, officially over June 1, was extended 10 days for the convenience of Berkshire County residents.

Opening July 7

The 15th Berkshire Festival in which the Boston Symphony Orchestra has participated commences on Wednesday, July 7, at 8.30 p. m., with the first of six Wednesday chamber music concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall. Claudio Arrau, eminent Chilean concert pianist, will perform Sonatas Op. 79- 110, and 57 ("Appassionata"); and the Bel Trio (Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola; and Martin Hoberman, cello) will perform the String Trio in G, Op. 9 No. 1 on an all-Beethoven program.

Charles Munch will conduct a chamber section of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in an all-Bach program of Brandenburg Concerts, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 5, 6, with Lukas Foss as piano soloist, at the first of six Friday evening chamber orchestra programs, at 8.30 p. m., in the Theater-Concert Hall, Friday, July 9.

Among the season's noted soloists are Metropolitan Opera stars Eleanor Steber, soprano, and Nicola Moscona, bass-baritone; David Poleri and John McCollum, tenors; Martial Singher, baritone; Donald Gramm, bass baritone

WORDS and MUSIC

By Harriett Johnson

Chamber Music at Tanglewood

The enlarged Berkshire Festival, due to run six weeks this season, beginning Wednesday night and closing Sunday afternoon, Aug. 15, is featuring among its special attractions six concerts of chamber music.

Any music-hungry New Yorker who can spare a week night away from the city will be able to enjoy one or more of these events on Wednesday evenings in Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., at a cost of $2 or $3 a ticket.

The series opens Wednesday with an all-Beethoven concert featuring Claudio Arrau, pianist, and the Bel Arte Trio. In addition to the String Trio in G Major, to be performed by Ruth Posselt, violinist; Joseph de Pasquale, violist, and Martin Hoherman, 'cellist, Arrau will play three sonatas by the composer.

Ensembles and soloists for the remaining events are as follows: July 14, the Albeneri Trio; July 21, the Zimbler Sinfonietta; July 28, the Griller String Quartet; Aug. 4, the Kroll String Quartet; Aug. 11, Zino Francescatti, violinist, and Artur Balsam, pianist, in a Sonata Recital.

Lily Pons and Andre Kostelanetz, both Stadium favorites, return Saturday night to Lewisohn Stadium for a program that includes operatic arias for which Miss Pons is particularly well known: The "Caro Nome" from "Rigoletto" and the Bell Song from "Lakme."

As a special novelty, Kostelanetz will conduct the American premiere performance of "Marine Boys March" by Katherine Godfrey, mother of Arthur Godfrey. The conductor met Mrs. Godfrey aboard ship en route to Europe several years ago, and became interested in her compositions. Subsequently he introduced this march at a concert with the Toronto Symphony Orchestra.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE
JUN 27 1954

Shirley Booth is star in "By the Beautiful Sea," musical hit at the Majestic Theater. She's also starred in "About Mrs. Leslie" at the Victoria Theater.

Music: The Case of the Vanishing Violinists

By FRANCIS D. PERKINS

Where are the violinists? Among the past season's Manhattan concerts for paying audiences which were brought to this department's attention, there were only thirty-five violin recitals, the lowest total in more than thirty years. The violinists were most productive here in the 1923-'24 season, when they gave 112 recitals; they nearly reached that mark in the record-breaking New York concert season of 1947-'48.

From then through 1952-'53, the trend in recitalism was downward, and the violinistic slump could be taken as apart of the general decline. But in 1953-'54 the tide has turned in two other recital fields; singers gave 168 recitals as compared with the previous season's 142; the pianists' total rose from 138 to 153. The general concert total also advanced from 808 events to 881. But the violinists gave five fewer recitals than in 1952-'53. They gave 9.8 per cent of the concerts in the three principal recital classifications (song, piano and violin) as compared with the record 26 per cent of 1923-'24.

Washington Square Plans

The Washington Square Association needs $1,800 to launch a second series of chamber music concerts in Washington Square Park, according to the current issue of "The Villager." If this sum can be raised for the first concert, Local 802 of the American Federation of Musicians will underwrite the cost of a second, and will match individual contributions for later performances. Alexander Schneider, who arranged and directed the two highly successful concerts given in the Square in August and September, 1953, will again be in charge. Mr. Schneider, who has just returned from Europe, is planning six concerts on consecutive Monday nights, beginning Aug. 2, but the number that can be given depends upon the funds that can be raised. Contributions can be sent to the Washington Square Association, 5 W. Eighth St., New York 11.

At the Stadium

Sir Adrian Boult returns to the Lewisohn Stadium next week to conduct on Wednesday and Thursday nights, July 7 and 8; Ania Dorfmann, in Chopin's Andante Spaniato and Polonaise and Grieg's Piano Concerto, and Mischa Elman, in Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto, are the respective soloists. Jose Greco and his company will offer a "Fiesta of Spanish Dance," Monday night, July 5, with Alfredo Antonini conducting, and Frederick Dvonch will conduct excerpts from the stage works of Jerome Kern and Oscar Hammerstein II on Saturday, July 10, when Virginia Haskins, Helena Bliss, William Tabbert and William Warfield will sing.

In the Berkshires

The number of subscribers for this summer's Berkshire Festival concerts by the Boston Symphony in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., on Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons, beginning July 10 and 11, has exceeded the 1953 figure. Remaining tickets for all festival concerts are on sale at the Tanglewood box office (telephone, Lenox 600). Pierre Monteux has substituted Debussy's "La Mer" and music from his "Le Martyre de Saint Sebastian" on July 17, and Charles Munch will conduct Brahms' "Tragic" Overture instead of Wagner's "A Faust Overture" on Aug. 14. As before, the orchestra will hold public rehearsals on the six festival Saturday mornings for the benefit of its pension fund; the admission charge is one dollar. . . . The Berkshire Quartet opens its Sunday afternoon series at Music Mountain, Falls Village, Conn., on July 4; the season runs until Labor Day, with programs featuring works of Mozart, Brahms and Beethoven.

Local Activities

Tuesday night, July 6, the opening date of Punch Opera's production of Erik Chisholm's trilogy, "Murder in Three Keys," at the Cherry Lane Theater, is also the opening date of a six-week's series combining dinner and opera scheduled by the New York Community Opera Association at the Town Hall Club. The opening bill, Menotti's "The Old Maid and the Thief" and Humperdinck's "Hansel and Gretel," will be repeated on the next four evenings. The series will then run daily except Sundays for four weeks, with works by Humperdinck, Debussy, Bach, Mozart, Menotti and Pergolesi; one of the previous bills will be repeated for the sixth week. . . . Alfredo Salmaggi, disappointed at the small turnout for his production of "Carmen" at Randall's Island on June 19, has announced that he will give only one more performance there: "Aida"; Saturday, July 17, is the tentative date. . . . Everett Lee will conduct the second Naumberg Memorial orchestral concert in Central Park next Sunday night, July 4, with Gilda Muhlbauer, violinist, as soloist; Clarence Cameron White's "Elegy" will have its first New York performance. This concert and the others of the series on July 31 and Sept. 6 will be broadcast by WNYC. . . . Carlos Montoya, guitarist, will give the last of his four recitals at the Little Club, 70 E. 55th St., at 11:15 tonight.

Oddments

Roy Harris' setting of Vachel Lindsay's "Abraham Lincoln Walks at Midnight" will have its radio premiere in the CBS "Music Room" program next Sunday (9:15-9:30 a. m.) with the composer conducting. . . . The Mastersingers, a choral group conducted by Joseph Liebling, will hold auditions at 8 p. m. tomorrow at 148 W. 56th St. for a Town Hall concert Nov. 7 featuring Poulenc's Mass in G.

2 Change Roles In Pop Concert

Boris Goldovsky, artistic director of the New England Opera Theater, and his uncle, Pierre Luboshutz, pianist, realized long repressed secret wishes in a recent Pop concert in the Cleveland Auditorium, where Mr. Luboshutz and his wife, Genia Nemenoff, were soloists in a Mozart duo-piano concerto with Mr. Goldovsky conducting. The finale was encored, but with a change of functions; Mr. Luboshutz conducting and Mr. Goldovsky as co-soloist with Mme. Nemenoff. Mr. Goldovsky has made many pianistic appearances, but long wished to be heard as a pianist with his relatives, and Mr. Luboshutz had studied conducting with the late Serge Koussevitzky.

...ineer to ...

...ve ...
...M...
...re...
...be...
...er...
...re...
...ar...
...sta..., Canada and foreign countries, for the opening of the 12th season on Sunday, July 4.

30 Foreign Students

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is director of the Berkshire Music Center; composer Aaron Copland is assistant director; Ralph Berkowitz is dean; and Boston Symphony manager-elect Thomas D. Perry, Jr., is executive secretary with Gail Rector as his assistant.

Enrollment is ahead of last year, when 345 students had registered at this time. The 375 students to date include 112 with the two-year-old Dept.. 5, the Tanglewood Study Group, 35 of whom are spending the full six weeks at Tanglewood, 22 for four weeks, and 55 for two week terms. Dept. 5 offers advanced students of music, professional or amateur, an opportunity to spend their vacations in absorption of music. Lukas Foss heads the department this summer. Last year 92 students had registered in the study group by mid-June.

As against last summer's 14 foreign students, Miss Bossler reports 30 to date, 12 from Canada, four from Cuba, three each from France and Israel, one each from Japan, Korea, Holland, Hungary, Greece, South Africa, Venezuela and Haiti. The study group includes seven from Canada, one each from France and Haiti.

A mother and son are students enrolled at the Berkshire Music Center, Mrs. Keith Rogers, president of the Island Radio Broadcasting Co., and her son, William Keith Rogers, musical director of radio station CFCY, both of Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, Can. There are three husband-wife combinations, also three ... of music departments of ... colleges.

Students of the Berkshire Music Center study orchestral playing and conducting under ... of the Juilliard School of Music New York City; chamber music under first-chair members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; choral singing and conducting under Hugh Ross; composition under Aaron Copland, Lukas Foss and guest composer Ernst Toch; opera under Frederic Cohen, of the Juilliard School; or are enrolled in the Tanglewood Study Group under Mr. Foss.

TIGHT BINDING

Mass. Dept. of Commerce "Commerce Briefs" - July 1954

NOTES FROM TANGLEWOOD

Works of the world's great masters of symphonic and chamber music will be presented during the Berkshire Festival, July 7 to August 15, at Tanglewood in Lenox. The series will feature the Boston Symphony Orchestra and its component parts. Each Wednesday and Friday evening will be devoted to chamber music, with concerts by the full orchestra Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons. The Tanglewood series is widely acclaimed as one of the outstanding summer musical events anywhere in the world.

TOLEDO, OHIO
TIMES
JUN 2

Summer Observations

By FREDERICK J. KOUNTZ

LAST Monday night another season of Stadium concerts was initiated in New York. Sir Adrian Boult was the conductor and Rudolf Firkusny, the pianist, was soloist. All of which leads one to pause and think.

New York, considering the metropolitan area, is probably the largest city in the world. It is too the most polygot. There is every race, every tongue in New York. It is a place where some people live, where many people work, where throngs visit. It has no aesthetic standards. In Boston, for example, Harvard University and the Boston Orchestra are elements which contribute to the city's cultural position. And the city in turn contributes to them. In New York, Columbia University and the New York Philharmonic are institutions which are in the city but not a part of it. The normal New Yorker expects that Columbia University will continue. He is not much concerned with the Philharmonic at all. Whether it continues or not does not trouble him deeply.

* * *

NEW YORK is not the place out of which will come final s[t]ements. Yet the Stadium [c]oncerts year in and year [o]ut—this will be the 37th [s]eason—have provided perha[p]s the best summer orchest[r]a in the country. There [is] no doubt that the Bost[o]n Orchestra's work in Tang[l]ewood is more all covering [t]horough going. But the [e]normous audiences it has [b]een enticing within the past [f]ew years, is still for the average listener will find [a]n expensive venture. And Tanglewood is a comparative newcomer in the summer concert field. In Lewisohn Stadium in New York one may procure a seat as little as 30 cents. And for that small sum he hear in a summer's span a great deal of the standard orchestral repertoire.

Even if the 30 cent seats sell, the man who sits in them is the same fellow who does not know much about Tanglewood and who probably could not afford to go there if he knew about it. But he wants something about music that has a sense of quality, now and again he finds what he wants in Lewisohn Stadium. Nineteen thousand people turned out last summer to see Jose Greco and his troupe. He will turn out in the summer for Jose Greco and for music.

We live in a troubled world, in a complicated civilization. But there is something normal, something reassuring about the Stadium concerts in New York. They lead one to the comforting thought that we are at bottom a sturdy and a simple nation.

* * *

THE Gold Baton Ball has come and gone and reports say it was an enormous success. It was a one-man show. The one man in the case was Mrs. James Lewis. And she proved several points. First that she is an unusually capable woman. She did more driving, more explicit organizing than any one person or any group of persons has done in the cause of the Toledo Orchestra since the inception of the Stresemann regime. She proved too that financial problems are not necessarily insurmountable. Until all the cards are in and face up it is always difficult to say whether such enterprises as Mrs. Lewis' have been materially rewarding. But she set a pattern. She demonstrated that something can be done about money. And whether it will develop that her contribution to the orchestral coffers is large or small, she did at least get the wheels spinning. She did not talk about what should be done. She did it. And that is accomplishment of a high order.

The Toledo Orchestra however is still an organization in music. Music should be, although all listeners are not regularly persuaded in that direction, its business. And one wonders presently how many of the Gold Baton Ball patrons will also hear the Toledo Orchestra in the coming season. And one wonders too how seriously they will regard this musical venture which, under its present musical direction, is mediocre at best.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN
JUN 27 1954

Second Thoughts in Music

Chamber Music Concerts On Wednesdays This Year

Recordings Available of Works to Be Heard in Theater Concert Hall at Tanglewood; Beethoven Trio in G and 'Appassionata' Sonata Listed

By WILLARD M. CLARK

The Berkshire [M]usic Festival at Tanglewood [o]n Wednesday night, July 7. It will not open with the pealing of trumpets or rumble of percussion. Rather it will open on an entirely new note, a program of chamber music. There will be six such programs on Wednesday nights. Heretofore, the chamber orchestra programs, devoted mainly to Bach and Mozart, have been the only small scale performances offered, but it appears that there has been a demand for a series of chamber music concerts, so you have them.

Arrau at Piano

It seems scarcely possible that a more distinguished list of performers could be assembled for these concerts. We note that pianist Claudio Arrau, and the Bel Arte Trio will open the first program. The Bel Arte Trio is composed of Ruth Posselt, violinist; Samuel Mayes, cello, and Joseph de Pasquale, violist. This admirable group will be heard in Beethoven's String Trio in G, Op. 9, No. 1. They have made a charming recording of this trio for Decca, matching it with the D major Trio, Op. 9, No. 2. D1-9635.

On the same program Claudio Arrau will give us his interpretation of Beethoven's "Appassionata" sonata, as well as the No. 110.

The second program on Wednesday night, July 14, introduces the famed Albeneri Trio. The program will include the Brahms Trio in B; Martinu Trio in D minor and Beethoven's Trio in B flat, known as the "Archduke" Trio.

Of this trio, there are several fine recorded performances. First of all we choose the reissued LCT version by Rubinstein, Heifetz and Feuermann, Victor LCT 1020. Our second choice is a fine performance by Fournier, Janigro and Badura-Skoda, made for Westminister on West. 5131.

Casals Recording

Our third choice brings us to the Casals Festival recordings where Istomin, Schneider and Casals provide a deeply felt and finely wrought performance on Columbia ML 4573. Brahms' Trio in B Op. 8 receives a fine, though somewhat tonally dated performance by Rubinstein, Heifetz and Feurmann on Victor LCT 1022.

The "Zimbler Sinfonietta," made up of members of the Boston Symphony orchestra, will be heard on Wednesday night, July 21. This admirable group of players has made a number of recordings for Decca and has appeared extensively in concert. Their program includes Vivaldi's "The Four Seasons"; Stravinsky's "Apollon Musagete" and Rossini's "Baroque Concerto." The first two works are for string orchestra.

Concert Hall Society provides an excellent recording of "The Four Seasons" on CHC-1 and another good performance is offered by Molinari and Cecelia orchestra on Cetra 50001. Igor Stravinsky conducts the RCA Victor orchestra in his 'own Apollon Musagete." Victor LM-1096.

Griller String Quartet

Of the many fine string quartet ensembles now playing, few rank higher than the Griller String Quartet. They will play a delectable program on Wednesday evening, July 28, consisting of the Mozart Quartet in E flat, K.428; the first performance of Block's quartet No. 4 and Beethoven's Quartet in G major, Op. 18, No. 2.

The only satisfactory recording of the Mozart K. 428 is by the Amadeus Quarter, West. 5099. The Beethoven quartets, Op. 18 have been wonderfully recorded by the Budapest String Quartet and Pascal String Quartet, the first recording for Columbia and the latter for Concert Hall Society. Which recordings are preferred is entirely a personal choice.

Following the Griller String Quartet comes the equally estimable Kroll String Quartet on Wednesday night, Aug. 4. They offer a varied program, rich in quality, consisting of Haydn's Quartet in D, Op. 64, No. 5, "The Lark"; Hindemith's Quartet No. 3 and Ravel's Quartet in F. We like the Budapest recording of the Haydn quartet which is made on Col. ML-4216.

The Fine Arts String Quartet has made an excellent record of the Hindemith Quartet, with the reverse side given over to the Ravel Quartet. This is a Mercury 10105 disc. Far superior is the performance of the Ravel Quartet by the Budapest Quartet, Col. ML-4091.

Final Program.

The final program of these chamber music recitals will be given on Wednesday night, Aug. 11 by Zino Francescatti, violinist, and Arthur Balsam, pianist. This promises to be one of the most exciting and satisfactory of concerts. The Duo will play two Brahms' sonatas, the A-major and D-major. Francescatti will play the unaccompanied Suite in C by Bach.

The two Brahms sonatas have received a highly intelligent and tonally satisfactory performances from Albert Spalding. He made these recordings for Remington, shortly before his death. Rem. 199-49.

These, then, are some of the fine recordings of works to be played during the six chamber music concerts of the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood. It is hoped that hearing these recordings will enhance your pleasure of listening to the live performances. These concerts will be given on six successive Wednesday nights, opening July 7 at 8.30 in the Theater-Concert Hall and concluding Aug. 11.

Six Chamber Music Concerts At Tanglewood

Also Ann[ou]ncement Aids For M[u]sic Students

Six chamber music [co]ncerts will be given this summer at [T]anglewood, L[e]nox, as a part of the enlarged Berkshire Festival of the Boston Symphony has been announced. The [co]ncerts will be given on six Wednesday evenings in the intimate Theatre-Concert Hall.

The chamber music concerts at Tanglewood were initiated by the late Mrs Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge, who for several years sponsored concerts to which Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, contributors to the support of the school, were invited. This custom of chamber music at Tanglewood continued as a part of the Berkshire Festival. Once the proceeds of the [co]ncerts will be used to benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund. Several of the artists participating will add to this benefit by contributing their services.

These concerts will be open to the public at a single ticket rate of $3 and $2, and orders are now being taken.

The following dates are announced: July 7, Claudio Arrau, piano, and the Bel Arte Trio; July 14, The Albeneri Trio; July 21, The Zimbler Sinfonietta; July 28, the Griller String Quartet; August 4, The Kroll String Quartet; August 11, Zino Francescatti, violin, and Artur Balsam, piano.

More than a dozen special scholarships and tuition aids to summer music students are being offered by the Berkshire Music Center. Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony, is the school's director, and composer Aaron Copland is assistant director.

The principal aid to the 400 students selected annually from applicants all over the U. S., Canada and abroad, is the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund, which in 1953 awarded grants for the tuition of 210 students. Established in 1947 by RCA-Victor, and since augmented from other sources, the fund is drawn upon each year for students selected as instrumentalists, conductors, singers, and composers, and is reimbursed by students when they are able to do so in order that others may benefit in future school years. Berkshire Music Center students will work during the six summer weeks at Tanglewood with such eminent faculty members as Jean Morel, head of the orchestra and conducting departments; Ernst Toch, teacher of composition; Frederic Cohen, head of the opera department; Hugh Ross, in the choral department; Lukas Foss, in the Tanglewood Study Group, a special section available to amateurs.

Various other special scholarships and tuition aids are offered. Further information can be obtained from the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

NEW HAVEN, CONN.
REGISTER
JUN 20 1954

Travel Agents, Carriers Seek Big Market With 'Package' Offers

The travel industry expects the best domestic summer season in several years, according to the American Express Travel Survey and Forecast. Travel agents, airlines, railroads and bus companies have broadened summer programs and stepped up schedules so that the summer vacation shopper can virtually write his own ticket. Hundreds of brightly wrapped "package vacations" are on sale at bargain prices.

Carriers and hotel representatives report these trends — short notice on domestic reservations and more requests for "Package tours" with rental cars added. While it is too early to make definite predictions, resort bookings reported are good. Railroad reservations are off but expected to pick up as the season advances. De luxe streamliners are being scheduled to include side trips to national parks and attractions of western and resort routes.

An estimated 11.4 million Americans will take vacations by plane, train, ship or bus. And 76 million will take 112 million motor trips of three days or more within the United States, spending approximately $12 billion, according to the Automobile Association of America.

Tourist Industry

Florida's summer tourist industry expects to reach an all-time high, according to a survey of 25 resort communities there. Miami Beach Chamber of Commerce states inquiries are 22 per cent ahead of 1953. Airlines servicing Miami report 10 to 30 per cent increases. Car rental has mushroomed to a $10,000,000 annual business in southern Florida where there are over 6,000 cars for rent.

Travel is now listed by 17 states among top three industries. Among major summer magnets are: Berkshire Music Festival, Tanglewood, Mass., July and August; North Carolina's Annual Craftsman's Fair, Asheville, July; the Pendleton Round-Up, mid-September; Wyoming and Montana's Indian dances and Wild West shows, July.

Canadian resort reservations are up. Canadian Pacific, Canadian National and Canada Steamship hotels are all ahead. Among the drawing cards are Britsh Empire and Commonwealth Games at Vancouver, B. C., July 30 to August 7; Calgary Stampede, July 5-10; Stratford, Ont., June 28; and Canadian National Exposition, Toronto, August 27 to September 11.

Inside U. S. A.

Over 4,000,000 summer vacationists are expected in the Pacific northwest; an accommodations survey reveals several new resorts, increased tourist capacity.

Wyoming tourist facilities now list 2,500 hotel rooms, 450 tourist

TANGLEWOOD — Lenox, Mass.

Berkshire Festival

BOSTON SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director

Opening tonight — Chamber Music Series

Claudio Arrau and Bel Arte Trio

Fri., July 9—Each Program (Theater)

Sat. Eve., Sun. Aft., July 10, 11—[illegible] Shed Concerts

Wed. Eve. Chamber Concerts

Fri. Eve. Theater Concerts

Tickets for Shed Concerts, $6.00 (Tax incl.), $5.50, $4, $3.00, $2, $2.50

Fri. Eve. Concerts—$3, $2; Wed. Eve. Concerts—$2, $1

NOTE: The attention of music lovers is called to the new Wednesday evening series of chamber concerts which open Wednesday, July 7 with CLAUDIO ARRAU, piano, and the BEL ARTE String Trio (Beethoven program).

For programs and ticket information write or phone:

TICKET OFFICE, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Phone—Lenox 600

[140]

TIGHT BINDING

Mass. Dept. of Commerce "Commerce Briefs" - July 1954

NOTES FROM TANGLEWOOD

Works of the world's great masters of symphonic and chamber music will be presented during the Berkshire Festival, July 7 to August 15, at Tanglewood in Lenox. The series will feature the Boston Symphony Orchestra and its component parts. Each Wednesday and Friday evening will be devoted to chamber music, with concerts by the full orchestra Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons. The Tanglewood series is widely acclaimed as one of the outstanding summer musical events anywhere in the world.

TOLEDO, OHIO
TIMES

JUN 2 4 1954

Summer Observations

By FREDERICK J. KOUNTZ

LAST Monday night another season of Stadium concerts was initiated in New York. Sir Adrian Boult was the conductor and Rudolf Firkusny, the pianist, was soloist. All of which leads one to pause and think.

New York, considering the metropolitan area, is probably the largest city in the world. It is too the most polygot. There is every race, every tongue in New York. It is a place where some people live, where many people work, where throngs visit. It has no aesthetic standards. In Boston, for example, Harvard University and the Boston Orchestra are elements which contribute to the city's cultural position. And the city in turn contributes to them. In New York, Columbia University and the New York Philharmonic are institutions which are in the city but not a part of it. The normal New Yorker expects that Columbia University will continue. He is not much concerned with the Philharmonic at all. Whether it continues or not does not trouble him deeply.

* * *

NEW YORK is not the place out of which will come final statements. Yet the Stadium concerts year in and year out—this will be the 37th season—have provided perhaps the best summer orchestral fare in the country. There is no doubt that the Boston Orchestra's work in Tanglewood is more all covering, more thorough going. But Tanglewood, in spite of the enormous audiences it has been enticing within the past few years, is still for the few. The average listener will find it an expensive venture. And Tanglewood is a comparative newcomer in the summer concert field. In Lewisohn Stadium in New York one may procure a seat for as little as 30 cents. Or that small sum he would pay in a summer's span at deal of the standard orchestral repertoire.

Of the 30 cent seats sell, the man who sits in them is the same fellow who does know much about Tanglewood and who probably could afford to go there if he knew about it. But he has something about music, has a sense of quality, and now and again he finds what he wants in Lewisohn Stadium. Nineteen thousand people turned out last summer to see Jose Greco and his troupe. He will turn out in the thousands this summer for Jose Greco and for music.

We live in a troubled word, in a complicated civilization. But there is something normal, something reassuring about the Stadium concerts in New York. They lead one to the comforting thought that we are at bottom a sturdy and a simple nation.

* * *

THE Gold Baton Ball has come and gone and reports say it was an enormous success. It was a one-man show. The one man in the case was Mrs. James Lewis. And she proved several points. First that she is an unusually capable woman. She did more driving, more explicit organizing than any one person or any group of persons has done in the cause of the Toledo Orchestra since the inception of the Stresemann regime. She proved too that financial problems are not necessarily insurmountable. Until all the cards are in and face up it is always difficult to say whether such enterprises as Mrs. Lewis' have been materially rewarding. But she set a pattern. She demonstrated that something can be done about money. And whether it will develop that her contribution to the orchestral coffers is large or small, she did at least get the wheels spinning. She did not talk about what should be done. She did it. And that is accomplishment of a high order.

The Toledo Orchestra however is still an organization in music. Music should be, although all listeners are not regularly persuaded in that direction, its business. And one wonders presently how many of the Gold Baton Ball patrons will also hear the Toledo Orchestra in the coming season. And one wonders too how seriously they will regard this musical venture which, under its present musical direction, is mediocre at best.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN

JUN 27 1954

Second Thoughts in Music

Chamber Music Concerts On Wednesdays This Year

Recordings Available of Works to Be Heard in Theater Concert Halt at Tanglewood; Beethoven Trio in G and 'Appassionata' Sonata Listed

By WILLARD M. CLARK

The Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood opens Wednesday night, July 7. It will not open with the pealing of trumpets or rumble of percussion. Rather it will open on an entirely new note, a program of chamber music. There will be six such programs on Wednesday nights. Heretofore, the chamber orchestra programs, devoted mainly to Bach and Mozart, have been the only small scale performances offered, but it appears that there has been a demand for a series of chamber music concerts, so you have them.

Arrau at Piano

It seems scarcely possible that a more distinguished list of performers could be assembled for these concerts. We note that pianist Claudio Arrau, and the Bel Arte Trio will open the first program. The Bel Arte Trio is composed of Ruth Posselt, violinist; Samuel Mayes, cello, and Joseph de Pasquale, violist. This admirable group will be heard in Beethoven's String Trio in G, Op. 9, No. 1. They have made a charming recording of this trio for Decca, matching it with the D major Trio, Op. 9, No. 2. D1-9635.

On the same program Claudio Arrau will give us his interpretation of Beethoven's "Appassionata" sonata, as well as the No. 110.

The second program on Wednesday night, July 14, introduces the famed Albeneri Trio. The program will include the Brahms Trio in B; Martinu Trio in D minor and Beethoven's Trio in B flat, known as the "Archduke" Trio.

Of this trio, there are several fine recorded performances. First of all we choose the reissued LCT version by Rubinstein, Heifetz and Feuermann, Victor LCT 1020. Our second choice is a fine performance by Fournier, Janigro and Badura-Skoda, made for Westminister on West. 5131.

Casals Recording

Our third choice brings us to the Casals Festival recordings where Istomin, Schneider and Casals provide a deeply felt and finely wrought performance on Columbia ML 4573. Brahms' Trio in B Op. 8 receives a fine, though somewhat tonally dated performance by Rubinstein, Heifetz and Feurmann on Victor LCT 1022.

The "Zimbler Sinfonietta," made up of members of the Boston Symphony orchestra, will be heard on Wednesday night, July 21. This admirable group of players has made a number of recordings for Decca and has appeared extensively in concert. Their program includes Vivaldi's "The Four Seasons"; Stravinsky's "Apollon Musagete" and Rossini's "Baroque Concerto." The first two works are for string orchestra.

Concert Hall Society provides an excellent recording of "The Four Seasons" on CHC-1 and another good performance is offered by Molinari and Cecelia orchestra on Cetra 50001. Igor Stravinsky conducts the RCA Victor orchestra in his own Apollon Musagete." Victor LM-1096.

Griller String Quartet

Of the many fine string quartet ensembles now playing, few rank higher than the Griller String Quartet. They will play a delectable program on Wednesday evening, July 28, consisting of the Mozart Quartet in E flat, K.428; the first performance of Block's quartet No. 4 and Beethoven's Quartet in G major, Op. 18, No. 2.

The only satisfactory recording of the Mozart K. 428 is by the Amadeus Quarter, West. 5099. The Beethoven quartets, Op. 18 have been wonderfully recorded by the Budapest String Quartet and Pascal String Quartet, the first recording for Columbia and the latter for Concert Hall Society. Which recordings are preferred is entirely a personal choice.

Following the Griller String Quartet comes the equally estimable Kroll String Quartet on Wednesday night, Aug. 4. They offer a varied program, rich in quality, consisting of Haydn's Quartet in D, Op. 64, No. 5, "The Lark"; Hindemith's Quartet No. 3 and Ravel's Quartet in F. We like the Budapest recording of the Haydn quartet which is made on Col. ML-4216.

The Fine Arts String Quartet has made an excellent record of the Hindemith Quartet, with the reverse side given over to the Ravel Quartet. This is a Mercury 10105 disc. Far superior is the performance of the Ravel Quartet by the Budapest Quartet, Col. ML-4091.

Final Program.

The final program of these chamber music recitals will be given on Wednesday night, Aug. 11 by Zino Francescatti, violinist, and Arthur Balsam, pianist. This promises to be one of the most exciting and satisfactory of concerts. The Duo will play two Brahms' sonatas, the A-major and D-major. Francescatti will play the unaccompanied Suite in C by Bach.

The two Brahms sonatas have received a highly intelligent and tonally satisfactory performances from Albert Spalding. He made these recordings for Remington, shortly before his death. Rem. 199-49.

These, then, are some of the fine recordings of works to be played during the six chamber music concerts of the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood. It is hoped that hearing these recordings will enhance the pleasure of listening to the live performances. These concerts will be given on six successive Wednesday nights, opening July 7 at 8.30 in the Theater-Concert Hall and concluding Aug. 11

[illegible]

Six Chamber Music Concerts At Tanglewood

Also Ann[illegible]uition Aids For Music[illegible]ents

Six chamber music co[illegible] be given this summer at [illegible]wood, La[illegible], as a p[illegible] enlarged Berkshire Festiv[illegible] Boston Symphony Orc[illegible] has been announced. T[illegible] be given on six Wednesday evenings in the intimate Theatre-Concert Hall.

The chamber music concerts at Tanglewood were initiated by the late Mrs Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge, who for several years sponsored concerts to which Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, contributors to the support of the school, were invited. This custom of chamber music at Tanglewood continued as a part of the [illegible]shire Festival [illegible]oncerts. The proceeds of the ticket sales will be used to benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund. Several of the artists participating will add to this benefit by contributing their services.

These concerts will be open to the public at a single ticket rate of $3 and $2, and orders are now being taken.

The following dates are announced: July 7, Claudio Arrau, piano, and the Bel Arte Trio; July 14, The Albeneri Trio; July 21, The Zimbler Sinfonietta; July 28, the Griller String Quartet; August 4, The Kroll String Quartet; August 11, Zino Francescatti, violin, and Artur Balsam, piano.

More than a dozen special scholarships and tuition aids to summer music students are being offered by the Berkshire Music Center. Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony, is the school's director, and composer Aaron Copland is assistant director.

The principal aid to the 400 students selected annually from applicants all over the U. S., Canada and abroad, is the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund, which in 1953 awarded grants for the tuition of 210 students. Established in 1947 by RCA-Victor, and since augmented from other sources, the fund is drawn upon each year for students selected as instrumentalists, conductors, singers, and composers, and is reimbursed by students when they are able to do so in order that others may benefit in future school years. Berkshire Music Center students will work during the six summer weeks at Tanglewood with such eminent faculty members as Jean Morel, head of the orchestra and conducting departments; Ernst Toch, teacher of composition; Frederic Cohen, head of the opera department; Hugh Ross, in the choral department; Lukas Foss, in the Tanglewood Study Group, a special section available to amateurs.

Various other special scholarships and tuition aids are offered. Further information can be obtained from the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

NEW HAVEN, CONN.
REGISTER

JUN 20 1954

Travel Agents, Carriers Seek Big Market With 'Package' Offers

The travel industry expects the best domestic summer season in several years, according to the American Express Travel Survey and Forecast. Travel agents, airlines, railroads and bus companies have broadened summer programs and stepped up schedules so that the summer vacation shopper can virtually write his own ticket. Hundreds of brightly wrapped "package vacations" are on sale at bargain prices.

Carriers and hotel representatives report these trends — short notice on domestic reservations and more requests for "Package tours" with rental cars added. While it is too early to make definite predictions, resort bookings reported are good. Railroad reservations are off but expected to pick up as the season advances. De luxe streamliners are being scheduled to include side trips to national parks and attractions of western and resort routes.

An estimated 11.4 million Americans will take vacations by plane, train, ship or bus. And 70 million will take 112 million motor trips of three days or more within the United States, spending approximately $12 billion, according to the Automobile Association of America.

Tourist Industry

Florida's summer tourist industry expects to reach [illegible] high, according to [illegible] resort commun[illegible] Miami Beach Chamber of [illegible] states inquiries are [illegible] per cent ahead of 1953. [illegible] Miami report [illegible] per cent increases. Car [illegible] has mush roomed to a $10,000,000 annual bus [illegible] in southern Florida wher[illegible] there are over 6,000 cars for rent.

Travel is now listed by 17 states among top three industries. Among major summer magnets are: Berkshire Music Festival, Tanglewood, Mass., July and August; North Carolina's Annual Craftsman's Fair, Asheville, July; the Pendleton Round-Up, mid-September; Wyoming and Montana's Indian dances and Wild West shows, July.

Canadian resort reservations are up. Canadian Pacific, Canadian National and Canada Steamship hotels are all ahead. Among the drawing cards are Britsh Empire and Commonwealth Games at Vancouver, B. C., July 30 to August 7; Calgary Stampede, July 5-10; Stratford, Ont., June 28; and Canadian National Exposition, Toronto, August 27 to September 11.

Inside U. S. A.

Over 4,000,000 summer vacationists are expected in the Pacific northwest; an accommodations survey reveals several new resorts, increased tourist capacity.

Wyoming tourist facilities now list 2,500 hotel rooms, 450 tourist

TANGLEWOOD — Lenox, Mass.

Berkshire Festival

BY THE BOSTON SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director

Opening tonight — Chamber Music Series
Claudio Arrau and Bel Arte Trio
Fri., July 9—Bach Program (Theater)
Sat. Eve., Sun. Aft., July 10, 11—Opening Shed Concerts

● 6 Wed. Eve. Chamber Concerts ● 6 SAT. EVE. Shed Concerts
● 6 FRI. Eve. Theater Concerts ● 6 SUN. AFT. Shed Concerts

Tickets for Shed Concerts, $6.50 (Reg. Series), $5.50, $4, $3.50, $3, $2.50
Friday Concerts—$6, $5; Wednesday Concerts—$3, $2

NOTE: The attention of music lovers is called to the new Wednesday evening series of chamber concerts which open Wednesday, July 7 with CLAUDIO ARRAU, piano, and the BEL ARTE String Trio (Beethoven program).

For programs and ticket information write or phone:
TICKET OFFICE, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Phone—Lenox 600

[140]

TIGHT BINDING

Mass. Dept. of Commerce "Commerce Briefs" - July 1954

NOTES FROM TANGLEWOOD

Works of the world's great masters of symphonic and chamber music will be presented during the Berkshire Festival, July 7 to August 15, at Tanglewood in Lenox. The series will feature the Boston Symphony Orchestra and its component parts. Each Wednesday and Friday evening will be devoted to chamber music, with concerts by the full orchestra Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons. The Tanglewood series is widely acclaimed as one of the outstanding summer musical events anywhere in the world.

TOLEDO, OHIO
TIMES

JUN 9 19[illegible]

Summer Observations

By FREDERICK J. KOUNTZ

LAST Monday night another season of Stadium concerts was initiated in New York. Sir Adrian Boult was the conductor and Rudolf Firkusny, the pianist, was soloist. All of which leads one to pause and think.

New York, considering the metropolitan area, is probably the largest city in the world. It is too the most polygot. There is every race, every tongue in New York. It is a place where some people live, where many people work, where throngs visit. It has no aesthetic standards. In Boston, for example, Harvard University and the Boston Orchestra are elements which contribute to the city's cultural position. And the city in turn contributes to them. In New York, Columbia University and the New York Philharmonic are institutions which are in the city but not a part of it. The normal New Yorker expects that Columbia University will continue. He is not much concerned with the Philharmonic at all. Whether it continues or not does not trouble him deeply.

* * *

NEW YORK is not the place out of which will come final statements. Yet the Stadium concerts year in and year out—this will be the 37th season—have provided perhaps the best summer orchestral fare in the country. There is no doubt that the Boston Orchestra's work in Tanglewood is more all covering, more thorough going. But Tanglewood, in spite of the enormous audiences it has been enticing within the past years, is still for the few. The average listener will find it an expensive venture. And Tanglewood is a comparative newcomer in the summer concert field. In Lewisohn Stadium in New York one may procure a seat for as little as 30 cents. And for that small sum he will hear in a summer's span a great deal of the standard orchestral repertoire.

And the 30 cent seats sell. And the man who sits in them is the same fellow who does not know much about Tanglewood and who probably could not afford to go there if he did know about it. But he knows something about music, he has a sense of quality, and now and again he finds what he wants in Lewisohn Stadium. Nineteen thousand of him turned out last summer to see Jose Greco and his troupe. He will turn out again in the thousands this summer for Jose Greco and for music.

We live in a troubled word, in a complicated civilization. But there is something normal, something reassuring about the Stadium concerts in New York. They lead one to the comforting thought that we are at bottom a sturdy and a simple nation.

* * *

THE Gold Baton Ball has come and gone and reports say it was an enormous success. It was a one-man show. The one man in the case was Mrs. James Lewis. And she proved several points. First that she is an unusually capable woman. She did more driving, more explicit organizing than any one person or any group of persons has done in the cause of the Toledo Orchestra since the inception of the Stresemann regime. She proved too that financial problems are not necessarily insurmountable. Until all the cards are in and face up it is always difficult to say whether such enterprises as Mrs. Lewis' have been materially rewarding. But she set a pattern. She demonstrated that something can be done about money. And whether it will develop that her contribution to the orchestral coffers is large or small, she did at least get the wheels spinning. She did not talk about what should be done. She did it. And that is accomplishment of a high order.

The Toledo Orchestra however is still an organization in music. Music should be, although all listeners are not regularly persuaded in that direction, its business. And one wonders presently how many of the Gold Baton Ball patrons will also hear the Toledo Orchestra in the coming season. And one wonders too how seriousiy they will regard this musical venture which, under its present musical direction, is mediocre at best.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN

JUN 27 1954

Second Thoughts in Music

Chamber Music Concerts On Wednesdays This Year

Recordings Available of Works to Be Heard in Theater Concert Halt at Tanglewood; Beethoven Trio in G and 'Appassionata' Sonata Listed

By WILLARD M. CLARK

The Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood opens Wednesday night, July 7. It will not open with the pealing of trumpets or rumble of percussion. Rather it will open on an entirely new note, a program of chamber music. There will be six such programs on Wednesday nights. Heretofore, the chamber orchestra programs, devoted mainly to Bach and Mozart, have been the only small scale performances offered, but it appears that there has been a demand for a series of chamber music concerts, so you have them.

Arrau at Piano

It seems scarecly possible that a more distinguished list of performers could be assembled for these concerts. We note that pianist Claudio Arrau, and the Bel Arte Trio will open the first program. The Bel Arte Trio is composed of Ruth Posselt, violinist; Samuel Mayes, cello, and Joseph de Pasquale, violist. This admirable group will be heard in Beethoven's String Trio in G, Op. 9, No. 1. They have made a charming recording of this trio for Decca, matching it with the D major Trio, Op. 9, No. 2. D1-9635.

On the same program Claudio Arrau will give us his interpretation of Beethoven's "Appassionata" sonata, as well as the No. 110.

The second program on Wednesday night, July 14, introduces the famed Albeneri Trio. The program will include the Brahms Trio in B; Martinu Trio in D minor and Beethoven's Trio in B flat, known as the "Archduke" Trio.

Of this trio, there are several fine recorded performances. First of all we choose the reissued LCT version by Rubinstein, Heifetz and Feuermann, Victor LCT 1020. Our second choice is a fine performance by Fournier, Janigro and Badura-Skoda, made for Westminister on West. 5131.

Casals Recording

Our third choice brings us to the Casals Festival recordings where Istomin, Schneider and Casals provide a deeply felt and finely wrought performance on Columbia ML 4573. Brahms' Trio in B Op. 8 receives a fine, though somewhat tonally dated performance by Rubinstein, Heifetz and Feurmann on Victor LCT 1022.

The "Zimbler Sinfonietta," made up of members of the Boston Symphony orchestra, will be heard on Wednesday night, July 21. This admirable group of players has made a number of recordings for Decca and has appeared extensively in concert. Their program includes Vivaldi's "The Four Seasons"; Stravinsky's "Apollon Musagete" and Rossini's "Baroque Concerto." The first two works are for string orchestra.

Concert Hall Society provides an excellent recording of "The Four Seasons" on CHC-1 and another good performance is offered by Molinari and Cecelia orchestra on Cetra 50001. Igor Stravinsky conducts the RCA Victor orchestra in his own Appollon Musagete." Victor LM-1096.

Griller String Quartet

Of the many fine string quartet ensembles now playing, few rank higher than the Griller String Quartet. They will play a delectable program on Wednesday evening, July 28, consisting of the Mozart Quartet in E flat, K.428; the first performance of Block's quartet No. 4 and Beethoven's Quartet in G major, Op. 18, No. 2.

The only satisfactory recording of the Mozart K. 428 is by the Amadeus Quarter, West. 5099. The Beethoven quartets, Op. 18 have been wonderfully recorded by the Budapest String Quartet and Pascal String Quartet, the first recording for Columbia and the latter for Concert Hall Society. Which recordings are preferred is entirely a personal choice.

Following the Griller String Quartet comes the equally estimable Kroll String Quartet on Wednesday night, Aug. 4. They offer a varied program, rich in quality, consisting of Haydn's Quartet in D, Op. 64, No. 5, "The Lark"; Hindemith's Quartet No. 3 and Ravel's Quartet in F. We like the Budapest recording of the Haydn quartet which is made on Col. ML-4216.

The Fine Arts String Quartet has made an excellent record of the Hindemith Quartet, with the reverse side given over to the Ravel Quartet. This is a Mercury 10105 disc. Far superior is the performance of the Ravel Quartet by the Budapest Quartet, Col. ML-4091.

Final Program.

The final program of these chamber music recitals will be given on Wednesday night, Aug. 11 by Zino Francescatti, violinist, and Arthur Balsam, pianist. This promises to be one of the most exciting and satisfactory of concerts. The Duo will play two Brahms' sonatas, the A-major and D-major. Francescatti will play the unaccompanied Suite in C by Bach.

The two Brahms sonatas have received a highly intelligent and tonally satisfactory performances from Albert Spalding. He made these recordings for Remington, shortly before his death. Rem. 199-49.

These, then, are some of the fine recordings of works to be played during the six chamber music concerts of the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood. It is hoped that hearing these recordings will enhance the pleasure of listening to the live performances. These concerts will be given on six successive Wednesday nights, opening July 7 at 8.30 in the Theater-Concert Hall and concluding Aug. 11

[illegible]

n Six Chamber Music Concerts At Tanglewood

Also Ann[illegible]uition Aids For Music [illegible]dents

Six chamber music co[illegible]s will be given this summer at [illegible]wood, Le[illegible]ass., as a p[illegible] of t[illegible] enlarged Berkshire Festiva[illegible] t[illegible] Boston Symphony Orche[illegible]a has been announced. Th[illegible] be given on six Wednesday evenings n the intimate Theatre-Concert Hall.

The chamber music concerts at Tanglewood were initiated by the ate Mrs Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge, who for several years sponsored concerts to which Friends of he Berkshire Music Center, contributors to the support of the school, were invited. This cust[illegible] of chamber music at Tanglewo[illegible] continued as a part of the [illegible]shire Festival [illegible]ncer[illegible] the proceeds of the ticket [illegible]o will be used to benefit t[illegible]lewood Revolving Scholarsh[illegible]und. Several of the artists participating will add to this benefit by contributing their services.

These concerts will be open to the public at a single ticket rate of $3 and $2, and orders are now being taken.

The following dates are announced: July 7, Claudio Arrau, piano, and the Bel Arte Trio; July 14, The Albeneri Trio; July 21, The Zimbler Sinfonietta; July 28, the Griller String Quartet; August 4. The Kroll String Quartet; August 11, Zino Francescatti, violin, and Artur Balsam, piano.

More than a dozen special scholarships and tuition aids to summer music students are being offered by the Berkshire Music Center. Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony, is the school's director, and composer Aaron Copland is assistant director.

The principal aid to the 400 students selected annually from applicants all over the U. S., Canada and abroad, is the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund, which in 1953 awarded grants for the tuition of 210 students. Established in 1947 by RCA-Victor, and since augmented from other sources, the fund is drawn upon each year for students selected as instrumentalists, conductors, singers, and composers, and is reimbursed by students when they are able to do so in order that others may benefit in future school years. Berkshire Music Center students will work during the six summer weeks at Tanglewood with such eminent faculty members as Jean Morel, head of the orchestra and conducting departments; Ernst Toch, teacher of composition; Frederic Cohen, head of the opera department; Hugh Ross, in the choral department; Lukas Foss, in the Tanglewood Study Group, a special section available to amateurs.

Various other special scholarships and tuition aids are offered. Further information can be obtained from the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

NEW HAVEN, CONN.
REGISTER

JUN 20 1954

vel Agents, Carriers Seek Market With 'Package' Offers

e travel industry expects the best domestic summer season i years, according to the American Express Travel Survey an st. Travel agents, airlines, railroads and bus compan roadened summer programs and stepped up schedules so t mmer vacation shopper can virtually write his own ticket. f brightly wrapped "package vacations" are on sale at ba ers and hotel represen report these trends — shor e on domestic reservation ore requests for "Packag with rental cars adde it is too early to make de redictions, resort booking d are good. Railroad reser are off but expected to pic the season advances. De reamliners are being sched include side trips to na parks and attractions o and resort routes.

stimated 114 million Amer ill take vacations by plan ship or bus. And 76 milli ke 112 million motor tri e days or more within t States, spending approx $12 billion, according to t obile Association of Amer

Tourist Industry

da's summer tourist indu pects to reach an all-t according to a survey of communities there Ma Chamber of Commerce inquiries are 22 per ce of 1953. Airlines service report 10 to 30 per ce es. Car rental has mo to a $10,000,000 annual bu southern Florid whe

there are over 6,000 cars for ren

Travel is now listed by 17 state among top three industries. A major summer magnets are: Berkshire Music Festival, Tan wood, Mass., July and Augus North Carolina's Annual Craf man's Fair, Asheville, July Pendleton Round-Up, mid-Septem ber; Wyoming and Montana's I dian dances and Wild West sho July.

Canadian resort reservations a up. Canadian Pacific, Canadian N tional and Canada Steamship hotel are all ahead. Among the dra ing cards are Britsh Empire and Commonwealth Games at Van couver, B. C., July 30 to August 7; Calgary Stampede, July 5-1 Stratford, Ont., June 28; and Canadian National Exposition, Toronto, August 27 to September 11.

Inside U. S. A.

Over 4,000,000 summer vacationists are expected in the Pacific northwest; an accommodations survey reveals several new resorts, increased tourist capacity.

Wyoming tourist facilities now list 2,500 hotel rooms, 450 tourist

TANGLEWOOD — Lenox, Mass.

Berkshire Festival

BY THE BOSTON SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director

Opening tonight — Chamber Music Series
Claudio Arrau and Bel Arte Trio
Fri., July 9—Bach Program (Theater)
Sat. Eve., Sun. Aft., July 10, 11—Opening Shed Concerts

● 6 Wed. Eve. Chamber Concerts ● 6 SAT. EVE. Shed Concerts
● 6 FRI. Eve. Theater Concerts ● 6 SUN. AFT. Shed Concerts

Tickets for Shed Concerts, $6.50 (Box Seats), $5.50, $4, $3.50, $3, $2.50
Friday Concerts—$4, $5; Wednesday Concerts—$2, $3

NOTE: The attention of music lovers is called to the new Wednesday evening series of chamber concerts which open Wednesday, July 7 with CLAUDIO ARRAU, piano, and the BEL ARTE String Trio (Beethoven program).

For programs and ticket information write or phone:
TICKET OFFICE, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Phone—Lenox 600

[140]

SPRINGFIELD FREE PRESS, JULY 3, 1954

BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL CONCERTS

The 17th Berkshire Festival since concerts were inaugurated in the hills of Western Massachusetts in 1934, the fifteenth since the Boston Symphony Orchestra first participated, will commence six weeks of 24 concerts on Wednesday evening (July 7) at 8:30 p.m. in the Theater-Concert Hall at an all-Beethoven program of chamber music, featuring Claudio Arrau, pianist, and the Bel Arte String Trio. On Friday (July 9) also at 8:30 p.m. in the Theater-Concert Hall, Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will conduct a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players in an all-Bach program, with Lukas Foss as piano soloist.

For the first time in Berkshire Festival history, Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon concerts will be given commencing the opening weekend, July 10 at 8:30 p.m. and July 11 at 2:30 p.m. in the Music Shed. Mr. Munch will lead the full 104-piece Boston Symphony Orchestra on Saturday evening in the first Tanglewood presentation of Hector Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust," with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society directed by G. Wallace Woodworth participating, and soloists Eleanor Steber (Marguerite), David Poleri (Faust), Martial Singher (Mephistopheles) and Donald Gramm (Brander). On Sunday afternoon guest conductor Pierre Monteux will conduct the full Boston Symphony in an all-Beethoven program, with Claudio Arrau as piano soloist, the occasion marking the 30th anniversary of Mr. Arrau's first appearance with the orchestra which was then under the baton of Mr. Monteux.

Since 1938 when the 6000-seat Music Shed was erected on the Tanglewood estate where Nathaniel Hawthorne was a guest a century ago, open on three sides so the music might spill out to the thousands who listen to it on the grass under the stars, the Berkshire Festival has attracted increasingly large crowds from all over Eastern U. S. and Canada until last summer all attendance records were broken, with an average of 10,200 at each Shed concert.

To accommodate its growing crowds of music lovers, the 1954 Berkshire Festival has been increased in scope within its six-week framework; twelve Shed concerts instead of last year's nine, on Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons.

"Eagle" July 7, 1954

Tanglewood Tales

The first concert program by the Orchestra of Department I tomorrow at 8:30 p.m. in the Music Shed follows:

Saturday Evening, July 17
Pierre Monteux, Conductor
Excerpts, St. Sebastian' ..... Debussy
Les Djinns, for piano and orchestra:
soloist, Vera Franceschi ..... Franck
La Mer ..... Debussy
Symphony in D minor ..... Franck

Saturday Evening, July 24
Jean Morel, Conductor
Symphony No. 6 ..... Prokofieff
E flat piano concerto; soloist, Nicole Henriot ..... Liszt
Don Juan ..... Strauss
Enigma Variations ..... Elgar

Sunday Afternoon August 1
Richard Burgin, Conductor
An American Festival Overture, Wm. Schuman
Fantasia on a Theme by Thomas Tallis ..... Vaughan Williams
Violin concerto; soloist, Ruth Posselt, Khatchaturian
Symphony No. 2 ..... Sibelius

Saturday Evening August 14
Charles Munch, Conductor
Tragic Overture ..... Brahms
Symphony No. 4 ..... Piston
Le Tombeau de Couperin ..... Ravel
Symphony No. 3 (with organ) ..... Saint-Saens

Guides Welcome Summer Students

An informal party, given by the guides to welcome the 400 summer students of the Berkshire Music Center, was held in Wheatleigh, the men students' residence at Tanglewood, Saturday evening prior to the commencement of classes Monday of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's summer school of music.

Five of the college student guides, Calvin Bedford, of Middlebury, Vt., Tim Wilson, of New York (Yale), Allen Wardwell, of New York (Yale), Talbott Huey, of Baltimore (Princeton), and Tim Cogan, of New York (Harvard), assisted by students Michael Sahl, New York, Barney Childs, Reno, and James Cusato, Pittsfield, formed a vocal octet, "The Tangle Tones," whose selections were an immense hit, which also included songs by Crayton Bedford, accompanied by Michael Sahl; and McHenry Boatright, of Boston, a student in opera dramatics.

The orchestra for dancing, organized by Jules Hirsch, of New York, personnel manager of the student orchestra of the Berkshire Music Center, consisted of Abe Segal, New York (Department V), violin; Frank Reilly, Gardner, Mass. (Dept. II), violin; Charles Hedlund, Hingham, Mass. (Dept. II), piano; Stephen Simon, New York (Dept. V), piano; Richard Reardon, saxophone; Elyze Illu, Ames, Iowa, harp; Jules Hirsch, bass; Allyn Ferguson, San José, Calif., (Dept. III), piano; and Arthur McKrr, Baltimore (Lifeguard) trombone.

Decorations and refreshments were provided by Frank Reynolds, Wheatleigh manager.

Tim Cogan was master of ceremonies for the entertainment.

N.Y. Student Is Fined $25 Following Crash

LENOX—The operator of a car which crashed into another on West Street here last night was fined a total of $25 in District Court here this morning when found guilty of failing to keep to the right and driving without a proper license.

William V. Silver, 19, a New York City student working for the summer at a local resort, pleaded innocent to both charges.

Injured in the accident, which occurred at about 5 p.m. a mile west of the center of town were Fernand Gillet, a music teacher from Brookline and operator of the second car involved in the accident, and Miss Susan Mann of New York City, a passenger in the car operated by Silver.

Trooper Howard J. O'Brien of the Lee barracks told the court that Silver was driving a Cadillac, owned by Miss Mann's father, west on West Street when he swerved into the car operated by Gillet, headed in the opposite direction. The injured were treated at the scene by Dr. Carl A. Bergan of Lenox.

The charge of driving without a proper license had been brought against Silver, Trooper O'Brien explained, as he was driving a New York car in Massachusetts with a California license.

Silver testified that the accident occurred when his passenger became excited and grabbed him by the arm and the knee. Judge Albert Clark observed that such passengers should be kept in the back seat.

The judge fined Silver $15 for failing to keep to the right and $10 for not having a proper license.

Bus Schedule Announced for Festival Concerts

Thomas E. MacDonald, general manager of the Berkshire Street Railway Co., announced today a schedule of special bus service to the Berkshire Symphonic Festival concerts at Tanglewood. The buses will leave from Park Square and return at the completion of the concerts.

The schedule follows:

7:30 p.m. Wednesday, July 7, 14, 21, 28; Aug. 4, 11.

7:30 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 12.

7:30 p.m. Friday, July 9, 16, 23, 30; Aug. 6.

7:30 p.m. Saturday, July 10, 17, 24, 31; Aug. 7, 14.

1:30 p.m. Sunday, July 11, 18, 25; Aug. 1, 8, 15.

9 a.m. Saturday, July 10, 17, 24, 31; Aug. 7, 14.

Buses will also operate to "Tanglewood on Parade," Friday, Aug. 13.

LAST WEEK Sir Adrian Boult appeared in two places at once, in a way. He was written up in The New Yorker magazine, and also visited Tanglewood. Sir Adrian is guest conductor at the Lewisohn Stadium, New York, and in The New Yorker said, "I deplore the airplanes at the Stadium. Very, very tiresome." Indeed, in most of his interviews he takes a swipe at the planes which interfere with his conducting at the out-door stadium. He probably would love Tanglewood. At most, we've heard no more than one small Cub chug over.

see other side

SEASON'S FIRST CONCERT GIVEN AT TANGLEWOOD

Bel Arte Trio, Pianist Claudio Arrau Please Audience Of 1400

By WILLARD M. CLARK

Tanglewood, July 7—It was to the accompaniment of one of those minor storms so bountiful in these Berkshire Hills that the first of the Berkshire festival concerts got underway tonight. However, the skies cleared and the rain in no way affected the size or enthusiasm of the audience. Approximately 1400 persons sat in the theater-shed or outside benches and welcomed this first concert in the series of six chamber music concerts with right goodwill.

Part of Festival

Berkshire County has long been richly provided with chamber music through the beneficence of the late Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge. The chamber concerts which she gave at Tanglewood, alone or through the Library of Congress, are continued in these Wednesday evening chamber series now a part of the festival.

Such concerts draw a distinctly different audience than other concerts. Those here tonight seemed to be real musicians, understanding and appreciative. They listened with an intensity that one could almost feel, and their attention was richly rewarded.

First to be heard was the Bel Arte trio, made up of Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola; and Martin Hoherman, cello. These distinguished musicians have played together for several seasons and the results were revealed tonight in the blend of tone, unanimity of feeling and a virtuosity used only as a means to an end. Miss Posselt, who is sometimes dominant when a member of a quartet ensemble, tonight was just one of three musicians making beautiful music, even though the melodic burden was largely hers.

The trio played one of the two trios for stringed instruments Beethoven wrote, namely the "String Trio in G Major, Op. 9, No. 1." This is an attractive and highly listenable worth with a particularly fine slow movement. It was played with complete understanding of its content and with rare expressivity. It was no surprise that the players were called back repeatedly after the performance.

Claudio Arrau, as pianist of great experience, who will observe the 30th anniversary of his initial appearance with the Boston Symphony Orchestra when he plays the "Emperor" concerto Sunday afternoon, played three Beethoven sonatas, the "Sonata in F Sharp Minor, Op. 78," the "Sonata in A Flat Major, Op. 110" and the "Sonata in F Minor, Op. 57" familiarly known as the "Appassionata." Last season Mr. Arrau played the entire series of Beethoven piano sonatas in Town Hall, New York, during seven concerts. This winter he will play all the Mozart piano sonatas.

His performances tonight were finely detailed, intelligently conceived and brilliantly executed. There was charm and buoyance in the Opus 78 Sonata, and a beautifully intimate and lyrical exposition of the Opus 110. A sonata in which Beethoven turned away from the colossal sonata structure of the "Hammerklavier Sonata," and in this "Sonata in A Flat Major" gives us a work which is subtle, erudite and glowingly expressive.

The pianist's conception of the "Appassionata" was forthright and in the grand manner. The two end movements had the required sound and fury, yet were kept within the bounds of good musical taste. The theme of the slow movement was beautifully announced and the variations played with imagination. It was a performance of one who had lived with this sonata for a long time.

Friday night, Charles Munch will make his initial appearance of the festival conducting a chamber orchestra in five of the Brandenburg concerti. Only No. 4 is being omitted. Lukas Foss will be the soloist in No. 5, which, in reality is a concerto for piano and orchestra.

Concerts in the shed open Saturday night when "The Damnation of Faust" will be performed by the orchestra, Harvard and Radcliffe choristers and soloists Eleanor Steber, Martial Singher, David Poleri and Donald Gramm. Mr. Munch will conduct. Sunday afternoon Pierre Monteux will make his initial appearance leading the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a program which includes Beethoven's "Leonora Overture No. 3," his fifth symphony and the "Emperor" piano concerto with Mr. Arrau at the piano.

Page 16—CATSKILL DAILY MAIL, THURSDAY, JULY 8, 1954

Munch Announces Berkshire Festival Program Changes

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra announces changes in the concert of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., to be played by the orchestra in the Music Shed at 2:30 p. m. on Sunday afternoon, Aug. 1.

Richard Burgin, concertmaster of the Boston Symphony, who will conduct the orchestra that afternoon, with his wife, Ruth Posselt, as violin soloist, has scheduled the program to commence with William Schuman's "An American Festival Overture," to be followed by Vaughan Williams' "Fantasia on a Theme by Thomas Tallis," then by the Khatchaturian violin concerto, in which Miss Posselt will be soloist. These selections replace the previously scheduled "Chout ballet suite of Prokofieff and the Dvorak violin concerto.

Changes in the Berkshire Festival programs previously announced involve the concert of Aug. 14, in place of Miss Henriot's piano concerto, Mr. Munch will conduct Ravel's "Le Tombeau de Couperin," and Brahms' "Tragic Overture" in place of the Prelude to "Lohengrin" by Wagner. Pierre Monteux's originally planned all-Franck concert of July 17 has had Debussy's Excerpts from "St. Sebastian" and "La Mer" substituted for Franck's "Le Chasseur Maudit" and "Les Eolides."

Revised programs are listed below:

Saturday evening July 17—Pierre Monteux, conductor:; Debussy: Excerpts, "St. Sebastian"; Franck: "Les Djinns," for Piano and Orchestra; soloist, Vera Franceschi; Debussy: "La Mer"; Franck: Symphony in D Minor.

Saturday evening July 24—Jean Morel, conductor:; Prokofieff: Symphony No. 6; Liszt: E flat Piano Concerto; soloist, Nicole Henriot; Strauss: "Don Juan"; Elgar: "Enigma" Variations.

Sunday afternoon Aug. 1—Richard Burgin, conductor:; Wm. Schuman: "An American Festival Overture"; Vaughan Williams: "Fantasia on a Theme by Thomas Tallis"; Khatchaturian: Violin Concerto; soloist, Ruth Posselt; Sibelius: Symphony No. 2.

Saturday evening Aug. 14—Charles Munch, conductor:; Brahms: "Tragic Overture"; Piston: Symphony No. 4; Ravel: "Le Tombeau de Couperin"; Saint-Seans: Symphony No. 3 (with organ).

BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL—Friday, July 9, at 8:... Charles Munch conducting a chamber ... chestra, made up of members of the ... Symphony, in a program of Bach's ... burg" concertos with Lukas Foss ... ¶ Saturday, July 10, at 8:30: Ch... directing the Boston Symphony ... formance of Berlioz's "The ... Faust," with Eleanor Steber, ... Poleri, tenor; Martial Singher, ... and Gramm, bass-baritone; the ... Club and the Radcliffe Choral ... ¶ Sunday, July 11, at 2:30: ... conducting the Boston Symphony ... Beethoven program, with Claudio ... piano. ... ¶ Wednesday, July 14, at 8:... Albeneri Trio. ... ¶ Friday, July 16, at 8:... Charles Munch conducting a chamber ... chestra, made up of members of the ... Symphony, in an all-Bach program ... urday, July 17, at 8:30: Pierre Monteux ... ducting the Boston Symphony, with ... Francesca ... piano. (Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. ... Sunday, Aug. 15.)

N.Y. "Herald-Tribune" July 9, 1954

11

Berkshire Festival Opens With Beethoven Evening

Special to the Herald-Tribune

TANGLEWOOD, Lenox, Mass., July 7.—A capacity audience of 1,200 filled the theater-concert hall here Wednesday night as the 1954 Berkshire Festival opened with a chamber music concert featuring Claudio Arrau, pianist, and the Bel Arte Trio (Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola, and Martin Hoherman, cello) in a Beethoven program including the Trio for Strings in G, Op. 9, No. 1, and three piano sonatas.

It is twenty years since the first Berkshire Festival was given at the Hanna Farm in near-by Stockbridge, and this will be the fifteenth summer in which the Boston Symphony Orchestra has participated. Charles Munch, music director of the Bostonians, will make his first appearance at Tanglewood following his recent vacation in his native France when he conducts a chamber orchestra of Symphony players Friday evening in an all-Bach program of five of the six Brandenburg concertos, with Lukas Foss as piano soloist, also in the intimate theater-concert hall.

On Saturday evening, Mr. Munch opens the Music Shed series with a Tanglewood premiere, a performance in its complete form of Berlioz' dramatic symphony, "The Damnation of Faust," with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society assisting, and soloists Eleanor Steber, David Polieri, Martial Singher and Donald Gramm. Sunday afternoon's Shed concert has Pierre Monteux at the orchestra's helm, in an all-Beethoven program, with Mr. Arrau as piano soloist in the Emperor Concerto.

July 9, 1954 THE BOSTON HERALD,

DAVID POLERI, tenor, will be one of four soloists at the opening Berkshire Festival concert tomorrow night in Berlioz' "Damnation of Faust," at the Music Shed.

[141]

SPRINGFIELD FREE PRESS, JULY 3, 1954

"Eagle" July 7, 1954

BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL CONCERTS

The 17th Berkshire Festival since concerts were inaugurated in the hills of Western Massachusetts in 1934, the fifteenth since the Boston Symphony Orchestra first participated, will commence six weeks of 24 concerts on Wednesday evening (July 7) at 8:30 p.m. in the Theater-Concert Hall at an all-Beethoven program of chamber music, featuring Claudio Arrau, pianist, and the Bel Arte String Trio. On Friday (July 9) also at 8:30 p.m. in the Theater-Concert Hall, Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will conduct a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players in an all-Bach program, with Lukas Foss as piano soloist.

For the first time in Berkshire Festival history, Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon concerts will be given commencing the opening weekend, July 10 at 8:30 p.m. and July 11 at 2:30 p.m. in the Music Shed. Mr. Munch will lead the full 104-piece Boston Symphony Orchestra on Saturday evening in the first Tanglewood presentatian of Hector Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust," with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society directed by G. Wallace Woodworth participating, and soloists Eleanor Steber (Marguerite), David Poleri (Faust), Martial Singher (Mephistopheles) and Donald Gramm (Brander). On Sunday afternoon guest conductor Pierre Monteux will conduct the full Boston Symphony in an all-Beethovn program, with Claudio Arrau as piano soloist, the occasion marking the 30th anniversary of Mr. Arrau's first appearance with t he orchestra which was then under the baton of Mr. Monteux.

Since 1938 when the 6000-seat Music Shed was erected on the Tanglewood estate where Nathaniel Hawthorne was a guest a century ago, open on three sides so the music might spill out to the thousands who listen to it on the grass under the stars, the Berkshire Festival has attarcted increasingly large crowds from all over Eastern U. S. and Canada until last summer all attendance records were broken, with an average of 10,200 at each Shed concert.

To accommodate its growing crowds of music lovers, the 1954 Berkshire Festival has been increased in scope within its six-week framework; twelve Shed concerts instead of last year's nine, on Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons.

Tanglewood Tales

The first concert program by the Orchestra of Department I tomorrow at 8:30 p.m. in the Music Shed follows:

Saturday Evening July 17
Pierre Monteux, Conductor

Excerpts, St. Sebastian ..... Debussy
Les Djinns, for piano and orchestra; soloist, Vera Franceschi ..... Franck
La Mer ..... Debussy
Symphony in D minor ..... Franck

Saturday Evening July 24
Jean Morel, Conductor

Symphony No. 6 ..... Prokofieff
E flat piano concerto; soloist, Nicole Henriot ..... Liszt
Don Juan ..... Strauss
Enigma Variations ..... Elgar

Sunday Afternoon August 1
Richard Burgin, Conductor

An American Festival Overture, ... Wm. Schuman
Fantasia on a Theme by Thomas Tallis ..... Vaughan Williams
Violin concerto; soloist, Ruth Posselt, ... Khatchaturian
Symphony No. 2 ..... Sibelius

Saturday Evening August 14
Charles Munch, Conductor

Tragic Overture ..... Brahms
Symphony No. 4 ..... Piston
Le Tombeau de Couperin ..... Ravel
Symphony No. 3 (with organ) .. Saint-Saens

Guides Welcome Summer Students

An informal party, given by the guides to welcome the 400 summer students of the Berkshire Music Center, was held in Wheatleigh, the men students' residence at Tanglewood, Sunday evening prior to the commencement of classes Monday of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's summer school of music.

Five of the college student guides, Crayton Bedford, of Middlebury, Vt., (Amherst), Tim Wilson, of New York (Yale), Allen Wardwell, of New York (Yale), Talbott Huey, of Baltimore (Princeton), and Tim Cogan, of New York (Harvard), assisted by students Michael Sahl, New York, Barney Childs, Reno, and James Cusato, Pittsfield, formed a vocal octet, "The Tangle Tones," whose selections were an immense hit. which also included songs by Crayton Bedford, accompanied by Michael Sahl; and McHenry Boatright, of Boston, a student in opera dramatics.

The orchestra for dancing, organized by Jules Hirsch, of New York, personnel manager of the student orchestra of the Berkshire Music Center, consisted of Abe Segal, New York (Department V), violin; Frank Reilly, Gardner, Mass. (Dept. II), violin; Charles Hedlund, Hingham, Mass. (Dept. II), piano; Stephen Simon, New York (Dept. V), piano; Richard Reardon, saxophone; Elyze Ilku, Ames, Iowa, harp; Jules Hirsch, bass; Allyn Ferguson, San José, Calif., (Dept. III), piano; and Arthur eKrr, Baltimore (Lifeguard) trombone.

Decorations and refreshments were provided by Frank Reynolds, Wheatleigh manager.

Tim Cogan was master of ceremonies for the entertainment.

N.Y. Student Is Fined $25 Following Crash

LENOX—The operator of a car which crashed into another on West Street here last night was fined a total of $25 in District Court here this morning when found guilty of failing to keep to the right and driving without a proper license.

William V. Silver, 19, a New York City student working for the summer at a local resort, pleaded innocent to both charges.

Injured in the accident, which occurred at about 5 p.m. a mile west of the center of town were Fernand Gillet, a music teacher from Brookline and operator of the second car involved in the accident, and Miss Susan Mann of New York City, a passenger in the car operated by Silver.

Trooper Howard J. O'Brien of the Lee barracks told the court that Silver was driving a Cadillac, owned by Miss Mann's father, west on West Street when he swerved into the car operated by Gillet, headed in the opposite direction. The injured were treated at the scene by Dr. Carl A. Bergan of Lenox.

The charge of driving without a proper license had been brought against Silver, Trooper O'Brien explained, as he was driving a New York car in Massachusetts with a California license.

Silver testified that the accident occurred when his passenger became excited and grabbed him by the arm and the knee. Judge Albert Clark observed that such passengers should be kept in the back seat.

The judge fined Silver $15 for failing to keep to the right and $10 for not having a proper license.

7:35—Bring Back the Bands.
7:55—Magic Word.
8:00—Musical Preview of Berkshire Festival Concert.
10:00—Headline Edition.
10:15—Freedom Forum.
10:30—News: Local, National, World.

Bus Schedule Announced for Festival Concerts

Thomas E. MacDonald, general manager of the Berkshire Street Railway Co., announced today a schedule of special bus service to the Berkshire Symphonic Festival concerts at Tanglewood. The buses will leave from Park Square and return at the completion of the concerts.

The schedule follows:

7:30 p.m. Wednesday, July 7, 14, 21, 28; Aug. 4, 11.

7:30 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 12.

7:30 p.m. Friday, July 9, 16, 23, 30; Aug. 6.

7:30 p.m. Saturday, July 10, 17, 24, 31; Aug. 7, 14.

1:30 p.m. Sunday, July 11, 18, 25; Aug. 1, 8, 15.

9 a.m. Saturday, July 10, 17, 24, 31; Aug. 7, 14.

Buses will also operate to "Tanglewood on Parade," Friday, Aug. 13.

LAST WEEK Sir Adrian Boult appeared in two places at once, in a way. He was written up in The New Yorker magazine, and also visited Tanglewood. Sir Adrian is guest conductor at the Lewisohn Stadium, New York, and in The New Yorker said, "I deplore the airplanes at the Stadium. Very, very tiresome." Indeed, in most of his interviews he takes a swipe at the planes which interfere with his conducting at the out-door stadium. He probably would love Tanglewood. At most, we've heard no more than one small Cub chug over.

see other side —

SEASON'S FIRST CONCERT GIVEN AT TANGLEWOOD

Bel Arte Trio, Pianist Claudio Arrau Please Audience Of 1400

By WILLARD M. CLARK

Tanglewood, July 7—It was to the accompaniment of one of those minor storms so bountiful in these Berkshire Hills that the first of the Berkshire festival concerts got underway tonight. However, the skies cleared and the rain in no way affected the size or enthusiasm of the audience. Approximately 1400 persons sat in the theater-shed or outside benches and welcomed this first concert in the series of six chamber music concerts with right goodwill.

Part of Festival

Berkshire County has long been richly provided with chamber music through the beneficence of the late Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge. The chamber concerts which she gave at Tanglewood, alone or through the Library of Congress, are continued in these Wednesday evening chamber series now a part of the festival.

Such concerts draw a distinctly different audience than other concerts. Those here tonight seemed to be real musicians, understanding and appreciative. They listened with an intensity that one could almost feel, and their attention was richly rewarded.

First to be heard was the Bel Arte trio, made up of Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola; and Martin Hoherman, cello. These distinguished musicians have played together for several seasons and the results were revealed tonight in the blend of tone, unanimity of feeling and a virtuosity used only as a means to an end. Miss Posselt, who is sometimes dominant when a member of a quartet ensemble, tonight was just one of three musicians making beautiful music, even though the melodic burden was largely hers.

The trio played one of the two trios for stringed instruments Beethoven wrote, namely the "String Trio in G Major, Op. 9, No. 1." This is an attractive and highly listenable worth with a particularly fine slow movement. It was played with complete understanding of its content and with rare expressivity. It was no surprise that the players were called back repeatedly after the performance.

Claudio Arrau, as pianist of great experience, who will observe the 30th anniversary of his initial appearance with the Boston Symphony Orchestra when he plays the "Emperor" concerto Sunday afternoon, played three Beethoven sonatas, the "Sonata in F Sharp Minor, Op. 78," the "Sonata in A Flat Major, Op. 110" and the "Sonata in F Minor, Op. 57" familiarly known as the "Appassionata." Last season Mr. Arrau played the entire series of Beethoven piano sonatas in Town Hall, New York, during seven concerts. This winter he will play all the Mozart piano sonatas.

His performances tonight were finely detailed, intelligently conceived and brilliantly executed. There was charm and buoyance in the Opus 78 Sonata, and a beautifully intimate and lyrical exposition of the Opus 110. A sonata in which Beethoven turned away from the colossal sonata structure of the "Hammerklavier Sonata," and in this "Sonata in A Flat Major" gives us a work which is subtle, erudite and glowingly expressive.

The pianist's conception of the "Appassionata" was forthright and in the grand manner. The two end movements had the required sound and fury, yet were kept within the bounds of good musical taste. The theme of the slow movement was beautifully announced and the variations played with imagination. It was a performance of one who had lived with this sonata for a long time.

Friday night, Charles Munch will make his initial appearance of the festival conducting a chamber orchestra in five of the Brandenburg concerti. Only No. 4 is being omitted. Lukas Foss will be the soloist in No. 5, which, in reality is a concerto for piano and orchestra.

Concerts in the shed open Saturday night when "The Damnation of Faust" will be performed by the orchestra, Harvard and Radcliffe choristers and soloists Eleanor Steber, Martial Singher, David Poleri and Donald Gramm. Mr. Munch will conduct. Sunday afternoon Pierre Monteux will make his initial appearance leading the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a program which includes Beethoven's "Leonora Overture No. 3," his fifth symphony and the "Emperor" piano concerto with Mr. Arrau at the piano.

Munch Announces Berkshire Festival Program Changes

Changes in the Berkshire Festival programs previously announced involve the concert of Aug. 14, in place of Miss Harriot's piano concerto, Mr. Munch will conduct Ravel's "Le Tombeau de Couperin," and Brahms' "Tragic Overture" in place of the Prelude to "Lohengrin" by Wagner. Pierre Monteux's orchestral, planned all-Franck concert of July 17 has had Debussy's Excerpts from "St. Sebastian" and "La Mer" substituted for Franck's "Le Chasseur Maudit" and "Les Eolides."

Revised programs are listed below:

Saturday evening July 17—Pierre Monteux, conductor; Debussy: Excerpts, "St. Sebastian"; Franck: "Les Djinns," for Piano and Orchestra; soloist, Vera Franceschi; Debussy: "La Mer"; Franck: Symphony in D Minor.

Saturday evening July 24—Jean Morel, conductor; Prokofieff: Symphony No. 6; Liszt: E flat Piano Concerto; soloist, Nicole Henriot; Strauss: "Don Juan"; Elgar: "Enigma" Variations.

Sunday afternoon Aug. 1—Richard Burgin, conductor; Wm. Schuman: "An American Festival Overture"; Vaughan Williams: "Fantasia on a Theme by Thomas Tallis"; Khatchaturian: Violin Concerto; soloist, Ruth Posselt, Sibelius: Symphony No. 2.

Saturday evening Aug. 14—Charles Munch, conductor; Brahms: "Tragic Overture"; Piston: Symphony No. 4; Ravel: "Le Tombeau de Couperin"; Saint-Saens: Symphony No. 3 (with organ).

BERKSHIRE FES... Charles ... chestra ... Sympho... burg" co... ¶ Satur... directin... formance... Faust," ... Poleri, ... baritone; the H... ald Gram... Club; ar... ¶ Sund... conduct... Beetho... piano... Albers... Charle... chestr... Sympt... urday... ducte... Fran... Mass... Friday, July 9, at ... conducting a chamber ... of members of the B... all-Bach program.... ¶ ... at 8:30: Pierre Monteux ... on Symphony, with ... Tanglewood. ... Sunday, Aug. 15.

N.Y. "Herald-Tribune" July 9, 1954

11

Berkshire Festival Opens With Beethoven Evening

Special to the Herald-Tribune

TANGLEWOOD, Lenox, Mass., July 7.—A capacity audience of 1,200 filled the theater-concert hall here Wednesday night as the 1954 Berkshire Festival opened with a chamber music concert featuring Claudio Arrau, pianist, and the Bel Arte Trio (Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola, and Martin Hoherman, cello) in a Beethoven program including the Trio for Strings in G, Op. 9, No. 1, and three piano sonatas.

It is twenty years since the first Berkshire Festival was given at the Hanna Farm in near-by Stockbridge, and this will be the fifteenth summer in which the Boston Symphony Orchestra has participated. Charles Munch, music director of the Bostonians, will make his first appearance at Tanglewood following his recent vacation in his native France when he conducts a chamber orchestra of Symphony players Friday evening in an all-Bach program of five of the six Brandenburg concertos, with Lukas Foss as piano soloist, also in the intimate theater-concert hall.

On Saturday evening, Mr. Munch opens the Music Shed series with a Tanglewood premiere, a performance in its complete form of Berlioz' dramatic symphony, "The Damnation of Faust," with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society assisting, and soloists Eleanor Steber, David Polieri, Martial Singher and Donald Gramm. Sunday afternoon's Shed concert has Pierre Monteux at the orchestra's helm, in an all-Beethoven program, with Mr. Arrau as piano soloist in the Emperor Concerto.

July 9, 1954
THE BOSTON HERALD,

DAVID POLERI, tenor, will be one of four soloists at the opening Berkshire Festival concert tomorrow night in Berlioz' "Damnation of Faust," at the Music Shed.

[14]

TIGHT BINDING

Berkshire Festival To Begin Season's Concerts Wednesday Night

All-Beethoven Program First

Special to The Blade

LENOX, Mass., July 3—The 17th Berkshire Festival since concerts were inaugurated in the hills of western Massachusetts in 1934, the 15th since the Boston Symphony Orchestra first participated, will commence six weeks of 24 concerts Wednesday evening at 8:30 in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., with an all-Beethoven program of chamber music, featuring Claudio Arrau, pianist, and the Bel Arte String Trio.

On Friday, also at 8:30 p.m., in the Theater-Concert Hall, Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will conduct a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players in an all-Bach program, with Lukas Foss as piano soloist.

★ ★ ★

FOR THE FIRST time in Berkshire Festival history, Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon concerts will be given in the opening weekend, July 10 at 8:30 and July 11 at 2:30 p.m. in the Music Shed.

Mr. Munch will lead the full 104-piece Boston Symphony Orchestra on Saturday evening in the first Tanglewood presentation of Hector Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust," with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, directed by G. Wallace Woodworth, and soloists Eleanor Steber (Marguerite), David Poleri (Faust), Martial Singher (Mephistopheles) and Donald Gramm (Brander).

On Sunday afternoon, Pierre Monteux will conduct the full Boston Symphony in an all-Beethoven program, with Claudio Arrau as piano soloist, the occasion marking the 30th anniversary of Mr. Arrau's first appearance with the orchestra, then under Mr. Monteux.

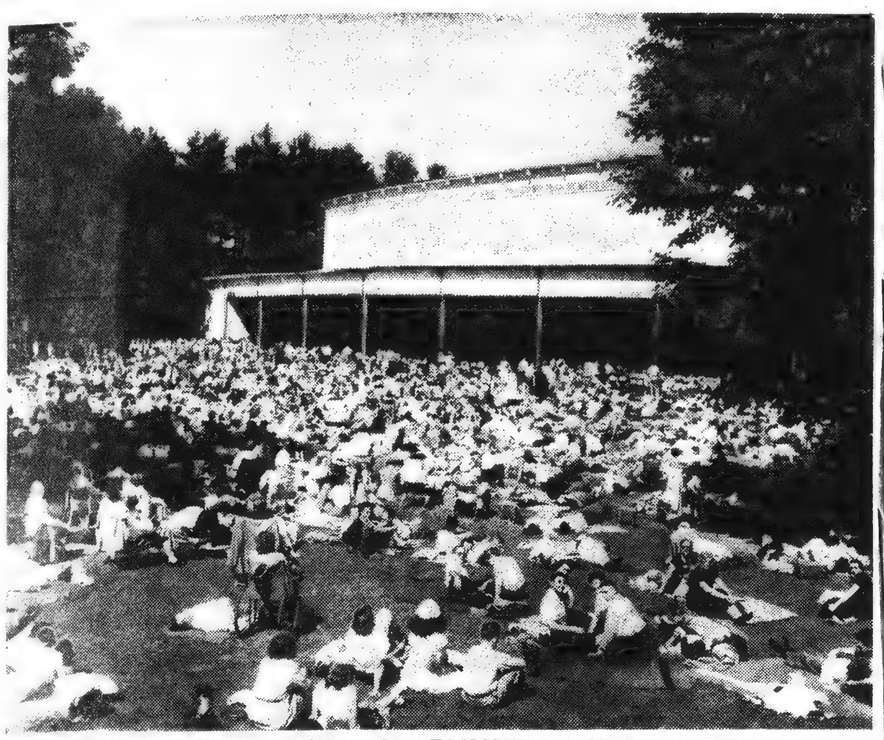
★ ★ ★

SINCE 1938, when the 6,000-seat Music Shed was erected on the Tanglewood estate where Nathaniel Hawthorne was a guest a century ago, open on three sides so the music might spill out to the thousands who listen on the grass under the stars, the Berkshire Festival has attracted increasingly large crowds from all over the eastern United States and Canada. Last summer all attendance records were broken, with an average of 10,200 at each Shed concert.

The 1954 Berkshire Festival has been increased in scope within its 6-week framework: 12 shed concerts instead of last year's nine, on Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons; the popular Bach-Mozart concerts, concentrated last summer in the festival's first three weekends, this year are to be held each Friday evening; and a new series has been inaugurated, six Wednesday evening chamber-music programs, a total of 24 concerts in all.

On Saturday morning (July 10) at 10 a.m. the Boston Symphony will hold the first of six weekly open rehearsals, for the benefit of the orchestra's Pension Fund, to which the public is invited for a nominal admission.

THE MUSIC SHED concerts in 1954 will honor the 150th anniversary [illegible]



INTERMISSION SCENE AT BERKSHIRE MUSIC FESTIVAL
Crowds from afar bring picnic blankets, even a wheel chair or two

"Eagle" July 7, 1954

Mabos

PROMINENT in Sunday's opening exercises at Tanglewood were Boston Symphony Conductor Charles Munch and Mrs. Serge Koussevitzky, widow of the founder of the Berkshire Music Center, shown chatting at tea which followed formal opening ceremonies.

12—The Berkshire Evening Eagle, Wednesday, July 7, 1954

Festival Opens 17th Season With Chamber Music Tonight

Dr. Munch Announces Changes in Four Programs—Ruth Posselt To Appear as Soloist With Husband, Concertmaster Burgin Aug. 1

TANGLEWOOD—The Berkshire Music Festival will open its 17th season of concerts tonight at 8:30 in the Theater-Concert Hall, featuring the Bel Arte String Trio with Claudio Arrau as pianist.

Dr. Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, announced today changes in the concert to be played by the orchestra in the Music Shed at 2:30 p.m., Sunday, Aug. 1.

Burgin To Conduct

Richard Burgin, concertmaster of the Boston Symphony, who will conduct the orchestra that afternoon, with his wife, Ruth Posselt, as violin soloist, has scheduled the program to commence with William Schuman's "An American Festival Overture," to be followed by Vaughan Williams' "Fantasia on a Theme by Thomas Tallis," then by the Khatchaturian Violin Concerto, in which Miss Posselt will be soloist. These selections replace the previously scheduled "Chout" ballet suite of Prokofieff and the Dvorak Violin Concerto.

Changes in the Berkshire Festival programs previously announced involve the advancement to June 24 of Nicole Henriot, French pianist, as soloist, playing the Liszt E flat Piano Concerto on that program, replacing Weber's Overture to "Der Freischutz." On the concert of Aug. 14, in place of Miss Henriot's piano concerto, Mr. Munch will conduct Ravel's "Le Tombeau de Couperin," and Brahms' "Tragic Overture" in place of the Prelude to "Lohengrin" by Wagner. Pierre Monteux's originally planned all-Franck concert of July 17 has had Debussy's excerpts from "St. Sebastian" and "La Mer" substituted for Franck's "Le Chasseur Maudit" and "Les Eolides."

Revised Programs

The revised programs follow:

Symphony in D major, Mozart (K.385) .....
Allegro con spirito
Andante
Menuetto
Finale: Presto
Paul Vermel—Conductor

Symphonic Poem, Les Preludes ..... Liszt
Samuel Krachmalnick—Conductor

INTERMISSION

Symphony No. 4 in D minor, Op. 120 ..... Schumann
Ziemlich langsam; Lebhaft
Romanze: Ziemlich langsam
Scherzo: Lebhaft
Langsam; Lebhaft
Jean Morel—Conductor

July 9, 1954

THE SPRINGFIELD UNION, SPRINGFI

At Tanglewood Tonight

Chamber Orchestra Series To Open; Munch to Conduct

The first of six chamber orchestra programs by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Music Director Charles Munch, will be given at the Berkshire Festival tonight in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, at 8:30.

4360 Average '53 Draw

Known popularly as "the Bach-Mozart concerts," these popular programs in 1953 attracted an audience of 26,150, an average attendance of 4360. An innovation will find the chamber orchestra concerts given on successive Friday evenings, July 16, July 23, July 30, Aug. 6; the final one, however, will be on a Thursday, Aug. 12, because of the annual "Tanglewood on Parade" Friday, Aug. 13.

At tonight's all-Bach concert, Mr. Munch, in his first appearance on the podium at Tanglewood this summer, will conduct the Brandenburg Concertos, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 5 and 6, with Lukas Foss, composer-conductor-pianist and this year head of the Berkshire Music Center's Department V for amateur students of music, as soloist.

Foss was born in Berlin in 1922 and studied at the Paris Conservatoire from the time he was 11 until he was 15. On coming to the U. S. in 1937, he studied at the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia with Randall Thompson, Fritz Reiner and Paul Hindemith, then became a conductor-pupil of Serge Koussevitzky at Tanglewood, and was appointed to the faculty of the Berkshire Music Center in 1946.

Teaches at California

He is professor of music at the University of California. He has won Pulitzer, Guggenheim and Fulbright fellowships, the Horblit Award of the Boston Symphony, the Prix de Rome, and a citation from the New York Music Critics' Circle for "The Prairie," a cantata.

His compositions include "Ode For Orchestra," "Symphony in G," a ballet "The Gift of the Magi," and three works done at Tanglewood, "The Song of Songs" in 1950, "Piano Concerto" and the cantata "A Parable of Death" performed last summer. On Aug. 6 he will conduct the Chamber Orchestra of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a program of Stravinsky and Mozart.

Miss Doriot Anthony, flutist, and Richard Burgin, concertmaster of the Boston Symphony, will be soloists in the second and fifth Brandenburg concertos. In the second, Roger Voisin, trumpet, and Ralph Gomberg, oboe, also will play solos.

Burgin made his first public appearance at the age of 11 as violin soloist with the Warsaw Philharmonic Society. He has been concertmaster and soloist of the Leningrad, Helsinki, Christiania and Stockholm Orchestras, serving under Nikisch, Fiedler, Richard Strauss, Schneevoigt and Sibelius. He became concertmaster of the Boston Symphony in 1920 and heads the chamber music department of the Berkshire Music Center. Recently he was named conductor of the New England Conservatory of Music in Boston.

In Debut Last Summer

Miss Anthony returns to Tanglewood where she made her debut in the same solo last summer. Before joining the Boston Symphony she played in the National Symphony, Washington, D. C., the Los Angeles Philharmonic, the NBC Standard (Los Angeles) and Hollywood Bowl symphony orchestras.

Gomberg, a native Bostonian, was first oboe for Stokowski's All-American Youth, the Baltimore Symphony and the Mutual Broadcasting orchestras, and has soloed for the New York City Center Symphony under Leonard Bernstein. He is a graduate of Curtis Institute, Philadelphia. A native of Angers, France, Voisin learned to play the trumpet from his father, whom he succeeded with the Boston Symphony. He teaches solfege at Tanglewood.

The identical program of five of the six Brandenburg concertos, (which Johann Sebastian Bach presented to the Margraf of Brandenburg in 1721) with the same soloists, attracted a record-breaking attendance of 4200 at the opening of the Berkshire Festival's chamber orchestra concerts last summer. Prior to this never more than two of the concerti were ever played on the same program at Tanglewood.

Tickets for tonight's concert and the succeeding ones by the Boston Symphony Orchestra during the Berkshire Festival, which conclude Aug. 15, may be obtained at the Tanglewood box office, and telephone reservations are accepted —Lenox 600. Admission for listening from the lawn will be available on the day of each concert. In case of rain the programs will be held in the Music Shed, which also will seat the lawn audience.

BERKSHIRE MUSIC FESTIVAL
(Boston Symphony Orchestra—Charles Munch conducting)

Friday: Theater Concert Hall, chamber orchestra: Bach program — soloists: Doriot Anthony, flute; Harold Gomberg, oboe; Roger Voisin, trumpet; Richard Burgin, violin; Lukas Foss, pianist.

Saturday: Music Shed, full orchestra: Berlioz' "Damnation of Faust"—Harvard Glee Club, Redcliffe Choral Society; soloists: Eleanor Steber, David Poleri, Martial Singher, Donald Gramm.

N. Y. Times 7/8/54

BERKSHIRE FETE BEGINS

Season Opens With a Chamber Concert—Rain Cuts Turnout

Special to The New York Times.

LENOX, Mass., July 7—Rain an hour before concert-time Wednesday night, kept down the attendance at the opening of the seventeenth annual Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood.

Every seat was taken in the theatre concert hall, with a capacity of 1,200, and an overflow crowd of 300 found shelter under the huge roof which extends from the edge of the concert hall. Normally, another 1,000 persons listen to the concert from the spacious lawns.

Claudio Arrau was the pianist tonight in the opening chamber music concert with the Bel Arte Trio, made up of Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph De Pasquale, viola, and Martin Hoherman, 'cello.

Making its first appearance at Tanglewood tonight, the trio presented an all-Beethoven program.

[142]

TIGHT BINDING

Bel Arte Trio and Arrau Open Tanglewood's Season

CHILEAN PIANIST, Claudio Arrau, who was given a rousing ovation at the opening of the 17th Berkshire Music Festival chamber music concert in the theater-concert hall last night, will appear at Tanglewood again Sunday in the Music Shed with the Boston Symphony Orchestra with Pierre Monteux, in the background, as guest conductor.

By JAY C. ROSENFELD

THE FIRST concert of the season at Tanglewood was a Beethoven chamber music program last night in the theater-concert hall played by the Bel Arte trio and by Claudio Arrau. Ruth Posselt is the violinist of the trio, Joseph de Pasquale the violist, and Martin Hoherman, the cellist. They played the Beethoven G major string trio, Opus 9, No. 1. Mr. Arrau played three sonatas, opera 57, 78 and 110. The piano sonatas scarcely fit within the specifications of chamber music although one hardly needs a reason to enlist Mr. Arrau on any program.

The three artists of the trio played with exactitude and resonant tone and evidence of great care in the preparation of their music. There was a temptation to play their instrument when the spirit of ensemble might have guided them to greater consideration of each other and they were the victims of their own virtuosity in the final movement when the speed they chose made the presto a perpetual motion rather than a play of wit. Such displays always evoke the most vociferous applause but in this case it was certainly for the impeccable instrumental playing rather than for any insight into the trio.

* * *

WITHIN OUR MEMORY Mr. Arrau was playing the first piano solos at Tanglewood at a program for which admission was charged. Incidentally, in spite of the rain, an audience of 1,500 was seated within the hall and on benches under the overhanging roof. Mr. Arrau's playing was lofty in many instances and highly gratifying in most of his part of the evening. We never tire of hearing Arrau's dramatic and graphic playing although we can not fully subscribe to the introduction of solo instrumental playing on chamber music programs, even if it were granted that Tanglewood needs to include that field of music within its schedule.

It would be difficult to choose three sonatas more fully to display Beethoven's genius. The Appasionata, the lyrical Opus 78 and the introspective 110. Mr. Arrau realized the core and the marrow of each sonata, making personal expression of many debatable episodes with which it would be difficult to cavil. There were many moments of grandeur, moments in which his vital immergence in the material found the piano almost too limited to express what his boundless energy prompted him to say. His tendency to make the piano an orchestral instrument agrees with our understanding of his conception of some of Beethoven's music.

* * *

IN THE DEEPLY felt sonata Opus 110 he gave shape and dimensions to the adagio and later maintained a poised clarity in the fugue. The inversion of the fugue became obvious and logical and he became the interpreter rather than the pianist when it was appropriate.

"Eagle"
e, Friday, July 9, 1954

Public Events

Tonight

8:30—Second concert of the Berkshire Festival season. Chamber Orchestra, Charles Munch conducting; Lukas Foss, piano soloist. Tanglewood theater-concert hall, Lenox.

"Eagle" - July 8, 1954

Warren Sears, Veteran First Aid Man, Gets a New Shed for Tanglewood Season

By THOMAS O. MORTON JR.

A veteran Tanglewood performer will make his first 1954 appearance there Friday night in a new shed.

The performer is Warren U. Sears of 37 Noblehurst Ave. The new shed is a Red Cross first aid building that replaces the tent that has been used for that purpose in the past. Mr. Sears' performance will be the usual act of service he has been doing at Tanglewood since 1946—taking care of whatever aches or pains the music lovers develop.

And Mr. Sears has seen some rather unusual developments of that nature in the eight years he has been volunteering his services as a Red Cross first aider at Tanglewood.

Unusual Accident

He recalls the night a couple were buying their tickets at the entrance and the husband let a bottle of beer slip out of the blanket he was carrying. The bottle exploded when it hit the ground and a chunk of flying glass cut his spouse's leg.

The cut wasn't too severe, but the woman was wearing open toed shoes and nylon stockings. The blood flowed out the open portion of the shoe and traveled up the nylon stocking by capillary action.

"The husband just about passed out while we were taking care of his wife and we had to take care of him," Mr. Sears explained.

The "we" who help Warren do the taking care of includes the distaff side of the Sears family. Mrs. Sears is a registered nurse. She has been serving as a volunteer Red Cross first aid worker at Tanglewood two years less than her husband.

During their summers of volunteer Red Cross duty at Tanglewood the Searses have been called on for everything from bee stings to broken bones.

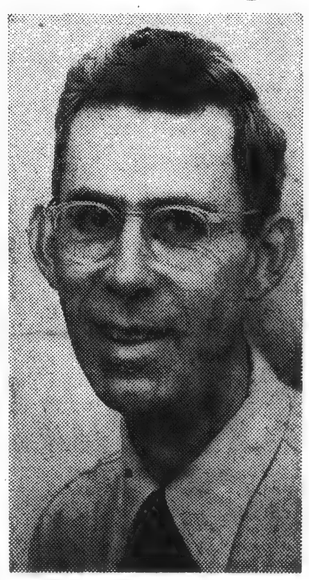
The bee stings they can take care of on the spot. The broken bones and other more seriously ill or injured music lovers are given prescribed emergency treatment and dispatched to a doctor or hospital.

Double Sting

Bee stings may sound rather humorous and inconsequential, but Mr. Sears remembers one night when they were very disturbing to one Tanglewood patron. The young man came into the first aid tent with a couple of stings on one leg. He rolled up his pant leg and Mr. Sears applied some ointment. The patient was about ready to return to his choice seat in the Shed for the concert when the bee, which had apparently traveled up and to the rear of the trousers, struck again. The young man had to stand to hear the concert that night.

Mr. and Mrs. Sears and the seven other volunteer first aid workers who staff the Red Cross station at the concerts enjoy the concerts, but not quite as much as a patient they received one night. The patient was a man who passed out because he was emotionally overcome by the music.

Broken bones are not the usual type of ailment the Red Cross first aiders are called on to take care of, but there have been a few. Mr. Sears had to put a splint on a broken leg bone one night when a young man received the injury while jumping over a bench in the Shed before concert time.



Warren U. Sears

Mr. Sears remembers one day when three doctors were among those who stopped in at the first aid tent. Two were just visiting to look over the equipment. The other was a woman doctor who agreed with Mr. Sears' diagnosis of the possibility of near sunstroke and gladly accepted his treatment.

Seven Others To Assist

The Searses are scheduled to work at Tanglewood during 19 of this season's events. They will be assisted by the seven other volunteers qualified Red Cross first aiders who are stationed at various spots throughout the big Shed.

Mr. Sears freely admits that his interest in Red Cross first aid work stems from the fact that he always wanted to be a doctor. His Red Cross experience dates back from 1931, when he took a company first aid course a few years after he joined Western Massachusetts Electric Co.

He became a qualified first aid instructor in 1937 and since then has taught more than 2,000 hours of classes. He has no idea of how many hours of volunteer work he has put in since then at Tanglewood and other tasks for the Red Cross.

The Searses are a 100 per cent Red Cross family. Mr. Sears is cochairman of first aid for the Berkshire County Red Cross. Mrs. Sears is a Red Cross home nursing instructor. Their daughter, Barbara, who is taking her nurse's training at Albany Hospital, is a Red Cross water safety instructor.

"Eagle" - July

Manos

BERNSTEIN'S SUCCESSOR, Jean Morel, left, acting head of Department I (orchestra and orchestra conducting) at the Berkshire Music Center, chats with a group of players in the student symphony orchestra at Tanglewood, who will make their first appearance tonight when Mr. Morel makes his debut leading the student orchestra in a program of Schubert, Mozart and Liszt. Sharing the podium with Mr. Morel will be student conductors Paul Vermel and Samuel Krachmalnik of New York. Mr. Morel is replacing on the staff Leonard Bernstein, who is on a leave of absence.

Lenox

FRANK V. McCARTHY — Tel. 476-M

Extension of Tanglewood Season A 'Possibility,' Says BSO Manager

LENOX — The possibility of extending the Tanglewood season in future years beyond the middle of August was discussed here last night by George Judd, manager of the Boston Symphany Orchestra, in a talk before the Kiwanis Club at the Curtis Hotel.

Asked about the possibility, Mr. Judd said such a move would not crystallize until this year's new schedule of six weeks of concerts has been demonstrated, but that another extension "is not impossible."

He said indications are that the present schedule will be a success, and if it is "in two or three years, it is inevitable that someone will come up with the idea of more concerts."

Mr. Judd pointed out, however, that he is retiring after the present Tanglewood season, and future policy concerns his successors.

In answer to other questions, Mr. Judd stated:

1. Plans are under way to televise BSO concerts in Boston over a channel devoted to educational programs, but commercial television would probably be too expensive.

2. The Shed at Tanglewood might be available to the club for ventures "not musically competitive," if the club agreed to pay the "out-of-pocket" expenses involved.

Tanglewood Tales

Chamber Music Concert Sunday Morning at 10

The program for the first concert of chamber music by members of Department 1 at the Chamber Music Hall Sunday morning at 10 follows:

String Quartet in G major Opus 77 No. 1 ..... Haydn
Allegro moderato
Adagio
Menuetto: Presto
Finale: Vivace

Richard Elias, violin; Endel Kalam, viola; William Keller, violin; Michael Grebanier, violoncello

Quintet for wind instruments and piano in E-flat major, Opus 16 ..... Beethoven
Grave; Allegro ma non troppo
Andante cantabile
Rondo: Allegro ma non troppo

Grace Sarvis, oboe; Bernice Mamins, bassoon; Mercer Sweeney, clarinet; David Allen, french horn; Adelaide Stone, piano

Quintet for strings and piano in F major, Opus 34 ..... Brahms
Allegro non troppo
Andante, unpoco Adagio
Scherzo: Allegro
Finale: Poco sostenuto; Allegro non troppo

Tiberius Klausner, violin; Francis Bundra, viola; Stanley Dombrowski, violin; Evalyn Steinbock, violoncello; Gilbert Kalish, piano

July 9, 1954

Offer First Aid At Tanglewood

Beginning July 8 First aid coverage will be supplied at Tanglewood by volunteers of Berkshire County Chapter, Red Cross, at the Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon concerts, July 10 and 11, it was announced today by chairman Warren U. Sears and John H. Marvin.

Those covering Saturday are John B. Russell, Alfred S. Anderson, Clarence E. King, George F. Maynard and Raymond A. Dufresne of Pittsfield; Mrs. Ida E. Fosty of Lee and H. Albert Stevens, Jr., of Great Barrington.

Sunday, Matthew K. Leslie, George E. Leonard and Mr. Maynard of Pittsfield, Miss Muriel V. Flagg of Williamstown, Roy E. Doyle, Jr., of Adams, George E. Hyman of Dalton, and Mr. Stevens of Great Barrington.

TIGHT BINDING

Bel Arte Trio and Arrau Open Tanglewood's Season

CHILEAN PIANIST, Claudio Arrau, who was given a rousing ovation at the opening of the 17th Berkshire Music Festival chamber music concert in the theater-concert hall last night, will appear at Tanglewood again Sunday in the Music Shed with the Boston Symphony Orchestra with Pierre Monteux, in the background, as guest conductor.

By JAY C. ROSENFELD

THE FIRST concert of the season at Tanglewood was a Beethoven chamber music program last night in the theater-concert hall played by the Bel Arte trio and by Claudio Arrau. Ruth Posselt is the violinist of the trio, Joseph de Pasquale the violist, and Martin Hoherman, the cellist. They played the Beethoven G major string trio, Opus 9, No. 1. Mr. Arrau played three sonatas, opera 57, 78 and 110. The piano sonatas scarcely fit within the specifications of chamber music although one hardly needs a reason to enlist Mr. Arrau on any program.

The three artists of the trio played with exactitude and resonant tone and evidence of great care in the preparation of their music. There was a temptation to play their instrument when the spirit of ensemble might have guided them to greater consideration of each other and they were the victims of their own virtuosity in the final movement when the speed they chose made the presto a perpetual motion rather than a play of wit. Such displays always evoke the most vociferous applause but in this case it was certainly for the impeccable instrumental playing rather than for any insight into the trio.

* * *

WITHIN OUR MEMORY Mr. Arrau was playing the first piano solos at Tanglewood at a program for which admission was charged. Incidentally, in spite of the rain, an audience of 1,500 was seated within the hall and on benches under the overhanging roof. Mr. Arrau's playing was lofty in many instances and highly gratifying in most of his part of the evening. We never tire of hearing Arrau's dramatic and graphic playing although we can not fully subscribe to the introduction of solo instrumental playing on chamber music programs, even if it were granted that Tanglewood needs to include that field of music within its schedule.

It would be difficult to choose three sonatas more fully to display Beethoven's genius. The Appasionata, the lyrical Opus 78 and the introspective 110. Mr. Arrau realized the core and the marrow of each sonata, making personal expression of many debatable episodes with which it would be difficult to cavil. There were many moments of grandeur, moments in which his vital immergence in the material found the piano almost too limited to express what his boundless energy prompted him to say. His tendency to make the piano an orchestral instrument agrees with our understanding of his conception of some of Beethoven's music.

* * *

IN THE DEEPLY felt sonata Opus 110 he gave shape and dimensions to the adagio and later maintained a poised clarity in the fugue. The inversion of the fugue became obvious and logical and he became the interpreter rather than the pianist when it was appropriate.

"Eagle"
le, Friday, July 9, 1954

Public Events

Tonight

8:30—Second concert of the Berkshire Festival season. Chamber Orchestra, Charles Munch conducting; Lukas Foss, piano soloist. Tanglewood theater-concert hall, Lenox.

9:30—Author Meets the Critics.
10:00—Frank Edwards, News.
10:15—Emile Cote Glee Club.
10:30—This Week at Tanglewood.
11:00—News.
11:15—[illegible] News.
11:35—News.

"Eagle"
July 8, 1954

Warren Sears, Veteran First Aid Man, Gets a New Shed for Tanglewood Season

"Eagle" - July 8, 1954

By THOMAS O. MORTON JR.

A veteran Tanglewood performer will make his first 1954 appearance there Friday night in a new shed.

The performer is Warren U. Sears of 37 Noblehurst Ave. The new shed is a Red Cross first aid building that replaces the tent that has been used for that purpose in the past. Mr. Sears' performance will be the usual act of service he has been doing at Tanglewood since 1946—taking care of whatever aches or pains the music lovers develop.

And Mr. Sears has seen some rather unusual developments of that nature in the eight years he has been volunteering his services as a Red Cross first aider at Tanglewood.

Unusual Accident

He recalls the night a couple were buying their tickets at the entrance and the husband let a bottle of beer slip out of the blanket he was carrying. The bottle exploded when it hit the ground and a chunk of flying glass cut his spouse's leg.

The cut wasn't too severe, but the woman was wearing open toed shoes and nylon stockings. The blood flowed out the open portion of the shoe and traveled up the nylon stocking by capillary action.

"The husband just about passed out while we were taking care of his wife and we had to take care of him," Mr. Sears explained.

The "we" who help Warren do the taking care of includes the distaff side of the Sears family. Mrs. Sears is a registered nurse. She has been serving as a volunteer Red Cross first aid worker at Tanglewood two years less than her husband.

During their summers of volunteer Red Cross duty at Tanglewood the Searses have been called on for everything from bee stings to broken bones.

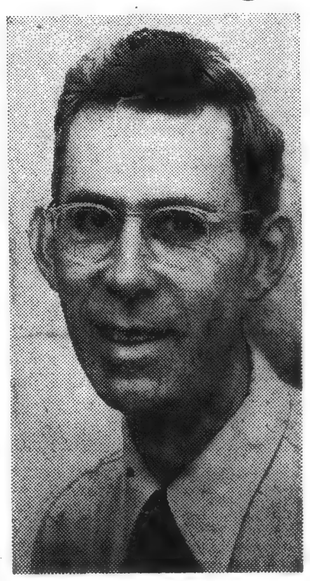
The bee stings they can take care of on the spot. The broken bones and other more seriously ill or injured music lovers are given prescribed emergency treatment and dispatched to a doctor or hospital.

Double Sting

Bee stings may sound rather humorous and inconsequential, but Mr. Sears remembers one night when they were very disturbing to one Tanglewood patron. The young man came into the first aid tent with a couple of stings on one leg. He rolled up his pant leg and Mr. Sears applied some ointment. The patient was about ready to return to his choice seat in the Shed for the concert when the bee, which had apparently traveled up and to the rear of the trousers, struck again. The young man had to stand to hear the concert that night.

Mr. and Mrs. Sears and the seven other volunteer first aid workers who staff the Red Cross station at the concerts enjoy the concerts, but not quite as much as a patient they received one night. The patient was a man who passed out because he was emotionally overcome by the music.

Broken bones are not the usual type of ailment the Red Cross first aiders are called on to take care of, but there have been a few. Mr. Sears had to put a splint on a broken leg bone one night when a young man received the injury while jumping over a bench in the Shed before concert time.



Warren U. Sears

Mr. Sears remembers one day when three doctors were among those who stopped in at the first aid tent. Two were just visiting to look over the equipment. The other was a woman doctor who agreed with Mr. Sears' diagnosis of the possibility of near sunstroke and gladly accepted his treatment.

Seven Others To Assist

The Searses are scheduled to work at Tanglewood during 19 of this season's events. They will be assisted by the seven other volunteers qualified Red Cross first aiders who are stationed at various spots throughout the big Shed.

Mr. Sears freely admits that his interest in Red Cross first aid work stems from the fact that he always wanted to be a doctor. His Red Cross experience dates back from 1931, when he took a company first aid course a few years after he joined Western Massachusetts Electric Co.

He became a qualified first aid instructor in 1937 and since then has taught more than 2,000 hours of classes. He has no idea of how many hours of volunteer work he has put in since then at Tanglewood and other tasks for the Red Cross.

The Searses are a 100 per cent Red Cross family. Mr. Sears is cochairman of first aid for the Berkshire County Red Cross. Mrs. Sears is a Red Cross home nursing instructor. Their daughter, Barbara, who is taking her nurse's training at Albany Hospital, is a Red Cross water safety instructor.

"Eagle" - July

Manos

BERNSTEIN'S SUCCESSOR, Jean Morel, left, acting head of Department I (orchestra and orchestra conducting) at the Berkshire Music Center, chats with a group of players in the student symphony orchestra at Tanglewood, who will make their first appearance tonight when Mr. Morel makes his debut leading the student orchestra in a program of Schubert, Mozart and Liszt. Sharing the podium with Mr. Morel will be student conductors Paul Vermel and Samuel Krachmalnik of New York. Mr. Morel is replacing on the staff Leonard Bernstein, who is on a leave of absence.

Lenox

FRANK V. McCARTHY — Tel. 476-M

Extension of Tanglewood Season A 'Possibility,' Says BSO Manager

LENOX — The possibility of extending the Tanglewood season in future years beyond the middle of August was discussed here last night by George Judd, manager of the Boston Symphany Orchestra, in a talk before the Kiwanis Club at the Curtis Hotel.

Asked about the possibility, Mr. Judd said such a move would not crystallize until this year's new schedule of six weeks of concerts has been demonstrated, but that another extension "is not impossible."

He said indications are that the present schedule will be a success, and if it is "in two or three years, it is inevitable that someone will come up with the idea of more concerts."

Mr. Judd pointed out, however, that he is retiring after the present Tanglewood season, and future policy concerns his successors.

In answer to other questions, Mr. Judd stated:

1. Plans are under way to televise BSO concerts in Boston over a channel devoted to educational programs, but commercial television would probably be too expensive.

2. The Shed at Tanglewood might be available to the club for ventures "not musically competitive," if the club agreed to pay the "out-of-pocket" expenses involved.

Tanglewood Tales

Chamber Music Concert Sunday Morning at 10

The program for the first concert of chamber music by members of Department 1 at the Chamber Music Hall Sunday morning at 10 follows:

String Quartet in G major Opus 77 No. 1 ..... Haydn
Allegro moderato
Adagio
Menuetto: Presto
Finale: Vivace

Richard Elias, violin; Endel Kalam, viola; William Keller, violin; Michael Grebanier, violoncello

Quintet for wind instruments and piano in E-flat major, Opus 16 ..... Beethoven
Grave; Allegro ma non troppo
Andante cantabile
Rondo: Allegro ma non troppo

Grace Sarvis, oboe; Rosario Mazzeo, bassoon; Mercer Sweeney, clarinet; David Allen, french horn; Adelaide Brune, piano

Quintet for strings and piano in F major, Opus 34 ..... Brahms
Allegro non troppo
Andante, unpoco Adagio
Scherzo: Allegro
Finale: Poco sostenuto; Allegro non troppo

Tiberius Klausner, violin; Francis Bundra, viola; Stanley Dombrowski, violin; Evalyn Steinbock, violoncello; Gilbert Kalish, piano

[illegible]
July 9, 1954

Offer First Aid At Tanglewood

[illegible] July 8 First aid coverage will be supplied at Tanglewood by volunteers of Berkshire County Chapter, Red Cross, at the Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon concerts, July 10 and 11, it was announced today by chairmen [illegible] Sears and John H. Noonan.

Persons serving Saturday are: John B. Russell, Alfred S. Anderson, Clarence G. King, George F. Mayard and Raymond A. Dufresne of Pittsfield; Mrs. Ida E. Frost of Lee and H. Albert Stevens, Jr., of Great Barrington.

Sunday, Matthew K. Leslie, George E. Leonard and Mr. Maynard of Pittsfield, Miss Muriel V. Flagg of Williamstown, Roy E. Doyle, Jr., of Adams, George E. Lyman of Dalton, and Mr. Stevens of Great Barrington.

TIGHT BINDING

...Man, ...Season

...equipment. The other ...n doctor who agreed ...ars' diagnosis of the ... near sunstroke and ...ted his treatment.

...To Assist

...s are scheduled to ...glewood during 19 of ...events. They will be ...e seven other volun... Red Cross first aid... stationed at various ...out the big Shed.

...reely admits that his ...ed Cross first aid ...om the fact that he ...d to be a doctor. ...s experience dates ...31, when he took a ... aid course a few ...joined Western Mas... ...ctric Co.

...a qualified first aid ...1937 and since then ...re than 2,000 hours ... has no idea of how ... volunteer work he ...ce then at Tangle... ... for the Red Cross. ...are a 100 per cent ...ily. Mr. Sears is ... first aid for the ...y Red Cross. Mrs. ...Cross home nursing ...eir daughter, Bar... ...aking her nurse's ...any Hospital, is a ...r safety instructor.

...July

"Eagle" - July 8, 1954

Manos

AFTER NINE YEARS. Miss Gertrude Robinson Smith of Stockbridge has returned to the Berkshires, taking her place once again in the center of activities at Tanglewood. Miss Robinson Smith was one of the prime movers and president of the Berkshire Symphonic Festival Inc., which established the music festivals in the county in 1934. She spearheaded the organization which raised funds to build the Music Shed at Tanglewood. Since leaving the Berkshires she has been living in Paris.

Munch Will Present First Tanglewood Concert Friday

Schenectady Gazette July 6, 1954

Charles Munch will present his first concert of the season at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., Friday in the Theatre-Concert Hall at 8:30 p.m. An all-Bach program of Brandenburg Concertos with Lukas Foss as piano soloist has been announced. Saturday night he will inaugurate the Music Shed series with the first Tanglewood performance of Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust." Soloists will include Eleanor Steber, David Poleri, Martial Singher and Donald Gramm.

* * *

Mr. Munch arrived in New York Friday by Air France from Paris and drove to his summer residence at Elm Court, Lenox, Saturday. He will have his first rehearsal with the orchestra tomorrow afternoon. The Saturday morning rehearsal at 10 o'clock, preceding the Shed concert, will benefit the Boston Symphony Orchestra's pension fund. Similar public rehearsals will be held each Saturday during the Berkshire Festival.

"The Damnation of Faust" will be the first of a number of works by Hector Berlioz to be presented in their complete form at Tanglewood this summer under Mr. Munch's baton. The series is in observance of the 150th anniversary season of the birth of the French composer. Mr. Munch is president of the newly-formed Berlioz Society, founded to advance knowledge and understanding o Berlioz and his works.

* * *

During the conductor's montl vacation in France, following th Boston Symphony Orchestra's 73r season, he conducted at music fes tivals in Bordeaux and in his na tive city of Strasbourg. He ha just performed Berlioz' biblica work, "L'Enfance du Christ" at th Cathedral St. Andre in Strasbourg He also conducted concerts at th Opera in Paris.

CHARLES MUNCH
Tanglewood Conductor

Berkshire "Eagle"
N.Y. Herald Tribune

E, THURSDAY, JULY 8, 1954

Berkshire Festival Opens With Beethoven Evening

Special to the Herald Tribune

TANGLEWOOD, Lenox, Mass., July 7.—A capacity audience of 1,200 filled the theater-concert hall here tonight as the 1954 Berkshire Festival opened with a chamber music concert featuring Claudio Arrau, pianist, and the Bel Arte Trio (Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola, and Martin Hoherman, cello) in a Beethoven program including the Trio for Strings in G, Op. 9, No. 1, and three piano sonatas.

It is twenty years since the first Berkshire Festival was given at the Hanna Farm in near-by Stockbridge, and this will be the fifteenth summer in which the Boston Symphony Orchestra has participated. Charles Munch, music director of the Bostonians, will make his first appearance at Tanglewood following his recent vacation in his native France when he conducts a chamber orchestra of Symphony players Friday evening in an all-Bach program of five of the six Brandenburg concertos, with Lukas Foss as piano soloist, also in the intimate theater-concert hall.

On Saturday evening, Mr. Munch opens the Music Shed series with a Tanglewood premiere, a performance in its complete form of Berlioz' dramatic symphony, "The Damnation of Faust," with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society assisting, and soloists Eleanor Steber, David Polieri, Martial Singher and Donald Gramm. Sunday afternoon's Shed concert has Pierre Monteux at the orchestra's helm, in an all-Beethoven program, with Mr. Arrau as piano soloist in the Emperor Concerto.

MUNCH BACK ON PODIUM AT TANGLEWOOD

Springfield Union 7/1954

Boston Orchestra Director Conducts Bach Concerti Program

By WILLARD M. CLARK

Tanglewood, July 9—Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, made his initial appearance at the Berkshire Music Festival tonight conducting the opening concert of the traditional chamber orchestra concerts devoted primarily to Bach and Mozart. Approximately 2800 persons were on hand to do honor to the distinguished conductor, the members of the chamber orchestra and to Johann Sebastian Bach whose "Brandenburg concerti" made up the program. Mr. Munch opened the series last year with this same program.

Much Exquisite Music

It appears that when Bach undertook the writing of the concerti he meant to explore all the possibilities of the concerto grosse. This he did in a most fasinating manner, giving us music which is bouyant, bright and containing few instances of the Bachian elegiac note. One hears this most affectingly in the exquisite andante of the third concerto and the affetioso of the fifth.

It takes the virtuosi of the Boston Symphony Orchestra to fully realize the possibilities within these concerti. The singing strings in the two movements of the third concerti, the blazing beauty of the trumpet played by Roger Voisin in the second concerti and the pianistic wizardry of Lukas Foss in the fifth concerto, these are elements which bring full realization of these concerti. One must also mention the exquisite playing of flutist Doriot Anthony, oboeist Ralph Gemberg and violinist Richard Burgin.

There is utter variety in these concerti and boundless imagination in the use of the instruments, and in the ways the various combination of instruments are juxtaposed, divided and treated. Mr. Munch shies somewhat away from the purity of the Bach style. His approach is with a greater realization of the concert possibilities of these works and thus one has a more sonorous, warmer performance than one might expect, one which the purists may not wholy agree is just. It is utterly satisfactory and rewarding.

The second, third and fifth concerti have remained the most popular and of these, the fifth seems to be the greater favorite. It is, in fact, a concerto for piano and orchestra; a concerto of fantastic difficulties for the pianist and it is to the credit of Lukas Foss that he gave a brilliant display of virtuosity. We find few pianists as rewarding as this young man.

Tomorrow night the concerts in

...ley, acting head of Department I ...ory, chats with a group of players in th... ...ir first appearance tonight when ... ...ram of Schubert, Mozart and Liszt. ... Paul Vermel and Samuel Krachmalni... ...rd Bernstein, who is on a leave of ab...

Springfield Union
July 9, 1954

...ffer First Aid At Tanglewood

...Pittsfield, July 8—First aid cov...ge will be supplied at Tangle...od by volunteers of Berkshire ...unty Chapter, Red Cross, at the ...urday evening and Sunday aft...noon concerts, July 10 and 11, ...was announced today by chair... ...n Warren U. Sears and John ... Martin.

Those covering Saturday are: ...hn R. Russell, Alfred S. Ander... ...n. Clarence E. King, George F. ...ynard and Raymond A. Du... ...arme of Pittsfield; Mrs. Ida E. ...sty of Lee and H. Albert Ma... ...ns, Jr., of Great Barrington. ...Sunday, Matthew K. Le... ...orge E. Leonard and Mr. May... ...rd of Pittsfield, Miss Muriel V. ...agg of Williamstown, Roy E. ...yle, Jr., of Adams, George ... ...man of Dalton, and Mr. Ste... ...Great Barrington.

Tanglewood Music Season Opens Tomorrow Evening

Schenectady Gazette July 9

The gala opening of the 1954 season at the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., will take place tomorrow night at 8:30 o'clock, three weeks earlier than in other seasons.

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony, will conduct Hector Berlioz' dramatic legend, "The Damnation of Faust," with the Harvard Glee club and Radcliffe Choral society of 110 voices assisting the orchestra. Soloists, all making their Tanglewood debuts, are Eleanor Steber, soprano; David Poleri, tenor; Martial Singher, baritone, and Donald Gramm, bass.

* * *

THE WORK, which runs for two and a half hours with a single intermission, has never before been presented at a Berkshire festival but Munch conducted it in Boston last winter.

A program made up of five of the Brandenburg concertos will be played tonight at 8:30 o'clock in the Theatre-Concert hall on the Tanglewood grounds with Munch conducting.

The first afternoon Music Shed concert will be held Sunday at 2:30 o'clock with Pierre Monteux as guest conductor in an all-Beethoven program, including the "Overture to 'Lenore' No. 3", "Piano Concerto No. 5, 'Emperor'," and the "Symphony No. 5."

* * *

CLAUDIO ARRAU, the eminent Chilean pianist, who will be the soloist, first appeared with the Boston Symphony orchestra on Feb. 4, 1924, under the direction of Monteux. His return to Tanglewood Sunday marks the 30th anniversary of his association with the Boston Symphony, with which he has played many times in his career.

Tickets are available at the Tanglewood box office for the Berkshire festival concerts and reservations may be made by telephone to Lenox, Mass. Tickets of general admission, entitling holders to listen from the Tanglewood lawns, will be sold a few hours before each performance.

In Brief . . .

Eagle July 9

There are probably no more cautiously happy people in Berkshire County today than the innkeepers and renters of rooms as the result of BSO Manager George Judd's hint that the Tanglewood season might be even further extended . . . The chamber music series at South Mountain—the first during the Tanglewood season in many years—deserve capacity audiences. Mrs. Willeke has done a magnificent job of organization and programming . . .

Miss Gertrude Robinson-Smith of Glendale has had as her guests for a few days Francois Jean Charles-Roux, counsel general of France in Boston, and Mme. Charles-Roux, who have returned to Boston. Miss Smith entertained recently at a dinner party for Charles Munch, Boston Symphony Orchestra conductor. Guests were Mr. and Mrs. Zino Francescatti and Mrs. Francescatti's mother, Mme. Potel de la Briere, of Monterey; Massimo Freccia, conductor of the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra, and Mrs. Freccia of Washington, Conn.; Edgar Fader, music critic of France Amerique; and Mr. and Mrs. Charles-Roux.

7/9/54

Manos

REHEARSING for tonight's Bach program in the theater-concert hall at Tanglewood are these members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra who make up the chamber orchestra. Charles Munch, music director of the BSO, conducting the orchestra here, will make his first public appearance at the 1954 Festival tonight.

TIGHT BINDING

"Eagle" - July 8, 1954

Manos

AFTER NINE YEARS. Miss Gertrude Robinson Smith of Stockbridge has returned to the Berkshires, taking her place once again in the center of activities at Tanglewood. Miss Robinson Smith was one of the prime movers and president of the Berkshire Symphonic Festival Inc., which established the music festivals in the county in 1934. She spearheaded the organization which raised funds to build the Music Shed at Tanglewood. Since leaving the Berkshires she has been living in Paris.

Munch Will Present First Tanglewood Concert Friday

Schenectady Gazette July 6, 1954

Charles Munch will present his first concert of the season at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., Friday in the Theatre-Concert Hall at 8:30 p.m. An all-Bach program of Brandenburg Concertos with Lukas Foss as piano soloist has been announced. Saturday night he will inaugurate the Music Shed series with the first Tanglewood performance of Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust." Soloists will include Eleanor Steber, David Poleri, Martial Singher and Donald Gramm.

* * *

Mr. Munch arrived in New York Friday by Air France from Paris and drove to his summer residence at Elm Court, Lenox, Saturday. He will have his first rehearsal with the orchestra tomorrow afternoon. The Saturday morning rehearsal at 10 o'clock, preceding the Shed concert, will benefit the Boston Symphony Orchestra's pension fund. Similar public rehearsals will be held each Saturday during the Berkshire Festival.

"The Damnation of Faust" will be the first of a number of works by Hector Berlioz to be presented in their complete form at Tanglewood this summer under Mr. Munch's baton. The series is in observance of the 150th anniversary season of the birth of the French composer. Mr. Munch is president of the newly-formed Berlioz Society, founded to advance knowledge and understanding of Berlioz and his works.

* * *

During the conductor's month vacation in France, following the Boston Symphony Orchestra's 73rd season, he conducted at music festivals in Bordeaux and in his native city of Strasbourg. He has just performed Berlioz' biblical work, "L'Enfance du Christ" at the Cathedral St. Andre in Strasbourg. He also conducted concerts at the Opera in Paris.

CHARLES MUNCH
Tanglewood Conductor

Berkshire "Eagle"
N.Y. Herald Tribune

E, THURSDAY, JULY 8, 1954

Berkshire Festival Opens With Beethoven Evening

Special to the Herald Tribune

TANGLEWOOD, Lenox, Mass., July 7.—A capacity audience of 1,200 filled the theater-concert hall here tonight as the 1954 Berkshire Festival opened with a chamber music concert featuring Claudio Arrau, pianist, and the Bel Arte Trio (Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola, and Martin Hoherman, cello) in a Beethoven program including the Trio for Strings in G, Op. 9, No. 1, and three piano sonatas.

It is twenty years since the first Berkshire Festival was given at the Hanna Farm in near-by Stockbridge, and this will be the fifteenth summer in which the Boston Symphony Orchestra has participated. Charles Munch, music director of the Bostonians, will make his first appearance at Tanglewood following his recent vacation in his native France when he conducts a chamber orchestra of Symphony players Friday evening in an all-Bach program of five of the six Brandenburg concertos, with Lukas Foss as piano soloist, also in the intimate theater-concert hall.

On Saturday evening, Mr. Munch opens the Music Shed series with a Tanglewood premiere, a performance in its complete form of Berlioz' dramatic symphony, "The Damnation of Faust," with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society assisting, and soloists Eleanor Steber, David Polieri, Martial Singher and Donald Gramm. Sunday afternoon's Shed concert has Pierre Monteux at the orchestra's helm, in an all-Beethoven program, with Mr. Arrau as piano soloist in the Emperor Concerto.

...cal, acting head of Department I ...ey, chats with a group of players in th... ...eir first appearance tonight when h... ...gram of Schubert, Mozart and Liszt. ... Paul Vermel and Samuel Krachmalni... ...d Bernstein, who is on a leave of ab...

Springfield Union
July 9, 1954

...st Aid ...nglewood

...First aid cov... ...plifted at Tangle... ...s of Berkshire ...d Cross at the ...no Sunday aft... ...uly 10 and 11, ...oday by chair... ...ears and John ...

...aturday are: ...ired S. Ander... ...ng, George F. ...mond A. Du... ...Mrs. Ina E. ...H. Albert Ste... ...Barrington, ...F. Leslie, ...and Mr. May... ...ss Muriel V. ...wn, ...E. ...G. ...E. ...Mr. ...ns

Tanglewood Music Season Opens Tomorrow Evening

Schenectady Gazette July 9

The gala opening of the 1954 season at the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., will take place tomorrow night at 8:30 o'clock, three weeks earlier than in other seasons.

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony, will conduct Hector Berlioz' dramatic legend, "The Damnation of Faust," with the Harvard Glee club and Radcliffe Choral society of 110 voices assisting the orchestra. Soloists, all making their Tanglewood debuts, are Eleanor Steber, soprano; David Poleri, tenor; Martial Singher, baritone, and Donald Gramm, bass.

* * *

THE WORK, which runs for two and a half hours with a single intermission, has never before been presented at a Berkshire festival but Munch conducted it in Boston last winter.

A program made up of five of the Brandenburg concertos will be played tonight at 8:30 o'clock in the Theatre-Concert hall on the Tanglewood grounds with Munch conducting.

The first afternoon Music Shed concert will be held Sunday at 2:30 o'clock with Pierre Monteux as guest conductor in an all-Beethoven program, including the "Overture to 'Lenore' No. 3"; "Piano Concerto No. 5, 'Emperor'," and the "Symphony No. 5."

* * *

CLAUDIO ARRAU, the eminent Chilean pianist, who will be the soloist, first appeared with the Boston Symphony orchestra on Feb. 4, 1924, under the direction of Monteux. His return to Tanglewood Sunday marks the 30th anniversary of his association with the Boston Symphony, with which he has played many times in his career.

Tickets are a... the Tanglewood box office to... ...shire festival concerts and reservations may be made by ... to Lenox, Mass. Tickets of general admission, entitling ... to listen from the Tanglewood ... will be sold a few ... before each performance.

In Brief . . . Eagle July 9

There are probably no more cautiously happy people in Berkshire County today than the innkeepers and renters of rooms as the result of BSO Manager George Judd's hint that the Tanglewood season might be even further extended . . . The chamber music series at South Mountain—the first during the Tanglewood season in many years—deserve capacity audiences. Mrs. Willeke has done a magnificent job of organization and programming . . .

Miss Gertrude Robinson-Smith of Glendale has had as her guests for a few days Francois Jean Charles-Roux, counsel general of France in Boston, and Mme. Charles-Roux, who have returned to Boston. Miss Smith entertained recently at a dinner party for Charles Munch, Boston Symphony Orchestra conductor. Guests were Mr. and Mrs. Zino Francescatti and Mrs. Francescatti's mother, Mme. Potel de la Briere, of Monterey; Massimo Freccia, conductor of the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra, and Mrs. Freccia of Washington, Conn.; Edgar Fader, music critic of France Amerique; and Mr. and Mrs. Charles-Roux. 7/9/54

...mong clever

...leal better

...fe.
...wouldn't.
...ic about

...OD
...1954
...rector
...on-

...LARK
9—Charles ...
the Boston ...
made his ...
...he Berkshire ...
...t conducting ...
the tradition... ...
concerts de... ...
...ach and Mo...
2800 persons ...
...o honor to the ...
...ctor, the mem... ...
...r orchestra and ...
...an Bach whose ...
...ncerti" made up ...
...r. Munch opened ...
...ear with this same ...

...quisite Music

...t when Bach under... ...g of the concerti he ...
...ore all the possibili... ...
...certo grosse. This he ...
...st fasinating manner, ...
...sic which is bouyant, ...
...ontaining few instances ...
...ian elegiac note. One ...
...most affectingly in the ...
...ndante of the third con... ...
...the affetioso of the fifth.

It takes the virtuosi of the Boston Symphony Orchestra to fully realize the possibilities within these concerti. The singing strings in the two movements of the third concerti, the blazing beauty of the trumpet played by Roger Voisin in the second concerti and the pianistic wizardry of Lukas Foss in the fifth concerto, these are elements which bring full realization of these concerti. One must also mention the exquisite playing of flutist Doriot Anthony, oboeist Ralph Gemberg and violinist Richard Burgin.

There is utter variety in these concerti and boundless imagination in the use of the instruments, and in the ways the various combination of instruments are juxtaposed, divided and treated. Mr. Munch shies somewhat away from the purity of the Bach style. His approach is with a greater realization of the concert possibilities of these works and thus one has a more sonorous, warmer performance than one might expect, one which the purists may not wholy agree is just. It is utterly satisfactory and rewarding.

The second, third and fifth concerti have remained the most popular and of these, the fifth seems to be the greater favorite. It is, in fact, a concerto for piano and orchestra; a concerto of fantastic difficulties for the pianist and it is to the credit of Lukas Foss that he gave a brilliant display of virtuosity. We find few pianists as rewarding as this young man.

Tomorrow night the concerts in

Manos

REHEARSING for tonight's Bach program in the theater-concert hall at Tanglewood are these members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra who make up the chamber orchestra. Charles Munch, music director of the BSO, conducting the orchestra here, will make his first public appearance at the 1954 Festival tonight.

erkshire Evening E

ttsfield, Massachusetts, Friday, July 9, 1954.

Chamber Orchestra Concert Opens Tonight at Festival

TANGLEWOOD — The first of six chamber orchestra programs by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by music director Charles Munch, will be given at the Berkshire Festival tonight at 8:50 in the theater-concert hall.

Parade Aug. 13

Known popularly as "the Bach-Mozart concerts," these increasingly popular programs in 1953 attracted an audience of 26,150, an average attendance of 4,360. An innovation this year will find the chamber orchestra concerts given on successive Friday evenings, July 16, July 23, July 30, Aug. 6; the final one, however will be on a Thursday, Aug. 12, because of the annual Tanglewood on Parade scheduled for Friday, Aug. 13. In past years these intimate concerts had been concentrated into the first three weekends of the Berkshire Festival on Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons.

At tonight's all-Bach concert, Mr. Munch, in his first appearance on the podium at Tanglewood this summer, will conduct the Brandenburg Concertos, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 5 and 6, with Lukas Foss, composer-conductor-pianist and this year head of the Berkshire Music Center's Department V for amateur students of music, as soloist.

Mr. Foss was born in Berlin in 1922, and studied at the Paris Conservatoire from the time he was 11 until he was 15. On coming to the United States in 1937, he studied at the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia with Randall Thompson, Fritz Reiner and Paul Hindemith, then became a conductor-pupil of Serge Koussevitzky at Tanglewood, and was appointed to the faculty of the Berkshire Music Center in 1946. Currently he is professor of music at the University of California.

Won Many Awards

He has won the Pulitzer, Guggenheim and Fulbright fellowships, the Horblit Award of the Boston Symphony, the Prix de Rome, and a citation from the New York Music Critics' Circle for "The Prairie," a cantata. His compositions include "Ode for Orchestra," "Symphony in G," a ballet "The Gift of the Magi," and three works done at Tanglewood, "The Song of Songs" in 1950, "Piano Concerto" and the cantata "A Parable of Death" performed last summer. On Aug. 6 he will conduct the chamber orchestra of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a program of Stravinsky and Mozart.

Miss Doriot Anthony, flutist, and Richard Burgin, concertmaster of the Boston Symphony, will be soloists in the second and fifth Brandenburg concertos. In the second, Roger Voisin, trumpet, and Ralph Gomberg, oboe, will also play solos.

Mr. Burgin made his first public appearance at the age of 11 as violin soloist with the Warsaw Philharmonic Society. He has been concertmaster and soloist of the Leningrad, Helsinki, Christiania and Stockholm Orchestras, serving under Nikisch, Fiedler, Richard Strauss, Schneevoigt and Sibelius. He became concertmaster of the Boston Symphony in 1920 and heads the chamber music department of the Berkshire Music Center. Recently he was named conductor of the New England Conservatory of Music in Boston.

Miss Anthony returns to Tanglewood where she made her debut in the same solo last summer. Before joining the Boston Symphony she played in the National Symphony, Washington, D.C., the Los Angeles Philharmonic, the NBC Standard (Los Angeles) and Hollywood Bowl symphony orchestras.

Native of Boston

Mr. Gomberg, a native Bostonian, was first oboe for Stokowski's All-American Youth, the Baltimore Symphony and the Mutual Broadcasting orchestras, and has soloed for the New York City Center Symphony under Leonard Bernstein. He is a graduate of Curtis Institute, Philadelphia.

A native of Angers, France, Mr. Voisin learned to play the trumpet from his father, whom he succeeded with the Boston Symphony. He teaches solfege at Tanglewood.

The identical program of five of the six Brandenburg concertos, (which Johann Sebastian Bach presented to the Margraf of Brandenburg in 1721) with the same soloists, attracted a record-breaking attendance of 4,200 at the opening of the Berkshire Festival's chamber orchestra concerts last summer. Prior to this never more than two of the concerti were ever played on the same program at Tanglewood.

Tickets for tonight's concert and the succeeding ones by the Boston Symphony Orchestra during the Berkshire Festival, which concluded Aug. 15, may be obtained at the Tanglewood box office, and telephone reservations are accepted. Admission for listening from the lawn will be available on the day of each concert. In case of rain the programs will be held in the Music Shed, which will also seat the lawn audience.

Mitchell

BACK IN THE BERKSHIRES for Sunday afternoon's concert at Tanglewood is Pierre Monteux, 79-year-old conductor who will direct the Boston Symphony Orchestra in an all-Beethoven program Sunday afternoon at 2:30. After arriving by plane at the Pittsfield Airport Wednesday he went to Elm Court where he will reside during his Festival stay.

Tanglewood Tales

Student Concert Program

The program for the student concert in the chamber music hall Sunday night at 8:30 was announced today. It follows:

Divertimento for string trio . George Green
I Sonatine—Vivace, II Cantilena—Andantino, III Rondo—Vivace
Violin, George Green
Viola, Joseph Pietropaolo
Cello, Camilla Heller

Sonata for bassoon and piano ..... Heskel Brisman
I Slow and Quietly, II Rondo—Lively, III Lament—Slow
Bassoon, Isabelle Clore
Piano, Emmalou Diemer

Suite for violin and piano ..... Emmalou Diemer
I Scherzo, II Pastoral, III Finale
Violin, Miriam Wexler
Piano, Emmalou Diemer

Eclogue for three wood-winds . Claire Polin
Flute, Claire Polin
Clarinet, Kenneth Moore
Bassoon, Robert Martenson

Six little pieces for pianoforte, four hands ..... Richard Maxfield
I Moderato, II Vivo, III Adagio Tranquillo, IV Andante, V Allegro Moderato, VI Allegro con Spirito
Richard Maxfield and Tossi Ichiyanagi

Trio ..... Stefans Grove
I Preludium, II Fugue, III Aria, IV Rondo
Oboe, Catherine Dufford
Clarinet, Walter Rubin
Bassoon, Patsy Hayes

* * *

Weekend Guests

William Judd, elder son of retiring BSO manager George E. Judd, vacationing at Meadowlark, the former studio of Daniel Chester French in Glendale, and Miss Ruth O'Neill, both of the Judson, O'Neill & Judd division of Columbia Artists management, New York, are attending the Tanglewood concerts this weekend. This is the bureau which manages soloist Claudio Arrau. Another Tanglewood concert guest is John Ortiz, artists' manager of the Baldwin Piano Co., New York.

* * *

Several Students Camping at Bowl

Eight Berkshire Music Center students at Tanglewood this summer are disdaining the relative comforts of Wheatleigh, the male students' dormitory, for the more rugged life, and are camping on the edge of Stockbridge Bowl. Since four are tympanists, one a trombone player and another a chorus leader, they are well equipped to give a nocturnal concert of their own. In a small shack lives Norman Bernstein, of Lowell, the trombonist, a repeater from last summer. Mervin Britton, Hindsboro, Ill., Michael Colgrass, Brookfield, Ill., Lloyd McCausland, Milford, and Albert Duffy, Littleton, are the tympanists, and the chorus leader is Maurice Carbonneau, of Lewiston, Maine. Their neighbors in a near-by tent are two students of Ludwig and Laura Zirner of the University of Illinois, in Champaign, Harold Johnson, Chicago, and Herbert Gibson, Danville, Ill., both associates in the opera department. Two Wisconsin students are also quartered in the Barn, daytime scene of Department V studies, William Keller of Milwaukee, and Bert Phillips, of LaCrosse, who play violin and cello respectively in the student symphony.

"Eagle"
July 9, 1954

Munch Conducts His French Orchestra

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, while on vacation last month in his native Strasburg, France, took over the helm of his erstwhile orchestra, the French National Radio Orchestra, for a concert on June 20 in the Strasbourg Festival, at short notice. The concert had been reserved for Soviet composer Dmitri Shostakovitch to conduct his new Tenth Symphony, which hasn't yet been performed outside of the U.S.S.R. It was canceled on short notice, and Mr. Munch, invited to fill the gap, performed the posthumous Schubert symphony in C major, with young French violinist Annie Jodry performing the Khatchaturian violin concerto which Ruth Posselt will perform with Richard Burgin conducting the Boston Symphony at Tanglewood Sunday afternoon, Aug. 1.

Newtown BEE
July 2, 1954

The Berkshire Festival, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., presents chamber music Wednesdays at 8:30 p.m., chamber orchestra Fridays at 8:30 p.m. and the Boston Symphony Orchestra Saturdays at 8:30 p.m. and Sundays at 2:30 p.m. Tickets on sale at the box office, telephone Lenox 600.

Wednesday, July 7, Claudio Arrau, piano, and The Bel Arte Trio: Beethoven, String Trio in G, Op. 9, No. 1; Piano Sonatas, Op. 79, 110, 57 ("Appassionata").

Friday, July 9: Bach, Brandenburg Concertos, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 5, 6, piano solo by Lukas Foss. Charles Munch, conductor.

Saturday, July 10: Berlioz, "The Damnation of Faust", with the Harvard Glee Club, Radcliff Choral Society and soloists. Charles Munch, conductor.

Sunday, July 11: Beethoven, Overture to "Leonore", No. 3; Piano Concerto No. 5 ("Emperor") with Claudio Arrau, soloist; Symphony No. 6. Pierre Monteux, conductor.

Wednesday, July 14, The Albeneri Trio: Brahms, Trio in B, Op. 8; Martinu, Trio in D Minor; Beethoven, Trio in B flat, Op. 97 ("Archduke").

Friday, July 16: Bach, Cantata No. 93, "Wer nur den lieben Gott", Hugh Ross conducting; Suites Nos. 1 and 4, Charles Munch conducting.

Saturday, July 17: Debussy, Excerpts from "St. Sebastian", and "La Mer"; Franck, "Les Djinns", for piano and orchestra with Vera Francheschi as soloist, and Symphony in D Minor, Pierre Monteux, conductor.

Sunday, July 18, Debussy, "Iberia"; Copland, Piano Concerto with Leo Smit as soloist; Berlioz, "Fantastic Symphony". Charles Munch, conductor.

MUSIC

The 17th Berkshire Festival since concerts were inaugurated in the hills of Western Massachusetts in 1934, the fifteenth since the Boston Symphony Orchestra first participated, will commence six weeks of 24 concerts on Wednesday evening at 8:30 p.m. in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., with an all-Beethoven program of chamber music, featuring Claudio Arrau, pianist, and the Bel Arte String Trio. On Friday also at 8:30 p.m. in the Theater-Concert Hall, Charles Munch, Music Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will conduct a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players in an all-Bach program, with Lukas Foss as piano soloist.

For the first time in Berkshire Festival history, Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon concerts will be given commencing the opening weekend, July 10 at 8:30 p.m. and July 11 at 2:30 p.m., in the Music Shed. Mr. Munch will lead the full 104-piece Boston Symphony Orchestra on Saturday evening in the first Tanglewood presentation of Hector Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust," with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society directed by G. Wallace Woodworth participating, and soloists Eleanor Steber (Marguerite), David Poleri (Faust), Martial Singher (Mephistopheles) and Donald Gramm (Brander). On Sunday afternoon guest conductor Pierre Monteux will conduct the full Boston Symphony in an all-Beethoven program, with Claudio Arrau as piano soloist, the occasion marking the 30th anniversary of Mr. Arrau's first appearance with the orchestra which was then under the baton of Mr. Monteux.

Since 1938 when the 6,000-seat Music Shed was erected on the Tanglewood estate where Nathaniel Hawthorne was a guest a century ago, open on three sides so the music might spill out to the thousands who listen to it on the grass under the stars, the Berkshire Festival has attracted increasingly large crowds from all over Eastern U.S. and Canada until last summer all attendance records were broken, with an average of 10,200 at each Shed concert.

Newtown (Conn.) BEE
July 4, 1954

Announce Soloists Of Berkshire Festival

Six-Week Concert Series To Open July 7

Martial Singher, baritone; David Poleri, tenor; Donald Gramm, bass-baritone; John McCollum, tenor; Niccola Moscona, bass-baritone of the Metropolitan Opera, and E. Power Biggs, organist, will be among the soloists for the Berkshire Festival by the Boston Symphony Orchetra at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. this summer.

The six week-ends of summer concerts in the hills of western Massachusetts will commence with a chamber music concert by Claudio Arrau, pianist, and the Bel Arte Trio, Ruth Poselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola, and Martin Hoherman, 'cello, in an all-Beethoven program in the Theatre-Concert Hall on Wednesday evening, July 7.

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will conduct a chamber orchestra in a program of Bach's Brandenburg Concertos, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 5 and 6, with Lukas Foss as soloist, in the Theatre-Concert Hall on Friday, July 9. The Festival will continue through Sunday afternoon, August 15.

Mr Singher, Mr Poleri, Mr Gramm and Eleanor Steber, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, will be soloists in Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust", to be given for the first time at a Berkshire Festival, on Saturday evening, July 10, in the huge Music Shed at Tanglewood. The full 104-piece Boston Symphony conducted by Mr Munch, assisted by the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society under the direction fo G. Wallace Woodworth, will perform in the opera. The choruses from Cambridge, returning from their first transcontinental tour, will make their first visit to Tanglewood for this occasion.

Mr Poleri will also be the soloist in Berlioz' "Te Deum", which Mr Munch will conduct at the Shed Concert of Saturday evening, August 7, with the assistance of the Berkshire Festival Chorus of students of the Berkshire Music Center, the summer school of music maintained by the orchestra. Mr Poleri will sing the single solo part in Berlioz' "Requiem", with which Mr Munch will close the Festival on Sunday afternoon, August 15. The final concert will be a memorial to Serge Koussevitzky, for 25 years music director of the Boston Symphony and pioneer of the Tanglewood development.

John McCollum and Nicola Moscona, who were two of the three soloists in the 1953 Festival performance of Berlioz' dramatic symphony "Romeo and Juliet", will repeat their roles in the performance of Saturday evening, July 31. Mr Biggs will give two Saturday afternoon organ recitals in the Music Shed during the latter part of the Berkshire Festival.

Other of the summer soloists are Miss Steber in Berlioz' "Summer Nights", on Saturday evening, August 7; Lukas Foss in the Bach Brandenburk Concerto No. 5 Friday evening, July 9; Claudio Arrau, in Franck's "Les Djinns", which Mr Monteux will conduct on Saturday evening, July 17.

Also, Leo Smit, pianist, in Aaron Copland's Piano Concerto, Sunday afternoon, July 18; William Primrose, violist, in Berlioz' "Harold in Italy" Symphony, Sunday afternoon, July 25; Doriot Anthony, first flutist of the Boston Symphony, in Jacques Ibert's Flute Concerto, Friday evening, July 30; Ruth Posselt, violinist, in Dvorak's Violin Concerto, Sunday afternoon, August 11; Seymur Lipkin, pianist, in a Mozart Piano Concerto, Friday evening, August 6; Zino Francescatti in Beethoven's Violin Concerto, Sunday afternoon, August 8, and Nicole Henriot, pianist, in Ravel's Piano Concerto, Saturday evening, August 14.

Applications for single concert tickets may be sent to the box office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., telephone Lenox 600.

erkshire Evening E

ttsfield, Massachusetts, Friday, July 9, 1954.

Chamber Orchestra Concert Opens Tonight at Festival

TANGLEWOOD — The first of six chamber orchestra programs by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by music director Charles Munch, will be given at the Berkshire Festival tonight at 8:50 in the theater-concert hall.

Parade Aug. 13

Known popularly as "the Bach-Mozart concerts," these increasingly popular programs in 1953 attracted an audience of 26,150, an average attendance of 4,360. An innovation this year will find the chamber orchestra concerts given on successive Friday evenings, July 16, July 23, July 30, Aug. 6; the final one, however will be on a Thursday, Aug. 12, because of the annual Tanglewood on Parade scheduled for Friday, Aug. 13. In past years these intimate concerts had been concentrated into the first three weekends of the Berkshire Festival on Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons.

At tonight's all-Bach concert, Mr. Munch, in his first appearance on the podium at Tanglewood this summer, will conduct the Brandenburg Concertos, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 5 and 6, with Lukas Foss, composer-conductor-pianist and this year head of the Berkshire Music Center's Department V for amateur students of music, as soloist.

Mr. Foss was born in Berlin in 1922, and studied at the Paris Conservatoire from the time he was 11 until he was 15. On coming to the United States in 1937, he studied at the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia with Randall Thompson, Fritz Reiner and Paul Hindemith, then became a conductor-pupil of Serge Koussevitzky at Tanglewood, and was appointed to the faculty of the Berkshire Music Center in 1946. Currently he is professor of music at the University of California.

Won Many Awards

He has won the Pulitzer, Guggenheim and Fulbright fellowships, the Horblit Award of the Boston Symphony, the Prix de Rome, and a citation from the New York Music Critics' Circle for "The Prairie," a cantata. His compositions include "Ode for Orchestra," the Boston Symphony, will be soloists in the second and fifth Brandenburg concertos. In the second, Roger Voisin, trumpet, and Ralph Gomberg, oboe, will also play solos.

Mr. Burgin made his first public appearance at the age of 11 as violin soloist with the Warsaw Philharmonic Society. He has been concertmaster and soloist of the Leningrad, Helsinki, Christiania and Stockholm Orchestras, serving under Nikisch, Fiedler, Richard Strauss, Schneevoigt and Sibelius. He became concertmaster of the Boston Symphony in 1920 and heads the chamber music department of the Berkshire Music Center. Recently he was named conductor of the New England Conservatory of Music in Boston.

Miss Anthony returns to Tanglewood where she made her debut in the same solo last summer. Before joining the Boston Symphony she played in the National Symphony, Washington, D.C., the Los Angeles Philharmonic, the NBC Standard (Los Angeles) and Hollywood Bowl symphony orchestras.

Native of Boston

Mr. Gomberg, a native Bostonian, was first oboe for Stokowski's All-American Youth, the Baltimore Symphony and the Mutual Broadcasting orchestras, and has soloed for the New York City Center Symphony under Leonard Bernstein. He is a graduate of Curtis Institute, Philadelphia.

A native of Angers, France, Mr. Voisin learned to play the trumpet from his father, whom he succeeded with the Boston Symphony. He teaches solfege at Tanglewood.

The identical program of five of the six Brandenburg concertos, (which Johann Sebastian Bach presented to the Margraf of Brandenburg in 1721) with the same soloists, attracted a record-breaking attendance of 4,200 at the opening of the Berkshire Festival's chamber orchestra concerts last summer. Prior to this never more than two of the concerti were ever played on the same program at Tanglewood.

Tickets for tonight's concert and the succeeding ones by the Boston

notes

The Berkshire County Committee for the United Nations will bring this needed understanding to the area. It is apparently long

No Ba

To the Editor

Beacon H

golden egg,

ly not understood.

WINDUP: Telev-

Tanglewood Tales

Student Concert Program

The program for the student concert in the chamber music hall Sunday night at 8:30 was announced today. It follows:

Divertimento for string trio . George Green
I Sonatine—Vivace, II Cantilena—Andantino, III Rondo—Vivace
Violin, George Green
Viola, Joseph Pietropaolo
Cello, Camilla Heller
Sonata for bassoon and piano ..... Heskel Brisman
I Slow and Quietly, II Rondo—Lively, III Lament—Slow
Bassoon, Isabelle Clore
Piano, Emmalou Diemer
Suite for violin and piano ..... Emmalou Diemer
I Scherzo, II Pastoral, III Finale
Violin, Miriam Wexler
Piano, Emmalou Diemer
Eclogue for three wood-winds . Claire Polin
Flute, Claire Polin
Clarinet, Kenneth Moore
Bassoon, Robert Martenson
Six little pieces for pianoforte, four hands ..... Richard Maxfield
I Moderato, II Vivo, III Adagio Tranquillo, IV Andante, V Allegro Moderato, VI Allegro con Spirito
Richard Maxfield and Tossi Ichiyanagi
Trio ..... Stefans Grove
I Preludium, II Fugue, III Aria, IV Rondo
Oboe, Catherine Dufford
Clarinet, Walter Rubin
Bassoon, Patsy Hayes

* * *

Weekend Guests

William Judd, elder son of retiring BSO manager George E. Judd, vacationing at Meadowlark, the former studio of Daniel Chester French in Glendale, and Miss Ruth O'Neill, both of the Judson, O'Neill & Judd division of Columbia Artists management, New York, are attending the Tanglewood concerts this weekend. This is the bureau which manages soloist Claudio Arrau. Another Tanglewood concert guest is John Ortiz, artists' manager of the Baldwin Piano Co., New York.

* * *

Several Students Camping at Bowl

Eight Berkshire Music Center students at Tanglewood this summer are disdaining the relative comforts of Wheatleigh, the male students' dormitory, for the more rugged life, and are camping on the edge of Stockbridge Bowl. Since four are tympanists, one a trombone player and another a chorus leader, they are well equipped to give a nocturnal concert of their own. In a small shack lives Norman Bernstein, of Lowell, the trombonist, a repeater from last summer. Mervin Britton, Hindsboro, Ill., Michael Colgrass, Brookfield, Ill., Lloyd McCausland, Milford, and Albert Duffy, Littleton, are the tympanists, and the chorus leader is Maurice Carbonneau, of Lewiston, Maine. Their neighbors in a near-by tent are two students of Ludwig and Laura Zirner of the University of Illinois, in Champaign, Harold Johnson, Chicago, and Herbert Gibson, Danville, Ill., both associates in the opera department. Two Wisconsin students are also quartered in the Barn, daytime scene of Department V studies, William Keller of Milwaukee, and Bert Phillips, of LaCrosse, who play violin and cello respectively in the student symphony.

"Eagle"
July 9, 1954

Munch Conducts His French Orchestra

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, while on vacation last month in his native Strasburg, France, took over the helm of his erstwhile orchestra, the French National Radio Orchestra, for a concert on June 20 in the Strasbourg Festival, at short notice. The concert had been reserved for Soviet composer Dmitri Shostakovitch to conduct his new Tenth Symphony, which hasn't yet been performed outside of the U.S.S.R. It was canceled on short notice, and Mr. Munch, invited to fill the gap, performed the posthumous Schubert symphony in C major, with young French violinist Annie Jodry performing the Khatchaturian violin concerto which Ruth Posselt will perform with Richard Burgin conducting the Boston Symphony at Tanglewood Sunday afternoon, Aug. 1.

Newtown BEE
July 2, 1954

The Berkshire Festival, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., presents chamber music Wednesdays at 8:30 p.m., chamber orchestra Fridays at 8:30 p.m. and the Boston Symphony Orchestra Saturdays at 8:30 p.m. and Sundays at 2:30 p.m. Tickets on sale at the box office, telephone Lenox 600.

Wednesday, July 7, Claudio Arrau, piano, and The Bel Arte Trio: Beethoven, String Trio in G, Op. 9, No. 1; Piano Sonatas, Op. 79, 110, 57 ("Appassionata").

Friday, July 9: Bach, Brandenburg Concertos, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 5, 6, piano solo by Lukas Foss. Charles Munch, conductor.

Saturday, July 10: Berlioz, "The Damnation of Faust", with the Harvard Glee Club, Radcliff Choral Society and soloists. Charles Munch, conductor.

Sunday, July 11: Beethoven, Overture to "Leonore", No. 3; Piano Concerto No. 5 ("Emperor") with Claudio Arrau, soloist; Symphony No. 6. Pierre Monteux, conductor.

Wednesday, July 14, The Albeneri Trio: Brahms, Trio in B, Op. 8; Martinu, Trio in D Minor; Beethoven, Trio in B flat, Op. 97 ("Archduke").

Friday, July 16: Bach, Cantata No. 93, "Wer nur den lieben Gott", Hugh Ross conducting; Suites Nos. 1 and 4, Charles Munch conducting.

Saturday, July 17: Debussy, Excerpts from "St. Sebastian", and "La Mer"; Franck, "Les Djinns", for piano and orchestra with Vera Francheschi as soloist, and Symphony in D Minor, Pierre Monteux, conductor.

Sunday, July 18, Debussy, "Iberia"; Copland, Piano Concerto with Leo Smit as soloist; Berlioz, "Fantastic Symphony". Charles Munch, conductor.

MUSIC

The 17th Berkshire Festival since concerts were inaugurated in the hills of Western Massachusetts in 1934, the fifteenth since the Boston Symphony Orchestra first participated, will commence six weeks of 24 concerts on Wednesday evening at 8:30 p. m. in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., with an all-Beethoven program of chamber music, featuring Claudio Arrau, pianist, and the Bel Arte string Trio. On Friday also at 8:30 p. m. in the Theater-Concert Hall, Charles Munch, Music Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will conduct a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players in an all-Bach program, with Lukas Foss as piano soloist.

For the first time in Berkshire Festival history, Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon concerts will be given commencing the opening weekend, July 10 at 8:30 p. m. and July 11 at 2:30 p. m. in the Music Shed. Mr. Munch will lead the full 104-piece Boston Symphony Orchestra on Saturday evening in the first Tanglewood presentation of Hector Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust," with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society directed by G. Wallace Woodworth participating, and soloists Eleanor Steber (Marguerite), David Poleri (Faust), Martial Singher (Mephistopheles) and Donald Gramm (Brander). On Sunday afternoon guest conductor Pierre Monteux will conduct the full Boston Symphony in an all-Beethoven program, with Claudio Arrau as piano soloist, the occasion marking the 30th anniversary of Mr. Arrau's first appearance with the orchestra which was then under the baton of Mr. Monteux.

Since 1938 when the 6,000-seat Music Shed was erected on the Tanglewood estate where Nathaniel Hawthorne was a guest a century ago, open on three sides so the music might spill out to the thousands who listen to it on the grass under the stars, the Berkshire Festival has attracted increasingly large crowds from all over Eastern U.S. and Canada until last summer all attendance records were broken, with an average of 10,200 at each Shed concert.

Mitchell

BACK IN THE BERKSHIRES for Sunday afternoon's concert at Tanglewood is Pierre Monteux, 79-year-old conductor who will direct the Boston Symphony Orchestra in an all-Beethoven program Sunday afternoon at 2:30. After arriving by plane at the Pittsfield Airport Wednesday he went to Elm Court where he will reside during his Festival stay.

Newtown (Conn.) BEE
July 4, 1954

Announce Soloists Of Berkshire Festival

Six-Week Concert Series To Open July 7

Martial Singher, baritone; David Poleri, tenor; Donald Gramm, bass-baritone; John McCollum, tenor; Niccola Moscona, bass-baritone of the Metropolitan Opera, and E. Power Biggs, organist, will be among the soloists for the Berkshire Festival by the Boston Symphony Orchetra at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. this summer.

The six week-ends of summer concerts in the hills of western Massachusetts will commence with a chamber music concert by Claudio Arrau, pianist, and the Bel Arte Trio, Ruth Poselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola, and Martin Hoherman, 'cello, in an all-Beethoven program in the Theatre-Concert Hall on Wednesday evening, July 7.

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will conduct a chamber orchestra in a program of Bach's Branden- Foss as soloist, in the Theatre-Concert Hall on Friday, July 9. The Festival will continue through Sunday afternoon, August 15.

Mr Singher, Mr Poleri, Mr Gramm and Eleanor Steber, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, will be soloists in Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust", to be given for the first time at a Berkshire Festival, on Saturday evening, July 10, in the huge Music Shed at Tanglewood. The full 104-piece Boston Symphony conducted by Mr Munch, assisted by the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society under the direction fo G. Wallace Woodworth, will perform in the opera. The choruses from Cambridge, returning from their first transcontinental tour, will make their first visit to Tanglewood for this occasion.

Mr Poleri will also be the soloist in Berlioz' "Te Deum", which Mr Munch will conduct at the Shed Concert of Saturday evening, August 7, with the assistance of the Berkshire Festival Chorus of students of the Berkshire Music Center, the summer school of music maintained by the orchestra. Mr Poleri will sing the single solo part in Berlioz' "Requiem", with which Mr Munch will close the Festival on Sunday afternoon, August 15. The final concert will be a memorial to Serge Koussevitzky, for 25 years music director of the Boston Symphony and pioneer of the Tanglewood development.

John McCollum and Nicola Moscona, who were two of the three soloists in the 1953 Festival performance of Berlioz' dramatic symphony "Romeo and Juliet", will repeat their roles in the performance of Saturday evening, July 31. Mr Biggs will give two Saturday afternoon organ recitals in the Music Shed during the latter part of the Berkshire Festival.

Other of the summer soloists are Miss Steber in Berlioz' "Summer Nights", on Saturday evening, August 7; Lukas Foss in the Bach Brandenburk Concerto No. 5 Friday evening, July 9; Claudio Arrau, in Franck's "Les Djinns", which Mr Monteux will conduct on Saturday evening, July 17.

Also, Leo Smit, pianist, in Aaron Copland's Piano Concerto, Sunday afternoon, July 18; William Primrose, violist, in Berlioz' "Harold in Italy" Symphony, Sunday afternoon, July 25; Doriot Anthony, first flutist of the Boston Symphony, in Jacques Ibert's Flute Concerto, Friday evening, July 30; Ruth Posselt, violinist, in Dvorak's Violin Concerto, Sunday afternoon, August 11; Seymur Lipkin, pianist, in a Mozart Piano Concerto, Friday evening, August 6; Zino Francescatti in Beethoven's Violin Concerto, Sunday afternoon, August 8, and Nicole Henriot, pianist, in Ravel's Piano Concerto, Saturday evening, August 14.

Applications for single concert tickets may be sent to the box office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., telephone Lenox 600.

[145]

Complete copy of issue follows.

Summer Symphony

... sure gage of musical culture

Red Rocks Theater, Denver

SUMMER music keeps alive community interest in the local symphony orchestra, proves a solution to the population's increased leisure, is a new lease on life for orchestra members, makes the difference between a temporary and a permanent orchestra. Of all these reasons its lift to orchestra members is most pertinent. The average pay of members of a major symphony in the winter season (22.4 weeks) is around $81. (Secondary orchestras pay less.) Spread out over the year, this comes to about $40 weekly—not enough nowadays to keep the children in cornflakes, let alone sending them to college. Summerless symphonists, therefore, eke out a living by scattering to camps, resorts, and more music-loving cities. Some of the instrumentalists, finding niches elsewhere, do not come back in the Fall. In the end, it is the city which makes year-round provision for its symphony orchestra members which attracts and holds musicians.

For all its recent sproutings, the summer series is no new shoot on the orchestral branch. Small orchestras were playing for summer audiences already in the eighteenth century—witness the open-air concert (followed by "a small firework") given in 1760 at Ranelagh Gardens in New York City and the series of summer concerts put on by the Pennsylvania Coffee House in Philadelphia in 1786, and at Gray's Gardens there in 1789. In fact, the first really professional symphony orchestra in America was a summer orchestra. From May, 1868, to October, 1875, the Theodore Thomas Orchestra played 1,127 concerts in New York City in Central Park Garden, a hall with a small plaza in front of it in which potted plants were arranged around a plashing fountain and tables were spread with beer and light refreshments. Thomas granted two intermissions in a sort of bargain with the audience members—plenty of time to drink, smoke and promenade in return for full concentration on the music. This was the first orchestra in the United States to give its members regular rehearsals plus regular salaries, and a fair likelihood of continuance.

Other summer orchestras patterned after the Thomas group soon sprang up. By 1880 Denver was putting aside $2,500 a year for summer concerts in the parks. The Boston Symphony started giving summer concerts when it was only four years old, that is, in 1885 — "promenade" concerts they were called, famous equally for their spirited music, their stimulating intermission conversation and their excellent beer. Now they have developed into the "Pops" with their season May and June, their home a hall scattered with tables and cheerful with color, their audiences relaxed, leisurely, their conductor of twenty-five years, Arthur Fiedler, who believes that summer programs should be made up of good music which is easy to take.

Trolley cars, which came into wider use (replacing horse-drawn cars) in the 1890's, gave a boost to summer music. The Danz Orchestra of Minneapolis — Danz had been concert master in the Thomas Orchestra—got itself out of the doldrums by starting a summer series on Lake Harriet, to which trolley-riders and bicyclists came in droves. Milwaukee, revelling in its new electric trolley system, discovered its parks; and the Milwaukee Electric Railway and Light Company, with an eye to business as well as with an ear for music, instituted free concerts therein. The Rapid Transit Company in Philadelphia, quick to realize the importance to their trade of summer concerts, built a huge open-air auditorium in Willow Grove Park and engaged famous orchestras and bands as early as 1896. After the turn of the century these Willow Grove concerts became so famous that Philadelphia was called the summer capital of American music. Another Philadelphia summer series, this in Woodside Park, conducted by Fritz Scheel in 1899, led to his being chosen the following year as the leader of the newly formed Philadelphia Orchestra.

During the early part of the century there was a lag in summer music, at least of the symphonic variety. During the 1930's and 1940's, however, when the debacle in Europe had turned America's attention to her own artistic resources and when dozens of symphony orchestras were seeking simultaneously to establish themselves on a permanent basis, summer series began to start in good earnest. Among the earliest of these was the New York City popular-priced summer symphony concerts inaugurated at the Lewisohn Stadium in 1918. Though from the beginning they have been under separate management from the winter series, they have none the less used New York Philharmonic members almost entirely.

"Symphonies under the Stars" in Hollywood Bowl was first presented July 11, 1922, also with local symphony players. The Los Angeles Philharmonic's then conductor, Alfred Hertz, was, in fact, one of the pioneer stadium symphony directors, willing to brave the great open spaces in a day when hazards of wind and rain were looked on much more seriously than they are today. His faith in California weather seems to have been justified. Of the 1,001 Hollywood Bowl concerts which have been given to date only two have had to be postponed on account of rain!

In 1929, the Esplanade Concerts were founded in Boston by Mr. Fiedler, still their conductor today. He in fact waged a successful one-man campaign to convince the city fathers that the funds bequeathed by Edwin M. Hatch to provide that city with good summer music would be put to best use by the erection of an orchestral shell. The Edwin Hatch Memorial, standing on the Charles River Esplanade, is a most substantial monument to his persuasiveness and his persistency.

Twin of the Boston Esplanade Concerts, in age, at least, is the Chautauqua Orchestra founded at [redacted]-plus-Festival on Lake Chautauqua, New York, by Albert Stoessel, and made up of the summer crop of instrumentalists from major orchestras. A third orchestra to emerge in this year 1929 was the summer series of the Wheeling (West Virginia) Symphony.

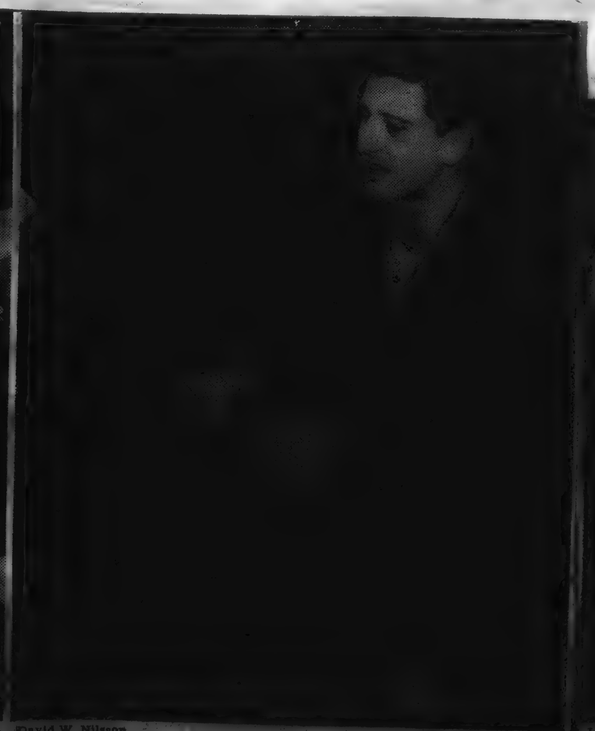
Robin Hood Dell Concerts came into being in 1930, as outlet for Philadelphia Orchestra players. In 1934, summer orchestras in Buffalo, St. Louis and Chicago (Grant Park) came into being, the latter under the sponsorship of Local 10.

Now every year a new series came popping up: the Watergate concerts in Washington, D. C., in 1935; the Chicago Symphony in Ravinia Park in 1936; Milwaukee's Concerts Under the Stars and the St. Paul Pop concerts, both in 1937; the Cleveland Summer Orchestra in 1938. In 1941 the Houston summer series was instituted as a public service by Hubert Roussel, music editor of the Houston Post; in 1944, the Burbank (California) series; in 1945 the Atlanta (Georgia) Pops, founded by its present director, Albert Coleman; in 1946, the El Paso Symphony; in 1947, the Red Rocks Music Festival, using the Denver Symphony; in 1949, the Rockford (Illinois) Symphony; in 1950, the Waterbury (Connecticut) Civic Orchestra; in 1951 the Little Symphony of Worcester (Massachusetts) and the Lafayette (Indiana) Symphony.

Festivals*, pops, little symphony series, all help the cause of summer music. In operatic seasons the cities' symphony orchestra members often find summer employment en masse: witness the fifty-member orchestras of the Cincinnati Zoo Opera and the St. Louis Mu-

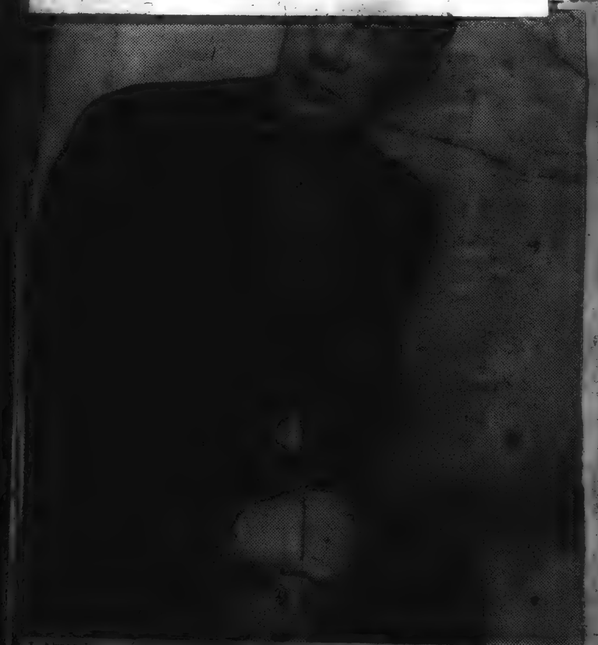
* Lack of space forbids our more than mentioning here the excellent festivals given in this country in Spring: the Cincinnati Music Festival; the Bach festivals in St. Louis, and Bethlehem, Pennsylvania; the American Music Festival at the National Gallery of Art, Washington, D. C.; the Spring Festival of the Arts in Potsdam, New [redacted]; the Ann Arbor Festival; the Festival of American Music at the Eastman School in Rochester.

Claudio Arrau, pianist, [redacted] the Bel Arte Trio will present a Beethoven program at [redacted]wood Wednesday, July 7.



David W. Nilsson

Lukas Foss, soloist in the Bach Brandenburg Concerto No. 5 at Tanglewood in the Berkshire Music Festival on Friday, July 9.



J. Abresch

Martial Singher, baritone soloist in Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust" at the Berkshire Music Festival on Saturday, July 10.

phony concerts inaugurated at the Lewisohn Stadium in 1918. Though from the beginning they have been under separate management from the winter series, they have none the less used New York Philharmonic members almost entirely.

"Symphonies under the Stars" in Hollywood Bowl was first presented July 11, 1922, also with local symphony players. The Los Angeles Philharmonic's then conductor, Alfred Hertz, was, in fact, one of the pioneer stadium symphony directors, willing to brave the great open spaces in a day when hazards of wind and rain were looked on much more seriously than they are today. His faith in California weather seems to have been justified. Of the 1,001 Hollywood Bowl concerts which have been given to date only two have had to be postponed on account of rain!

In 1929, the Esplanade Concerts were founded in Boston by Mr. Fiedler, still their conductor today. He in fact waged a successful one-man campaign to convince the city fathers that the funds bequeathed by Edwin M. Hatch to provide that city with good summer music would be put to best use by the erection of an orchestral shell. The Edwin Hatch Memorial, standing on the Charles River Esplanade, is a most substantial monument to his persuasiveness and his persistency.

Twin of the Boston Esplanade Concerts, in age, at least, is the Chautauqua Orchestra founded at the school-plus-Festival on Lake Chautauqua, New York, by Albert Stoessel, and made up [illegible] of the summer crop of instrumentalists in major orchestras. A third orchestra to emerge in this year 1929 was the summer series of the Wheeling (West Virginia) Symphony.

Robin Hood Dell Concerts came into being in 1930, as outlet for Philadelphia Orchestra players. In 1934, summer orchestras in Buffalo, St. Louis and Chicago (Grant Park) came into being, the latter under the sponsorship of Local 10.

Now every year a new series came popping up: the Watergate concerts in Washington, D. C., in 1935; the Chicago Symphony in Ravinia Park in 1936; Milwaukee's Concerts Under the Stars and the St. Paul Pop concerts, both in 1937; the Cleveland Summer Orchestra in 1938. In 1941 the Houston summer series was instituted as a public service by Hubert Roussel, music editor of the Houston Post; in 1944, the Burbank (California) series; in 1945 the Atlanta (Georgia) Pops, founded by its present director, Albert Coleman; in 1946, the El Paso Symphony; in 1947, the Red Rocks Music Festival, using the Denver Symphony; in 1949, the Rockford (Illinois) Symphony; in 1950, the Waterbury (Connecticut) Civic Orchestra; in 1951 the Little Symphony of Worcester (Massachusetts) and the Lafayette (Indiana) Symphony.

Festivals*, pops, little symphony series, all help the cause of summer music. In operatic seasons the cities' symphony orchestra members often find summer employment en masse: witness the fifty-member orchestras of the Cincinnati Zoo Opera and the St. Louis Municipal Opera, both culled from the local symphony orchestras, the Civic Light Opera Association of Greater Pittsburgh, the Summer Opera of Kansas City and the Baton Rouge Civic Opera. The San Francisco Opera Company, in placing its schedule in the early Fall, does a real service for the San Francisco Symphony since it employs a large number of its personnel.

Lake, mountain, ravine and river are natural settings for summer symphony. "This is the greatest open-air theater I have ever seen!" exclaimed Dame Nellie Melba fifty years ago, as she stood in what is now Red Rocks Theater near Denver and gazed at the backdrop panorama of the Great Plains, and at the 167-foot natural stage.

"Here is where the Burbank Symphony will have summer concerts!" said conductor Leo Damiani, suddenly rounding a bend in a mountain road and seeing a bowl site, with perfect floor, and shell with monoliths to mark the sides, with a vast valley extending away in all directions. Just so, mountain-hovering Aspen in Colorado, the tranquil valley of Ojai in California, or Oregon's Hood River with its towering snow-capped Mt. Hood as a backdrop are naturals for symphonic music series.

Boston Symphony scouts must have come to such a conclusion when they made their first venture into the Berkshire Hills in 1936. At any rate, the site once chosen, the season was given impetus by two gifts: the parcel of serenely beautiful countryside, Tanglewood, and the Music Shed, holding 6,000. Now in a single summer, July 7 to August 15, 100,000 music-lovers journey to this region in the Berkshires to hear the orchestra play. With its "pops" (May and June), its Esplanade (July) and its Berkshire Festival (July-August), the Boston Symphony takes its proud place as one of the few all-year-round orchestras in the United States.

Another such is the Louisville (Kentucky) Orchestra, the Saturday series of which runs for forty-six weeks in the year.

Scenic effects serve as publicity agents also for the Brevard Music Festival in North Carolina; the Bach festivals in Carmel, California, and Bethlehem, Pennsylvania; the Yaddo Festival in New York; and the Cape Cod Summer Symphony which is currently being revived—it had a satisfying if brief career in the early '40's — in that Massachusetts summer resort.

The length of the summer symphony season is (as a rule) six, seven, or eight weeks. June and July are the favored months. In a six-week season, New York's Lewisohn Stadium presents thirty concerts; Chicago's Ravinia and Boston's Esplanade, each twenty-four; Robin Hood Dell, twenty-one; Denver, twelve; San Francisco, eight to ten; and Vancouver, six. In eight weeks Chicago's Grant Park puts on thirty-two concerts; the Hollywood Bowl, twenty-four; and St. Paul's Pops, twenty-four. In a ten-week period Houston gives twenty-one concerts; Cleveland, twenty; Buffalo, ten; and Miami, ten. Detroit puts on thirty-six concerts in twelve weeks. The seasonal grist for the National Symphony at Washington, D. C., is nine concerts; for Burbank, eight; for the St. Louis, Kansas City, Rockford and Wheeling, each six; for the El Paso, five; for the Little Symphony of Worcester, and the Dayton, Ohio, four to six; for the Babylon, four; the Rhode Island and Newport, each three; and the Waterbury, two.

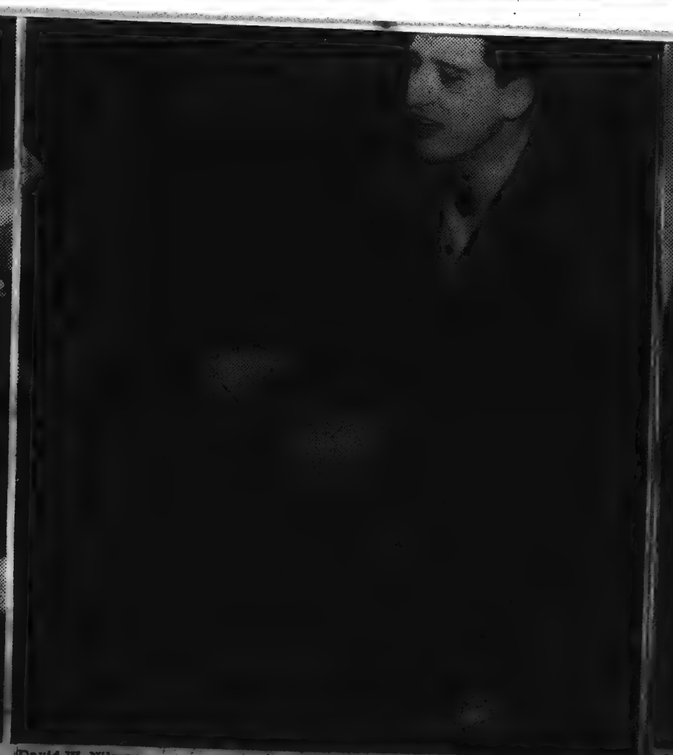
Some orchestras, if they cannot maneuver a whole season, manage at least to give one toe-in-the-door concert. The Racine (Wisconsin) Symphony's single concert is sponsored by the MPTF of the Recording Industry. The New Jersey Symphony presents a June "Symphony Under the Sky" concert on the Studer estate in Montclair, sponsored by the Montclair Concert Association in conjunction with the Friends of the New Jersey Symphony Orchestra for nineteen communities.

Summer repertoire has undergone a radical change within the past few years. Programs of ten or twenty years ago were built on the assumption that only light fare was digestible in hot weather. Now it is almost universally conceded that, to assure uniformly large crowds, uniformly good music must be provided. Special features are used more often than in Winter, however: ballet groups (Buffalo, Atlanta, Burbank), local artists (Houston, Detroit, San Francisco), ice revues (St. Paul), famous soloists (Cleveland, Buffalo,

(Continued on page thirty-two)

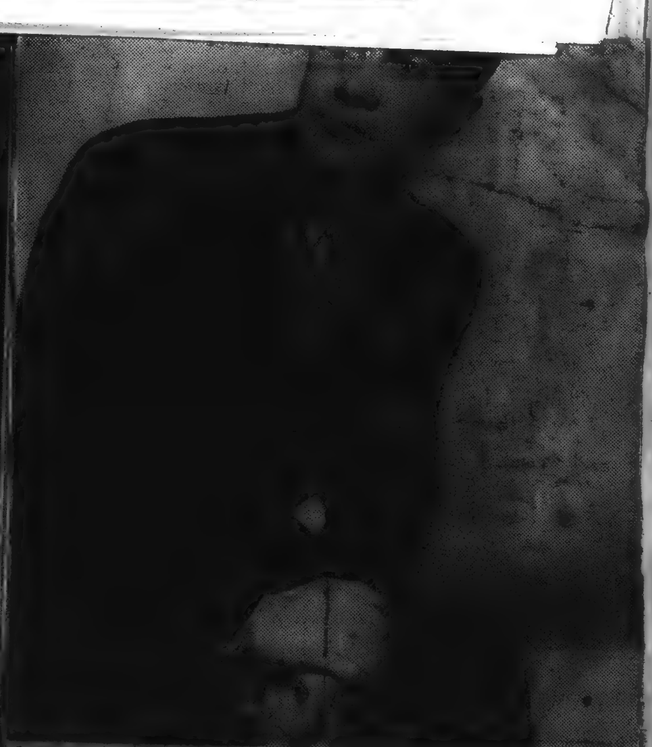
Arthur Fiedler, conductor of the Boston Pops and guest conductor of the San Francisco Summer Series

Claudio Arrau, pianist, at ... Beethoven program at ... the Bel Arte Trio will present ... wood Wednesday, July 7.



David W. Nilsson

Lukas Foss, soloist in the Bach Brandenburg Concerto No. 5 at Tanglewood in the Berkshire Music Festival on Friday, July 9.



J. Abresch

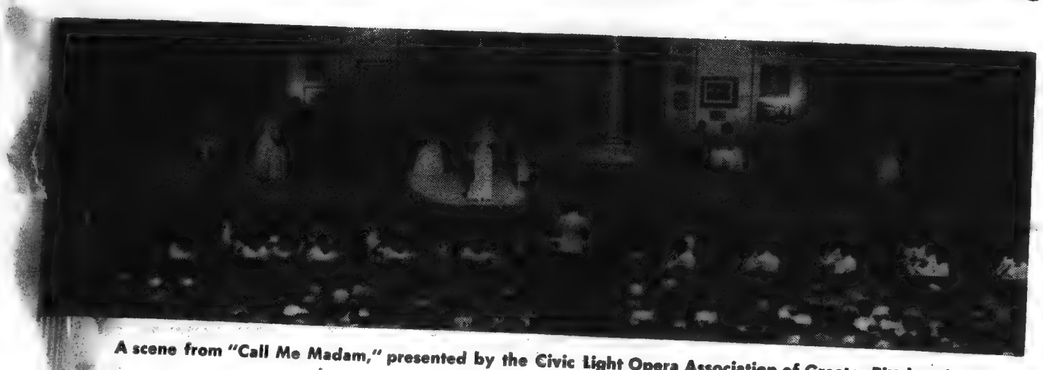
Martial Singher, baritone soloist in Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust" at the Berkshire Music Festival on Saturday, July 10.

* Lack of space forbids our more than mentioning here the excellent festivals given in this country in Spring: the Cincinnati Music Festival; the Bach festivals in St. Louis, and Bethlehem, Pennsylvania; the American Music Festival at the National Gallery of Art, Washington, D. C.; the Spring Festival of the Arts in Potsdam, New York; the Ann Arbor Festival; the Festival of American Music at the Eastman School in Rochester.

BOSTON Christian Sc... JUN...

[146]

International Musician - July, 1954



A scene from "Call Me Madam," presented by the Civic Light Opera Association of Greater Pittsburgh

Summer Symphony

(Continued from page twenty-three)

Detroit, Washington, D. C.), American works (Houston, El Paso, Worcester, Lafayette, Atlanta). Viennese music has its innings in summer, and music with a humorous or gay twist, Tchaikovsky's Nutcracker Suite, or Dukas' The Sorcerer's Apprentice. But there is also room for the large and imposing works. During the 1954 Los Angeles Music Festival on the campus of the University of California the first week in June, Franz Waxman conducted the West Coast premiere of Oedipus Rex, opera-oratorio by Igor Stravinsky. For the Ojai Festival this year Lichine choreographed the Bach Suite in B minor for lute and strings. St. Louis, in keeping with its twenty-five-piece orchestra, programs mostly eighteenth century music and works written especially for it by American composers. The Tucson Orchestra features the Civic Chorus. Burbank includes a "Festival of the Nations." The Lafayette Symphony annually prepares a Requiem. At the Berkshire Festival this Summer, conductor Munch will feature the music of Hector Berlioz to celebrate that composer's 150th birthday.

Extra-musical enticements are often resorted to, ranging from the "Pops for Pop" concert presented on Father's Day by the New Jersey Symphony, to a device of the Lewisohn Stadium Series, "Candid Camera Night," with hundreds of fans bringing their cameras and prizes being given for the best shots of musicians, audience members, and other pertinent subjects.

Guest conductors are more in evidence in Summer than in Winter, are engaged, in fact, for the New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Los Angeles, Milwaukee, Buffalo, Cleveland, St. Louis, Santa Barbara, and Vancouver orchestras. San Francisco this year will have Boston's Mr. Fiedler. In Detroit, Valter Poole, the orchestra's associate conductor, will direct thirty-four of their summer concerts, and Eduard Werner, Local 5's President, two. Conductor and assistant conductor sometimes share conducting chores in Summer: in Wheeling, Henry Mazer and William Fischer, and in Rhode Island, Francis Madeira and Martin Fischer. In Houston and Cleveland the associate conductors take over in Summer: Andor Toth in the former orchestra and Rudolph Ringwall (sharing with guests) in the latter. "Regular" conductors, who may or may not be the winter conductors according to whether or not the two series are under the same management, are on the podiums in Atlanta (Albert Coleman), Babylon (Christos Vrionides), Cape Cod (Joseph Hawthorne), Dayton (Paul Katz), Rockford (Arthur Zack), St. Paul (Clifford Reckow), Waterbury (Mario Di Cecco), Worcester (Harry Levenson), the New Jersey Symphony (Samuel Antek), and the National Symphony in Washington, D. C. (Howard Mitchell). El Paso's conductor, Orlando Barera, Miami's John Bitter and St. Louis's Max Steindel share their podiums with guest conductors.

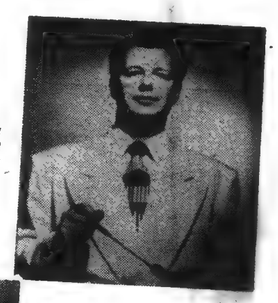
The summer symphony shows considerable originality in housing, or in dispensing with it. Parks and shells are the choice of Detroit, Chicago, Philadelphia, Milwaukee, Houston, Vancouver, Worcester, Babylon, Baltimore, Dayton, Wheeling, Lafayette and Rockford. Stadiums serve for New York, El Paso and Waterbury; bowls and natural amphitheaters for Los Angeles (Hollywood Bowl), Washington, D. C., Burbank and Denver; pavilions for the Chautauqua and the Berkshire festivals; campuses for St. Louis and Rhode Island; the lawns of a private estate for the New Jersey; an ice-skating arena for St. Paul; a "horseshoe within an arena" for Newport; and gardens of a hotel for Tucson. When summer series are held in halls and auditoriums such as those of San Francisco, Buffalo, Cleveland, Atlanta, Miami and Boston, these are decorated to give a note of informality and cheeriness, and usually they are air-cooled.

Summer symphony bills are footed by industries, as in Vancouver, in Waterbury and in Worcester; by municipalities as in Houston, San Francisco, Baltimore, Milwaukee, Burbank and Lafayette; by the MPTF as in Tucson and Worcester; by associations and guarantor groups as in Cleveland, St. Louis and Rhode Island. The Detroit Symphony is financed compositely by industries, the Department of Parks and Recreation and the MPTF. A few orchestras also have several sources of support—such as the El Paso, which has four city-sponsored and one MPTF, sponsored concerts and the Miami Beach pops, which is financed jointly by the University of Miami and the City of Miami Beach.

Tickets usually run cheaper in Summer than in Winter; $2.00 is as a rule tops, though in some localities, usually at festival sites, it reaches $3.00. Fifty cents or even thirty cents will usually get a person a seat somewhere on lawn or bench in any of the park or stadium projects. In Dayton, El Paso, Lafayette, Philadelphia. Rockford. Waterbury, Worcester and Vancouver you can get in Scot free. As for the others, the description of Robin Hood Dell by Robert Gerson fits them all: "The price is low. The fence is also low for those without the price—not that they need to climb it, for the music may be heard far beyond the officially seated audience."

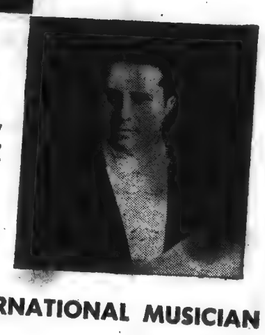
Both wage scales and manpower undergo a slimming process in summer series. Exceptions to the member-subtracting rule are the Los Angeles Philharmonic, the Waterbury Symphony, the Rhode Island Philharmonic and the Denver Symphony (at Red Rocks) whose memberships pass over en toto into the summer series. The Burbank Symphony even adds ten men in Summer, making it a ninety-piece orchestra. Three cities, namely St. Louis, Tucson, Babylon, function in Summer on a derivative basis, as chamber groups. The San Francisco Symphony Chamber Orchestra is the unit used by the Pacific Coast Festival in Santa Barbara.

Even if they keep going only in split-up groups and at reduced salaries, such orchestras still do their communities a real service. It needs no Gallup poll or scientific logarithm to prove why summer symphony should stay. It is simply that thousands of musicians need work and millions of Americans need music —live music, that is, not the processed variety. For city populati[illegible] keep going amid the simmer of h[illegible] stench of gasoline fumes, they ma[illegible] the difference between living and [illegible]g out an existence. The thousa[illegible]verge wherever symphonic music is offered, to sit on stadium steps, lounge on park slopes, relax in concert halls and drink in the music of Beethoven and Wagner and Mozart, are convincing proof that the best in music has come to be expected by our population as a year-round diet.



Albert Coleman, musical director Atlanta "Pops"

Franz Waxman, music director, Los Angeles Music Festival



Leo Damiani, conductor, Burbank Symphony

[illegible]udio Arrau, pianist, a[illegible] the Bel Arte Trio will present [illegible]thoven program at Ta[illegible]wood Wednesday, July 7.

David W. Nilsson

Lukas Foss, soloist in the Bach Brandenburg Concerto No. 5 at Tanglewood in the Berkshire Music Festival on Friday, July 9.

J. Abresch

Martial Singher, baritone soloist in Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust" at the Berkshire Music Festival on Saturday, July 10.

[146]

Complete copy of issue follows.

International Musician - July, 1954

A scene from "Call Me Madam," presented by the Civic Light Opera Association of Greater Pittsburgh

Summer Symphony

(Continued from page twenty-three)

Detroit, Washington, D. C.), American works (Houston, El Paso, Worcester, Lafayette, Atlanta). Viennese music has its innings in summer, and music with a humorous or gay twist, Tchaikovsky's Nutcracker Suite, or Dukas' The Sorcerer's Apprentice. But there is also room for the large and imposing works. During the 1954 Los Angeles Music Festival on the campus of the University of California the first week in June, Franz Waxman conducted the West Coast premiere of Oedipus Rex, opera-oratorio by Igor Stravinsky. For the Ojai Festival this year Lichine choreographed the Bach Suite in B minor for lute and strings. St. Louis, in keeping with its twenty-five-piece orchestra, programs mostly eighteenth century music and works written especially for it by American composers. The Tucson Orchestra features the Civic Chorus. Burbank includes a "Festival of the Nations." The Lafayette Symphony annually prepares a Requiem. At the Berkshire Festival this Summer, conductor Munch will feature the music of Hector Berlioz to celebrate that composer's 150th birthday.

Extra-musical enticements are often resorted to, ranging from the "Pops for Pop" concert presented on Father's Day by the New Jersey Symphony, to a device of the Lewisohn Stadium Series, "Candid Camera Night," with hundreds of fans bringing their cameras and prizes being given for the best shots of musicians, audience members, and other pertinent subjects.

Guest conductors are more in evidence in Summer than in Winter, are engaged, in fact, for the New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Los Angeles, Milwaukee, Buffalo, Cleveland, St. Louis, Santa Barbara, and Vancouver orchestras. San Francisco this year will have Boston's Mr. Fiedler. In Detroit, Valter Poole, the orchestra's associate conductor, will direct thirty-four of their summer concerts, and Eduard Werner, Local 5's President, two. Conductor and assistant conductor sometimes Ringwall (sharing with guests) in the latter. "Regular" conductors, who may or may not be the winter conductors according to whether or not the two series are under the same management, are on the podiums in Atlanta (Albert Coleman), Babylon (Christos Vrionides), Cape Cod (Joseph Hawthorne), Dayton (Paul Katz), Rockford (Arthur Zack), St. Paul (Clifford Reckow), Waterbury (Mario Di Cecco), Worcester (Harry Levenson), the New Jersey Symphony (Samuel Antek), and the National Symphony in Washington, D. C. (Howard Mitchell). El Paso's conductor, Orlando Barera, Miami's John Bitter and St. Louis's Max Steindel share their podiums with guest conductors.

The summer symphony shows considerable originality in housing, or in dispensing with it. Parks and shells are the choice of Detroit, Chicago, Philadelphia, Milwaukee, Houston, Vancouver, Worcester, Babylon, Baltimore, Dayton, Wheeling, Lafayette and Rockford. Stadiums serve for New York, El Paso and Waterbury; bowls and natural amphitheaters for Los Angeles (Hollywood Bowl), Washington, D. C., Burbank and Denver; pavilions for the Chautauqua and the Berkshire festivals; campuses for St. Louis and Rhode Island; the lawns of a private estate for the New Jersey; an ice-skating arena for St. Paul; a "horseshoe within an arena" for Newport; and gardens of a hotel for Tucson. When summer series are held in halls and auditoriums such as those of San Francisco, Buffalo, Cleveland, Atlanta, Miami and Boston, these are decorated to give a note of informality and cheeriness, and usually they are air-cooled.

Summer symphony bills are footed by industries, as in Vancouver, in Waterbury and in Worcester; by municipalities as in Houston, San Francisco, Baltimore, Milwaukee, Burbank and Lafayette; by the MPTF as in Tucson and Worcester; by associations and guarantor groups as in Cleveland, St. Louis and Rhode Island. The Detroit Symphony is financed compositely by industries, the Department of Parks and Recreation and the MPTF. A few orchestras also have several sources of support—such as the El Paso, which has four city-sponsored and one MPTF, sponsored concerts and the Miami Beach pops, which is financed jointly by the University of Miami and the City of Miami Beach.

Tickets usually ru than in Winter: $2.00

bury, Worcester and Vancouver you can get in Scot free. As for the others, the description of Robin Hood Dell by Robert Gerson fits them all: "The price is low. The fence is also low for those without the price—not that they need to climb it, for the music may be heard far beyond the officially seated audience."

Both wage scales and manpower undergo a slimming process in summer series. Exceptions to the member-subtracting rule are the Los Angeles Philharmonic, the Waterbury Symphony, the Rhode Island Philharmonic and the Denver Symphony (at Red Rocks) whose memberships pass over en toto into the summer series. The Burbank Symphony even adds ten men in Summer, making it a ninety-piece orchestra. Three cities, namely St. Louis, Tucson, Babylon, function in Summer on a derivative basis, as chamber groups. The San Francisco Symphony Chamber Orchestra is the unit used by the Pacific Coast Festival in Santa Barbara.

Even if they keep going only in split-up groups and at reduced salaries, such orchestras still do their communities a real service. It needs no Gallup poll or scientific logarithm to prove why summer symphony should stay. It is simply that thousands of musicians need work and millions of Americans need music —live music, that is, not the processed variety. For city populations which keep going amid the simmer of heat and the stench of gasoline fumes, they make all the difference between living and m[illegible]ering out an existence. The thousands that converge wherever symphonic music is offered, to sit on stadium steps, lounge on park slopes, relax in concert halls and drink in the music of Beethoven and Wagner and Mozart, are convincing proof that the best in music has come to be expected by our population as a year-round diet.

Albert Coleman, musical director Atlanta "Pops"

Franz Waxman, music director, Los Angeles Music Festival

BOSTON, MASS.
Christian Science Monitor
JUN 19 1954

Claudio Arrau, pianist, and the Bel Arte Trio will present a Beethoven program at Tanglewood Wednesday, July 7.

David W. Nilsson

Lukas Foss, soloist in the Bach Brandenburg Concerto No. 5 at Tanglewood in the Berkshire Music Festival on Friday, July 9.

J. Abresch

Martial Singher, baritone soloist in Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust" at the Berkshire Music Festival on Saturday, July 10.

[146]

Berkshire Music Calendar

Plus Nearby Summer Theaters and the Dance

HOW TO GET THERE: Tanglewood, on Route 183 between Stockbridge (via Routes 102 and 183) and Lenox (via Route 183 from center of town); South Mountain, on Route 7 just south of Pittsfield; Music Mountain, off Route 7 in Falls Village, Conn.; Berkshire Playhouse, off Route 7 on Route 102 near center of Stockbridge; Malden Bridge Playhouse, on Route 66 between Chatham and Pittsfield-Albany road (Route 20); Jacob's Pillow, off Jacob's Ladder section of Route 20 in the village of West Becket.

Monday, July 5

Berkshire Playhouse

Opening night, performances every evening through Saturday. Curtain time 8:45 p.m. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday at 2:30 p.m. Francesca Bruning and Shepperd Strudwick in "Pygmalion"

Tuesday, July 6

Malden Bridge Playhouse

Opening night, performances every evening through Sunday. Curtain time 8:45 p.m. except Sunday at 7 p.m.
"The Hasty Heart"

Wednesday, July 7

Tanglewood

Chamber music, Theater-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m.. Claudio Arrau, pianist; the Bel Arte Trio.
String Trio in G,
Op. 9 No. 1 Beethoven
Piano Sonatas, Op. 79, 110, 57 ("Appassionata") Beethoven

Friday, July 9

Tanglewood

Friday and Saturday evenings at 9 p.m.
Mary Ellen Moylan and Michael Maule, ballet.
Charles Weidman and Dance Company.

Geoffrey Holden and Co., from Trinidad.

Tanglewood

Dept. I Orchestra, Shed, 8:30 p.m. Friends program.

Monday, July 12

Berkshire Playhouse

Opening night, performances every evening through Saturday. Curtain time 8:45 p.m. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday at 2:30 p.m. Paul Lipson in
"My Three Angels"

Tuesday, July 13

Malden Bridge Playhouse

Opening night, performances every evening through Sunday. Curtain time 8:45 p.m. except Sunday at 7 p.m.
"My Three Angels"

Folk-Music Workshop

Festival concert, Lenox Library, 8:30 p.m. Fred Hellerman, folk-singer and guitarist.
"The American Scene"

Wednesday, July 14

Tanglewood

Chamber music, Theater-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m. The Albeneri Trio.
Trio in B, Op. 8 Brahms
Trio in D minor Mozart
Trio in B flat, Op. [illegible] "Archduke" Beethoven

at 9 p.m.
Alexandra Danilova and partners, ballet.
Charles Weidman and Dance Company.

Geoffrey Holden and Co., from Trinidad.

Tanglewood

Dept. I Orchestra, Shed, 8:30 p.m. Friends program.

Friday, July 16

Tanglewood

Monday, July 19

Berkshire Playhouse

Opening night, performances every evening through Saturday. Curtain time 8:45 p.m. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday at 2:30 p.m. Rex O'Malley in
"The Ghost Train"

Tuesday, July 20

Malden Bridge Playhouse

Opening night, performances every evening through Sunday. Curtain time 8:45 p.m. except Sunday at 7 p.m.
"My Three Angels"
(Second week)

Tanglewood

Concert of Chorus and Opera, Theater-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m. Departments II and IV. Friends program.

Folk-Music Workshop

Festival Concert, Lenox Library, 8:30 p.m. Irwin (Lord) Burgess, Calypso singer.
"Songs From the Caribbean Islands"

Wednesday, July 21

Tanglewood

Chamber music, Theatef-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m. The Zimbler Sinfonietta.
"The Four Seasons" (String Orchestra) Vivaldi
"Apollon Musagete" (String Orchestra) Stravinsky
Baroque Concerto" Rossini

Dept. I Orchestra, Shed, 8:30 p.m. Friends program.

Friday, July 23

Tanglewood

Monday, July 26

Berkshire Playhouse

Opening night, performances every evening through Saturday. Curtain time 8:45 p.m. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday at 2:30 p.m. Gaye Jordan and William Roerick in
"Madam, Will You Walk?"

Tuesday, July 27

Malden Bridge Playhouse

Opening night, performances every evening through Sunday. Curtain time 8:45 p.m. except Sunday at 7 p.m.
"The Country Girl"

Tanglewood

Concert of Chorus and Opera, Theater-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m. Departments II and IV. Friends program, special tickets required.
"L'Amfiparnasso" Vecchi
"The Princess and the Pea" Toch

Folk-Music Workshop

Festival concert, Lenox Library, 8:30 p.m. Suzy Sann, continental singer, and Irmgard Carle, guitar-recorder.
"From the Plains of the Pusta to the Borders of the Seine"

Wednesday, July 28

Tanglewood

Chamber music, Theater-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m. The Griller String Quartet.
Quartet in E flat, K. 428 Mozart
Quartet No. 4 (first performance) Bloch
Quartet in G major, Op. 18, No. 2 Beethoven

Jacob's Pillow

Dance Festival. Opens tonight for four days. Wednesday, Friday, Saturday evenings at 9 p.m.; Thursday, Friday, Saturday matinees at 4 p.m. Celtic Ballet of Scotland. Emerson and Jayne, dance satirists.

Friday, July 30

Tanglewood

Monday, August 2

Berkshire Playhouse

Opening night, performances every evening through Saturday. Curtain time 8:45 p.m. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday at 2:30 p.m. Anna Russell in
"Traveler's Joy"

Tanglewood

Opera, Theater-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m. Dept. IV. Friends program; special tickets required.
"The Tender Land" Copland

Tuesday, August 3

Malden Bridge Playhouse

Opening night, performances every evening through Sunday. Curtain time 8:45 p.m. except Sunday at 7 p.m.
"The Silver Whistle"

Tanglewood

Opera, Theater-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m. Dept. IV. Friends program with special ticket required.
"The Tender Land" Copland

Folk-Music Workshop

Festival Concert, Lenox Library, 8:30 p.m. Richard Dyer-Bennet, tenor-guitarist.
"20th Century Troubadour"

Wednesday, August 4

Tanglewood

Chamber music, Theater-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m. The Kroll String Quartet.
Quartet in D, Op. 64, No. 5 ("The Lark") Haydn
Quartet No. 3, Op. 22 Hindemith
Quartet in F Ravel

Jacob's Pillow

Dance Festival. Opens tonight for four days. Wednesday, Friday, Saturday evenings at 9 p.m.; Thursday, Friday, Saturday matinees at 4 p.m.

Dept. I Orchestra, Shed, 8:30 p.m.

Friday, August 6

Tanglewood

Monday, August 9

Berkshire Playhouse

Opening night, performances every evening through Saturday. Curtain time 8:45 p.m. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday at 2:30 p.m. Carol Stone in
"The Iron Gate"

Tuesday, August 10

Malden Bridge Playhouse

Opening night, performances every evening through Sunday. Curtain time 8:45 p.m. except Sunday at 7 p.m.
"The Love of Four Colonels"

Tanglewood

Concert of Chorus and Opera, Theater-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m. Departments II and IV. Friends program.

Folk-Music Workshop

Festival Concert, Lenox Library, 8:30 p.m. Betty MacDonald, soprano; Jerry Silverman, singer-guitarist.
"From the Pastures of Ireland to the Appalachian Mountains."

Wednesday, August 11

Tanglewood

Chamber music, Theater-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m. Zino Francescatti, violinist; Artur Balsan, pianist.
Violin Sonata in A major Brahms
Suite in C (Violin unaccompanied) Bach
Violin Sonata in D Minor Brahms

Jacob's Pillow

Dance Festival. Opens tonight for four days. Wednesday, Friday, Saturday evenings at 9 p.m.; Thursday, Friday, Saturday matinees at 4 p.m.

Strauss

Friday, August 13

Tanglewood

Monday, August 16

Berkshire Playhouse

Opening night, performances every evening through Saturday. Curtain time 8:45 p.m. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday at 2:30 p.m. William Roerick in
"Charlie's Aunt"

Tuesday, August 17

Malden Bridge Playhouse

"The Moon Is Blue"

Wednesday, August 18

Pro Musica Antiqua

Festival Concert, Lenox Town Hall, 8:30 p.m. Italian and English music of the Renaissance and Baroque.

Monday, August 23

Berkshire Playhouse

Opening night, performances every evening through Saturday. Curtain time 8:45 p.m. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday at 2:30 p.m. Betty Field in
"Ethan Frome"

Tuesday, August 24

Malden Bridge Playhouse

"The Moon Is Blue"
(Second week)

Wednesday, August 25

Pro Musica Antiqua

Festival Concert, Lenox Town Hall, 8:30 p.m. English medieval and Elizabethan carols.

Pleasant Valley Sanctuary

Off Route 7 between Lenox and Pittsfield. Watch for signs. Trailside Museum open 1-5 p.m. every day; Red Barn Tea Room, noon to 7 p.m. every day; grounds open from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. every day.

Berkshire Garden Center

At junction of Routes 183 and 102, west of Stockbridge. Open Monday through Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Sunday, 10 a.m. to noon and 2-6 p.m. Horticulturist in attendance.

Bartholomew's Cobble

Sanctuary featuring native ferns and flowers, unusual limestone outcropping along Housatonic River. Off Route 7 at Ashley Falls. Watch for signs. Open 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. every day. Warden in attendance. Guided tours and picnic facilities.

History, Art and Movies

Berkshire Museum

On South Street, center of Pittsfield. Hours, Tuesday through Saturday, 10 a.m.-5 p.m.; Sunday, 2-5 p.m.; closed Mondays. Exhibitions, through July, paintings by Lawrence R. McCoy; through August, paitings by Ellen Emmet Rand; through both months, photographs by Clarence Kellogg, miniature rooms, dolls, antiques.

On Route 7 in the center of Stockbridge. Built in 1739 for John Sergeant, first missionary to the Stockbridge Indians. Moved and restored by Miss Mabel Choate as a memorial to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Choate. Open Monday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 12:30, 2-6; Sunday, 2-6.

Friday, August 20

Tanglewood

Friday, August 27

Tanglewood

TIGHT BINDING

FILMED AS BOUND

("Appasionata") Beethoven

Trio in D minor Martinu
Trio in B flat, Op. 97
("Archduke") Beethoven

Orchestra) Vivaldi
"Apollon Musagete" (String Orchestra) Stravinsky
"Baroque Concerto" Rossini

Quartet No. 4 (first performances) Mozart
Quartet in G major, Op. 18, No. 2 Beethoven

Jacob's Pillow

Dance Festival. Opens tonight for four days. Wednesday, Friday, Saturday evenings at 9 p.m.; Thursday, Friday, Saturday matinees at 4 p.m.
Celtic Ballet of Scotland.
Emerson and Jayne, dance satirists.

Quartet No. 3, Op. 22 Hindemith
Quartet No. 5 Bowl

Jacob's Pillow

Dance Festival. Opens tonight for four days. Wednesday, Friday, Saturday evenings at 9 p.m.; Thursday, Friday, Saturday matinees at 4 p.m.
Celtic Ballet of Scotland.
Emerson and Jayne, dance satirists.

Violin Sonata in A major Brahms
Suite in G (Violin unaccompanied) Bach
Violin Sonata in D Minor Brahms

Jacob's Pillow

Dance Festival. Opens tonight for four days. Wednesday, Friday, Saturday evenings at 9 p.m.; Thursday, Friday, Saturday matinees at 4 p.m.
Celtic Ballet of Scotland.
Ram Gopal, Hindu dancer.

History, Art and Movies

Berkshire Museum

On South Street, center of Pittsfield. Hours, Tuesday through Saturday, 10 a.m.-5 p.m.; Sunday, 2-5 p.m.; closed Mondays. Exhibitions, through July, paintings by Lawrence R. McCoy; through August, paintings by Ellen Emmet Rand; through both months, photographs by Clemens Kalischer, miniature rooms by Andrew Zenorini, sculpture by Franc Epping, Wilson collection of etchings, engravings and lithographs of famous composers (in cooperation with the Boston Symphony Orchestra); Aug. 3-31, Civil War [illegible] by Mathew Brady; Aug. 3-31, "The Coach"; Aug. 4-[illegible] announced. Aug. 18-24, "Fan Fair" [illegible] 2-14, to be announced. Aug. 18-24, "Fan Fair" [illegible] Aug. 24-28, to be announced.

Mission House

On Route 7 in the center of Stockbridge. Built in 1739 for John Sergeant, first missionary to the Stockbridge Indians. Moved and restored by Miss Mabel Choate as a memorial to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Choate. Open Monday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 12:30, 2-6; Sunday, 2-6.

at 9 p.m.
Mary Ellen Moylan and Michael Maule, ballet.
Charles Weidman and Dance Theater Co., modern.
Geoffrey Holden and Co., from Trinidad.

Tanglewood

Dept. I Orchestra, Shed, 8:30 p.m. Friends program.

at 9 p.m.
Alexandra Danilova and partners, ballet.
Charles Weidman and Dance Theater Co., modern.
Geoffrey Holden and Co., from Trinidad.

Tanglewood

Dept. I Orchestra, Shed, 8:30 p.m. Friends program.

Friday and Saturday evenings at 9 p.m.
The Lester Horton Dance Theater of California.

Tanglewood

Dept. I Orchestra, Shed, 8:30 p.m. Friends program.

Overture to "Scala di Seta" Rossini
Symphony in B flat K.319 Mozart
"Mother Goose" Suite Ravel
"Der Burger als Edelmann" Strauss

Friday, July 9

Tanglewood

Chamber Orchestra, Theater-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m. Charles Munch, conductor; Lukas Foss, piano soloist.
Brandenburg Concertos, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 5, 6 Bach

Friday, July 16

Tanglewood

Chamber Orchestra, Theater-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m. Conductors, Charles Munch and Hugh Ross.
Cantata No. 93 "Wer nur den lieben Gott" Bach
Suites Nos. 1 and 4 Bach

Friday, July 23

Tanglewood

Chamber Orchestra, Theater-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m. Conductors, Charles Munch and Hugh Ross.
Concerto Grosso for Strings, Op. 6, No. 4 Handel
Symphony No. 100, "Military" Haydn
"Nelson" Mass Haydn

Friday, July 30

Tanglewood

Chamber Orchestra, Theater-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m. Conductor, Charles Munch; soloist, Doriot Anthony.
"The Spider's Feast" Roussel
Flute Concerto Ibert
Serenade for Eight Winds K.388 Mozart
"Paris" Symphony K.297 Mozart

Friday, August 6

Tanglewood

Chamber Orchestra, Theater-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m. Conductor, Lukas Foss; soloist, Seymour Lipkin.
"Pulcinella" (complete) Stravinsky
Piano Concerto in B flat, K.450 Mozart
"Idomeneo" (excerpts) with chorus and soloists Mozart

Friday, August 13

Tanglewood

Tanglewood on Parade.

(Program to be announced)

Friday, August 20

Jacob's Pillow

Dance Festival. Opens today for two days. Friday and Saturday matinees at 4 p.m., Friday and Saturday evenings at 9 p.m.
Negro Dance Theater.
Grace and Kurt Graff.
Ram Gopal, Hindu dancer.

Friday, August 27

Jacob's Pillow

Dance Festival. Opens today for two days. Friday and Saturday matinees at 4 p.m.; Friday and Saturday evenings at 9 p.m.
Yurek Lazowski, character ballet.
Pearl Lang and Co.
Lotte Goslar.

Saturday, July 10

Tanglewood

Boston Symphony Orchestra, Shed, 10 a.m. Rehearsal.
Boston Symphony Orchestra, Shed, 8:30 p.m. Conductor, Charles Munch, with Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society and soloists.
"The Damnation of Faust" Berlioz

South Mountain

Chamber Music 4:00 p.m.
Alexander Schneider, Artur Balsam.
Beethoven Sonatas for violin and piano Nos. 1, 10, 7

Saturday, July 17

Tanglewood

Boston Symphony Orchestra, Shed, 10 a.m. Rehearsal.
Boston Symphony Orchestra, Shed, 8:30 p.m. Conductor, Pierre Monteux; soloist, Vera Franceschi.
Excerpts, "St. Sebastian" Debussy
"La Mer" Debussy
"Les Djinns," for piano and orchestra Franck
Symphony in D minor Franck

South Mountain

Chamber Music. 4:00 p.m. Leontyne Price, soprano; Samuel Barber, piano.

Saturday, July 24

Tanglewood

Boston Symphony Orchestra, Shed, 10 a.m. Rehearsal.
Organ Recital, Shed, 3 p.m. E. Power Biggs, organist. Friends program.
Boston Symphony Orchestra, Shed, 8:30 p.m. Conductor, Jean Morel, soloist, Nicole Henriot.
Overture to "Der Freischutz" Weber
Symphony No. 6 Prokofieff
E Flat Piano Concerto Liszt
"Enigma" Variations Elgar

South Mountain

Chamber Music. 4:00 p.m.
Alexander Schneider, Artur Balsam.
Beethoven Sonatas for violin and piano Nos. 8, 4, 6, 3

Saturday, July 31

Tanglewood

Boston Symphony Orchestra, Shed, 10 a.m. Rehearsal.
Boston Symphony Orchestra, Shed, 8:30 p.m. Conductor, Charles Munch.
"Romeo and Juliet" dramatic symphony with Festival Chorus and soloists Berlioz

South Mountain

Trio—horn, violin, piano. 4:00 p.m.
Alexander Schneider, Artur Balsam, John Barrows.

Saturday, August 7

Tanglewood

Boston Symphony Orchestra, Shed, 10 a.m. Rehearsal.
Organ recital, Shed, 3 p.m. E. Power Biggs, organist. Friends
Boston Symphony Orchestra, Shed, 8:30 p.m. Conductor, Charles Munch; soloist, Eleanor Steber. Berlioz program:
Overture to "Benvenuto Cellini"
"Royal Hunt and Storm" from "The Trojans"
"Summer Nights," for soprano and orchestra
"Te Deum" with Festival Chorus and soloist

South Mountain

Chamber Music. 4:00 p.m.
Alexander Schneider, Artur Balsam.
Beethoven Sonatas for violin and piano Nos. 5, 2, 9

Saturday, August 14

Tanglewood

Boston Symphony Orchestra, Shed, 10 a.m. Rehearsal.
Dept. I Orchestra, Shed, 3 p.m. Friends program.
Boston Symphony Orchestra, Shed, 8:30 p.m. Conductor, Charles Munch.
"Tragic Overture" Brahms
Symphony No. 4 Piston
"Le Tombeau de Couperin" Ravel
Symphony No. 3 (with organ) Saint-Saens

South Mountain

Juilliard Quartet, 4:00 p.m.
String Quartet No. 2 William Denny
Quartet in G, Op. 54, No. 2 Haydn
String Quartet No. 1 Benjamin Lees
Quartet in F major Raval

Saturday, August 21

South Mountain

Chamber Music Festival, Coolidge Series, 11 a.m. and 4 p.m. Kroll Quartet, Chamber Orchestra from the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Pro Musica Antiqua

Festival Concert, Lenox Town Hall, 8:30 p.m. Court and chapel music of Henry V-Henry VIII.

Saturday, August 28

Pro Musica Antiqua

Festival Concert, Lenox Town Hall, 8:30 p.m. Music of the German Renaissance and Baroque.

Sunday, July 11

Tanglewood

Chamber music, Dept. I, Chamber Music Hall, 10 a.m. Friends program.
Boston Symphony Orchestra, Shed, 2:30 p.m. Conductor, Pierre Monteux; soloist, Claudio Arrau.
Overture to "Leonore", No. 3 Beethoven
Piano Concerto No. 5 ("Emperor") Beethoven
Symphony No. 5 Beethoven
Composers' Forum, Dept. III, Chamber Music Hall, 8:30 p.m. Friends program.

Music Mountain

Berkshire Quartet, 4:00 p.m.
(All Beethoven)
Quartet No. 11, Op. 95 (Serioso)
Serenade in D, Op. 8
Quartet No. 15 in A, Op. 132

Sunday, July 18

Tanglewood

Chamber music, Chamber Music Hall, 10 a.m. Dept. I. Friends program.
Boston Symphony Orchestra, Shed, 2:30 p.m. Conductor Charles Munch; soloist, Leo Smit.
"Iberia" Debussy
Piano Concerto Copland
"Fantastic Symphony" Berlioz
Composers' Forum, Dept. III, Chamber Music Hall, 8:30 p.m. Friends program.

Music Mountain

Berkshire Quartet, 4:00 p.m.

(Program to be announced)

Sunday, July 25

Tanglewood

Chamber music, Chamber Music Hall, 10 a.m. Dept. I. Friends program.
Boston Symphony Orchestra, Shed, 2:30 p.m. Conductor, Charles Munch; soloist, William Primrose.
Overture to "Beatrice and Benedick" Berlioz
"Harold in Italy", Symphony (with Viola Solo) Berlioz
Symphony No. 2 Toch
Composers' Forum, Chamber Music Hall, 8:30 p.m. Dept. III. Friends program.

Music Mountain

Berkshire Quartet, 4:00 p.m.

(Program to be announced)

Sunday, August 1

Tanglewood

Chamber music, Chamber Music Hall, 10 a.m. Dept. I. Friends program.
Boston Symphony Orchestra, Shed, 2:30 p.m. Conductor, Richard Burgin; soloist, Ruth Posselt.
American Festival Overture William Schuman
Fantasia on a theme by Tallis Vaughan Williams
Concerto for Violin Khachaturian
Symphony No. 2 Sibelius
Composers' Forum, Chamber Music Hall, 8:30 p.m. Dept. III. Friends program.

Music Mountain

Berkshire Quartet, 4:00 p.m.

(Program to be announced)

Sunday, August 8

Tanglewood

Chamber music, Chamber Music Hall, 10 a.m. Dept. I. Friends program.
Boston Symphony Orchestra, Shed, 2:30 p.m. Conductor, Charles Munch; soloist, Zino Francescatti.
Overture to "Alceste" Gluck
Violin Concerto Beethoven
Symphony No. 2 Brahms
Composers' Forum, Chamber Music Hall, 8:30 p.m. Dept. III. Friends program.

Music Mountain

Berkshire Quartet, 4:00 p.m.

(Program to be announced)

Sunday, August 15

Tanglewood

Chamber Music, Theater-Concert Hall, 10 a.m. Dept. I. Friends program.
Boston Symphony Orchestra, Shed, 2:30 p.m. Charles Munch, conductor. In memory of Serge Koussevitzky.
"Requiem" with Festival Chorus and soloist Berlioz

Music Mountain

Berkshire Quartet 4:00 p.m.

(Program to be announced)

Sunday, August 22

South Mountain

Chamber Music Festival, Coolidge Series, 4:00 p.m. Chamber Orchestra from the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Rudolf Serkin and Alexander Schneider.

Pro Musica Antiqua

Festival Concert, Lenox Town Hall, 1:30 p.m. Music of the Spanish Renaissance.

Music Mountain

Berkshire Quartet, 4:00 p.m.

(Program to be announced)

Sunday, August 29

Pro Musica Antiqua

Festival Concert, Lenox Town Hall, 1:30 p.m. Vocal and instrumental works of Salamone Rossi, Hebreo (Mantua 1587-1628).

Music Mountain

Berkshire Quartet, 4:00 p.m.

(Program to be announced)

TIGHT BINDING
FILMED AS BOUND

Syracuse Herald-Journal
July 7, 1954

CLAUDIO ARRAU, pianist, is guest soloist in the Piano Concerto No. 5 ("Emperor") by Beethoven with the Boston Symphony Orchestra in an all-Beethoven Berkshire Festival program to be conducted by Pierre Monteux in the Music Shed "Tanglewood" next Sunday afternoon at 2:30. This is the 30th anniversary of Arrau's debut with the Boston Symphony Orchestra then under the baton of Monteux. Arrau will play in a Beethoven chamber music program in the Theater-Concert Hall in "Tanglewood" tonight.

FOR THE FIRST time in Berkshire Festival history, Saturday night and Sunday afternoon concerts will be given, commencing the opening weekend, next July 10-11, in the Music Shed. The capacity of the Music Shed is 6,000, but at every concert, thousands more listen from the spacious grounds. The 104-piece Boston Symphony will be heard in a first Berkshire presentation of Hector Berlioz's "Damnation of Faust" next Saturday night, with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society directed by G. Wallace Woodworth. Soloists: Eleanor Steber, David Poleri, Martial Singher and Donald Gramm. On Sunday afternoon, guest conductor Pierre Monteux will conduct the full Boston Symphony Orchestra in an all-Beethoven program with Claudio Arrau as soloist. The occasion will mark the 30th anniversary of Arrau's first appearance with the Boston Symphony, then under baton of Monteux.

Waterbury (Conn) AMERICAN
July 8, 1954

Arrau Gives Inspired Performance

(Special To The American)

Lenox, Mass., July 8 —The annual trek of thousands of music lovers from all parts of the country to Tanglewood, that delightful musical mecca in the Berkshires, began last night when an overflow audience of 1,500 gathered in the theater-concert hall to hear one of the most rewarding piano performances it has been our pleasure to experience.

The bravos that greeted Claudio Arrau at the conclusion of Beethoven's "Appassionata" sonata were justly deserved. Mr. Arrau had given an inspired performance in which he made the piano perform as we have seldom heard it with the possible exception of Artur Rubenstein. He performed with the utmost of vigor and delicacy. He drew from the instrument such sounds as we had almost forgotten it was capable of producing.

And this Claudio Arrau did after two equally brilliant performances in the Beethoven sonatas, "F sharp major," and "A Flat major", played during the first half of the program. He has improved considerably since we heard him here last. Tanglewood audiences on Sunday afternoon will have an opportunity to hear Mr. Arrau again when he plays with the Boston Symphony Orchestra in an all-Beethoven program. Incidentally, his appearance, with Monteux conducting will mark the 30th anniversary of his first appearance as a youth with that conductor.

The Bel Arte Trio began the evening's performance with an excellent performance of Beethoven's "String Trio in G major." Ruth Posselt was the violinist, Joseph De Pasquale, viola, and Martin Hoherman, cellist.

The Friday night program will present the Brandenburg Concertos in an all-Bach program with Lukas Foss as the pianist and Charles Munch conducting.

S. M.

Italian News (Boston) July 9, 1954

ZINO FRANCESCATTI, violinist, who will play the last of the Berkshire Festival series of six chamber music concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., on Wednesday, August 11 at 8:30 P.M. He will play Brahms' sonatas in A major and D minor, and Bach's Suite in C.

VERA FRANCESCHINI, pianist, who will be guest soloist in the performance of Cesar Frank's "Les Djinns" in a Berkshire Festival program of French music with Pierre Monteux conducting the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the Music Shed on Saturday, July 17, at 8:30 P.M. at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

DAVID POLERI, tenor, who is one of four soloists singing with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society and the Boston Symphony Orchestra at the performance of Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust", the opening concert of the Berkshire Festival in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., on Saturday evening, July 10 at 8:30 P.M.

NICOLA MOSCANA, bass-baritone, who is a soloist in the dramatic symphony "Romeo and Juliet" by Hector Berlioz, which the Boston Symphony Orchestra will perform under the baton of Charles Munch with Festival Chorus and soloists at the Berkshire Festival concert in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., on Saturday evening, July 31 at 8:30 P.M.

Italian Artists Star at Tanglewood

Italo-American musicians will take a leading role as soloists and as members of the symphony orchestra this Summer at the 17th Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Mass.

Tomorrow night's opening of the full 104-piece Boston Symphony will feature David Poleri, tenor, in the role of Faust in the little-heard complete presentation of Hector Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust."

Wednesday evening commenced six week's of 24 concerts at the world-famous Tanglewood, where Nathaniel Hawthorne lived a century ago. Located near the shores of Stockbridge Bowl, Tanglewood is set in a natural valley in the Berkshire Hills, a few minutes from Lenox and 10 miles from Pittsfield. On a hill overlooking the Music Center is Shadowbrook, a Jesuit Seminary.

NOTED SOLOISTS

The first of six Wednesday Chamber Music Concerts included an all-Beethoven program by the Bel Arte Trio, of which Joseph de Pasquale is violinist.

Among the season's noted soloists are Metropolitan Opera stars Nicola Moscona, bass-baritone; David Poleri, tenor; Vera Franceschi, pianist; and Zino Francescatti, violin.

Besides the series of concerts, the Berkshire Festival includes a six-week Summer school of Music, maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Many Italo-Americans are among the 400 musicians enrolled in the famous school.

GROWING CONTINUALLY

Since 1938 when the 6000-seat Music shed was erected on the Tanglewood estate, open on three sides so that music might spill out to the thousands who listen to it on the grass under the stars, the Berkshire Festival has attracted increasingly large crowds from all over Eastern U.S. and Canada until last Summer all attendance were broken, with an average of 10,200 at each Shed concert.

To accomodate its growing crowds of music lovers, the 1954 Berkshire Festival has been increased in scope within its six-week framework: 12 Shed concerts instead of last year's nine, to be held on Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons; the popular Bach-Mozart concerts held each Friday evening; and a new series of six Wednesday evening chamber music programs.

On Saturday morning (July 10) at 10 A.M. the Boston Symphony will hold the first of six weekly open rehearsals for the benefit of the orchestra's Pension Fund. The public is invited to these interesting rehearsals for the nominal admission of $1.

Italo-Americans from throughout the state and country, who among the greatest of music lovers, will find a trip to the Berkshire Festival a thrilling experience.

The Berkshire Festival, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., presents chamber music Wednesdays at 8:30 p.m., chamber orchestra Fridays at 8:30 p.m. and the Boston Symphony Orchestra Saturdays at 8:30 p.m. and Sundays at 2:30 p.m. Tickets on sale at the box office, telephone Lenox 600.

Friday, July 9: Bach, Brandenburg Concertos, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 5, 6, piano solo by Lukas Foss. Charles Munch, conductor.

Saturday, July 10: Berlioz, "The Damnation of Faust", with the Harvard Glee Club, Radcliff Choral Society and soloists. Charles Munch, conductor.

Sunday, July 11: Beethoven, Overture to "Leonore", No. 3; Piano Concerto No. 5 ("Emperor") with Claudio Arrau, soloist; Symphony No. 5. Pierre Monteux, conductor.

Wednesday, July 14, The Albeneri Trio: Brahms, Trio in B, Op. 8; Martinu, Trio in D Minor; Beethoven, Trio in B flat, Op. 97 ("Archduke").

Friday, July 16: Bach, Cantata No. 93, "Wer nur den lieben Gott", Hugh Ross conducting; Suites Nos. 1 and 4, Charles Munch conducting.

Saturday, July 17: Debussy, Excerpts from "St. Sebastian", and "La Mer"; Franck, "Les Djinns", for piano and orchestra with Vera Francheschi as soloist, and Symphony in D Minor, Pierre Monteux, conductor.

Sunday, July 18, Debussy, "Iberia"; Copland, Piano Concerto with Leo Smit as soloist; Berlioz, "Fantastic Symphony". Charles Munch, conductor.

Wednesday, July 21, The Zimbler Sinfonietta; Vivaldi, "The Four Seasons; Stravinsky, "Apollon Musagete"; Rossini, "Baroque Concerto".

Newtown (Mass) Bee
At Tanglewood
July 9, 1954

Martial Singher

The 104-piece Boston Symphony Orchestra will give its first concert of the 1954 Berkshire Festival this Saturday night, July 10, with the presentation of Hector Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust". The concert will be given in the great Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

Appearing with the orchestra will be the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society, and soloists Eleanor Steber (Marguerite), David Poleri (Faust), Martial Singher (Mephistopheles) and Donald Gramm (Brander). The two and one-half hour performance will begin at 8:30 under the baton of Charles Munch, regular conductor of the Boston Symphony.

This Sunday at 2:30 p.m., Pierre Monteux will conduct the orchestra in an all- Beethoven program with Claudio Arrau as piano soloist, the occasion marking the 30th anniversary of Mr Arrau's first appearance with the orchestra which was then under the baton of Mr Monteux.

This year's festival will continue for six weeks, 24 concerts will be given by various musical units. The Music Shed concerts on Saturay evenings and Sunday afternoons, will honor the 150th anniversary of the birth of Hector Berlioz by performing complete versions of his principal works.

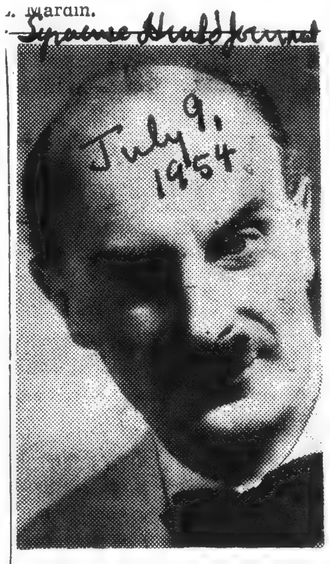
Other programs of the festival include a chamber music series on Wednesday evenings at 8:30 and chamber music concerts on Friday evenings at 8:30, both in the Theatre-Concert Hall. The programs of all concerts for the coming two weeks are detailed in the Weekly Calendar in this issue of The Bee and will continue through the season.

BOSTON, MASS.
MORNING GLOBE
JUN 27 1954

Tanglewood Ticket Sale

Subscriptions for the Berkshire festival series of Boston Symphony Orchestra concerts will be held ... Saturday, July 10 to ... Sunday, July 18 ... August 15 ... Music Shed, Tanglewood. ... Director ... of the Summer ... passed those of the Summer of 1953, manager George E. Judd announces.

Marian.
Syracuse Herald-Journal



Hugh Ross again heads the choral music department of Berkshire Music Center, "Tanglewood," summer school of muic operated by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in connection with the annual Berkshire Festival. The Festival chorus will participate in concerts July 31, Aug. 6, 7, 15, including works by Berlioz. Ross also will conduct Bach's Cantana No. 93 and Haydn's "Nelson" Mass on July 16 and 23 respectivly.

...NE, SUNDAY, JULY 11, 1954

Going On in Music

Changes at Tanglewood; Festival, Stadium News

By FRANCIS D. PERKINS

Changes have been made in three of the Boston Symphony's Berkshire Festival programs at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Nicole Henriot, appearing three weeks earlier than originally scheduled, will play Liszt's Piano Concerto in E flat Saturday night, July 24, with Jean Morel conducting; Weber's Overture to "Der Freischuetz" will be omitted. Ruth Posselt will play Khatchaturian's Violin Concerto instead of Dvorak's Sunday afternoon, Aug. 1, with her husband, Richard Burgin, conducting; Vaughan Williams' Tallis Fantasia and William Schuman's American Festival Overture will be substituted for Prokofiev's "Chout" Suite. On Saturday night, Aug. 14, Charles Munch will conduct Ravel's "Le Tombeau de Couperin" in place of the Ravel concerto originally announced for Miss Henriot.

Berkshire Festival

Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

Today, 2:30, Boston Symphony Orchestra, Pierre Monteux conducting; soloist, Claudio Arrau, pianist. Overture to "Leonore," No. 3; Piano Concerto No. 5 ("Emperor"); Symphony No. 5, Beethoven.
Wednesday, 8:30, Albeneri Trio (Erich Iter Kahn, pianist; Giorgi Chomet, violinist; Benar Heifitz, cellist). Trio in B, Op. 8, Brahms; Trio in D minor, Martinu; Trio in B flat, Op. 97 ("Archduke"), Beethoven.
Friday, 8:30, Chamber Orchestra, Boston Symphony Musicians, Charles Munch, conductor. Suites Nos. 1 and 4; Cantata No. 93 "Wer nur den lieben Gott" (Hugh Ross conducting), Bach.
Saturday, 8:30, Boston Symphony Orchestra, Pierre Monteux conducting. Excerpts, "St. Sebastian," Debussy; "Les Djinns," for Piano and Orchestra (soloist, Vera Franceschi, pianist), Franck; "La mer," Debussy; Symphony in D minor, Franck.
Sunday, July 18, 2:30, Boston Symphony Orchestra, conductor, Charles Munch; soloist, Leo Smit, pianist. "Iberia," Debussy; Piano Concerto, Copland; "Fantastic Symphony," Berlioz.

[149]

Berkshire Festival:

Munch Offers Bach Program

2,800 Attend Fine Opening

By MILES KASTENDIECK

TANGLEWOOD, LENOX, Mass, July 10—Charles Munch opened the first of six big weekends of this year's Berkshire Festival with a Bach program in the theatre-concert hall last night.

A crowd of 2,800 people attended.

The program consisted of five of the six Brandenburg concertos played by 40 members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. They were well conducted by giving Nos. 1, 3, and 2 before and Nos. 6 and 5 after the intermission.

Ragged Tempo

This "Bach Madness" did not have quite so much method in it as one might have expected. Munch always has approached Bach in virile fashion but perhaps not with such an over-vital rhythmic urge as he did last night.

For that reason the performances sounded unnecessarily rough and altogether too rugged. Things went wrong here and there with tempos, difficult passages, and endings.

The soloists were the bright spot of the first half of the concert.

Roger Voisin's "Bach" trumpet in the second concerto may have sounded like a child's toy instrument injected into the assemblage, but it was most skillfully played.

So, too, were the flute of Doriot Anthony, the oboe of Ralph Gomberg, and the violin of Richard Burgin.

Fine Evening

In the sixth and fifth concertos much was much more in the vein. The former found the viola and cello sections of the orchestra in excellent form.

The latter gained in stature through the finely-controlled playing of Lukas Foss whose piano cadenza in the first movement was a model of crescendo playing.

Whatever the reservation about the performances, however, the music gave everyone a lift. A whole evening of the Brandenburg concertos is just enough. They never let the listener down.

Boston Sunday Herald
July 11, 1954

K TIMES, SATURDAY,

MUNCH CONDUCTS 5 BACH CONCERTOS

'Brandenburg' Works Given at the Opening Program of Series at Tanglewood

By OLIN DOWNES

Special to The New York Times.

LENOX, Mass., July 9—Twenty-eight hundred people somehow managed to pack themselves into and about the theatre-concert hall this evening at Tanglewood for the first concert of the Bach-Mozart series of the Berkshire Festival of 1954.

Charles Munch led an orchestra of some forty players of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a program devoted entirely to five of the six so-called "Brandenburg" Concertos for chamber orchestra of J. S. Bach. There were listeners on the stage back of the orchestra and hundreds stood or were seated outside the hall and answered, by their presence and their applause, the question that a newcomer to the festivals was heard to ask—whether a whole evening of nothing but the "Brandenburg" Concertos wouldn't prove tiresome.

The evening was an unmitigated delight, if only because of the infinite variety, brilliancy and spirit of Bach's writing. If ever learning were worn lightly, and the presence of a master hand wholly concealed by the apparent spontaneity and unreflecting exuberance of the music, it is in those extraordinary pieces. For the six concertos, composed for and dedicated to the German princeling who neither acknowledged them or gave them a designated place in his music library, are highest art and popular entertainment in one. Regardless of the relative merits of their interpretation, they will captivate an audience.

Differing Interpretations

This is said with cognizance of the fact that this evening's performances were by no means of the same level of excellence. The opening performance of the First Concerto was more conspicuous for rugged energy and over-emphasis than for clarity, balance, or technical precision.

Next in order of succession came the Third Concerto—for the strings—a marked improvement in finish, if not unfailing distinction of delivery. The "star" performance of the evening—though the word "star" must be taken in a symbolic sense when writing of a superb ensemble achievement—was that of the Second Concerto, the very brilliant one in F major, with the solo parts for trumpet, flute, oboe and violin.

This was playing of the finest, of a score so rich and exuberant in its workmanship that one wanted to cry "bravo" to Bach after each measure and was reluctant to have him stop, knowing that he could lengthen each movement by another five or ten minutes and simply delight us.

The soloists were Roger Voisin, who played the special small trumpet designed especially to cope with the prodigious difficulties of the high, florid trumpet part; Doriot Anthony, the first-class young woman flutist of the Boston Symphony, now a vital and interesting player, who will become more mellow and authoritative with further experience; Ralph Gomberg for the first-class oboe, and Richard Burgin, honored concertmaster, for the solo violin.

This was exhilarating, though we find the tone of the small trumpet and Mr. Voisin plays so that it is too shrill for the good of the music. The performance of the Fifth Concerto, with the famous piano—originally harpsichord—cadenza, was the brilliant conclusion of the evening.

It might be said that in this last respect there was a little too much sentiment, when it came to romanticizing somewhat Bach's writing, and in not keeping sufficiently to a clear, unsentimental, sculpturesque line in the more lyrical measures.

As a whole, this performance made a conclusion that the audience stormily applauded.

Tanglewood (Mus) BEE
Tanglewood
July 9, 1954

Martial Singher

4-piece Boston Symphony will give its first con- the 1954 Berkshire Festi- Saturday night, July 10, presentation of Hector The Damnation of Faust". ert will be given in the sic Shed at Tanglewood, ass.

ring with the orchestra e Harvard Glee Club and liffe Choral Society, and Eleanor Steber (Mar- David Poleri (Faust), Singher (Mephistopheles) ald Gramm (Brander). and one-half hour per- will begin at 8:30 under of Charles Munch, regu- ctor of the Boston Sym-unday at 2:30 p.m., Pierre will conduct the orch- n all-Beethoven program dio Arrau as piano so- occasion marking the iversary of Mr Arrau's arance with the orches- was then under the ba- Monteux.

r's festival will continue eks, 24 concerts will be various musical units. c Shed concerts on Sat- ings and Sunday after- l honor the 150th anni- the birth of Hector Ber- erforming complete ver- is principal works.

rograms of the festival chamber music series on y evenings at 8:30 and music concerts on Friday at 8:30, both in the Concert Hall. The pro- all concerts for the com- weeks are detailed in the Calendar in this issue of and will continue he season.

MASS.
GLOBE
7 1954
ket Sale
1954 Berk- y the Boston for concerts y evenings, and on six- ly 11 to Au- sic Shed at have sur- Summer of E. Judd an-

Berkshire Festival
In Second Week

This afternoon in the Music Sched at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., Pierre Monteux will conduct an all-Beethoven program consisting of the "Leonore" Overture, No. 3; the Piano Concerto No. 5 ("Emperor"), with Claudio Arrau as soloist and the Symphony No. 5.

The second week of four Berkshire Festival concerts, at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., comprises an evening of chamber music by the Albeneri Trio (Erich Itor Kahn, piano; Giorgio Ciompi, violin; Benar Heifitz, 'cello) on Wednesday evening in the Theatre-Concert Hall; an all-Bach program, including a Cantata conducted by Hugh Ross and two suites performed by a chamber orchestra of members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Music Director Charles Munch, on Friday evening in the Theatre-Concert Hall; a program of Debussy and Franck performed by the full 104-piece Boston Symphony Orchestra, with Pierre Monteux as guest conductor and Vera Franceschi as piano soloist, on Friday evening, in the Music Shed; and the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Mr. Munch conducting, and Leo Smit as piano soloist, in a program of Debussy, Copland and Berlioz, on Sunday afternoon (July 18), in the Music Shed.

tsfield, Massachusetts, Saturday, July 10, 1954. EAGLE

RELAXING at the Tanglewood grounds before their performance tonight with the Boston Symphony Orchestra of Hector Berlioz' dramatic symphony, "The Damnation of Faust," are, left to right, G. Wallace Woodworth, who trained the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society choir of 110 voices; Eleanor Steber, soprano soloist of the Metropolitan Opera Company; Dr. Charles Munch, music director of the BSO; Martial Singher, baritone, and standing, David Poleri, tenor.

Tanglewood Tales

* * *

Foss Commissioned To Write Composition

Lukas Foss reveals he has been commissioned by the Schweitzer Foundation to compose an orchestral piece which the Boston Symphony Orchestra will perform on the 80th birthday next January, of Albert Schweitzer, noted philosopher, physician, organist, humanitarian and exponent of Bach, who is a nephew by marriage of Conductor Charles Munch. Mr. Foss is also at work on a piano piece and has titled his fairy tale opera for the National Broadcasting Co. "Griffelkin."

* * *

Bach Cantata Soloists

Theresa Green, Beatrice Krebs, David Lloyd and McHenry Boatright have been named soloists in the Bach Cantata No. 93 "Wer nur den lieben Gott," which Hugh Ross will conduct for the first time at Tanglewood when Charles Munch leads a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players in an all-Bach program next Friday, in the theater concert hall at Tanglewood.

* * *

Lectures For Students

The first of informal lectures to students at the Berkshire Music Center in a series planned by Dean Ralph Berkowitz, entitled "Aspects of Music," were given at Tanglewood this week. Lukas Foss spoke "On Listening to Music" on Monday; Aaron Copland on "Berlioz From the Composers' Viewpoint" on Friday. Lukas Foss' musicianship class on Wednesday heard him on the subject of "The Bach Style."

* * *

A high official from Finland is expected at Tanglewood the week of Aug. 1. On Sunday, Aug. 1, when Richard Burgin conducts the Finnish composer's symphony No. 2 in the Berkshire Festival Shed concert, details will be announced of a scholarship to be established at the Berkshire Music Center by the Koussevitzky Music Foundation.

Music

Colorful Performance Given Bach Brandenberg Concertos

By JAY C. ROSENFELD

An evening of the Bach Brandenburg concertos, all except the fourth, was the program in the theater-concert hall at Tanglewood last night as the first of the Friday nights to be devoted to music for a small orchestra. In the new alignment which has been planned for this season, what was the original Bach-Mozart series is to be expanded to include a wider circle of composers although Bach and Mozart are to be the anchors.

While the playing of the Brandenburgs has become a tradition by now at Tanglewood, there is no traditional playing there of these famous concertos. We were treated last night to several new ideas and different versions which, in general, were advantageous. The 30-odd men played with incisive rhythm and the various instrumental requirements of the different concertos added interest and color to the evening. The soloists, too, all veterans of varying terms of service, were bright additions to the evening's enjoyment.

* * *

THE EVENING ENDED with the big fifth in which the soloists were Doriot Anthony, flute, Richard Burgin, violin, with Lukas Foss, piano, playing the part originally written for cembalo. The larger assignment, by far, of course, falls to the piano and Mr. Foss played with even more eloquent and deeper conception than ever before. There was fluent poetry in the big cadenza of the first movement and beautifully articulated inflections and divisions in his statement of the whole work.

The Brandenburgs were undoubtedly played without a conductor in Bach's day and while Charles Munch, the conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, properly confined himself mainly to tempo indications, he neither controlled nor dominated the situation during the evening.

As a matter of fact, certainly the sixth, for divided violas and celli, with all due respect for Mr. Munch, is better played with the principal viola watching the principal cello rather than both watching a baton. The violas forced their tone somewhat here, but this is understandable, considering the powerful impulses and metric interest Bach affords them. This alone might have been avoided, but the second theme of the first movement was thereby submerged and obscured when it fell to the celli.

* * *

ROGER VOISIN never played the high register trumpet in F in the second concerto so well as he did last night. The strings used a more detached off-the-strings bowing than before and thereby added brilliance and clarity, even though they changed the values of some notes. Mr. Burgin's solos were excellently executed. In the slow movement Ralph Gomberg, oboe, and Miss Anthony, flute, played with conspicuous beauty, Mr. Gromberg especially achieving some notable phrasing.

WESTPORT, CONN
TOWN CRIER
7/1/54

CLAUDIO ARRAU, pianist, will be guest soloist with the Boston Symphony in an All-Beethoven Berkshire Festival program in the Music Shed at Tanglewood on Sunday, July 11, at 2:30 p.m. He will also play in a Beethoven chamber music program in the Theatre-Concert Hall on Wednesday, July 7, at 8:30 p.m., which opens the six-week Festival season.

TANGLEWOOD — Lenox, Mass.

Berkshire Festival

BY THE BOSTON SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director

Opening Shed Concerts Tonight and Sunday Afternoon

● 6 Wed. Eve. Chamber Concerts
● 6 FRI. Eve. Theater Concerts
● 6 SAT. EVE. Shed Concerts
● 6 SUN. AFT. Shed Concerts

Tickets for Shed Concerts, $6.50 (Box seats), $5.50, $4, $3.50, $3, $2.50
Friday Concerts—$4, $5; Wednesday Concerts—$2, $3

For programs and ticket information write or phone:
TICKET OFFICE, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Phone—Lenox 600

EAGLE July 10, 1954

[150]

Berkshire "Eagle" July 10, 1954

BSO Moves Into the Music Shed For 'The Damnation of Faust'

Initial Performance Tonight at Tanglewood of Berlioz' Dramatic Legend To Feature Harvard, Radcliffe Choral Group

TANGLEWOOD — The 104 piece Boston Symphony Orchestra moves into the Music Shed at Tanglewood this evening to open the 1954 series of six Saturday night and Sunday afternoon concerts. The performance, with Dr. Charles Munch conducting, will start at 8:30.

2800 Here Last Night

The first two Berkshire Music Festival chamber concerts held in the theater-concert hall drew large audiences. Last night's performance by the BSO chamber orchestra attracted 2800 music lovers to Tanglewood.

At tonight's opening of the Shed series, three weeks earlier than in the past, Dr. Munch will conduct for the first time at Tanglewood Hector Berlioz' dramatic legend, "The Damnation of Faust," Op. 24.

The Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society of 110 voices directed by G. Wallace Woodworth will participate. The soloists, all making their Tanglewood debuts, are Eleanor Steber, soprano, David Poleri, tenor, Martial Singher, baritone and Donald Gramm, bass.

Runs 2½ Hours

Although the work, which runs 2½ hours with a single intermission, has never before been presented at a Berkshire Festival, Mr. Munch, president of the Berlioz Society, conducted it in Boston last winter in a performance that received unanimous critical praise, The Boston Herald calling it "the supreme Charles Munch achievement in Boston, perhaps even the supreme achievement of his career."

"The Damnation of Faust" is the first of a number of Berlioz' works, including the dramatic symphony "Romeo and Juliet" (July 31), the "Requiem" (Aug. 15), the song cycle "Summer Nights," the "Te Deum" (Aug. 7) and the symphony "Harold in Italy" (July 25) to be given in their complete form at Tanglewood this summer in observance of the 150th season of the birth of the French composer.

Miss Steber, a leading member of the Metropolitan Opera Company, who returns to Tanglewood Aug. 7 to sing "Summer Nights" with the Boston Symphony, has just performed at the Holland Festival in Scheveningen and the Maggio Musicale in Florence, Italy. In the summer of 1953 she sang at such major European music centers as Vienna and Lucerne, the opening night at Bayreuth's Wagner Festival and the Edinburgh Festival. Later this summer she sings at the Red Rocks Festival, Denver, and at the opening night of the Hollywood Bowl, California.

Former Music Center Student

A Berkshire Music Center pupil in 1947 and 1948, David Poleri, who sings Faust, returns after many engagements with major orchestras and performances with the New York City Opera Company. He sings this summer at Tanglewood in the "Te Deum" and "Requiem."

Another leading member of the N.Y. City Opera Company, Donald Gramm will sing the role of Brander in tonight's performance. Mr. Gramm began his musical training in Milwaukee at the age of eight. During four years as a scholarship student at the Chicago Musical College, he won the Paul Lavalle scholarship. Since winning the Chicagoland Musical Festival first prize in 1943, he has had engagements with the Chicago, San Francisco and Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestras. After his Tanglewood appearance, Mr. Gramm goes to the Hollywood Bowl, the Peninsular Festival under Thor Johnson in Wisconsin, and North Carolina's Brevard Festival.

Martial Singher, the Mephistopheles, is a member of the Metropolitan Opera Company who came from his native France in 1944. During his American career he has sung 700 times in recital, with orchestra, and in opera. Latterly he has devoted much of his time to teaching voice and interpretation at the Juilliard School of Music in New York, the Metropolitan School of Music in Chicago, the Music Academy of the West in Santa Barbara, Calif., and been director of the vocal department at the Conservatoire in Montreal.

Four Parts, 20 Scenes

"The Damnation of Faust" is in four parts, of 20 scenes. The first is devoted to the solitary Faust. In the second, Mephistopheles appears and dominates. In the third, the meeting with Marguerite is effected, and in the last, the lovers are united and torn apart, Faust is dragged to perdition and Marguerite saved.

The solo in the epilogue, "A Voice on Earth," is sung by McHenry Boatwright, bass, of Boston, a student of opera dramatics at the Berkshire Music Center.

The first Sunday afternoon Music Shed concert, at 2:30 tomorrow will have Pierre Monteux as guest conductor in an all-Beethoven program, consisting of the Overture to "Leonore," No. 3; Piano Concerto No 5 ("Emperor") and Symphony No. 5. Claudio Arrau, the eminent Chilean pianist who is soloist, first appeared with the Boston Symphony Orchestra Feb. 4, 1924 under the direction of Mr. Monteux. His return to Tanglewood tomorrow, for the first time since 1949 when his concert broke records, accordingly marks the 30th anniversary of his association with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, with which he has played many times.

MUSIC UNDER THE SKY—More than 15,000 music lovers are expected to attend the annual Berkshire Festival of the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood this year. Tonight Charles Munch will conduct "The Damnation of Faust," by Berlioz, and Pierre Monteux will conduct an all Beethoven program tomorrow afternoon.

Albany Times-Union July

NEW YORK WORLD-TELEGRAM AND SUN, SATURDAY, JULY 10, 1954.

Music

The Berkshires Echo to Bach

By ROBERT BAGAR.

TANGLEWOOD, Lenox, Mass., July 10.—The opening concert of the Berkshire Festival's first weekend was given last night in the theater-concert hall. This is a small house, seating 1200. Actually the attendance was 2800, counting the music lovers huddled about the lawn outside the auditorium.

It was all Bach, this program. Five of his six Brandenburg concertos (the No. 4, excluded), which, you will agree, is quite a lot of Bach.

Wonderful Variety.

But these audiences at Tanglewood are true devotees of Johann Sebastian. (He isn't called the "All-Father" of music for nothing, you know.) And, as you can imagine, five "Brandenburg" concertos filled the cool, cloudless evening with notes like swarms of fireflies.

There is a wonderful variety to these concertos. None is like any other, really, yet all have the same stamp. The variety, the difference between them is to be noted in the choice of instrumental combinations employed.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, reduced, with Charles Munch at the helm, sailed through these compositions in a practiced manner. They have always been especial glories of the orchestra, the "Brandenburgs." Yet I would say that on the whole, such as I have heard of them before this were delicately handled.

Rough Sound.

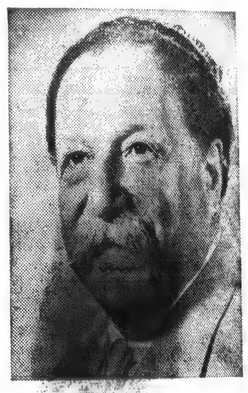
Last night, Mr. Munch seemed generally bent on keeping the strong beats heavier than seemed necessary. Not in all places, of course, but enough to give one that impression. When that happened, naturally, the results were rough sound, particularly in complicated passages, where musical lines intertwine about each other like vines.

Moreover, the situation was by no means improved by the rather frequent and, it appeared to me, unnecessary deviation of the tempo. I have heard jazz groups, without a conductor, keep a tempo going perfectly, without variation of any kind from beginning to end of a session. And that reminds me that Mr. Munch's tempos lacked the buoyancy that the Bach music required. As you know, such as I have heard of them before this were delicately handled.

Now that I've got off the gripes, there is much to be said in favor of certain renditions. The Concerto No. 2, in F Major, for trumpet, flute, oboe and violin, with strings, and the D Major, No. 5, for orchestra with piano, flute and violin supplied the listeners with such satisfactions as, perhaps, they had been awaiting.

SPRINGFIELD FREE PRESS—SATURDAY, JULY 10

At Tanglewood



Pierre Monteux will be guest conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra at the Berkshire Festival concerts on Sunday, July 11, at 2:30 p.m. (an all-Beethoven program with Claudio Arrau, pianist, as soloist), and Saturday evening, July 17, at 8:30 (an all French program with piano soloist Vera Franceschi) at Tanglewood, Lenox,

Republican July 11, 1954

THE SPRINGFIELD SUNDAY REPUBLI

Lunch Box Check for Tanglewood Trip

An advance peek into their lunch boxes occupied one foursome of the 60 members of the Springfield Business and Professional Women's Club as they awaited busses for the second annual trip to Tanglewood yesterday afternoon. Shown in front of First Church in Court Square, are, left to right, Mrs. Beatrice R. Manley, Miss Edith M. Watson, Miss Olive M. Saber, Miss Helena M. Collins. The success of last year's Tanglewood trip resulted in a doubling of attendance from the club this year.

HARTFORD, CONN. COURANT - 1954

Tanglewood Auditions May 9 In New York

The final instrumental auditions for applicants to the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, will be held in Carnegie Recital Hall on Sunday, May 9 between 12 and 2 o'clock. All students accepted for the school orchestra at Tanglewood will be eligible for tuition grants from the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund.

Final auditions for active participants in the Opera Department will be held in the same Hall on Saturday, May 15 from 11 a.m. to 1 o'clock.

The Berkshire Music Center's twelfth season will extend from July 5 to August 15 and will be held in connection with the Boston Symphony Orchestra's Berkshire Festival.

Applicants ... are advised to appear at the ... Center, Tanglewood, ... possible, but ... Boston 15, Mass. Symphony Hall, ... Applications and catalogues may be obtained at the time of the auditions.

[151]

July 11, 1954 Y REPUBLICAN,

Maestros

h, (left), noted conductor o n welcoming his old friend sic Center at Tanglewood the Music Shed this afte program.

anglewood

0—Eight Berkshire students at Tanglemer are disdaining comforts of Wheatle students' dormimore rugged life, ing on the edge of wl. Since four are a trombone player chorus leader, they ed to give a nocturtheir own. In a ives Norman Bernll, Mass., the trombter from last sumBritton, Hindsboro, Colgrass, Brookfield, cCausland, Milford, ert Duffy, Littleton, tympanists, and the is Maurice Carbonviston, Me. Their nearby tent are two Ludwig and Laura University of Illinois, Harold Johnson, Herbert Gibson, Danh associates in the nent. Two Wisconre also quartered in time scene of Destudies, William Kelkee, and Bert Philsse, who play violin pectively in the stu-

itelaw, of Boston, the summer at tape-recording the chamber orches-, the Saturday Sunday afternoon concerts of the phony in the Berkl, for WGBH-FM, non-commercial station which 50-80 mile radius during the past has broadcast in rm live concerts ony Hall of the hony's Friday aftSaturday night station is cosupported by the hony, Boston Col- University, Harr., the Museum of the New England of Music, Northversity and Tufts broadcasts inroom lectures, fo-, poetry and news.

w, producer and will offer the first "tape" to WGBH's turday July 17, the Berlioz "Damnaen given at Tangleand the recorded continue until the mber.

from Ceylon, Tori Horace Jam Modt the Curtis Hotel, anglewood visitors nother interesting ith Adolf Berle in on, was Benjamin ador from Costa ited Nations.

Informal lectures t the Berkshire in a series an Ralph Berked "Aspects of given at Tanglek. Lukas Foss tening to Music" aron Copland on the Composers'

Bostonians On a Shuttle

With the Boston ... certs in Boston ... Berkshire Festival ... the Boston Symphony ... chestra has been ... weekly ... The ... who ... leave ... nights ... for the ... rehearsals for the ... chestra's ... concerts, and ... Boston in time for ... day night program ... bank of the Charles.

Musicians who ... Friday night ... chestra concerts ... commute; twenty ... are members of the ... shire Music Center.

outside ... celed on ... Munch, ... formed ... Symphon ... French ... forming ... concerto ... perform ... ducting ... Tanglewood ... August 1.

Willia ... retiring ... E. Judd ... "Meadow ... studio ... French ... and Mis ... the Juds ... vision ... Manager ... attending ... certs th ... the bu ... soloist C ... Tanglew ... John Or ... The Ba ... New Yo Lukas ... commiss ... Foundati ... tral piec ... phony O ... the 80th ... of Alber ... opher, p ... itarian a ... is a nep ... ductor C ... is also ... and has ... for the ... Company

TIGHT BINDING

N. Y. Herald-Tribune
July 11, 1954

Bostonians On a Shuttle

With the Esplanade co certs in Boston and Berkshire Festival in Len
the Boston Symphony
chestra has begun a tw
weekly shuttling operati
The [illegible] musici who take part in both ser leave [illegible] Wednesd nights to reach Tanglewo for the Thursday afterno rehearsal for the full chestra's week-end festi concerts, and get back
Boston in time for the Mo day night program on bank of the Charles.

Musicians who play in Friday night chamber chestra concerts do commute; twenty of th are members of the Be shire Music Center's facu

PRESS—SATURDAY, JULY 10, 19

Tanglewood

[illegible] will be guest
[illegible] of the Boston Sym
[illegible] Orchestra at the Berk
[illegible] Festival, concerts on Sun [illegible]y, July 11, at 2:30 p.m. (an [illegible]Beethoven program with Clau
[illegible]rrau, pianist, as soloist),
[illegible]d Saturday evening, July 17,
[illegible]:30 (an all French program
[illegible] piano soloist Vera Fran [illegible]i) at Tanglewood, Lenox,

HARTFORD, CONN.
COURANT
MAY 2 - 1954

Tanglewood Auditions May 9 In New York

The final instrumental audi tions for applicants to the Berk shire Music Center—Tanglewood will be held in Carnegie Recital Hall on Sunday, May 9 between 12 and 2 o'clock. All students accepted for the school orchestra at Tanglewood will be eligible for tuition grants from the Tanglewood Revolving Scholar ship Fund.

Final auditions for active par ticipants in the Opera Depart ment will be held in the same hall on Saturday, May 15 from 11 a.m. to 1 o'clock.

The Berkshire Music Center's twelfth season will extend from July 5 to August 15 and will be held in connection with the Bos ton Symphony Orchestra's Berk shire Festival.

Applicants who intend to ap pear at the auditions should, if possible, notify the Registra,
Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass.
Applications and catalogues may be obtained at the time of the auditions.

July 11, 1954
SUNDAY REPUBLICAN, SPRINGFIELD, MAS

Maestros Meet

Charles Munch, (left), noted conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, seen welcoming his old friend Pierre Monteux to the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood. Monteux will be guest conductor in the Music Shed this afternoon, in an all-Beethoven program.

Tanglewood Topics

[illegible] 10 Eight Berkshire
[illegible] students at [illegible] summer are disdainful
[illegible] comforts of Wheat
[illegible]ale students' dormi
[illegible] the more rugged life
[illegible] camping on the edge of [illegible] Since four at [illegible] are a trombone player
[illegible] a chorus leader, they [illegible] equipped to give a noctur
[illegible] concert of their own. In a [illegible] shack lives Norman Bern
[illegible] of Lowell, Mass., the trom
[illegible] a repeater from last sum
[illegible] Melvin Britton, Hindshore
[illegible]ine; Colgrass, Brookfield,
[illegible] Lloyd McCausland, Milford,
[illegible] and Albert Duffy, Littleton,
[illegible] are the tympanists, and the [illegible] leader is Maurice Carbon [illegible] of Lewiston, Me. Thr
[illegible]ors in a nearby tent are two [illegible]rs of Ludwig and Laur
[illegible] of the University of Illinois.
[illegible]campaign Harold Johnson
[illegible]o, and Herbert Gibson, Dan
[illegible] Ill., both associates in th
[illegible] department. Two Wiscon
[illegible]dents are also quartered in [illegible]ge, a drama scene of De [illegible]en V. Stubes, William Ke
[illegible]Nu[illegible]ssee, and Bert Pe
[illegible] of LaCrosse, who play viol
[illegible]cello respectively in the stu
[illegible]symphony.

* * *

[illegible]rden Music Tow, of Boston,
[illegible]pending the summer at [illegible]Seacoast, taped recording the [illegible]ast night chamber orches
[illegible] concerts, the Saturday
[illegible]r and Sunday afternoon
[illegible]symphony concerts of the [illegible]on Symphony in the Berk
[illegible]e Festival, for WGBH-FM,
[illegible]ton the non-commercial [illegible]ational station which [illegible]hes a 65-80 mile radius
[illegible] which during the past
[illegible]e years has broadcast in [illegible]plete form live concerts
[illegible] Symphony Hall of the [illegible]on Symphony's Friday
[illegible]on and Saturday
[illegible] the series is supported by the [illegible] Symphony Boston Co
[illegible]Lowell, University
[illegible]N[illegible] the Massac [illegible]Ass[illegible] the New [illegible]Ass[illegible] of the [illegible] and

[illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] will continue until the [illegible] of September.

* * *

[illegible]editors from Ceylon, Tho
[illegible]ova and Horace
[illegible]ewing at the Curtis Hotel
[illegible]were Tanglewood visitors
[illegible]s. Another interesting
[illegible]r with Adolf Berle
[illegible]Washington, was Berle's
[illegible]Ambassador from Costa
[illegible] to the United Nations.

* * *

[illegible]n of it musical [illegible]dents at the Berkshire
[illegible] Center in a series
[illegible]ed by Dean Ralph Berk [illegible]entitled "Aspects of [illegible]" were given at Tangle
[illegible]this week. Lukas Foss
[illegible]e on "Listening to Music"
[illegible]Monday; Aaron Copland on [illegible]oz from the Composers'
Viewpoint" on Friday. Lukas Foss' Musicianship Class on Wednesday heard him on the subject of "The Bach Style".

* * *

Retiring manager George L. Judd of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, in recognition of the first Berkshire Festival being given 20 summers ago, spoke as one neighbor to another to the Lenox Kiwanis Club last Wednesday.

* * *

William J. Cox, assistant to the principal of the Phillips Academy at Exeter, N. H., and Chairman of the Society of Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, the organization through which interested and generous people can help support the summer music school of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will address the Pittsfield Kiwanis Club on Wednesday, July 14.

* * *

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, while on vacation last month in his native Strasbourg, France, took over the helm of his erstwhile orchestra, the French National Radio Orchestra, for a concert on June 20 in the Strasbourg Festival, at short notice, and, according to a review received this week in highly laudatory fashion. The concert had been reserved for Soviet composer Dmitri Shostakovitch to conduct his new Tenth Symphony, which hasn't yet been performed outside of the USSR. It was canceled on short notice, and Mr. Munch, invited to fill the gap, performed the posthumous Schubert Symphony in C Major, with young French violinist Annie Jodry performing the Khatchaturian violin concerto which Ruth Posselt will perform with Richard Burgin conducting the Boston Symphony at Tanglewood on Sunday afternoon, August 1.

* * *

William Judd, elder son of retiring BSO manager George E. Judd, vacationing at "Meadowlark", the former studio of Daniel Chester French in West Stockbridge, and Miss Ruth O'Neill, both of the Judson, O'Neill & Judd division of Columbia Artists Management, New York, are attending the Tanglewood concerts this weekend. This is the bureau which manages soloist Claudio Arrau. Another Tanglewood concert guest is John Ortiz, artists' manager of The Baldwin Piano Company, New York.

* * *

Lukas Foss reveals he has been commissioned by the Schweitzer Foundation to compose an orchestral piece which the Boston Symphony Orchestra will perform on the 80th birthday, next January, of Albert Schweitzer, noted philosopher, physician, organist, humanitarian and exponent of Bach, who is a nephew by marriage of conductor Charles Munch. Mr. Foss is also at work on a piano piece and has titled his fairy tale opera for the National Broadcasting Company "Griffelkin."

6D Springfield Republican July 10

All-Beethoven Program At Lenox This Afternoon

Pierre Monteux to Conduct 'Leonore' Overture No. 3, 'Emperor' Concerto With Claudio Arrau as Soloist, and Symphony No. 5 at Tanglewood

Lenox, July 10—The first Sunday afternoon concert of the summer season at Tanglewood is scheduled for tomorrow, in the Music Shed at 2.30. Pierre Monteux will conduct the full Boston Symphony Orchestra in an all-Beethoven program, opening with the "Leonore" Overture No. 3.

This will be followed by a performance of the Piano Concerto No. 5, the celebrated "Emperor" Concerto, with the Chilean pianist, Claudio Arrau, as solcist. It is now 30 years since Mr. Arrau first appeared with the Boston Symphony, then directed by Mr. Monteux. The program will be climaxed with another Beethoven masterpiece, the majestic and impassioned Symphony No. 5.

VERA FRANCESCHI

The Albeneri Trio

The second week of four Berkshire Festival concerts will continue with an evening of chamber music by the Albeneri Trio (Erich Itor Kahn, piano; Giorgio Ciompi, violin; Benar Heifitz, 'cello) on Wednesday at 8.30 in the Theater-Concert Hall. An all-Bach program, including, a cantata conducted by Hugh Ross and two suites performed by a chamber orchestra of members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Charles Munch will be given Friday evening in the Theater-Concert Hall.

There will be a program of Debussy and Franck performed by the full 104-piece Boston Symphony Orchestra, with Pierre Monteux as guest conductor and Vera Franceschi as piano soloist, on Saturday evening, in the Music Shed. Next Sunday afternoon the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Mr. Munch conducting, and Leo Smit as piano soloist, will play a program of Debussy, Copland and Berlioz, in the Music Shed.

In the event of rain the Wednesday and Friday evening concerts will be moved to the Music Shed. General admissions to the grounds, enabling overflow crowds to hear the concerts from the spacious Tanglewood lawns, are placed on sale on the day of performance, and Festival patrons are invited to attend a public rehearsal of the Boston Symphony Orchestra next Saturday at 10 a. m., for the nominal charge of $1 for the benefit of the orchestra's pension fund.

Program Changes

First performances at Tanglewood will be given Friday night of the Bach Cantata No. 93, "Wer nur den lieben Gott," with soloists and students of Dept. II (Choral) and Dept. IV (Opera) of the Berkshire Music Center assisting; of excerpts from "St. Sebastian" by Claude Debussy, of Cesar Franck's "Les Djinns" for piano and orchestra Saturday night and of Aaron Copland's piano concerto next Sunday. Piano soloists Vera Francheschi and Leo Smit will also make their Tangelwood debuts.

Charles Munch, music director, announces changes in the concert to be played by the orchestra in the Music Shed at 2.30 p. m. on Sunday afternoon, Aug. 1.

Richard Burgin, concertmaster of the Boston Symphony, who will conduct the orchestra that afternoon, with his wife, Ruth Posselt, as violin soloist, has scheduled the program to commence with William Schuman's "An American Festival Overture," to be followed by Vaughn Williams' "Fantasia on a Theme by Thomas Tallis," then by the Khatchaturian violin concerto, in which Miss Posselt will be soloist. These selections replace the previously scheduled "Chout" ballet suite of Prokofieff and the Dvorak violin concerto.

Previous Changes

Changes in the festival programs previously announced involve the advancement to July 24 of Nicole Henriot, French pianist, as soloist, playing the Liszt E-flat piano concerto on that program, replacing Weber's Overture to "Der Freischutz." On the concert of Aug. 14, in place of Miss Henriot's piano concerto, Mrs. Munch will conduct Ravel's "Le Tombeau de Couperin," and Brahms' "Tragic Overture" in place of the Prelude to "Lohengrin" by Wagner.

Pierre Monteux's originally planned all-Franck concert of July 17 has had Debussy's excerpts from "St. Sebastian" and "La Mer" substituted for Franck's "Le Chasseur Maudit" and "Les Eolides."

We were unable to attend opening exercises of the Music Center at Tanglewood last Sunday, in spite of many delightful associations we have enjoyed in the past with that annual event. Neither are we permitted to attend the opening concert in the Theater-Concert Hall this coming Sunday, when the Berkshire Festival season gets under way. However, it will not be until the Saturday, July 17 and the following Sunday that the Tanglewood season really gets into full swing with big concerts in the Music Shed.

It makes us restless to miss activities at Tanglewood, for until one year ago, we had hardly been absent from a single concert during its entire existence—our first associations with the project dating back to the days when concerts were held in a tent. If especially irked us to be absent on Sunday, for a great many members of the older personnel who have served the project in various capacities almost from the beginning, are this year turning the reins over to younger people.

Among others who are retiring this year are George Judd, manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra for more than a quarter of a century, and Dr. Lewis Perry, chairman of the Music Center activities, both close personal friends that we shall miss.

However one familiar face, among associates of Tanglewood from its inception, still remains. We refer to Henry Dwight of Stockbridge, a trustee of the association, who writes:

"Dear Dave: The Music Center at Tanglewood had its opening exercises this lovely afternoon—450 students met their instructors. Lewis Perry presided, as only he can. George Judd was on the platform for the first and final time. Afterwards the reception in the formal garden, under the finest of Berkshire skies, was as colorful as ever, and you weren't there.

"We all missed you! Tell your doctor that music heals and do come over this summer."

With or without our attendance at the concerts, Henry, our wishes are that this will be the best season yet for all concerned at Tanglewood.

STUDENT CONCERT PLANNED TONIGHT

Lenox, July 10—A concert by students of the Berkshire Music Center will be given tomorrow night at 8:30 in the Chamber Music hall. The program:

Divertimento for String Trio ..... George Green
Sonatine - Vivace, Cantilena - Andantino, Rondo - Vivace
Violin—George Green
Viola—Joseph Pietropaolo
Cello—Camilla Heller
Sonata for Bassoon and Piano ..... Haskel Brisman
Slow and Quietly, Rondo - Lively, Lament - Slow
Bassoon—Isabelle Clore
Piano—Emmanion Diemer
Suite for Violin and Piano ..... Emmanion Diemer
Scherzo, Pastoral, Finale
Violin—Miriam Wexler
Piano—Emmanion Diemer
Eclogue for Three Wood-Winds ..... Claire Polin
Flute—Claire Polin
Clarinet—Kenneth Moore
Bassoon—Robert Martenson
Six Little Pieces for Pianoforte, Four Hands ..... Richard Maxfield
Moderato, Vivo, Adagio Tranquillo, Andante
Allegro Moderato, Allegro con Spirito
Richard Maxfield and Tosai Ichiyanagi
Trio ..... Stefans Grove
Preludium, Fugue, Aria, Rondo
Oboe—Catherine Dufford
Clarinet—Walter Rubin
Bassoon—Patsy Hayes

[152]

Waterbury Republican

Tanglewood To Feature Bach Program

July 11, 1954

An all-Bach program will highlight this week's Berkshire Festival Concerts, at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. They will be heard Wednesday, Friday, Saturday, and next Sunday.

An evening of chamber music by The Albeneri Trio (Erich Itor Kahn, piano; Giorgio Ciompi, violin; Benar Heifitz, 'cello; comprises the program to be given in the Theater-Concert Hall Wednesday. The all-Bach program will be conducted by Music Director Charles Munch, Friday in the hall with two suites performed by a chamber orchestra of members from the Boston Symphony Orchestra. A cantata will be conducted by Hugh Ross. Music of Debussy and Franck will be performed Saturday in the Music Shed, with the full 104-piece Boston Symphony. Pierre Monteu will be guest conductor and Vera Franceschi piano soloist. On Sunday afternoon, Munch will conduct the symphony orchestra and Leo Smit will be pianist in a program of Debussy, Copland and Berlioz.

Evening concerts are at 8:30 p. m. and the Sunday concert is at 2:30 p. m. In the event of rain, the evening concerts will be held in the Music Shed. General admissions to the grounds, are placed on sale on the day of performance and Festival patrons are invited to attend a public rehearsal of the orchestra Saturday at 10 a. m. A fee of $1 will be charged for the benefit of the orchestra's Pension Fund.

First performances at Tanglewood will be given of the Bach Cantata No. 93, "Wer nur den lieben Gott," with soloists and students of the Choral and Opera departments of the Berkshire Music Center; of excerpts from "St. Sebastian" by Debussy and "Les Djinns," by Franck; of Aaron Copland's Piano Concerto. Pianists Franceschi and Smit will also make their Tanglewood debuts.

7/11/54

Berkshire Festival Opens Wednesday

An all-Beethoven program of chamber music will mark the opening Wednesday at 8:30 p. m. of the 17th Berkshire Festival in the Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Claudio Arrau, pianist, and the Bel Arte string trio are the featured artists on the program which opens a six week schedule of 24 concerts.

Friday at 8:30 p. m. Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will conduct a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players in an all-Bach program, with Lukas Foss as piano soloist.

For the first time in Berkshire Festival history, Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon concerts will be given commencing the opening week end, July 10 at 8:30 p. m. and July 11 at 2:30 p. m. in the Music Shed. Mr. Munch will lead the full 104-piece Boston Symphony Orchestra on Saturday evening in the first Tanglewood presentation of Hector Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust," with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society directed by G. Wallace Woodworth participating, and soloists Eleanor Steber (Marguerite), David Poleri (Faust); Martial Singher (Mephistopheles) and Donald Gramm (Brander).

Sunday afternoon guest conductor Pierre Monteux will conduct the full Boston Symphony in an all-Beethoven program, with Claudio Arrau as piano soloist, the occasion marking the 30th anniversary of Mr. Arrau's first appearance with the orchestra which was then under the baton of Mr. Monteux.

To accommodate its growing crowds of music lovers, the 1954 Berkshire Festival has been increased in scope within its six-week framework: 12 Shed concerts instead of last year's 9; Bach-Mozart concerts which last summer were concentrated in the festival's first three week ends this year are to be held each Friday evening, and a new series has been inaugurated of six Wednesday evening chamber music programs, a total of 24 concerts in all.

Berkshire Music Calendar

Plus Nearby Summer Theaters and the Dance

HOW TO GET THERE: Tanglewood, on Route 183 between Stockbridge (via Routes 102 and 183) and Lenox (via Route 183 from center of town); South Mountain, on Route 7 just south of Pittsfield; Music Mountain, off Route 7 in Falls Village, Conn.; Berkshire Playhouse, off Route 7 on Route 102 near center of Stockbridge; Malden Bridge Playhouse, on Route 66 between Chatham and Pittsfield-Albany road (Route 20); Jacob's Pillow, off Jacob's Ladder section of Route 20 in the village of West Becket.

Monday, July 12

Berkshire Playhouse

Opening night, performances every evening through Saturday. Curtain time 8:45 p.m. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday at 2:30 p.m. Paul Lipson in

"My Three Angels"

Monday, July 19

Berkshire Playhouse

Opening night, performances every evening through Saturday. Curtain time 8:45 p.m. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday at 2:30 p.m. Rex O'Malley in

"The Ghost Train"

Monday, July 26

Berkshire Playhouse

Opening night, performances every evening through Saturday. Curtain time 8:45 p.m. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday at 2:30 p.m. Gaye Jordan and William Roerick in

"Madam, Will You Walk?"

Monday, August 2

Berkshire Playhouse

Opening night, performances every evening through Saturday. Curtain time 8:45 p.m. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday at 2:30 p.m. Anna Russell in

"Traveler's Joy"

Tanglewood

Opera, Theater-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m. Dept. IV. Friends program; special tickets required.

"The Tender Land" Copland

Monday, August 9

Berkshire Playhouse

Opening night, performances every evening through Saturday. Curtain time 8:45 p.m. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday at 2:30 p.m. Carol Stone in

"The Iron Gate"

Monday, August 16

Berkshire Playhouse

Opening night, performances every evening through Saturday. Curtain time 8:45 p.m. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday at 2:30 p.m. William Roerick in

"Charlie's Aunt"

Monday, August 23

Berkshire Playhouse

Opening night, performances every evening through Saturday. Curtain time 8:45 p.m. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday at 2:30 p.m. Betty Field in

"Ethan Frome"

Tuesday, July 13

Malden Bridge Playhouse

Opening night, performances every evening through Sunday. Curtain time 8:45 p.m. except Sunday at 7 p.m.

"My Three Angels"

Folk-Music Workshop

Festival concert, Lenox Library, 8:30 p.m. Fred Hellerman, folk-singer and guitarist.

"The American Scene"

Tuesday, July 20

Malden Bridge Playhouse

Opening night, performances every evening through Sunday. Curtain time 8:45 p.m. except Sunday at 7 p.m.

"My Three Angels" (Second week)

Tanglewood

Concert of Chorus and Opera, Theater-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m. Departments II and IV. Friends program.

Folk-Music Workshop

Festival Concert, Lenox Library, 8:30 p.m. Irwin (Lord) Burgess, Calypso singer.

"Songs From the Caribbean Islands"

Tuesday, July 27

Malden Bridge Playhouse

Opening night, performances every evening through Sunday. Curtain time 8:45 p.m. except Sunday at 7 p.m.

"The Country Girl"

Tanglewood

Concert of Chorus and Opera, Theater-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m. Departments II and IV. Friends program, special tickets required.

"L'Amfiparnasso" Vecchi
"The Princess and the Pea" Toch

Folk-Music Workshop

Festival concert, Lenox Library, 8:30 p.m. Suzy Sann, continental singer, and Irmgard Carle, guitar-recorder.

"From the Plains of the Pusta to the Borders of the Seine"

Tuesday, August 3

Malden Bridge Playhouse

Opening night, performances every evening through Sunday. Curtain time 8:45 except Sunday at 7 p.m.

"The Silver Whistle"

Tanglewood

Opera, Theater-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m. Dept. IV. Friends program with special ticket required.

"The Tender Land" Copland

Folk-Music Workshop

Festival Concert, Lenox Library, 8:30 p.m. Richard Dyer-Bennet, tenor-guitarist.

"20th Century Troubadour"

Tuesday, August 10

Malden Bridge Playhouse

Opening night, performances every evening through Sunday. Curtain time 8:45 p.m. except Sunday at 7 p.m.

"The Love of Four Colonels"

Tanglewood

Concert of Chorus and Opera, Theater-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m. Departments II and IV. Friends program.

Folk-Music Workshop

Festival Concert, Lenox Library, 8:30 p.m. Betty MacDonald, soprano; Jerry Silverman, singer-guitarist.

"From the Pastures of Ireland to the Appalachian Mountains."

Tuesday, August 17

Malden Bridge Playhouse

"The Moon Is Blue"

Tuesday, August 24

Malden Bridge Playhouse

"The Moon Is Blue" (Second week)

Pleasant Valley Sanctuary

Off Route 7 between Lenox and Pittsfield. Watch for signs. Trailside Museum open 1-5 p.m. every day; Red Barn Tea Room, noon to 7 p.m. every day; grounds open from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. every day.

Berkshire Garden Center

At junction of Routes 183 and 102, west of Stockbridge. Open Monday through Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Sunday, 10 a.m. to noon and 2-6 p.m. Horticulturist in attendance.

Bartholomew's Cobble

Sanctuary featuring native ferns and flowers, unusual limestone outcropping along Housatonic River. Off Route 7 at Ashley Falls. Watch for signs. Open 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. every day. Warden in attendance. Guided tours and picnic facilities.

Wednesday, July 14

Tanglewood

Chamber music, Theater-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m. The Albeneri Trio.

Trio in B, Op. 8 Brahms
Trio in D minor Martinu
Trio in B flat, Op. 97 ("Archduke") Beethoven

Wednesday, July 21

Tanglewood

Chamber music, Theater-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m. The Zimbler Sinfonietta.

"The Four Seasons" (String Orchestra) Vivaldi
"Apollon Musagete" (String Orchestra) Stravinsky
"Baroque Concerto" Rossini

Wednesday, July 28

Tanglewood

Chamber music, Theater-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m. The Griller String Quartet.

Quartet in E flat, K. 428 Mozart
Quartet No. 4 (first performance) Bloch
Quartet in G major, Op. 18, No. 2 Beethoven

Jacob's Pillow

Dance Festival. Opens tonight for four days. Wednesday, Friday, Saturday evenings at 9 p.m.; Thursday, Friday, Saturday matinees at 4 p.m. Celtic Ballet of Scotland. Emerson and Jayne, dance [illegible]

Wednesday, August 4

Tanglewood

Chamber music, Theater-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m. The Kroll String Quartet.

Quartet in D, Op. 64, No. 5 ("The Lark") Haydn
Quartet No. 3, Op. 22 Hindemith
Quartet in F Ravel

Jacob's Pillow

Dance Festival. Opens tonight for four days. Wednesday, Friday, Saturday evenings at 9 p.m.; Thursday, Friday, Saturday matinees at 4 p.m. Theater Co., modern. Geoffrey Holden and Co., from Trinidad.

Tanglewood

Dept. I Orchestra, Shed, 8:30 p.m. Friends program.

Wednesday, August 11

Tanglewood

Chamber music, Theater-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m. Zino Francescatti, violinist; Artur Balsan, pianist.

Violin Sonata in A major Brahms
Suite in C (Violin unaccompanied) Bach
Violin Sonata in D Minor Brahms

Jacob's Pillow

Dance Festival. Opens tonight for four days. Wednesday, Friday, Saturday evenings at 9 p.m.; Thursday, Friday, Saturday matinees at 4 p.m. [illegible] Strauss

Wednesday, August 18

Pro Musica Antiqua

Festival Concert, Lenox Town Hall, 8:30 p.m. Italian and English music of the Renaissance and Baroque.

Wednesday, August 25

Pro Musica Antiqua

Festival Concert, Lenox Town Hall, 8:30 p.m. English medieval and Elizabethan carols.

History, Art and Movies

Berkshire Museum

On South Street, center of Pittsfield. Hours, Tuesday through Saturday, 10 a.m.-5 p.m.; Sunday, 2-5 p.m.; closed Mondays. Exhibitions, through July, paintings by Lawrence R. McCoy; through August, paintings by Ellen Emmet Rand; through both months, photographs by Clemens Kalischer, miniature rooms by Andrew Zeller, sculpture by Frank Eliscu, Wilson collection of [illegible]

On Route 7 in the center of Stockbridge. Built in 1739 for John Sergeant, first missionary to the Stockbridge Indians. Moved and restored by Miss Mabel Choate as a memorial to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Choate. Open Monday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 12:30, 2-5; Sunday, 2-5.

The Berkshire Festival, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., presents chamber music Wednesdays at 8:30 p.m., chamber orchestra Fridays at 8:30 p.m. and the Boston Symphony Orchestra Saturdays at 8:30 p.m. and Sundays at 2:30 p.m. Tickets on sale at the box office, telephone Lenox 600.

Wednesday, July 7, Claudio Arrau, piano, and The Bel Arte Trio: Beethoven, String Trio in G, Op. 9, No. 1; Piano Sonatas, Op. 79, 110, 57 ("Appassionata"). Friday, July 9: Bach, Brandenburg Concertos, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 5, 6, piano solo by Lukas Foss. Charles Munch, conductor.

Saturday, July 10: Berlioz, "The Damnation of Faust", with the Harvard Glee Club, Radcliffe Choral Society and soloists. Charles Munch, conductor.

Sunday, July 11: Beethoven, Overture to "Leonore", No. 3; Piano Concerto No. 5 ("Emperor") with Claudio Aarrau, soloist; Symphony No. 5. Pierre Monteux, conductor.

N.Y. Times - July 11, 1954

BENEFIT: Berlioz's "The Damnation of Faust" will be presented in its entirety on Dec. 14 at Carnegie Hall. Jennie Tourel will sing Marguerite, Martial Singher will be the Mephistopheles and Jon Crain will be the Faust. The Schola Cantorum of New York will provide the chorus and the orchestra will consist of ninety-five members of the New York Philharmonic Symphony. Robert Lawrence will conduct. The event will be a benefit for the Metropolitan Opera Fund and orchestra seats will sell for $10 and $15. This will be the first complete performance of the work here since Artur Rodzinski led it for the Philharmonic-Symphony Society of New York in December, 1942.

BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL

Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

TODAY, 2:30 P. M., Music Shed, Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Pierre Monteux, conductor (first Francescatti, violinist; Brahms Symphony No. 3; Beethoven, Violin Concerto.

FRIDAY, 8:30 P. M., Music Shed, Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Pierre Monteux, conductor (first Francescatti, violinist; Brahms Symphony No. 3; Beethoven, Violin Concerto.

FRIDAY, 8:30 P. M., Theater-Concert Hall, Chamber Orchestra, Hugh Ross conductor. Bach, Charles Munch, conductors. Bach, Charles Munch, conductors. Bach Concertos Nos. 1 and 4.

SATURDAY, 8:30 P. M., Music Shed, Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Pierre Monteux, conductor (first Francescatti, violinist; Brahms Symphony No. 3; Beethoven, Violin Concerto.

Hall, Chamber Orchestra, Hugh Ross conductor. Bach, Charles Munch, conductors. Bach Concertos Nos. 1 and 4.

Trio in B flat, Op. 97 ("Archduke") ..... Beethoven

Trio in D minor ..... Martinu

Trio in B flat, Op. 8 ..... Brahms

Hall, Chamber Orchestra, Hugh Ross conductor. Bach, Charles Munch, conductors. Bach Concertos Nos. 1 and 4.

Excerpts from St. Sebastian: ..... Debussy

La Mer ..... Debussy

Les Djinns for Piano and Orchestra: ..... Franck

Symphony in D minor ..... Franck

SATURDAY, 8:30 P. M., Music Shed, Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, conductor; Leo Smit, pianist.

Piano Concerto ..... Debussy

Symphonie Fantastique ..... Berlioz

In Brief . . .

The Tanglewood attendance record for the opening weekend can be surpassed as the first piece of evidence that the season was no middle

---

BOSTON, MASS. EVENING GLOBE

JUN 25 1954

SOCIETY: Esp

By MARJORIE W. SHEEMAN

Boston musical tradition of 2 memorable years will be changed this Summer when its famed Pi concerts will be given in series alternated with Tanglewood Aug. 10 inclusive and extended through Three nights and ending in July 5 at 8:30 Monday. Th days of each will be with Arthur conductor a Member of Boston Symphony Orchestra at Berkshire

Berkshire Music Calendar

Plus Nearby Summer Theaters and the Dance

HOW TO GET THERE: Tanglewood, on Route 183 between Stockbridge (via Routes 102 and 183) and Lenox (via Route 183 from center of town); South Mountain, on Route 7 just south of Pittsfield; Music Mountain, off Route 7 in Falls Village, Conn.; Berkshire Playhouse, off Route 7 on Route 102 near center of Stockbridge; Malden Bridge Playhouse, on Route 66 between Chatham and Pittsfield-Albany road (Route 20); Jacob's Pillow, off Jacob's Ladder section of Route 20 in the village of West Becket.

Monday, July 12

Berkshire Playhouse

Opening night, performances every evening through Saturday. Curtain time 8:45 p.m. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday at 2:30 p.m. Paul Lipson in

"My Three Angels"

Monday, July 19

Berkshire Playhouse

Opening night, performances every evening through Saturday. Curtain time 8:45 p.m. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday at 2:30 p.m. Rex O'Malley in

"The Ghost Train"

Monday, July 26

Berkshire Playhouse

Opening night, performances every evening through Saturday. Curtain time 8:45 p.m. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday at 2:30 p.m. Gaye Jordan and William Roerick in

"Madam, Will You Walk?"

Monday, August 2

Berkshire Playhouse

Opening night, performances every evening through Saturday. Curtain time 8:45 p.m. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday at 2:30 p.m. Anna Russell in

"Traveler's Joy"

Tanglewood

Opera, Theater-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m. Dept. IV. Friends program; special tickets required.

"The Tender Land" Copland

Monday, August 9

Berkshire Playhouse

Opening night, performances every evening through Saturday. Curtain time 8:45 p.m. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday at 2:30 p.m. Carol Stone in

"The Iron Gate"

Monday, August 16

Berkshire Playhouse

Opening night, performances every evening through Saturday. Curtain time 8:45 p.m. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday at 2:30 p.m. William Roerick in

"Charlie's Aunt"

Monday, August 23

Berkshire Playhouse

Opening night, performances every evening through Saturday. Curtain time 8:45 p.m. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday at 2:30 p.m. Betty Field in

"Ethan Frome"

Tuesday, July 13

Malden Bridge Playhouse

Opening night, performances every evening through Sunday. Curtain time 8:45 p.m. except Sunday at 7 p.m.

"My Three Angels"

Folk-Music Workshop

Festival concert, Lenox Library, 8:30 p.m. Fred Hellerman, folk-singer and guitarist.

"The American Scene"

Tuesday, July 20

Malden Bridge Playhouse

Opening night, performances every evening through Sunday. Curtain time 8:45 p.m. except Sunday at 7 p.m.

"My Three Angels" (Second week)

Tanglewood

Concert of Chorus and Opera, Theater-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m. Departments II and IV. Friends program.

Folk-Music Workshop

Festival Concert, Lenox Library, 8:30 p.m. Irwin (Lord) Burgess, Calypso singer.

"Songs From the Caribbean Islands"

Tuesday, July 27

Malden Bridge Playhouse

Opening night, performances every evening through Sunday. Curtain time 8:45 p.m. except Sunday at 7 p.m.

"The Country Girl"

Tanglewood

Concert of Chorus and Opera, Theater-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m. Departments II and IV. Friends program, special tickets required.

"L'Amfiparnasso" Vecchi
"The Princess and the Pea" Toch

Folk-Music Workshop

Festival concert, Lenox Library, 8:30 p.m. Suzy Sann, continental singer, and Irmgard Carle, guitar-recorder.

"From the Plains of the Pusta to the Borders of the Seine"

Tuesday, August 3

Malden Bridge Playhouse

Opening night, performances every evening through Sunday. Curtain time 8:45 except Sunday at 7 p.m.

"The Silver Whistle"

Tanglewood

Opera, Theater-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m. Dept. IV. Friends program with special ticket required.

"The Tender Land" Copland

Folk-Music Workshop

Festival Concert, Lenox Library, 8:30 p.m. Richard Dyer-Bennet, tenor-guitarist.

"20th Century Troubadour"

Tuesday, August 10

Malden Bridge Playhouse

Opening night, performances every evening through Sunday. Curtain time 8:45 p.m. except Sunday at 7 p.m.

"The Love of Four Colonels"

Tanglewood

Concert of Chorus and Opera, Theater-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m. Departments II and IV. Friends program.

Folk-Music Workshop

Festival Concert, Lenox Library, 8:30 p.m. Betty MacDonald, soprano; Jerry Silverman, singer-guitarist.

"From the Pastures of Ireland to the Appalachian Mountains."

Tuesday, August 17

Malden Bridge Playhouse

"The Moon Is Blue"

Tuesday, August 24

Malden Bridge Playhouse

"The Moon Is Blue" (Second week)

Pleasant Valley Sanctuary

Off Route 7 between Lenox and Pittsfield. Watch for signs. Trailside Museum open 1-5 p.m. every day; Red Barn Tea Room, soon to 7 p.m. every day; grounds open from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. every day.

Berkshire Garden Center

At junction of Routes 183 and 102, west of Stockbridge. Open Monday through Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Sunday, 10 a.m. to noon and 2-5 p.m. Horticulturist in attendance.

Bartholomew's Cobble

Sanctuary featuring native ferns and flowers, unusual limestone outcropping along Housatonic River. Off Route 7 at Ashley Falls. Watch for signs. Open 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. every day. Warden in attendance. Guided tours and picnic facilities.

Wednesday, July 14

Tanglewood

Chamber music, Theater-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m. The Albeneri Trio.

Trio in B, Op. 8 Brahms
Trio in D minor Martinu
Trio in B flat, Op. 97 ("Archduke") Beethoven

Wednesday, July 21

Tanglewood

Chamber music, Theater-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m. The Zimbler Sinfonietta.

"The Four Seasons" (String Orchestra) Vivaldi
"Apollon Musagete" (String Orchestra) Stravinsky
"Baroque Concerto" Rossini

Wednesday, July 28

Tanglewood

Chamber music, Theater-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m. The Griller String Quartet.

Quartet in E flat, K. 428 Mozart
Quartet No. 4 (first performance) Bloch
Quartet in G major, Op. 18, No. 2 Beethoven

Jacob's Pillow

Dance Festival. Opens tonight for four days. Wednesday, Friday, Saturday evenings at 9 p.m.; Thursday, Friday, Saturday matinees at 4 p.m. Celtic Ballet of Scotland. Strayhorn and Jayne, dance satirists.

Wednesday, August 4

Tanglewood

Chamber music, Theater-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m. The Kroll String Quartet.

Quartet in D, Op. 64, No. 5 ("The Lark") Haydn
Quartet No. 3, Op. 22 Hindemith
Quartet in F Ravel

Jacob's Pillow

Dance Festival. Opens tonight for four days. Wednesday, Friday, Saturday evenings at 9 p.m.; Thursday, Friday, Saturday matinees at 4 p.m. Celtic Ballet of Scotland. Strayhorn and Jayne, dance satirists.

Wednesday, August 11

Tanglewood

Chamber music, Theater-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m. Zino Francescatti, violinist; Artur Balsan, pianist.

Violin Sonata in A major Brahms
Suite in C (Violin unaccompanied) Bach
Violin Sonata in D Minor Brahms

Jacob's Pillow

Dance Festival. Opens tonight for four days. Wednesday, Friday, Saturday evenings at 9 p.m.; Thursday, Friday, Saturday matinees at 4 p.m. Celtic Ballet of Scotland. Strayhorn and Jayne, dance satirists.

Wednesday, August 18

Pro Musica Antiqua

Festival Concert, Lenox Town Hall, 8:30 p.m. Italian and English music of the Renaissance and Baroque.

Wednesday, August 25

Pro Musica Antiqua

Festival Concert, Lenox Town Hall, 8:30 p.m. English medieval and Elizabethan carols.

History, Art and Movies

Berkshire Museum

On South Street, center of Pittsfield. Hours, Tuesday through Saturday, 10 a.m.-5 p.m.; Sunday, 2-5 p.m.; closed Mondays. Exhibitions, through July, paintings by Lawrence R. McCoy; through August, paintings by Ellen Emmet Rand; through both months, photographs by Clemens Kalischer, miniature rooms by Andrew Zeer, prints, sculpture by Frank Ensing Wilson, collection of prints, Stone Age tools, Chinese porcelains, Egyptian

On Route 7 in the center of Stockbridge. Built in 1739 for John Sergeant, first missionary to the Stockbridge Indians. Moved and restored by Miss Mabel Choate as a memorial to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Choate. Open Monday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 12:30, 2-5; Sunday, 2-5.

The Berkshire Festival, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., presents chamber music Wednesdays at 8:30 p.m., chamber orchestra Fridays at 8:30 p.m. and the Boston Symphony Orchestra Saturdays at 8:30 p.m. and Sundays at 2:30 p.m. Tickets on sale at the box office, telephone Lenox 600.

Wednesday, July 7, Claudio Arrau, piano, and The Bel Arte Trio: Beethoven, String Trio in G, Op. 9, No. 1; Piano Sonatas, Op. 79, 110, 57 ("Appassionata"). Friday, July 9: Bach, Brandenburg Concertos, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 5, 6. piano solo by Lukas Foss. Charles Munch, conductor. Saturday, July 10: Berlioz "The Damnation of Faust," with the Harvard Glee Club, Radcliffe Choral Society and soloists. Charles Munch, conductor. Sunday, July 11: Beethoven, Overture to "Leonore," No. 3; Piano Concerto No. 5 ("Emperor") with Claudio Aarrau, soloist; Symphony No. 5. Pierre Monteux, conductor.

BENEFIT: Berlioz's "The Damnation of Faust" will be presented in its entirety on Dec. 14 at Carnegie Hall, Jennie Tourel will sing Marguerite, Martial Singher will be the Mephistopheles and Jon Crain will be the Faust. The Schola Cantorum of New York will provide the chorus and the orchestra will consist of ninety-five members of the New York Philharmonic Symphony. Robert Lawrence will conduct. The event will be a benefit for the Metropolitan Opera Fund, and orchestra seats will sell for $10 and $15. This will be the first complete performance of the work here since Artur Rodzinski led it for the Philharmonic-Symphony Society of New York in December, 1942.

In Brief . . .

The Tanglewood attendance record for the opening weekend can be surpassed as the first piece of evidence that the extension of the season was no mistake

---

TODAY: Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Theater-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m. Dept. IV. Friends program; special tickets required. Shed, 8:30 p.m. Friends program. Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Pierre Monteux, conductor. Vera Francenti, pianist. Beethoven, Symphony No. 3; Piano Concerto No. 5 ("Emperor"); Martinu Symphony No. 1.

SATURDAY: 8:30 P. M., Music Shed, Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Pierre Monteux, conductor. Vera Francenti, pianist. Excerpts from St. Sebastian; Debussy La Mer; Debussy Diptych for Piano and Orchestra; Franck Symphony in D minor. Theater-Concert Hall, 8:30 P. M. Dept. IV. Friends program; special tickets required. Brahms Trio in B flat, Op. 8; Martinu Trio in D; Beethoven Trio in B flat, Op. 97 ("Archduke").

FRIDAY: 8:30 P. M., Music Shed, Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Pierre Monteux, conductor. Vera Francenti, pianist. Excerpts from St. Sebastian; Debussy La Mer; Debussy Diptych for Piano and Orchestra; Franck Symphony in D minor. Theater-Concert Hall, 8:30 P. M. Dept. I. Friends program. Bach program by Chamber Orchestra conducted by Hugh Ross and 4; Beethoven Trio in B flat, Op. 97 ("Archduke").

TODAY, SUNDAY, MONDAY: Music Shed, Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Pierre Monteux, conductor. Vera Francenti, pianist. Beethoven, Symphony No. 3; Piano Concerto No. 5 ("Emperor"); Martinu Symphony No. 1.

NEXT SUNDAY: 2:30 P. M., Music Shed, Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Pierre Monteux, conductor; Leo Smit, pianist. Debussy Piano Concerto; Debussy Symphonie Fantastique; Berlioz

---

N.Y. Times - July 11, 1954

[153]

TIGHT BINDING

BOSTON, MASS. EVENING GLOBE

JUN 25 1954

SOCIETY: Esp

By MARJORIE W. SHERMAN

Boston musical tradition of 2 enjoyable years will be changed this Summer when its famed Es pianale concerts will be given in series alternated with Tanglewood Aug. 10 and extended through These nights at Tanglewood Memorial Shed concerts at the Esplanade will open on July 5 at 8:30 Mondays, Thursdays and Fridays of each week. Fiedler and conductor Arthur Fiedler and members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra will be given with Arthur Fiedler conducting. Members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra will be heard in concerts at the Esplanade on Mondays, Thursdays and Fridays at 8:30 p.m. Saturday matinees at 4 p.m. Friday and Saturday evenings at 9 p.m. Alexander Hilsberg will be the conductor for the Esplanade concerts. Theater Co., modern. Geoffrey Holden and Co., from Trinidad.

Tanglewood

Dept. I Orchestra, Shed, 8:30 p.m. Friends program.

Tanglewood

Dept. I Orchestra, Shed, 8:30 p.m. Friends program.

Strauss

Berkshire Music Calendar

Plus Nearby Summer Theaters and the Dance

HOW TO GET THERE: Tanglewood, on Route 183 between Stockbridge (via Routes 102 and 183) and Lenox (via Route 183 from center of town); South Mountain, on Route 7 just south of Pittsfield; Music Mountain, off Route 7 in Falls Village, Conn.; Berkshire Playhouse, off Route 7 on Route 102 near center of Stockbridge; Malden Bridge Playhouse, on Route 66 between Chatham and Pittsfield-Albany road (Route 20); Jacob's Pillow, off Jacob's Ladder section of Route 20 in the village of West Becket.

Monday, July 12

Berkshire Playhouse

Opening night, performances every evening through Saturday. Curtain time 8:45 p.m. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday at 2:30 p.m. Paul Lipson in

"My Three Angels"

Monday, July 19

Berkshire Playhouse

Opening night, performances every evening through Saturday. Curtain time 8:45 p.m. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday at 2:30 p.m. Rex O'Malley in

"The Ghost Train"

Monday, July 26

Berkshire Playhouse

Opening night, performances every evening through Saturday. Curtain time 8:45 p.m. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday at 2:30 p.m. Gaye Jordan and William Roerick in

"Madam, Will You Walk?"

Monday, August 2

Berkshire Playhouse

Opening night, performances every evening through Saturday. Curtain time 8:45 p.m. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday at 2:30 p.m. Anna Russell in

"Traveler's Joy"

Tanglewood

Opera, Theater-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m. Dept. IV. Friends program; special tickets required.

"The Tender Land" Copland

Monday, August 9

Berkshire Playhouse

Opening night, performances every evening through Saturday. Curtain time 8:45 p.m. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday at 2:30 p.m. Carol Stone in

"The Iron Gate"

Monday, August 16

Berkshire Playhouse

Opening night, performances every evening through Saturday. Curtain time 8:45 p.m. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday at 2:30 p.m. William Roerick in

"Charlie's Aunt"

Monday, August 23

Berkshire Playhouse

Opening night, performances every evening through Saturday. Curtain time 8:45 p.m. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday at 2:30 p.m. Betty Field in

"Ethan Frome"

Tuesday, July 13

Malden Bridge Playhouse

Opening night, performances every evening through Sunday. Curtain time 8:45 p.m. except Sunday at 7 p.m.

"My Three Angels"

Folk-Music Workshop

Festival concert, Lenox Library, 8:30 p.m. Fred Hellerman, folk-singer and guitarist.

"The American Scene"

Tuesday, July 20

Malden Bridge Playhouse

Opening night, performances every evening through Sunday. Curtain time 8:45 p.m. except Sunday at 7 p.m.

"My Three Angels"
(Second week)

Tanglewood

Concert of Chorus and Opera, Theater-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m. Departments II and IV. Friends program.

Folk-Music Workshop

Festival Concert, Lenox Library, 8:30 p.m. Irwin (Lord) Burgess, Calypso singer.

"Songs From the Caribbean Islands"

Tuesday, July 27

Malden Bridge Playhouse

Opening night, performances every evening through Sunday. Curtain time 8:45 p.m. except Sunday at 7 p.m.

"The Country Girl"

Tanglewood

Concert of Chorus and Opera, Theater-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m. Departments II and IV. Friends program, special tickets required.

"L'Amfiparnasso" Vecchi
"The Princess and the Pea" Toch

Folk-Music Workshop

Festival concert, Lenox Library, 8:30 p.m. Suzy Sann, continental singer, and Irmgard Carle, guitar-recorder.

"From the Plains of the Pusta to the Borders of the Seine"

Tuesday, August 3

Malden Bridge Playhouse

Opening night, performances every evening through Sunday. Curtain time 8:45 except Sunday at 7 p.m.

"The Silver Whistle"

Tanglewood

Opera, Theater-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m. Dept. IV. Friends program with special ticket required.

"The Tender Land" Copland

Folk-Music Workshop

Festival Concert, Lenox Library, 8:30 p.m. Richard Dyer-Bennet, tenor-guitarist.

"20th Century Troubadour"

Tuesday, August 10

Malden Bridge Playhouse

Opening night, performances every evening through Sunday. Curtain time 8:45 p.m. except Sunday at 7 p.m.

"The Love of Four Colonels"

Tanglewood

Concert of Chorus and Opera, Theater-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m. Departments II and IV. Friends program.

Folk-Music Workshop

Festival Concert, Lenox Library, 8:30 p.m. Betty MacDonald, soprano; Jerry Silverman, singer-guitarist.

"From the Pastures of Ireland to the Appalachian Mountains."

Tuesday, August 17

Malden Bridge Playhouse

"The Moon Is Blue"

Tuesday, August 24

Malden Bridge Playhouse

"The Moon Is Blue"
(Second week)

Pleasant Valley Sanctuary

Off Route 7 between Lenox and Pittsfield. Watch for signs. Trailside Museum open 1-5 p.m. every day; Red Barn Tea Room, noon to 7 p.m. every day; grounds open from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. every day.

Berkshire Garden Center

At junction of Routes 183 and 102, west of Stockbridge. Open Monday through Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Sunday, 10 a.m. to noon and 2-6 p.m. Horticulturist in attendance.

Bartholomew's Cobble

Sanctuary featuring native ferns and flowers, unusual limestone outcropping along Housatonic River. Off Route 7 at Ashley Falls. Watch for signs. Open 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. every day. Warden in attendance. Guided tours and picnic facilities.

Wednesday, July 14

Tanglewood

Chamber music, Theater-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m. The Albeneri Trio.

Trio in B, Op. 8 Brahms
Trio in D minor Martinu
Trio in E flat, Op. 97 ("Archduke") Beethoven

Jacob's Pillow

Dance Festival. Opens tonight for four days. Wednesday, Friday, Saturday evenings at 9 p.m.; Thursday, Friday, Saturday matinees at 4 p.m. Alexandra Danilova and partners, ballet. Theater Co., modern. Geoffrey Holden and Co., from Trinidad.

Wednesday, July 21

Tanglewood

Chamber music, Theater-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m. The Zimbler Sinfonietta.

"The Four Seasons" (String Orchestra) Vivaldi
"Apollon Musagete" (String Orchestra) Stravinsky
"Baroque Concerto" Rossini

Tanglewood

Dept. I Orchestra, Shed, 8:30 p.m. Friends program.

Wednesday, July 28

Tanglewood

Chamber music, Theater-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m. The Griller String Quartet.

Quartet in E flat, K. 428 Mozart
Quartet No. 4 (first performance) Bloch
Quartet in G major, Op. 18, No. 2 Beethoven

Jacob's Pillow

Dance Festival. Opens tonight for four days. Wednesday, Friday, Saturday evenings at 9 p.m.; Thursday, Friday, Saturday matinees at 4 p.m. Celtic Ballet of Scotland. Emerson and Jayne, dance soloists.

Wednesday, August 4

Tanglewood

Chamber music, Theater-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m. The Kroll String Quartet.

Quartet in D, Op. 64, No. 5 ("The Lark") Haydn
Quartet No. 3, Op. 22 Hindemith
Quartet in F Ravel

Jacob's Pillow

Dance Festival. Opens tonight for four days. Wednesday, Friday, Saturday evenings at 9 p.m.; Thursday, Friday, Saturday matinees at 4 p.m. Celtic Ballet of Scotland. Emerson and Jayne, dance soloists.

Wednesday, August 11

Tanglewood

Chamber music, Theater-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m. Zino Francescatti, violinist; Artur Balsan, pianist.

Violin Sonata in A major Brahms
Suite in C (Violin unaccompanied) Bach
Violin Sonata in D Minor Brahms

Jacob's Pillow

Dance Festival. Opens tonight for four days. Wednesday, Friday, Saturday evenings at 9 p.m.; Thursday, Friday, Saturday matinees at 4 p.m. Strauss

Wednesday, August 18

Pro Musica Antiqua

Festival Concert, Lenox Town Hall, 8:30 p.m. Italian and English music of the Renaissance and Baroque.

History, Art and Movies

Berkshire Museum

On South Street, center of Pittsfield. Hours, Tuesday through Saturday, 10 a.m.-5 p.m.; Sunday, 2-5 p.m.; closed Mondays. Exhibitions, through July, paintings by Lawrence R. McCoy; through August, paintings by Ellen Emmet Rand; through both months, photographs by Clemens Kalischer, miniature rooms by Andrew Zenoff, furniture from the Berkshire Museum collection, Indian artifacts, Egyptian mummy, fighting fishes, reptiles, etc.

Wednesday, August 25

Pro Musica Antiqua

Festival Concert, Lenox Town Hall, 8:30 p.m. English medieval and Elizabethan carols.

On Route 7 in the center of Stockbridge. Built in 1739 for John Sergeant, first missionary to the Stockbridge Indians. Moved and restored by Miss Mabel Choate as a memorial to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Choate. Open Monday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 12:30, 2-6; Sunday, 2-6.

---

[153]

N.Y. Times - July 11, 1954

BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL

Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

TODAY, 2:30 P. M. Music Shed, Boston Symphony Orchestra conducted by Pierre Monteux, conductor; Vera Francescatti, violinist. Beethoven: Symphony No. 3 ("Eroica"). Bach: Concerto for Violin and Orchestra in E major. Brahms: Symphony No. 1 in C minor.

FRIDAY, 8:30 P. M. Music Shed, Boston Symphony Orchestra. Pierre Monteux, conductor; Vera Francescatti, violinist. Debussy: La Mer. Bach: Excerpts from St. Sebastian Passion. Brahms: Concerto for Violin and Orchestra in D major. Debussy: Symphonie Fantastique.

SATURDAY, 8:30 P. M. Music Shed, Boston Symphony Orchestra. Charles Munch, conductor. Debussy: La Mer. Brahms: Symphony No. 1 in C minor. Franck: Symphonic Variations for Piano and Orchestra. Beethoven: Symphony No. 7 in A major.

SUNDAY, 2:30 P. M. Music Shed, Boston Symphony Orchestra. Charles Munch, conductor; Leo Smit, pianist. Debussy: Prelude to the Afternoon of a Faun. Ravel: Piano Concerto in G major. Debussy: Nocturnes. Berlioz: Symphonie Fantastique.

NEXT SUNDAY, 2:30 P. M. Music Shed, Boston Symphony Orchestra. Charles Munch, conductor. Program to be announced.

TODAY, 2:30 P. M. Music Shed, Boston Symphony Orchestra. Pierre Monteux, conductor; Vera Francescatti, violinist. Beethoven: Symphony No. 3 ("Eroica"). Bach: Concerto for Violin and Orchestra in E major. Brahms: Symphony No. 1 in C minor.

FRIDAY, 8:30 P. M. Music Shed, Boston Symphony Orchestra. Pierre Monteux, conductor; Vera Francescatti, violinist. Debussy: La Mer. Bach: Excerpts from St. Sebastian Passion. Brahms: Concerto for Violin and Orchestra in D major. Debussy: Symphonie Fantastique.

SATURDAY, 8:30 P. M. Music Shed, Boston Symphony Orchestra. Charles Munch, conductor. Debussy: La Mer. Brahms: Symphony No. 1 in C minor. Franck: Symphonic Variations for Piano and Orchestra. Beethoven: Symphony No. 7 in A major.

SUNDAY, 2:30 P. M. Music Shed, Boston Symphony Orchestra. Charles Munch, conductor; Leo Smit, pianist. Debussy: Prelude to the Afternoon of a Faun. Ravel: Piano Concerto in G major. Debussy: Nocturnes. Berlioz: Symphonie Fantastique.

BENEFIT: Berlioz's "The Damnation of Faust" will be presented in its entirety on Dec. 14 at Carnegie Hall. Jennie Tourel will sing Marguerite, Martial Singher will be the Mephistopheles and Jon Crain will be the Faust. The Schola Cantorum of New York will provide the chorus and the orchestra will consist of ninety-five members of the New York Philharmonic Symphony. Robert Lawrence will conduct. The event will be a benefit for the Metropolitan Opera Fund and orchestra seats will sell for $10 and $15. This will be the first complete performance of the work here since Artur Rodzinski led it for the Philharmonic-Symphony Society of New York in December, 1942.

The Berkshire Festival, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., presents chamber music Wednesdays at 8:30 p.m., chamber orchestra Fridays at 8:30 p.m. and the Boston Symphony Orchestra Saturdays at 2:30 p.m. and Sundays at 2:30 p.m. Tickets on sale at the box office, Tanglewood, Lenox 600.

Leader: Harvey Anderson, Op. 7, Claudio Arrau, Earl[illegible]

Single admissions for one performance may be purchased at one dollar each for the following sport for letters presented to at one classmen for participation in 9, No. 1, Juniors, Eg[illegible] awarded as follows: Friday, July 9: Bach-Busoni, Fugue in C minor for organ; Beethoven, Piano Concerto No. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5; Mozart, Piano Concerto No. 20. Friday, July 16: Bach, Concerti for Violin and Orchestra, Nos. 1, 2, 3; Mozart, Concerti for Violin and Orchestra, Nos. 3, 4, 5; Vivaldi, Concerto for Violin and Orchestra in A minor. Friday, July 23: Bach, Concerti for Violin and Orchestra, Nos. 1 and 2; Bach, Concerti for Two Violins and Orchestra, Nos. 1 and 2; Bach, Concerti for Piano and Orchestra, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5; Bach, Concerti for Three Pianos and Orchestra, Nos. 1 and 2; Bach, Concerti for Four Pianos and Orchestra, Nos. 1 and 2. Friday, July 30: Bach, Concerti for Violin and Orchestra, Nos. 1 and 2; Bach, Concerti for Two Violins and Orchestra, Nos. 1 and 2; Bach, Concerti for Piano and Orchestra, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5; Bach, Concerti for Three Pianos and Orchestra, Nos. 1 and 2; Bach, Concerti for Four Pianos and Orchestra, Nos. 1 and 2. Friday, August 6: Bach, Concerti for Violin and Orchestra, Nos. 1 and 2; Bach, Concerti for Two Violins and Orchestra, Nos. 1 and 2; Bach, Concerti for Piano and Orchestra, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5; Bach, Concerti for Three Pianos and Orchestra, Nos. 1 and 2; Bach, Concerti for Four Pianos and Orchestra, Nos. 1 and 2. Friday, August 13: Bach, Concerti for Violin and Orchestra, Nos. 1 and 2; Bach, Concerti for Two Violins and Orchestra, Nos. 1 and 2; Bach, Concerti for Piano and Orchestra, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5; Bach, Concerti for Three Pianos and Orchestra, Nos. 1 and 2; Bach, Concerti for Four Pianos and Orchestra, Nos. 1 and 2. Friday, August 20: Bach, Concerti for Violin and Orchestra, Nos. 1 and 2; Bach, Concerti for Two Violins and Orchestra, Nos. 1 and 2; Bach, Concerti for Piano and Orchestra, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5; Bach, Concerti for Three Pianos and Orchestra, Nos. 1 and 2; Bach, Concerti for Four Pianos and Orchestra, Nos. 1 and 2. Friday, August 27: Bach, Concerti for Violin and Orchestra, Nos. 1 and 2; Bach, Concerti for Two Violins and Orchestra, Nos. 1 and 2; Bach, Concerti for Piano and Orchestra, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5; Bach, Concerti for Three Pianos and Orchestra, Nos. 1 and 2; Bach, Concerti for Four Pianos and Orchestra, Nos. 1 and 2.

In Brief . . .

The Tanglewood attendance [illegible] the opening weekend [illegible] as the first piece of [illegible] extension of the season [illegible]

BOSTON, MASS. EVENING GLOBE

JUL 25 1954

SOCIETY: Esp

By MARJORIE W. SHERMAN

Boston musical tradition of 2 enjoyable years will be changed this Summer when its famed Es[illegible] series, alternated with Tanglewood concerts and extended through Aug. 10 instead of ending in July. These nights at the Esplanade Memorial Bowl concerts at the Hatch 5 at 8:30 Mondays, Thursdays and Fridays of each week with Arthur conductor and Members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra on the stand. Boston Symphony Orchestra Berkshire Festival Thursdays to the Tanglewood, returning

TIGHT BINDING

("Archduke") Beethoven

"Baroque Concerto" Rossini

Quartet No. 4 (first performance) Bloch
Quartet in G major, Op. 18, No. 2 Beethoven

Jacob's Pillow

Dance Festival. Opens tonight for four days. Wednesday, Friday, Saturday evenings at 9 p.m.; Thursday, Friday, Saturday matinees at 4 p.m. Celtic Ballet of Scotland. Emerson and Jayne, dance satirists.

Jacob's Pillow

Dance Festival. Opens tonight for four days. Wednesday, Friday, Saturday evenings at 9 p.m.; Thursday, Friday, Saturday matinees at 4 p.m. Celtic Ballet of Scotland. Emerson and Jayne, dance satirists.

Violin Sonata in D Minor Brahms

Jacob's Pillow

Dance Festival. Opens tonight for four days. Wednesday, Friday, Saturday evenings at 9 p.m.; Thursday, Friday, Saturday matinees at 4 p.m. Celtic Ballet of Scotland. Ram Gopal, Hindu dancer.

History, Art and Movies

Berkshire Museum

On South Street, center of Pittsfield. Hours, Tuesday through Saturday, 10 a.m.-5 p.m.; Sunday, 2-5 p.m.; closed Mondays. Exhibitions, through July, paintings by Lawrence R. McCoy; through August, paintings by Ellen Emmet Rand; through both months, photographs by Clemens Kalischer, miniature rooms by Andrew Zenorini, sculpture by Franc Epping, Wilson collection of etchings, engravings and lithographs of famous composers (in cooperation with the Boston Symphony Orchestra); Aug. 3-31, Civil War photographs by Mathew Brady.

Saturday matinees at 4 p.m., Friday and Saturday evenings at 9 p.m.
Alexandra Danilova and partners, ballet.
Charles Weldman and Dance Theater Co., modern.
Geoffrey Holden and Co., from Trinidad.

Tanglewood

Dept. I Orchestra, Shed, 8:30 p.m. Friends program.

Saturday matinees at 4 p.m. Friday and Saturday evenings at 9 p.m.
The Lester Horton Dance Theater of California

Tanglewood

Dept. I Orchestra, Shed, 8:30 p.m. Friends program.

Symphony in B flat K.319 Mozart
"Mother Goose" Suite Ravel
"Der Burger als Edelmann" Strauss

and "The White Tower", Aug. 18-24. "Fan Fan the Tulip," with Gina Lollobrigida; Aug. 25-28, to be announced.

Mission House

On Route 7 in the center of Stockbridge. Built in 1739 for John Sergeant, first missionary to the Stockbridge Indians. Moved and restored by Miss Mabel Choate as a memorial to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Choate. Open Monday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 12:30, 2-6; Sunday, 2-6.

Friday, July 16

Tanglewood

Chamber Orchestra, Theater-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m. Conductors, Charles Munch and Hugh Ross.
Cantata No. 93 "Wer nur den lieben Gott" Bach
Suites Nos. 1 and 4 Bach

Friday, July 23

Tanglewood

Chamber Orchestra, Theater-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m. Conductors, Charles Munch and Hugh Ross.
Concerto Grosso for Strings, Op. 6, No. 4 Handel
Symphony No. 100, "Military" Haydn
"Nelson" Mass Haydn

Friday, July 30

Tanglewood

Chamber Orchestra, Theater-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m. Conductor, Charles Munch; soloist, Doriot Anthony.
"The Spider's Feast" Roussel
Flute Concerto Ibert
Serenade for Eight Winds K.388 Mozart
"Paris" Symphony K.297 Mozart

Friday, August 6

Tanglewood

Chamber Orchestra, Theater-Concert Hall, 8:30 p.m. Conductor, Lukas Foss; soloist, Seymour Lipkin.
"Pulcinella" (complete) Stravinsky
Piano Concerto in B flat, K.450 Mozart
"Idomeneo" (excerpts) with chorus and soloists Mozart

Friday, August 13

Tanglewood

Tanglewood on Parade.

(Program to be announced)

Friday, August 20

Jacob's Pillow

Dance Festival. Opens today for two days. Friday and Saturday matinees at 4 p.m., Friday and Saturday evenings at 9 p.m. Negro Dance Theater.
Grace and Kurt Graff.
Ram Gopal, Hindu dancer.

Friday, August 27

Jacob's Pillow

Dance Festival. Opens today for two days. Friday and Saturday matinees at 4 p.m.; Friday and Saturday evenings at 9 p.m.
Yurek Lazowski, character ballet.
Pearl Lang and Co.
Lotte Goslar.

Saturday, July 17

Tanglewood

Boston Symphony Orchestra, Shed, 10 a.m. Rehearsal.
Boston Symphony Orchestra, Shed, 8:30 p.m. Conductor, Pierre Monteux; soloist, Vera Franceschi.
Excerpts, "St. Sebastian" Debussy
"La Mer" Debussy
"Les Djinns," for piano and orchestra Franck
Symphony in D minor Franck

South Mountain

Chamber Music. 4:00 p.m. Leontyne Price, soprano; Samuel Barber, piano.

Songs by Handel, Mozart, Barber, Poulenc, Faure and "Hermit Songs" by Barber, commissioned by Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge Foundation

Saturday, July 24

Tanglewood

Boston Symphony Orchestra, Shed, 10 a.m. Rehearsal.
Organ Recital, Shed, 3 p.m. E. Power Biggs, organist. Friends program.
Boston Symphony Orchestra, Shed, 8:30 p.m. Conductor, Jean Morel, soloist, Nicole Henriot.
"Don Juan" Strauss
Symphony No. 6 Prokofieff
E Flat Piano Concerto Liszt
"Enigma" Variations Elgar

South Mountain

Chamber Music. 4:00 p.m.
Alexander Schneider, Artur Balsam.
Beethoven Sonatas for violin and piano Nos. 4, 1, 5, 3

Saturday, July 31

Tanglewood

Boston Symphony Orchestra, Shed, 10 a.m. Rehearsal.
Boston Symphony Orchestra, Shed, 8:30 p.m. Conductor, Charles Munch.
"Romeo and Juliet" dramatic symphony with Festival Chorus and soloists Berlioz

South Mountain

Trio—horn, violin, piano. 4:00 p.m.
Alexander Schneider, Artur Balsam, John Barrows.
Trio for Horn, Violin and Piano Hugo Kauder
Sonata da Camera Ben Weber
(Commissioned by Friends of Music Foundation)

Saturday, August 7

Tanglewood

Boston Symphony Orchestra, Shed, 10 a.m. Rehearsal.
Organ recital, Shed, 3 p.m. E. Power Biggs, organist. Friends
Boston Symphony Orchestra, Shed, 8:30 p.m. Conductor, Charles Munch; soloist, Eleanor Steber. Berlioz program:
Overture to "Benvenuto Cellini"
"Royal Hunt and Storm" from "The Trojans"
"Summer Nights," for soprano and orchestra
"Te Deum" with Festival Chorus and soloist

South Mountain

Chamber Music. 4:00 p.m.
Alexander Schneider, Artur Balsam.
Beethoven Sonatas for violin and piano Nos. 5, 2, 9

Saturday, August 14

Tanglewood

Boston Symphony Orchestra, Shed, 10 a.m. Rehearsal.
Dept. I Orchestra, Shed, 3 p.m. Friends program.
Boston Symphony Orchestra, Shed, 8:30 p.m. Conductor, Charles Munch.
"Tragic Overture" Brahms
Symphony No. 4 Piston
"Le Tombeau de Couperin" Ravel
Symphony No. 3 (with organ) Saint-Saens

South Mountain

Juilliard Quartet, 4:00 p.m.
String Quartet No. 3 William Denny
Quartet in G, Op. 54, No. 2 Haydn
String Quartet No. 1 Benjamin Lees
Quartet in F major Ravel

Saturday, August 21

South Mountain

Chamber Music Festival, Coolidge Series, 11 a.m. and 4 p.m. Kroll Quartet, Chamber Orchestra from the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Pro Musica Antiqua

Festival Concert, Lenox Town Hall, 8:30 p.m. Court and chapel music of Henry V-Henry VIII.

Saturday, August 28

Pro Musica Antiqua

Festival Concert, Lenox Town Hall, 8:30 p.m. Music of the German Renaissance and Baroque.

Sunday, July 18

Tanglewood

Chamber music, Chamber Music Hall, 10 a.m. Dept. I. Friends
Boston Symphony Orchestra, Shed, 2:30 p.m. Conductor Charles Munch; soloist, Leo Smit.
"Iberia" Debussy
Piano Concerto Copland
"Fantastic Symphony" Berlioz
Composers' Forum, Dept. III, Chamber Music Hall, 8:30 p.m. Friends program.

Music Mountain

Berkshire Quartet, 4:00 p.m.
Assisting artists, Walter Bricht, piano; Keith Wilson, clarinet.
Opus 18 No. 2 Beethoven
Trio for Clarinet, Piano and Cello Brahms
Clarinet Quintet Mozart

Sunday, July 25

Tanglewood

Chamber music, Chamber Music Hall, 10 a.m. Dept. I. Friends program.
Boston Symphony Orchestra, Shed, 2:30 p.m. Conductor, Charles Munch; soloist, William Primrose.
Overture to "Beatrice and Benedick" Berlioz
"Harold in Italy", Symphony (with Viola Solo) Berlioz
Symphony No. 2 Toch
Composers' Forum, Chamber Music Hall, 8:30 p.m. Dept. III. Friends program.

Music Mountain

Berkshire Quartet, 4:00 p.m.

(Program to be announced)

Sunday, August 1

Tanglewood

Chamber music, Chamber Music Hall, 10 a.m. Dept. I. Friends program.
Boston Symphony Orchestra, Shed, 2:30 p.m. Conductor, Richard Burgin; soloist, Ruth Posselt.
American Festival Overture William Schuman
Fantasia on a theme by Tallis Vaughan Williams
Concerto for Violin Khachaturian
Symphony No. 2 Sibelius
Composers' Forum, Chamber Music Hall, 8:30 p.m. Dept. III. Friends program.

Music Mountain

Berkshire Quartet, 4:00 p.m.

(Program to be announced)

Sunday, August 8

Tanglewood

Chamber music, Chamber Music Hall, 10 a.m. Dept. I. Friends program.
Boston Symphony Orchestra, Shed, 2:30 p.m. Conductor, Charles Munch; soloist, Zino Francescatti.
Overture to "Alceste" Gluck
Violin Concerto Beethoven
Symphony No. 2 Brahms
Composers' Forum, Chamber Music Hall, 8:30 p.m. Dept. III. Friends program.

Music Mountain

Berkshire Quartet, 4:00 p.m.

(Program to be announced)

Sunday, August 15

Tanglewood

Chamber Music, Theater-Concert Hall, 10 a.m. Dept. I. Friends program.
Boston Symphony Orchestra, Shed, 2:30 p.m. Charles Munch, conductor. In memory of Serge Koussevitzky.
"Requiem" with Festival Chorus and soloist Berlioz

Music Mountain

Berkshire Quartet 4:00 p.m.

(Program to be announced)

Sunday, August 22

South Mountain

Chamber Music Festival, Coolidge Series, 4:00 p.m. Chamber Orchestra from the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Rudolf Serkin and Alexander Schneider.

Pro Musica Antiqua

Festival Concert, Lenox Town Hall, 1:30 p.m. Music of the Spanish Renaissance.

Music Mountain

Berkshire Quartet, 4:00 p.m.

(Program to be announced)

Sunday, August 29

Pro Musica Antiqua

Festival Concert, Lenox Town Hall, 1:30 p.m. Vocal and instrumental works of Salamone Rossi, Hebreo (Mantua 1587-1628).

Music Mountain

Berkshire Quartet, 4:00 p.m.

(Program to be announced)

BOSTON, MASS. EVENING GLOBE
JUN 25 1954

SOCIETY: Esplanade Concerts to Be Given but 3 Nights Weekly

By MARJORIE W. SHERMAN

At Tanglewood, where conductor Charles Munch will open the 1954 season on July 7 with a Beethoven program by Claudio Arrau and the Bel Arte Trio, the Esplanade concerts and Friends of the Berkshire Music Center concerts range from children's dimes to the Esplanade concerts' dollars.

Long-standing friends of the series, which thousands hear free of charge, have been interested in extending the concerts into August because those who are away on vacation in July will be the ones doubling daytime concerts a week. In general, opera choral programs will come on Tuesdays, chamber music Wednesdays, student orchestra performances on Thursdays, chamber music on Fridays, orchestral programs by the Boston Symphony on Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons, student chamber orchestra recitals on Sunday mornings and composers' concerts or forums on Sunday evenings.

Some 400 students are to study under the direction of Mr. Munch and composer Aaron Copland.

[154]

Union July 13, 1954

TANGLEWOOD—Lenox, Mass.

TOM'W EVE.—Alberni Trio
FRI. EVE.—Bach Program (Theatre)
SAT. EVE.—Boston Symphony Orch. Charles Munch, Cond.
SUN. AFT. (Shed)—Charles Munch, Cond.

Berkshire Festival

BOSTON SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA
CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director
Now thru Aug. 15

WED. EVE. CHAMBER CONCERTS—$2, $3
FRI. EVE. THEATRE CONCERTS—$4, $5
SAT. EVE. SHED CONCERTS
SUN. AFT. SHED CONCERTS
$2.50, $3, $3.50, $4, $5.50, $6.50 (Box Seats)
Address TICKET OFFICE, TANGLEWOOD, LENOX, MASS. Phone Lenox 400

TIGHT BINDING

TIGHT BINDING

N.Y. Times
July 11, 1954

64

MUNCH CONDUCTS 5 BACH CONCERTOS

'Brandenburg' Works Given at the Opening Program of Series at Tanglewood

By OLIN DOWNES

Special to The New York Times.

LENOX, Mass., July 9—Twenty-eight hundred people somehow managed to pack themselves into and about the theatre-concert hall Friday evening at Tanglewood for the first concert of the Bach-Mozart series of the Berkshire Festival of 1954.

Charles Munch led an orchestra of some forty players of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a program devoted entirely to five of the six so-called "Brandenburg" Concertos for chamber orchestra of J. S. Bach. There were listeners on the stage back of the orchestra and hundreds stood or were seated outside the hall and answered, by their presence and their applause, the question that a newcomer to the festivals was heard to ask—whether a whole evening of nothing but the "Brandenburg" Concertos wouldn't prove tiresome.

The evening was an unmitigated delight, if only because of the infinite variety, brilliancy and spirit of Bach's writing. If ever learning were worn lightly, and the presence of a master hand wholly concealed by the apparent spontaneity and unreflecting exuberance of the music, it is in these extraordinary pieces. For the six concertos, composed for and dedicated to the German princeling who neither acknowledged them or gave them a designated place in his music library, are highest art and popular entertainment in one.

This is said with cognizance of the fact that this evening's performances were by no means of the same level of excellence. The opening performance of the First Concerto was more conspicuous for rugged energy and over-emphasis than for clarity, balance, or technical precision.

came the Third Concerto—for the strings—a marked improvement in finish, if not unfailing distinction of delivery. The "star" performance of the evening—though the word "star" must be taken in a symbolic sense when writing of a superb ensemble achievement—was that of the Second Concerto, the very brilliant one in F major, with the solo parts for trumpet, flute, oboe and violin.

This was playing of the finest, of a score so rich and exuberant in its workmanship that one wanted to cry "bravo" to Bach after each measure and was reluctant to have him stop, knowing that he could lengthen each movement by another five or ten minutes and simply delight us.

The soloists were Roger Voisin, who played the special small trumpet designed especially to cope with the prodigious difficulties of the high, florid trumpet part; Doriot Anthony, the first-class young woman flutist of the Boston Symphony, now a vital and interesting player, who will

Next in order of succession become more mellow and authoritative with further experience; Ralph Gombert for the first-class oboe, and Richard Burgin, honored concertmaster, for the solo violin.

This was exhilarating, though we find the tone of the small trumpet that Mr. Voisin plays so masterly too shrill for the good of the music. The performance of the Fifth Concerto, with the famous piano—originally harpsichord—cadenza, was the brilliant conclusion of the evening.

Lukas Foss was the pianist; Miss Anthony again the flutist, and Mr. Burgin the violinist. The piano part of these three stands out, as Bach intended it should. In point of musicianship and sense of ensemble, Mr. Foss was wholly admirable. He has a beautiful tone, a sensitive touch and fine sentiment.

It might be said in this last respect that there was a little too much sentiment when it came to romanticizing somewhat Bach's writing, and in not keeping sufficiently to a clear, unsentimental, sculpturesque link in the more lyrical measures.

As a whole, this performance made a conclusion that the audience stormily applauded.

[155]

REUNION ON AN ANNIVERSARY

Bertrand Miles

Claudio Arrau will be soloist at Tanglewood today and Pierre Monteux will conduct. In 1924 when the pianist made his debut with the Boston Symphony, Mr. Monteux conducted.

N. Y. Times July 11, 1954

July 11, 1954
Herald
BOSTON SUNDAY HERALD

25 N. E. Conservatory Students Chosen for Tanglewood Study

The New England Conservatory of Music announced yesterday that 25 of its students had been chosen for summer study at the Tanglewood Music Center.

Six of the 27 opera students and 13 of the orchestra students who will study at Tanglewood are from the Conservatory, while the Conservatory will be represented from Donahue Arthur Godfrey Talent piano, three choral singers and one student of composition.

Other N. E. Conservatory of Music students awarded important prizes for their work during the past year included the year were:

McHenry Boatwright, baritone, Chicagoland Music Festival and the Marian Anderson Award; Lloyd Gold, brilliant Scholarship in Piano, mond Jackson, piano, Island Federation scholarship.

Also, Edward Handel and Haydn Society; Delia Gonzales, piano, Venitus Prize in Cello; Metcalf, baritone, Arthur little, soprano, and Daood, soprano. Teachers of Singing Contests, New Haven.

Vianna Finch, piano, Moe

Buffalo, Lorraine

N. E. Conservatory graduates Rosalind Elias, contralto with Metropolitan Opera Co.; Allan Bergh, place, International Piano Competitions in Bucharest; Christine Cardillo, Metropolitan Opera Auditions Air scholarship; John Moriarty, Scholarship Award, Tom Leighton, composer; Noel Lee Bruce, for composition in Pasadena Carroll, Arthur Godfrey Show of the Air Talent Young Artists' Competition of the Connecticut Valley Piano Teachers Association, piano, Music Education League competitions; and Susan Dolls."

N. Y. Herald Tribune
July 11, 1954

NEW YORK POST, SUNDAY, JULY 11, 1954 20

WORDS and MUSIC

By Harriett Johnson

Berkshire Festival Opens Series

Tanglewood, Mass., July 10—The Berkshire Festival, currently celebrating its 17th season, is not only growing older but bigger. Last year's concert's numbered nine by the full Boston Symphony in the 6,000-seat music shed; six by the Boston Chamber Orchestra in the theater-concert hall seating 1,200.

Spurred on by having had all attendance records broken during the '53 season, with approximately a total of 118,000 music lovers present for these 15 concerts, the festival this year has enlarged on a point of boasting 24 concerts to be presented over a period of three weeks: 12 by the full Boston Symphony in the shed; six Chamber Orchestra concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall; six Chamber Music concerts also in the Latter Auditorium.

Thus, during the current initial week, the festival, specifically, is having three opening nights. Last Wednesday, pianist Claudio Arrau and the Bel Art Trio opened the Chamber Music Series. Friday night a selection of 40 men from the 104-strong present in the regular Boston ensemble opened the Chamber Orchestra concerts. Saturday night the complete Boston Symphony begins its shed series.

Friday's concert, the first I've attended, featured five of the six concertos Bach wrote in 1721 for the Margrave of Brandenburg, familiarly known as the "Brandenburg concertos." Charles Munch, toasting the summer with a white tuxedo, was on deck to lead his orchestra for the entire five. Lukas Foss, pianist composer, was soloist in No. 555, and regular members of the orchestra, including the personable lady flutist, Doriot Anthony, officiated for the other solo portions.

Attending concerts here in the picturesque Berkshire hills—which have not only contributed to the inspiration of a great music festival, but also have provided the setting for Hawthorne to write "The House of Seven Gables" and for Melville to write "Moby Dick"—is, at best, a rare experience.

When one does not agree with the interpretation of the music, as was the case with this reviewer last night, the impact of the experience lessens but it still remains memorable.

Munch conducted the five Bach works (among the most joyous and effervescent the composer wrote) with a driving tension which did not become them. With the reliably high standard of the Bostonians, however, backed by the incredible genius of the Leipsig giant, the music came through with a measure of integrity if not suffused with the splendor it deserved.

This Clipping From
HARTFORD, CONN.
TIMES
JUN 28 1954

N. Y. Arnold Tribune
July 11, 1954

NEW YORK

'Damnation of Faust' Given At the Berkshire Festival

By Theodore M. Strangin

LENOX, Mass., July 10.—A mammoth collection of forces descended on Tanglewood starting Thursday to prepare for a presentation of Berlioz's two-and-one-half-hour dramatic legend, "The Damnation of Faust," which made up the whole of the third Berkshire Festival program in the music shed tonight.

Boston Symphony members began to trickle in late Wednesday night; fifty members of the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society arrived Thursday evening to end, at Tanglewood, a tour that took them to the West Coast and back; thirty more Harvard and Radcliffe singers traveled from the Boston area Thursday and thirty more from the New York area. Between rehearsals with G. Wallace Woodworth, their director, and with Charles Munch, who conducted the Berlioz, the combined chorus has been staying at private homes scattered throughout the Berkshire area.

This morning was the first time since the "Damnation" was given in Boston last season that all the necessary forces were combined. The work (together with other major Berlioz events yet to come this year at Tanglewood) was given in honor of that composer's 150 anniversary. New Yorkers who did not venture to the Berkshires this week end will be able to hear the whole menage in the same work at two Boston Symphony concerts in Cernegie Hall next season and one in Brooklyn.

Tonight's soloists, Eleanor Steber as Marguerite; David Poleri as Fause; Donald Gramm as Brander, and Martial Singher as Mephistopheles, also were at hand Thursday. To complete the aggregate, add 370 students at the Berkshire Music Center, audibly on the grounds, and also, during concert time, the thousands who fill the shed or theater and cover the lawns and immense activity at a Tanglewood week end can easily be pictured. One thousand seven hundred people, no less, got themselves out of bed early for this morning's public rehearsal of Berlioz in the shed under Mr. Munch—it was a sunny morning with clear skies and well worth the effort. Saturday morning public rehearsals are a regular feature of the festival; they are held for the benefit of the orchestra's pension fund.

Last night's chamber orchestra concert, the second event on the festival program, proved again, for an audience of 2,800 (1,200 in the theater-concert hall, 1,600 outside) that Bach's Brandenburg Concerti are wonderful to hear, whether the conductor helps or not. Unfortunately, Mr. Munch, who officiated, did not help often enough. These concerti need the most forthright of accents and steadiest pacing. Mr. Munch changed speed constantly and sometimes played down vigor in favor of a nervous approach rather than a staunch one. Five of the concerti were given: No. 4 was omitted only in a few solo portions of Nos 2 and 5 was anything in evidence like the powerful, joyful old Bach most of us expect to hear in these works.

For this small happy residue, the principals were responsible. They were, in Concerto No. 2, Doriot Anthony, Flute; Ralph Gomberg, Oboe; Richard Burgin, violin, and Roger Voisin, trumpet; in No. 5 Miss Anthony, Mr. Burgin, and Lukas Foss, pianist. All were splendid, even though, at times, Mr. Voisin's specially built high trumpet penetrated through the orchestra too strongly—but Mr. Munch did not raise the orchestra up to meet the trumpet's shrill demands.

But in spite of last night's hazards, the fact remains that Bach has a very broad back; he comes through all sorts of treatment unhurt. And the Boston Symphony Orchestra has wonderful players. They saved the day.

PIANIST-COMPOSER: Lukas Foss, who was soloist with a chamber orchestra under the direction of Charles Munch last night at Berkshire Festival concert.

NEW YORK JOURNAL-AMERICAN
JUL 4 - 1954

ELEANOR STEBER will sing in the opening concert next Saturday evening in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, near Lenox, Mass.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.
HERALD-JOURNAL
JUN 25 1954

Richard Burgin, left, concertmaster of the Boston Symphony, is among guest conductors in the Berkshire Music Festival in "Tanglewood," Lenox, Mass., this summer. Ruth Posselt, right, violinist, in private life Mrs. Burgin, will be among noted soloists during the 1954 season.

Registration Over 375 at Lenox

Special to The Hartford Times

Lenox, Mass.—Student registration at the Berkshire Music Center, the six-week summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in connection with the annual Berkshire Festival concerts, has passed the 375 mark, Miss Edith A. Bossler, Registrar, reports. Last year 345 had registered at this time.

The 12th season opens Sunday, July 4. Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is director of the center; composer Aaron Copland, assistant director; Ralph Berkowitz, secretary.

The 375 students to date include 112 [illegible] two-year-old Department [illegible], the Tanglewood Study Group, which offers advanced students an opportunity to spend their vacations in absorption of music. Lucas Foss department this

[illegible] last summer students, Miss
50 to date, 1
Four from Cuba
Canada, from France and each from Japan,
one each from
Holland, Greece, South
Venezuela and Haiti.

TIGHT BINDING

July 11, 1954
Herald
BOSTON SUNDAY

. Conservatory Studen for Tanglewood Stud

England Conservatory of Music announced fts' students had been chosen for summer s t Music Center.

27 opera students
rchestral students
at Tanglewood are rvatory. Also from
ory will be two Voice of the Air.
oral students had composition
Conservatory's graduates past year included the fol
Rosalind Elias, contralt
Metropolitan
Co.; Allan Bernheim,
place, International Piano C
titions in Bucharest, Ru
Christine Cardillo, sop
Metropolitan Opera Audit
the Air scholarship and
prize; John Moriarty,
Scholarship Award, Italy;
Jim Leighton, composer, F
Rome; Noel Lee, Boulange
for composition in Paris; V
Carroll, Arthur Godfrey
Show of the Air; Carol
Young Artists' Competition
Connecticut Valley; Elaine
erton, piano, Music Edu
League competitions; and Hight, starring role in "Gu
Dolls."

twright, baritone,
sic Festival Con-
Marian Anderson
Gold, piano, Ful-
in Paris; Ray-
, piano, Rhode
tion of Music
l Munroe, tenor,
ydn Scholarship;
piano, Magdalena
n Cuba; William
ne, Aletha Doo-and Saieeda
Teachers of Sing-
ew Haven.
, piano, Moeller

Tribune
11, 1954
NEW

st' Given Festival

did 270 students at re Music Center last
e grounds, and also ert time, the thou
l the shed or theater
the lawns and im
ity at a Tanglewood
n easily be pictured.
nd seven hundred
less, got themselves
arly for this morn
rehearsal of Berlioz
under Mr. Munch—
nday morning with
and well worth the day morning public
re a regular feature
al; they are held for
of the orchestra's

's chamber orches
the second event on program, proved n audience of 2,800
he theater-concert
utside) that Bach's
Concerti are won
hear, whether the helps or not. Un
Mr. Munch, who did not help often
se concerti need the ght of accents and acing. Mr. Munch
ed constantly and
layed down vigor in nervous approach
a staunch one. Five rti were given; No. 4
only in a few solo
Nos. 2 and 5 was evidence like the yful old Bach most
t to hear in these

mall happy residue,
ls were responsible.
in Concerto No. 2,
ony, Flute; Ralph
boe; Richard Bur-
and Roger Voisin,
No. 5 Miss Anthony,
and Lukas Foss,
were splendid. even

though, at times, Mr.
specially built high penetrated through th
tra too strongly—
Munch did not raise th
tra up to meet the ill demands.

But in spite of las hazards, the fact rem
Bach has a very bro
he direct through all
treatment unbent.
Boston Symphony Orch
wonderful players. The
the day.

N.Y. Times
July 10

PIANIST-COMPOS
kas Foss, who w
with a chamber
under the direc
Charles Munch in la
Berkshire Festiva

ion Over 375 at Lenox

e Hartford Times heads the department this s.—Student regis-
e Berkshire Music
six-week summer
sic maintained by mphony Orchestra
with the annual tival concerts, has
mark, Miss Edith
Registrar, reports.
had registered at

eason opens Sun-
Charles Munch,
r of the Boston
director
Aaron
ector;

ate inear-old anglewood
which offers adnté an opportunity
r vacations in ab-
music. Lucas Foss

As against last summe
foreign students, Miss B
reports 30 to date, 12
Canada, four from Cuba,
each from France and
one each from Japan,
Holland, Greece, South
Venezuela and Haiti.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
JUL 2 - 1954

Munch Is Arriving Today

Charles Munch, music director
f the Boston Symphony Orches-ra, will arrive today by plane rom France and will drive to enox, Mass., tomorrow for his eason at the Berkshire Musical estival. He will make his first ppearance of the summer next riday evening, conducting a hamber orchestra of Boston ymphony players in an all-Bach rogram.

BERLIOZ CONCERT IS HEARD BY 8500 AT TANGLEWOOD

By WILLARD M. CLARK

Tanglewood, July 10—Festivities really got under way onight at the Berkshire Music Festival. True, there had een chamber music and chamber orchestra concerts, but to- ight the concert was in the big shed as the entire Boston ymphony Orchestra was on hand and Charles Munch was onducting.

Like Old Home Day

The affair took on all the ear- marks of an old home day, with eople who had occupied the same eats for years greeting their eighbors and everyone looking ver everyone else.

Tonight is one of those magic ights that only the Berkshires can ffer. Starlight and moonlight com- ine to bring about a beauty that urns Tanglewood and the Stock- ridge bowl into a sort of fairyland. total of 8500 persons crowded he shed and sat about the grounds onight.

n opera of tremendous force and brilliance.

For many of us the music of "The Damnation of Faust" has been limited to the orchestral ex- cerpts so familiar in the concert halls. Thus we know the brilliant Rakoczy March, the Dance of the Sylphs and the Minuet or the Will- o'-the Wisps.

To hear the complete opera is something else all together. There are numerous wonderful moments, as, for example, the scene in Auerbach's cellar with its student choruses, and Mephisto's, "Song of the Flea"; the romantic episode on the banks of the Rhine with Mephisto's lullaby to the sleeping Faust, "Voici des roses", and the magical chorus and dance of the Sylphs. Then there is Marguerite's "Roi de Thule" aria, and "Ro- mance", and Mephisto's ironical, "Serenade", and impressive, "In- vocation to Nature." All these, and more, flow in abundance in this magnificent score. Only the final scene, depicting Faust's ride to Hell with Mephisto is less than convincing.

This is a score that represents Berlioz the lyricist, rather than the flamboyant dramatist he pre- ended to be. The opera is rarely eard in this country although it etains its place in the operatic epertoire in France. With such ingers available as Eleanor Ste- er, Martial Singher and David oleri, it would seem that the ork might be presented in its tirity in some opera house in is country.

Charles Munch has a particular finity for the music of Berlioz. is understanding of it is pro- und. Tonight he had a superlative chestra, chorus and a quarter of oloists with which to work. Martial ingher sang the role of Mephisto. leanor Steber was Marguerite. avid Poleri sang Faust and onald Gram sang Brander. The arvard Glee Club and Radcliffe horal Society formed the chorus. There is much delightful choral usic in the opera and it was hand- omely sung by the two choruses, dividually and together. They had ng the work and recorded it, so ere perfectly at ease and fully ware of the requirements. One eard finely modulated, skillfully ontrolled singing.

Skillful Artists

Martial Singher's rather dry oice and its limitations prevented is essaying a malevolent Mephis- o, but he, most of all, purveyed he spirit of the music and sang he text in incomprable style and eautiful enunciation. David Poleri evealed a tenor capable of real ex- pressivity. He colored it skilfully and throughout the scale the voice ame through the orchestra clear- y. Donald Gramm sang his "Song of the Bat" spiritedly and with obust tone.

Eleanor Steber has the perfec oice of Marguerite. The beauty o er pianissimi, the warmth of the Amid all this beauty one heard a superb performance of "The Dam- nation of Faust" by Hector Berlioz. This is the first work of many by this composer which will be heard during this festival in commemora- tion of the 150th anniversary of his birth.

Like many another composer, Berlioz was enamoured by the Goethe poem. He took from the first part only eight episodes which filled his needs and the result was

(Continued On Page 8A)

10,050 at Tanglewood Festival Hail Monteux

By WILLARD M. CLARK

Tanglewood, July 11—Perfec weather and the music of Beethov en drew 10,050 music lovers t Tanglewood this afternoon for th final concert of this first week o the Berkshire Music Festival.

Monteux Is Hailed

They greeted the veteran French conductor Pierre Monteux with af- fectionate enthusiasm. The pro- gram, devoted to one composer only, consisted of the overture to "Leonora" No. 3; the "Concerto for Piano No. 5 in E Flat Major" and the "Symphony No. 5 in C Minor."

Mr. Monteux, now 79 years old, has lost none of his vitality and joy of living. The years have mel- lowed his interpretations and he has learned that the music of Bee- thoven needs little help in express- ing itself. Thus, this afternoon we heard interpretations spiritually rich, gracious, and vital.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra players responded warmly to the demands of the conductor, who was once conductor of this same or- chestra. There was a real and friendly understanding between them. Of the three overtures Beethoven wrote for "Fidelio" and the overture to "Fidelio," the third is by far the most favored. The grave and songful introduction, based on the air of Florestan, was introduced in marvelous tones and the dramatic struggle which en- sued was proclaimed with stunning impact.

Chilean Pianist Excels

Claudio Arrau, the Chilean pian- ist, was the soloist in the concerto. Mr. Arrau was observing the 30th anniversary of his initial appear- ance with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, also under the direction of Mr. Monteux. Mr. Arrau is a pianist of distinction, cool, sure and sensitive. Though his approach to the concerto seemed at times de- tached, he provided some exquisite playing in the lyrical passages and was able to get through the or- chestra when necessary. Mr. Mon- teux and the orchestra built up a mighty edifice whose grandeur nev- er lost the human quality. There was a perfect understanding be- tween conductor and soloist and the orchestral collaboration was little less than flawless.

Beethoven's Fifth Symphony needs little explanation at this date. It always serves to reveal the monumental stature of the compos- er and it remains as fresh and in- spiring as the day it was penned.

The complete understanding be- tween conductor and players per- mitted a performance of transcen- dant beauty of tone and an intensity of passion seldom encountered in our concert halls. There was noth- ing frenetic about the perform- ance, rather its strength lay in its solidity and the calm approach of the conductor. There was no string of effects, but the effects were there, placed there by the composer, and they emerged in a perfectly natural manner.

Quick to realize that they had heard something as nearly perfect as they may ever hear, the audi- ence gave the conductor and or- chestra a wonderful ovation at the close. It was richly deserved.

The first concert of the second week of the festival will be given mednesday night when the Alben- eri Trio will be heard in the Brahms "Trio in B, Op. 8"; The Martinu "Trio in D Minor" and the Beethoven "Archduke trio."

Tanglewood Hears Arrau With Monteux on Podium

By Theodore M. Strongin

LENOX, Mass., July 11.—The fourth Berkshire Festival pro- gram was conducted by Pierre Monteux in the shed at Tangle- wood this afternoon with Claudio Arrau as piano soloist in an all-Beethoven program: the "Emperor" concerto, "Leo- nore" overture No. 3 and the Fifth Symphony. Ten thousand and fifty persons attended, bringing the total festival count to 22,750 since the opening Wednesday night.

Mr. Arrau, Mr. Monteux and the Boston Symphony Orchestra first played together on Feb. 4, 1924. Thirty years gives time for a lot of polish to be applied, and Mr. Arrau gave a scintil- lating, gleaming performance yesterday. Brilliant it was, thoughtful it was not, although a little warmth crept into the second movement. Brilliance, however, is a perfectly legiti- mate facet of this piece.

"Perfect Beethoven"

Mr. Monteux and the orches- tra filled the rest of the after- noon with perfect Beethoven, strong, rich and solid as a rock—a rousing conclusion to the fes- tival's first big week end.

Last night, an audience of 8,500 at the Tanglewood shed heard Charles Munch conduct the third Berkshire festival pro- gram, one that surely could be the peak of this or any other festival: the complete Berlioz "Damnation of Faust," with the full Boston Symphony Orches- tra, 110 members of the Har- vard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, and for soloists, Eleanor Steber, soprano, as Marguerite; David Poleri, tenor, as Faust; Martial Singher, bari- tone, as Mephistopheles, and Donald Gramm, bass, as Brander.

Mr. Munch's "Damnation" was remarkable; no single solo- ist or group stood out, because all levels were so high that there was nothing to stand out from. The many separate virtues of each singer, and they had lovely voices, all of them, were much less notable than the perfect service each one gave to this moving work. Soloists, chorus, orchestra, conductor, all con- tributed to a human experience, not a mere experience in notes (two and a half hours' worth of them). Theirs was the high- est type of musicianship.

To the orchestra fell the major burdens, and it met them all brilliantly. In Berlioz, sounds almost act by themselves, dark ones, bright ones, in all weights and graduations, so much so that the sheer succession of clear sounds sometimes seems to be the composer's main preoccupa- tion.

South Mountain

Mr. Munch kept the sounds going clearly; he did not obstruct them with mannerisms. At times, especially in the first half, a tiny amount of energy was missing, just the amount that, if present, would have raised the roof over this monumental work, and the shed has a big one. But this con- ductor's version of the "Damna- tion of Faust" came very close indeed to being complete, which is perhaps why one missed the critical percentage.

Meanwhile, the Berkshires be- ing festival country, another summer series started yesterday afternoon a shed away from Tanglewood at South Mountain, just south of Pittsfield Alexander Schneider, violinist, and Arthur Balsam, pianist, officiated at this one, the first of six to be given on successive Saturday afternoons in the Temple of Music. Mrs. William Willeke, mu- sical director of the South Moun tain Association and wife of the late famous cellist who worked at the temple for years, arranged the series under the joint spon- sorship of the Library of Con- gress and the Fromm Foundation of Chicago. Messrs. Schneider and Balsam are givnig all the Beethoven violin and piano so- natas in three of the six pro- grams; yesterday's list included Op. 12, No. 1; Op. 96, and Op. 30, No. 2.

South Mountain emphasizes chamber music, and that's ex- actly the kind of enterprise that the audience, 600 strong (scat- tered out on the grounds, sum- mer festival styles, as well as in the hall), heard yesterday. Chamber music is one of the world's warmest areas of co- operation, especially when two fine artists agree to listen to each other during a performance. The two principals at South Moun- tain listened, glistened, phrased and balanced all the way through. It was a most impres- sive afternoon.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
JOURNAL-AMERICAN
JUL 4 - 1954

TANGLEWOOD, Mass.—Special all expense tours to the Berkshire Music Festival here are being offered out of New York by Ski Bird Tours, 2039 Broadway. These trips will begin next Friday and be of- fered each weekend through Aug. 16. Rates include round trip bus transportation, ac- commodations at the Sheraton Hotel in Pittsfield, tickets to the concert or Jacobs Dance Festival and sports and sight- seeing.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
VILLAGER
JUL 1 - 1954

Whitestone Photo

Marcelle Hammond (l), Mezzo-Soprano W. 10th St., who will appear in opera at the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood, Mass., July to Aug. 15, and Sally Hammond Trope (r), pianist, who is at present editing a society paper at Watch Hill, R. I.

[156]

VOL. 91, NO. 163
FIVE CENTS EVERYWHERE
Entered as second-class matter at Post Office at Springfield, Mass., under the act of March 3, 1879

First Concert by Monteux at Tanglewood

THE SPRINGFIELD UNION

SPRINGFIELD, MASS., MONDAY MORNING, JULY 12, 1954
20 PAGES
100th YEAR

THE WEATHER
Fair, Warm Today
Cloudy Tomorrow

TIGHT BINDING

July 11, 1954
Herald
BOSTON SUNDAY

. Conservatory Studer
for Tanglewood Stud

England Conservatory of Music announced its students had been chosen for summer s d Music Center.

27 opera students
orchestral students
at Tanglewood are rvatory. Also from ory will be two-Show of the Air.
oral students held compositions, ...
Conservatory of past year included the fol awarded import-their work during Rosalinde Elias, contralt tract with Metropolitan
Co.; Allan Bernheim,
place, International Piano C
titions in Bucharest, Ru
Christine Cardillo, sop
Metropolitan Opera Audit
the Air scholarship and
prize; John Moriarty,
Scholarship Award, Italy;
Jim Leighton, composer, P
Rome; Nogl Lee, Boulange
for composition in Paris; V
Carroll, Arthur Godfrey
Show of the Air; Carol
Young Artists' Competition
Connecticut Valley; Elaine
erton, piano, Music Edu
League competitions; and Hight, starring role in "Gu
Dolls."

atwright, baritone,
usic Festival Con-
Marian Anderson
Gold, piano, Ful-
hip in Paris; Ray-
piano, Rhode
tion of Music

l Munroe, tenor,
aydn Scholarship;
piano, Magdalena
n Cuba; William
ue, Aletha Doo-
and Saieeda
Teachers of Sing-
ew Haven.
piano, Moeller

Tribune
11, 1954
NEW

st' Given Festival

dd 370 students at re Music Center; su
e grounds, and also,
ert time, the thou
ll the shed or theater
the lawns and im-ty at a Tanglewood
n easily be pictured.
nd seven hundred
less, got themselves
arly for this morn-
rehearsal of Berlioz
under Mr. Munch—
unny morning with
and well worth the
day morning public
re a regular feature
al; they are held for
of the orchestra's ti.

t's chamber orches-
the second event on program, proved
n audience of 2,800
he theater-concert
utside) that Bach's
Concerti are won-
hear, whether the helps or not. Un-
Mr. Munch, who
did not help often
se concerti need the ight of accents and acing. Mr. Munch
ed constantly and
layed down vigor in nervous approach
a staunch one. Five
rti were given; No. 4
only in a few solo
Nos 2 and 5 was evidence like the yful old Bach most
t to hear in these

mall happy residue,
ls were responsible.
in Concerto No. 2,
ony, Flute; Ralph
boe; Richard Bur-
and Roger Voisin,
No. 5 Miss Anthony,
and Lukas Foss,
were splendid, even
though, at times, Mr.
specially built high penetrated through the tra too strongly—
Munch did not raise th
tra up to meet the shrill demands.

But in spite of las hazards, the fact rema
Bach has a very bro
he dances through all
treatment unbent.
Boston Symphony Orch
wonderful players. The
the day.

PIANIST-COMPOS
kas Foss, who w
with a chamber
under the direc
Charles Munch in la
Berkshire Festiva

ion Over 375 at Lenox

e Hartford Times heads the department this s
s.—Student regis-
Berkshire Music
six-week summer
ic maintained by mphony Orchestra
with the annual tival concerts, has
mark, Miss Edith
Registrar, reports.
had registered at

eason opens Sun-
Charles Munch,
r of the Boston
rchestra, as director
Aaron
director;
to date in-year-old
Tanglewood
which offers ad-
nts an opportunity
r vacations in ab-
music. Lucas Foss

mer.

As against last summer
foreign students, Miss B
reports 30 to date, 12
Canada, four from Cuba,
each from France and
one, each from Japan,
Holland, Greece, South
Venezuela and Haiti.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
JUL 2 - 1954

Munch Is Arriving Today

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will arrive today by plane from France and will drive to Lenox, Mass., tomorrow for his season at the Berkshire Musical Festival. He will make his first appearance of the summer next Friday evening, conducting a program of Boston Symphony players in an all-Bach

BERLIOZ CONCERT IS HEARD BY 8500 AT TANGLEWOOD

By WILLARD M. CLARK

Tanglewood, July 10—Festivities really got under way tonight at the Berkshire Music Festival. True, there had been chamber music and chamber orchestra concerts, but tonight the concert was in the big shed. The entire Boston Symphony Orchestra was on hand and Charles Munch was conducting.

Like Old Home Day

The affair took on all the earmarks of an old home day, with people who had occupied the same seats for years greeting their neighbors and everyone looking over everyone else.

Tonight one of those magic nights that only the Berkshires can offer. Starlight and moonlight combine to bring about a beauty that turns Tanglewood and the Stockbridge bowl into a sort of fairyland. A total of 8500 persons crowded the shed and sat about the grounds tonight.

In opera of tremendous force and brilliance.

For many [illegible] music of "The Damnation of Faust" has been limited to the [illegible] excerpts so familiar in the concert halls. Thus we know the Hungarian Rakoczy March, the Dance of the Sylphs and the Minuet of the Will-o'-the Wisps.

To hear the complete opera is something else all together. There are numerous wonderful moments, as, for example, the scene in Auerbach's cellar with its student choruses, and Mephisto's "Song of the Flea"; the romantic episode on the banks of the Rhine; Mephisto's lullaby to the sleeping Faust, "Voici des roses", and the magical chorus and dance of the Sylphs. Then there is Marguerite's "Roi de Thule" aria, and "Romance", and Mephisto's ironical "Serenade", and impressive "Invocation to Nature." All these, and more, flow in abundance in this magnificent score. Only the final scene, depicting Faust's ride to Hell with Mephisto is less than convincing.

This is a score that represents Berlioz the lyricist, rather than the flamboyant dramatist he pretended to be. The opera is rarely heard in this country although it retains its place in the operatic repertoire in France. With such singers available as Eleanor Steber, Martial Singher and David Poleri, it would seem that the work might be presented in its entirity in some opera house in this country.

Charles Munch has a particular affinity for the music of Berlioz. His understanding of it is profound. Tonight he had a superlative orchestra, chorus and a quartet of soloists with which to work. Martial Singher sang the role of Mephisto. Eleanor Steber was Marguerite. David Poleri sang Faust and Donald Gramm sang Brander. The Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society formed the chorus. There is much delightful choral music in the opera and it was handsomely sung by the two choruses, individually and together. They had sung the work and recorded it, so were perfectly at ease and fully aware of the requirements. One heard finely modulated, skillfully controlled singing.

Skillful Artists

Martial Singher's rather dry voice and its limitations prevented his essaying a malevolent Mephisto, but he, most of all, purveyed the spirit of the music and sang the text in incomparable style and beautiful enunciation. David Poleri revealed a tenor capable of real expressivity. He colored it skillfully and throughout the scale the voice came through the orchestra clearly. Donald Gramm sang his [illegible] of the Bal [illegible] splendidly and with robust tone.

Eleanor Steber has the perfect voice of Marguerite. The beauty of her pianissimo, the warmth of [illegible]

(Continued On Page 8A)

10,050 at Tanglewood Festival Hail Monteux

By WILLARD M. CLARK

Tanglewood, July 11—Perfect weather and the music of Beethoven drew 10,050 music lovers to Tanglewood this afternoon for the final concert of this first week of the Berkshire Music Festival.

Monteux Is Hailed

They greeted the veteran French conductor Pierre Monteux with affectionate enthusiasm. The program, devoted to one composer only, consisted of the overture to "Leonora" No. 3; the "Concerto for Piano No. 5 in E Flat Major" and the "Symphony No. 5 in C Minor."

Mr. Monteux, now 79 years old, has lost none of his vitality and joy of living. The years have mellowed his interpretations and he has learned that the music of Beethoven needs little help in expressing itself. Thus, this afternoon we heard interpretations spiritually rich, gracious, and vital.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra players responded warmly to the demands of the conductor, who was once conductor of this same orchestra. There was a real and friendly understanding between them. Of the three overtures Beethoven wrote for "Fidelio" and the overture to "Fidelio," the third is by far the most favored. The grave and songful introduction, based on the air of Florestan, was introduced in marvelous tones and the dramatic struggle which ensued was proclaimed with stunning impact.

Chilean Pianist Excels

Claudio Arrau, the Chilean pianist, was the soloist in the concerto. Mr. Arrau was observing the 30th anniversary of his initial appearance with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, also under the direction of Mr. Monteux. Mr. Arrau is a pianist of distinction, cool, sure and sensitive. Though his approach to the concerto seemed at times detached, he provided some exquisite playing in the lyrical passages and was able to get through the orchestra when necessary. Mr. Monteux and the orchestra built up a mighty edifice whose grandeur never lost the human quality. There was a perfect understanding between conductor and soloist and the orchestral collaboration was little less than flawless.

Beethoven's Fifth Symphony needs little explanation at this date. It always serves to reveal the monumental stature of the composer and it remains as fresh and inspiring as the day it was penned.

The complete understanding between conductor and players permitted a performance of transcendant beauty of tone and an intensity of passion seldom encountered in our concert halls. There was nothing frenetic about the performance, rather its strength lay in its solidity and the calm approach of the conductor. There was no string of effects, but the effects were there, placed there by the composer, and they emerged in a perfectly natural manner.

Quick to realize that they had heard something as nearly perfect as they may ever hear, the audience gave the conductor and orchestra a wonderful ovation at the close. It was richly deserved.

The first concert of the second week of the festival will be given mednesday night when the Albeneri Trio will be heard in the Brahms "Trio in B, Op. 8"; The Martinu "Trio in D Minor" and the Beethoven "Archduke trio."

Amid all this beauty one heard a superb performance of "The Damnation of Faust" by Hector Berlioz. This is the first work of many by this composer which will be heard [illegible] this festival to commemorate the 150th anniversary of his birth.

[illegible] another composer was enamoured by the [illegible] poem. He took from the [illegible] part only eight episodes which [illegible] his needs and the result was

Tanglewood Hears Arrau With Monteux on Podium

By Theodore M. Strongin

LENOX, Mass., July 11.—The fourth Berkshire Festival program was conducted by Pierre Monteux in the shed at Tanglewood this afternoon with Claudio Arrau as piano soloist in an all-Beethoven program: the "Emperor" concerto, "Leonore" overture No. 3, and the Fifth Symphony. Ten thousand and fifty persons attended, bringing the total festival count to 22,750 since its opening Wednesday night.

Mr. Arrau, Mr. Monteux and the Boston Symphony Orchestra first played together on Feb. 4, 1924. Thirty years gives time for a lot of polish to be applied, and Mr. Arrau gave a scintillating, gleaming performance yesterday. Brilliant it was, thoughtful it was not, although a little warmth crept into the second movement. Brilliance, however, is a perfectly legitimate facet of this piece.

"Perfect Beethoven"

Mr. Monteux and the orchestra filled the rest of the afternoon with perfect Beethoven, strong, rich and solid as a rock—a rousing conclusion to the festival's first big week end.

Last night, an audience of 8,500 at the Tanglewood shed heard Charles Munch conduct the third Berkshire festival program, one that surely could be the peak of this or any other festival: the complete Berlioz "Damnation of Faust," with the full Boston Symphony Orchestra, 110 members of the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, and for soloists, Eleanor Steber, soprano, as Marguerite; David Poleri, tenor, as Faust; Martial Singher, baritone, as Mephistopheles, and Donald Gramm, bass, as Brander.

Mr. Munch's "Damnation" was remarkable; no single soloist or group stood out, because all levels were so high that there was nothing to stand out from. The many separate virtues of each singer, and they had lovely voices, all of them, were much less notable than the perfect service each one gave to this moving work. Soloists, chorus, orchestra, conductor, all contributed to a human experience, not a mere experience in notes (two and a half hours' worth of them). Theirs was the highest type of musicianship.

To the orchestra fell the major burdens, and it met them all brilliantly. In Berlioz, sounds almost act by themselves, dark ones, bright ones, in all weights and graduations, so much so that the sheer succession of clear sounds sometimes seems to be the composer's main preoccupation.

South Mountain

Mr. Munch kept the sounds going clearly; he did not obstruct them with mannerisms. At times, especially in the first half, a tiny amount of energy was missing, just the amount that, if present, would have raised the roof over this monumental work, and the shed has a big one. But this conductor's version of the "Damnation of Faust" came very close indeed to being complete, which is perhaps why one missed the critical percentage.

Meanwhile, the Berkshires being festival country, another summer series started yesterday afternoon a step away from Tnglewood at South Mountain, just south of Pittsfield. Alexander Schneider, violinist, and Arthur Balsam, pianist, officiated at this one, the first of six to be given on successive Saturday afternoons in the Temple of Music. Mrs. Willem Willeke, musical director of the South Mountain Association and wife of the late famous cellist who worked at the temple for years, arranged the series under the joint sponsorship of the Library of Congress and the Fromm Foundation of Chicago. Messrs. Schneider and Balsam are givnig all the Beethoven violin and piano sonatas in three of the six programs; yesterday's list included Op. 12, No. 1; Op. 96, and Op. 30, No. 3.

South Mountain emphasizes chamber music, and that's exactly the kind of enterprise that the audience, 600 strong (scattered out on the grounds, summer festival styles, as well as in the hall), heard yesterday. Chamber music is one of the world's warmest areas of cooperation, especially when two fine artists agree to listen to each other during a performance. The two principals at South Mountain listened, glistened, phrased and balanced all the way through. It was a most impressive afternoon.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
VILLAGER
JUL 1 - 1954

NEW YORK, N. Y.
JOURNAL-AMERICAN
JUL 4 - 1954

TANGLEWOOD, Mass.—Special all expense tours to the Berkshire Music Festival here are being offered out of New York by Ski Bird Tours, 2039 Broadway. These trips will begin next Friday and be offered each weekend through Aug. 16. Rates include round trip bus transportation, accommodations at the Sheraton Hotel in Pittsfield, tickets to the concert or Jacobs Dance Festival and sports and sightseeing.

Whitestone Photo

Marcelle Hammond (l), Mezzo-Soprano W. 10th St., who will appear in opera at the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood, Mass., July to Aug. 15, and Sally Hammond Trope (r), pianist, who is at present editing a society paper at Watch Hill, R. I.

[156]

VOL. 91, NO. 163
FIVE CENTS EVERYWHERE
Entered as second-class matter at Post Office at Springfield, Mass., under the act of March 3, 1879

First Concert by Monteux at Tanglewood

THE SPRINGFIELD UNION

SPRINGFIELD, MASS., MONDAY MORNING, JULY 12, 1954
20 PAGES
$15.00 A YEAR

THE WEATHER
By the U. S. Weather Bureau
Fair, Warm Today
Cloudy Tomorrow

CHARM
NEW YORK, N. Y.
JUL 1954

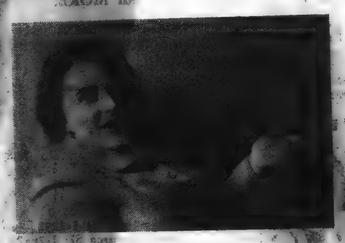
women at work

Dual job: travel fun and traffic safety

CAROL LANE, as women's travel director of the Shell Oil Company, travels more than 60,000 miles a year checking road conditions, accommodations, and recreation areas, as well as testing new ways to make motor touring more fun. In addition, she lectures on traffic safety and helps stimulate interest in cutting accident rates and encouraging driver training programs in every city she visits. And every October, during the Annual National Safety Congress in Chicago, she presents awards to four American women and four women's or parents' clubs for exceptional accomplishments in the cause of traffic safety during the previous year.

The awards are named after Carol Lane, who originated them, and are administered by the National Safety Council through a grant from the Shell Oil Company. Top group honors, a $1,000 Defense Bond and a bronze sculpture by Berta Margoulies, went last year to Florida clubwomen who, alarmed at accidents caused by cars stopping at roadside mailboxes, launched a program for the construction of half-moon drive-offs that enabled mail carriers to pull off the highway when putting mail in boxes.

Though it isn't her real name, Carol Lane identifies strongly with her "company personality." During a typical day, Miss Lane may drive fifty or a hundred miles to talk with city officials about traffic safety, do two or three radio shows, lecture to one or more women's clubs, and appear on a local TV program. Though the pace is stiff, she loves working closely with all kinds of people all over the country.



Opera—from behind the scenes

SARAH CALDWELL learned to love opera [illegible] attended a performance sung in English and staged [illegible] dramatic theatre by Boris Goldovsky, conductor and [illegible] director of the New England Opera Theatre. To [illegible] Goldovsky's assistant and chorus director for the NEOT, she conducts a number of the company's performances at the Boston Opera House and helps restore neglected works to the repertoire. With Goldovsky, she has revised [illegible] many works for NEOT performances. Her careful examination of microfilms of original manuscripts has revealed missing parts in some of the most popular operas. This summer Miss Caldwell will do some musical detective work in France and Italy, where she hopes to turn up missing scenes for Faust, Rigoletto, and Carmen. Sarah Caldwell is on the faculty of the New England Conservatory of Music, has taught for several summers at the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Massachusetts, and is also director of the Boston University Opera Workshop, where she recently staged Stravinsky's Rake's Progress with the composer conducting.

BY AVIS MANNO

CATSKILL, N. Y.
MAIL
JUN 24 1954

Prices For Berkshire Festival Are Lowered

The 15th Berkshire Festival, in which the Boston Symphony Orchestra has participated, commences Wednesday, July 7, at 8:30 p.m. with the first of six Wednesday chamber music concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall. Claudio Arrau, eminent Chilean concert pianist, will perform Sonatas Op. 79, 110, and 57 ("Appassionata"); and the Bel Arte Trio (Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola; and Martin Hoherman, cello) will perform the String Trio in G, Op. 9 No. 1 on an all-Betthoven program.

In greatest demand, to date, is the opening weekend of the Berkshire Festival, July 9-10-11; with Series E, August 7-8 and the Stravinsky-Mozart chamber orchestra program on August 6, in popular favor also.

Many noted soloists will appear during the season. Prices for the shed concerts by the full 104-man Boston Symphony Orchestra, which Music Director Charles Munch conducts, with Pierre Monteux, Jean Morel and Richard Burgin as guest conductors, are one-third less this year, since the Friday night chamber orchestra concerts in the theatre concert-hall are being sold separately. Yet Festival patrons have 12, instead of nine, Shed concerts this summer.

BURLINGTON, VT.
NEWS
JUN 20 1954

Berkshire Festival List Changes In Planned Program

Special Sunday News Report

LENNOX, Mass.—Two changes in the Berkshire Festival programs [illegible] its six-week season, July 7 to Aug. [illegible] nounced yesterday by Charles Munch, music director.

Instead of an all-Cesar Franck program on Saturday evening, July 17 in the music shed at Tanglewood, guest conductor Pierre Monteux will substitute two orchestral selections by Claude Debussy. Excerpts from "St. Sebastian" and the tone poem "La Mer" will replace the Chausseaur Maudit" and "Les Eolides" by Franck.

Munch's program of Saturday evening, Aug. 14, in the shed will offer Brahms' "Tragic Overture" in place of Wagner's "A Faust Overture."

The Berkshire Festival also announced the summer of 1954 will see six Saturday morning rehearsals of the full 104-man Boston Symphony Orchestra, at 10 a. m., on July 10, 17, 24 31, Aug. 7 and 14, to which the public will be admitted at a reduced price with the proceeds for the benefit of the orchestra's pension fund.

PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE
JUN 19 1954

Program Changes Announced For BSO Tanglewood Season

TANGLEWOOD — Two changes have been made in the Berkshire Festival programs to be presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in its [illegible] season, July 7 to Aug. 15, at Tanglewood.

Instead of an all-Cesar Franck program on Saturday evening, July 17, in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Guest Conductor Pierre Monteux will substitute two orchestral selections by Claude Debussy Excerpts from "St. Sebastian" and the tone poem "La Mer" will replace the previously programmed "Le Chausseur Maudit" and "Les Eolides" by Franck.

Mr. Munch's program of Saturday evening, Aug. 14, in the Shed will offer Brahms' "Tragic Overture" in place of Wagner's "A Faust Overture."

The Festival's closing program, Sunday afternoon, Aug. 15, in the Music Shed, has been designated as a memorial to Serge Koussevitzky, conductor of the Boston Symphony for 25 years, under whose direction the Berkshire Festival grew to its present world renown and under whom its summer school of music, the Berkshire Music Center, was founded. For this program Charles Munch will present Hector Berlioz' massive "Requiem," with the Festival Chorus, composed of students of the Berkshire Music Center, and soloists.

The Berkshire Festival also announces the summer of 1954 will witness six Saturday morning rehearsals of the full 104-man Boston Symphony Orchestra, at 10 on July 10, 17, 24, 31, Aug. 7 and 14, to which the public is admitted at the cost of $1 each, proceeds for the benefit of the orchestra's pension fund.

Sale of Festival tickets is proceeding at the Festival ticket office. The office of the Society of Friends of the music school is also open.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE
JUL 4 - 1954

Berkshire Music Season Opening

Special to the Herald Tribune

LENOX, Mass., July 3.—The Berkshire Music Center will hold opening exercises for its twelfth season at Tanglewood here at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow. The speakers will be Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and director of the Center; Dr. Lewis D. Perry, a trustee of the Boston Symphony, and Aaron Copland, composer, who is the center's assistant director. A student chorus under Hugh Ross' direction will sing Randall Thompson's "Alleluia," which was composed for the inauguration of this school in 1940.

William J. Cox, secretary of Phillips Academy, Exeter, N. H., has become chairman of the Society of Friends of the Berkshire Music Center. Dr. Perry is honorary chairman of this group, which supports the center with contributions, and had a membership of 5,472 persons last summer.

NORTHAMPTON, MASS.
GAZETTE
FEB 27 1954

Tanglewood Planning For 24 Concerts

The programs for the enlarged Berkshire Festival of July and August, 1954, have been decided under the supervision of Charles Munch, the music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The increased season has been planned by Mr. Munch to meet the constantly growing popularity of these concerts, which drew a record number to Lenox in the Berkshire Hills last summer. Twenty-four concerts are announced for the six weeks from July 7 to August 15, including six concerts by chamber groups on Wednesday evenings, six concerts by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players on Friday evenings, six concerts by the full orchestra in the Shed on Saturday evenings and six Sunday afternoons.

In the course of the Shed concerts, Charles Munch will honor the 150th anniversary of the birth of Berlioz by conducting this composer's principal works in their complete form. Guest conductors in the Shed concerts will be Pierre Monteaux, conducting two concerts; Jean Morel, and Richard Burgin, each conducting one.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
SUNDAY NEWS
JUL 4 - 1954

Berkshire Festival Lists 17th Season

The 17th Berkshire Festival opens Wednesday evening in the Theatre-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., when the first in the six-week series of 24 concerts will be given. The opener is an all-Beethoven program of chamber music utilizing pianist Claudio Arrau and the Bel Arte Trio. The second concert, on Friday, will find Charles Munch conducting a chamber orchestra in Bach's Brandenburg Concertos Nos. 1, 2, 3, 5 and 6. Saturday night's program will be given over to a performance of Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust," Munch again conducting. The singing body will consist of soloists Eleanor Steber, David Poleri, Martial Singher and Donald Gramm, along with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Chorale Society. Pierre Monteux will conduct the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a Beethoven program, next Sunday night in the Music Shed.

[157]

CHARM
NEW YORK, N. Y.
JUL 1954

women at work

Dual job: travel fun and traffic safety

CAROL LANE, as women's travel director of the Shell Oil Company, travels more than 60,000 miles a year checking road conditions, accommodations, and recreation areas, as well as testing new ways to make motor touring more fun. In addition, she lectures on traffic safety and helps stimulate interest in cutting accident rates and encouraging driver training programs in every city she visits. And every October, during the Annual National Safety Congress in Chicago, she presents awards to four American women and four women's or parents' clubs for exceptional accomplishments in the cause of traffic safety during the previous year.

The awards are named after Carol Lane, who originated them, and are administered by the National Safety Council through a grant from the Shell Oil Company. Top group honors, a $1,000 Defense Bond and a bronze sculpture by Berta Margoulies, went last year to Florida clubwomen who, alarmed at accidents caused by cars stopping at roadside mailboxes, launched a program for the construction of half-moon drive-offs that enabled mail carriers to pull off the highway when putting mail in boxes.

Though it isn't her real name, Carol Lane identifies strongly with her "company personality." During a typical day, Miss Lane may drive fifty or a hundred miles to talk with city officials about traffic safety, do two or three radio shows, lecture to one or more women's clubs, and appear on a local TV program. Though the pace is stiff, she loves working closely with all kinds of people all over the country.

Opera—from behind the scenes

SARAH CALDWELL learned to love opera the day she first attended a performance sung in English and staged as living, dramatic theatre by Boris Goldovsky, conductor and stage director of the New England Opera Theatre. Today, as Mr. Goldovsky's assistant and chorus director for the NEOT, she conducts a number of the company's performances at the Boston Opera House and helps restore neglected works to the repertoire. With Goldovsky, she has revised and translated many works for NEOT performances. Her careful examination of microfilms of original manuscripts has revealed missing parts in some of the most popular operas. This summer Miss Caldwell will do some musical detective work in France and Italy, where she hopes to turn up missing sections of Faust, Rigoletto, and Carmen. Sarah Caldwell is on the faculty of the New England Conservatory of Music, has taught for several summers at the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Massachusetts, and is also director of the Boston University Opera Workshop, where she recently staged Stravinsky's Rake's Progress with the composer conducting.

BY AVIS MANNO

CATSKILL, N. Y.
MAIL
JUN 24 1954

Prices For Berkshire Festival Are Lowered

The 15th Berkshire Festival, in which the Boston Symphony Orchestra has participated, commences Wednesday, July 7, at 8:30 p.m. with the first of six Wednesday chamber music concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall. Claudio Arrau, eminent Chilean concert pianist, will perform Sonatas Op. 79, 110, and 57 ("Appassionata"); and the Bel Arte Trio (Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola; and Martin Hoherman, cello) will perform the String Trio in G, Op. 9 No. 1 on an all-Betthoven program.

In greatest demand, to date, is the opening weekend of the Berkshire Festival, July 9-10-11; with Series E, August 7-8, and the Stravinsky-Mozart chamber orchestra program on August 6, in popular favor also.

Many noted soloists will appear during the season. Prices for the shed concerts by the full 104-man Boston Symphony Orchestra, which Music Director Charles Munch conducts, with Pierre Monteux, Jean Morel and Richard Burgin as guest conductors, are one-third less this year, since the Friday night chamber orchestra concerts in the theatre concert-hall are being sold separately. Yet, Festival patrons have 12, instead of nine, Shed concerts this summer.

BURLINGTON, VT.
NEWS
JUN 20 1954

Berkshire Festival List Changes In Planned Program

Special Sunday News Report

LENNOX, Mass.—Two changes in the Berkshire Festival program [illegible] its six-week season, July 7 to Aug. [illegible] nounced yesterday by Charles Munch, music director.

Instead of an all-Cesar Franck program on Saturday evening, July 17 in the music shed at Tanglewood, guest conductor Pierre Monteux will substitute two orchestral selections by Claude Debussy. Excerpts from "St. Sebastian" and the tone poem "La Mer" will replace the Chausseaur Maudit" and "Les Eolides" by Franck.

Munch's program of Saturday evening, Aug. 14, in the shed will offer Brahms' "Tragic Overture" in place of Wagner's "A Faust Overture."

The Berkshire Festival also announced the summer of 1954 will see six Saturday morning rehearsals of the full 104-man Boston Symphony Orchestra, at 10 a. m., on July 10, 17, 24, 31, Aug. 7 and 14, to which the public will be admitted at a reduced price with the proceeds for he benefit of the orchestra's [illegible] ion fund

PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE
JUN 19 1954

Program Changes Announced For BSO Tanglewood Season

TANGLEWOOD — Two changes have been made in the Berkshire Festival programs to be presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in its ~~six-week~~ season, July 7 to Aug. 15, at Tanglewood.

Instead of an all-Cesar Franck program on Saturday evening, July 17, in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Guest Conductor Pierre Monteux will substitute two orchestral selections by Claude Debussy. Excerpts from "St. Sebastian" and the tone poem "La Mer" will replace the previously programmed "Le Chausseur Maudit" and "Les Eolides" by Franck.

Mr. Munch's program of Saturday evening, Aug. 14, in the Shed will offer Brahms' "Tragic Overture" in place of Wagner's "A Faust Overture."

The Festival's closing program, Sunday afternoon, Aug. 15, in the Music Shed, has been designated as a memorial to Serge Koussevitzky, conductor of the Boston Symphony for 25 years, under whose direction the Berkshire Festival grew to its present world renown and under whom its summer school of music, the Berkshire Music Center, was founded. For this program Charles Munch will present Hector Berlioz' massive "Requiem," with the Festival Chorus, composed of students of the Berkshire Music Center, and soloists.

The Berkshire Festival also announces the summer of 1954 will witness six Saturday morning rehearsals of the full 104-man Boston Symphony Orchestra, at 10 on July 10, 17, 24, 31, Aug. 7 and 14, to which the public is admitted at the cost of $1 each, proceeds for the benefit of the orchestra's pension fund.

Sale of Festival tickets is proceeding at the Festival ticket office. The office of the Society of Friends of the music school is also open.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE
JUL 4 - 1954

Berkshire Music Season Opening

Special to the Herald Tribune

LENOX, Mass., July 3.—The Berkshire Music Center will hold opening exercises for its twelfth season at Tanglewood here at 3:30 p. m. tomorrow. The speakers will be Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and director of the Center; Dr. Lewis D. Perry, a trustee of the Boston Symphony, and Aaron Copland, composer, who is the center's assistant director. A student chorus under Hugh Ross' direction will sing Randall Thompson's "Alleluia," which was composed for the inauguration of this school in 1940.

William J. Cox, secretary of Phillips Academy, Exeter, N. H., has become chairman of the Society of Friends of the Berkshire Music Center. Dr. Perry is honorary chairman of this group, which supports the center with contributions, and had a membership of 5,472 persons last summer.

NORTHAMPTON, MASS.
GAZETTE
FEB 27 1954

Tanglewood Planning For 24 Concerts

The programs for the enlarged Berkshire Festival of July and August, 1954, have been decided under the supervision of Charles Munch, the music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The increased season has been planned by Mr. Munch to meet the constantly growing popularity of these concerts, which drew a record number to Lenox in the Berkshire Hills last summer. Twenty-four concerts are announced for the six weeks from July 7 to August 15, including six concerts by chamber groups on Wednesday evenings, six concerts by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players on Friday evenings, six concerts by the full orchestra in the Shed on Saturday evenings and six Sunday afternoons.

In the course of the Shed concerts, Charles Munch will honor the 150th anniversary of the birth of Berlioz by conducting this composer's principal works in their complete form. Guest conductors in the Shed concerts will be Pierre Monteaux, conducting two concerts; Jean Morel, and Richard Burgin, each conducting one.

[157]

NEW YORK, N. Y.
SUNDAY NEWS
JUL 4 - 1954

Berkshire Festival Lists 17th Season

The 17th Berkshire Festival opens Wednesday evening in the Theatre-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., when the first in the six-[illegible] of 24 concerts will be [illegible] The opener is an all-Bee-[illegible] program of chamber music [illegible] pianist Claudio Arrau and the Bel Arte Trio. The second con-[illegible] on Friday, will find Charles Munch conducting a chamber orchestra in Bach's Brandenburg [illegible] Nos. 1, 2, 3, 5 and 6. Saturday night's program will be given over to a performance of [illegible] "The Damnation of Faust," Munch again conducting. The sing-[illegible] body will consist of soloists [illegible] Steber, David Poleri, Mar-[illegible] Singher and Donald Gramm, [illegible] with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Chorale Society. Pierre Monteux will conduct the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a Beethoven program, next Sunday night in the Music Shed.

TIGHT BINDING

CATSKILL, N. Y.
MAIL

JUN 24 1954

...s For Berkshire ...al Are Lowered

...15th Berkshire Festival, in ... the Boston Symphony Or... has participated, commen... ...dnesday, July 7, at 8:30 p.m. ...he first of six Wednesday ...r music concerts in the ...-Concert Hall, Claudio Ar... ...inent Chilean concert pian... ...l perform Sonatas Op. '79, ...d 57 ("Appassionata"); and ... Arte Trio (Ruth Posselt, ... Joseph de Pasquale, viola; ...artin Hoherman, cello) will ... the String Trio in G, Op. 9 ...n an all-Betthoven program. ...eatest demand, to date, is the ... weekend of the Berkshire ..., July 9-10-11; with Series ...ust 7-8 and the Stravinsky- ...chamber orchestra program ...ust 6, in popular favor also. ... noted soloists will appear ... the season. Prices for the ...ncerts by the full 104-man ...Symphony Orchestra, which ...irector Charles Munch con... ...ith Pierre Monteux, Jean ...nd Richard Burgin as guest ...ors, are one-third less this ...ce the Friday night cham... ...estra concerts in the thea... ...rt-hall are being sold sep... ... Yet festival patrons have ...ad of nine, Shed concerts ...mer.

BURLINGTON, VT.
NEWS

JUN 20 1954

...rkshire Festival ... Changes In ...nned Program

...cial Sunday News Report

...NOX, Mass.—Two chang... ...the Berkshire Festival pro... ...to be inaugurated by the ... ...-week season, July 7 to Aug. ...

...d yesterday by Charles ... music director. ...ad of an all-Cesar Franck ...m on Saturday evening, ... in the music shed at ...wood, guest conductor ... Monteux will substitute ...orchestral selections by ... Debussy. Excerpts from ...ebastian" and the tone ..."La Mer" will replace the ...eaur Maudit" and "Les ..." by Franck.

...h's program of Saturday ..., Aug. 14, in the shed ...er Brahms' "Tragic Over... in place of Wagner's ...st Overture."

Berkshire Festival also ...ced the summer of 1954 ...e six Saturday morning ...als of the full 104-man ... Symphony Orchestra, at ..., on July 10, 17, 24, 31, ... and 14, to which the ...will be admitted at a re... ...price with the proceeds ...benefit of the orchestra's ... fund.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
SUNDAY NEWS

JUL 4 - 1954

Berkshire Festival Lists 17th Season

The 17th Berkshire Festival opens Wednesday evening in the Theatre-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., when the first in the six-week series of 24 concerts will be given. The opener is an all-Beethoven program of chamber music utilizing pianist Claudio Arrau and the Bel Arte Trio. The second concert, on Friday, will find Charles Munch conducting a chamber orchestra in Bach's Brandenburg Concertos Nos. 1, 2, 3, 5 and 6. Saturday night's program will be given over to a performance of Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust," Munch again conducting. The singing body will consist of soloists Eleanor Steber, David Poleri, Martial Singher and Donald Gramm, along with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Chorale Society. Pierre Monteux will conduct the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a Beethoven program, next Sunday night in the Music Shed.

N. Y. Times
July 12, 1954

...UNCH, MONTEUX ...ONDUCT AT LENOX

...erlioz and Beethoven Share ...Week-End at Tanglewood— ...Arrau Heard in 'Emperor'

By OLIN DOWNES

Special to The New York Times.

LENOX, Mass., July 11—The ...rograms of the 1954 Berkshire ...estival make special observa... ...on of the sesquicentennial of ...ector Berlioz, born in the last ...onth of the year 1803. At least ...ne or more of Berlioz's major ...orks will figure in each of the ...oston Symphony programs of ...he six weeks of the festival.

The first of these celebrations ...as the interpretaion under ...Charles Munch of the uncut ...Dramatic Legend, the Damna... ...ion of Faust," at the concert of ...ast night; and a memorable per... ...formance, which aroused immense ...enthusiasm, this proved to be.

But another composer, whose ...stonishing music, interpreted as ...t was today, is of overwhelmning ...freshness, is honored this week-...end, with almost sensational ef... ...fect, alongside of Berlioz. The ...composer? He is one Ludwig van ...Beethoven.

The Boston Symphony concert ...this afternoon, conducted by ...Pierre Monteux, with Claudio ...Arrau soloist in the "Emperor" ...piano concerto, was devoted en... ...tirely to his music, in such fash... ...on that at the end of the Fifth ...Symphony the audience paralleled ...its demonstrations of the previous ...evening. It sprang to its feet ...and stood for minutes cheering ...wildly after the orchestra had ...finished.

For the benefit of the record, ...t it here be added that the at... ...tendance on Saturday night was ...500, or nearly twice that of the ...evening Boston Symphony con... ...cert of the festival last season, ...and that the attendance this aft... ...noon was 11,000.

...Berlioz and Beethoven were ...ery strikingly juxtaposed on ...these occasions, and their sim... ...ilarities and contrasts thrown ...into the higher relief by the two ...conductors, who so intuitively ...revealed their essence.

It is to be said that we know ...of no conductor before the public ...today who is so fitted by his ...impulsive and dramatic tempera... ...ment to communicate the frenzy ...and the vision of Berlioz's music ...as authentically and convincingly ...as the sometimes unpredictable ...Charles Munch. Berlioz returns ...to us in his pristine intensity, in ...colors that are now subtle and ...infinitely varied, and that now ...blaze under his baton. As for the ...Beethoven, we can only say that ...Monteux, with his wisdom, author... ...ity, profound knowledge and ...sense of proportion, appeared this ...afternoon as the well-nigh ideal ...purveyor of the composer's music. ...It is not possible here to enu... ...merate the many details of ...Munch's interpretation, which be... ...came always more vivid, more ...subtle in coloring and psychology ...as it proceeded. Places in the ...early part of the work appeared ...not to interest him as much as ...the later pages, and here there ...were passages that lacked dis... ...tinction.

But, as the evening went on and ...he became completely absorbed ...in his task, he read the score ...with always more insight, elo... ...quence and authority, and his in... ...terpretation of the orchestra was ...accompanioned by the evident effect ...upon us will upon the singers, the ...soloists, and the splendid chorus ...of the Harvard Glee Club and the ...Radcliffe Choral Society, which ...had been prepared by G. Wallace ...Woodworth for this event.

There were other places, which ...we had long considered sensa... ...tional if not banal, which Mr. ...Munch treated with such imagi... ...nation and understanding that ...they became startlingly drama...

We also heard the best soloists ...we had ever encountered in a ...presentation of Faust." The Mar... ...guerite was Eleanor Steber. It ...was not only the beauty of her ...voice and technical achievement ...in music, which in places has ...formidable difficults, that honored ...the occasion. The emotional undercurrent ...of her song realized singularly ...the psychology of Berlioz's tone... ...poet. David Poleri, the Faust, ...sang superbly, and admirably in ...the French style. That stylic of ...his art reached its artistic per... ...fection in the delivery and ...the enunciation of Martial ...Singher's Mephistopheles. The ...noble role of Brander was treated ...with apt characterization by ...Donald Gramm.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES

JUL 4 - 1954

BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL

Twentieth Season Marks Extension of Plan

By OLIN DOWNES

THE 1954 Berkshire Festiva given by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch conductor, at Tanglewood in Lenox, Mass., will also be the twentieth anniversary of the founding of the Berkshire Symphonic Festival in 1934. In those twenty years the Berkshire Festival has developed from a beginning which was the creation of the Berkshire community of towns and cities within a fifty mile radius of Stockbridge and Lenox to what has become one of the most important and artistically influential music festivals in the world.

In this year of 1954, also, the Berkshire Festival enters upon a new period in its history. In the lengthening of its season from three to six weeks; and in the multiplication of its musical events, which include performances of chamber and choral music and opera, as well as the concerts of the Boston Symphony Orchestra which are the core of its repertory, the festival offers programs of a variety and richness of material unprecedented in its history, and makes these programs more accessible to a greater number of people than ever before.

Extension

In addition to the extension of the season, there will be a new grouping of the week-end chamber and symphonic concerts, a grouping that is so much an improvement over the arrangement of previous seasons that one wonders why this innovation was not thought of before.

In the past there were two series of these concerts, each three weeks in length, in succession. Six concerts of music for chamber orchestra, principally by Bach and Mozart, were given in the first three-week period in the small Theatre-Concert Hall of the festival, with a capacity of 1,200, prior to the three weeks, of three concerts each week, by the Boston Symphony in the Music Shed with its capacity of 6,000.

The programs of the full orchestra given in the Shed attracted the larger audiences, but for some the cream of the festival was the Bach-Mozart series, heard in the intimate auditorium of the little theatre. These two concert series have now been merged in such a way that the six Bach-Mozart concerts will take place on six Friday nights, and the concerts of the full orchestra, now twelve in number, will be given on six Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons. Hence there will be six week-ends of music for chamber orchestra and full orchestra, from Friday night to Sunday afternoon inclusive, with no orchestral feature of the festival lost to those who attend any week of the festival's season.

Long Way

The Berkshire Festival has come a long way since the day when Henry Hadley approached Miss Gertrude Robinson Smith in May of 1934, with the proposal to give symphonic concerts out of doors in the Berkshires. A committee was quickly formed, of which Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge was honorary president, Miss Robinson Smith president, and which included among its officers Mrs. Carlos de Heredia, Mrs. Owen Johnson, Miss Mable Choate and Norval H. Busey. They functioned to such good purpose that on Aug. 23, 1934, Dr. Hadley conducted sixty-five members of the New York Philharmonic-Symphony in the first concert of, as it was then entitled, the First Berkshire Annual Symphonic Festival. That concert took place in the horse-show ring of the Dan Hanna farm in Stockbridge.

Following the second festival of 1935 Mr. Hadley retired because of illness. After consultation with the committee there took place the momentous conversation between Miss Robinson Smith and Serge Koussevitzky, with the result that the Boston Symphony Orchestra became the orchestra of the festival, under the leadership of the conductor whose international pre-eminence in his field, breadth of vision, and enthusiasm for a great constructive undertaking speedily placed the Berkshire Festival on the plane of artistic eminence that it now occupies.

Given in Tent

The third annual festival, under Koussevitzky's leadership, was given in a tent sheltering five thousand on the estate of Mrs. Margaret Emerson. Later, in the same year of 1936, Mrs. Gorham Brooks gave Koussevitzky her 200-acre estate at Tanglewood, famous for its associations with the life and works of Nathaniel Hawthorne of the "Tanglewood Tales." This gift Dr. Koussevitzky quickly transferred to the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Fortune seemed to favor the festival at every step. In 1937 occurred what has been called the $100,000 thunderstorm, during a concert at which the noise of the elements and the pounding of heavy rain on the tent outpaced the sound of the Boston Symphony playing Wagner's "Flying Dutchman" Overture. Then and there the machinery was set in motion by Miss Robinson Smith and her coadjutors, to raise $100,000 for the erection of the Music Shed—which is one of the largest structures of its kind, if not the largest, now in existence — made for performances of symphonic music. Over 82 per cent of the sum needed for this project was secured from people living within fifty miles of Stockbridge.

In 1940 Dr. Koussevitzky, who had only accepted the Stockbridge invitation with the understanding that later there would be established with it a music school of the kind he had dreamed of all his life, succeeded in this undertaking, and opened the institution that year. In this project he was strongly supported by Ernest Dane, then president of the Boston Symphony board.

The school, the Berkshire Music Center, with twenty-four members of the Boston Symphony among its instructors, has flourished and become not only an exceptionally valuable adjunct of the festival, but an artistic training school for gifted young musicians.

Valuable Agency

In 1946 the directors of the Berkshire Festival gave the Music Shed, which had been built mainly through their devoted efforts and contributions, to the Boston Symphony Orchestra, thus generously eliminating any problem which might have arisen owing to divided ownership. In full possession today of the property that includes the Music Shed, the theatre and all the other appurtenances necessary for its operation, the Boston Symphony under Mr. Munch's leadership has the means of further developing in the years before us the festival and the music school which in the sum of their efforts represent one of the most constructive and valuable agencies for the development of the art of music that this country has known.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES

JUL 4 - 1954

THE WORLD OF MUSIC

Juilliard School Shuts Down Its Summer Session as Country Schools Take Over

By ROSS PARMENTER

FROM 1932 to 1952 the Juilliard Summer School was a regular feature of the city's musical life. Its annual enrollments went into the hundreds and most of its students were teachers coming to New York to take refresher courses during their vacations. But there was no session last year. The discovery that there would be none this year either led to a little investigation. It was learned that the Juilliard's board of directors had voted to abolish the summer school.

Clearly the hope was that it would be allowed to lapse quietly, for Juilliard spokesmen were reluctant to discuss the matter. Speculation is possible, though. Enrollment had been falling off; and though the summer school had not been losing money, it had not been making it either. Maintaining it, too, had become more difficult, as fewer regular members of the Juilliard faculty had been available to teach there through the summers.

What is understood to be the board's chief reason for closing the school was the belief that it was no longer artistically necessary to offer opportunities for high-level music studies during the summer. Such opportunities, it was felt, were being offered sufficiently in the increasing number of summer music centers that have been springing up in locations more sylvan than Claremont Avenue. Among such schools in rustic spots, one might mention the Berkshire Music Centre, the Aspen Institute, and the Summer School of Music of Mary Washington College in Fredericksburg, Va., to say nothing of numerous smaller centers. These centers, too, have been responsible for luring the teachers away in the summer.

An incidental loss to the city through the ending of the school is the series of public concerts that used to be given while the session was on. In 1948, for instance, there were eighteen such concerts, including two orchestral ones led by Fritz Reiner.

CENTERS: A new music center being opened this summer is the Berkshire Folk-Music Workshop that Charles and Irmgard Carlé are operating at Birchwood Barn, Lenox, Mass. Like other centers, it will have an accompanying "festival" consisting of five Tuesday evening concerts, starting July 13. Fred Hellerman, Irwin "Lord" Burgess and Richard Dyer-Bennet will be among the artists. . . . Another specialized center: the Summer Harp Colony run by Carlos Salzedo at Camden, Me. . . . A school offering all types of instruction is the Upper Winooski Music Center at Goddard College, Plainfield, Vt. . . . The National Association of Teachers of Singing is sponsoring summer workshops at colleges in Columbus, Ohio, Missoula, Mont., Lubbock, Tex., Boulder, Col., Boone, N. C., and Minneapolis, Minn. . . . Meanwhile, one of the pioneer centers, the Wisconsin Summer Music Clinic, which offers training for high school musicians and music educators, opens its silver anniversary season tomorrow at the University of Wisconsin in Madison.

FESTIVALS: William Kroll provides further evidence that today is the big starting day for the summer chamber music series. The Maverick Concerts in Woodstock, N. Y., form still another series starting this Sunday. . . . Three brand new festivals: the Newport Jazz Festival at the Newport Casino, R. I., July 17 and 18; the Southampton Musical Festival of three Wednesday evening concerts in August, at the Parrish Art Museum, Southampton, N. Y.; the September Festival of Music that will be presented on Sept. 10, 11 and 12 at the Falmouth Playhouse, Coonamessett, Mass. . . . Ventnor, N. J. will open its seventh festival on Aug. 3 with a recital by Elena Nikolaidi. Aug. 10, 17, 24 and 31 are the other dates.

RESUME: The Lewisohn Stadium Concerts made the news. Claudio Arrau was "masterly" playing two Beethoven Piano Concertos. Michael Rabin was "excellent" in Tchaikovsky's Violin Concerto. Henri Deering gave a "lively, well-paced" perform-

ROUND TRIP

For the six Sundays of the Berkshire Festival, the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company is running a special excursion train to Tanglewood.

The excursion train leaves Grand Central at 8:20 A. M. and arrives in Stockbridge at 12:15 P. M., where buses will take concert-goers to Tanglewood. After the concert, buses will pick up the excursionists and take them to Pittsfield in time to eat and catch the 7:30 train that gets them back to the city at 11:30. The first excursion will be next Sunday. Price: $6.75.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
EVE. NEWS

FEB 27 1954

24 CONCERTS SCHEDULED AT TANGLEWOOD

Increased Season This Year Meets Growing Popularity of Events

The programs for the enlarged Berkshire Festival of July and August, have been decided under the supervision of Charles Munch, the music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The increased season has been planned by Mr. Munch to meet the constantly growing popularity of these concerts, which drew a record number to Lenox in the Berkshire hills last summer. Twenty-four concerts are announced for the six weeks from July 7 to Aug. 15, including six concerts by chamber groups on Wednesday evenings, six concerts by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players on Friday evenings, six concerts by the full Orchestra in the Shed on Saturday evenings and six Sunday afternoons.

In the course of the Shed concerts, Charles Munch will honor the 150th anniversary season of the birth of Berlioz by conducting this composer's principal works in their complete form. Guest conductors in the Shed concerts will be Pierre Monteux, conducting two concerts; Jean Morel, and Richard Burgin, each conducting one.

[158]

BALTIMORE, MD.
EVENING SUN

JUN 30 1954

Pratt Schedules Film Series

Recent air-conditioning of the Enoch Pratt Free Library's central building has made possible a special series of summer film programs, Howard M. Smith, head of the library's films department, announced today.

Four events are planned next month, Mr. Smith said, on subjects ranging from Eskimo life to a journey through Israel. All will be held in Meeting Room A. The schedule follows:

July 7, 8 P.M.

"Nanook of the North." A documentary film about Eskimo life, which is regarded as a classic. With great artistry it depicts the everyday doings of a family far removed from civilization, surrounded by ice and snow. (55 minutes.)

"The Loon's Necklace." This prize-winning film, done in color, is based on an Indian legend. It includes the use of authentic Canadian Indian ceremonial masks. (11 minutes.)

July 14, 8 P.M.

"The Golden Twenties." A chronicle of America's jazz age, dealing with Woodrow Wilson and other notables of the period, women's fashions, the prohibition era, famous movie stars and sports heroes, the Sacco-Vanzetti case, and other contemporary matters. (70 minutes.)

July 21, 8 P.M.

"Spelunking." In this film sportsmen-scientists, equipped with ice-axes, miners' lamps, rubber canoes and fire ladders, risk their lives in seemingly endless caverns far below the surface of the earth in France, and emerge with new knowledge of nature's world. (22 minutes.)

"Inside Tibet." The first motion picture to come out of Tibet. It reveals a people isolated by the Himalaya Mountains, tilling the soil, herding their yaks and practising Buddhist rituals as they did in the days of Marco Polo. (14 minutes.)

"Marian Anderson." Glimpses of the singer's childhood and home life alternate with numbers from her varied repertoire, including "Deep River" and Schubert's "Ave Maria." (26 minutes.)

July 28, 8 P.M.

"Tanglewood Music School and Festival." Concerts and classes in the Berkshire hills of Massachusetts, with Koussevitzky conducting the Boston Symphony Orchestra and Aaron Copland, Leonard Bernstein, Piatigorsky and Boris Goldovsky teaching and supervising rehearsals. (21 minutes.)

"A New Morning." A color film depicting life in the cities and on the farms of modern Israel, illustrating the agricultural and cultural achievements of the new state. (30 minutes.)

Admission to the film showings is free.

Water...

Berlioz Work Opener At Tanglewood

(Special to The American)

Lenox, Mass., July 12 — An audience of 8,500 persons sat enthralled at Tanglewood this week end as it listened intently to the Berkshire Festival's premiere presentation of Berlioz's dramatic legend, "The Damnation of Faust," as magnificently interpreted by the Boston Symphony Orchestra under the baton of Charles Munch.

This epic composition, offered Saturday night at the first of a number of programs marking the 150th anniversary of the birth of the noted French composer, provided the gala opening of the festival's 1954 Music Shed concert series. The two and one half-hour long, four part, 20-section symphonic poem, which recites the story of Goethe's "Faust" in a continuous narrative, was overwhelming in the sweep and vitality of its Tanglewood presentation.

The work was presented with the 104-piece orchestra, the 110 voices of the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, directed by G. Wallace Woodworth; and the solo performances of Eleanor Steber, soprano; David Poleri, tenor; Martial Singher, baritone, Donald Gramm, [illegible].

Especially noteworthy in a performance [illegible] by the almost [illegible] by all participants, was the tonal beauty of Miss Steber's Marguerite and the stirring French style of Mr. Poleri's Faust and Mr. Singher's Mephistopheles.

Completing a truly outstanding opening week-end of music in the beautiful Berkshires was an all-Beethoven program attended by over 10,000 persons yesterday afternoon and featuring the eminent Chilean pianist, Claudio Arrau, and the brilliant 79-year-old French conductor, Pierre Monteux.

Mr. Arrau's carefully modulated, elaborate interpretation of the Piano Concerto No. 5 ("Emperor") captured all of the composition's sweeping grandeur and dramatic intensity. The dazzling blending of theme and variations between piano and orchestra was perfection itself.

The audience rose with thunderous applause at the conclusion of Mr. Monteux's powerful presentation of the Symphony No. 5. Under his inspired baton, the orchestra was as one magnificent instrument in performing this traditional masterpiece.

A stirring rendition of the Lenore Overture No. 3 opened the afternoon program.

MDA

TIGHT BINDING

CATSKILL, N. Y.
MAIL

JUN 24 1954

...s For Berkshire ...val Are Lowered

...15th Berkshire Festival, in ... the Boston Symphony Or... has participated, commen... ...nesday, July 7, at 8:30 p.m. ...he first of six Wednesday ...r music concerts in the ...-Concert Hall. Claudio Ar...inent Chilean concert pian... ...l perform Sonatas Op. 79, ...d 57 ("Appassionata"); and ...l Arte Trio (Ruth Posselt, ... Joseph de Pasquale, viola; ...artin Hoherman, celio) will ... the String Trio in G, Op. 9 ...n an all-Betthoven program. ...eatest demand, to date, is the ... weekend of the Berkshire ..., July 9-10-11; with Series ...ust 7-8 and the Stravinsky-... chamber orchestra program ...ust 6, in popular favor also. ... noted soloists will appear ... the season. Prices for the ...ncerts by the full 104-man ...Symphony Orchestra, which ...irector Charles Munch con... ...ith Pierre Monteux, Jean ...nd Richard Burgin as guest ...ors, are one-third less this ...ce the Friday night cham...estra concerts in the thea...ert-hall are being sold sep... Yet, Festival patrons have ...ead of nine, Shed concerts ...mer.

BURLINGTON, VT.
NEWS

JUN 20 1954

...rkshire Festival ... Changes In ...nned Program

...cial Sunday News Report

...NOX, Mass.—Two chang... ...the Berkshire Festival pro... ...week season, July 7 to Aug. ...ed yesterday by Charles ... music director. ...ad of an all-Cesar Franck ...n on Saturday evening, ... in the music shed at ...wood, guest conductor ... Monteux will substitute ...orchestral selections by ... Debussy. Excerpts from ...bastian" and the tone ... 'La Mer" will replace the ...eaur Maudit" and "Les ... by Franck. ...h's program of Saturday ... Aug. 14, in the shed ...er Brahms' "Tragic Over... in place of Wagner's ...st Overture." Berkshire Festival also ...ced the summer of 1954 ...e six Saturday morning ...als of the full 104-man ... Symphony Orchestra, at ..., on July 10, 17, 24 31, ... and 14, to which the ...ill be admitted at a re...rice with the proceeds ...benefit of the orchestra's ... fund.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
SUNDAY NEWS

JUL 4 - 1954

Berkshire Festival Lists 17th Season

The 17th Berkshire Festival opens Wednesday evening in the Theatre-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., when the first in the six-week series of 24 concerts will be given. The opener is an all-Beethoven program of chamber music utilizing pianist Claudio Arrau and the Bel Arte Trio. The second concert, on Friday, will find Charles Munch conducting a chamber orchestra in Bach's Brandenburg Concertos Nos. 1, 2, 3, 5 and 6. Saturday night's program will be given over to a performance of Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust," Munch again conducting. The singing body will consist of soloists Eleanor Steber, David Poleri, Martial Singher and Donald Gramm, along with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Chorale Society. Pierre Monteux will conduct the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a Beethoven program, next Sunday night in the Music Shed.

N. Y. Times July 12, 1954

...UNCH, MONTEUX ...ONDUCT AT LENOX

...erlioz and Beethoven Share ...Week-End at Tanglewood— ...Arrau Heard in 'Emperor'

By OLIN DOWNES

...LENOX, Mass., July ... The ... of the 1951 ... bure... ... make special ce... ...on ... the ...sesquicentennial ... ...Berlioz. Here it is, the last ... of the year 1954. At least ... score of Berlioz's major ... will figure in each of the ... Symphony programs of ... week of the festival. ... These celebrations ... the interpretation under ... Munch of the unjust ... Legend of the Damna... ...on of Faust," at the concert of ... night, and a memorable per... ...ance, which aroused immense ...ism, this proved to be. ... another composer, whose ... making music, interpreted as ... was today, is of overwhelming ...reness, is honored this week- ...end, with almost sensational ef... ...fect, alongside of Berlioz. The ... He is one Ludwig van ... Beethoven. ... The Boston Symphony concert ... this afternoon, conducted by ... Monteux, with Claudio ... soloist in the "Emperor" ... concerto, was devoted en... ...tirely to its pieces, in each fash... ...ion that at the end of the Fifth ... symphony the audience paralleled ... its demonstrations of the previous ... evening. It sprang to its feet ... and stood for minutes cheering ... wildly after the orchestra had ... finished. ... For the benefit of the record, ... it here be added that the at... ...tendance on Saturday night was ... 5,500, or nearly twice that of the ... opening Boston Symphony con... ...cert of the festival last season ... and that the attendance this aft... ...ternoon was 11,000. ... Berlioz and Beethoven were ... very strikingly juxtaposed on ... these occasions, and these sim... ...larities and contrasts thrown ... into the higher relief by the two ... conductors, who so intuitively ... revealed their essence. ... It is to be said that we know ... of no conductor before the public ... today who is so fitted by his ... impulsive and dramatic temperament to communicate the frenzy ... and the vision of Berlioz's music ... as authentically and convincingly ... as the sometimes unpredictable ... Charles Munch. Berlioz returns ... to us in his pristine intensity, in ... colors that are now subtle and ... delicate values, and that now ... blaze under his baton. As for the ... Beethoven, we can only say that ... Monteux with his wisdom, author... ...ity, profound knowledge and ... sense of proportion, appeared this ... afternoon as the well-nigh ... perfect interpreter of the composer ... It is not possible to ... create the ... Munch's interpretation, which be... ...came always more vivid, more ... subtle in coloring and psychology ... as it proceeded. ... ...passages that la... ...the evening went on and ... became completely ... ...ways more ... ...nd authentic ... ...of the orchestra ... ...ned by the evident effect ... ...it upon the singers ... ...and the splendid ... ...Choral Society, which ... ...prepare[d] by G. Wallace ... ...for th... ...long considered ... ...not ha... ...and understanding dra... ...startlingly drama... ...this best ... ...unfor... ...St... ...act... ...artistic per... ...the Tan... ...by

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES

JUL 4 - 1954

BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL

Twentieth Season Marks Extension of Plan

By OLIN DOWNES

THE 1954 Berkshire Festiva given by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch conductor, at Tanglewood in Lenox, Mass., will also be the twentieth anniversary of the founding of the Berkshire Symphonic Festival in 1934. In those twenty years the Berkshire Festival has developed from a beginning which was the creation of the Berkshire community of towns and cities within a fifty mile radius of Stockbridge and Lenox to what has become one of the most important and artistically influential music festivals in the world.

In this year of 1954, also, the Berkshire Festival enters upon a new period in its history. In the lengthening of its season from three to six weeks; and in the multiplication of its musical events, which include performances of chamber and choral music and opera, as well as the concerts of the Boston Symphony Orchestra which are the core of its repertory, the festival offers programs of a variety and richness of material unprecedented in its history, and makes these programs more accessible to a greater number of people than ever before.

Extension

In addition to the extension of the season, there will be a new grouping of the week-end chamber and symphonic concerts, a grouping that is so much an improvement over the arrangement of previous seasons that one wonders why this innovation was not thought of before.

In the past there were two series of these concerts, each three weeks in length, in succession. Six concerts of music for chamber orchestra, principally by Bach and Mozart, were given in the first three-week period in the small Theatre-Concert Hall of the festival, with a capacity of 1,200, prior to the three weeks, of three concerts each week, by the Boston Symphony in the Music Shed with its capacity of 6,000.

The programs of the full orchestra given in the Shed attracted the larger audiences, but for some the cream of the festival was the Bach-Mozart series, heard in the intimate auditorium of the little theatre. These two concert series have now been merged in such a way that the six Bach-Mozart concerts will take place on six Friday nights, and the concerts of the full orchestra, now twelve in number, will be given on six Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons. Hence there will be six week-ends of music for chamber orchestra and full orchestra, from Friday night to Sunday afternoon inclusive, with no orchestral feature of the festival lost to those who attend any week of the festival's season.

Long Way

The Berkshire Festival has come a long way since the day when Henry Hadley approached Miss Gertrude Robinson Smith in May of 1934, with the proposal to give symphonic concerts out of doors in the Berkshires. A committee was quickly formed, of which Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge was honorary president, Miss Robinson Smith president, and which included among its officers Mrs. Carlos de Heredia, Mrs. Owen Johnson, Miss Mable Choate and Norval H. Busey. They functioned to such good purpose that on Aug. 23, 1934, Dr. Hadley conducted sixty-five members of the New York Philharmonic-Symphony in the first concert of, as it was then entitled, the First Berkshire Annual Symphonic Festival. That concert took place in the horse-show ring of the Dan Hanna farm in Stockbridge.

Following the second festival of 1935 Mr. Hadley retired because of illness. After consultation with the committee there took place the momentous conversation between Miss Robinson Smith and Serge Koussevitzky, with the result that the Boston Symphony Orchestra became the orchestra of the festival, under the leadership of the conductor whose international pre-eminence in his field, breadth of vision, and enthusiasm for a great constructive undertaking speedily placed the Berkshire Festival on the plane of artistic eminence that it now occupies.

Given in Tent

The third annual festival, under Koussevitzky's leadership, was given in a tent sheltering five thousand on the estate of Mrs. Margaret Emerson. Later, in the same year of 1936, Mrs. Gorham Brooks gave Koussevitzky her 200-acre estate at Tanglewood, famous for its associations with the life and works of Nathaniel Hawthorne of the "Tanglewood Tales." This gift Dr. Koussevitzky quickly transferred to the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Fortune seemed to favor the festival at every step. In 1937 occurred what has been called the $100,000 thunderstorm, during a concert at which the noise of the elements and the pounding of heavy rain on the tent outpaced the sound of the Boston Symphony playing Wagner's "Flying Dutchman" Overture. Then and there the machinery set in motion by Miss Robinson Smith and her coadjutors, to raise $100,000 for the erection of the Music Shed—which is one of the largest structures of its kind, if not the largest, now in existence — made for performances of symphonic music. Over 82 per cent of the sum needed for this project was secured from people living within fifty miles of Stockbridge.

In 1940 Dr. Koussevitzky, who had only accepted the Stockbridge invitation with the understanding that later there would be established with it a music school of the kind he had dreamed of all his life, succeeded in this undertaking, and opened the institution that year. In this project he was strongly supported by Ernest Dane, then president of the Boston Symphony board.

The school, the Berkshire Music Center, with twenty-four members of the Boston Symphony among its instructors, has flourished and become not only an exceptionally valuable adjunct of the festival, but an artistic training school for gifted young musicians.

Valuable Agency

In 1946 the directors of the Berkshire Festival gave the Music Shed, which had been built mainly through their devoted efforts and contributions, to the Boston Symphony Orchestra, thus generously eliminating any problem which might have arisen owing to divided ownership. In full possession today of the property that includes the Music Shed, the theatre and all the other appurtenances necessary for its operation, the Boston Symphony under Mr. Munch's leadership has the means of further developing in the years before us the festival and the music school which in the sum of their efforts represent one of the most constructive and valuable agencies for the development of the art of music that this country has known.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES

JUL 4 - 1954

THE WORLD OF MUSIC

Juilliard School Shuts Down Its Summer Session as Country Schools Take Over

By ROSS PARMENTER

FROM 1932 to 1952 the Juilliard Summer School was a regular feature of the city's musical life. Its annual enrollments went into the hundreds and most of its students were teachers coming to New York to take refresher courses during their vacations. But there was no session last year. The discovery that there would be none this year either led to a little investigation. It was learned that the Juilliard's board of directors had voted to abolish the summer school.

Clearly the hope was that it would be allowed to lapse quietly, for Juilliard spokesmen were reluctant to discuss the matter. Speculation is possible, though. Enrollment had been falling off; and though the summer school had not been losing money, it had not been making it either. Maintaining it, too, had become more difficult, as fewer regular members of the Juilliard faculty had been available to teach there through the summers.

What is understood to be the board's chief reason for closing the school was the belief that it was no longer artistically necessary to offer opportunities for high-level music studies during the summer. Such opportunities, it was felt, were being offered sufficiently in the increasing number of summer music centers that have been springing up in locations more sylvan than Claremont Avenue. Among such schools in rustic spots, one might mention the Berkshire Music Centre, the Aspen Institute, and the Summer School of Music of Mary Washington College in Fredericksburg, Va., to say nothing of numerous smaller centers. These centers, too, have been responsible for luring the teachers away in the summer.

An incidental loss to the city through the ending of the school is the series of public concerts that used to be given while the session was on. In 1948, for instance, there were eighteen such concerts, including two orchestral ones led by Fritz Reiner.

CENTERS: A new music center being opened this summer is the Berkshire Folk-Music Workshop that Charles and Irmgard Carlé are operating at Birchwood Barn, Lenox, Mass. Like other centers, it will have an accompanying "festival" consisting of five Tuesday evening concerts, starting July 13. Fred Hellerman, Irwin "Lord" Burgess and Richard Dyer-Bennet will be among the artists. . . . Another specialized center: the Summer Harp Colony run by Carlos Salzedo at Camden, Me. . . . A school offering all types of instruction is the Upper Winooski Music Center at Goddard College, Plainfield, Vt. . . . The National Association of Teachers of Singing is sponsoring summer workshops at colleges in Columbus, Ohio, Missoula, Mont., Lubbock, Tex., Boulder, Col., Boone, N. C., and Minneapolis, Minn. . . . Meanwhile, one of the pioneer centers, the Wisconsin Summer Music Clinic, which offers training for high school musicians and music educators, opens its silver anniversary season tomorrow at the University of Wisconsin in Madison.

FESTIVALS: William Kroll provides further evidence that today is the big starting day for the summer chamber music series. The Maverick Concerts in Woodstock, N. Y., form still another series starting this Sunday. . . . Three brand new festivals: the Newport Jazz Festival at the Newport Casino, R. I., July 17 and 18; the Southampton Musical Festival of three Wednesday evening concerts in August, at the Parrish Art Museum, Southampton, N. Y.; the September Festival of Music that will be presented on Sept. 10, 11 and 12 at the Falmouth Playhouse, Coonamessett, Mass. . . . Ventnor, N. J. will open its seventh festival on Aug. 3 with a recital by Elena Nikolaidi. Aug. 10, 17, 24 and 31 are the other dates.

RESUME: The Lewisohn Stadium Concerts made the news. Claudio Arrau was "masterly" playing two Beethoven Piano Concertos. Michael Rabin was "excellent" in Tchaikovsky's Violin Concerto. Henri Deering gave a "lively, well-paced" perform-

ROUND TRIP

For the six Sundays of the Berkshire Festival, the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company is running a special excursion train to Tanglewood.

The excursion train leaves Grand Central at 8:20 A. M. and arrives in Stockbridge at 12:15 P. M., where buses will take concert-goers to Tanglewood. After the concert, buses will pick up the excursionists and take them to Pittsfield in time to eat and catch the 7:30 train that gets them back to the city at 11:30. The first excursion will be next Sunday. Price: $6.75.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
EVE. NEWS

FEB 27 1954

24 CONCERTS SCHEDULED AT TANGLEWOOD

Increased Season This Year Meets Growing Popularity of Events

The programs for the enlarged Berkshire Festival of July and August, have been decided under the supervision of Charles Munch, the music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The increased season has been planned by Mr. Munch to meet the constantly growing popularity of these concerts, which drew a record number to Lenox in the Berkshire hills last summer. Twenty-four concerts are announced for the six weeks from July 7 to Aug. 15, including six concerts by chamber groups on Wednesday evenings, six concerts by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players on Friday evenings, six concerts by the full Orchestra in the Shed on Saturday evenings and six Sunday afternoons.

In the course of the Shed concerts, Charles Munch will honor the 150th anniversary season of the birth of Berlioz by conducting this composer's principal works in their complete form. Guest conductors in the Shed concerts will be Pierre Monteux, conducting two concerts; Jean Morel, and Richard Burgin, each conducting one.

Berlioz Work Opener At Tanglewood

(Special to The American)

Lenox, Mass., July 12 — An audience of 8,500 persons sat enthralled at Tanglewood this week end as it listened intently to the Berkshire Festival's premiere presentation of Berlioz's dramatic legend, "The Damnation of Faust," as magnificently interpreted by the Boston Symphony Orchestra under the baton of Charles Munch.

This epic composition, offered Saturday night at the first of a number of programs marking the 150th anniversary of the birth of the noted French composer, provided the gala opening of the festival's 1954 Music Shed concert series. The two and one half-hour long, four part, 20-section symphonic poem, which recites the story of Goethe's "Faust" in a continuous narrative, was overwhelming in the sweep and vitality of its Tanglewood presentation.

The work was presented with the 104-piece orchestra, the 110 voices of the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, directed by G. Wallace Woodworth; and the solo performances of Eleanor Steber, soprano; David Poleri, tenor; Martial Singher, baritone, Donald Gramm, [illegible].

Especially noteworthy, in a performance [illegible] by the almost equally [illegible] conditions by all participants, was the tonal beauty of Miss Steber's Marguerite and the stirring French style of Mr. Poleri's Faust and Mr. Singher's Mephistopheles.

Completing a truly outstanding opening week-end of music in the beautiful Berkshires was an all-Beethovan program attended by over 10,000 persons yesterday afternoon and featuring the eminent Chilean pianist, Claudio Arrau, and the brilliant 79-year-old French conductor, Pierre Monteux.

Mr. Arrau's carefully modulated, elaborate interpretation of the Piano Concerto No. 5 ("Emperor") captured all of the composition's sweeping grandeur and dramatic intensity. The [illegible] blending of theme and variations between piano and orchestra was perfection itself.

The audience rose with thunderous applause at the conclusion of Mr. Monteux's powerful presentation of the Symphony No. 5. Under his inspired baton, the orchestra was as one magnificent instrument in performing this traditional masterpiece.

A stirring rendition of the Lenore Overture No. 3 opened the afternoon program.

MDA

BALTIMORE, MD.
EVENING SUN

JUN 30 1954

Pratt Schedules Film Series

Recent air-conditioning of the Enoch Pratt Free Library's central building has made possible a special series of summer film programs, Howard M. Smith, head of the library's films department, announced today.

Four events are planned next month, Mr. Smith said, on subjects ranging from Eskimo life to a journey through Israel. All will be held in Meeting Room A. The schedule follows:

July 7, 8 P.M.

"Nanook of the North." A documentary film about Eskimo life, which is regarded as a classic. With great artistry it depicts the everyday doings of a family far removed from civilization, surrounded by ice and snow. (55 minutes.)

"The Loon's Necklace." This prize-winning film, done in color, is based on an Indian legend. It includes the use of authentic Canadian Indian ceremonial masks. (11 minutes.)

July 14, 8 P.M.

"The Golden Twenties." A chronicle of America's jazz age, dealing with Woodrow Wilson and other notables of the period, women's fashions, the prohibition era, famous movie stars and sports heroes, the Sacco-Vanzetti case, and other contemporary matters. (70 minutes.)

July 21, 8 P.M.

"Spelunking." In this film sportsmen-scientists, equipped with ice-axes, miners' lamps, rubber canoes and wire ladders, risk their lives in seemingly endless caverns far below the surface of the earth in France, and emerge with new knowledge of nature's world. (22 minutes.)

"Inside Tibet." The first motion picture to come out of Tibet. It reveals a people isolated by the Himalaya Mountains, tilling the soil, herding their yaks and practising Buddhist rituals as they did in the days of Marco Polo. (14 minutes.)

"Marian Anderson." Glimpses of the singer's childhood and home life alternate with numbers from her varied repertoire, including "Deep River" and Schubert's "Ave Maria." (26 minutes.)

July 28, 8 P.M.

"Tanglewood, Music School and Festival." Concerts and classes in the Berkshire hills of Massachusetts, with Koussevitzky conducting the Boston Symphony Orchestra and Aaron Copland, Leonard Bernstein, Piatigorsky and Boris Goldovsky teaching and supervising rehearsals. (21 minutes.)

"A New Morning." A color film depicting life in the cities and on the farms of modern Israel, illustrating the agricultural and cultural achievements of the new state. (30 minutes.)

Admission to the film showings is free.

SATURDAY REVIEW
NEW YORK, N. Y.

JUL 10 1954

MUSIC TO MY EARS

Muse on the Mountain, and on Manhattan Island

THE whole concept of the muse descending from the mountain to bless mankind in his lowland miseries is being reversed these summer days, as men (and women) in increasing numbers move to the uplands for pleasure and profits. I don't suppose either Beethoven or Brahms heard of the Pocono Mountains, where the Tamiment Institute has, appropriately, instituted a chamber-music festival in the last year or two (any more than they would have heard of the Berkshires, where Tanglewood abides, or the Rockies, where Aspen flourishes). But John A. Riley has, and, accordingly, the world may soon hear of him.

As chamber music is valued these days, the thirtyish Riley was honestly entitled to the $500 awarded to him as prizewinner in a competition sponsored by the Tamiment Institute which attracted more than 100 scores. A native of Altoona, Pennsylvania, and more recently identified with New Haven, Connecticut, where he has been living after training at the Eastman School, war service, and foreign study with Honegger, Riley has written a quartet with considerable substance and a keen sense of musical organization.

The movements diminish in effect from one to three, which is not good, but this is in respect to a striving for individuality without modernistic conformity, which is good. The score was presented in excellent order and to practically model tonal advantage by the Curtis String Quartet, the "house" ensemble for this series. Assuming there are quartets which will accept a work on merit rather than because it belongs to a fashionable cult of the moment, Riley's should be heard, and with pleasure, elsewhere.

As music festivals rate in seniority, Tamiment's is a baby one, but with some interesting attributes for future attention. Chief among these is the desire of its sponsors that it relate largely to chamber music, with this year's repertory embracing quartets of Haydn, Mendelssohn, Mozart, and Schubert, plus two of Beethoven, the piano quartet of Fauré, the clarinet quintet of Brahms, and the piano quintet of Dohnányi. This accounted for four of the programs: a fifth, offering works of Respighi, Arensky, and Bloch, was played by the New Chamber Orchestra of Philadelphia under the direction of Ifor Jones. Guido Mercoli was the excellent clarinetist for the Brahms, Vladimir Sokoloff and Martha Massena the pianists.

An engaging aspect of the whole venture is that privilege of attendance costs no more than that involved in the enjoyment of Tamiment's spacious lawns and fields, lake and forest. That is to say, it is all part of a basic charge for a week-end at one of the best-equipped resorts of the kind in this part of the world.

FOR all their notion of themselves as persons advanced beyond citizens in other, outland, areas, New Yorkers accept many things that must seem like nightmares to others more objective. The subways. The traffic. The noise. And, if you want to deal with an esthetic subject, the Stadium.

Annually editorials are published describing the public service performed at this large and certainly ugly amphitheatre on Convent Avenue and 135th Street. To one side are the far from pretty buildings of City College. On the other, a group of prosaic apartment houses. The "new" stage is more functional but also more of an eyesore than any in the past, particularly when the sad-sack curtain of nondescript brown flaps in the breeze. Underfoot, some sort of crunchy gravel has been spread on the soft dirt, so that everyone seems to be wearing new shoes. Overhead, planes pass at predictable intervals every two to ten minutes, in and out of Idlewild and La Guardia, two of the busiest landing fields in the world.

But the music, you say. Surely that makes up for a lot. I'd love to say that it does, but candor compels the conclusion that you'd get as much pleasure, and much less irritation, at home with a hi-fi record. The opening concert directed by Sir Adrian Boult gave us a Beethoven list of the "Leonore No. 3" Overture, the Seventh Symphony, and the Third Piano Concerto, with Rudolf Firkusny as soloist. It was businesslike, all right, and professional, but Boult's reputation argued the probability of something more. Obviously, the hot night was not to his liking, a situation which could well have resulted in dire consequences either to his collar or to Beethoven. At the end of the symphony the collar appeared intact—which was not good news for devotees of the Seventh.

—IRVING KOLODIN.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES

JUL 4 - 1954

FROM THE FIELD OF TRAVEL

By DIANA RICE

TURKEY'S first good-will ship to the United States is scheduled to arrive in New York on July 19 for a six-day visit. En route it will stop at other American ports: Miami, July 7-9; Charleston, July 11-12; Baltimore, July 14-18.

At each port-of-call the luxury liner Tarsus will be open to visitors invited to come aboard and see exhibits illustrating Turkey's progress in recent years. The National Travel Association of Turkey, which is sponsoring the trip, has set up a group of displays "to dramatize the social, intellectual and industrial vitality of the nation." Students from the Istanbul Institute of Arts and Design will model adaptations of old Turkish clothing. Side by side with them will be shown the garments that inspired them. Turkish coffee will be served to all visitors.

Turkish Ship to Arrive On Good-Will Tour —Other Items

SILVER EXHIBIT

Leisurely motorists seeking interesting places to stop and do a bit of browsing will find a new gallery in Newburyport, Mass. About thirty-five miles north of Boston, the town is the site of the Towle Silversmiths whose craft traditions go back to 1690. The gallery, located on the Merrimac River, features changing exhibitions of early American silver and also displays tracing the story of silver through five thousand years. On view is rare silver from museums and private collections as well as Towle's own collection of Colonial items. A special loan exhibition of Colonial church silver is now on view and will remain through Aug. 31. The gallery is open Mondays through Fridays, and there are two daily tours through the Towle factory.

HAMPTON'S FAIRS

Southampton's Village Improvement Society Fiesta, which in previous years has been held in July, this summer is scheduled for Aug. 20 on the grounds of the Parrish Art Museum on Job's Lane. A children's pet show will be held instead of the customary fashion show. The Fiesta raises funds for the improvement and beautification of Southampton. In East Hampton the fifty-seventh annual Ladies Village Improvement Society Fair and Country Dance is scheduled for July 30 on the grounds of the seventeenth century Mulford Farm overlooking the Village Green. As in the past the day-long fair will include booths set up around the grounds, a "playland" for children, and a fashion show. In the evening a Country Dance will offer both round and square dancing. Proceeds are used for the upkeep of the elms along East Hampton's Main Street and many village greens and for the village's educational and charitable organizations.

OLD HOMES

Two Connecticut towns, Litchfield and Old Lyme, among the most interesting and pleasant communities in New England, are planning Open House days this month. Litchfield, on Routes 25 and 63 in the hills of northwestern Connecticut, will open eight residences and several buildings to the public next Saturday. On July 17, Old Lyme, on U. S. 1, will open nine homes to visitors. The Old Lyme tour includes the Greenfield House built in 1690; in Litchfield the Linus T. Gilbert House, built 1740, may be seen. Many houses on the list are furnished as they were in the two towns' first days. Proceeds from the Old Lyme event go to the Congregational Church building fund. Litchfield's Open House is held for the benefit of the Junior Republic, a non-profit vocational boys' school there.

TREASURE HUNT

Ocean sailing, skin-diving and the profit motive have been neatly combined in an unusual holiday offering this summer by Vacation Expeditions, 1110 Atlantic Avenue, Atlantic City, N. J. For three-man corporations will [illegible] the fifty-ton Diesel-auxiliary Else along the Jersey and Delaware shore, looking for sunken treasure on abandoned hulks along the way. Incidentally, they are taking along a "guest crew" of fourteen on each weekly trip, at a cost per person of $125. In addition to helping operate the ship, fishing, visiting seaports and doing as much underwater diving as they can, passengers will cash in on whatever loot is found in the course of the summer.

HERE AND THERE

Motor coach tours to the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood, Mass., starting Friday, are announced by Ski Bird Tours, 2039 Broadway. Transportation and accommodations at the Sheraton Hotel, Pittsfield, are included in the $23.75 rate. . . . The Waterman Steamship Corporation announces freighter-passenger service from New Orleans through the Panama Canal to Los Angeles, $250 one way plus tax; twelve days. . . . Eleven historic houses in Jamestown, R. I., will be open to the public July 24. . . . Convenient for persons going to the Stratford Shakespearean Festival at Stratford, Ont., is Trans-Canada Air Lines' daily service to London, Ont. (thirty miles from Stratford), round trip $61.77, tax included.

Lake George, N. Y., announces a tournament to be held Aug. 6-8 for the Eastern Water Ski championships. . . . The new Playhouse Inn at New Hope, Pa., just opened, has a dining room seating 250 persons, a swimming pool, garden terrace, and an ironing board and tiled bath with each room. . . . Windsor, Ont., celebrates its centennial Aug. 19-24. . . . Ipswich, Mass., opens its historic homes to the public Aug. 7, celebrating Seventeenth Century Day.

WATERBURY, CONN.
REPUBLICAN

JUN 27 1954

Now It's Time To Take Off Again For A Rendezvous With The Arts

By W. G. ROGERS
Associated Press Arts Editor

New York, —(AP)— In the spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of — travel.

So do the thoughts of the middle-aged and old men, indeed, of both men and women. That's particularly true of people interested in books and arts.

A trip to Europe used to be something to figure out months in advance, and getting there was such a hardship you maybe made one trip that lasted half a year and never afterward stirred out of your back yard.

Now thousands go over for two weeks more easily than you used to jog along by horse and wagon to the cottage on the lake.

It's worth it. It doesn't much matter where you land, it's apt to be in the neighborhood of a music festival, art exhibition or dance program. They are dotted all over the map of England, France, Austria, Germany, Italy.

Tanglewood Festival

To be sure, you run into them right at home. At Tanglewood in the Berkshires there's music, courtesy of the Boston Symphony, from July 7 to Aug. [illegible] University has its third annual festival in June, Newport offers special music in August. New Yorkers can get to music by bus and subway — in Central Park, the Guggenheim Memorial Concerts start June 18 and at Lewisohn Stadium the Stadium Concerts open June 21. There are special summer programs at Aspen, Colo., in Ogden, Utah, and in many city parks across the country with the local orchestra and visiting soloists officiating. There's dance at Jacob's Pillow, also in the Berkshires, from July 25 on.

Major events in Europe are, as usual, Salzburg July 25 - Aug. 30; Bayreuth, July 22 - Aug. 22; Glyndbourne, June 10 - July 27; May Music Festival in Florence beginning in May and running through most of June.

Other European centers where special music activities are scheduled are Aix - en - Provence and Prades, in France; several cities in Holland, which also draws the Sadler's Wells Ballet; Aldeburgh in England and Llangollen in Wales; Venice, Vienna, Berlin, Stockholm. There are architectural displays in France's chateau country.

Many musicians who figure in the festivals are Americans, or well known to American music-lovers. Among them are Conductors Mitropoulos, Ormandy, Szell, Bernstein, Erede, Ansermet and Sargent; stage manager Graf; pianists Arrau, Rubinstein, Casron; violinist Stern; tenor Vinay.

Other music - makers who will join music lovers abroad are Marian Anderson, in South America; Jennie Tourel, in Europe and South Africa; Roland Hayes in Europe.

Record Box

Several welcome French numbers are released by Angel Records:

Gieseking plays two whole LP recordsful of Debussy — Preludes, Book One, and 15 selected piano pieces. There are recordings of the inimitable Charles Trenet and the popular "Compagnons de la Chanson." Finally there are two operas, each short enough to squeeze onto one disk: Ravel's "L'Heure Espagnole" and the Poulenc - Apollinaire "Les Mamelles de Tiresias."

Ravel's witty work has been heard by New Yorkers at City Center, and Poulenc's at Brandeis University, in Massachusetts, but probably nowhere else in this country. So if you haven't run them down in their native habitat, Paris you need these recordings, which are spirited and zestful interpretations.

It seems to me there is a particular advantage in hearing, as against both hearing and seeing the "Mamelles," if it isn't too indelicate to shorten the title thus. The antics that accompanied the performance, at least in Paris, of this bawdy opera - bouffe distracted from the freshness and originality of the music. Poulenc contributes to his Apollinaire much as Virgil Thomson did to Gertrude Stein's "Four Saints in Three Acts." To that eye this may be burlesque, to the ear it's very much our time, very close to our generation. You'll like it; but you ought to listen to it anyway.

In Defense of Tanglewood

To the Editor of THE EAGLE:—

The Berkshire Festival, says Robert Smith ["On the Contrary," July 12], was conceived not as a means for making profits, but to bring pleasure to country folk. This premise artificially aired by Mr. Smith may be good town lobbying but has no relation to fact.

The festival was not at all intended as an outlet for folk song and whistling tunes but as a summer home, in a resort location, where people could come during their vacations to hear great music. Profits, as Serge Koussevitzky planned it, are almost wholly absorbed by the music school, the greatest of its kind in the land. This is a little detail Mr. Smith neatly overlooks. Mostly Tanglewood has run at a loss, not at a profit.

In any event, the profit for Tanglewood is by no means a capital gain, as Mr. Smith recognizes this subterfuge, and the three million or so dollars that changes hands during the festival season is pretty well divvied up among inns, hotels, motels, cottages, plumbers, electricians, railroads, drug stores, antique shops, gas stations, auto repair shops, painters, carpenters, hardware stores, grocers, restaurants, etc., most of whom live here the year round free of the cultural impositions that bring them their allegedly "diminishing profits." If a tithe from this flow of gold is what Bob Smith means by a "good will" gesture—here is where to look for it.

Almost every house, big and little, which, to quote Mr. Smith, "endures racket and inconvenience and littered lawns," takes paying guests between occasional groans. If I am not mistaken Mr. Smith's home is no inhospitable exception.

The reference to litter is a trifle out of character for a writer of the people. Lenox in the Tanglewood season is tidy compared with Great Barrington during the Fair, and spotless, as Mr. Smith knows, compared with the outside of a major league ball park. From eight years of observation on the near mile of Bean Hill Road which bisects my farm and which I travel the year round, the contributions of beer cans and refuse from natives for ten months of the year is far greater than during the six weeks of the Tanglewood season.

I, too, remember with nostalgia the days of the slow clop-clop of the horse on a country road but those days, alack, are gone. Federal taxes have taken the great estates and turned them into tax-exempt schools. For all Tanglewood visitors may offend with halters and shorts, they have been amply rewarded by the sly glance of the snob, no little gouging by the boardinghouses and cat-calls from local cowboys. There is give-and-take in this that will civilize both, where such civilizing is required.

As to the squawk about town participation in Tanglewood plans, Mr. Smith leaves this artfully obscure. Does he mean participation by the Selectmen in the musical program of the school, with a selectman advising Mr. Munch or Mr. Copland? Does the town require earlier notice of schedule and assistance in speculating the possible attendance? Is it a question of proposed roads which are now almost entirely in the hands of the Selectmen themselves and Mr. Goggins?

What does he mean by a "good will" gesture? A couple of thousand bucks? If he does, why take it out of the hide of the goose and not from the collectors of the golden eggs who would be the first to yell "murder" if Tanglewood really had to "pull up stakes"?

While I have had a long-time liking for Bob Smith from which I do not retreat, I think he is far afield writing on this theme. If Tanglewood, which he rarely attends, were the Polo Grounds or the Yankee Stadium, where he is a constant spectator and the Berkshire Music Center were a Cooperstown baseball clinic, he would overlook the considerable profit motive and probably recommend subsidies from the community to the "art" rather than the other way round.

NATHAN GEORGE HORWITT.
Lenox.

[159]

TIGHT BINDING

...D OF TRAVEL

...o Arrive ... Tour ...ems

...of the cus... The Fiesta ... improve... ...n of South... ...mpton the ...Ladies Vil... ...ciety Fair ... scheduled ...rounds of ...y Mulford ...e Village ... the day... ...ooths set ... a "play... ...a fashion ... Country ...ound and ...eds are ...the elms ...s Main ...e greens ...cational ...ons.

... Litch... ...ng the ...leasant ...nd, are ...s this ...es 25 ...west... ... eight ...dings ...y. On ...S. 1, ...itors. ...r the ...0; in ...bert ...een. ...ur... ...two ...om ...the ...ng ...is ...or ...al

...lewood

...ill Road which bi... ...and which I travel ... the contributions ...d refuse from na... ...nths of the year is ...during the six ...glewood season. ...er with nostalgia ...slow clop-clop of ...country road but ...are gone. Feder... ...taken the great ...them into tax... For all Tangle... ...may offend with ...they have been ...the sly glance ...gouging by the ...cat-calls from ...re is give-and- ...ll typify both, ...ng is required. ...boot-town par... ...wood plans, Mr. ...efully obscure. ...ipation by the ...sical program ...selectman ad... ...Copland? ...re-earlier no... ...assistance in ...table attend... ...ed proposed ...almost entire... ...the Selectmen ...Goggins?

...by a "good ...ple of thous... ...why take it ...goose and ...of the gold... ...the first to ...lewood real... ...ing"?

...a long-time ...from which ...nt he is far ...theme. If ...rarely at... ...Grounds or ...where he is ...d the Berk... ...a Coopers... ...would over... ...profit motive ...d subsidies ...the "art" ...ay round.

...HORWITT.

154

BUFFALO, N. Y.
COURIER-EXPRESS
JUN 27 1954

In the Realm of Music

Tanglewood Subscriptions Surpass Record for '53

By KENNETH GILL

Subscribers for the 1954 Berkshire Festival series by the Boston Symphony Orchestra for concerts on six Saturday evenings, July 10 to August 14, and on six Sunday afternoons, July 11 to August 15, in the huge Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., have surpassed those of the summer of 1953, Manager George E. Judd announces.

Charles Munch

Prices for the Shed concerts by the 104-man Boston Symphony Orchestra, which Music Director Charles Munch conducts, with Pierre Monteux, Jean Morel and Richard Burgin as guest conductors, are one-third less this year, since the Friday night chamber orchestra concerts in the intimate Theatre-Concert Hall are being sold separately. Yet Festival patrons have 12, instead of nine, Shed concerts this summer. The subscription sale, officially over June 1, was extended 10 days for the convenience of Berkshire County residents.

Among the season's noted soloists are Metropolitan Opera stars Eleanor Steber, soprano; Nicola Moscona, bass-baritone; David Poleri and John McCollum, tenors; Martial Singher, baritone; Donald Gramm, bass-baritone.

Piano soloists are Claudio Arrau, Lukas Foss, Vera Franceschi, Nicole Henriot, Seymour Lipkin and Leo Smit. Violin soloists are Zino Francescatti and Ruth Posselt. Other assisting artists are Doriot Anthony, flutist; William Primrose, violist; the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society; the Albeneri Trio; the Zimbler Sinfonietta; the Griller String Quartet, and the Kroll String Quartet.

In greatest demand, to date, is the opening weekend of the Berkshire Festival, July 9, 10, 11; with Series E, August 7, 8 and the Stravinsky-Mozart chamber orchestra program on August 6, in popular favor also.

At Chautauqua

Ismailia Temple's Shrine Chanters, 50 voices strong will aid in the opening of Chautauque Institution as they appear in formal concert on Monday evening, July 5, in Chautauqua's Amphitheater.

Male chorus arrangements of oratorio excerpts, German lieder, and contemporary American writings form a major portion of the program. Additional sections will be given over to patriotic airs and secular ballads.

Chautauqua officials will entertain the Buffalo unit at the Hotel Athenaeum preceding the concert performance.

Correspondence

William McGrath contacts this department from Munchen, Germany, telling of his two-month concert tour of that country and his future plans. There will be opera performances this summer for the young Medina tenor in Italy and France, cell music over the British Broadcasting Co. in September, concert appearances in Austria in October, and more opera in Geneva and Paris in November.

Wm. McGrath

He returns to the United States in December with a well-filled schedule to complete.

Jacques Singer is returning from Europe to become musical director and conductor of the Corpus Christie (Tex.) Symphony. He is former conductor of the Dallas Symphony, the Vancouver Symphony, and the orchestras in Haifa, Jerusalem, and Tel Aviv.

Cross Country

Walter Herbert has resigned as director and conductor of the New Orleans Opera Association in protest against "restrictions," and will be succeeded by Renato Cellini, association conductor of the Metropolitan Opera.

Herbert served in New Orleans for 11 years and during his tenure the New Orleans Opera gained considerable national prestige. He wrote the board that he needed more freedom in performing my duties—the old freedom that I had until a few seasons ago." The board didn't see it his way.

Cellini will take over September 1. The New Orleans Opera uses local talent mainly, but now and then engage "name" singers for principal roles. Herbert said he was going to "look around" in New York before making any plans for the future.

Education

Dr. Frederic Fay Swift, camp director and president of the New York State Music Camp, Otter Lake, has announced that the camp will offer an approved program in College Music Education this summer. Dr. Swift, who is the director of music education at Hartwick College, Oneonta, will be assisted by Willard I. Musser, director of instrumental music at the college, in teaching the course.

The collegiate work, approved by the State Education Department, is being offered as extension work by Hartwick College. Dean Wallace R. Klinger of the college will visit the camp and supervise the instruction. Dr. Joseph Saetveit, State supervisor of music, will be a guest instructor in the program.

With the approval of this new program, the music camp becomes one of the very few in the country accredited on a high school as well as a collegiate basis. Credits earned at the camp apply toward high school and college graduation.

The camp opens on July 3 with more than 150 individuals enrolled in the programs. This is the largest enrollment since the camp was founded by Dr. Swift in 1947.

Honors

The W. W. Kimball Prize of $200 for which musicians in North America compete annually, has been awarded to a New York composer, Starling A. Cumberworth, of Rochester's Eastman School.

Cumberworth's prize song, "Lullaby," was judged winner over 183 entrants from the United States, Canada and Hawaii. Announcement of the award was made recently by the Chicago Singing Teachers Guild, sponsors of the contest.

Vianna Finch, 196 Madison St., received her Bachelor of Music degree with honors in piano from the New England Conservatory of Music last week.

Warren Lyle Hartburg, of Kenmore, is among a select group of professional musicians attending the Fred Waring Music Workshop at Delaware Water Gap, Pa., last week.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.
EAGLE
JUL 4 - 1954

All-Beethoven Bill To Open Festival At Tanglewood

The 17th Berkshire Festival will commence six weeks of 24 concerts on Wednesday evening at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., with an all-Beethoven program of chamber music, featuring Claudio Arrau, pianist, and the Bel Arte String Trio. On Friday evening, Charles Munch will conduct a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players in an all-Bach program, with Lukas Foss as piano soloist.

For the first time in the festival's history, Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon concerts will be given, starting next weekend. Mr. Munch will lead the full 104-piece Boston Symphony Orchestra on Saturday in Hector Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust," with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society directed by G. Wallace Woodworth, and soloists Eleanor Steber (Marguerite), David Poleri (Faust), Martial Singher (Mephistopheles) and Donald Gramm (Brander).

On Sunday, Pierre Monteux will conduct the Boston Symphony in an all-Beethoven program, with Claudio Arrau as piano soloist, the occasion marking the 30th anniversary of Mr. Arrau's appearance with the orchestra, which was then under the baton of Mr. Monteux.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.
HERALD-JOURNAL
JUN 25 1954

TALKING IT OVER

Dinner to Honor Dr. H. L. Butler; Musicians to Motor to Coast

By EMMA VAN WORMER

A DINNER is being arranged for next Monday night in Tobins in honor of Dr. Harold Langaster Butler, who retired some years ago as dean of the College of Fine Arts, Syracuse University. Dr Butler has been living in California. Some 35 or more Syracuse friends in music will attend the dinner.

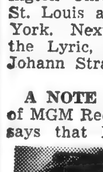
MISS HELEN JANE WRIGHT of Syracuse, long identified with music here, and Miss Gladys B. Mantell, director of music in public schools in Watertown, will leave next week on a six weeks' motor trip to California. Miss Wright has taught music in Syracuse schools and formerly was executive secretary of Morning Musicals, Inc. Miss Mantell comes to Syracuse frequently to attend music events. Miss Wright and Miss Mantell will visit San Francisco and Los Angeles, among other centers.

* * *

BEFORE HER WSYR-TV appearance yesterday, we had a little chat with statuesque Mariquita Moll, who gives a notable performance of Julie in "Show Boat" in the Lyric Circus this week. The day before, Miss Moll flew to Manhattan for a few hours to audition for a leading role in "Carousel", now running. She goes to Lambertsville to sing the title role of "Countess Maritza" late in August. Between times and later, Miss Moll will be working on grand opera roles—"Desdemona" in "Otello" and "Tosca" among those in Italian. She already has sung in the German wing of the "Met" and with Chamber Opera Companies. Her preferred game, chess. Her favorite dog is "Birthday" who travels with her.

LIKE MANY good musicians, Mariquita Moll (in private life Mrs. Sam Evans, wife of a Manhattan businessman) is a good cook. She likes to make breads and soups. For instance, there's Avocado jellied soup, especially good in hot weather. For this, Miss Moll mashes a ripe avocado and blends with this a little finely grated onion, a little chili powder and a cup of sour cream. Add a can of madrilene, mix well and place in the refrigerator to jell. Miss Moll is an alumna of Washington University in her native St. Louis and of Juilliard, New York. Next week's attraction in the Lyric, starting June 29, is Johann Strauss's "Great Waltz."

A NOTE from Sol Handweger of MGM Records, New York City, says that Harvey Norman, 19, baritone is "destined for stardom". Norman is engaged by Three Rivers In management beginning June 28. Norman, who was born in Brooklyn, went with his parents to Lakewood, N. J., attended school there. In Toms River High School, Norman played quarterback on the football team, then decided to prepare to work with his father in the frozen food business, by attending Long Island Agricultural and Technical Institute. Before long, he was playing football again and in a locker room one day, as Norman was singing, somebody passed the word along that here was a football player who really could sing. Several invitations to sing followed and it was then that Norman decided to earn enough to pay for voice lessons. He worked in the Catskills as boat boy and doing odd job in Charles and Lillian Brown's hotel, singing also. With money saved, Baritone Norman went to New York to study in earnest. He has made a few public appearances, all with success. His first MGM Record is "By My Side" and "A Dim Cafe."



Norman

* * *

GEORGE E. JUDD, manager of the Berkshire Festival Series by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. July 10-Aug. 14 says that subscribers to the 1954 season surpass those of the 1953 summer. Festival patrons have 12 instead of the usual nine concerts in the Shed this summer. Friday night Chamber Music Concert tickets are sold separately. Conductors for the Shed Concerts by the full 104-man orchestra are Festival Music Director Charles Munch and guest conductors Pierre Monteux, Jean Morel and Richard Burgin.

Judd

THE 15th BERKSHIRE Festival in which the Boston Symphony Orchestra has participated commences on Wednesday, July 7, at 8:30 P.M., with the first of six Wednesday Chamber Music concerts in the Theater Concert Hall. Claudio Arrau, eminent Chilean concert pianist, will perform Sontas Op. 79, 110, and 57 ("Appassionata"); and the Bel Arte Trio (Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola; and Martin Hoherman, cello) will perform the String Trio in G, Op. 9 No. 1 on an all-Beethoven program.

CHARLES MUNCH will conduct a chamber section of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in an all-Bach program of Brandenburg Concertos, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 5, 6, with Lukas Foss as piano soloist, at the first of six Friday chamber orchestra programs, at 8:30 P.M., in the Theater-Concert Hall, Friday, July 9.

AMONG THE season's noted soloists are Metropolitan Opera stars Eleanor Steber, soprano, and Nicola Moscona, bass-baritone; David Poleri and John McCollum, tenors; Martial Singher, baritone; Donald Gramm, bass-baritone. Piano soloists are Claudio Arrau, Lukas Foss, Vera Franceschi, Nicole Henriot, Seymour Lipkin and Leo Smit. Violin soloists are Zino Francescatti and Ruth Posselt. Other assisting artists are Doriot Anthony, flutist; William Primrose, violist, the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society; the Albeneri Trio; the Zimbler Sinfonietta; the Griller String Quartet, and the Kroll String Quartet. In greatest demand, to date, is the opening weekend of the Berkshire Festival, July 9-10-11; with Series E. Aug. 7-8 and the Stravinsky-Mozart chamber or-

PHILADELPHIA, PA.
INQUIRER
FEB 28 1954

Berkshire Festival Plans 24 Concerts

An enlarged Berkshire Festival by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, with Charles Munch as music director, is announced for July 7-Aug. 15 at Lenox, Mass. There will be 12 orchestra concerts in the Shed on Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons, and 12 chamber concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall Wednesday and Friday evenings.

Munch will conduct all the orchestral concerts except four. Pierre Monteux will conduct a Beethoven program July 11, with Claudio Arrau soloist in the "Emperor" Concerto, and a Franck program July 17. Jean Morel will conduct July 24, and Richard Burgin Aug. 1 with Ruth Posselt soloist in the Dvorak Violin Concerto. Music works by Berlioz will be given July 10, 18, 31, Aug. 8, 15.

Further information may be obtained fro mthe Berkshire Festival office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass.

BALTIMORE, MD.
MORNING SUN
JUN 27 1954

PAGE 10—Section A

Music Notes

Summer Festivals Await Travelers

By WELDON WALLACE

IN almost any direction he chooses to travel, the music lover can combine concerts with his vacation.

Summer is the signal for the beginning of festivals in many parts of this country and abroad.

Last week in this column, an interesting concert schedule booked for the Carter Barron Amphitheater in Washington was discussed.

Today we go farther afield for a few—and they are just a few—of the music and dance events that await the traveler to other points on the Eastern seaboard.

In Massachusetts

Many Baltimoreans spend their vacation in New England, and in Massachusetts alone visitors will have opportunity to sample the best in music and dance for several weeks.

At Tanglewood the Boston Symphony Orchestra will give its annual Berkshire Festival beginning with a chamber music program on the evening of July 7 and ending with a presentation of the "Requiem," by Hector Berlioz, on August 15.

Within that period orchestra concerts are programmed for every Friday and Saturday night and Sunday afternoon.

The Tanglewood schedule also includes opera and recitals.

Berkshire School

In addition to concerts, Tanglewood again will have the Berkshire Music Center, a school that attracts students from all over the world. Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony, is the school's director and Aaron Copland, a leading American composer, is assistant director.

It is interesting to note that while the Bershire Festival started as an orchestral event, and is still built around the Boston Symphony, chamber music is coming to play an increasing role in its activities.

Six Wednesday concerts of chamber music are to be given during this year's festival for the benefit of a scholarship fund, and services to these concerts are being contributed by such musical notables as Claudio Arrau, pianist; William Kroll, violinist, of the Peabody Conservatory faculty; the Bel Arte Trio and Zino Francescatti, violinist.

Dance Festival

Concurrently with the music at Tanglewood, the Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival will be going on just a few miles away at Ted Shawn's University of the Dance, near Lee, Mass.

Jacob's Pillow's programs, given in a specially designed theater, are to begin on July 1 and continue through September 4.

No less than ten different programs are booked, and each will be repeated several times.

Special Events Listed

Among the special events scheduled at Jacob's Pillow will be presentations by the following:

The Celtic Ballet of Scotland; Alicia Markova; Alexandra Danilova; Pearl Lang and her company; the Negro Dance Theater; Andre Eglevsky; the American Mime Theater; Kurt and Grace Graff; Ram Gopal, world famous Hindu dancer; Hadassah and her dance company; Emerson and Jayne, dance satirists; the Lester Horton Dance Theater from California; the John Butler Theater; and Michael Maule and Mary Ellen Moylan. (Mr. Maule, a member of the New York City Center Ballet Company, played the male lead in a classic-ballet program given by the Peabody Conservatory Dance Department a few weeks ago.)

Miss Carol Lynn, director of the Peabody dance department, is associate director, with Ted Shawn, of the Jacob's Pillow University of the Dance.

In Connecticut, the pop concerts given by the New Haven Symphony Orchestra (sixth oldest orchestra in the nation) are being presented for the tenth season.

This year's program began last Tuesday and will continue on five Tuesdays in July and August. Program fare is on the light side, including music by Gershwin, Cole Porter and Rodgers, and featuring popular concert favorites like José Iturbi; Teddy Wilson, jazz pianist, and Roberta Peters, Metropolitan Opera coloratura.

An interesting chamber music series has been announced by the Eastman School of Music in Rochester, New York.

From Bach To Copland

The Eastman Chamber Orchestra, comprising 26 players chosen from the Eastman faculty, is to present programs on five consecutive Thursdays, beginning July 1. Howard Hanson and Frederick Fennell are to conduct works ranging from Johann Sebastian Bach to Aaron Copland and Stravinsky.

In former years, light music—music valuable more for entertainment than for profundity—was considered the only music suitable for summer concerts in most places.

In recent years, however, this has changed. The response of music lovers has proved that the most demanding concert works are as welcome in warm weather as in winter.

BUFFALO, N. Y.
NEWS
JUN 21 1954

CHORAL GROUPS WIN APPROVAL IN GALLERY PROGRAM

CHORAL ARTISTRY blended with masterpieces of art when the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society made the Albright Art Gallery their first stop Sunday on a transcontinental concert tour.

In a setting ringed with timeless treasures, the 50-voice mixed chorus seemingly breathed life into paintings and sculpture through the gallery. Enthusiasm and approval came from an audience which exceeded the 311 folding chairs set up in the main court by the sponsoring Harvard and Radcliffe Clubs of Buffalo.

Listeners overflowed onto outside parapets where the afternoon breezes enhanced the fullness of the collegiate program which ranged from medieval hymns to contemporary American songs. A few persons strolled through the gallery's hall to view the art masterpieces against the choral background.

Edward H. Kavinoky greeted the audience, on behalf of the sponsoring clubs. He noted the tour will take the group "west of the Mississippi" for the first time.

Although Buffalo was the first stop, the tour actually opened Friday in the Boston Public Gardens before an audience of 12,000. The ten-stop itinerary includes a concert this evening at Oxford, O., before winding up on July 10 at the Berkshire Music Festival, Tanglewood, Mass.

The concert was recorded for later broadcast on WBEN, Mr. Kavinoky announced.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.
EAGLE
FEB 23 1954

New Met Singer

The Metropolitan Opera has engaged Rosalind Elias, young American mezzo-soprano from Lowell, Mass., who has appeared on the Metropolitan Auditions of the Air. For several seasons she was solo artist with the Berkshire Music Festival in "Tanglewood," and has made guest appearances with the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Miss Elias studied opera in Italy at San Carlo, di Napoli, is a winner of the American Theater Wing Scholarship.

160

TIGHT BINDING

OF TRAVEL

Arrive
Tour
ems

f the cus-
The Fiesta improve-of South-mpton the Ladies Vil-
ciety Fair scheduled rounds of y Mulford
e Village
the day-
booths set
, a "play-
a fashion
Country
round and eeds are the elms
s Main e greens ucational tions.

ns, Litchrong the pleasant gland, are lays this outes 25
rthwesten eight buildings rday. On
U. S. 1, visitors.
udes the 1690; in Gilbert
be seen.
are fur-the two ds from to the building ouse is Junior ational

g and neat-

nglewood

an Hill Road which biarm and which I travel round, the contributions ns and refuse from nan months of the year is than during the six Tanglewood season.
member with nostalgia
the slow clop-clop of a country road but lack, are gone. Feder-ve taken the great urned them into tax-
ls. For all Tanglemay offend with orts, they have been
d by the sly glance little gouging by the
and cat-calls from
There is give-and-
at will vivilize both,
vilizing is required.
awk about town par-
nglewood plans, Mr.
is artfully obscure.
participation by the musical program
h a selectman ad-
h or Mr. Copland?
require earlier no-
and assistance in possible attend-nation of proposed ow almost entire-of the Selectmen
Mr. Goggins?
mean by a "good couple of thous-
does, why take it
of the goose and ctors of the gold-
ld be the first to Tanglewood real-stakes"?
had a long-time
nith from which think he is far this theme. If h he rarely at-
Polo Grounds or m, where he is r and the Berkwere a Coopers-
, he would over-le profit motive mmend subsidies
ty to the "art"
r way round.
GE HORWITT.

1954

BUFFALO, N. Y.
COURIER-EXPRESS
JUN 27 1954

In the Realm of Music

Tanglewood Subscriptions Surpass Record for '53

By KENNETH GILL

Subscribers for the 1954 Berkshire Festival series by the Boston Symphony Orchestra for concerts on six Saturday evenings, July 10 to August 14, and on six Sunday afternoons, July 11 to August 15, in the huge Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., have surpassed those of the summer of 1953, Manager George E. Judd announces.

Prices for the Shed concerts by Charles Munch the 104-man Boston Symphony Orchestra, Music Director Charles Munch conducts, with Pierre Monteux, Jean Morel and Richard Burgin as guest conductors, are specially less this year, since the Friday night chamber orchestra concerts in the intimate Theater-Concert Hall are being sold separately. Yet Festival patrons have 12, instead of nine, Shed concerts this summer. The subscription sale, officially over June 1, was extended 10 days for the convenience of Berkshire County residents.

Among the season's noted soloists are Metropolitan Opera stars Eleanor Steber, soprano; Nicola Moscona, bass-baritone; David Poleri and John McCollum, tenors; Martial Singher, baritone; Donald Gramm, bass-baritone.

Piano soloists are Claudio Arrau, Lukas Foss, Vera Franceschi, Nicole Henriot, Seymour Lipkin and Leo Smit. Violin soloists are Zino Francescatti and Ruth Posselt. Other assisting artists are Doriot Anthony, flutist; William Primrose, violist; the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society; the Albeneri Trio; the Zimbler Sinfonietta; the Griller String Quartet, and the Kroll String Quartet.

In greatest demand, to date, is the opening weekend of the Berkshire Festival, July 9, 10, 11; with Series E, August 7, 8 and the Stravinsky-Mozart chamber orchestra program on August 6, in popular favor also.

At Chautauqua

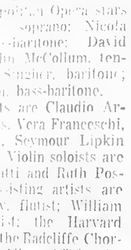
Ismailia Temple's Shrine Chanters, 50 voices strong will aid in the opening of Chautauque Institution as they appear in formal concert on Monday evening, July 5, in Chautauqua's Amphitheater.

Male chorus arrangements of oratorio excerpts, German lieder, and contemporary American writings form a major portion of the program. Additional sections will be given over to patriotic airs and secular ballads.

Chautauqua officials will entertain the Buffalo unit at the Hotel Athenaeum preceding the concert performance.

Correspondence

William McGrath contacts this department from Munchen, Germany, telling of his two-month concert tour of that country and his future plans. There will be opera performances this summer for the young Medina tenor in Italy and France, cell music over the British Broadcasting Co. in September, concert appearances in Austria in October, and more opera in Geneva and Paris in November.



Wm. McGrath

He returns to the United States in December with a well-filled schedule to complete.

Jacques Singer is returning from Europe to become musical director and conductor of the Corpus Christie, Tex.) Symphony. He is former conductor of the Dallas Symphony, the Vancouver Symphony, and the orchestras in Haifa, Jerusalem, and Tel Aviv.

Cross Country

Walter Herbert has resigned as director and conductor of the New Orleans Opera Association in protest against "restrictions" and will be succeeded by Renato Cellini, association conductor of the Metropolitan Opera.

Herbert served in New Orleans for 11 years and during his tenure the New Orleans Opera gained considerable national prestige. He wrote the board that he needed more freedom in performing my duties—the old freedom that I had until a few seasons ago." The board didn't see it his way.

Cellini will take over September 1. The New Orleans Opera will not engage "name" singers for principal roles. Herbert said he was going to "look around" in New York before making any plans for the future.

Education

Dr. Frederic Fay Swift, camp director and president of the New York State Music Camp, Otter Lake, has announced that the camp will offer an approved program in College Music Education this summer. Dr. Swift, who is the director of music education at Hartwick College, Oneonta, will be assisted by Willard I. Musser, director of instrumental music at the college, in teaching the course.

The collegiate work, approved by the State Education Department, is being offered as extension work by Hartwick College. Dean Wallace R. Klinger of the college will visit the camp and supervise the instruction. Dr. Joseph Saetveit, State supervisor of music, will be a guest instructor in the program.

With the approval of this new program, the music camp becomes one of the very few in the country accredited on a high school as well as a collegiate basis. Credits earned at the camp apply toward high school and college graduation.

The camp opens on July 3 with more than 150 individuals enrolled in the programs. This is the largest enrollment since the camp was founded by Dr. Swift in 1947.

Honors

The W. W. Kimball Prize of $200 for which musicians in North America compete annually has been awarded to a New York composer, Starling A. Cumberworth, of Rochester's Eastman School.

Cumberworth's prize song, "Lullaby," was judged winner over 183 entrants from the United States, Canada and Hawaii. Announcement of the award was made recently by the Chicago Singing Teachers Guild, sponsors of the contest.

Vianna Finch, 196 Madison St., received her Bachelor of Music degree with honors in piano from the New England Conservatory of Music last week.

Warren Lyle Hartburg, of Kenmore, is among a select group of professional musicians attending the Fred Waring Music Workshop at Delaware Water Gap, Pa., last week.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.
EAGLE
JUL 4 - 1954

All-Beethoven Bill To Open Festival At Tanglewood

The 17th Berkshire Festival will commence six weeks of 24 concerts on Wednesday evening at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., with an all-Beethoven program of chamber music, featuring Claudio Arrau, pianist, and the Bel Arte String Trio. On Friday evening, Charles Munch will conduct a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players in an all-Bach program, with Lukas Foss as piano soloist.

For the first time in the festival's history, Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon concerts will be given, starting next weekend. Mr. Munch will lead the full 104-piece Boston Symphony Orchestra on Saturday in Hector Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust," with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society directed by G. Wallace Woodworth, and soloists Eleanor Steber (Marguerite), David Poleri (Faust), Martial Singher (Mephistopheles) and Donald Gramm (Brander).

On Sunday, Pierre Monteux will conduct the Boston Symphony in an all-Beethoven program, with Claudio Arrau as piano soloist, the occasion marking the 30th anniversary of Mr. Arrau's first appearance with the orchestra, which was then under the baton of Mr. Monteux.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.
HERALD-JOURNAL
JUN 25 1954

TALKING IT OVER

Dinner to Honor Dr. H. L. Butler; Musicians to Motor to Coast

By EMMA VAN WORMER

A DINNER is being arranged for next Monday night in Tobins in honor of Dr. Harold Lancaster Butler, who retired some years ago as dean of the College of Fine Arts, Syracuse University. Dr Butler has been living in California. Some 35 or more Syracuse friends in music will attend the dinner.

MISS HELEN JANE WRIGHT of Syracuse, long identified with music here, and Miss Gladys B. Mantell, director of music in public schools in Watertown, will leave next week on a six weeks' motor trip to California. Miss Wright has taught music in Syracuse schools and formerly was executive secretary of Morning Musicals, Inc. Miss Mantell comes to Syracuse frequently to attend music events. Miss Wright and Miss Mantell will visit San Francisco and Los Angeles, among other centers.

* * *

BEFORE HER WSYR-TV appearance yesterday, we had a little chat with statuesque Mariquita Moll, who gives a notable performance of Julie in "Show Boat" in the Lyric Circus this week. The day before, Miss Moll flew to Manhattan for a few hours to audition for a leading role in "Carousel", now running. She goes to Lambertsville to sing the title role of "Countess Maritza" late in August. Between times and later, Miss Moll will be working on grand opera roles—"Desdemona" in "Otello" and "Tosca" among those in Italian. She already has sung in the German wing of the "Met" and with Chamber Opera Companies. Her preferred game, chess. Her favorite dog is "Birthday" who travels with her.

LIKE MANY good musicians, Mariquita Moll (in private life Mrs. Sam Evans, wife of a Manhattan businessman) is a good cook. She likes to make breads and soups. For instance, there's Avocado jellied soup, especially good in hot weather. For this, Miss Moll mashes a ripe avocado and blends with this a little finely grated onion, a little chili powder and a cup of sour cream. Add a can of madrilene, mix well and place in the refrigerator to jell. Miss Moll is an alumna of Washington University in her native St. Louis and of Juilliard, New York. Next week's attraction in the Lyric, starting June 29, is Johann Strauss's "Great Waltz."

A NOTE from Sol Handweger of MGM Records, New York City, says that Harvey Norman, 19, baritone is "destined for stardom". Norman is engaged by Three Rivers In management beginning June 28. Norman, who was born in Brooklyn, went with his parents to Lakewood, N. J., attended school there. In Toms River High School, Norman played quarterback on the football team, then decided to prepare to work with his father in the frozen food business, by attending Long Island Agricultural and Technical Institute. Before long, he was playing football again and in a locker room one day, as Norman was singing, somebody passed the word along that here was a football player who really could sing. Several invitations to sing followed and it was then that Norman decided to earn enough to pay for voice lessons. He worked in the Catskills as boat boy and doing odd job in Charles and Lillian Brown's hotel, singing also. With money saved, Baritone Norman went to New York to study in earnest. He has made a few public appearances, all with success. His first MGM Record is "By My Side" and "A Dim Cafe."

Norman

* * *

GEORGE E. JUDD, manager of the Berkshire Festival Series by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in "Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass July 10-Aug. 14 says that subscribers to the 1954 season surpass those of the 1953 summer Festival patrons have 12 instead of the usual nine concerts in the Shed this summer.

Judd

Friday night Chamber Music Concert tickets are sold separately. Conductors for the Shed Concerts by the full 104-man orchestra are Festival Music Director Charles Munch and guest conductors Pierre Monteux, Jean Morel and Richard Burgin.

THE 15th BERKSHIRE Festival in which the Boston Symphony Orchestra has participated commences on Wednesday, July 7, at 8:30 P.M., with the first of six Wednesday Chamber Music concerts in the Theater Concert Hall. Claudio Arrau, eminent Chilean concert pianist, will perform Sontas Op. 79, 110, and 57 ("Appassionata"); and the Bel Arte Trio (Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola; and Martin Hoherman, cello) will perform the String Trio in G, Op. 9 No. 1 on an all-Beethoven program.

CHARLES MUNCH will conduct a chamber section of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in an all-Bach program of Brandenburg Concertos, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 5, 6, with Lukas Foss as piano soloist, at the first of six Friday chamber orchestra programs, at 8:30 P.M., in the Theater-Concert Hall, Friday, July 9.

AMONG THE season's noted soloists are Metropolitan Opera stars Eleanor Steber, soprano, and Nicola Moscona, bass-baritone; David Poleri and John McCollum, tenors; Martial Singher, baritone; Donald Gramm, bass-baritone. Piano soloists are Claudio Arrau, Lukas Foss, Vera Franceschi, Nicole Henriot, Seymour Lipkin and Leo Smit. Violin soloists are Zino Francescatti and Ruth Posselt. Other assisting artists are Doriot Anthony, flutist; William Primrose, violist, the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society; the Albeneri Trio; the Zimbler Sinfonietta; the Griller String Quartet, and the Kroll String Quartet. In greatest demand, is the opening weekend of the Berkshire Festival, July 9-10-11; with Series E. Aug. 7-8 and the Stravinsky-Mozart chamber or-

PHILADELPHIA, PA.
INQUIRER
FEB 28 1954

Berkshire Festival Plans 24 Concerts

An enlarged Berkshire Festival by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, with Charles Munch as music director, is announced for July 7-Aug. 15 at Lenox, Mass. There will be 12 orchestra concerts in the Shed on Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons, and 12 chamber concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall Wednesday and Friday evenings.

Munch will conduct all the orchestral concerts except four. Pierre Monteux will conduct a Beethoven program July 11, with Claudio Arrau soloist in the "Emperor" Concerto, and a Franck program July 17. Jean Morel will conduct July 24, and Richard Burgin Aug. 1 with Ruth Posselt soloist in the Dvorak Violin Concerto. Major works by Berlioz will be given July 10, 18, 31, Aug. 8, 15.

Further information may be obtained fro mthe Berkshire Festival office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass.

BALTIMORE, MD.
MORNING SUN
JUN 27 1954 3

Music Notes

Summer Festivals Await Travelers

By WELDON WALLACE

IN almost any direction he chooses to travel, the music lover can combine concerts with his vacation.

Summer is the signal for the beginning of festivals in many parts of this country and abroad.

Last week in this column, an interesting concert schedule booked for the Carter Barron Amphitheater in Washington was discussed.

Today we go farther afield for a few—and they are just a few—of the music and dance events that await the traveler to other points on the Eastern seaboard.

In Massachusetts

Many Baltimoreans spend their vacation in New England, and in Massachusetts alone visitors will have opportunity to sample the best in music and dance for several weeks.

At Tanglewood the Boston Symphony Orchestra will give its annual Berkshire Festival, beginning with a chamber music program on the evening of July 7 and ending with a presentation of the "Requiem," by Hector Berlioz, on August 15.

Within that period orchestra concerts are programmed for every Friday and Saturday night and Sunday afternoon.

The Tanglewood schedule also includes opera and recitals.

Berkshire School

In addition to concerts, Tanglewood again will have the Berkshire Music Center, a school that attracts students from all over the world. Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony, is the school's director and Aaron Copland, a leading American composer, is assistant director.

It is interesting to note that while the Bershire Festival started as an orchestral event, and is still built around the Boston Symphony, chamber music is coming to play an increasing role in its activities.

Six Wednesday concerts of chamber music are to be given during this year's festival for the benefit of a scholarship fund, and services to these concerts are being contributed by such musical notables as Claudio Arrau, pianist; William Kroll, violinist, of the Peabody Conservatory faculty; the Bel Arte Trio and Zino Francescatti, violinist.

Dance Festival

Concurrently with the music at Tanglewood, the Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival will be going on just a few miles away, at Ted Shawn's University of the Dance, near Lee, Mass.

Jacob's Pillow's programs, given in a specially designed theater, are to begin on July 1 and continue through September 4.

No less than ten different programs are booked, and each will be repeated several times.

Special Events Listed

Among the special events scheduled at Jacob's Pillow will be presentations by the following:

The Celtic Ballet of Scotland; Alicia Markova; Alexandra Danilova; Pearl Lang and her company; the Negro Dance Theater; Andre Eglevsky; the American Mime Theater; Kurt and Grace Graff; Ram Gopal, world famous Hindu dancer; Hadassah and her dance company; Emerson and Jayne, dance satirists; the Lester Horton Dance Theater from California; the John Butler Theater; and Michael Maule and Mary Ellen Moylan. (Mr. Maule, a member of the New York City Center Ballet Company, played the male lead in a classic-ballet program given by the Peabody Conservatory Dance Department a few weeks ago.)

Miss Carol Lynn, director of the Peabody dance department, is associate director, with Ted Shawn, of the Jacob's Pillow University of the Dance.

In Connecticut, the pop concerts given by the New Haven Symphony Orchestra (sixth oldest orchestra in the nation) are being presented for the tenth season.

This year's program began last Tuesday and will continue on five Tuesdays in July and August. Program fare is on the light side, including music by Gershwin, Cole Porter and Rodgers, and featuring popular concert favorites like José Iturbi; Teddy Wilson, jazz pianist, and Roberta Peters, Metropolitan Opera coloratura.

An interesting chamber music series has been announced by the Eastman School of Music in Rochester, New York.

From Bach To Copland

The Eastman Chamber Orchestra, comprising 26 players chosen from the Eastman faculty, is to present programs on five consecutive Thursdays, beginning July 1. Howard Hanson and Frederick Fennell are to conduct works ranging from Johann Sebastian Bach to Aaron Copland and Stravinsky.

In former years, light music—music valuable more for entertainment than for profundity—was considered the only music suitable for summer concerts in most places.

In recent years, however, this has changed. The response of music lovers has proved that the most demanding concert works are as welcome in warm weather as in winter.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.
EAGLE
5
FEB 23 1954

New Met Singer

The Metropolitan Opera has engaged Rosalind Elias, young American mezzo-soprano from Lowell, Mass., who has appeared on the Metropolitan Auditions of the Air. For several seasons she was solo artist with the Berkshire Music Festival in "Tanglewood," and has made guest appearances with the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Miss Elias studied opera in Italy at San Carlo, di Napoli, is a winner of the American Theater Wing Scholarship.

[160]

BUFFALO, N. Y.
NEWS
JUN 21 1954

CHORAL GROUPS WIN APPROVAL IN GALLERY PROGRAM

CHORAL ARTISTRY blended with masterpieces of art when the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society made the Albright Art Gallery their first stop Sunday on a transcontinental concert tour.

In a setting ringed with timeless treasures, the 50-voice mixed chorus seemingly breathed life into paintings and sculpture through the gallery. Enthusiasm and approval came from an audience which exceeded the 311 folding chairs set up in the main court by the sponsoring Harvard and Radcliffe Clubs of Buffalo.

Listeners overflowed onto outside parapets where the afternoon breezes enhanced the fullness of the collegians' program which ranged from medieval hymns to contemporary American songs. A few persons strolled through the gallery's hall to view the art masterpieces against the choral background.

Edward H. Kavinoky greeted the audience on behalf of the sponsoring clubs. He noted the tour will take the group "west of the Mississippi" for the first time.

Although Buffalo was the first stop, the tour actually opened Friday in the Boston Public Gardens before an audience of 12,000. The ten-stop itinerary includes a concert this evening at Oxford, O., before winding up on July 10 at the Berkshire Music Festival, Tanglewood, Mass.

The concert was recorded for later broadcast on WBEN, Mr. Kavinoky announced.

TIGHT BINDING

OF TRAVEL

Arrive
Tour
as the cus-e Fiesta mprove-f South-ton the ies Vil-

y Fair heduled unds of Mulford
Village
he day-ths set
"play-fashion
Country
nd and ls are e elms
Main greens ational
as.

Litch-
g the asant
d, are this s 25
west-light ings
On
. 1,
ors.
the
in ert
en.
arvo
m ne
g ds er

lewood

ill Road which bi-and which I travel
the contributions refuse from nanths of the year is during the six glewood season.
er with nostalgia
slow clop-clop of country road but are gone. Federtaken the great them into tax-
For all Tangleay offend with they have been
by the sly glance
gouging by the cat-calls from ere is give-and-ill civilize both,
ing is required.
about town par-
wood plans, Mr.
rtfully obscure.
icipation by the usical program selectman ad-
Mr. Copland?
ire earlier no-assistance in ssible attendon of proposed almost entire-the Selectmen Goggins?. n by a "good
uple of thous-
, why take it
the goose and of the gold-
e the first to glewood real-
ies"?
a long-time
from which nk he is far
's theme. If e rarely at-Grounds or where he is nd the Berkre a Coopers-
e would over-profit motive end subsidies to the "art"
way round.
HORWITT.

1954

BUFFALO, N. Y.
COURIER-EXPRESS
JUN 27 1954

In the Realm of Music

Tanglewood Subscriptions Surpass Record for '53

By KENNETH GILL

Subscribers for the 1954 B[erk]shire Festival series by the [Bos]ton Symphony Orchestra [are] ceived on six Saturday[s] July 10 to August 14, and on six Sunday afternoons, July 11 to August 15, in the huge Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., have surpassed those of the summer of 1953, Manager George E. Judd announces.

Prices for the Shed concerts by Charles Munch the 104-man Boston Symphony Orchestra, Music Director [Munch] conducts, with Pierre Monteux, Jean Morel and Richard Burgin as guest conductors [appearing] less this year, since the Friday night chamber orchestra concerts in the intimate Theatre-Concert Hall are being sold separately. Yet Festival patrons have 12, instead of nine, concerts this summer. The subscription sale officially over June 1 was extended 10 days for the convenience of Berkshire County residents.

Among the season's noted soloists are Metropolitan Opera stars Eleanor Steber, soprano; Nicola Moscona, bass-baritone; David Poleri and John McCollum, tenors; Martial Singher, baritone; Donald Gramm, bass-baritone.

Piano soloists are Claudio Arrau, Lukas Foss, Vera Franceschi, Nicole Henriot, Seymour Lipkin and Leo Smit. Violin soloists are Zino Francescatti and Ruth Posselt. Other assisting artists are Doriot Anthony, flutist; William Primrose, violist; the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society; the Albeneri Trio; the Zimbler Sinfonietta; the Griller String Quartet and the Kroll String Quartet.

In greatest demand, to date, is the opening weekend of the Berkshire Festival, July 9, 10, 11; with Series E, August 7, 8 and the Stravinsky-Mozart chamber orchestra program on August 6, in popular favor also.

At Chautauqua

Ismailia Temple's Shrine Chanters, 50 voices strong will aid in the opening of Chautauque Institution as they appear in formal concert on Monday evening, July 5, in Chautauqua's Amphitheater.

Male chorus arrangements of oratorio excerpts, German lieder, and contemporary American writings form a major portion of the program. Additional sections will be given over to patriotic airs and secular ballads.

Chautauqua officials will entertain the Buffalo unit at the Hotel Athenaeum preceding the concert performance.

Correspondence

William McGrath contacts this department from Munchen, Germany, telling of his two-month concert tour of that country and his future plans. There will be opera performances this summer for the young Medina tenor in Italy and France, cell music over the British Broadcasting Co. in September, concert appearances in Austria in October, and more opera in Geneva and Paris in November.

Wm. McGrath

He returns to the United States in December with a well-filled schedule to complete.

Jacques Singer is returning from Europe to become musical director and conductor of the Corpus Christie (Tex.) Symphony. He is former conductor of the Dallas Symphony, the Vancouver Symphony, and the orchestras in Haifa, Jerusalem, and Tel Aviv.

Cross Country

Walter [illegible] director [illegible] concerts [illegible] New Orleans Opera Association in prote[illegible] and will be succeeded by Renato Cellini, [illegible] the Metropolitan Opera.

Herbert served in New Orleans for 11 [illegible] ure the New Orleans Opera gained considerable [illegible] prestige. He wrote the board that he needed more freedom in per-

BROOKLYN, N. Y.
EAGLE
JUL 4 - 1954

All-Beethoven Bill To Open Festival At Tanglewood

The 17th Berkshire Festival will commence six weeks of 24 concerts on Wednesday evening at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., with an all-Beethoven program of chamber music, featuring Claudio Arrau, pianist, and the Bel Arte string Trio. On Friday evening, Charles Munch will conduct a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players in an all-Bach program, with Lukas Foss as piano soloist.

For the first time in the festival's history, Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon concerts will be given, starting next weekend. Mr. Munch will lead the full 104-piece Boston Symphony Orchestra on Saturday in Hector Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust," with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society directed by G. Wallace Woodworth, and soloists Eleanor Steber (Marguerite), David Poleri (Faust), Martial Singher (Mephistophèles) and Donald Gramm (Brander).

On Sunday, Pierre Monteux will conduct the Boston Symphony in an all-Beethoven program, with Claudio Arrau as piano soloist, the occasion marking the 30th anniversary of Mr. Arrau's first appearance with the orchestra, which was then under the direction of Mr. Monteux.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.
HERALD-JOURNAL
JUN 25 1954

TALKING IT OVER

Dinner to Honor Dr. H. L. Butler; Musicians to Motor to Coast

By EMMA VAN WORMER

A DINNER is being arranged for next Monday night in Tobins in honor of Dr. Harold Lancaster Butler, who retired some years ago as dean of the College of Fine Arts, Syracuse University. Dr Butler has been living in California. Some 35 or more Syracuse friends in music will attend the dinner.

MISS HELEN JANE WRIGHT of Syracuse, long identified with music here, and Miss Gladys B. Mantell, director of music in public schools in Watertown, will leave next week on a six weeks' motor trip to California. Miss Wright has taught music in Syracuse schools and formerly was executive secretary of Morning Musicals, Inc. Miss Mantell comes to Syracuse frequently to attend music events. Miss Wright and Miss Mantell will visit San Francisco and Los Angeles, among other centers.

* * *

BEFORE HER WSYR-TV appearance yesterday, we had a little chat with statuesque Mariquita Moll, who gives a notable performance of Julie in "Show Boat" in the Lyric Circus this week. The day before, Miss Moll flew to Manhattan for a few hours to audition for a leading role in "Carousel", now running. She goes to Lambertsville to sing the title role of "Countess Maritza" late in August. Between times and later, Miss Moll will be working on grand opera roles—"Desdemona" in "Otello" and "Tosca" among those in Italian. She already has sung in the German wing of the "Met" and with Chamber Opera Companies. Her preferred game, chess. Her favorite dog is "Birthday" who travels with her.

LIKE MANY good musicians, Mariquita Moll (in private life Mrs. Sam Evans, wife of a Manhattan businessman) is a good cook. She likes to make breads and soups. For instance, there's Avocado jellied soup, especially good in hot weather. For this, Miss Moll mashes a ripe avocado and blends with this a little finely grated onion, a little chili powder and a cup of sour cream. Add a can of madrilene, mix well and place in the refrigerator to jell. Miss Moll is an alumna of Washington University in her native St. Louis and of Juilliard, New York. Next week's attraction in the Lyric, starting June 29, is Johann Strauss's "Great Waltz."

A NOTE from Sol Handweger of MGM Records, New York City, says that Harvey Norman, 19, baritone is "destined for stardom". Norman is engaged by Three Rivers In management beginning June 28. Norman, who was born in Brooklyn, went with his parents to Lakewood, N. J., attended school there. In Toms River High School, Norman played quarterback on the football team, then decided to prepare to work with his father in the frozen food business, by attending Long Island Agricultural and Technical Institute. Before long, he was playing football again and in a locker room one day, as Norman was singing, somebody passed the word along that here was a football player who really could sing. Several invitations to sing followed and it was then that Norman decided to earn enough to pay for voice lessons. He worked in the Catskills as boat boy and doing odd job in Charles and Lillian Brown's hotel, singing also. With money saved, Baritone Norman went to New York to study in earnest. He has made a few public appearances, all with success. His first MGM Record is "By My Side" and "A Dim Cafe."

Norman

* * *

GEORGE E. JUDD, manager of the Berkshire Festival Series by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in "Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass July 10-Aug. 14 says that subscribers to the 1954 season surpass those of the 1953 summer Festival patrons have 12 instead of the usual nine concerts in the Shed this summer. Friday night Chamber Music Concert tickets are sold separately. Conductors for the Shed Concerts by the full 104-man orchestra are Festival Music Director Charles Munch and guest conductors Pierre Monteux, Jean Morel and Richard Burgin.

Judd

THE 15th BERKSHIRE Festival in which the Boston Symphony Orchestra has participated commences on Wednesday, July 7, at 8:30 P.M., with the first of six Wednesday Chamber Music concerts in the Theater Concert Hall. Claudio Arrau, eminent Chilean concert pianist, will perform Sontas Op. 79, 110, and 57 ("Appassionata"); and the Bel Arte Trio (Ruth Posselt, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, viola; and Martin Hoherman, cello) will perform the String Trio in G, Op. 9 No. 1 on an all-Beethoven program.

CHARLES MUNCH will conduct a chamber section of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in an all-Bach program of Brandenburg Concertos, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 5, 6. with Lukas Foss as piano soloist, at the first of six Friday chamber orchestra programs, at 8:30 P.M., in the Theater-Concert Hall, Friday, July 9.

AMONG THE season's noted soloists are Metropolitan Opera stars Eleanor Steber, soprano, and Nicola Moscona, bass-baritone; David Poleri and John McCollum, tenors; Martial Singher, baritone; Donald Gramm, bass-baritone. Piano soloists are Claudio Arrau, Lukas Foss, Vera Franceschi, Nicole Henriot, Seymour Lipkin and Leo Smit. Violin soloists are Zino Francescatti and Ruth Posselt. Other assisting artists are Doriot Anthony, flutist; William Primrose, violist, the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society; the Albeneri Trio; the Zimbler Sinfonietta; the Griller String Quartet, and the Kroll String Quartet. In greatest demand, to date, is the opening weekend of the Berkshire Festival, July 9-10-11; with Series E. Aug. 7-8 and the Stravinsky-Mozart chamber orchestra program on Aug. 6, in popular favor also.

Plans 24 Concerts

An enlarged Berkshire Festival by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, with Charles Munch as music director, is announced for July 7-Aug. 15 at Lenox, Mass. There will be 12 orchestra concerts in the Shed on Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons, and 12 chamber concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall Wednesday and Friday evenings.

Munch will conduct all the orchestral concerts except four. Pierre Monteux will conduct a Beethoven program July 11, with Claudio Arrau soloist in the "Emperor" Concerto, and a Franck program July 17. Jean Morel will conduct July 24, and Richard Burgin Aug. 1 with Ruth Posselt soloist in the Dvorak Violin Concerto. Major works by Berlioz will be given July 10, 18, 31, Aug. 8, 15.

Further information may be obtained fro mthe Berkshire Festival office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass.

BALTIMORE, MD.
MORNING SUN
JUN 27 1954 3

Music Notes

Summer Festivals Await Travelers

By WELDON WALLACE

IN almost any direction he chooses to travel, the music lover can combine concerts with his vacation.

Summer is the signal for the beginning of festivals in many parts of this country and abroad.

Last week in this column, an interesting concert schedule booked for the Carter Barron Amphitheater in Washington was discussed.

Today we go farther afield for a few—and they are just a few—of the music and dance events that await the traveler to other points on the Eastern seaboard.

In Massachusetts

Many Baltimoreans spend their vacation in New England, and in Massachusetts alone visitors will have opportunity to sample the best in music and dance for several weeks.

At Tanglewood the Boston Symphony Orchestra will give its annual Berkshire Festival, beginning with a chamber music program on the evening of July 7 and ending with a presentation of the "Requiem," by Hector Berlioz, on August 15.

Within that period orchestra concerts are programmed for every Friday and Saturday night and Sunday afternoon.

The Tanglewood schedule also includes opera and recitals.

Berkshire School

In addition to concerts, Tanglewood again will have the Berkshire Music Center, a school that attracts students from all over the world. Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony, is the school's director and Aaron Copland, a leading American composer, is assistant director.

It is interesting to note that while the Bershire Festival started as an orchestral event, and is still built around the Boston Symphony, chamber music is coming to play an increasing role in its activities.

Six Wednesday concerts of chamber music are to be given during this year's festival for the benefit of a scholarship fund, and services to these concerts are being contributed by such musical notables as Claudio Arrau, pianist; William Kroll, violinist, of the Peabody Conservatory faculty; the Bel Arte Trio and Zino Francescatti, violinist.

Dance Festival

Concurrently with the music at Tanglewood, the Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival will be going on just a few miles away, at Ted Shawn's University of the Dance, near Lee, Mass.

Jacob's Pillow's programs, given in a specially designed theater, are to begin on July 1 and continue through September 4.

No less than ten different programs are booked, and each will be repeated several times.

Special Events Listed

Among the special events scheduled at Jacob's Pillow will be presentations by the following:

The Celtic Ballet of Scotland; Alicia Markova; Alexandra Danilova; Pearl Lang and her company; the Negro Dance Theater; Andre Eglevsky; the American Mime Theater; Kurt and Grace Graff; Ram Gopal, world famous Hindu dancer; Hadassah and her dance company; Emerson and Jayne, dance satirists; the Lester Horton Dance Theater from California; the John Butler Theater; and Michael Maule and Mary Ellen Moylan. (Mr. Maule, a member of the New York City Center Ballet Company, played the male lead in a classic-ballet program given by the Peabody Conservatory Dance Department a few weeks ago.)

Miss Carol Lynn, director of the Peabody dance department, is associate director, with Ted Shawn, of the Jacob's Pillow University of the Dance.

In Connecticut, the pop concerts given by the New Haven Symphony Orchestra (sixth oldest orchestra in the nation) are being presented for the tenth season.

This year's program began last Tuesday and will continue on five Tuesdays in July and August. Program fare is on the light side, including music by Gershwin, Cole Porter and Rodgers, and featuring popular concert favorites like José Iturbi; Teddy Wilson, jazz pianist, and Roberta Peters, Metropolitan Opera coloratura.

An interesting chamber music series has been announced by the Eastman School of Music in Rochester, New York.

From Bach To Copland

The Eastman Chamber Orchestra, comprising 26 players chosen from the Eastman faculty, is to present programs on five consecutive Thursdays, beginning July 1. Howard Hanson and Frederick Fennell are to conduct works ranging from Johann Sebastian Bach to Aaron Copland and Stravinsky.

In former years, light music —music valuable more for entertainment than for profundity —was considered the only music suitable for summer concerts in most places.

In recent years, however, this has changed. The response of music lovers has proved that the most demanding concert works are as welcome in warm weather as in winter.

BUFFALO, N. Y.
NEWS
JUN 21 1954

CHORAL GROUPS WIN APPROVAL IN GALLERY PROGRAM

CHORAL ARTISTRY blended with masterpieces of art when the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society made the Albright Art Gallery their first stop Sunday on a transcontinental concert tour.

In a setting ringed with timeless treasures, the 50-voice mixed chorus seemingly breathed life into paintings and sculpture through the gallery. Enthusiasm and approval came from an audience which exceeded the 311 folding chairs set up in the main court by the sponsoring Harvard and Radcliffe Clubs of Buffalo.

Listeners overflowed onto outside parapets where the afternoon breezes enhanced the fullness of the collegians' program which ranged from medieval hymns to contemporary American songs. A few persons strolled through the gallery's hall to view the art masterpieces against the choral background.

Edward H. Kavinoky greeted the audience on behalf of the sponsoring clubs. He noted the tour will take the group "west of the Mississippi" for the first time.

Although Buffalo was the first stop, the tour actually opened Friday in the Boston Public Gardens before an audience of 12,000. The ten-stop itinerary includes a concert this evening at Oxford, O., before winding up on July 10 at the Berkshire Music Festival, Tanglewood, Mass.

The concert was recorded for later broadcast on WBEN, Mr. Kavinoky announced.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.
EAGLE
5
FEB 23 1954

New Met Singer

The Metropolitan Opera has engaged Rosalind Elias, young American mezzo-soprano from Lowell, Mass., who has appeared on the Metropolitan Auditions of the Air. For several seasons she was solo artist with the Berkshire Music Festival in "Tanglewood," and has made guest appearances with the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Miss Elias studied opera in Italy at San Carlo, di Napoli, is a winner of the American Theater Wing Scholarship.

[160]

MUSIC

Boston Symphony Orchestra

The Berkshire Music Festival, summer home of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, officially opened its doors this past weekend with performances of works by Bach, Berlioz and Beethoven, conducted by Charles Munch and Pierre Monteux.

An all-Bach program on Friday evening, July 9, played by members of this world-famous orchestra encompassed five of the six Brandenburg Concerti. Roger Voisin, trumpet, Doriot Anthony, flute, Ralph Gomberg, oboe, Richard Burgin, violin, and Lukas Foss, piano, were soloists.

Highlight of the evening was the performance of the Concerto No. 5 with piano, flute and violin soloists. Lukas Foss displayed an impeccable technique, Doriot Anthony played with great control and an excellent flute tone, and Richard Burgin performed with clean technique combined with a rich, smooth violin sonority. Charles Munch, conductor, combined soloists and orchestra into a homogenous musical ensemble which provided the audience with a most gratifying musical experience. The noted strings of the orchestra were presented in the Concerti No. 3 and No. 6 and those who came to hear this famous string section were again not disappointed. Their beautifully blended, balanced tone was still there and was brought into full play in the performance of these two concerti.

Another high point of the evening was the phenomenal trumpet playing of Roger Voisin in a performance of the Concerto No. 2 in which Miss Anthony, Mr. Burgin and Mr. Gomberg also participated. Mr. Voisin, indeed, is to be complimented for his deft performance of this extremely difficult solo part. The other soloists again proved themselves masters of their instruments in the neat handling of this concerto. The Concerto No. 1 for orchestra, which opened the program, was well played, but rhythmic inadequacies in several sections of the orchestra made it a less than distinguished performance.

Dramatic Legend

The entire program on Saturday evening, July 10, was devoted to a performance of the dramatic legend, "The Damnation of Faust" by Hector Berlioz. The combined forces of the Boston Symphony, the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society, with Eleanor Steber, soprano, David Poleri, tenor, Martial Singher, baritone and Donald Gramm, bass, were employed in this herculean effort. Charles Munch proved himself a master interpreter of this composition in which the composer proved himself a master of orchestration. A careful blend of voices and instruments was noted throughout, with distinguished work being done on the part of the two vocal ensembles. The choice of soloists was, indeed, excellent, for each voice was well suited to its individual role. The performance showed great preparation on the part of choruses and orchestra, with both in peak form. It was a magnificent send-off to the 150th Berlioz anniversary now being celebrated at Tanglewood.

The orchestra was placed in the hands of Pierre Monteux on Sunday afternoon for an all-Bethoven program which included the Leonore Overture No. 3, the "Emperor" Concerto and the Symphony No. 5.

It is most gratifying to have this great conductor back as guest conductor at Tanglewood. His performances have, in many ways, surpassed those of others at this great outdoor festival, and he again proved himself one of this country's greatest living conductors. Mr. Monteux seems to have the knack of providing the listener with something new in performances of the standard repertoire. The Fifth Symphony took on new life under his baton, which made the performance exciting, vital and alive.

Arrau Is Soloist

The center of attraction on Sunday afternoon was the "Emperor" concerto with Claudio Arrau as piano soloist. Mr. Arrau, recently acclaimed for his performance of the complete piano sonatas of Beethoven in New York City, proved himself a master interpreter of this concerto. The performance was a combination of drive, force, impact, finesse and delicacy. He displayed superb technique, great control and a complete command of his instrument at all times. The combination of Mr. Monteux, Mr. Arrau and the Boston Symphony Orchestra was one that would be hard to beat.

The summer season at Tanglewood is now in full swing with chamber music on Wednesday and Friday evenings, and symphonic music on Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon. If the first week of performances is an indication of the remaining concerts, this will be a banner year at Tanglewood.—Clarence R. Warrington, Jr.

Catskill Daily Mail
July 12, 1954

BOSTON, MASS
HERALD
2/28/54

Great Festival in Berkshires Announced

The most extensive music festival in the world was indicated today in the announcement by Charles Munch of the newly enlarged Berkshire Festival to be held during the six weeks from July 7 to Aug. 15.

Twenty-four concerts are set, including six concerts by chamber groups on Wednesday evenings, six concerts by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players on Friday evenings, six concerts by the full orchestra in the Shed on Saturday evenings and six Sunday afternoons.

In the course of the Shed concerts, Charles Munch will honor the 150th anniversary season of the birth of Berlioz by conducting this composer's principal works in their complete form. Guest conductors in the Shed concerts will be Pierre Monteux, conducting two concerts; Jean Morel, and Richard Burgin, each conducting one.

The extensive programs include everything from Beethoven's "Emperor" Concerto to full-scale performances of Berlioz' "Damnation of Faust," "Romeo and Juliet" and the Requiem complete with four auxiliary orchestras; from Saint Saens' Organ Symphony to Piston's Fourth Symphony. Among the soloists to be heard are Claudio Arrau, Ruth Posselt, Nicole Henriot, William Primrose, Vera Franceschi, Zino Francesscatti, Lukas Foss, Semour Lipkin and Doriot Anthony.

The chamber music series, on Wednesday nights, offer the Bel Arte Trio, the Albeneri Trio, the Zimbler Sinfonietta, the Griller Quartet, and the Kroll Quartet, while the Bach-Mozart series, each Friday night of the Festival, offer the Bach Brandenburg concertos, two Bach suites, and a Bach cantata, as well as piano concertos by Mozart, symphonies by Haydn, and Stravinsky's "Pulcinella.

Full programs, together with ticket information, will be mailed promptly on request to the Berkshire Festival office, Symphony Hall, Boston, and seats at subscription rates are now available for all concerts.

A new plan has been devised by Charles Munch, the conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, to extend the scope of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood in Lenox, Massachusetts, next summer. The plan has been prompted by the record attendance in 1953—118,000, and the obvious desire of may thousands to hear the full orchestra in the first three weeks of the festival as well as the last three.

According to this plan, the concerts by the full orchestra in the Music Shed will be given each Saturday evening and each Sunday afternoon through the six weeks from July 5 to August 15. The concerts by the orchestra of chamber proportions in the Theater-Concert Hall, devoted mostly to the music of Bach and Mozart, which formerly occupied the first three weeks of the festival, will now be given each Friday evening preceding the weekend Shed concerts. Together with the performances by the students of the Berkshire Music Center, this will result in six weeks of daily performances on an identical rotation through each week.

The Munch plan will thus provide twelve festival concerts in the Shed instead of nine as before, and six "Bach-Mozart" concerts in the theater as before, but now on a once a week basis.

In the course of the twelve Shed concerts Mr. Munch will honor the sesquicentennial season of the birth of Hector Berlioz. There will be performances of choral works, including "The Damnation of Faust," "Romeo and Juliet," and the "Requiem," as well as the song cycle, "Summer Nights" and instrumental works.

Hugh Hostetler
Hanover (Pa)
Evening Sun
Feb. 13, 1954

[16]

Syracuse (N.Y.)
Herald-American
July 11/54

Choreographer Tilda Morse, left, will dance, and David Davis, stage director, will have a comedy role in "High Button Shoes" in the Lyric Circus this week, starting Tuesday night. Thursday will be Syracuse Corinthian benefit night.

First in Berlioz' Works Given in 'Tanglewood'; 'Button Shoes' in Lyric

This date in music: 1862, Liza Lehmann born in London. She became known for Song Cycles including "In a Persian first performance of his Piano Concerto No. 1 by invitation of Garden"; 1882, Edward MacDowell, American composer, gives Liszt, in Zurich.

By E. V. W.

THE MUSIC SHED in "Tanglewood" opened the enlarged series of six Saturday night and the same number of Sunday afternoon concerts by the 104-piece Boston Symphony Orchestra in the Berkshire Festival last night, Charles Munch conducting.

"THE DAMNATION of Faust," a dramatic legend by Hector Berlioz, was presented, the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society of 110 voices participating under leadership of G. Wallace Woodworth. The soloists, all making their "Tanglewood" debuts were Eleanor Steber, soprano; David Poleri, tenor; Martial Singher, baritone; Donald Gramm, bass. "The Damnation of Faust," was the first of a number of Berlioz' works to be given in their complete form in The Shed this season.

THE DRAMATIC symphony "Romeo and Juliet" is sceduled for July 31; the "Requiem," on closing day, Aug. 15; the song cycle "Summer Nights" and the "Te Deum," Aug. 7 and the symphony "Harold in Italy" on July 25. These great works were chosen in observance of the 150th anniversary of the birth of the French composer.

MISS STEBER, leading soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Association, recently performed in the Holland Festival in Scheveningen and the Maggio Musicale in Florence, Italy. She returns to Tanglewood Aug. 7 to sing "Summer Nights" with the Boston Symphony and goes to Denver and to the Hollywood, Calif., Bowl later in the summer to sing.

THE FIRST of the Sunday series concerts in The Shed takes place this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, Pierre Monteux conducting an all-Beethoven program with the eminent Chilean pianist, Claudio Arrau as soloist. In addition to the 6,000 seats in The Shed, general admission tickets are available, entitling holders to listen from the great lawns in "Tanglewood."

Vera Franceschi, above, will be guest soloist in Cesar Franck's "Le Djinns" in a Berkshire Festival program of French music in the Music Shed "Tanglewood" next Saturday night. Pierre Monteux conducting. Leo Smit, below, will be guest soloist in Aaron Copland's Piano Concerto by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in The Shed next Sunday afternoon, July 18, Charles Munch will conduct. Debussy's "Iberia" and the "Fantistic" Symphony of Berlioz also are on the program.

Spring Union
7/12/54

Regular meeting of the Kiwanis Club will be at 12:15 Wednesday at the Sheraton Hotel. Speaker will be William C. Cox, chairman of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center and secretary of Phillips Academy in Exeter.

HARTFORD, CONN.
COURANT

Copland Opera To Have Premiere At Tanglewood

"The Tender Land," a new opera by Aaron Copland [illegible] American theme, will make its second production anywhere [illegible] its New England premiere [illegible] the major project this summer [illegible] the Berkshire Music Center Opera Department, the Boston Symphony Orchestra announces. There will be two performances of "The Tender Land" in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., on Monday and Tuesday evenings, August 2 and 3.

There will be a single performance on July 27 of a double bill of Ernst Toch's one-act opera, "The Princess and the Pea," and the 16th century madrigal opera, "L'Amfiparnaso" by Orazio Vecchi, which will have its first staged performance in the U.S.

The Music Center, of which Mr. Copland is assistant director, is the summer school maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in connection with its annual Berkshire Festival concerts.

Admission to Tanglewood for the opera performances is by invitation to the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, who support its activities with contributions. Membership in the Friends results also in an invitation to some forty additional concerts by students during the Tanglewood season, July 5- August 15.

In announcing "The Tender Land," Frederic Cohen, who will head the Berkshire Music Center's Opera Department this summer, while its head, Boris Goldovsky, is on leave of absence, stresses that the planned production by the students at Tanglewood will de different in conception from the opera's premiere by the N. Y. City Opera Company at N. Y. City Center on April 1.

Aaron Copland, composer of many symphonies, concert selections, ballets, chamber music and theater and film music, explored the opera medium only once before, when he wrote "The Second Hurricane", a children's piece more than 15 years ago. "The Tender Land," finished in March of this year, was written on a commission from the League of Composers from a grant by Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein II. "I think my piece has great workshop possibilities," Mr. Copland told the N.Y. Herald Tribune at the time of its New York premiere. "Colleges and opera groups should have no difficulty with it . . . the music is very plain, stylistically plain. It has a colloquial flavor, even, and in some spots is quite folkish." The composer chose a libretto by Horace Everett, young California poet and painter, inspired by a photograph by Edward Weston in a book about Southern tenant farmers in the 30's, "Let Us Now Praise Famous Men" by James Agee. In two acts, lasting an hour and a half, it tells the story of Laurie, eldest of two daughters of a farmer's wife, and her decision on the eve of her graduation to strike out for happiness beyond the horizon of the farm.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE

6 More Soloists For Tanglewood

The Boston Symphony Orchestra has announced six additional soloists for its Berkshire Festival this summer at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Martial Singher, baritone; David Poleri, tenor, and Donald Gramm, bass-baritone, will sing in Berlioz's "The Damnation of Faust" under Charles Munch's direction Saturday night, July 10. Mr. Poleri will also sing in Berlioz' "Te Deum" Saturday night, Aug. 7.

John McCollum, tenor, and Nicola Moscona, bass, will sing in Berlioz' "Romeo and Juliet" on Saturday night, July 31. E. Power Biggs will give two organ recitals in Tanglewood's Music Shed on Saturday afternoons during the latter part of the festival, which runs from July 7 through Aug. 15. Chamber music concerts will be held Wednesday nights, chamber orchestra concerts Friday nights and concerts by the full Boston Symphony Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons.

TIGHT BINDING

HARTFORD, CONN.
COURANT
MAY 9 1954

...opland Opera ...o Have Premiere ...t Tanglewood

...The Tender Land," a new ...ra by Aaron Copland on an ...erican theme, will have its ...nd production anywhere and ... New England premiere as ... major project this summer ... the Berkshire Music Center ...ra Department, the Boston ...phony Orchestra announces. ...re will be two performances ... "The Tender Land" in the ...ater-Concert Hall at Tangle...d, Lenox, Mass., on Monday ... Tuesday evenings, August 2 ... 3.

...here will be a single per...mance on July 27 of a double ... of Ernst Toch's one-act ...ra, "The Princess and the ...," and the 16th century ...irigal opera, "L'Amfiparnaso" ... Orazio Vecchi, which will ...e its first staged performance ...the U.S.

...he Music Center, of which ... Copland is assistant direc... is the summer school main...ed by the Boston Symphony ...hestra in connection with its ...ual Berkshire Festival con...ts.

...dmission to Tanglewood for ... opera performances is by ...itation to the Friends of the ...kshire Music Center, who sup...t its activities with contribu...s. Membership in the Friends ...ults also in an invitation to ...e forty additional concerts ... students during the Tangle...d season, July 5- August 15. ... announcing "The Tender ...d," Frederic Cohen, who will ...d the Berkshire Music Cen...s Opera Department this sum...r, while its head, Boris ...ldousky", is on leave of ...ence, stresses that the planned ...duction by the students at ...nglewood will de different in ...ception from the opera's ...miere by the N.Y. City ...era Company at N.Y. City ...ter on April 1.

...aron Copland, composer of ...ny symphonies, concert selec...ns, ballets, chamber music and ...ater and film music, explored ... opera medium only once be..., when he wrote "The Second ...rricane", a children's piece ...re than 15 years ago. "The ...nder Land," finished in March ... this year, was written on a ...mmission from the League of ...mposers from a grant by Rich... Rodgers and Oscar Ham...rstein II. "I think my piece ... great workshop possibilities," ... Copland told the N.Y. Herald ...bune at the time of its New ...k premiere. "Colleges and ...ra groups should have no dif...lty with it ... the music is ...y plain, stylistically plain. It ... a colloquial flavor, even, and ...some spots is quite folkish." ... composer chose a libretto by ...race Everett, young California ...t and painter, inspired by a ...tograph by Edward Weston in ...book about Southern tenant ...mers in the 30's, "Let Us ...w Praise Famous Men" by ...nes Agee. In two acts, lasting ...hour and a half, it tells the ...ry of Laurie, eldest of two ...ghters of a farmer's wife, ... her decision on the eve of ... graduation to strike out for ...ppiness beyond the horizon of ... farm.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE
MAY 15 1954

More Soloists ...or Tanglewood

...The Boston Symphony Or...estra has announced six ad...tional soloists for its Berkshire ...estival this summer at Tangle...od, Lenox, Mass. Martial ...ngher, baritone; David Poleri, ...nor, and Donald Gramm, bass-...ritone, will sing in Berlioz's ...The Damnation of Faust" under ...harles Munch's direction Sat...day night, July 10. Mr. ...oleri will also sing in Berlioz' ...Te Deum" Saturday night, ...ug. 7.

...John McCollum, tenor, and ...icola Moscona, bass, will sing ... Berlioz' "Romeo and Juliet" ...n Saturday night, July 31. E. ...ower Biggs will give two organ ...ecitals in Tanglewood's Music ...hed on Saturday afternoons ...uring the latter part of the ...estival, which runs from July 7 ...hrough Aug. 15. Chamber music ...oncerts will be held Wednesday ...ights, chamber orchestra con...erts Friday nights and concerts ...y the full Boston Symphony ...aturday nights and Sunday ...fternoons.

New Festival Schedule Boon To Hotels, Motels — Not 'Homes'

The first week of the new six-week concert program of the Berkshire Music Festival found all hotels and motels "extremely well satisfied" with the new scheduling, but it proved no great shakes for those operators who are on the fringe of the guest accommodation field.

It indicated to motel and hotel owners and restaurateurs that business over a six-week period would be much better, even though the demand for services aren't as intense as in the years when the so-called "big" Festival concerts were conducted for only three weeks.

If business on the succeeding five weekends follows the pattern of the weekend just completed, the hotels and motels will be filled up and service will be rendered in an orderly manner—minus the hurly-burly of previous years when there were four takers for every accommodation and prospective guests virtually screaming for rooms.

'Normal' for Tourist Houses

But tourist home operators and owners of private homes, who in previous years took in almost enough revenue to make their property tax bills look much smaller, reported no great demand. Chambers of Commerce in all sections of Berkshire County, who have a big file of private residences and tourist places, said it was a "normal" July weekend.

Similarly, William J. Goggins, district engineer for the state Department of Public Works, reported normal July weekend traffic, which is, of course, quite heavy. But it didn't compare in intensity to the traffic conditions, he said, which prevailed when the Festival lasted only three weeks.

Southern Berkshire

In Southern Berkshire, managers of major hotels were unanimous in reporting an excellent weekend business. The Red Lion Inn and Heaton Hall in Stockbridge and the Berkshire and Oakwood Inns in Great Barrington were full for the first big weekend of the Festival season.

Spokesmen for the four hotels said business was equal to or slightly better than comparable weekends last year. James J. Joyce, landlord of the Berkshire Inn, said this weekend was "very much ahead" of the opening weekend of the Berkshire Festival in 1953.

Mr. Joyce said he thought the revised schedule for the Festival made it possible for more people to attend and added, "This was just as good as or better than any he had when the Festival had the A, B and C series."

More Food, Drink

Mr. Joyce reported also that the demand for transient meals was "a little bit better" than last year. Royal Treadway of the Red Lion Inn and Heaton Hall said that the Stockbridge resorts were well ahead of last year on sales of food and drink.

Managers of the area's larger resort hotels were unanimous in minimizing any effects of the multiplying motels. Adolph Wendt, manager of Oakwood Inn, said, "We cater to a different clientele. We don't get the overnight business, but it really doesn't affect us very much."

Substantially the same view was expressed by Mr. Treadway and Mr. Joyce, both emphasizing that the hotels offer different attractions which do not compete with those of the motels.

Busier Than Fourth

A somewhat less rosy picture was painted by officials of the Southern Berkshire Chamber of Commerce, who said tourist trade had picked up since the 4th of July but was not so active as during the top weekends of last year.

The busiest weekends at the Chamber's information booth are when Festival concerts and visiting days at the numerous camps in the area are held at the same time. That will happen next weekend, and larger crowds are expected.

Guest houses in the Great Barrington area were only partly filled, although the hotels, motels, sports centers and tourist cabins did a booming business.

The Picture in Lenox

In Lenox, Mrs. John M. O'Brien of the Kiwanis Information Center reported this morning that on Saturday the center placed 335 people in local guest houses and hotels compared to about 120 the Saturday of the first Tanglewood weekend last year.

She said the center filled 161 of the 171 rooms currently registered by local guest houses. Townspeople are aware of the greater need for guest rooms this year, she observed, as they are reserving them in greater volume.

The volume of business did not reach that of the peak weekends of August last year, however, she said. By August last year, the center had 195 rooms registered and had to close at about 5 p.m. each Saturday as all available accommodations were taken.

Curtis Business Up

George Turain, owner-manager of the Curtis Hotel, reported that weekend business was up about 50 per cent over previous early-season weekends. He said the Curtis' room accommodations were filled Saturday night and roll-away beds were set up dormitory-style in the hotel's music and reading rooms. Restaurant and bar facilities were "also jammed," he reported.

All motels in town were filled for the first weekend, though 12 rooms were added to this year's accommodations by the completion last fall of a fifth motel on the Pittsfield road, the Yankee Motel.

At Elm Court, the hotel in town most dependent on Tanglewood, business was reported about the same as last year. Elm Court was filled for the early season concerts both years, a spokesman said.

More Inquiries in Lee

In Lee, Mrs. Kathryn G. Ford, director of the Chamber of Commerce information booth, reported that requests for rooms were about the same as during the early Tanglewood season last year but that queries for information at the booth showed a large increase.

In the Williamstown area, the three new motels on Route 7, open for the first summer season, reported brisk business all weekend. The "no vacancy" sign went up early at the three spots located at the approach to the town.

Williamstown Motels Filled

Mrs. Doris Quadland of the Berkshire Hills Motel at the foot of the Taconic Trail, reported business has been "excellent" since Memorial Day, adding her husband's motel was filled to capacity all weekend.

The 1896 Motel was filled to capacity "practically all week," and no accommodations were available at the place over the weekend. Across the way, Mrs. Phyllis Lippes reported the Elwell Pines Motel was filled to capacity and the overflow guests were housed in the inn operated by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hinrichs.

The motel business did not hurt the Williams Inn where Howard Wooster, assistant to John Treadway, reported the inn was filled over the weekend, adding business was as good as a year ago.

However, in other places around Williamstown, many rooms in tourist homes and cabins were available all weekend, according to Arthur Bastien, president of the Board of Trade, who operates the town's information booth at the intersection of Route 2 and 7. The information center handled 200 requests for information over the weekend, he reported.

Crowds Totaling 21,295 Jam Tanglewood Events

The early opening of the Festival season at Tanglewood seems to be paying off—at least for the first week of concerts.

Crowds totaling 21,295 took in the scheduled events at the Festival grounds Saturday and Sunday, with the largest attendance yesterday afternoon when 10,050 music lovers listened to the music of Beethoven, with Pierre Monteux conducting the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Ideal weather helped to build the attendance yesterday afternoon as the overflow crowd at the Music Shed, listened under sunny skies to the concert on the spacious lawns of the Tanglewood property.

8,500 Saturday Night

Many concert-goers rushed the season with light summer attire at Saturday night's performance. The chilly air made these music lovers envious of others who wore top coats and brought blankets. In spite of the cool Berkshire night, 8,500 turned out to hear the BSO with Dr. Charles Munch conducting, perform Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust," featuring the Harvard and Radcliffe choral group and five soloists.

Tanglewood officials reported that 1,700 paid admissions were recorded at the Saturday morning rehearsal of the orchestra, which benefits the musicians' pension fund. In the afternoon a crowd of 550 was on hand for an impromptu concert of the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society on the Festival grounds. Yesterday morning 350 turned up for the chamber music concert and last night 175 attended the composers forum open to the public.

When the Berkshire Music Center was formally opened a week ago Sunday, 1,200 were on hand for the exercises and tea that followed in the formal gardens. At the first Festival chamber music concert Wednesday evening in the Theater-Concert Hall, the attendance was kept down to about 1,400 because of threatening weather. However, Friday evening when the chamber orchestra of the Boston Symphony performed in the concert hall, the attendance jumped to 2,800. At Thursday night's student orchestra concert in the Music Shed, 2,000 Friends of the Berkshire Music Center listened to the program.

Forum Tonight

No activities are scheduled at Tanglewood tonight, but at 8:15 in Sedgwick Hall at the Lenox Library, head staff members of the Berkshire Music Center will discuss at a public forum "Musical Attitudes in Europe, Comparable and Opposed." Aaron Copland, assistant director of the Center, will be the moderator.

From the faculty participating will be Frederic Cohen, acting head of the opera department, who will be making his first public appearance; Jean Morel, acting head of Department 1 and Dr. Ernst Toch, guest composer, who also will be making his first public appearance in the Berkshires. The fourth member of the panel will be Barnes Childs, a student in English writing a thesis on madrigal music at Stanford University, California. Tonight's forum is open to the public, free of charge.

Tomorrow night the annual picnic for the staff of Tanglewood, with the Boston Symphony as host, will be held at the Tanglewood club house on the shore of Lake Mahkeenac.

This week's events at Tanglewood will include a [illegible] music concert Wednesday evening in the theater; student orchestra concert Thursday night in the Shed; chamber orchestra concert Friday in the theater; BSO rehearsals Saturday morning and Shed concerts by the full Boston Symphony Orchestra in the Shed on Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon.

Kiwanis Plans Talk On Music Center

William C. Cox, chairman of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center will address the Pittsfield Kiwanis Club at the luncheon-meeting at 12:15 Wednesday noon at the Sheraton Hotel.

Mr. Cox also is secretary of Phillips Academy, Exeter.

Eagle-July 12, 1954

Tanglewood Tales

Kiwanis Speaker

William J. Cox, assistant to the principal of the Phillips Academy at Exeter, N.H., and chairman of the Society of Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, the organization through which people can help support the summer music school of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will address the Pittsfield Kiwanis Club Wednesday, July 14.

* * *

Concerts on Tape

Jordan Whitelaw of Boston, is spending the summer at Tanglewood, tape-recording the Friday evening chamber orchestra concerts, the Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon full-symphony concerts of the Boston Symphony in the Berkshire Festival, for WGBH-FM, Boston, the non-commercial educational station which reaches a 60-80 mile radius and which during the past three years has broadcast in complete form live concerts from Symphony Hall of the Boston Symphony's Friday afternoon and Saturday evening series. The station is co-operatively supported by the Boston Symphony, Boston College, Boston University, Harvard, M.I.T., the Museum of Fine Arts, the New England Conservatory of Music, Northeastern University and Tufts College, and broadcasts include classroom lectures, forums, drama, poetry and news. Mr. Whitelaw, producer and script writer, will offer the first Tanglewood "tape" to WGBH's members Saturday, July 17, the program the Berlioz "Damnation of Faust" given at Tanglewood tomorrow, and the recorded series will continue until the end of September.

* * *

Two editors from Ceylon, Tori Di Souza and Horace Jam Modder, staying at the Curtis Hotel, Lenox, were Tanglewood visitors last week. Another guest, visiting with Adolf Berle in Great Barrington, was Benjamin Nunez, ambassador from Costa Rica to the United Nations.

* * *

Unprogrammed in "The Damnation of Faust," but an important solo in the epilogue, called "a voice on earth" in the libretto was

NORTH ADAMS, MASS.
TRANSCRIPT
FEB 3 - 1954

Boston Symphony Gives Contestants Tanglewood Ticket

The Musical Talent in Our Schools contest committee today announced that the Boston Symphony orchestra will give a ticket to one rehearsal of the Boston symphony at Tanglewood next summer to each contestant.

Students of public, private and parochial schools in the county who passed the initial screening last Sunday in Pittsfield will be auditioned Sunday, Feb. 14, at 2.30 o'clock at the Berkshire museum.

Those competing last Sunday at the first screening included Edmund Chouinard, Cynthia Crosier and Dexter Morrell of Drury high school, Dorothy Roberts, Andrew Durocher and Nelson Vachereau of St. Joseph's high school, and Leo Stuckens of Williamstown, a student at Cranwell school, Lenox.

The remainder of the applicants will be given their initial screening Sunday at 2.30 at the Berkshire museum, Pittsfield.

[162]

Music Festival At Tanglewood

Fall River Herald-News
July 12 '54

Tanglewood — where Hawthorne lived in "The Little Red House" and did some of his best writing, where the music of the Boston Symphony now resounds through the Berkshires—lazes over Lake Mahkeenac, near Lenox.

Besides a Summer schedule of festival concerts, Tanglewood has the Berkshire Music Center, where promising students are trained by eminent musicians under the direction of Charles Munch, Boston Symphony director. Student concerts are presented on Thursday evenings. One of the students is Donald Bravo of 239 Eagle Street, who plays a bassoon.

The route to Tanglewood, winding and climbing about 150 miles, passes through some of the most charming countryside in the State. You drive through Sturbridge, site of a recreated Yankee village, and ascent "Jacob's Ladder" into the Berkshires.

There, Saturday night, the Boston Symphony presented Hector Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust," with the Harvard Glee Club, the Radcliffe Choral Society, and soloists Eleanor Steber, David Poleri, Martial Singher, and Donald Gramm.

Set in a 200-acre expanse of lawn and meadow is the Music Shed. Elms, pines, and birches, some six feet around, vary the terrain. A rose-tinted blue backdrop fell over the Berkshires as concert time came.

Six thousand persons filled the Shed, and another two thousand lolled on the lawn, most on blankets. There were women in wheel chairs, young men in cord coats, white bucks, and gray flannels, young women in slacks, and many New Yorkers—you can tell by the clothes and magazines.

The sky grew slate gray as the sun sank, a mist hovered above the lake, "Stockbridge Bowl," in the valley below, and the Northern Star blinked patiently in its balcony seat between two oak pillars. No wonder Hawthorne was bewitched by the impulse to resign from society while planning "The Scarlet Letter" in this setting!

The orchestra, set in gold, radiated its rhapsody, swinging into the familiar, joyous Hungarian March. Human emotions rose and fell with the host of horns, the staccato of drums, the volume of vacillating violins, and the frivolity of flutes. Seldom are so many souls, half shoeless, so silent, so swayed.

The voice of Eleanor Steber, singing the role of Marguerite, penetrated the night. Her notes were strong, clear, and warm enough to reach the ridge half a mile distant, perhaps to soar into the valley and scatter the mist lying over the lake.

Berlioz' dramatic legend, adopted from Goethe's poem, of a disillusioned philosopher who, too melancholy and sophisticated for the simple life of country folk, sells his soul to realize a dream, couldn't have been performed in a more fitting setting. Manipulation and dissatisfaction with nature impresses one as over-reaching—at Tanglewood.

In Brief

Eagle July 14

With Bob Smith and Nat Horwitt debating amiably, the Lenox Selectmen and BSO officials discussing problems unexplosively, and lots of people arriving to listen intently, it doesn't seem likely that the Festival is going to move South right away . . . Speaking of Tanglewood, yesterday's story on music engraver Walter Boelke, who moved to the area on the inspiration of one visit to the Festival, points up a happy by-product of our cultural attractions. We'd rather not contemplate the number of potential real-estate buyers attracted to the Berkshires by a wealth of horse tracks . . . Our sympathy goes out to

Eagle-July 12, 1954

City Edition 1954

Munch and Monteux Share Podium in Weekend Concerts

By JAY C. ROSENFELD

CHARLES MUNCH, the musical director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, shared the podium over the weekend at Tanglewood with Pierre Monteux, himself a former regular conductor of the orchestra and in late years a frequent guest. For the brace of concerts for the first weekend of the start of the 21st year of Berkshire Festivals the Saturday evening concert was devoted to Hector Berlioz' dramatic legend "The Damnation of Faust" in which the orchestra had the collaboration of the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society, repeating the performances given in Boston last February in Symphony Hall. The soloists Saturday were David Poleri as Faust, Martial Singher, Mephistopheles, and Donald Gramm as Brander. Marguerite does not appear until the third of the four parts of the oratorio and her part was sung by Eleanor Steber.

It might be difficult to place "the Damnation" in a correct category as it has been given as opera and Saturday the soloists used much more dramatic gestures and action than in the Boston performance. The duets between Marguerite and Faust had no disguised affection between the protagonists and there was real venom in Singher's looks as well as in his voice as Mephistopheles.

* * *

IT WAS AN EVENING of high musical adventure. Mr. Munch was in a majestic mood and drew tremendous response from both his instrumental and vocal forces. The youthful singers used their French with clear enunciation and remarkably telling impact. In a spirit of the most respectful admiration we thought their declamation at times had the favor and spontaneity of the most favorable aspects of cheering sections, so vital and eager and alert was the effect. G. Wallace Woodworth, who trained the two societies, was called to the front of the stage at the conclusion to share the triumphal reception.

The violas had not played the opening passage when it became apparent how reverently, and how beautifully, Mr. Munch was to convey us through the evening. His vigor sometimes exceeded his hold on the baton and Mr. Singher at least twice retrieved the stick and once the conductor's glasses but the moments of magnificence were realized with power and exultation to make the less interesting sections rest periods in which to prepare for the ensuing climaxes.

* * *

BY FAR the greater vocal assignment falls to Faust and Mr. Poleri sang with liquid and warm tone. Mr. Singher was extremely authoritative and secure in his role as the more mature intrigant. Mr. Gramm's Brander was excellent as was the single moment of McHenry Boatright whose doomful pronouncement was most effective. Miss Steber's voice was expressively beautiful and easily able to be heard above and among the tumult of the orchestral involvements.

The Boston orchestra celebrated the 150th anniversary of Berlioz (born in 1803), properly in the season at Symphony Hall just passed and they are now repeating the main works prepared during the season. It was thus that this unusual opportunity is possible.

* * *

YESTERDAY AFTERNOON Mr. Monteux played a program entirely devoted to Beethoven: The Egmont overture and the fifth symphony with Claudio Arrau doing the E flat (Emperor) concerto. Mr. Monteux's economy of gesture and the wide palette of his color range might almost seem to be a paradox but he gives free rein to the experienced and capable men of his band and they play for him with all-out cooperation. He took the first movement of "the fifth" with a fine brisk pace and each movement had a special flavor and style. The finale was developed within more narrow limits than is potential but it was a remarkably unified performance. His accompaniment to the soloist was superb.

Mr. Arrau plays with complete self-assurance. He pushes his intense moments to extremes but, on the other hand, he lends a gentle poetry to a passage, such as the slow movement, when it is fitting.

* * *

MR. MONTEUX fans his strings before him so that the second violins are to his right whereas Mr. Munch prefers the violas on the outside. In a program of such necessity familiarity as the Beethoven, Mr. Monteux is completely confident with such an orchestra before him and this spirit is apparent to his audience.

TIGHT BINDING

Eagle - July 12

On the Contrary

Has Tanglewood Reached the Point Of Diminishing Returns for Lenox?

By Robert Smith

WITH THE goose of the Boston Symphony Orchestra starting to lay its annual golden egg in Lenox, I suppose it behooves all ordinary citizens to give thanks that it has lived so long. No doubt many of our businessmen would be out working for wages and many of our wage - earners working somewhere else if it were not for this summer bonanza.

All the same, I don't think the orchestra, or its admirers, ought to get the idea that if it were not for them we would all be driving hacks in Pittsfield. And I don't think they should begin to believe that they bestow all the blessings and we just sit back and grow fat on them.

* * *

A SMALL TOWN cannot live all year round on what it may gather from summer visitors, and so it may be forgiven if it occasionally reckons up the cost of what it gives as well as the value of what it gets.

It gives police protection and traffic control. It gives sidewalks and roads and parking space and water and sanitation. It gives up much of its comfort. It endures racket, and inconvenience, and littering of its lawns, and the creation of makeshift comfort stations in its hedges. So no one needs to laugh or leer if it occasionally tries to remind its visitors that they get something from the town that may or may not be equal to what they give.

It probably strikes people who are removed from the problem as the height of presumption for the town fathers to ask that they be taken in on the plans of the Festival bosses. Yet how are we to adjust ourselves to the summer invasion if we do not know its size or when it will arrive? And why shouldn't we who live here and pay for the roads and lawns and sidewalks be allowed to participate in the decisions that may double the number of cars that block our highways and treble the number of people who parade past our homes?

* * *

NO MATTER what anyone thinks, more people at the Festival will not necessarily mean more money for Lenox. The business right now has, in many respects, passed the point of diminishing returns. Towns 75 miles away now feed and house Festival visitors. No one in town can keep a lunch-room alive on Festival business alone. Indeed, the Festival now feeds its throngs right on the grounds, in a duly licensed cafeteria where music-lovers may get second-class sandwiches at first-class prices.

If I were running the Festival, as I strongly suspect I never shall be, I would not be in such a hurry to brush aside the somewhat plaintive efforts of the Lenox Selectmen to earn either a voice in the Festival plans or a slight acknowledgement of the obligation of the Festival toward the town. I think I might begin to worry that the local rustics, who used to be able to hear good music for nickels and dimes and were grateful therefor, are showing signs of disaffection. After all, the Festival cannot just pull up stakes and run off somewhere else at the first sign of ingratitude. They have a valuable plant here, deep roots in the neighborhood, and a reservoir of good will. If I were the boss, I think I would be moved to cultivate local good will rather than merely drain it.

* * *

WHO KNOWS what limit, if any, the Festival will ever place on attendance? Will they keep their gates open until another hundred thousand or so find room on the lawns? And if so, where will we find the roads and sidewalks and rest-rooms for them? How will we clean up after them, keep them alive on our streets, and set them tables to eat at? The more articulate visitors have already begun to snarl publicly at the crowded condition of our restaurants, the helter-skelter service, the lack of elbow room and the impossibility of finding a spot to powder a person's nose in. People who live along the few roads that lead to Tanglewood are growing restive at the length of time each evening when they are without fire protection, without ambulance service, without even access to their own driveways. Others are becoming impatient with visitors who lunch on their lawns or mistake their homes for hotels and walk in looking for telephones, bathrooms, or a drinking fountain.

Is this good or bad? Is it naughty of the Town Fathers to suggest that a good-will gesture on the part of the Festival toward the town may be past due? Is it childish of them to hope that they may be given eventual voice in working out plans for the season?

* * *

I KNOW, OF course, that planning of any sort smacks of socialism and that your true free enterpriser just keeps carrying the pitcher back to the well until the damn thing goes dry. But the Berkshire Festival was conceived not as a means of making profit but as a way of bringing pleasure to the country folk. If it brings an increasing number of them neither profit nor pleasure, surely it is time for all concerned to take thought, lest that egg it lays become a real one, with never a trace of gold.

Music Engraver, One of 60 in the U.S., Earns Living With 250 Year Old Trade

One of a vanishing breed, Walter R. Boelke of Hillsdale, N.Y., a music engraver, lays out the staff on this metal alloy. After he completes the engraving he sends it to New York, where the plate is photographed and another plate made for "photo-offset" printing. Mr. Boelke complains no young people are taking up his trade anymore.

By BERNARD C. CARMEN

HILLSDALE, N.Y. — One of the 60 music engravers remaining in the U.S. practices his ancient and exacting craft here, using techniques essentially unchanged for nearly 250 years.

Walter R. Boelke has no fear of mass production methods which might compete in the reproduction of musical scores. "There hasn't been a technological advance here in at least 150 years," he said. "We have redesigned our printing types and the notes, but the way we make the engraving is the same."

Demonstrates Technique

By way of demonstration he took a small flat sheet of metal, which he identified as an alloy of tin, lead and antimony similar to the metal used in printer's type. Using a five-pronged scribe he laid out the musical staff — the five lines on which the musical notes are spaced. With deft movements he sketched the notes on the metal, then stamped them with punches bearing the notes.

Using chilled steel engraving tools, Mr. Boelke filled in the vertical lines of the notes, the lines separating bars, and the graceful curving lines which indicate a slur in the music. This was done "free-hand," without a rule to guide the tool, yet the resulting lines were unwavering.

Mr. Boelke gestured toward the tools. "These are made in Germany," he said. "Five or six men supply all the tools for the world." He added the hand-made stamps and knives are very expensive costing some $400 to $500 per set. He owns 25 sets in various styles.

Printed in New York

The completed plate with proofs is forwarded to the publisher in New York, Mr. Boelke explained. There the proof is photographed and another plate is made for printing by a process known as "photo-offset." If corrections must be made, the plate is returned to Hillsdale for reworking.

Photo-offset, of course, is a modern method of printing. But the engraving process itself is virtually identical with the one used by T. Cross & Son of London when they published their first music from an engraved plate in 1732.

The bulk of the scores engraved by Mr. Boelke is choral music and educational music for piano students. He noted that there is a continuing demand for this type of music, even though it might not be as great as the masterpieces of symphonic music.

Craftsman's Satisfaction

Whatever the music, however, Mr. Boelke finds many pleasures in the details of his demanding art.

The gray-haired engraver, a native of Berlin, Germany, explained that his unusual craft offered many compensations. "It gives a craftsman satisfaction; he can put something of himself into his work, he can give it his own stamp."

The profession was a natural choice, for Mr. Boelke formerly studied violin and once planned a concert career. He still plays for his own pleasure, but says that the hours he suffers from acrophobia[illegible] long hours of practice for serious playing are too much for him.

A similar apprenticeship was necessary for his engraving trade, however, for 5 to 10 years are needed to train a master music engraver. "Why, an apprentice can't begin to earn his pay for at least a year or two," Mr. Boelke said. He served his own early years with the German publishers, C. G. Reeder.

To U.S. in 1926

He came to the U.S. in 1926, working briefly in Cincinnati, Ohio, before moving on to New York, where he worked until three years ago. After several years as chief engraver for one of the nation's largest music publishers, Mr. Boelke decided that independence was more valuable than security. With this in mind, he became, first, a free-lance engraver, and second, a music publisher in his own right.

His own firm, Bomart Music Publishers, has a specialized list. Baroque church music of the 17th century is coupled with 12-tone modern music by Arnold Schonberg, Ernst Krenek, Anton Webern and Charles Ives to make up the bulk of the Bomart's catalogue. Mr. Boelke, of course, engraves the plates for Bomart.

One of his publications was performed at a closed student lecture concert at Tanglewood last year. Songs by Schonberg were used to illustrate a talk on 12-tone music by composer Aaron Copland.

Tanglewood Attracted Boelke

The Berkshire Festival indirectly was responsible for Mr. Boelke's decision to settle here. He visited the Festival with his wife three years ago. Unable to find satisfactory accommodations without reservations, the Boelkes went for a drive through the surrounding countryside.

"We came to Hillsdale and my wife said, 'If there's a real estate agent open, let's just stop in and see him.' Fifteen minutes later we were here at this house and a week later we bought it."

The succeeding three years made Mr. Boelke an enthusiastic booster for the area. "I'll tell you, I've never regretted it for a minute, not a minute," he said.

Likes Mountains

He gestured through the window of his studio, a spacious room with musical scores, manuscripts, engraver's tools and hand presses on tables along one walls. "I love a mountainous country, I like to hike and climb."

He said his favorite climb is ther[illegible] trail up Monument Mountain. Although he is an enthusiastic climber, he admitted somewhat sheepish[illegible] or fear of high places. Consequen[illegible] y he prefers the Monument climb to scaling Mount Everett: he suffers feelings similar to seasickness when he climbs the tower on Mount Everett.

With a place in the country, personal independence and the satisfaction of a creative job, Mr. Boelke considers his success complete. He has only one regret: "Few young people are going into the engraving business. It is good pay and a good job, but the young men don't seem to be interested. The number of men doing this work grows smaller all the time."

Berk Eagle July 13/54

Albeneri Trio Plays Tomorrow at Tanglewood

Festival attraction at Tanglewood tomorrow night will be the Albeneri Trio who will perform at the second in the series of chamber music concerts at the theater-concert hall. Playing the works of Beethoven, Brahms and Martinu will be Itor Kahn, piano; Giorgio Ciompi, violin, and Benar Heifetz, violoncello. The program will commence at 8:30 p.m.

TANGLEWOOD — The Albeneri Trio will give a recital at 8:30 tomorrow evening in the theater-concert hall for the second in the new series of Wednesday evening chamber concerts now incorporated into the Berkshire Music Festival.

Won Coolidge Medal

Now in its sixth season, the Albeneri Trio is headed by pianist Erich Itor Kahn, born in Rimbach, Germany. Mr. Kahn received his musical training in Europe at the Frankfurt am Main Conservatory. He concertized throughout Europe and toured with Pablo Casals until becoming a United States resident in 1941. He has composed for orchestra and chamber groups, and was awarded the Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge medal for "eminent services to chamber music" in 1948.

First Italian violinist in many years to win the first prize at the Paris Conservatoire, Giorgio Ciompi, the Albeneri Trio's violinist, was born in Florence, Italy. His recital debut at New York's Town Hall took place in 1938 when he was 20. Concerts in Europe followed, as well as advanced study with Georges Enesco, until the outbreak of World War II. On his return to this country, where he took up permanent residence in 1947, Mr. Ciompi returned to the concert stage in recital and with the Albeneri Trio.

Launched Career at 12

Benar Heifetz, cellist, launched his career with a recital at the age of 12. Born in Russia, Mr. Heifetz studied at the St. Petersburg Conservatory and at the Master School in Leipzig, Germany. His solo career continued until 1926 when he joined the Kolisch Quartet in Vienna, with which group he concertized throughout the world. A resident of the United States since 1937, Mr. Heifetz—before joining the Albeneri Trio—was first cellist of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra and member of the NBC Symphony Orchestra under Arturo Toscanini.

A few seats remain for the Wednesday evening program which will consist of Brahms' trio in B, Op. 8; trio in D minor by Martinu, and Beethoven's "Archduke" trio. Phone reservations are accepted at the box office, Tanglewood. Admission tickets, entitling holders to listen from the Tanglewood lawns, will be sold a few hours before the program begins. In case of rain, the concert will be held in the Music Shed.

[163]

TIGHT BINDING

Tanglewood Lists Complete Programs

By FRANCIS D. PERKINS

Charles Munch will conduct eight of the twelve concerts which the complete Boston Symphony Orchestra will give in the 1954 Berkshire Festival on Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons in Tanglewood's Music Shed at Lenox, Mass. Pierre Monteux will conduct two concerts, and one each will be directed by Richard Burgin, the orchestra's concertmaster, and by Jean Morel, conductor of the Juilliard School's Orchestra, who makes his Tanglewood debut Saturday, July 24. Mr. Munch will also conduct four of the six chamber orchestra concerts, to be held on five Friday evenings and the closing Thursday evening of the festival in the Tanglewood Theater-Concert Hall; Mr. Morel and Lukas Foss will conduct one each. The Shed programs, as announced yesterday, are as follows:

Saturday, July 10, Munch: Berlioz, "Damnation of Faust" (Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society). Sunday, July 11, Monteaux, Beethoven, "Leonore" overture No. 3; Piano Concerto No. 5 (Claudio Arrau); Symphony No. 5.

Saturday, July 17, Monteux: Franck, Le Chasseur Maudit, Les Eolides, Les Djinns (Vera Franceschi, pianist), Symphony. Sunday, July 18, Munch: Debussy, Iberia; Copland, Piano Concerto (Leo Smit); Berlioz, Fantastic Symphony.

Saturday, July 24, Morel: Weber, "Der Freischuetz" (Overture; Prokofiev, Symphony No. 6; Straus, Don Juan; Elgar, Enigma Variations. Sunday, July 25, Munch: Berlioz, "Benivo and Benedict" overture; Harold in Italy (William Primrose, violist); Toch, Symphony No. 2.

Saturday, July 31, Munch: Berlioz, "Romeo and Juliet," with Festival Chorus and soloists. Sunday, Aug. 1, Burgin: Prokofiev, "Chout," Dvorak, Violin Concerto (Ruth Posselt); Sibelius, Symphony No. 2.

Saturday, Aug. 7, Munch: Gluck, "Alceste" Overture; Beethoven, Violin Concerto (Zino Francescatti); Brahms, Symphony Noo. 2. Sunday, Aug. 8, Munch: Berlioz, "Benvenuto Cellini" Overture; Hunt and Storm from "The Trojans"; Summer Nights (Eleanor Steber, soprano); Te Deum.

Saturday, Aug. 14, Munch: Wagner, "Lohengrin" Prelude; Piston, Symphony No. 4; Ravel, Piano Concerto (Nicole Henriot); Saint-Saens, Symphony No. 3. Sunday, Aug. 15, Munch: Berlioz, Requiem, with Festival Chorus and four auxiliary orchestras.

• • •

Tanglewood Chamber Concerts

Mr. Munch will devote the first two chamber orchestra concerts to Bach, offering five Brandenburg Concertos July 9 and the 93d Cantata and Suites Nos. 1 and 4 July 16. On July 23, he will conduct a Handel Concerto Grosso and Haydn's "Military" Symphony (No. 100) and Hugh Ross will conduct Haydn's "Nelson" Mass. Roussel's "The Spider's Feast," Ibert's Flute Concerto, with Doriot Anthony as soloist, and Mozart's Wind Serenade in C minor (K. 388) and "Paris" Symphony (K. 297) are in his program for July 30. Lukas Foss will conduct the program for Aug. 6, including Stravinsky's ballet "Pulcinella," a Mozart piano concerto with Seymour Lipkin as soloist, and excerpts from Mozart's "Idomeneo" with chorus and soloists. Mr. Morel closes the series Thursday, Aug. 12, with Rossini's Overture to "La Scala di Seta," Mozart's Symphony in B flat (K. 319) and Strauss's music for "Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme."

The dates and artists for the Wednesday evening chamber music series in the Theater-Concert Hall are July 7, Claudio Arrau, pianist, and the Bel Arte String Trio; July 14, Albeneri Trio; July 21, Zimbler Sinfonietta; July 28, Griller Quartet; Aug. 4, Boston Woodwind Quintet and a soloist; Aug. 11, Kroll Quartet. Information about tickets and lists of programs may be obtained by writing to the Berkshire Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass.

Berlioz Slated At Carnegie

In honor of the 150th anniversary of Berlioz' birth, the Boston Symphony Orchestra will present his "Romeo and Juliet" Symphony in full under Charles Munch's direction in both of its next Carnegie Hall concerts, Wednesday night, March 10, and Saturday afternoon, March 13.

N. Y. "Herald-Tribune"
February 28, 1954

July 12, 1954
Berkshire Evening "Eagle"

A Musical Prevue of Berkshire Festival Concerts

8:00 to 10:00 PM Mondays through Fridays.
(Monday programs will begin at 8:15 PM)

This program is being presented in cooperation with the Berkshire Festival and will feature all the music which is to be played at Tanglewood during the 1954 season. The only exceptions will be in cases where music played at Tanglewood has not been recorded. Appropriate substitutions will be made.

W. B. E. C.

The American Broadcasting Co.

1490 AM 49.3 FM

TOLEDO, OHIO
BLADE
MAR 28 1954

N. Y. Herald Tribune
MONDAY, JULY 12, 1954

Tanglewood Hears Arrau With Monteux on Podium

By Theodore M. Strongin

LENOX, Mass., July 11.—The fourth Berkshire Festival program was conducted by Pierre Monteux in the shed at Tanglewood this afternoon with Claudio Arrau as piano soloist in an all-Beethoven program: the "Emperor" concerto, "Leonore" overture No. 3, and the Fifth Symphony. Ten thousand and fifty persons attended, bringing the total festival count to 22,750 since its opening Wednesday night.

Mr. Arrau, Mr. Monteux and the Boston Symphony Orchestra first played together on Feb. 4, 1924. Thirty years gives time for a lot of polish to be applied, and Mr. Arrau gave a scintillating, gleaming performance yesterday. Brilliant it was, thoughtful it was not, although a little warmth crept into the second movement. Brilliance, however, is a perfectly legitimate facet of this piece.

"Perfect Beethoven"

Mr. Monteux and the orchestra filled the rest of the afternoon with perfect Beethoven, strong, rich and solid as a rock—a rousing conclusion to the festival's first big week end.

Last night, an audience of 8,500 at the Tanglewood shed heard Charles Munch conduct the third Berkshire festival program, one that surely could be the peak of this or any other festival: the complete Berlioz "Damnation of Faust," with the full Boston Symphony Orchestra, 110 members of the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, and for soloists, Eleanor Steber, soprano, as Marguerite; David Poleri, tenor, as Faust; Martial Singher, baritone, as Mephistopheles, and Donald Gramm, bass, as Brander.

Mr. Munch's "Damnation" was remarkable; no single soloist or group stood out, because all levels were so high that there was nothing to stand out from. The many separate virtues of each singer, and they had lovely voices, all of them, were much less notable than the perfect service each one gave to this moving work. Soloists, chorus, orchestra, conductor, all contributed to a human experience, not a mere experience in notes (two and a half hours' worth of them). Theirs was the highest type of musicianship.

To the orchestra fell the major burdens, and it met them all brilliantly.

Mr. Munch kept the sounds going clearly; he did not obstruct them with mannerisms. At times, especially in the first half, a tiny amount of energy was missing, just the amount that, if present, would have raised the roof over this monumental work, and the shed has a big one. But this conductor's version of the "Damnation of Faust" came very close indeed to being complete, which is perhaps why one missed the critical percentage.

Meanwhile, the Berkshires being festival country, another summer series started yesterday afternoon a step away from Tanglewood at South Mountain, just south of Pittsfield. Alexander Schneider, violinist, and Arthur Balsam, pianist, officiated at this one, the first of six to be given on successive Saturday afternoons in the Temple of Music. Mrs. Willem Willeke, musical director of the South Mountain Association and wife of the late famous cellist who worked at the temple for years, arranged the series under the joint sponsorship of the Library of Congress and the Fromm Foundation of Chicago. Messrs. Schneider and Balsam are giving all the Beethoven violin and piano sonatas in three of the six programs; yesterday's list included Op. 12, No. 1; Op. 96, and Op. 30, No. 3.

South Mountain emphasizes chamber music, and that's exactly the kind of enterprise that the audience, 600 strong (scattered out on the grounds, summer festival style, as well as in the hall), heard yesterday. Chamber music is one of the world's warmest areas of cooperation, especially when two fine artists agree to listen to each other during a performance. The two principals at South Mountain listened, glistened, phrased and balanced all the way through. It was a most impressive afternoon.

Lenox Berk Eagle July 12/54

FRANK V. McCARTHY Tel. 476-M

Tanglewood, Lenox Problems Discussed by Representatives

LENOX—Several specific ways of increasing cooperation between the town and the Boston Symphony Orchestra during the Tanglewood season were discussed at a meeting Saturday of representatives of both.

Present were Henry B. Cabot, president of the BSO, Selectmen R. Harry Barnes and Capt. Charles F. House, and John D. Kennedy, chairman of the Planning Board. The meeting was held at Stonover Farm, home of Mr. Kennedy.

Subjects Discussed

According to Mr. Barnes, among the subjects discussed were:

1. A suggestion by the Selectmen and agreed upon by Mr. Cabot to have signs erected between the entrances to Tanglewood and the parking lot directing outgoing traffic bound for Richmond, Stockbridge, Great Barrington and other points west and south to turn left on Route 183. The Selectmen pointed out that frequently people leaving Tanglewood drive all the way up overcrowded West Street to the village before they discover they are headed in the wrong direction.

2. A proposal that an effort be made to have people park their cars in areas of the parking lot set aside for the different destinations for which the cars will be bound after the concerts. It was decided this would be cumbersome and perhaps cause more confusion than it was worth.

3. Agreement that there is a need in the center of town for public rest rooms during the Tanglewood season. Mr. Cabot suggested that the town draw up plans for the rest rooms and submit them to the BSO, which would probably make a "modest contribution."

4. Agreement that a permanent committee should be established consisting of the manager of the BSO and the chairmen of the Lenox Selectmen and Planning Board to maintain liaison and cooperation on problems of mutual concern.

Mr. Barnes stated that he felt the meeting had accomplished much to benefit both the town and Tanglewood. He said Mr. Cabot was very gracious and agreeable in understanding the town's problems.

Clean up time—lawns, rubbish, ashes. Tree work. Tel. 8094.—Adv. —16

N. Y. Herald-Tribune
E, SUNDAY, MARCH 14, 1954

Going On in Music—Festivals Getting Busy

By FRANCIS D. PERKINS

Two members of the Juilliard School's faculty will be department heads at the Berkshire Center for this summer's session at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., from July 5 to Aug. 15. Jean Morel, conductor of the Juilliard Orchestra, will direct the conducting and orchestra departments, and Frederic Cohen, who heads Juilliard's opera department, will direct the center's operatic activities, replacing Boris Goldovsky, who is on leave of absence. Ernst Toch will be guest teacher of composition; his colleagues will be Aaron Copland and Lukas Foss, who will also be head of the Tanglewood Study Group.

As already announced, Mr. Morel will conduct the Boston Symphony Orchestra in one concert each of the regular and the chamber orchestra series (July 24 and Aug. 12), and Mr. Foss will conduct in the latter series Aug. 6. Charles Munch continues as director of the center and Mr. Copland as assistant director; the faculty includes twenty-four Boston Symphony musicians. Detailed information can be obtained from the Berkshire Music Center, Symphony Hall, Boston 15. As usual, the center's concerts and operas will be open to contributing members of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center.

or fear of high places. ly he prefers the Mont to scaling Mount Ever fers feelings similar to wish he shares the tow Everest.

With a place in his sound independ faction of a ke considers ... He has young engraving business. It and a good job, but th don't seem to be inter number of men doing grows smaller all the tim

This Clipping PHILADELPHIA, PA. INQUIRER MAR 14 1954

Tanglewood School Announces Schedule

The Berkshire Music Center, summer school maintained at Tanglewood, Mass., by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in connection with the Berkshire Festival, will hold a six-week session from July 5 to Aug. 15.

Departments include orchestral conducting, with Jean Morel and Seymour Lipkin; orchestra, headed by Morel; chamber music, with Richard Burgin, William Kroll and Gregor Piatigorsky; choral music, with Hugh Ross, James Aliferis and Lorna Cooke deVaron; composition, with Aaron Copland, Ernst Toch and Lukas Foss; opera, headed by Frederic Cohen, and the study group, with Foss, Karl Kohn and Florence Dunn.

Munch Reveals Affinity For 'Romeo' Of Berlioz

By IRVING KOLODIN

NEW YORK, March 27—As a preview of things to come, the performance of Berlioz's "Romeo and Juliet" by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in Carnegie Hall, under the direction of Charles Munch, was satisfying in itself and a powerful propaganda for the Berlioz festival planned for the orchestra's summer season at Tanglewood, Mass. Those who have heard Munch perform the "Symphony Fantastique" by the same composer are well aware of his affinity with that aspect of the composer's art: this was longer, better evidence of his comprehension in another.

Withal, the word would have to be "affinity," for the Munch approach to Berlioz is decidedly emotional, which has an effect of two sorts: to dramatize and highlight such passages of eloquent writing as the love scene, but also to leave without proper illumination some other passages where the composer's expression is subtler, or without as much clear purpose.

Performances of this substantial work (which takes the whole of an evening to play) are still too infrequent for many to boast complete comprehension of it. As it happens, the only complete recording is also by Munch, which leaves equally unanswered the question of whether the lapses are the composer's, the interpreter's or the listener's. But it is a certainty that the activity associated with the 150th anniversary of the composer's birth will help to clarify these and other points.

Assisting the orchestra was a choral ensemble made up of Radcliffe and Harvard students, which did its work well. The vocal soloists were Mary Davenport, an intelligent singer who performed the lengthy mezzo with good taste if not the richest vocal quality; John McCollum, a capable tenor, and Yi-Kwei-Sze, the Chinese bass-baritone.

[164]

TIGHT BINDING

Tanglewood Lists Complete Programs

By FRANCIS D. PERKINS

Charles Munch will conduct twelve concerts during the twelve weeks the complete Boston Symphony Orchestra will give in the Berkshire Festival, on Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons in Tanglewood's Music Shed at Lenox, Mass. Pierre Monteux will conduct two concerts, and one each will be directed by Richard Burgin, the orchestra's concertmaster, and by Jean Morel, conductor of the Juilliard School's Orchestra, which makes its Tanglewood debut on Saturday, July 24. Mr. Munch will also conduct four of the six chamber orchestra concerts, to be held on five Friday evenings and the closing Thursday evening of the festival in the Tanglewood Theater-Concert Hall. Mr. Morel and Lukas Foss will conduct one each. The Shed programs, as announced yesterday, are as follows:

[illegible] No. 1, Mozart; Brahms, Concerto for Violin and Cello; Boston Symphony. Sunday afternoon, July 11, Beethoven, Leonore Overture No. 3; Symphony No. 5. Tuesday evening, July 13, Handel, Concerto Grosso; Haydn, Symphony No. 100 ("Military"); Roussel, "The Spider's Feast"; Ibert, Flute Concerto (Leo Smit), Boston Symphony.

Thursday evening, July 15, Mozart, Wagner, "Der Rosenkavalier" Suite; Prokofieff, Symphony No. 6; Strauss, Don Juan; Ebert, Variations. Sunday, July 18, Bach, Suite No. 3; Beethoven, Piano Concerto No. 5 (Eugene Istomin); Harold in Italy (William Primrose, viola); Toch, Symphony No. 2.

Tuesday, July 20, Mozart, Requiem; Bach, Cantata No. 4; Juilliard Festival Chorus. Sunday afternoon, July 25, Bach, Brandenburg Concerto No. 1; Mozart, Concerto for Violin, Chorus, Dvorak, Violin Concerto (Joseph Fuchs); Sibelius, Symphony No. 2.

Tuesday evening, July 27, Mozart, Wagner, Beethoven, Violin Concerto (Francescatti); Brahms, Symphony No. 2. Sunday afternoon, August 1, Mozart, "Benvenuto Cellini" Overture; Haydn, Storm from "The Tempest"; Nicolai, (Eleanor Steber, soprano).

Tuesday evening, August 3, Mozart, Wagner, Prelude; Piston, Symphony No. 4; Piano Concerto (Nicole Henriot-Schweitzer); Symphony No. 2. Sunday afternoon, August 8, Mozart, Requiem, Chorus and four auxiliary voices.

• • •

Tanglewood Chamber Concerts

Mr. Munch will devote the first two chamber orchestra concerts to Bach, offering five Brandenburg Concertos July 9 and the 93d Cantata and Suites Nos. 1 and 4 July 16. On July 23, he will conduct a Handel Concerto Grosso and Haydn's "Military" Symphony (No. 100) and Hugh Ross will conduct Haydn's "Nelson" Mass. Roussel's "The Spider's Feast," Ibert's Flute Concerto, with Doriot Anthony as soloist, and Mozart's Wind Serenade in C minor (K. 388) and "Paris" Symphony (K. 297) are in his program for July 30. Lukas Foss will conduct the program for Aug. 6, including Stravinsky's ballet "Pulcinella," a Mozart piano concerto with Seymour Lipkin as soloist, and excerpts from Mozart's "Idomeneo" with chorus and soloists. Mr. Morel closes the series Thursday, Aug. 12, with Rossini's Overture to "La Scala di Seta," Mozart's Symphony in B flat (K. 319) and Strauss's music for "Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme."

The dates and artists for the Wednesday evening chamber music series in the Theater-Concert Hall are July 7, Claudio Arrau, pianist, and the Bel Arte String Trio; July 14, Albeneri Trio; July 21, Zimbler Sinfonietta; July 28, Griller Quartet; Aug. 4, Boston Woodwind Quintet and a soloist; Aug. 11, Kroll Quartet. Information about tickets and lists of programs may be obtained by writing to the Berkshire Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass.

Berlioz Slated At Carnegie

In honor of the 150th anniversary of Berlioz' birth, the Boston Symphony Orchestra will present his "Romeo and Juliet" Symphony in full under Charles Munch's direction in both of its next Carnegie Hall concerts, Wednesday night, March 10, and Saturday afternoon, March 13.

N. Y. "Herald-Tribune"
February 28, 1954

July 12, 1954
Berkshire Evening "Eagle"

A Musical Prevue of Berkshire Festival Concerts

8:00 to 10:00 PM Mondays through Fridays.
(Monday programs will begin at 8:15 PM)

This program is being presented in cooperation with the Berkshire Festival and will feature all the music which is to be played at Tanglewood during the 1954 season. The only exceptions will be in cases where music played at Tanglewood has not been recorded. Appropriate substitutions will be made.

W. B. E. C.

The American Broadcasting Co.

1490 AM — TOLEDO, OHIO BLADE — 49.3 FM

MAR 28 1954

N. Y. Herald-Tribune
MONDAY, JULY 12, 1954

Tanglewood Hears Arrau With Monteux on Podium

By Theodore M. Strongin

LENOX, Mass., July 11.—The fourth Berkshire Festival program was conducted by Pierre Monteux in the shed at Tanglewood this afternoon with Claudio Arrau as piano soloist in an all-Beethoven program: the "Emperor" concerto, "Leonore" overture No. 3, and the Fifth Symphony. Ten thousand and fifty persons attended, bringing the total festival count to 22,750 since its opening Wednesday night.

Mr. Arrau, Mr. Monteux and the Boston Symphony Orchestra first played together on Feb. 4, 1924. Thirty years gives time for a lot of polish to be applied, and Mr. Arrau gave a scintillating, gleaming performance yesterday. Brilliant it was, thoughtful it was not, although a little warmth crept into the second movement. Brilliance, however, is a perfectly legitimate facet of this piece.

"Perfect Beethoven"

Mr. Monteux and the orchestra filled the rest of the afternoon with perfect Beethoven, strong, rich and solid as a rock—a rousing conclusion to the festival's first big week end.

Last night, an audience of 8,500 at the Tanglewood shed heard Charles Munch conduct the third Berkshire festival program, one that surely could be the peak of this or any other festival: the complete Berlioz "Damnation of Faust," with the full Boston Symphony Orchestra, 110 members of the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, and for soloists, Eleanor Steber, soprano, as Marguerite; David Poleri, tenor, as Faust; Martial Singher, baritone, as Mephistopheles, and Donald Gramm, bass, as Brander.

Mr. Munch's "Damnation" was remarkable; no single soloist or group stood out, because all levels were so high that there was nothing to stand out from. The many separate virtues of each singer, and they had lovely voices, all of them, were much less notable than the perfect service each one gave to this moving work. Soloists, chorus, orchestra, conductor, all contributed to a human experience, not a mere experience in notes (two and a half hours' worth of them). Theirs was the highest type of musicianship.

To the orchestra fell the major burdens, and it met them all brilliantly.

Mr. Munch kept the sounds going clearly; he did not obstruct them with mannerisms. At times, especially in the first half, a tiny amount of energy was missing, just the amount that, if present, would have raised the roof over this monumental work, and the shed has a big one. But this conductor's version of the "Damnation of Faust" came very close indeed to being complete, which is perhaps why one missed the critical percentage.

Meanwhile, the Berkshires being festival country, another summer series started yesterday afternoon a step away from Tanglewood at South Mountain, just south of Pittsfield. Alexander Schneider, violinist, and Arthur Balsam, pianist, officiated at this one, the first of six to be given on successive Saturday afternoons in the Temple of Music. Mrs. Willem Willeke, musical director of the South Mountain Association and wife of the late famous cellist who worked at the temple for years, arranged the series under the joint sponsorship of the Library of Congress and the Fromm Foundation of Chicago. Messrs. Schneider and Balsam are giving all the Beethoven violin and piano sonatas in three of the six programs; yesterday's list included Op. 12, No. 1; Op. 96, and Op. 30, No. 3.

South Mountain emphasizes chamber music, and that's exactly the kind of enterprise that the audience, 600 strong (scattered out on the grounds, summer festival style, as well as in the hall), heard yesterday. Chamber music is one of the world's warmest areas of cooperation, especially when two fine artists agree to listen to each other during a performance. The two principals at South Mountain listened, glistened, phrased and balanced all the way through. It was a most impressive afternoon.

N. Y. Herald-Tribune
E, SUNDAY, MARCH 14, 1954

Going On in Music—Festivals Getting Busy

By FRANCIS D. PERKINS

Two members of the Juilliard School's faculty will be department heads at the Berkshire Center for this summer's session at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., from July 5 to Aug. 15. Jean Morel, conductor of the Juilliard Orchestra, will direct the conducting and orchestra departments, and Frederic Cohen, who heads Juilliard's opera department, will direct the center's operatic activities, replacing Boris Goldovsky, who is on leave of absence. Ernst Toch will be guest teacher of composition; his colleagues will be Aaron Copland and Lukas Foss, who will also be head of the Tanglewood Study Group.

As already announced, Mr. Morel will conduct the Boston Symphony Orchestra in one concert each of the regular and the chamber orchestra series (July 24 and Aug. 12), and Mr. Foss will conduct in the latter series Aug. 6. Charles Munch continues as director of the center and Mr. Copland as assistant director; the faculty includes twenty-four Boston Symphony musicians. Detailed information can be obtained from the Berkshire Music Center, Symphony Hall, Boston 15. As usual, the center's concerts and operas will be open to contributing members of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center.

or fear of high places. ly he prefers the Mont to scaling Mount Eve fers feelings similar to when he climbs the tow Everest. "I find it [illegible] sonal independence and faction of a job well ke considers his success He has only the regand young people are goi engraving business. It and a good job, but th don't seem to be intere number of men doing grows smaller all the time.

Trib Supp...
PHILADELPHIA, PA.
INQUIRER
MAR 14 1954

Tanglewood School Announces Schedule

The Berkshire Music Center, summer school maintained at Tanglewood, Mass., by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in connection with the Berkshire Festival, will hold a six-week session from July 5 to Aug. 15.

Departments include orchestral conducting, with Jean Morel and Seymour Lipkin; orchestra, headed by Morel; chamber music, with Richard Burgin, William Kroll and Gregor Piatigorsky; choral music, with Hugh Ross, James Aliferis and Lorna Cooke deVaron; composition, with Aaron Copland, Ernst Toch and Lukas Foss; opera, headed by Frederic Cohen, and the study group, with Foss, Karl Kohn and Florence Dunn.

Munch Reveals Affinity For 'Romeo' Of Berlioz

By IRVING KOLODIN

NEW YORK, March 27—As a preview of things to come, the performance of Berlioz's "Romeo and Juliet" by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in Carnegie Hall, under the direction of Charles Munch, was satisfying in itself and a powerful propaganda for the Berlioz festival planned for the orchestra's summer season at Tanglewood, Mass. Those who have heard Munch perform the "Symphony Fantastique" by the same composer are well aware of his affinity with that aspect of the composer's art: this was longer, better evidence of his comprehension in another.

Withal, the word would have to be "affinity," for the Munch approach to Berlioz is decidedly emotional, which has an effect of two sorts: to dramatize and highlight such passages of eloquent writing as the love scene, but also to leave without proper illumination some other passages where the composer's expression is subtler, or without as much clear purpose.

Performances of this substantial work (which takes the whole of an evening to play) are still too infrequent for many to boast complete comprehension of it. As it happens, the only complete recording is also by Munch, which leaves equally unanswered the question of whether the lapses are the composer's, the interpreter's or the listener's. But it is a certainty that the activity associated with the 150th anniversary of the composer's birth will help to clarify these and other points.

Assisting the orchestra was a choral ensemble made up of Radcliffe and Harvard students, which did its work well. The vocal soloists were Mary Davenport, an intelligent singer who performed the lengthy mezzo with good taste if not the richest vocal quality; John McCallum, a capable tenor, and Yi-Kwei-Sze, the Chinese bass-baritone.

[164]

Lenox Berk Eagle July 13/54

FRANK V. McCARTHY — Tel. 476-M

Tanglewood, Lenox Problems Discussed by Representatives

LENOX—Several specific ways of increasing cooperation between the town and the Boston Symphony Orchestra during the Tanglewood season were discussed at a meeting Saturday of representatives of both.

Present were Henry B. Cabot, president of the BSO, Selectmen R. Harry Barnes and Capt. Charles F. House, and John D. Kennedy, chairman of the Planning Board. The meeting was held at Stonover Farm, home of Mr. Kennedy.

Subjects Discussed

According to Mr. Barnes, among the subjects discussed were:

1. A suggestion by the Selectmen and agreed upon by Mr. Cabot to have signs erected between the entrances to Tanglewood and the parking lot directing outgoing traffic bound for Richmond, Stockbridge, Great Barrington and other points west and south to turn left on Route 183. The Selectmen pointed out that frequently people leaving Tanglewood drive all the way up overcrowded West Street to the village before they discover they are headed in the wrong direction.

2. A proposal that an effort be made to have people park their cars in areas of the parking lot set aside for the different destinations for which the cars will be bound after the concerts. It was decided this would be cumbersome and perhaps cause more confusion than it was worth.

3. Agreement that there is a need in the center of town for public rest rooms during the Tanglewood season. Mr. Cabot suggested that the town draw up plans for the rest rooms and submit them to the BSO, which would probably make a "modest contribution."

4. Agreement that a permanent committee should be established consisting of the manager of the BSO and the chairmen of the Lenox Selectmen and Planning Board to maintain liaison and cooperation on problems of mutual concern.

Mr. Barnes stated that he felt the meeting had accomplished much to benefit both the town and Tanglewood. He said Mr. Cabot was very gracious and agreeable in understanding the town's problems.

Clean up time—lawns, rubbish, ashes. Tree work. Tel. 8094.—Adv. —16

TIGHT BINDING

SCHENECTADY GAZETTE, MONDAY, JULY 12, 1954

Tanglewood Opener, 'Damnation of Faust', Well Received

By D. E. RITZ

The Hector Berlioz "Damnation of Faust" opened the Shed season at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., Saturday evening. Charles Munch directed the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the chorus made up of the Harvard Glee club and the Radcliffe Choral society and soloists, in a truly magnificent performance.

* * *

FEATURED SOLOISTS were Eleanor Steber, soprano, as Marguerite; David Poleri, tenor, as Faust; Martial Singher, baritone, as Mephistopheles; and Donald Gramm, bass, as Brander. McHenry Boatwright, bass, student of opera dramatics at the Berkshire Music center, gave an outstanding performance as the "voice" in the "On Earth" portion of the epilogue.

The amazing contrasts and complexities of the Berlioz music, the composer's unerring sense of theater, orchestration and vocal line and the magnitude of the work left one completely astounded.

Bravos, cheers and a standing ovation concluded the two and a half hour performance. The performance of the work, its first at Tanglewood, also marked the first Shed program to be held so early in the season. It was also the first time that a work of such magnitude has been given on an opening night.

* * *

THE SHED WAS FILLED for the occasion and even overcoat and blanket weather in the Berkshires did not cool the audience enthusiasm.

The "Faust" music is the first of a number of Berlioz works scheduled for performance in their complete form at Tanglewood this summer in observance of the 150th season of the birth of the French composer. Other works will be the "Romeo and Juliet" symphony, July 31; "Requiem," Aug. 15; the song cycle "Summer Nights" and "Te Deum," Aug. 7 and "Harold in Italy", July 25.

Soloists Saturday gave vivid character portrayals through the vocal medium and the Harvard and Radcliffe choral groups, individually and combined were excellent.

The orchestra, as always, was superb, but it is to Munch that complete credit is due for the overall conception of the interpretation. It is his genius for detail which united the whole into a perfect performance of the masterpiece.

* * *

FIVE OF THE SIX Brandenburg concertos by John Sebastian Bach were presented in the first of the Theater-Concert hall performances on Friday night by the chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players under Munch's direction. The overflow audience listened from the lawns and benches. Lukas Foss as assisting piano soloist was superb in the performance of his intricate part in the trio of number 5 with Richard Burgin, concertmaster; and Doriot Anthony, flute; as other members of the solo trio. Other featured soloists in works in which each performer is of soloist caliber were Roger Voisin, trumpet; and Ralph Gomberg, oboe.

The Tanglewood weekend concluded yesterday afternoon in the Shed with the Boston Symphony under the baton of the beloved Pierre Monteux and with Claudio Arrau as piano soloist in the Beethoven "Emperor" concerto. The all-Beethoven program and a De-Bussy-Franck program next Saturday are the two in the series which Monteux is scheduled to lead this year.

The Tanglewood series will continue through Aug. 15. Programs this week include the Albeneri Trio, Wednesday evening; a Bach program under Munch Friday evening; Monteux's program Saturday evening; and a DeBussy-Copland-Berlioz program Sunday afternoon under the baton of Munch.

CHICAGO, ILL.
TRIBUNE
MAY 30 1954

Berlioz Year to Pay Honor to Composer

By Seymour Raven

No advice is ever given here that you join anything—except to join the crowd at a high level presentation in concert hall or theater. Societies for the enhancement or preservation of this or that must pass whatever test you, yourself, impose for the giving of your name, time or money.

Yet I'm sure that our giving and your taking of information is perfectly in order. Here then is word of a society that prepares to do honor to a great composer, Hector Berlioz, who was born in France 150 years ago last December. Eying this as the "Berlioz year," the Berlioz society bids both for members and for comprehensive performance of Berlioz's music by our representative musical organizations.

• • •

Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony orchestra, is president. On the advisory board there are such luminaries as Pierre Monteux, Eugene Ormandy, and Dimitri Mitropoulos. Interested parties may communicate with W. E. Gillespie, secretary-treasurer, 10 Weelwright av., Exeter, N. H.

Clearly, the justification for such a society has been building. There has been a wide renewal of interest in Berlioz's music, keyed not only to such formalities as an anniversary year but to the positive merits of the man's art.

• • •

The monumental Berlioz biografy by Jacques Barzun, published in 1950, was a notable stimulant to the present Berlioz movement. Several conductors have, over the years, put as much Berlioz music into their seasons as normal schedules and budgets would permit—and some of us have been nagging them to go all out a couple of times and exhibit something of the colorful genius' larger musical canvases.

I found myself saying four years ago:

"There are those of us—and our number is growing—who have a great hunger for the music of Hector Berlioz. Last night's Ravinia concert, alas, did not satisfy that desire, for reasons that Berlioz himself foresaw a century ago. Speaking of his dramatic symphony, 'Romeo and Juliet,' the great Frenchman said it cannot be decently performed unless it is studied regularly and connectedly like an opera to be sung by heart. And he knew the cost of rehearsing it, a wisdom gained long before modern orchestras began to plan their seasons on adding machines."

• • •

A year later I was enlisting Romain Rolland, via the quotation route, in our Berlioz cause. Of Berlioz's belief in "real liberty, absolute and immense," Rolland had written: "And this passionate love of liberty, which was his misfortune in life since it deprived him of the comfort of any faith, refused him any refuge for his thoughts, robbed him of peace, and even of the soft pillow of skepticism—this real liberty formed the unique originality and grandeur of his musical conceptions."

As much as any conductor, Mr. Munch, I suppose, has been carrying the torch for Berlioz. Surely the Tanglewood programming of the past two summers bears this out—and the upcoming festival in the Berkshires practically cinches the presidency for him in perpetuity.

• • •

Last summer Mr. Munch presented "Romeo and Juliet." In 1952 he put on the Requiem. Now, for the Berlioz anniversary season, the Boston conductor schedules the following:

"The Damnation of Faust," July 10. With Harvard Glee club, Radcliffe Choral society, and soloists.

"Fantastic Symphony," July 18.

Overture to "Beatrice and Benedict" and "Harold in Italy" [the latter with William Primrose as viola soloist], July 25.

"Romeo and Juliet," dramatic symphony, with festival chorus and soloists, July 31.

Overture to "Benvenuto Cellini"; "Royal Hunt and Storm," from "Les Troyens"; "Summer Nights," for soprano [Eleanor Steber] and orchestra; "Te Deum," with chorus and soloists—all Aug. 7.

"Requiem," with chorus and soloists, Aug. 15.

• • •

These works, of course, make Berlioz the dominant composer for the Boston Symphony concerts in the large Tanglewood shed. But Beethoven, Wagner, Ravel, Debussy, Brahms, Prokofieff, Sibelius and Copland are not to be excluded. And the smaller theater-concert hall will widen the program scope with Bach, Haydn, Mozart, Stravinsky, Strauss and others.

Should anybody question the wisdom of such vast—and obviously expensive planning—on the part of the Berkshire festival, there is a ready answer in the impressive attendance figures. They broke all attendance records last year.

Meanwhile, I pledge allegiance to the Ravinia festival and the usual programming for which it stands, hoping for an extra smidgin of Berlioz in honor of the anniversary. I hope, too, that the new Berlioz society gets itself some more inspired members and goes far in its worthy purpose.

1954. N.Y. World Telegram

Music

Berkshire Rolls a Pair of Bs

By ROBERT BAGAR.

TANGLEWOOD, LENOX, Mass., July 12.—Ae couple of the Bs—not usually associated with each other—Berlioz and Beethoven—took over the first two programs of the Berkshire Symphonic Festival at Tanglewood, attended by 18,550. Charles Munch conducted the French composer's "Damnation of Faust" on Saturday evening, and Pierre Monteux closed this initial session yesterday afternoon with the Beethoven Fifth Symphony.

Mr. Munch, alert and delicate, two qualities not connected with his "Bach Brandenburg" revelations of Friday night, did especially good things with the Berlioz.

He had some mghty capable assistants, or, if you will, participating artists in Eleanor Steber, Davd Poleri, Martial Singher and Donald Gramm. Although there were some inequalities in the rendition as a whole, one could, at least, bask in the glow of some fine effects at various points of the score.

Harvard Glee Club.

Not always were the solo voices clearly heard, a matter probably owing to placement on the stage. Furthermore, the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society, all very musical young people, produced a body of tone not capable of competing with the giant orchestral sound which is a must in certain pages of the work.

The second half of Berlioz's mercurial composition obtained some stunning orchestral playing, and I enjoyed hugely the singing of the soloists—when I could hear them distinctly. There was still another solo singer, McHenry Boatright, bass, who intoned agreeably the "Volce of the Earth" in the epilogue.

Yesterday afternoon's Beethoven was highlighted by Claudio Arrau's performance of the "Emperor" concerto. Sensitive, fleet, accurate, the brilliant Mr. Arrau let none of us down Nor did Mr. Monteux, whose wise, affecting collaboration in the concerto matched the rest of his conducting elsewhere. The third "Lenore" overture and the Fifth Symphony were the other numbers.

Full Activity.

The musical activity hereabouts is at flood time. On Saturday afternoon I went to South Mountain, Pittsfield, to listen to a recital of Beethoven piano and violin sonatas. The artists were a pair of familiar workers in the vineyards—Alexander Schneider, violinist, and Artur Balsam, pianist.

They played the No. 1, in D Major (Op. 12), the No. 10 in G Major (Op. 96) and the No. 7, in C Minor (Op. 30). Beautiful ensemble, indeed. A large audience—inside and outside the concert hall—applauded noisily.

These concerts are presented by the South Mountain Assn., in collaboration with the Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge Foundation and the Fromm Music Foundation of Chicago. Five more are scheduled for successive Saturdays, calling for various music and performers.

Albeneri Trio at Tanglewood Tonight

The Albeneri Trio will give a special tonight at 8:30 p.m. in the Theater-Concert hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, second in the new and popular series of Wednessday evening chamber music concerts now incorporated into the Berkshire Festival.

Now in its sixth season, The Albeneri Trio is headed by pianist Eric Itor Kahn, who was born in Rimbach, Germany, and includes also Giorgio Ciompi and Benar Heifetz. Mr. Kahn received his musical training in Europe at the Frankfort-on-Main Conservatory. He gave concerts throughout Europe and toured with Pablo Casals until becoming a United States resident in 1941. He has composed for orchestra and chamber groups and was awarded the Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge medal for "eminent services to chamber music" in 1948.

'Damnation of Faust' Performed at Festival

Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., July 12—Procuring a ticket for the concerts of the Boston Symphony here during the Berkshire Festival, is not too difficult if you don't mind the sky for your ceiling and the grass for your chair. Thousands of adventurous music lovers understandably took advantage of the ideal weather yesterday and during the days previous, to use nature's auditorium instead of the Music Shed or the Theater-Concert Hall for the excellent performances which transpired.

Although during the four concerts which made up the intial week of the festival, more than 25,000 people heard music from indoors or out, by sunlight, by shade, by moonlight, or, for the evening chair-sitters, by electric light.

Yesterday afternoon's concert by the Bostonians in the 6000-seat Music Shed, conducted by Pierre Monteaux, was all-Beethoven with Pianist Claudio Arrau, soloist in the E-Flat Major Concerto, the Fifth, popularly known as "The Emperor." The beautiful surrounding estate which houses the Shed was covered with humanity eating picnic lunches, while waiting for the music to begin.

Once it started, however, the outdoor audience was as quiet as the indoor. Monteux's way with Beethoven made the content of the music live as few conductors today are able to communicate this composer's inspiration. The immense crowd was fervent in its approbation of the concerto as well as the Fifth Symphony which closed the program.

'Damnation of Faust'

Saturday night, Charles Munch conducted a brilliant interpretation of Berlioz's dramatic symphony, "The Damnation of Faust," one of several works being performed at Tanglewood this summer in honor of the birth of the composer 150 years ago. This long, extraordinary, uneven, but picturesque work, scored for four soloists and chorus in addition to the orchestra, has both its dull and inspired pages.

Munch, better than any maestro of my acquaintance, however, dramatizes Berlioz to the hilt; therefore, the composer under his aegis is a special experience. This "Damnation" had its thrilling moments aided by the remarkably good soloists: Eleanor Steber, soprano; David Poleri, tenor; Martial Singher, baritone; and Donald Gramm, bass. The Harvard and the Radcliffe Glee Clubs provided the choral portions.

The festival continues this week, Wednesday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights. Information regarding programs and tickets can be secured by communicating directly with the festival office at Tanglewood. To this reviewer, a four-hour drive or train trip seems little effort in return for the pleasure of drinking in nature and great music simultaneously.

JOHNSON

The second week of four Berkshire Festival concerts, at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., comprises an evening of chamber music by The Albeneri Trio (Erich Itor Kahn, piano; Giorgio Ciompi, violin; Benar Heifitz, 'cello) on Wednesday evening in the Theater-Concert Hall; an all-Bach program, including a Cantata conducted by Hugh Ross and two suites performed by a chamber orchestra of members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Music Director Charles Munch, on Friday evening in the Theater-Concert Hall; a program of Debussy and Franck performed by the full 104-piece Boston Symphony Orchestra, with Pierre Monteux as guest conductor and Vera Franceschi as piano soloist, on Friday evening in the Music Shed; and the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Mr. Munch conducting, and Leo Smit as piano soloist, in a program of Debussy, Copland and Berlioz, on Sunday afternoon in the Music Shed.

Evening concerts are at 8:30 p.m., the Sunday afternoon concert at 2:30 p.m. General admission to the grounds, enabling overflow crowds to hear the concerts from the spacious Tanglewood lawns, are placed on sale on the day of performance, and Festival patrons are invited to attend a public rehearsal of the Boston Symphony Orchestra on Saturday at 10 a.m., for the nominal charge of $1.00, for the the benefit of the Orchestra's Pension Fund.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.
TIMES
JAN 24

Berlioz Will Be Featured During Berkshire Festival

The Sesquicentennial season of Berlioz will be observed by Charles Munch at the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood in Lenox, Mass., next summer with a performance of a number of the major works of this composer.

"The Damnation of Faust" will be performed with the choruses from Harvard and Radcliffe, "Harold in Italy" with William Primrose as viola soloist, the "Fantastic Symphony" and the song cycle, "Summer Nights." The Festival Chorus of the Berkshire Music Center will appear with the orchestra in the complete "Romeo and Juliet" and in the "Requiem," which will conclude the festival. The festival will extend from the first week of July through Aug. 15.

[165]

TIGHT BINDING

Lukas Foss Airs His Views on a Host of Things, All Musical

LUKAS FOSS
His Music Is in Our Ears

By DUANE La FLECHE

The saxophone, says Lukas Foss, is an "unvirginal instrument" that gives the impression, at least, that it was made to be played at 2 a. m. in a "joint."

Not, he hastens to add, that he is against saxophones; nor even that he is always against "joints," but it is apparent that he never fully recovered from the "horrifying effect" produced when he once heard a saxophonist playing the Passion music of Bach.

Mr. Foss was airing his views on saxophones, on the "getting nowhere" musical sequences of Rimski-Korsakov, on the "healthy school" of Bach playing, and on a host of other things, all musical, to a group of some 60 students at Tanglewood. He did his talking at the piano and let bits of this and bits of that ripple from his fingers as he talked. He was wise, he was witty, and he was in complete command of the situation.

As a matter of fact, Mr. Foss' career would indicate he has been in complete command of situations since he was knee high to Stravinsky, for Mr. Foss, not yet 32, is all of these things:

First he is a composer. A piano concerto, a dramatic cantata based on Carl Sandburg's "the Prairie," songs, an opera, a symphony and most recently an oratorio that was narrated by Vera Zorina are among his works.

He is a pianist. Friday he was soloist at Tanglewood when the chamber orchestra of the Boston Symphony presented the Bach's Brandenburg Concertos. He has appeared as soloist with the New York Philharmonic, the Pittsburgh, the Los Angeles and other symphony orchestras. His fee, it might be noted, has reached $1,000 a performance.

He is a conductor. Two weeks ago, enroute to Tanglewood from his home in California, he paused to conduct the St. Louis Symphony. Next month he will conduct the chamber orchestra of the Boston Symphony at Tanglewood in works of Stravinsky and Mozart.

He is a teacher. At the University of California he is an associate professor of music. Each summer at Tanglewood he teaches composition and a rather free-wheeling course that goes by the title "musicianship" and gives Mr. Foss the opportunity to talk of saxophones and Bacht, of Rimski-Korsakov and Hindemith and of most anything else musical he is in the mood to talk about.

It might be pertinent to say also that he is as American as corn on the cob (though Born in Berlin and educated in Paris); that he talks about music without falling into professional jargon (though he is a professor); that he is modest about his accomplishments (though there is a horrifying pit in a remote corner of his heart for a certain eminent critic who has taken to belittling him).

It seems hardly necessary to add that he is energetic.

But most of all Lukas Foss thinks of himself as a composer.

• • •

"If I were to become the greatest conductor in the world I would consider myself a failure if I did not also compose," he said. Yet, he finds he can't leave conducting alone. He is something too much of an actor for that.

He has found a happy medium in his efforts. He arranges things so that when he conducts, or when he appears as a piano soloist, he conducts or plays music that is in keeping with the trend of his compositions. Thus, he choses for his performances works of Bach, Mozart and Stravinsky among some few others.

• • •

Mr. Foss began his major musical studies in Paris at the age of 11. In 1937, when he was 15, he came to the United States and continued his studies at the Curtis Institute in Philadelphia. Shortly afterward, in the early days of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood he became a conductor pupil of Serge Koussevitsky, who later was to appoint him official pianist of the Boston Symphony.

When he was only 20, Mr. Foss won a Pulitzer scholarship in music. His compositions have brought him a Fulbright fellowship, the Herblit award of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Prix de Rome and a Guggenheim fellowship.

He has become, with the passing of only a few years, one of the handful of young American composers whose works are performed and performed again by the great orchestras.

Perhaps even more remarkable, although in quite a different sense, Mr. Foss is one of far less than a handful of young composers whose earnings as a composer alone are sufficient to keep the wolf from the door.

The earnings from his compositions are modest, and Mr. Foss is modest about them. Royalties and performance fees provide a part of those earnings, but in recent years the greater part has come from works he has been commissioned to do.

• • •

"The Prairie," one of his earlier critical successes, has earned him only $400 in a dozen years. His short opera, "The Jumping Frog of Calaveras County," adapted from a Mark Twain story, has done a bit better, since it has had many performances in 31 productions. "A Parable of Death" was commissioned. A recent recording will add to its earnings.

At the moment Mr. Foss is working on two more commissioned works.

One is an orchestral piece that the Schweitzer Foundation has asked him to write for the celebration next January of the 80th birthday of Albert Schweitzer, musician, physician and philosopher. It will be played by the Boston Symphony on Dr. Schweitzer's birthday.

The second work will have a larger audience, regardless of its critical acclaim or lack of it. It is a work for television, a fairy tale opera in three acts that has been commissioned by the NBC's Opera Theater.

The libretto has been written by Alastair Reid, a young English friend of Mr. Foss, and is based on a fairy story Mr. Foss' mother told him when he was 8 years old.

It is a story about a little devil who came to the world with a magic spray. A whiff of it on the Statue of Liberty and the statue came to life. The lions at the Public Library in New York City create a sensation when their bronze turns to flesh. But then the little devil falls in love with the world and just plain falls in love. He had committed the unpardonable sin for devils and so, says Mr. Foss, he was "excommunicated from hell" and became a real little boy.

Mr. Foss describes the work that on a succeeding day they would develop a step further, as "the regress of a rake."

It will be a year or so before it is completed.

• • •

Mr. Foss is not one to rest on his laurels. As a matter of fact he wouldn't quite dare to.

"In America you never really arrive,' he said. "When you seem to have arrived there are people just waiting for you to slip. Every year a sensation is necessary."

But Mr. Foss is taking care not to be too sensational and to avoid the spectacular.

Creative artists who fall into that trap, he says, find themselves in the unhappy situation of having a huge audience of fans who are insatiable rather than appreciative. They demand to be kept happy at the expense of their victim.

But at Tanglewood, as at the University of California, Mr. Foss, while still a composer, is particularly a teacher of musical composition.

• • •

His Tanglewood class comprises seven young people who have shown promise. The group meets in a paneled room in Hawthorne Cottage that overlooks the not-far-distant lake.

Whether they know it or not, the young people are the subject of an experiment in musical education for Mr. Foss has come to believe that there is a missing step in the teaching of composition. He is attempting to fill that gap for his Tanglewood students.

The missing step, Mr. Foss says, comes after students have learned harmony and counterpoint and before they are ready for criticism of their fledgling works. As the Tanglewood class met for one of its first sessions Mr. Foss had it working on the bass for a little tune While keeping it a "little tune" they would rethink it into a little tune for a string quartet, for a woodwind trio—oboe, bassoon and clarinet—and for violin and piano.

"Have it ready for the day after tomorrow," was his closing direction.

But Mr. Foss is giving thought to his own day after tomorrow as well as that of his students.

Perhaps when he is 50, he says, he will be ready to put a stop to all his other activities and devote his energies entirely to composition, but that is for the future to decide, as only the future can reveal where and when American music will come to its fruition.

Leonard Bernstein, a contemporary and associate of Mr. Foss, thinks that musical fruition will come for America in music for the theater.

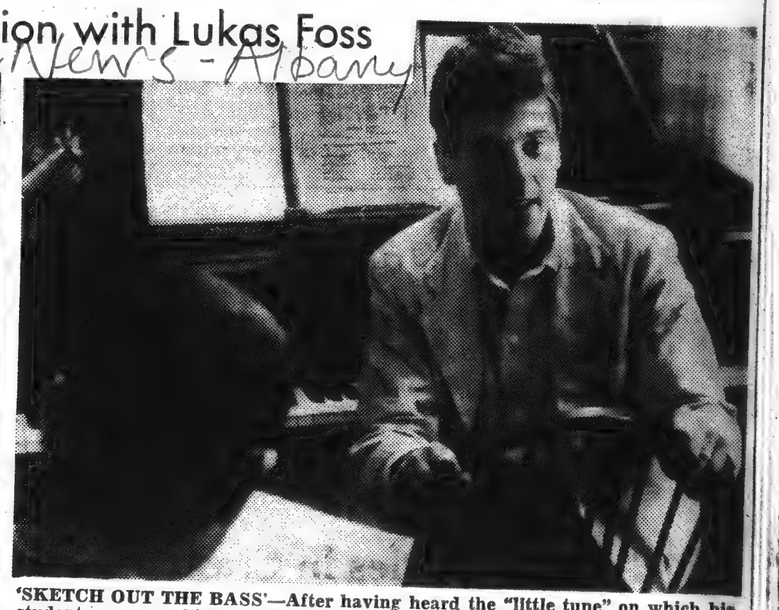
Mr. Foss neither agrees nor disagrees.

"It will come," he says, "whenever genius strikes."

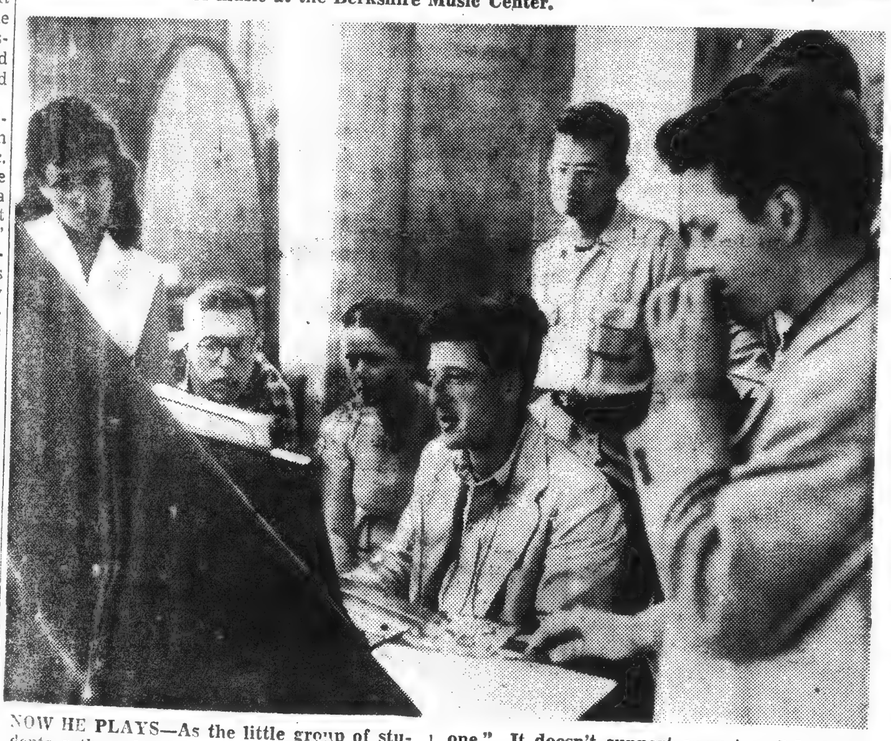
Class in Composition with Lukas Foss

Knickerbocker News - Albany

KNOTTY PINE—KNOTTY PROBLEM—In a pine paneled room in Hawthorne Cottage at Tanglewood, Lukas Foss, young American composer and pianist, tells a group of young students of composition the next step to take as they work on an exercise—"a little tune" they are developing as a first step in their summer of music at the Berkshire Music Center.



'SKETCH OUT THE BASS'—After having heard the "little tune" on which his students were working Mr. Foss suggests that his student work out the bass for the few measures they have written. As they set to work, he turned to the piano to sketch out his bass for the exercise he was doing with them. Scribbles and many erasures were the rule.



NOW HE PLAYS—As the little group of students gather about the piano Mr. Foss plays one." It doesn't support your tune," he says of the bass written by another. And to a girl student, "You are already compising — that's not good."

'MAKE IT STRING QUARTETY'—Next step for the "little tune," says Mr. Foss as class dismissal time nears, is to rethink it for a string quartet, and woodwind trio, and for violin and piano. "Have it ready for day after tomorrow" are final words.

BOSTON, MASS.
AMERICAN

FEB 3 - 1954

Works of Berlioz at Berkshire Festival

The Sesquicentennial season of Berlioz will be observed by Charles Munch at the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood in Lenox next summer with a performance of a number of the composer's great works.

"The Damnation of Faust" will be performed with the choruses from Harvard and Radcliffe, "Harold in Italy," with William Primrose as viola soloist; the "Fantastic Symphony," and the song cycle, "Summer Nights".

The Festival Chorus of the Berkshire Music Center will appear with the orchestra in "Romeo and Juliet" in its complete form and in the famous "Requiem," which will conclude the Festival. The Festival will extend from the first week of July through August 15th.

Since the birth of Hector Berlioz one hundred and fifty years ago (December 11, 1803) his artistic stature has risen increasingly in general estimation notably in recent years.

[166]

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES

MAY 9 - 1954

WORLD OF M

By ROSS PARMENTER

SUMMER OPERA: Aaron Copland's "The Tender Land" will be the major operatic production of the Berkshire Music Center. The center's opera department will present it on Aug. 2 and 3. Another venture of the department will be a double bill of Ernst Toch's "The Princess and the Pea" and Vecchi's "L'Amfiparnaso" on July 27 . .

Lukas Foss Airs His Views on a Host of Things, All Musical

LUKAS FOSS
His Music Is in Our Ears

By DUANE La FLECHE

The saxophone, says Lukas Foss, is an "unvirginal instrument" that gives the impression, at least, that it was made to be played at 2 a. m. in a "joint."

Not, he hastens to add, that he is against saxophones, nor even that he is always against "joints," but it is apparent that he never fully recovered from the "horrifying effect" produced when he once heard a saxophonist playing the Passion music of Bach.

Mr. Foss was airing his views on saxophones, on the "getting nowhere" musical sequences of Rimski-Korsakov, on the "healthy school" of Bach playing, and on a host of other things, all musical, to a group of some 60 students at Tanglewood. He did his talking at the piano and let bits of this and bits of that ripple from his fingers as he talked. He was wise, he was witty, and he was in complete command of the situation.

As a matter of fact, Mr. Foss' career would indicate he has been in complete command of situations since he was knee high to Stravinsky, for Mr. Foss, not yet 32, is all of these things:

First he is a composer. A piano concerto, a dramatic cantata based on Carl Sandburg's "the Prairie," songs, an opera, a symphony and most recently an ora torio that was narrated by Vera Zorina are among his works.

He is a pianist. Friday he was soloist at Tanglewood when the chamber orchestra of the Boston Symphony presented the Bach's Brandenburg Concertos. He has appeared as soloist with the New York Philharmonic, the Pittsburgh, the Los Angeles and other symphony orchestras. His fee, it might be noted, has reached $1,000 a performance.

He is a conductor. Two weeks ago, enroute to Tanglewood from his home in California, he paused to conduct the St. Louis Symphony. Next month he will conduct the chamber orchestra of the Boston Symphony at Tanglewood in works of Stravinsky and Mozart.

He is a teacher. At the University of California he is an associate professor of music. Each summer at Tanglewood he teaches composition and a rather free-wheeling course that goes by the title "musicianship" and gives Mr. Foss the opportunity to talk of saxophones and Bacht, of Rimski-Korsakov and Hindemith and of most anything else musical he is in the mood to talk about.

It might be pertinent to say also that he is as American as corn on the cob (though Born in Berlin and educated in Paris); that he talks about music without falling into professional jargon (though he is a professor); that he is modest about his accomplishments (though there is a horrifying pit in a remote corner of his heart for a certain eminent critic who has taken to belittling him).

It seems hardly necessary to add that he is energetic.

But most of all Lukas Foss thinks of himself as a composer.

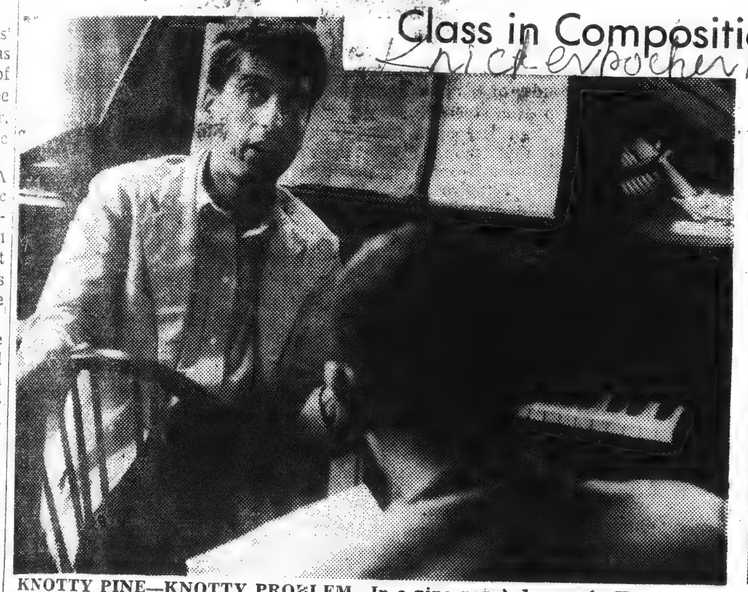
• • •

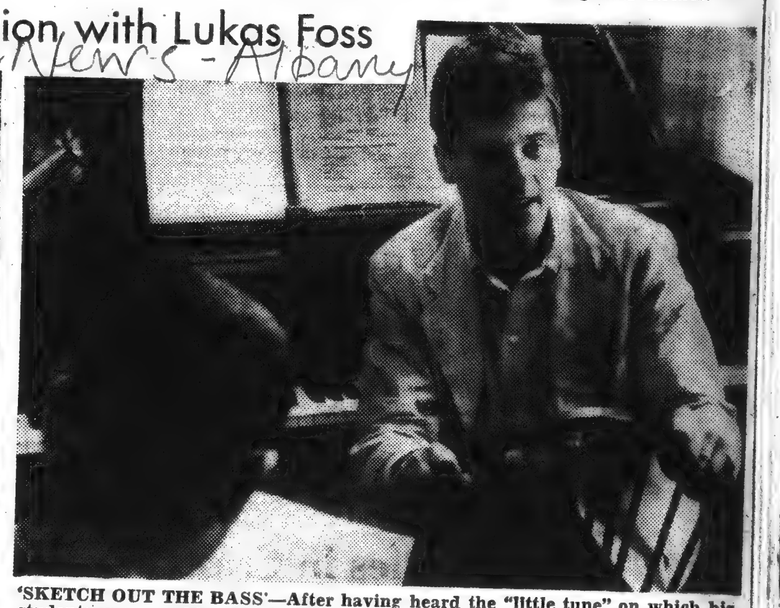
"If I were to become the greatest conductor in the world, I would consider myself a failure if I did not also compose," he said. Yet, he finds he can't leave conducting alone. He is something too much of an actor for that.

He has found a happy medium in his efforts. He arranges things so that when he conducts, or when he appears as a piano soloist, he conducts or plays music that is in keeping with the trend of his compositions. Thus, he choses for his performances works of Bach, Mozart and Stravinsky among some few others.

• • •

Mr. Foss began his major musical studies in Paris at the age of 11. In 1937, when he was 15, he came to the United States and continued his studies at the Curtis Institute in Philadelphia. Shortly afterward, in the early days of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood he became a conductor pupil of Serge



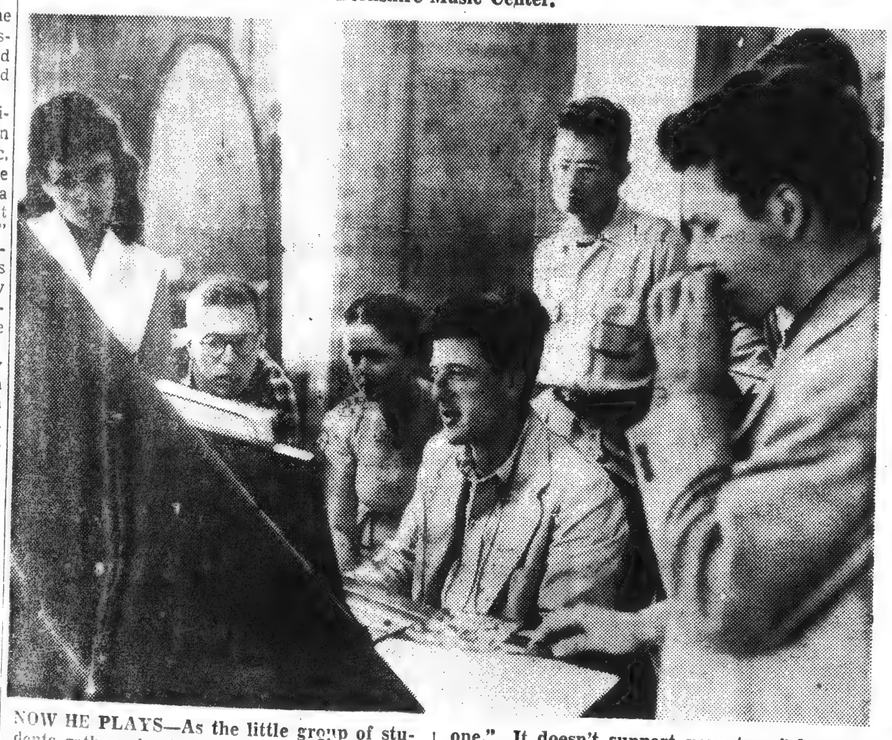


Class in Composition with Lukas Foss

Evening Post News - Albany

KNOTTY PINE—KNOTTY PROBLEM—In a pine paneled room in Hawthorne Cottage at Tanglewood, Lukas Foss, young American composer and pianist, tells a group of young students of composition the next step to take as they work on an exercise—"a little tune" they are developing as a first step in their summer of music at the Berkshire Music Center.

'SKETCH OUT THE BASS'—After having heard the "little tune" on which his students were working Mr. Foss suggests that his student work out the bass for the few measures they have written. As they set to work, he turned to the piano to sketch out his bass for the exercise he was doing with them. Scribbles and many erasures were the rule.



NOW HE PLAYS—As the little group of students gather about the piano Mr. Foss plays the few measures they have written. "Is that the chord or am I playing it wrong," he asks one." It doesn't support your tune," he says of the bass written by another. And to a girl student, "You are already compising — that's not good."

'MAKE IT STRING QUARTETY'—Next step for the "little tune," says Mr. Foss as class dismissal time nears, is to rethink it for a string quartet, and woodwind trio, and for violin and piano. "Have it ready for day after tomorrow" are final words.

brought him a Fu... lowship, the Herblit award of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Prix de Rome and a Guggenheim fellowship.

He has become, with the passing of only a few years, one of the handful of young American composers whose works are performed and performed again by the great orchestras.

Perhaps even more remarkable, although in quite a different sense, Mr. Foss is one of far less than a handful of young composers whose earnings as a composer alone are sufficient to keep the wolf from the door.

The earnings from his compositions are modest, and Mr. Foss is modest about them. Royalties and performance fees provide a part of those earnings, but in recent years the greater part has come from works he has been commissioned to do.

• • •

"The Prairie," one of his earlier critical successes, has earned him only $400 in a dozen years. His short opera, "The Jumping Frog of Calaveras County," adapted from a Mark Twain story, has done a bit better, since it has had many performances in 31 productions. "A Parable of Death" was commissioned. A recent recording will add to its earnings.

At the moment Mr. Foss is working on two more commissioned works.

One is an orchestral piece that the Schweitzer Foundation has asked him to write for the celebration next January of the 80th birthday of Albert Schweitzer, musician, physician and philosopher. It will be played by the Boston Symphony on Dr. Schweitzer's birthday.

The second work will have a larger audience, regardless of its critical acclaim or lack of it. It is a work for television, a fairy tale opera in three acts that has been commissioned by the NBC's Opera Theater.

The libretto has been written by Alastair Reid, a young English friend of Mr. Foss, and is based on a fairy story Mr. Foss' mother told him when he was 8 years old.

It is a story about a little devil who came to the world with a magic spray. A whiff of it on the Statue of Liberty and the statue came to life. The lions at the Public Library in New York City create a sensation when their bronze turns to flesh. But then the little devil falls in love with the world and just plain falls in love. He had committed the unpardonable sin for devils and so, says Mr. Foss, he was "excommunicated from hell" and became a real little boy.

Mr. Foss describes the work that on a succeeding day they would develop a step further, as "the regress of a rake."

It will be a year or so before it is completed.

• • •

Mr. Foss is not one to rest on his laurels. As a matter of fact he wouldn't quite dare to.

"In America you never really arrive,' he said. "When you seem to have arrived there are people just waiting for you to slip. Every year a sensation is necessary."

But Mr. Foss is taking care not to be too sensational and to avoid the spectacular.

Creative artists who fall into that trap, he says, find themselves in the unhappy situation of having a huge audience of fans who are insatiable rather than appreciative. They demand to be kept happy at the expense of their victim.

But at Tanglewood, as at the University of California, Mr. Foss, while still a composer, is particularly a teacher of musical composition.

• • •

His Tanglewood class comprises seven young people who have shown promise. The group meets in a paneled room in Hawthorne Cottage that overlooks the not-far-distant lake.

Whether they know it or not, the young people are the subject of an experiment in musical education for Mr. Foss has come to believe that there is a missing step in the teaching of composition. He is attempting to fill that gap for his Tanglewood students.

The missing step, Mr. Foss says, comes after students have learned harmony and counterpoint and before they are ready for criticism of their fledgling works. As the Tanglewood class met for one of its first sessions Mr. Foss had it working on the bass for a little tune

While keeping it a "little tune" they would rethink it into a little tune for a string quartet, for a woodwind trio—oboe, bassoon and clarinet—and for violin and piano.

"Have it ready for the day after tomorrow," was his closing direction.

But Mr. Foss is giving thought to his own day after tomorrow as well as that of his students.

Perhaps when he is 50, he says, he will be ready to put a stop to all his other activities and devote his energies entirely to composition, but that is for the future to decide, as only the future can reveal where and when American music will come to its fruition.

Leonard Bernstein, a contemporary and associate of Mr. Foss, thinks that musical fruition will come for America in music for the theater.

Mr. Foss neither agrees nor disagrees.

"It will come," he says, "whenever genius strikes."

BOSTON, MASS.
AMERICAN

FEB 3 - 1954

Works of Berlioz at Berkshire Festival

The Sesquicentennial season of Berlioz will be observed by Charles Munch at the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood in Lenox next summer with a performance of a number of the composer's great works.

"The Damnation of Faust" will be performed with the choruses from Harvard and Radcliffe, "Harold in Italy," with William Primrose as viola soloist; the "Fantastic Symphony," and the song cycle, "Summer Nights".

The Festival Chorus of the Berkshire Music Center will appear with the orchestra in "Romeo and Juliet" in its complete form and in the famous "Requiem," which will conclude the Festival. The Festival will extend from the first week of July through August 15th.

Since the birth of Hector Berlioz one hundred and fifty years ago (December 11, 1803) his artistic stature has risen increasingly in general estimation notably in recent years.

[166]

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES

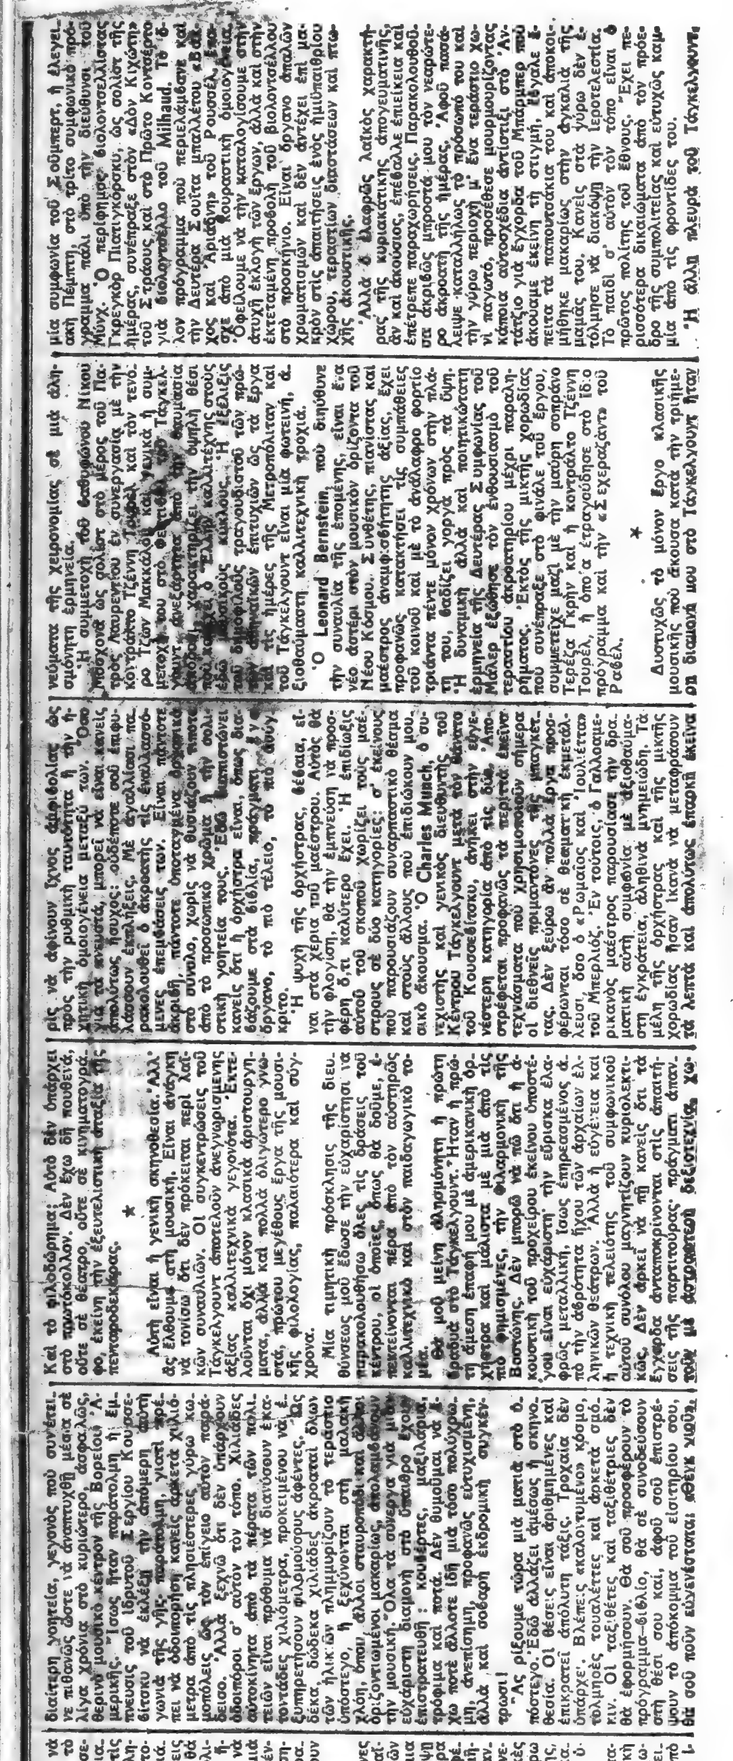
MAY 9 - 1954

WORLD OF M

By ROSS PARMENTER

SUMMER OPERA: Aaron Copland's "The Tender Land" will be the major operatic production of the Berkshire Music Center. The center's opera department will present it on Aug. 2 and 3. Another venture of the department will be a double bill of Ernst Toch's "The Princess and the Pea" and Vecchi's "L'Amfiparnaso" on July 27 . .

Mrs. Edman sends on the enclosed, from a Dr. Minos Dounias, a leading Greek critic, who sent it to her in Rome from Athens.



"Καθημερινή"
ΑΠΟ ΤΗΝ ΜΟΥΣΙΚΗ ΖΩΗ ΤΗΣ ΑΜΕΡΙΚΗΣ

TANGLEWOOD

Oct. 18, 1953 ΤΟΥ κ. Μ. ΔΟΥΝΙΑ

ΟΥΑΣΙΓΚΤΩΝ, Όκτώβριος

Είναι περίεργο πόσο ξένα μάς φαίνονται έκεί μακρύα στην Εύρώπη όσα συμβαίνουν έδώ στόν Νέο Κόσμο. Ό κινηματογράφος καί τό εικονογραφημένο περιοδικό μετατάϊς άγνωίζονται νά σπαγηρτσήσουν μιά ζωή πού είναι άδύνατον νά κατανοήσουμε, έκτός άν τήν άπεικονίσουμε άπό πολύ κοντά κατάματα. Άλλά φοβόμαι ότι ήδη παρασυρόμαστε σέ μιά κάποιαν επικίνδυνη παραξενιά. Τοιζβεύω δυό μήνες τώρα μέ άδιάκριτο σάσπαγο έλέμμα σ' αύτή τή χώρα. Έχω διαπάσει καί έχω άκούσει πολλά γι' αύτήν άπό παιδί, καί τώρα πού διασχίζω τίς άχανείς έκτάσεις της άπό ώκεανό σ' ώκεανό καί άπό τίς λίμνες τού βορρά ώς τίς άσθύτερες νότιες περιοχές συνήθειες, σπουδάζω τούς άνθρώπους, τίς νομιλώ μέ άπλους άστούς, άπολαμβάνω τήν έγκάρδια φιλοξενία καί μού δίδεται ή εύκαιρία νά συναντήσω στά Πανεπιστήμια έξέχουσες φυσιογνωμίες. Όμως δέν θά τολμούσα νά ισχυρισθώ ότι γνωρίζω σάν τόν τόπο. Σ' τέκμαι μέ δέος μπρός στό μεγαλείο ένός έθνους πού δρυσκεται άπό μιά άπόμη σέ γεωγικήν όργιαστική άνάπτυξη.

Δέν είναι μόνον ή Πλυγυιάδης τεπτυξι. Δέν είναι μόνον ή Πλυγυιάδης τεχνική πρόοδος, άλλά καί ή γναρμία μέ τό πολύχρωμο πλέγμα οικονομικών μεθόδων, κοινωνικών θεσιών καί πνευματικών ζυμώσεων, πού συναρτάζουν άκόμη καί τόν απληροφορημένον έπισκέπτη. Πρός ποια μορφή ζωής θά όδηγήσουν αί μελλοντικαί έξελίξεις είναι έρωτημα, στό όποιο θά έδιόταζαν γ' άπαντήσουν μέ θετικότητα άκόμη καί οί σοφοί αύτού τού τόπου.

Δικαίως θά άναρωτιέται ό άναγνώστης γιατί νά μέ άπασχολεί ένα θέμα λίγο-πολύ ξένο πρός τήν εύαισθησία μου. Ή άπορτολή μου σ' αύτή τή χώρα είναι νά γναρίσω μία πλευρά της πνευματικής ζωής της, τήν μουσική. Όμως καί στόν περιαρισμένο αύτόν τομέα μία σχέδόν άπολλαγτη είς άπορρώσεις μοι. κίλα έκδηλώσεων έμποδίζουν τήν άπορωστάλλωσι ένιαίας είκόνος. Κι έδώ, στόν μ κρόκοσμο της μουσικής, παραρτηρείται ένος όργασμός, μία δημιουργική προσπάθεια, πού είναι άπαραίτητο νά τήν παρακολουθήση κανείς άπό κοντά καί έπί μακρόν, άν έπιθυμή νά γνωρίση τήν πορεία της. Έκτασαι, τήν άξία, άλλά καί τό περιπλοκο τού μηχανισμού της.

Σ τά λίγα αύτά πλασσσιακά στ μία συμφωνία τού Σοϋμπερτ, ή έλεγεία Πέμπτη στό τρίτο συμφωνικό πρόγραμμα πού δίνει ή Συμφωνική Όρχήστρα τού Μπόστον. Ό περίφημος Γερμανός Πιατιγκόρσκυ, ώς σολίστ της ήμέρας, συνεπράξε στόν «Λόν Κίγχοτο» τού Στράους καί στό Πρώτο Κοντσέρτο γιά βιολοντσέλλο τού Milhaud. Τό άλον πρόγραμμα πού περιελάμβανε καί τήν Δευτέρα Σοϋτα ιτταλλέτου «Έσκας καί Χρύς» καί Λιούντμιλα τού Ρουσσλάν έκτελέστηκε άπό τόν Σεργκέι Κουσεβίτσκυ.

Θέλουμε νά τήν καταλογίσουμε στήν άτυχή έκλογή τών έργων, άλλά καί στήν έκτεταμένη προβολή τού βιολοντσέλλου στό προσκήνιο. Είναι όργανο άπαλόν χρωματισμών καί δέν άντέχει έπί μακρόν στίς άπαιτήσεις ένος ημιπαιθρίου χώρου, τεραστίων διαστάσεων καί πλήρους άκουστικής.

Άλλά ό άλσφορδς λατκός χαρακτήρας τής κυριακάτικης άπογευματινής άν καί άκούσιος, έπέφελλε έπεικεια καί έπέτρεπε παρεχωρήσεις. Παρακολουθούσε άκριβώς μπροστά μου τόν νεαρόΤερο άκροατή της ήμέρας, Άφού πασάλεψε κατελλήλως τό πρόσωπό του καί τήν γύρω περιοχή μ' ένα τεράστιο χανί, παγωτό, προσέθεσε μουρμουρίζοντας κάπαια αύτοσχεδία άφιστιές στό Άνατόλιο γιά έγκόρδια τού Μπαμπέρ πού άκούομε έκείνη τή στιγμή. Έγγλε έ πειτα τά παπουτσάκια του καί άποκοιμήθηκε μακαρίως στήν άγκαλιά της μαμάς του. Κανείς στά γύρω δέν έτόλμησε νά διακόψη τήν ίεροτελεστία. Τό παιδί σ' αύτόν τόν τόπο είναι ό πράστος πολίτης τού έθνους. Έχει περισσότερα δικαιώματα άπό τόν πρόεδρο τής συμπολιτείας καί εύτυχώς κάμια άπό τίς φροντίδες του.

Ή άλλη πλευρά τού Τσγκελλγουντ.

* * *

Δυστυχώς τό μόνον έργο κλασσικής μουσικής πού άκουσα κατά τήν τριήμερη παραμονή μου στό Τσγκελλγουντ ήταν μιά άπαρασημείωτη έκτέλεση τής Πρώτης Συμφωνίας τού Μπετόβεν άπό τήν Συμφωνική Όρχήστρα τού Μπόστον. Ό περίφημος Γερμανός μαέστρος Πιατιγκόρσκυ, ώς σολίστ της ήμέρας, συνεπράξε στόν «Λόν Κιχώτη» τού Στράους καί στό Πρώτο Κοντσέρτο γιά βιολοντσέλλο τού Milhaud. Τό άλον πρόγραμμα πού περιελάμβανε καί τήν Δευτέρα Σοϋτα ιτταλλέτου «Έσκας καί Χρύς» καί Λιούντμιλα τού Ρουσσλάν έκτελέστηκε άπό τόν Σεργκέι Κουσεβίτσκυ.

Θέλουμε νά τήν καταλογίσουμε στήν άτυχή έκλογή τών έργων, άλλά καί στήν έκτεταμένη προβολή τού βιολοντσέλλου στό προσκήνιο. Είναι όργανο άπαλόν χρωματισμών καί δέν άντέχει έπί μακρόν στίς άπαιτήσεις ένος ημιπαιθρίου χώρου, τεραστίων διαστάσεων καί πλήρους άκουστικής.

Άλλά ό άλσφορδς λατκός χαρακτήρας τής κυριακάτικης άπογευματινής άν καί άκούσιος, έπέφελλε έπεικεια καί έπέτρεπε παρεχωρήσεις. Παρακολουθούσε άκριβώς μπροστά μου τόν νεαρόΤερο άκροατή της ήμέρας, Άφού πασάλεψε κατελλήλως τό πρόσωπό του καί τήν γύρω περιοχή μ' ένα τεράστιο χανί, παγωτό, προσέθεσε μουρμουρίζοντας κάπαια αύτοσχεδία άφιστιές στό Άνατόλιο γιά έγκόρδια τού Μπαμπέρ πού άκου

Mrs. Edman sends on the enclosed, from a Dr. Minos Dounias, a leading Greek critic, who sent it to her in Rome from Athens.

"Kathimerini"
ΑΠΟ ΤΗΝ ΜΟΥΣΙΚΗ ΖΩΗ ΤΗΣ ΑΜΕΡΙΚΗΣ

TANGLEWOOD

Oct. 18, 1953 ΤΟΥ κ. Μ. ΔΟΥΝΙΑ

ΟΥΑΣΙΓΚΤΩΝ, Όκτώβριος

Είναι περίεργο πόσο ξένα μάς φαίνονται έκει μακρυά στην Εύρώπη όσα συμβαίνουν έδώ στον Νέο Κόσμο. Ό κινηματογράφος και το εικονογραφημένο περιοδικό μάταιως αγωνίζονται να σκιαγραφήσουν μιά ζωή που είναι άδύνατον άπολύτως να καταναήσουμε, έκτός άν την άντιληφθούμε άπό τόν κόσμο. Άλλά φοβόμαι ότι ήδη παρασύρομαι άπό μιά κάπως έπικίνδυνη παραγωγή. Τά βιβλία δυό μήνες τώρα μέ άβοήθητο. άδήμαγο άλεμμα σ' αύτή τη χώρα. Έχω διαβάσει και έχω άκούσει πολλά γι' αύτην άπό παιδί, και τώρα πού διαχείλια της άγανες έκτάσεις της άπό ώ. κεανό σ' ώκεανό και άπό τις λίμνες του βορρά ώς τις άθέατες νότιες πολιτείες, σπουδάζω τους άνθρώπους, τις συνήθειες, και τους θεσμούς των. Συνομιλώ μέ άπλους άστούς, άπολαμβάνω την έγκάρδια φλοξενία άμερικανικών οίκογενειών και μού δίδεται ή εύκαιρία νά συναντήσω στά Πανεπιστήμια έξέχουσες φυσιογνωμίες. Όμως δέν θά τολμούσα νά ισχυρισθώ ότι γνωρίζω αύτον τόν τόπο. Σ τεκμαι μέ δέος μπρός στό μεγαλείο ένος έθνους που βρίσκεται άκόμη σέ νεανική όργιαστική άνάπτυξη, μέ τά λάθη αύτά πλεονάσματα στη νεύματα της χειρονομίας σέ μιά συζήτηση έρμηνείας.

Ή συμμετοχή τού Σοβιέτ στο Πανεπιστήμιο τού Χάρβαρντ, ώς τιμητικού μέλους τής Φιλαρμονικής Έταιρείας τού Χάρβαρντ, άποτελεί ένα άπό τά πιό ένδιαφέροντα γεγονότα τής μουσικής ζωής τής χώρας μας. Μέσα σέ μιά έποχή πού ή Ρωσσία άπομονώνεται άπό τόν ύπόλοιπο κόσμο, ή πρόσκληση αύτή άποτελεί μιά χειρονομία φιλίας πρός τόν Ρώσσικο λαό. Ή Φιλαρμονική Έταιρεία τού Χάρβαρντ ίδρύθηκε τό 1808 και είναι ή παλαιότερη όργάνωση τού είδους της στήν Άμερική. Ή πρόσκληση άπευθύνθηκε στόν Ντμίτρι Σοστακόβιτς, ένα άπό τά πιό γνωστά μέλη τής Σοβιετικής Άκαδημίας Καλλιτεχνών, και ή άποδοχή της άπό μέρους του άποτελεί μιά άπό τίς πιό σημαντικές έξελίξεις στίς σχέσεις τής Ρωσσίας μέ τόν έξω κόσμο. Ό Σοστακόβιτς θά παραστεί στίς έκδηλώσεις πού θά γίνουν στό Χάρβαρντ τόν Μάιο τού 1954 και θά διευθύνει τή Συμφωνική Όρχήστρα τής Βοστώνης σέ δυό συναυλίες. Ή πρόσκληση αύτή άποτελεί μιά άπό τίς πιό σημαντικές έξελίξεις στίς σχέσεις τής Ρωσσίας μέ τόν έξω κόσμο. Ή Ρωσσία, πού άπό τό 1917 έχει άπομονωθεί άπό τόν ύπόλοιπο κόσμο, άρχισε νά άνοίγεται πρός τά έξω μόνο τά τελευταία χρόνια. Ή Ρωσσία έχει στείλει άντιπροσωπείες σέ διεθνή συνέδρια έπιστημονικά, έμπορικά και καλλιτεχνικά, και έχει δεχθεί έπισκέψεις άπό άντιπροσωπείες τέτοιων συνεδρίων. Ή Ρωσσία έχει στείλει άκόμη άθλητικές άποστολές σέ διεθνείς άγώνες, και έχει δεχθεί άθλητικές άποστολές άπό άλλες χώρες. Ή Ρωσσία έχει στείλει έπίσης και καλλιτεχνικές άποστολές σέ διεθνή φεστιβάλ, και έχει δεχθεί καλλιτεχνικές άποστολές άπό άλλες χώρες. Ή Ρωσσία έχει στείλει έπίσης και έπιστημονικές άποστολές σέ διεθνή συνέδρια, και έχει δεχθεί έπιστημον

TIGHT BINDING

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN
FEB 28 1954

Berlioz' Principal Works On Tanglewood Programs

Music Shed Series to Open July 10 With 'Damnation Of Faust'; Programs for Whole Enlarged Berkshire Festival Announced, With Soloists

Boston, Feb. 27—The programs for the enlarged Berkshire Festival of July and August have been decided on under the supervision of Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The increased season has been planned by Mr. Munch to meet the constantly growing popularity of these concerts, which drew a record number to Lenox in the Berkshire Hills last summer.

12 Shed Concerts

Twenty-four concerts are announced for the six weeks from July 7 to Aug. 15, including six concerts by chamber groups on Wednesday evenings, six concerts by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players on Friday evenings, six concerts by the full orchestra in the Music Shed on Saturday evenings and six Sunday afternoons.

In the course of the Shed concerts, Charles Munch will honor the 150th anniversary season of the birth of Berlioz by conducting this composer's principal works in their complete form. Guest conductors in the Shed concerts will be Pierre Monteux, conducting two concerts; Jean Morel, and Richard Burgin, each conducting one.

Shed Programs

Mr. Munch will open the Shed series on Saturday, July 10, with Berlioz' "Damnation of Faust," with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society. On Sunday afternoon, July 11, Pierre Monteux will present a Beethoven program including the Overture to "Leonore" No. 3, the Piano Concerto No. 5 ("Emperor") with Claudio Arrau as soloist, and the fifth symphony.

Second week (Shed, July 17, 18): Saturday evening (Pierre Monteux)—Franck program: "Le Chasseur Maudit," "Les Eolides," "Les Djinns" (piano soloist, Vera Franceschi), Symphony in D minor; Sunday afternoon (Charles Munch)—Debussy, "Iberia"; Copland, piano concerto (soloist, Leo Smit); Berlioz, "Fantastic Symphony."

Third week (Shed, July 24, 25): Saturday evening (Jean Morel)—Weber, Overture, "Der Freischutz"; Prokofieff, Sixth Symphony; Strauss, "Don Juan"; Elgar, "Enigma Variations." Sunday afternoon (Charles Munch)—Berlioz, "Beatrice and Benedict" Overture and "Harold in Italy" (viola soloist, William Primrose); Ernest Toch, Symphony No. 2.

Fourth Week End

Fourth week (Shed, July 31, Aug. 1): Saturday evening (Charles Munch)—Berlioz, "Romeo and Juliet" with Festival Chorus and soloists; Sunday afternoon (Richard Burgin)—Prokofieff, "Chout," Dvorak, Violin Concerto (soloist Ruth Posselt); Sibelius Symphony No. 2.

Fifth week (Shed, Aug. 7, 8): Saturday evening (Charles Munch)—Gluck, "Alceste" Overture; Beethoven, Violin Concerto (soloist, Zino Francescatti); Brahms, Symphony No. 2; Sunday afternoon (Charles Munch)—Berlioz program: "Benvenuto Cellini" Overture, "The Royal Hunt and Storm" from "The Trojans," "Summer Nights" for soprano and orchestra with Eleanor Steber as soloist, and the "Te Deum."

Sixth week (Shed, Aug. 14, 15): Saturday evening (Charles Munch)—Wagner, "Lohengrin" Prelude; Piston Fourth Symphony; Ravel, Piano Concerto (soloist, Nicole Henriot); Saint Saens, Organ Symphony; Sunday afternoon (Charles Munch)—Berlioz, "Requiem" with Festival Chorus and four auxiliary orchestras.

Bach-Mozart Series

On the six Friday evenings preceding the Shed concerts, except in the final week when it will be given on Thursday, the concerts will be given in the intimate Theater-Concert Hall by an orchestra of chamber proportions. The first two weeks (July 9 and 16) Charles Munch will conduct music of Bach, including in the first the Brandenburg Concertos Nos. 1, 3, 2, 6, 5, and in the second, the Cantata No. 93 and Suites Nos. 1 and 4.

On July 23, he will conduct Handel's Concerto Grosso, Op. 6, No. 4, Haydn's "Military" Symphony, No. 100, and Hugh Ross will conduct Haydn's "Nelson" Mass. On July 30 Mr. Munch will conduct Roussel's "The Spider's Feast," the Ibert flute concerto with Doriot Anthony as soloist, Mozart's Serenade for Eight Winds in C minor, K. 388, and the same composer's "Paris" Symphony, K. 297.

On Aug. 6 Lukas Foss will conduct the complete Stravinsky ballet "Pulcinella," a piano concerto by Mozart with Seymour Lipkin as soloist, and excerpts from Mozart's "Idomeneo" with chorus and soloists. At the final concert on Thursday, Aug. 12, Jean Morel as guest will conduct Rossini's overture to "The Silk Ladder," Mozart's Symphony in B flat, K. 319, and Strauss' "Der Burger als Edelmann."

The series of concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall on the six Wednesday evenings will be devoted to music of chamber proportions. The first program on July 7 will be shared by Claudio Arrau, piano, and the Bel Arte String Trio.

The second on July 14 will have the Albeneri Trio; the third on July 21 the Zimbler Sinfonietta; the fourth on July 28 the Griller String Quartet; the fifth on Aug. 4 will have the Boston Woodwind Quintet and a soloist to be announced; the sixth on Aug. 11 the Kroll Quartet.

Seats at subscription rates are now available for all concerts. Full programs together with ticket information will be mailed promptly upon request to the Berkshire Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass.

NEW CANAAN, CONN
ADVERTISER
3/4/54

28.

Tales of Tanglewood . . .

County music-lovers who think nothing of the trek to the Berkshires for the Tanglewood concerts held there every summer under the auspices of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will be heartened to know that their enthusiasm is shared by many others.

According to Charles Munch, the Boston Symphony's music director, an enlarged program has been planned for July and August of this year, to meet the constantly growing popularity of these concerts, which drew a record number to Lenox in the Berkshire Hills last summer.

Twenty-four concerts have been announced for the six weeks from July 7 to August 15, including six concerts by chamber groups on Wednesday evenings, six by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players on Friday evenings, six concerts by the full Orchestra in the shed on Saturday evenings, and six on Sunday afternoons.

In the course of the Shed concerts, Mr. Munch will honor the 150th anniversary season of the birth of Berlioz by conducting this composer's principal works in their complete form. Guest conductors in the Shed concerts will be Pierre Monteux, conducting two concerts, and Jean Morel and Richard Burgin, each conducting one.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE
MAY 2 -

Berkshire Auditions

Auditions for instrumental musicians who wish to join the Berkshire Music Center's orchestra for this summer's session at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., will be held from noon to 2 p. m. next Sunday in Carnegie Recital Hall. Those accepted for this student orchestra will be eligible for tuition for applicants for the Center's opera department will be held in Carnegie Recital Hall from 11 a. m. to 2 p. m. Saturday, May 15. Intending applicants are requested to notify the Registrar, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass.

Boston Globe - Feb. 28 1954

Complete Be

Complete Programs Announced for Larger Berkshire Festival

The programs for the enlarged Berkshire Festival of July and August have been decided under the supervision of Charles Munch, the music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The increased season has been planned by Mr. Munch to meet the constantly growing popularity of these concerts, which drew a record number to Lenox in the Berkshire Hills last Summer. Twenty-four concerts are announced for the six weeks from July 7 to Aug. 15, including six concerts by chamber groups on Wednesday evenings, six concerts by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players on Friday evenings, six concerts by the full orchestra in the Shed on Saturday evenings and six Sunday afternoons.

In the course of the Shed concerts, Charles Munch will honor the 150th anniversary season of the birth of Berlioz by conducting this composer's principal works in their complete form. Guest conductors in the Shed concerts will be Pierre Monteux, conducting two concerts; Jean Morel, and Richard Burgin, each conducting one.

Seats at subscription rates are now available for all concerts. Full programs together with ticket information will be mailed promptly upon request to the Berkshire Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15.

Following is the complete lineup of concerts.

Shed Programs

Mr. Munch will open the Shed series on Saturday, July 10, with Berlioz' "Damnation of Faust," with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society. On Sunday afternoon, July 11, Pierre Monteux will present a Beethoven program including the Overture to "Leonore" No. 3, the Piano Concerto No. 5 ("Emperor") with Claudio Arrau as soloist, and the Fifth Symphony.

Second Week (Shed, July 17, 18): Saturday evening (Pierre Monteux) Franck program: "Le Chasseur Maudit," "Les Eolides," "Les Djinns" (piano soloist, Vera Franceschi), Symphony in D minor; Sunday afternoon (Charles Munch)—Debussy, "Iberia"; Copland, Piano Concerto (soloist, Leo Smit); Berlioz, "Fantastic Symphony."

Third Week (Shed, July 24, 25): Saturday evening (Jean Morel)—Weber, Overture, "Der Freischutz"; Prokofieff, Sixth Symphony; Strauss, "Don Juan"; Elgar, "Enigma Variations." Sunday afternoon (Charles Munch)—Berlioz, "Beatrice and Benedict" Overture and "Harold in Italy" (viola soloist, William Primrose); Ernst Toch, Symphony No. 2.

4th week (Shed, July 31, Aug. 1): Saturday evening (Charles Munch)—Berlioz, "Romeo and Juliet" with Festival Chorus and soloists; Sunday afternoon (Richard Burgin)—Prokofieff, "Chout," Dvorak, Violin Concerto (soloist, Ruth Posselt); Sibelius, Symphony No. 2.

5th week (Shed, Aug. 7, 8): Saturday evening (Charles Munch)—Gluck, "Alceste" Overture; Beethoven, Violin Concerto (soloist, Zino Francescatti); Brahms, Symphony No. 2; Sunday afternoon (Charles Munch)—Berlioz program: "Benvenuto Cellini" Overture, "The Royal Hunt and Storm" from "The Trojans," "Summer Nights" for soprano and orchestra with Eleanor Steber as soloist, and the "Te Deum."

6th week (Shed, Aug. 14, 15): Saturday evening (Charles Munch)—Wagner, "Lohengrin" Prelude; Piston Fourth Symphony; Ravel, Piano Concerto (soloist, Nicole Henriot); Saint-Saens, Organ Symphony; Sunday afternoon (Charles Munch)—Berlioz, "Requiem" with Festival Chorus and four auxiliary orchestras.

Bach-Mozart Series

On the six Friday evenings preceding each Shed concert, except in the final week when it will be given on Thursday, the concerts will be given in the intimate Theatre-Concert Hall by an orchestra of chamber proportions. The first two weeks (July 9 and 16) Charles Munch will conduct music of Bach, including in the first the Brandenburg Concertos Nos. 1, 3, 2, 6, 5, and in the second, the Cantata No. 93 and Suites Nos. 1 and 4. On July 23, he will conduct Handel's Concerto Grosso, Op. 6, No. 4; Haydn's "Military" Symphony, No. 100; Hugh Ross will conduct Haydn's "Nelson" Mass. On July 30 Mr. Munch will conduct Roussel's "The Spider's Feast"; the Ibert Flute Concerto with Doriot Anthony as soloist; Mozart's Serenade for 8 Winds in C minor, K. 388, and the same composer's "Paris" Symphony, K. 297. On Aug. 6, Lukas Foss will conduct the complete Stravinsky ballet "Pulcinella"; a Piano Concerto by Mozart with Seymour Lipkin as soloist, and excerpts from Mozart's "Idomeneo," with chorus and soloists. At the final concert on Thursday, Aug. 12, Jean Morel as guest will conduct Rossini's Overture to "The Silk Ladder"; Mozart's Symphony in B flat, K. 319; and Strauss' "Der Burger als Edelmann."

Chamber Concerts

The series of concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall on the six Wednesday evenings will be devoted to music of chamber proportions. The first program on July 7 will be shared by Claudio Arrau, piano, and the Bel Arte String

Theatre

Boston Globe - March 14, 1954

Jean Morel, Ernst Toch, Frederic Cohen Join Berkshire Music Center Staff

Three eminent musicians will be added to the faculty of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood this Summer: Jean Morel as head of the orchestra and conducting departments, Ernst Toch as teacher of composition, and Frederic Cohen as head of the opera department.

Mr. Morel, the French conductor who is at present the head of the orchestra at the Juilliard School of Music in New York, will take the place of Leonard Bernstein who will be on leave of absence from Tanglewood this Summer. Mr. Toch, a native of Austria, who has taught at the New York School for Social Research in New York and more recently at the University of Southern California, will join Aaron Copland as guest teacher in the composition department. Mr. Cohen is the head of the department of Opera at the Juilliard School in New York and will take the place of Boris Goldovsky, who is to be on leave of absence for the Summer. Lukas Foss, who has been teaching at Tanglewood since 1946, will serve as head of the Tanglewood Study Group as well as teaching composition, while Ingolf Dahl is on leave of absence. Mr. Morel and Mr. Foss will conduct concerts of the Berkshire Festival; Mr. Toch's Second Symphony is scheduled for performance July 25; Mr. Cohen will be in charge of the principal production of the Opera department, which is to be announced.

The Berkshire Music Center is the Summer school of music maintained at Tanglewood by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in connection with the concerts of the Berkshire Festival. There will be a six-week session from July 5 to Aug. 15, directed by Charles Munch, the music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, with Aaron Copland, the composer, as assistant director. The faculty of 50 includes many eminent musicians, among them the principals and other members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, 24 in all.

The Berkshire Music Center offers courses in five departments, as follows:

Dept. I—Orchestral Conducting: Jean Morel and Seymour Lipkin, Orchestra: Jean Morel, conductor, assisted by 15 members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Chamber Music: Richard Burgin and William Kroll. Gregor Piatigorsky, guest teacher, and 10 present members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and Jean Bedetti, Fernand Gillet, Ruth Posselt and William Valkenier. Dept. II—Choral Music: Hugh Ross, James Aliferis and Lorna Cooke deVaron. Dept. III—Composition: Aaron Copland, Ernst Toch and Lukas Foss. Dept. IV—Opera: Frederic Cohen. Morton Siegel, Stage Director; Elsa Kahl, Acting; Emanuel Balaban, Coaching; John Blankenchip, Stage Design; Felix Wolfes, Coaching; Leo Van Witsen, Costume; Frederic Waldman, Conductor; Thomas de Gaetani, Technical Director; Ludwig and Laura Zirmer, the Associate Div. Dept. V—The Tanglewood Study Group: Lukas Foss, assisted by Karl Kohn and Florence Dunn.

All departments will give concerts at Tanglewood this Summer, and these concerts will be open by invitation to the friends of the Berkshire Music Center, who are contributors to the support of the school. The chorus of the Berkshire Music Center will take part in the performances of Berlioz' "Romeo and Juliet," "Requiem" and "Te Deum." The Tanglewood Study Group is especially intended for all who wish to study music simply for its enjoyment. Those who intend to become professional performers are served by the other departments.

Applications for enrollment are now being taken. Information about the school and the catalog can be secured from the Berkshire Music Center, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Massachusetts.

BRIDGEPORT CONN
POST
MAY 2 - 1954

The final instrumental auditions for applicants to the Berkshire Music Center—Tanglewood—will be conducted in Carnegie Recital Hall in New York next Sunday between 12 and 2 p.m. . . . All students accepted for the school orchestra at Tanglewood will be eligible for tuition grants from the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund. The final auditions for active participants in the opera department will be conducted in the same hall on Saturday, May 15, from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. . . . The Tanglewood season will extend from July 5 to Aug. 15.

16

[168]

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
MAY 1 - 195

Berkshire Center Auditions Set

The final instrumental auditions for applicants to the Berkshire Music Center in Tanglewood, Mass., will be held in Carnegie Recital Hall on Sunday, May 9, between noon and 2 P. M. Final auditions for participants in the opera department will be held in the same hall on Saturday, May 15, from 11 A. M. to 1 P. M.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.
JOURNAL
FEB 28 1954

To Give 24 Concerts At Berkshire Festival

UNDER the supervision of Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the programs for the enlarged Berkshire Festival, July 7 to Aug. 15, at Tanglewood, have been arranged to include 24 concerts.

In the Theater-Concert Hall there will be six programs by chamber music groups on Wednesday evenings and six by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players Friday evenings.

In the Shed the full orchestra will present six programs on Saturday nights and six on Sunday afternoons.

In the course of the Shed concerts conductor Munch will honor the 150th anniversary season of the birth of Berlioz by presenting the composer's principal works in their complete form. Guest conductors will be Pierre Monteux, conducting two concerts, and Jean Morel and Richard Burgin, each conducting one.

The Shed series will open Saturday, July 10, with Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust," with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society. Monteux will conduct a Beethoven program the following afternoon, including the Overture to "Lenore," No. 3, the "Emperor" Piano Concerto, with Claudio Arrau, and the Fifth Symphony.

Programs for the succeeding Shed concerts follow: July 17 and 18, Saturday—a Franck program conducted by Monteux including "Le Chausseur Maudit," "Les Eolides," Les Djinns" (Vera Franceschi, piono solist), Symphony in D Minor. Sunday afternoon, "Iberia," Debussy; Piano Concerto, Copland, Leo Smit, soloist; "Fantastic" Symphony, Berlioz.

July 24, 25, Saturday—Overture, "Der Freischutz," Weber; Sixth Symphony, Prokofieff; "Don Juan," Strauss; "Enigma" Variations, Elgar, Morel conducting. Sunday—"Beatrice and Benedict" Overture and "Harold in Italy," Berlioz, William Primrose, viola soloist; Symphony No. 2, Ernst Toch.

July 31, Aug. 1, Saturday—"Romeo and Juliet," Berlioz, with Festival Chorus and soloists. Sunday—"Chout," Prokofieff; Violin Concerto, Dvorak, Ruth Posselt, soloist; Symphony No. 2, Sibelius, Burgin conducting.

Aug. 7, 8, Saturday—"Alceste" Overture, Gluck; Violin Concerto, Beethoven, Zino Francescatti, soloist; Symphony No. 2, Brahms. Sunday—Berlioz program, "Benvenuto Cellini" Overture, "The Royal Hunt and Storm", from "The Trojans;" "Summer Nights," for soprano and orchestra, Eleanor Steber, soloist; "Te Deum."

Aug. 14, 15, Saturday—"Lohengrin" Prelude, Wagner; Fourth Symphony, Piston; Piano Concerto, Ravel, Nicole Henriot, soloist; Organ Symphony, Saint-Saens. Sunday—Berlioz' "Requiem," with Festival Chorus and four auxiliary orchestras.

Chamber Orchestra Series

For the Friday night chamber orchestra series in the Theater-Concert Hall the following programs are announced: July 9—Bach's Brandenburg Concertos Nos. 1, 3, 2, 6, 5; July 16—Bach's Cantata No. 93, Suites Nos. 1 and 4; July 23—Handel's Concerto Grosso, Op. 6, No. 4; Haydn's "Military" Symphony No. 100 and Hugh Ross will conduct Haydn's "Nelson" Mass. July 30—Roussel's "The Spider's Feast," Ibert's Flute Concerto, Doriot Anthony, soloist; Mozart's Serenade for Eight Winds in C Minor, K.388, and the "Paris" Symphony, K.297.

Aug. 6—Lukas Foss will conduct the complete Stravinsky ballet, "Pulcinella," a Mozart piano concerto, with Seymour Lipkin, soloists, and excerpts from Mozart's "Idomeneo," with chorus and soloists.

Aug. 12—Jean Morel will conduct Rossini's Overture to "The Silk Ladder," Mozart's Symphony in B Flat, K.319, and Strauss' "Der Burger als Edelmann."

Groups appearing in the six chamber music concerts Wednesday evenings follow: July 7—Claudio Arrau, pianist, and the Bel Arte String Trio; July 14—Albeneri Trio; July 21—Zimbler Sinfonietta; July 28—Griller String Quartet; Aug. 4—Boston Woodwind Quintet; Aug. 11—Kroll Quartet.

Seats at subscription rates are now available for all concerts. Programs and ticket information may be obtained by writing to the Berkshire Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.
JOURNAL
MAR 21 1954

Berkshire Music Center Adds to School Faculty

Jean Morel, Ernst Toch and Frederic Cohen will be added this summer to the faculty of the Berkshire Music Center, the summer school maintained at Tanglewood by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in connection with the Berkshire Festival concerts.

In the conducting and opera departments, Morel and Cohen will take the places, respectively, of Leonard Bernstein and Boris Goldovsky who will be on leave of absence.

Morel is at present head of the orchestra at the Juilliard School of Music in New York. He has conducted the Opera Comique in Paris, the Orchestre Symphonique de Paris, and opera in Rio de Janiero, Mexico and the New York City Center.

Cohen is head of the opera department at the Juilliard school.

Toch will join Aaron Copland as guest teacher in composition. A native of Austria he has taught at the Hochschule fur Musik in Mannheim, the New School for Social Research in New York, and more recently at the University of Southern California.

Lukas Foss, who has taught at Tanglewood since 1946, will serve as head of the Tanglewood Study Group and teach composition while Ingolf Dahl is on leave of absence. Foss and Morel will conduct concerts of the Berkshire Festival. Toch's Second Symphony is scheduled for performance July 25.

The school will have a six-week session starting July 5 under the direction of Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, assisted by Copland. There is a faculty of 50 members, including 24 from the Boston Symphony.

NEW HAVEN, CONN.
REGISTER
MAY 9 - 1954

BERKSHIRE CONCERTS

Twenty-four concerts are scheduled for the Berkshire Music Festival (Lenox, Mass.) this year between July 7 and August 15. Six concerts will be by chamber groups on Wednesday evenings, six by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players on Friday evenings, six by the full Boston Symphony on Saturday evenings, and the final six by the same group on Sunday afternoons.

Full programs and ticket information may be obtained from Berkshire Festival office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.
TIMES-UNION
MAY 1 1954

Tanglewood Auditions

Auditions for applicants to attend the coming summer session at the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, Mass., will be held Monday from noon at 2:30 p.m. in Room 412, Eastman School of Music.

TIGHT BINDING

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN

FEB 28 1954

Berlioz' Principal Works On Tanglewood Programs

Music Shed Series to Open July 10 With 'Damnation Of Faust'; Programs for Whole Enlarged Berkshire Festival Announced, With Soloists

Boston, Feb. 27—The programs for the enlarged Berkshire Festival of July and August have been decided on under the supervision of Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The increased season has been planned by Mr. Munch to meet the constantly growing popularity of these concerts, which drew a record number to Lenox in the Berkshire Hills last summer.

12 Shed Concerts

Twenty-four concerts are announced for the six weeks from July 7 to Aug. 15, including six concerts by chamber groups on Wednesday evenings, six concerts by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players on Friday evenings, six concerts by the full orchestra in the Music Shed on Saturday evenings and six Sunday afternoons.

In the course of the Shed concerts, Charles Munch will honor the 150th anniversary season of the birth of Berlioz by conducting this composer's principal works in their complete form. Guest conductors in the Shed concerts will be Pierre Monteux, conducting two concerts; Jean Morel, and Richard Burgin, each conducting one.

Shed Programs

Mr. Munch will open the Shed series on Saturday, July 10, with Berlioz' "Damnation of Faust," with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society. On Sunday afternoon, July 11, Pierre Monteux will present a Beethoven program including the Overture to "Leonore" No. 3, the Piano Concerto No. 5 ("Emperor") with Claudio Arrau as soloist, and the fifth symphony.

Second week (Shed, July 17, 18): Saturday evening (Pierre Monteux)—Franck program: "Le Chasseur Maudit," "Les Eolides," "Les Djinns" (piano soloist, Vera Franceschi), Symphony in D minor; Sunday afternoon (Charles Munch)—Debussy, "Iberia"; Copland, piano concerto (soloist, Leo Smit); Berlioz, "Fantastic Symphony."

Third week (Shed, July 24, 25): Saturday evening (Jean Morel)—Weber, Overture, "Der Freischutz"; Prokofieff, Sixth Symphony; Strauss, "Don Juan"; Elgar, "Enigma Variations." Sunday afternoon (Charles Munch)—Berlioz, "Beatrice and Benedict" Overture and "Harold in Italy" (viola soloist, William Primrose); Ernest Toch, Symphony No. 2.

Fourth Week End

Fourth week (Shed, July 31, Aug. 1): Saturday evening (Charles Munch)—Berlioz, "Romeo and Juliet" with Festival Chorus and soloists; Sunday afternoon (Richard Burgin)—Prokofieff, "Chout," Dvorak, Violin Concerto (soloist Ruth Posselt); Sibelius Symphony No. 2.

Fifth week (Shed, Aug. 7, 8): Saturday evening (Charles Munch)—Gluck, "Alceste" Overture; Beethoven, Violin Concerto (soloist, Zino Francescatti); Brahms, Symphony No. 2; Sunday afternoon (Charles Munch)—Berlioz program: "Benvenuto Cellini" Overture, "The Royal Hunt and Storm" from "The Trojans," "Summer Nights" for soprano and orchestra with Eleanor Steber as soloist, and the "Te Deum."

Sixth week (Shed, Aug. 14, 15): Saturday evening (Charles Munch)—Wagner, "Lohengrin" Prelude; Piston Fourth Symphony; Ravel, Piano Concerto (soloist, Nicole Henriot); Saint-Saens, Organ Symphony; Sunday afternoon (Charles Munch)—Berlioz, "Requiem" with Festival Chorus and four auxiliary orchestras.

Bach-Mozart Series

On the six Friday evenings preceding the Shed concerts, except in the final week when it will be given on Thursday, the concerts will be given in the intimate Theater-Concert Hall by an orchestra of chamber proportions. The first two weeks (July 9 and 16) Charles Munch will conduct music of Bach, including in the first the Brandenburg Concertos Nos. 1, 3, 2, 6, 5, and in the second, the Cantata No. 93 and Suites Nos. 1 and 4.

On July 23, he will conduct Handel's Concerto Grosso, Op. 6, No. 4, Haydn's "Military" Symphony, No. 100, and Hugh Ross will conduct Haydn's "Nelson" Mass. On July 30 Mr. Munch will conduct Roussel's "The Spider's Feast," the Ibert flute concerto with Doriot Anthony as soloist, Mozart's Serenade for Eight Winds in C minor, K. 388, and the same composer's "Paris" Symphony, K. 297.

On Aug. 6 Lukas Foss will conduct the complete Stravinsky ballet "Pulcinella," a piano concerto by Mozart with Seymour Lipkin as soloist, and excerpts from Mozart's "Idomeneo" with chorus and soloists. At the final concert on Thursday, Aug. 12, Jean Morel as guest will conduct Rossini's overture to "The Silk Ladder," Mozart's Symphony in B flat, K. 319, and Strauss' "Der Burger als Edelmann."

The series of concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall on the six Wednesday evenings will be devoted to music of chamber proportions. The first program on July 7 will be shared by Claudio Arrau, piano, and the Bel Arte String Trio.

The second on July 14 will have the Albeneri Trio; the third on July 21 the Zimbler Sinfonietta; the fourth on July 28 the Griller String Quartet; the fifth on Aug. 4 will have the Boston Woodwind Quintet and a soloist to be announced; the sixth on Aug. 11 the Kroll Quartet.

Seats at subscription rates are now available for all concerts. Full programs together with ticket information will be mailed promptly upon request to the Berkshire Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE

Berkshire Auditions

Auditions for instrumental musicians who wish to join the Berkshire Music Center's orchestra for this summer's session at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., will be held from noon to 2 p. m. next Sunday in Carnegie Recital Hall. Those accepted for this student orchestra will be eligible for tuition for applicants for the Center's opera department will be held in Carnegie Recital Hall from 11 a. m. to 2 p. m. Saturday, May 15. Intending applicants are requested to notify the Registrar, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass.

NEW CANAAN, CONN
ADVERTISER
3/4/54

Tales of Tanglewood . . .

County music-lovers who think nothing of the trek to the Berkshires for the Tanglewood concerts held there every summer under the auspices of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will be heartened to know that their enthusiasm is shared by many others.

According to Charles Munch, the Boston Symphony's music director, an enlarged program has been planned for July and August of this year, to meet the constantly growing popularity of these concerts, which drew a record number to Lenox in the Berkshire Hills last summer.

Twenty-four concerts have been announced for the six weeks from July 7 to August 15, including six concerts by chamber groups on Wednesday evenings, six by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players on Friday evenings, six concerts by the full Orchestra in the shed on Saturday evenings, and six on Sunday afternoons.

In the course of the Shed concerts, Mr. Munch will honor the 150th anniversary season of the birth of Berlioz by conducting this composer's principal works in their complete form. Guest conductors in the Shed concerts will be Pierre Monteux, conducting two concerts, and Jean Morel and Richard Burgin, each conducting one.

Boston Globe - Feb. 28 1954

Complete Be

Complete Programs Announced for Larger Berkshire Festival

The programs for the enlarged Berkshire Festival of July and August have been decided under the supervision of Charles Munch, the music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The increased season has been planned by Mr. Munch to meet the constantly growing popularity of these concerts, which drew a record number to Lenox in the Berkshire Hills last Summer. Twenty-four concerts are announced for the six weeks from July 7 to Aug. 15, including six concerts by chamber groups on Wednesday evenings, six concerts by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players on Friday evenings, six concerts by the full orchestra in the Shed on Saturday evenings and six Sunday afternoons.

